AND IN THE EVENING IN THE WEST.¹ R. JOHANAN B. NURI THEREUPON SAID, THEY ARE FALSE WITNESSES.² WHEN, HOWEVER, THEY CAME TO JABNEH RABBAN GAMALIEL ACCEPTED THEM. ON ANOTHER OCCASION TWO WITNESSES CAME AND SAID, WE SAW IT AT ITS PROPER TIME,³ BUT ON THE NIGHT WHICH SHOULD HAVE BEEN NEW MOON⁴ IT WAS NOT SEEN, AND RABBAN GAMALIEL [HAD ALREADY] ACCEPTED THEIR EVIDENCE.⁵ RABBI DOSA B. HARKINAS SAID: THEY ARE FALSE WITNESSES. HOW CAN MEN TESTIFY THAT A WOMAN HAS BORN A CHILD WHEN ON THE NEXT DAY WE SEE HER BELLY STILL SWOLLEN?⁶ SAID R. JOSHUA TO HIM: I SEE [THE FORCE OF] YOUR ARGUMENT. THEREUPON RABBAN GAMALIEL SENT TO HIM TO SAY, I ENJOIN UPON YOU TO APPEAR BEFORE ME WITH YOUR STAFF AND YOUR MONEY ON THE DAY WHICH ACCORDING TO YOUR RECKONING SHOULD BE THE DAY OF ATONEMENT.⁷ R. AKIBA WENT [TO R. JOSHUA] AND FOUND HIM IN GREAT DISTRESS.⁸ HE SAID TO HIM: I CAN BRING PROOF [FROM THE SCRIPTURE] THAT WHATEVER RABBAN GAMALIEL HAS DONE IS VALID, BECAUSE IT SAYS, THESE ARE THE APPOINTED SEASONS OF THE LORD, HOLY CONVOCATIONS, WHICH YE SHALL PROCLAIM IN THEIR APPOINTED SEASONS,⁹ [WHICH MEANS TO SAY THAT] WHETHER THEY ARE PROCLAIMED AT THEIR PROPER TIME OR NOT AT THEIR PROPER TIME, I HAVE NO APPOINTED SEASONS SAVE THESE.¹⁰ HE [R. JOSHUA] THEN WENT TO R. DOSA B. HARKINAS, WHO SAID TO HIM: IF WE CALL IN QUESTION [THE DECISIONS OF] THE BETH DIN OF RABBAN GAMALIEL, WE MUST CALL IN QUESTION THE DECISIONS OF EVERY BETH DIN WHICH HAS EXISTED SINCE THE DAYS OF MOSES UP TO THE PRESENT TIME. FOR IT SAYS, THEN WENT UP MOSES AND AARON, NADAB AND ABIHU AND SEVENTY OF THE ELDERS OF ISRAEL.¹¹ WHY WERE NOT THE NAMES OF THE ELDERS MENTIONED? TO SHOW THAT EVERY GROUP OF THREE WHICH HAS ACTED AS A BETH DIN OVER ISRAEL IS ON A LEVEL WITH THE BETH DIN OF MOSES.¹² HE [R. JOSHUA] THEREUPON TOOK HIS STAFF AND HIS MONEY AND WENT TO JABNEH TO RABBAN GAMALIEL ON THE DAY ON WHICH THE DAY OF ATONEMENT FELL ACCORDING TO HIS RECKONING. RABBAN GAMALIEL ROSE AND KISSED HIM ON HIS HEAD AND SAID TO HIM: COME IN PEACE, MY TEACHER AND MY DISCIPLE — MY TEACHER IN WISDOM AND MY DISCIPLE BECAUSE YOU HAVE ACCEPTED MY DECISION.

GEMARA. It has been taught: Rabban Gamaliel said to the Sages: This formula has been handed down to me from the house of my father's father: Sometimes it [the moon] traverses [the heavens]¹³ by a long course and sometimes by a short course.¹⁴ R. Johanan said: What is the reason of the house of Rabbi?¹⁵ Because it is written, Who appointest the moon for seasons, the sun knoweth his going down.¹⁶ It is the sun which knows its going down, but the moon does not know its going down.¹⁷

R. Hiyya once saw the [old] moon in the heavens on the morning of the twenty-ninth day.¹⁸ He took a clod of earth and threw it at it, saying, Tonight we want to sanctify you,¹⁹ and are you still here! Go and hide yourself.²⁰ Rabbi thereupon said to R. Hiyya, Go to En Tob²¹ and sanctify the month,²² and send me the watchword, 'David king of Israel is alive and vigorous'.²³

Our Rabbis taught: Once the heavens were covered with clouds and the likeness of the moon was seen on the twenty-ninth of the month. The public were minded to declare New Moon, and the Beth din wanted to sanctify it, but Rabban Gamaliel said to them: I have it on the authority of the house of my father's father that the renewal of the moon takes place after not less than twenty-nine days and a half and two-thirds of an hour and seventy-three halakin.²⁴ On that day the mother of Ben Zaza died, and Rabban Gamaliel made a great funeral oration over her, not because she had merited it, but so that the public should know that the Beth din had not sanctified the month.²⁵

R. AKIBA WENT AND FOUND HIM²⁶ IN GREAT DISTRESS. The question was asked, Who was in distress? Was R. Akiba in distress or was R. Joshua in distress? — Come and hear, since it has been taught: 'R. Akiba went and found R. Joshua while he was in great distress. He said to him, Master, why are you in distress? He replied: Akiba, it were better for a man²⁷ to be on a sick-bed for twelve months than that such an injunction should be laid on him.²⁸ He said to him, [Master,] will you allow me to tell you something which you yourself have taught me? He said to him, Speak. He then said to him: The text says, 'you', 'you', 'you', three times,²⁹ to indicate that 'you' [may fix the festivals] even if you err inadvertently, 'you', even if you err deliberately, 'you', even if you are misled.³⁰ He replied to him in these words: 'Akiba, you have comforted me, you have comforted me'.³¹

HE THEN WENT TO R. DOSA B. HARKINAS etc. Our Rabbis taught: Why were not the names of these elders mentioned? So that a man should not say, Is So-and-so like Moses and Aaron? Is So-and-so like Nadab and Abihu? Is So-and-so like Eldad and Medad?³² Scripture also says, And Samuel said to the people, It is the Lord that made Moses and Aaron,³³ and it says [in the same passage], And the Lord sent Jerubaal and Bedan and Jephthah and Samuel.³⁴ Jerubaal is Gideon. Why is he called Jerubaal? Because he contended with Baal. Bedan is Samson. Why is he called Bedan? Because he came from Dan. Jephthah is Jephthah

(1) We should naturally suppose this to mean that they saw the old moon in the morning and the new moon in the evening.

(2) Presumably because according to what has been stated above (20b) the old moon is never visible for twenty-four hours before the new appears. But v. infra at the beginning of the Gemara and notes.

(3) Apparently this must have been on the thirtieth day shortly before nightfall.

(4) Lit., 'the night of its carry-over', i.e., after the nightfall with which the thirty-first day begins, when it should have been clearly visible.

(5) And declared the thirtieth day New Moon.

(6) Lit., 'between her teeth'. Similarly the old moon would still be 'between the teeth' of the new.

(7) The New Moon in question was that of Tishri, and consequently the Day of Atonement according to R. Joshua would fall a day later than according to R. Gamaliel.

(8) Because he had been ordered to profane the Day of Atonement.

(9) Lev. XXIII, 4.

(10) V. supra. 89.

(11) Ex. XXIV, 9.

(12) Seeing that most of the members of that Beth din also bore no names of distinction.

(13) Lit., 'it comes (to its setting place)'.

(14) This would seem to show that (in the first case mentioned in the Mishnah) the witnesses said that they saw the new moon on both occasions, and R. Johanan b. Nuri rejected them, on the ground that it could not go from, east to west so quickly, while R. Gamaliel held that it could. V. Rashi s.v. עדי שקר in the Mishnah.

- (15) Rabbi was a descendent of Rabban Gamaliel.
- (16) Ps. CIV, 19.
- (17) I.e., its speed varies.
- (18) Which was a sign that the new moon would not appear for at least twenty-four hours.
- (19) So that the Day of Atonement should not be on Sunday.
- (20) [Before nightfall, so that there should be no appearance of the old moon after the closing of the twenty-ninth day, which would prevent the thirtieth day from being proclaimed New Moon (Rashi); v. supra p. 85, n. 5].
- (21) A place in Judah where the Beth din [used to meet to sanctify the month. V. Tosaf. s.v. שֵׁן].
- (22) Disregarding what you have seen.
- (23) I.e., the moon is reborn. The expression is based on Ps. LXXXIX, 38.
- (24) Lit., 'parts' (sc. of one hour), $73/1080 \times 60 \text{ m} = 4 \text{ m } 3 \frac{1}{3} \text{ sec}$. The new moon, therefore, could not be seen on the twenty-ninth day.
- (25) As a funeral oration would not be delivered on New Moon, which was regarded as a holy day.
- (26) [MS.M. omits 'HIM' which explains the question which follows].
- (27) [Var. lec. 'me'. V. Maharsha.]
- (28) Var. lec. 'on me'. V. Maharsha.
- (29) I.e., the word אתם (them) in Lev. XXII, 31, XXIII, 2 and XXIII, 4 is read את (you) for homiletical purposes.
- (30) By the witnesses.
- (31) By showing me that Rabban Gamaliel was within his rights. V. Maharsha ad loc.
- (32) I.e., if a man does say so about the Beth din in his own time, we can answer him that they may be at least like the seventy elders who are unknown by name.
- (33) 1 Sam. XII, 6.
- (34) Ibid. 11. These are here put on a par with Moses and Aaron.

Talmud - Mas. Rosh HaShana 25b

. It says also: Moses and Aaron among his priests and Samuel among them that call on his name.¹ [We see therefore that] the Scripture places three of the most questionable characters² on the same level as three of the the most estimable characters,³ to show that Jerubaal in his generation is like Moses in his generation, Bedan in his generation is like Aaron in his generation, Jephthah in his generation is like Samuel in his generation, [and] to teach you that the most worthless, once he has been appointed a leader⁴ of the community, is to be accounted like the mightiest of the mighty. Scripture says also: And thou shalt come unto the priests the Levites and to the judge thou shalt be in those days.⁵ Can we then imagine that a man should go to a judge who is not in his days? This shows that you must be content to go to the judge who is in your days. It also says; Say not, How was it that the former days were better than these.⁶

HE TOOK HIS STAFF AND HIS MONEY IN HIS HAND. Our Rabbis taught: When he [Rabban Gamaliel] saw him, he rose from his seat and kissed him on his head, saying, Peace to thee my teacher and my disciple — my teacher, because thou hast taught me Torah publicly, my disciple because I lay an injunction on thee and thou dost carry it out like a disciple. Happy is the generation in which the greater defer to the lesser, and all the more so the lesser to the greater! [You say] 'All the more so'! It is their duty!⁷ — What it means is that because the greater defer to the lesser, the lesser apply the lesson to themselves with all the more force.⁸

CHAPTER III

MISHNAH. IF THE BETH DIN AND ALL ISRAEL SAW IT,⁹ IF THE WITNESSES WERE TESTED¹⁰ AND THERE WAS NO TIME LEFT TO SAY 'SANCTIFIED' BEFORE IT GREW DARK, THEN THE MONTH IS PROLONGED.¹¹ IF THE BETH DIN¹² ALONE HAVE SEEN IT,¹³ TWO OF THEM SHOULD COME FORWARD AND TESTIFY BEFORE THEM, AND THEN THEY CAN SAY, 'SANCTIFIED, SANCTIFIED'. IF THREE PERSONS SAW IT, THEY [THEMSELVES] CONSTITUTING THE BETH DIN, TWO [OF THEM] SHOULD COME FORWARD AND THEY SHOULD ASSOCIATE SOME OF THEIR COLLEAGUES WITH THE ONE LEFT, AND THEY [THE TWO] SHOULD TESTIFY BEFORE THEM AND THEY CAN THEN SAY, 'SANCTIFIED, SANCTIFIED'. [THIS MUST BE DONE] BECAUSE AN INDIVIDUAL IS NOT AUTHORIZED [TO SAY 'SANCTIFIED'] BY HIMSELF.

GEMARA. What need is there to state IF THE BETH DIN AND ALL ISRAEL SAW IT?¹⁴ — It is necessary. You might think that since the Beth din and all Israel have seen it everyone knows about it and therefore they should not prolong the month.¹⁵ Therefore we are told [that this is not so].

But when once it has been stated IF THE BETH DIN AND ALL ISRAEL SAW IT, why should it further say, IF THE WITNESSES HAVE BEEN TESTED?¹⁶ — What it means is, 'Or if the witnesses had been tested and there was no time left to say "sanctified" before it grew dark, then the month must be prolonged'.

But when once it has been stated if IT GREW DARK THEN THE MONTH IS PROLONGED, why should the testing of the witnesses be mentioned at all?¹⁷ — It is necessary. For you might suppose that the testing of the witnesses is regarded as the commencement of a suit in court, and the pronouncement of 'sanctified', 'sanctified' as the end of the suit, and therefore they should sanctify at night, on the analogy of money suits, as we have learnt, 'Money suits are heard by day and concluded [if necessary] at night'; so here we should sanctify at night. Therefore we are told [that this is not so]. But cannot I say that this actually is the case?¹⁸ — Scripture says, For it is a statute for Israel, a judgment for the God of Jacob.¹⁹ When does the word 'statute'²⁰ apply? To the conclusion of the suit; and the All-Merciful calls it 'judgment'. [Therefore we reason], Just as judgment is delivered by day,²¹ so here [the pronouncement must be] by day.

IF THE BETH DIN [ALONE] HAVE SEEN IT, TWO OF THEM SHOULD COME FORWARD AND TESTIFY BEFORE THEM. Why so? Surely hearing should not carry greater weight than seeing?²² — R. Zera said, [It is necessary if] for instance, they saw it at night.²³

IF THREE PERSONS SAW IT, THEY [THEMSELVES] CONSTITUTING THE BETH DIN, TWO [OF THEM] SHOULD COME FORWARD AND THEY SHOULD ASSOCIATE SOME OF THEIR COLLEAGUES WITH THE ONE LEFT. Why so? Here too we can argue that hearing should not carry greater weight than seeing? And should you reply that here too [it is necessary] if, for instance, they saw it at night, then this is the same case as the one [preceding]? — It was necessary to state the last clause²⁴

[VIZ.]: BECAUSE AN INDIVIDUAL IS NOT AUTHORIZED [TO SAY 'SANCTIFIED'] BY HIMSELF. For you might have thought that since it has been taught, 'Money suits must be tried before three, but one who is a recognized legal expert²⁵ can try them even alone', so here too one might sanctify the month single-handed. Therefore we are told [that this is not so]. But cannot I say that this actually is the case?²⁶ — There was no more universally recognized expert in Israel than Moses, and yet the Holy One, blessed be He, said to him, [Do not sanctify the month] until Aaron is with thee, as it is written, And the Lord said unto Moses and Aaron in the land of Egypt saying, This month is to you.²⁷

This implies that a witness²⁸ may act as judge. Shall we say then that our Mishnah does not agree with R. Akiba, since it has been taught: 'If the Sanhedrin saw a man slay a person

- (5) Deut. XVII, 9.
- (6) I.e., had better judges than these. Eccl. VII, 10.
- (7) We naturally suppose the words to mean, 'all the more so where the lesser defer to the greater', which would imply that such a thing is not ordinarily to be expected.
- (8) I.e., they say, 'how much more should we defer to the greater'.
- (9) On the thirtieth day, shortly before nightfall.
- (10) The meaning of this is explained infra in the Gemara.
- (11) I.e., the thirty-first day becomes New Moon and not the thirtieth.
- (12) Of twenty-three members.
- (13) Not necessarily on the thirtieth day.
- (14) I.e., why mention Israel as well as the Beth din?
- (15) But reckon that same day as New Moon.
- (16) Why are witnesses needed if all the people have seen it?
- (17) Since this case can be inferred a fortiori from the previous one.
- (18) I.e., what reason is there why in general the pronouncement should not be made at night?
- (19) Ps. LXXXI, 5.
- (20) The Hebrew word is פס, which is taken by the Talmud in the sense of 'decision', 'verdict'.
- (21) V. Sanh. 32a.
- (22) I.e., the report of the witnesses should not carry greater weight than what they have seen with their own eyes.
- (23) Hence on the next day they must rely on a report.
- (24) I.e., this sentence merely leads up to the next.
- (25) Heb. Mumhe (v. Glos.).

Talmud - Mas. Rosh HaShana 26a

, some of them act as witnesses and some as judges. This is the view of R. Tarfon. R. Akiba says: They all act as witnesses, and a witness cannot act as a judge'? — You may say that our Mishnah agrees even with R. Akiba. R. Akiba meant this rule to apply only to capital cases, in regard to which the All-Merciful enjoined, the congregation shall judge . . . and the congregation shall deliver¹ and since they have seen him slay a person, they cannot find any defence for him. But in this case even R. Akiba would agree [that a witness may act as judge].

MISHNAH. ALL KINDS OF SHOFAR² MAY BE USED EXCEPT [ONE MADE FROM THE HORN] OF A COW, BECAUSE IT IS [PROPERLY] KEREN.³ SAID R. JOSE: ARE NOT ALL SHOFARS CALLED 'KEREN' AS IT SAYS, WHEN THEY MAKE A LONG BLAST WITH THE RAM'S KEREN [HORN]?⁴

GEMARA. R. Jose was surely quite right. What can the Rabbis reply? — That all shofars are called both shofar and keren, whereas that of a cow is called keren but is not called shofar, as it is written, His firstling bullock, majesty is his, and his horns [karnaw] are as the horns of a re'em.⁵ What says R. Jose to this? — He can reply that that of a cow is also called shofar as it is written, And it shall please the Lord better than a bullock [shor par]⁶ that hath horns and hoofs.⁷ Now if 'shor' is mentioned here why 'par', and if 'par' why 'shor'?⁸ The fact is that shor par is equivalent to shofar.⁹ And the Rabbis? — They adopt the explanation of R. Mattenah; for R. Mattenah said: What is meant by shor par? A shor which is as full-grown as a par.¹⁰ 'Ulla said: The reason of the Rabbis is to be found in the saying of R. Hisda; for R. Hisda said: Why does not the High Priest enter the inner precincts¹¹ in garments of gold¹² to perform the service there? Because the accuser may not act as defender.¹³ Is that so? What of the blood of the bullock?¹⁴ — Seeing that this has been transformed,¹⁵ the objection to it is removed.¹⁶ But what of the ark, with the mercy-seat and the cherub?¹⁷ — What we say is that the sinner should not bring near the offering. But what of the spoon and the censer?¹⁸ — What we say is that the sinner should not adorn himself. But what of the garments of gold [which he wore] in the outer sanctuary? — We speak of [ministrations In the] inner precincts. The shofar also is [used] in the outer precincts? — Since its purpose is to awaken remembrance, it is as if it were [used] within.

But the Tanna says BECAUSE IT IS [PROPERLY] KEREN? — He mentioned [only] an additional reason:¹⁹ one reason is because the accuser cannot act as defender, and the other is because it is keren. What says R. Jose to this? — His answer is: Your statement that the accuser cannot act as defender applies only to the inner precincts, and this shofar is [used] in the outer precincts. And as for your statement that this shofar is keren, all shofars are likewise called keren.

Abaye said: The reason of the Rabbis is that the All-Merciful prescribed ‘a shofar’, and not two or three shofars, and the one made from a cow's horn being in layers²⁰ looks like two or three shofars. But the Tanna says, BECAUSE IT IS PROPERLY KEREN? — He stated [only] an additional reason:¹⁹ one reason is that the All-Merciful prescribed one shofar, and not two or three shofars, and another reason is that it is keren. What then says R. Jose to this? — He can reply: With regard to your statement that the All-Merciful prescribed one shofar and not two or three shofar, since the layers are closely joined together, it is really one, and as for your statement that it is keren, all shofars are likewise called keren.

What proof is there that the word yobel here²¹ means ram? — As it has been taught: R. Akiba said: When I went to Arabia, they used to call a ram yobla. R. Akiba further said: When I went to Gallia, they used to call a niddah²² ‘galmudah’.²³ How galmudah? — [As much as to say], gemulah da [this one is isolated] from her husband. R. Akiba further said: When I went to Africa, they used to call a ma'ah²⁴ ‘kesitah’. What is the practical importance of this? — For explaining [the Scriptural expression] a hundred kesitah;²⁵ it means, a hundred danki.²⁶

Rabbi said: When I went to the sea-ports, they called mekirah [selling] ‘kirah’. What is the practical importance of this? — To explain [the Scriptural expression] asher karithi.²⁷ R. Simeon b. Lakish said: When I went to the district of Ken Nishraya,²⁸ they used to call a bride ninfe and a cock sekvi. ‘A bride ninfe’:²⁹ where do we find this in Scripture? Yefeh nof,³⁰ the joy of the whole earth.³¹ ‘A cock sekvi’: Rab Judah said in the name of Rab, or, if you prefer,³² of R. Joshua b. Levi: Where do we find this in the Scripture? Who hath put wisdom in the tuhoth,³³ or who hath given understanding to the sekvi?³⁴ ‘Who hath put wisdom in the tuhoth’ — these are the reins; ‘or who hath given understanding to the sekvi’ — this is the cock.

In a certain place which Levi happened to visit, a man came before him and said

(1) Num., XXXV, 25, 26. The word ‘deliver’ is taken by R. Akiba to mean ‘find a defence for’.

(2) A kind of trumpet made of the horn of certain animals. Scripture prescribes (Lev. XXV, 9) that a shofar should be used for proclaiming the Jubilee. The Psalmist also says (Ps. LXXXI, 4), Blow ye the shofar on the new moon.

(3) I.e., all kinds of horns may be used for making a shofar except that of a cow, because an instrument made from a cow's horn, though similar to a shofar in all respects, is properly called keren (lit. ‘horn’)

(4) Josh. VI, 5. This is identified by the Talmud with the shofar mentioned in the same verse (when ye hear the sound of the shofar).

(5) Deut. XXXIII, 17. We see here that the horn of a bullock is called keren.

, So-and-so has kaba'ed¹ me. He did not know what he meant, so he went and enquired in the Beth Hamidrash. They said to him: He wanted to say to you, 'has robbed me', as it is written, Will man rob [yikba'] God?² Raba from Barnish³ said to R. Ashi: Had I been there, I should have said to him, How did he kaba' you, in what did he kaba' you, why did he kaba' you, and so I should have found out [from his answers]. The other [Levi], however, thought that he meant some kind of offence.⁴

The Rabbis did not know what was meant by serugin⁵ till one day they heard the maidservant of Rabbi's household, on seeing the Rabbis enter at intervals, say to them, How long are you going to come in by serugin?

The Rabbis did not know what was meant by halugluth⁶ till one day they heard the handmaid of the household of Rabbi, on seeing a man peeling portulaks, say to him, How long will you be peeling your halugluth?

The Rabbis did not know what was meant by 'salselehah' and it shall exalt thee.⁷ One day they heard the handmaid of the household of Rabbi say to a man who was curling his hair, How long will you be mesalsel⁸ with your hair?

The Rabbis did not know what was meant by we-tetethia bematate of destruction,⁹ till one day they heard the handmaid of the household of Rabbi say to her companion, Take the tatitha [broom] and tati [sweep] the house.

The Rabbis did not know what was meant by Cast upon the Lord thy yehab and he shall sustain thee.¹⁰ Said Rabbah b. Bar Hanah: One day I was travelling with an Arab¹¹ and was carrying a load, and he said to me, Lift up your yehab and put it on [one of] the camels.¹²

MISHNAH. THE SHOFAR USED ON NEW YEAR¹³ WAS OF AN ANTELOPE'S HORN AND STRAIGHT, AND ITS MOUTH WAS OVERLAID WITH GOLD. THERE WERE TWO TRUMPETS, ONE ON EACH SIDE OF IT. THE SHOFAR GAVE A LONG BLAST AND THE TRUMPETS A SHORT ONE, SINCE THE PROPER CEREMONY OF THE DAY WAS WITH THE SHOFAR.¹⁴ ON [COMMUNAL] FAST DAYS THEY USED [TWO] CURVED SHOFARS OF RAMS, THE MOUTHS OF WHICH WERE OVERLAID WITH SILVER. THERE WERE TWO TRUMPETS BETWEEN THEM; A SHORT BLAST WAS MADE WITH THE SHOFARS AND A LONG ONE WITH THE TRUMPETS, BECAUSE THE RELIGIOUS DUTY OF THE DAY WAS [TO BE PERFORMED] WITH THE TRUMPETS.¹⁵ THE JUBILEE IS ON A PAR WITH NEW YEAR FOR BLOWING THE HORN AND FOR BLESSINGS.¹⁶ R. JUDAH SAYS: ON NEW YEAR THE BLAST IS MADE WITH A SHOFAR OF RAMS AND ON JUBILEES WITH ONE OF ANTELOPES.

GEMARA. R. Levi said: The religious duty of New Year and of the Day of Atonement is performed with a curved shofar, and on other days in the year with a straight shofar. But we learn, THE SHOFAR OF NEW YEAR WAS A STRAIGHT ONE OF ANTELOPE'S HORN? — Levi followed the view of the following Tanna, as it has been taught: 'R. Judah says, On New Year they used to blow with curved shofars of rams' horns and on jubilees with shofars of antelopes' horns'. Why then did not he [Levi] say that the law¹⁷ follows the view of R. Judah?¹⁸ — If you were to say that the law follows R. Judah, I should say that in the case of the Jubilee also he was of the same opinion as R. Judah. Now we know [that this is not so]. What is the ground of the difference [between R. Judah and the First Tanna]? — One authority [R. Judah] holds that on New Year the more a man [so to speak] bends his mind the more effective [is his prayer], while on the Day of Atonement [of the Jubilee] the more a man elevates¹⁹ his mind the better is the effect.²⁰ The other authority holds that on New Year the more a man elevates his mind the better the effect, and on fast days the more he bends his mind the better the effect.

AND ITS MOUTH WAS OVERLAID WITH GOLD. But has it not been taught: 'If it was overlaid with gold at the place where the mouth is applied, it is not valid;¹ if not at the place where the mouth is applied, it is valid'? — Abaye replied: When this state ment is made in our Mishnah, it also refers to the place where the mouth is not applied.

THERE WERE TWO TRUMPETS, ONE ON EACH SIDE OF IT. But can two distinct sounds be caught at once?² Has it not been taught:³ "Remember" and "observe" were spoken in a single utterance,⁴ a thing which transcends the capacity of the [human] mouth to utter and of the [human] ear to hear'? — It was for this reason that the blast of the shofar was prolonged. This implies that if one heard the end of the blast without the beginning he has performed his duty;⁵ and from this it would follow that if he heard the beginning of the blast without the end he has equally performed his duty. Come now and hear [a refutation of this idea]: 'If he blew teki'ah at the beginning [of the service] and prolonged the second so as to make it equal to two, this only counts as one'.⁶ Why should this be? Why should not it [the second blast] be counted as divided into two?⁷ — We do not divide a teki'ah into two.

Come and hear [another objection]: If one blew into a pit or a cistern or a barrel, if the sound of the shofar came out [pure], he has performed his duty, but if an echo came out [with it], he has not performed his duty.⁸ Why should this be? Cannot he have performed his duty [by hearing] the beginning of the blast, before the sound is confused [with the echo]? — The truth is that two utterances proceeding from one man cannot be distinguished, but proceeding from two men they can be distinguished.⁹ But if they proceed from two men can they be distinguished? Have we not learnt: 'In the recital of the Torah [in synagogue] one may read and another translate;¹⁰ what is not allowed is that¹¹ one should read¹² and two translate'.¹³ — The fact is that our case resembles that mentioned in the next clause [of this quotation]: 'In the recital of Hallel and the Megillah¹⁴ even ten may read'.¹⁵ This shows that since an interest is taken in these,¹⁶ the hearer pays close attention. So here, since an interest is taken, he pays close attention and hears [the two sounds]. Why then is the blast of the shofar prolonged? — So that people should know that the proper ceremony of the day is with the shofar.

ON FAST DAYS THEY USED CURVED SHOFARS OF RAMS' HORNS THE MOUTHS OF WHICH WERE OVERLAID WITH SILVER. Why in the other case should gold have been used and here silver? — If you like I can reply that for all public gatherings silver is used, as it is written, Make thee two trumpets of silver,¹⁷ or if you like I can say that the Torah wished to spare Israel unnecessary expense.¹⁸ [If that is so], we should use silver in the other case also? — Even so, this consideration is outweighed by that of paying respect to the holyday.

R. Papa b. Samuel was minded to follow the instructions of the Mishnah,¹⁹ but Raba said to him, These instructions were laid down only for the Sanctuary. It has been taught to the same effect: Where do these rules apply? To the Sanctuary; but in the provinces, where the trumpets are in place²⁰ there is no shofar, and where the shofar is in place²¹ there are no trumpets. R. Halafta adopted the same custom in Zepphoris and R. Hananiah b. Teradion in Sikni,²² and when this was reported to the Sages they said: This was not the practice save only in the gates of the East and the Mount of the Temple.²³ Said Raba — or it may be R. Joshua b. Levi: What is the Scriptural warrant for this? — Because it is written, With trumpets and the sound of the shofar shout ye before the king, the Lord:²⁴ before the king, the Lord,²⁵ we require trumpets and the sound of the shofar, but elsewhere not.

THE JUBILEE IS ON A PAR WITH THE NEW YEAR FOR BLOWING THE HORN AND FOR BLESSINGS. R. Samuel b. Isaac asked: What authority do we follow in saying nowadays [on New Year] the prayer, 'This day is the beginning of thy works, the commemoration of the first day'?²⁶ What authority? R. Eliezer, who said that the world was created in Tishri. R. 'Ena raised an objection [against this view]: [It is stated], THE JUBILEE IS ON A PAR WITH THE NEW YEAR FOR BLOWING THE TRUMPET AND FOR BLESSINGS. [Now how can this be on your view] seeing that there is [the prayer], 'This day is the beginning of thy works, the commemoration of the first day'?²⁷ — The statement of the Mishnah refers to the other [features]. R. Shisha the son of R. Idi reported the discussion thus. 'R. Samuel b. Isaac said: This statement of our Mishnah, THE JUBILEE IS ON A PAR WITH THE NEW YEAR FOR BLOWING THE HORN AND FOR BLESSINGS. — which authority does it follow? Not that of R. Eliezer. For if you were to say it follows R. Eliezer, seeing that he holds that the world was created in Tishri, what would you make of "This day is the commencement of thy works, the commemoration of the first day", which is said on New Year and is not said on the Jubilee? — [The answer is that] the Mishnah speaks only of the other [features]'.

IF A HOLE IN A SHOFAR HAS BEEN STOPPED UP, IF IT INTERFERES WITH THE BLOWING IT IS NOT VALID, BUT OTHERWISE IT IS VALID.¹ IF ONE BLOWS INTO A PIT OR A CISTERN² OR A BARREL, IF HE CAN HEAR THE SOUND OF THE SHOFAR [PURE] HE HAS PERFORMED HIS DUTY, BUT IF HE HEARS THE ECHO [ALSO], HE HAS NOT PERFORMED HIS DUTY. SIMILARLY IF ONE WAS PASSING BEHIND A SYNAGOGUE OR IF HIS HOUSE WAS ADJOINING THE SYNAGOGUE AND HE HEARD THE SOUND OF THE SHOFAR OR OF THE MEGILLAH³ [BEING READ], IF HE LISTENS WITH ATTENTION⁴ HE PERFORMS THE RELIGIOUS PRECEPT [BY SO HEARING], BUT OTHERWISE HE DOES NOT; ALTHOUGH ONE HEARS EQUALLY WITH THE OTHER, [YET THERE IS A DIFFERENCE, BECAUSE] THE ONE LISTENED WITH ATTENTION WHILE THE OTHER DID NOT LISTEN WITH ATTENTION.

GEMARA. Our Rabbis taught: 'If the horn was too long and it has been shortened, it is valid. If it has been scraped till it becomes thin like a wafer,⁵ it is valid. If it is overlaid at the spot where the mouth is applied, it is not valid, if not at the spot where the mouth is applied,⁶ it is valid. If it is overlaid with gold on the inside, it is not valid,⁷ if on the outside, if the sound is thereby changed from what it was before, it is not valid, but otherwise it is valid. If it had a hole which has been stopped up, if this interferes with the blast it is not valid, but otherwise it is valid.⁸ If one shofar is put inside another shofar, if one can hear the sound of the inner one he thereby performs his religious duty, but if he hears the sound of the outer one he does not thereby perform his religious duty.⁹

Our Rabbis taught: If it was scraped whether on the inside or the outside, it is valid. If it was scraped till it became [thin like] a wafer, it is valid. If one shofar is placed within another, if one hears the sound of the inner one he thereby performs his religious duty, but if he hears the sound of the outer one he does not thereby perform his religious duty. If he turns it inside out¹⁰ and blows it, he does not thereby perform his religious duty. Said R. Papa: Do not take this to mean [merely], 'if he turned it inside out like a coat', but even if he widened the narrow part and narrowed the wide part. What is the reason? — As stated by R. Mattenah; for R. Mattenah said: And thou shalt carry along:¹¹ we require [the horn to be] of the shape in which it is carried along.¹²

Our Rabbis taught: 'If the least quantity is added to it whether of its own material or of another material, it is not valid. If there was a hole in it and it is stopped up, whether with its own material or another material, it is not valid. R. Nathan, however, says, if with its own material it is valid, but if with another material it is not valid'.¹³ 'If with its own material it is valid': Said R. Johanan: This is the case only if the greater part of the original is left. From this we infer that if it is stopped with another material, even though the greater part of the original was left it may not be used. Some attach R. Johanan's remark to the latter clause: 'If with another material it is not valid': Said R. Johanan: This is the case only if the greater part of the original was removed. From this we infer that if the stoppage is made with the same material, even though the greater part of the original is gone it is valid.¹⁴ 'If it was overlaid with gold on the inside it is not valid, if on the outside, if its sound becomes different from what it was before, it is not valid, but otherwise it is valid. If it is split lengthwise it is not valid, but if breadthwise, if enough is left to produce a blast it is valid, but otherwise it is not valid.'¹⁵ How much is enough to produce a blast? — R. Simeon b. Gamaliel explained: Enough to allow of it being held in the hand and leaving something showing on either side. 'If its sound is thin or thick or dry, it is valid, since all sounds emitted by a shofar can pass muster',¹⁶

They sent to inform the father of Samuel: If one pierced it [the horn] and blew with it, he has performed his religious duty. Is not this obvious? All shofars are pierced!¹⁷ — R. Ashi explained: [It means], if he pierced the inset bone.¹⁸ You might think that although it is of the same material it makes a partition; we are therefore told [that this is not so].

IF ONE BLOWS INTO A PIT OR A CISTERN etc. R. Huna said: This rule applies only to those standing on the edge of the pit, but those standing in the pit perform their religious duty thereby. It has been taught to the same effect: 'If one blows into a pit or a cistern, he performs his religious duty'. But have we not learnt, HE DOES NOT PERFORM HIS RELIGIOUS DUTY? You must therefore understand it in the sense of R. Huna's dictum. Some put the two statements in opposition, [thus]: We have learnt, IF ONE BLOWS INTO A PIT OR A CISTERN HE DOES NOT PERFORM HIS RELIGIOUS DUTY. But has it not been taught, 'He does perform his religious duty'? — R. Huna replied: There is no contradiction; the one statement speaks of those standing on the edge of the pit, the other of those standing in the pit.

Rabbah¹⁹ said:

(1) The Talmud Yerushalmi reads here, 'If it (the hole) interfered with the blowing before it was closed, the shofar is not valid after it was closed'. Talmud - Mas. Rosh HaShana 28a

If one heard part of the blast in the pit and part of the blast on the edge of the pit,¹ he has performed his religious duty. If he heard part of the blast before the dawn² and part of the blast after dawn he has not performed his religious duty. Said Abaye to him: Why this difference? Because in the latter case we require the whole of the blast [which he hears] to be obligatory and this requirement is not fulfilled?³ In the former case also we require the whole of the blast to be obligatory, and this requirement is not fulfilled!⁴ — Are the two cases parallel? In the latter, night is a time to which the obligation does not apply at all, but in the former, the pit is a place to which the obligation does apply for those who are in the pit.⁵

I infer from this that Rabbah was of opinion that if one heard the end of a blast without the beginning he has performed his religious duty,⁶ and that from this it follows that if he heard the beginning without the end, he has likewise performed his religious duty. Come now and hear [an objection to this]: 'If one blew a teki'ah at the beginning [of the series] and prolonged the second one so as to be equal to two, it still counts as only one'. Why should this be? Let it be counted as divided into two? — We do not divide teki'ahs.⁷ Come and hear [another objection]: 'If one blows into a pit or a cistern or a barrel, if he hears the sound of the shofar [pure] he has performed his religious duty, but if he hears the echo he has not performed his religious duty'. Why should this be? Let him have performed his religious duty with the beginning of the blast, before the sound is confused [with the echo?] — Rabbah was speaking of one who blows [for himself] and as he blows steps out of the pit.⁸ If that is so, what is the point of his remark?⁹ — You might argue that sometimes he puts his head out while the shofar is still in the pit and so the sound is confused. We are therefore told [that this makes no difference].

Rab Judah said: One should not blow with a shofar taken from a burnt-offering,¹⁰ but if he did so¹¹ he has performed his religious duty. One should not blow with a shofar taken from a peace-offering, and if he did so he has not performed his religious duty. What is the reason? A burnt-offering is subject to the rule of trespass,¹² and once trespass has been committed with it, it becomes unhallowed. Peace-offerings, on the other hand, not being subject to the rule of trespass,¹³ are still saddled with their prohibition,¹⁴ (and do not become unhallowed).¹⁵ Raba strongly demurred to this. When [he said], is the trespass committed? After he has blown; but when he blows, he does so with something prohibited.¹⁶ No, said Raba: alike in one case and the other, he has not performed his religious duty. Later, however, he said: Alike in one case and in the other he has performed his religious duty, because religious precepts are not meant to provide physical enjoyment.¹⁷

Rab Judah said: One should not blow with a shofar which has been used for idolatrous purposes,¹⁸ but if he does so, he has performed his religious duty.¹⁹ One should not blow with a shofar from a devoted city,²⁰ and if he does so he has not performed his religious duty. What is the reason? In a devoted city nothing is [presumably] left of proper size.²¹

Raba said: If one is interdicted by vow to have any benefit²² from his neighbour, the other may yet perform the ritual blowing of the shofar for him.²³ One, too, who is interdicted by vow to have any enjoyment from a shofar may yet perform with it the ritual blowing. Raba further said: If one is interdicted by vow to have any benefit from his neighbour, the other may yet sprinkle on him the water of the sin-offering²⁴ in the rainy season, but not in the summer time. One who has vowed to have no enjoyment from a fountain may take a ritual bath in it in the rainy season²⁵ but not in the summer time.

They sent to inform the father of Samuel: If a man is compelled by force to eat unleavened bread [on Passover], he thereby performs his religious duty.²⁶ Compelled by whom? Shall I say, by an evil spirit? But has it not been taught, 'If a man is sometimes in his sound senses and sometimes crazy, when he is in his senses he is regarded as a sane man in all particulars, and when he is crazy he is regarded as insane in all particulars'?²⁷ — R. Ashi said: [It means], if the Persians compelled him. Said Raba:²⁸ This would imply that if one blew the shofar simply to make music, he has performed his religious duty. Is not this obvious?²⁹ This is just what has been said!³⁰ — You might argue that in the previous case the All-Merciful has prescribed that unleavened bread should be eaten, and he has eaten³¹

(1) We naturally suppose this to speak of one who steps out of the pit while he hears someone else blowing in the pit.

(2) [Lit., 'before the pillar of the dawn went up'. This is the legal dividing line between night and day.]

(3) It is obligatory to hear the shofar only by day but not by night.

(4) One who is on the edge of the pit does not fulfil his obligation by hearing one blow in the pit.

(5) And he fulfils his obligation with the part he heard in the pit.

- (12) Heb. מעילה, the using of holy things for secular purposes, v. Lev. V, 15ff.
- (13) I.e., even while still alive. After it had been offered and the blood sprinkled the law of trespass applied to certain portions of the flesh assigned for the altar.
- (14) Even if they have been accidentally used for secular purposes, they remain hallowed and must not be further used for such purposes.
- (15) These words in the text are bracketed.
- (16) Even in the case of the burnt-offering.
- (17) And since he derives no physical enjoyment from the act, he does not commit trespass.
- (18) Because no benefit may be derived from articles which have been used for idolatrous purposes, v. A.Z. 51b.
- (19) Because such performance is not intended to give any enjoyment. This reason is based on the opinion of Raba and not of Rab Judah; perhaps therefore we should read here 'Raba said', not 'Rab Judah said'. V. Tosaf. s.v. אמר רב יהודה.

Talmud - Mas. Rosh HaShana 28b

, whereas in this case it is written a memorial of blowing the trumpet¹ and this man is merely amusing himself.² Therefore we are told [that this argument does not apply].

We conclude from this that in Raba's opinion religious precepts do not need to be performed with deliberate intention. The following objection was raised against this view: 'If a man was reading the [passage of the shema] in the Torah and the time of reading [the shema] arrived, if he put his mind to it, he has performed his religious duty'. Does this not mean, 'put his mind to perform his religious duty'? — No; it means, [put his mind] to read [distinctly]. To read? But he is reading! — We speak of one who is reading to correct [the scroll].³

Come and hear: 'IF HE WAS PASSING BEHIND THE SYNAGOGUE, OR IF HIS HOUSE WAS ADJOINING THE SYNAGOGUE, AND HE HEARD THE SOUND OF THE SHOFAR OR OF THE READING OF THE MEGILLAH, IF HE PUT HIS MIND TO IT HE THEREBY PERFORMED HIS RELIGIOUS DUTY, BUT IF NOT HE DID NOT PERFORM HIS RELIGIOUS DUTY'. Does not this mean, 'if he put his mind to perform his religious duty'? — No; [it means, if he put his mind] to hear. To hear? But he is hearing! — He may think, it is merely an ass braying. The following objection was raised against this view: 'If the hearer [of the shofar] put his mind to the act but not the performer,⁴ or the performer put his mind but not the hearer, he did not perform his religious duty; [he does not do so] until both hearer and performer put their minds to the act'. I understand the case where the performer put his mind but not the hearer, as the latter may have thought it was merely an ass braying. But that the hearer should put his mind and not the performer — how can this happen? Is it not where the latter blows merely to make music?⁵ — Perhaps [it refers to a case] where he merely [as it were] barks.⁶ Said Abaye to him:⁷ But if that is so, then one who sleeps in the Sukkah⁸ on the eighth day should be flogged?⁹ — He replied: [Not so], because I maintain that commandments cannot be transgressed [by adding to them] save in their proper season.

R. Shaman b. Abba raised the following objection against this view: 'Whence do we learn that a priest who mounts the platform¹⁰ should not say, "Because the Torah has given me permission to bless Israel, I will add a blessing of my own, as for instance, The Lord, the God of your fathers, add unto you"?'¹¹ Because it says, Ye shall not add unto the word'.¹² Now here, since he has finished blessing them,¹³ the time of the precept has passed, and yet it states that he transgresses? — Here we are dealing with the case where he has not yet finished the blessings. But the statement runs, 'he has finished'? — That means, he has finished one blessing.¹⁴ But it states, 'he finished all his blessings'? — There is a special reason in this case; seeing that, if he comes across another congregation, he may bless again, the whole day is reckoned as the proper time.¹⁵ But what is your ground for saying so? — Because we have learnt: If blood which has to be sprinkled [on the altar] once¹⁶ has been mixed with other blood which had to be sprinkled once, the whole should be sprinkled once. If blood which has to be sprinkled four times¹⁷ has been mixed with other blood which has to be sprinkled four times, the whole must be sprinkled four times. If blood which has to be sprinkled four times is mixed with blood which has to be sprinkled once, R. Eleazar says the whole should be sprinkled four times. R. Joshua says it should be sprinkled once. Said R. Eleazar to him: By doing so he transgresses the precept of 'thou shalt not diminish'.¹⁸ To which R. Joshua retorted, By doing your way, he transgresses the precept of thou shalt not add.¹⁹ Said R. Eleazar to him: The precept 'thou shalt not add' applies only when the act is repeated on the same subject.²⁰ To which R. Joshua replied: The precept 'thou shalt not diminish' applies only where the act is withheld from the same subject.²⁰ R. Joshua said further to him: If you do not sprinkle [four times], you transgress the rule of 'thou shalt not diminish', but you do not perform any positive action,²¹ When you do sprinkle, you transgress the rule of 'thou shalt not add' and you do perform a positive action.²² Now here, as soon as he has made one sprinkling for the firstborn, its time is past, and yet it says that he transgresses the precept of 'thou shalt not add'; and is not the reason for this because we say that since, if he gets hold of another firstborn he can sprinkle its blood, the whole day is reckoned its proper time? — [No.] Perhaps R. Joshua was of opinion that precepts may be transgressed even out of their proper time.²³ We argue thus.²⁴ Why does R. Shaman b. Abba leave the Mishnah and bring his objection from the Baraitha? Let him bring his objection from the Mishnah! What is the reason why he does not adduce the Mishnah? On the ground that, if he [the priest] gets hold of another firstborn he can sprinkle its blood, the whole day is its proper time. But in the case mentioned in the Baraitha also, seeing that, if he comes across another congregation he may bless again, the whole day is the proper time! What says R. Shaman b. Abba to this? — In that case [of the blood], he is bound to sprinkle;²⁵ in this case, if he likes he may bless, and if he likes he need not bless.

Raba says: For the performance of his religious duty, he does not require to put his mind to it. For transgression [by adding to the precept], he does require to put his mind. But what of the sprinkling of blood, where, according to R. Joshua, he transgresses though he does not put his mind to it?²⁶ Raba therefore [corrected himself and] said: For the performance of the religious duty he does not require to put his mind to it; for [being accounted to have committed a] transgression [by adding to the precept] if [the act is done] in proper time, he does not require to put his mind to it; if it is not done in its proper time he does require to put his mind to it.

R. Zera said to his attendant:

Talmud - Mas. Rosh HaShana 29a

Put your mind to it and blow [the shofar] for me. I gather from this that in his opinion the performer requires to put his mind to it.¹ The following was raised in objection against this view: IF HE WAS PASSING BEHIND THE SYNAGOGUE, OR IF HIS HOUSE WAS ADJOINING THE SYNAGOGUE AND HE HEARD THE SOUND OF THE SHOFAR OR THE READING OF THE MEGILLAH, IF HE PUT HIS MIND TO IT HE THEREBY PERFORMED HIS RELIGIOUS DUTY, BUT IF NOT HE DID NOT. And if he did put his mind to it, what difference does it make [on your theory], seeing that the other [the performer] was not consciously performing for him? — We are here speaking of a congregational reader who performs consciously for all.

Come and hear: 'If the hearer put his mind to it but not the performer, or if the performer put his mind to it but not the hearer, he did not perform his religious duty; [he does not do so] until both the hearer and the performer put their mind to it'. Here he mentions the performer in the same breath with the hearer, [to indicate that] just as the hearer hears for himself, so the performer performs for himself, and [in such a case] he states that 'he did not perform his religious duty'?² — There is a difference on this point between Tannaim, as it has been taught: The hearer hears for himself, and the performer performs for all and sundry.³ R. Jose said: This applies only to a congregational reader, but an ordinary individual does not perform his religious duty until both the hearer and the performer put their mind to it.

MISHNAH. [IT IS WRITTEN] AND IT CAME TO PASS, WHEN MOSES HELD UP HIS HAND THAT ISRAEL PREVAILED, ETC.⁴ NOW DID THE HANDS OF MOSES WAGE WAR OR CRUSH THE ENEMY?⁵ NOT SO; ONLY THE TEXT SIGNIFIES THAT SO LONG AS ISRAEL TURNED THEIR THOUGHTS ABOVE AND SUBJECTED THEIR HEARTS TO THEIR FATHER IN HEAVEN THEY PREVAILED, BUT OTHERWISE THEY FELL. THE SAME LESSON MAY BE TAUGHT THUS. [IT IS WRITTEN], MAKE THEE A FIERY SERPENT AND SET IT UP ON A POLE, AND IT SHALL COME TO PASS THAT EVERYONE THAT IS BITTEN, WHEN HE SEETH IT, SHALL LIVE.⁶ NOW DID THE SERPENT KILL OR DID THE SERPENT KEEP A LIVE? NO; [WHAT IT INDICATES IS THAT] WHEN ISRAEL TURNED THEIR THOUGHTS ABOVE AND SUBJECTED THEIR HEARTS TO THEIR FATHER IN HEAVEN, THEY WERE HEALED, BUT OTHERWISE THEY PINED AWAY.⁷

A DEAF-MUTE, A LUNATIC AND A MINOR CANNOT PERFORM A RELIGIOUS DUTY ON BEHALF OF A CONGREGATION.⁸ THIS IS THE GENERAL PRINCIPLE: ONE WHO IS NOT HIMSELF UNDER OBLIGATION TO PERFORM A RELIGIOUS DUTY CANNOT PERFORM IT ON BEHALF OF A CONGREGATION.

GEMARA. Our Rabbis taught: ‘All [males] are under obligation to blow the shofar, Priests, Levites and lay Israelites, proselytes and emancipated slaves, tumtum⁹ and androgynus,¹⁰ and one who is half slave and half free.¹¹ A tumtum cannot perform [a religious duty] either for a fellow-tumtum or for anyone else.¹² An androgynus can perform [a religious duty] for a fellow-androgynus¹³ but nor for anyone else. One who is half a slave and half free can perform [a religious duty] neither for one in the same condition nor for anyone else’.¹⁴

The Master has here said, ‘All are under obligation to blow the shofar, Priests, Levites and lay Israelites’. Is not this self-evident? If these have not the duty, who has? — This had to be stated. For you might have argued, Seeing that it is written, A day of blowing the trumpet it shall be to you,¹⁵ this obligation devolves upon those who have not to blow save on one day a year, but since these priests participate in the blowings all through the year, as it is written, And ye shall blow with your trumpets over your burnt-offerings,¹⁶ I might think that they are not bound [to observe this blowing]. Therefore we are told [that this is not so]. Is there any analogy? You cite trumpets and we speak of shofar! No; [what you must say is], This had to be stated. For I might argue that since we have learnt, ‘The Jubilee is on the same footing as New Year in respect of blowing the shofar and blessings’,¹⁷ those to whom the injunction of the Jubilee applies have to keep the precept of New Year, and since these priests do not come under the obligations of the Jubilee, as we have learnt, ‘Priests and Levites may sell at any time and redeem at any time’,¹⁸ therefore they are not bound to keep the precept of New Year. Therefore we are told [that this is not so].

‘One who is half a slave and half free can perform [a religious duty] neither for one who is in the same condition nor for anyone else’. R. Huna said: He may, however, perform [the duty] for himself. Said R. Nahman to R. Huna: What is the reason why he may not perform [it] for others? Because the side of slavery [in himself] cannot perform [the duty] for the side of freedom [in others]. In regard to himself similarly, the side of slavery should not be able to perform [the duty] for the side of freedom in himself? No, said R. Nahman; he cannot perform [the duty] for himself either. It has been taught to the same effect: One who is half slave and half free cannot perform the [religious duty] even for himself.

Ahabah the son of R. Zera learnt: Any blessing which one has already recited on behalf of himself, he can recite again on behalf of others,¹⁹ save the blessing over bread and the blessing over wine.²⁰ These if he has not yet recited on behalf of himself²¹ he may recite on behalf of others,²² but if he has already recited them for himself he cannot recite them on behalf of others.²³ Raba inquired:

- (1) I.e., to perform consciously for the benefit of the hearer.
- (2) [This is difficult, v. Marginal Glosses, Bezaleel Ronsburg. Read with MS.M.: 'and it states (in such a case, i.e., where the performer performs for himself provided the hearer puts his mind to it) he performed his duty.]
- (3) Lit., 'according to his way'; i.e., he need not consciously perform for the benefit of the listener.
- (4) Ex. XVII, 11.
- (5) Lit., 'break war'.
- (6) Num. XXI, 8.
- (7) This disquisition in the Mishnah is suggested by the references above to 'religious intention' (v. Maharsha).
- (8) Lit., 'cannot take the public out of the power of their obligation'.
- (9) One of uncertain sex.
- (10) A hermaphrodite.
- (11) E.g., a slave of two masters, one of whom has released him.
- (12) Because possibly the tumtum is a female and as no obligation. Lit., 'either for his own species or not for his own species'.
- (13) In virtue of the male part common to both of them.
- (14) As the slave side of the performer cannot delegate for the free side of the hearer.
- (15) Num. XXIX, 1.
- (16) Ibid. X, 10.
- (17) V. supra 26b.
- (18) 'Ar. 33b. A better reading is, 'may sanctify at any time and redeem etc'. (v. Tosaf. s.v. דַּתְנִי), the reference being to the right of a priest or Levite to sanctify or redeem at any time a field even if it has been sold by the treasurer of the sanctuary, which was not permissible to a lay Israelite; v. 'Ar. 26b and 33b.
- (19) Lit., 'in respect of all other blessings, though he emerged from his responsibility, he can bring (others) forth'. The blessings referred to are those said over the performance of religious precepts, and the reason is that all Israelites are responsible for one another in regard to the performance of religious precepts.
- (20) This includes blessings over food and scents generally, which are only said because it is forbidden to enjoy the goods of this world without a blessing, not because the partaking is a religious duty.
- (21) Lit., 'if he does not emerge (from his responsibility)'.
- (22) Lit., 'he brings forth (from their responsibility)'.
- (23) Because, as there is no religious duty involved, he is not responsible for their partaking.

Talmud - Mas. Rosh HaShana 29b

What is the rule with regard to the blessing for bread said over the mazzah and the blessing for wine said in the sanctification?¹ Do we say that since [the partaking of these] is obligatory, he can perform [the duty] for others, or have we here perhaps only an [optional] blessing, not an obligation?² — Come and hear, since R. Ashi said: When we were at the house of R. Papi, he used to say the sanctification for us, and when his tenants came from the fields he used to make the sanctification for them.³

Our Rabbis taught: A man should not break bread⁴ for visitors unless he eats with them, but he may break bread for his children and the members of his household so as to train them in the performance of religious duties. In the reciting of [the blessing over] Hallel and the Megillah, even though he has already performed [the duty] for himself, he may perform it for others.

CHAPTER IV

MISHNAH. IF THE FESTIVE DAY OF NEW YEAR FELL ON A SABBATH, THEY USED TO BLOW THE SHOFAR IN THE TEMPLE BUT NOT IN THE COUNTRY:⁵ AFTER THE DESTRUCTION OF THE TEMPLE, RABBAN JOHANAN BEN ZACCAI ORDAINED THAT IT SHOULD BE BLOWN [ON SABBATH] IN EVERY PLACE WHERE THERE WAS A BETH DIN. R. ELIEZER SAID: RABBAN JOHANAN BEN ZACCAI LAID DOWN THIS RULE FOR

JABNEH ONLY.⁶ THEY SAID TO HIM: IT APPLIES EQUALLY TO JABNEH AND TO ANY PLACE WHERE THERE IS A BETH DIN. JERUSALEM HAD THIS FURTHER⁷ SUPERIORITY OVER JABNEH, THAT IN EVERY CITY FROM WHICH IT COULD BE SEEN OR HEARD AND WHICH WAS NEAR AND FROM WHICH IT WAS ACCESSIBLE THEY USED TO BLOW [ON SABBATH],⁸ WHEREAS IN JABNEH THEY USED TO BLOW IN THE BETH DIN ONLY.⁹

GEMARA. Whence [in the Scripture] is this rule¹⁰ derived? — R. Levi b. Lahma said: One verse says, a solemn rest, a memorial of blast of horns,¹¹ while another verse says, it is a day of blowing the horn unto you!¹² [Yet] there is no contradiction, as one refers to a festival which falls on Sabbath¹³ and the other to a festival which falls on a weekday. Raba said: If the prohibition [on Sabbath] is from the Written Law, how comes the shofar to be blown in the Temple? And besides, [the blowing] is no work¹⁴ that a text should be needed to except it.¹⁵ For it was taught in the school of Samuel:¹⁶ [When it says], Ye shall do no servile work [on New Year],¹⁷ this excludes the blowing of the shofar and the taking of bread from the oven,¹⁸ these being kinds of skill and not work! — No, said Raba. According to the Written Law it is allowed, and it is the Rabbis who prohibited it as a precaution; as stated by Rabbah; for Rabbah said, All are under obligation to blow the shofar but not all are skilled in the blowing of the shofar. [Hence] there is a danger that perhaps one will take it in his hand [on Sabbath] and go to an expert to learn and carry it four cubits in public domain.¹⁹ The same reason applies to the lulab and the same reason to the Megillah.²⁰

AFTER THE DESTRUCTION OF THE TEMPLE RABBAN JOHANAN BEN ZACCAI ORDAINED etc. Our Rabbis taught: Once New Year fell on a Sabbath [and all the towns assembled],²¹ and Rabban Johanan said to the Bene Bathyra,²² Let us blow the shofar. They said to him, Let us discuss the matter.²³ He said to them, Let us blow and afterwards discuss. After they had blown they said to him, Let us now discuss the question. He replied: The horn has already been heard in Jabneh, and what has been done is no longer open to discussion.²⁴

R. ELIEZER SAID: RABBAN JOHANAN BEN ZACCAI LAID DOWN THIS RULE FOR JABNEH ONLY. THEY SAID TO HIM: IT APPLIES EQUALLY TO JABNEH AND TO ANY PLACE WHERE THERE IS A BETH DIN. [What] THEY SAID TO HIM is the same as the dictum of the first Tanna?²⁵ — There is a difference between them, namely, in the case of a temporary Beth din.²⁶

THEY SAID TO HIM: IT APPLIES EQUALLY TO JABNEH AND TO ANY PLACE WHERE THERE IS A BETH DIN. R. Huna said

(1) The eating of unleavened bread on the first night of Passover and the sanctification of Sabbaths are religious duties and as such have to be prefaced with blessings. In addition, the ordinary blessing is said over the mazzah and the wine as articles of physical enjoyment. Raba's question relates to these latter blessings.

(2) I.e., is the blessing on this occasion on a par with the blessing on other occasions when the partaking is optional?

(3) This would show that in this case the one who recites the blessing over bread and wine, though he had already recited it for himself, can recite it again for others.

(4) I.e., recite the blessing.

(5) Including Jerusalem (Rashi). [Maim.: excluding Jerusalem].

(6) Where there was a 'Great Beth din' or Sanhedrin of seventy-two members. [A small town on the N.W. border of Judah, the Jabneel of Josh. XV, 11. It was a seat of learning as early as the days of R. Gamaliel the Elder. At the request of R. Johanan b. Zaccai it was spared by Vespasian at the time of the destruction of the Temple. when the Great Sanhedrin removed there and was presided over by R. Johanan b. Zaccai.]

(7) The meaning of this expression is discussed in the Gemara.

(8) After the destruction of the Temple.

(9) And not in the surrounding towns.

- (10) That the shofar should not be blown on Sabbath.
- (11) Lev. XXIII, 24.
- (12) Num. XXIX, 1. How reconcile the two texts?
- (13) When there is to be only a 'memorial' or mention of the blowing of the shofar, not actual blowing.
- (14) [Read with MS.M. and Rashi: 'Is it work that etc.'.]
- (15) From the general Prohibition of work on Sabbath.
- (16) [Var. lec., R. Ishmael.]
- (17) Num. XXIX, 1.
- (18) After it is baked. V. Tosaf., s.v. רדיית
- (19) But this carrying was not forbidden in the Temple.
- (20) V. Glos,
- (21) To Jabneh in order to hear the blowing of the shofar by the representatives of the Beth din. The brackets appear in the text.
- (22) Descendants of the leaders of the Sanhedrin who resigned their position in favour of Hillel. V. Pes. 66a.
- (23) Whether the prohibition should be extended to a Place where there is a Beth din.
- (24) Lest we should have to stigmatize ourselves as having committed an error.
- (25) That R. Johanan b. Zaccai ordained that the shofar should be blown on Sabbath wherever there was a Beth din.
- (26) The latter authority requires that the Beth dill should be a permanent one like that of Jabneh.

Talmud - Mas. Rosh HaShana 30a

, [The shofar on Sabbath is blown only] with the Beth din. What is meant by 'with the Beth din'? — In the presence of the Beth din, [and he means] to except [from the permission] any blowing [on Sabbath] not in the presence of the Beth din.

Raba raised the following objection against this view: JERUSALEM HAD THIS FURTHER SUPERIORITY OVER JABNEH etc. What does THIS FURTHER imply? Shall I say that [the text] is to be taken as it stands?¹ Then it should have said THIS simply!² Again, should it imply that in Jerusalem private individuals used to blow and in Jabneh private individuals did not blow, [I would ask,] but did not private individuals blow in Jabneh? When R. Isaac b. Joseph came, did he not report that when the congregational reader had finished blowing in Jabneh, a man could not hear his own voice³ for the noise of the blowing [of individuals]?⁴ What then must be said is that in Jerusalem the shofar was blown whether during the hours when the Beth din sat⁵ or the hours when they did not sit, but in Jabneh it was blown during the hours when they sat but not when they did not sit. You admit then that during the hours when the Beth din sat at any rate they blew away from the Beth din?⁶ — No; [what it implies⁷ is that] in Jerusalem they blew whether in the presence of the Beth din or not in their presence, but in Jabneh they did blow in the presence of the Beth din, but otherwise not.

Some attach R. Huna's dictum to [the exposition of] the text, On the day of Atonement ye shall cause a shofar to pass through all your land,⁸ [thus]: This teaches that every individual is under obligation to blow. R. Huna said: It must be with the Beth din. What is meant by 'with the Beth din'? At the time when the Beth din sits,⁹ to exclude [from the permission] the time when the Beth din does not sit. Raba raised the following objection: The blowing of the shofar on New Year and Jubilee overrides Sabbath in the country¹⁰ [for] a man and his house. What is meant by 'a man and his house'? Shall I say it means a man and his wife? Has then a woman to perform this duty, seeing that it is a duty for which there is a specific time,¹¹ and women are not liable to perform any duties for which there is a specific time? What it therefore must mean is, every man in this house', and even [I presume] during the hours when the Beth din does not sit? — No; it means in fact during the hours when the Beth din does sit.

R. Shesheth raised the following objection [against this view]: 'The Jubilee is on the same footing as New Year for blowing the shofar and for blessings, only on the Jubilee they blew [on Sabbath] alike in a Beth din in which the New Moon had been sanctified and in a Beth din in which the New Moon had not been sanctified, and every individual was under obligation to blow, whereas on New Year they blew only in a Beth din in which the New Moon had been sanctified and private individuals were not under obligation to blow'. What is meant by 'private individuals were not under obligation to blow'? Shall I say that on the Jubilee individuals used to blow a shofar and on New Year individuals did not blow? [This cannot be], because when R. Isaac b. Joseph came he said that when the congregational reader in Jabneh finished blowing a man could not hear his own voice for the noise [of the blowings] of individuals. It must mean then that on the Jubilee they blow both during the hours when the Beth din sits and also when the Beth din does not sit, but on New Year they blow when the Beth din sits but not when the Beth din does not sit. Now it states here at any rate that on the Jubilee [it is blown] whether when the Beth din is sitting or when it is not sitting?¹² — No; what indeed is meant is, when the Beth din sits, and the statement should be understood thus: On the Jubilee [it is blown] during the hours when the Beth din sits whether in the presence of the Beth din or not in the presence of the Beth din; but on New Year it is blown only when the Beth din sits and in the presence of the Beth din. It has also been stated [elsewhere]: R. Hiyya b. Gamda said in the name of R. Jose b. Saul, who had it from Rabbi: The shofar is blown only during the hours that the Beth din sits.

R. Zera inquired: If they have made ready¹³ to rise, what is the rule? Is it necessary that the Beth din should be still seated, and this condition is fulfilled, or is it necessary that it should be during the sitting of the Beth din, and this condition is not fulfilled? — This question is left undecided.

JERUSALEM HAD THIS FURTHER SUPERIORITY OVER JABNEH etc. FROM WHICH IT COULD BE SEEN: this excludes one situated in a valley. OR HEARD: this excludes one situated on the top of a mountain. OR NEAR: this excludes one situated beyond the Sabbath limit.¹⁴ OR FROM WHICH IT WAS ACCESSIBLE: this excludes one separated from it by a river.

MISHNAH. ORIGINALLY THE LULAB WAS SHAKEN¹⁵ IN THE SANCTUARY DURING SEVEN DAYS AND IN THE COUNTRY ONLY ONE DAY.¹⁶ WHEN THE TEMPLE WAS DESTROYED RABBAN JOHANNAN B. ZACCAI ORDAINED THAT THE LULAB SHOULD BE SHAKEN IN THE COUNTRY SEVEN DAYS, IN REMEMBRANCE OF THE SANCTUARY. [HE] ALSO [ORDAINED] THAT DURING

THE WHOLE OF THE DAY OF THE WAVING [OF THE 'OMER]¹⁷ THE NEW CORN SHOULD BE FORBIDDEN.

GEMARA. What is our warrant for doing things in remembrance of the Temple? — Because the Scripture says, For I will restore health unto thee and I will heal thee of thy wound, saith the Lord, because they have called thee an outcast, 'she is Zion, there is none that inquireth after her'.¹⁸ From this we gather that she ought to be inquired after.

THAT THE WHOLE OF THE DAY OF WAVING THE 'OMER THE NEW CORN SHOULD BE FORBIDDEN. What is the reason? — The Temple, [let us hope], will speedily be rebuilt, and [the Jews] will [then] say, 'Last year did we not eat [the new corn] from daybreak?¹⁹ Now too let us eat', they not knowing that last year when there was no [waving of the] 'omer it was daybreak which rendered the new corn permissible, but now that there is the 'omer it is the 'omer which renders it permissible. When [are we supposing] it will be built? Shall I say it will be built on the sixteenth [of Nisan]? Then daybreak [of the sixteenth] will render the new corn permissible.²⁰ Shall I say then that it will be built on the fifteenth?²¹ Then let [the new corn] become Permissible from midday [on the sixteenth], since we have learnt: 'Those who are at a distance [from the Temple] are allowed to eat [the new corn] from midday, because the Beth din do not procrastinate [with the 'omer]'.²² -The rule is necessary in case the Temple will be built on the fifteenth shortly before sunset,²³ or also in case it will be built by night.²⁴

R. Nahman b. Isaac [however] said: Rabban Johanan b. Zaccai

- (1) I.e., that there is no omission to be supplied.
(2) Because no superiority has so far been mentioned.
(3) Lit., 'ears'. [MS.M.: voice in his ears'.]
(4) In the text the words 'of individuals' are in brackets.
(5) I.e., till six hours (midday) — Rashi.
(6) Which refutes R. Huna's statement that in Jabneh the permission to blow on Sabbath was only in the presence of the Beth dill.
(7) As to the superiority of Jerusalem.
(8) Lev. XXV, 9.
(9) And not, as above, in the presence of the Beth din, this being excluded by through all your land including places where there is no Beth din.
(10) Lit., 'the borders', i.e., outside the Sanctuary.
(11) Lit., 'which time causes (its observance)'.
(12) Which is contrary to the opinion of R. Huna as explained above.
(13) Lit., 'shaken themselves'.
(14) I.e., more than two thousand cubits from the wall of Jerusalem.
(15) Lit., 'taken', 'lifted up'. On lulab v. Glos.
(16) V Suk. 41a.
(17) I.e., the sixteenth of Nisan; v. Glos. s.V.
(18) Jer. XXX, 17.
(19) The text says, Ye shall not eat bread . . . until this selfsame day, until ye have brought the offering (of the 'omer). — Lev. XXIII, 14. The Rabbis learn from this (Men. 68), that when the 'omer is brought the new corn may be eaten as soon as it is brought, and when it is not brought the new corn may be eaten from daybreak on the sixteenth of Nisan.
(20) The Temple not yet having been built.
(21) [I.e., it will have been built by the fifteenth so that there would be time to make all the preparation necessary for the offering of the 'omer v. Rashi Suk. 41a.]
(22) And it may be safely assumed that they have brought it by midday.
(23) [The law that the building of the Temple does not override the Sabbath (v. Sheb. 15b) does not apply to the future Temple which will be wrought by the hands of Heaven (Rashi). MS.M. (v. also Tosaf. Suk. 41a S.V. 'ס) omit fifteenth, the reference being to the fourteenth day before sunset when there would not be ample time to provide for many of the preliminaries to the offering of the 'omer, which had to be attended to on the eve of the Festival (v. Men. 65a).]

based his rule on the view enunciated [later] by R. Judah, who said: [Ye shall neither eat bread . . .] until this selfsame day:¹ this means, until the termination² of the day, and he was of the opinion that the expression 'until' is inclusive [of its object]. But did Rabban Johanan concur with him [R. Judah]? Did he not join issue with him, as we have learnt:³ 'When the Temple was destroyed, Rabban Johanan b. Zaccai ordained that during the whole of the day of waving the 'omer the new corn should be forbidden. Said R. Judah: Is it not forbidden from the Torah, [as it is written, until this selfsame day]?⁴ — On that occasion it was R. Judah who made a mistake. He thought that Rabban Johanan b. Zaccai declared it only Rabbinically forbidden, but this is not the case: he declared it forbidden from the Pentateuch. But it is stated that 'he ordained'?⁵ — What is meant [here] by 'ordained'? It means, he expounded [the text] and ordained'.⁶

MISHNAH. ORIGINALLY THEY USED TO ACCEPT TESTIMONY WITH REGARD TO THE NEW MOON DURING THE WHOLE OF THE DAY. ON ONE OCCASION⁷ THE WITNESSES WERE LATE IN ARRIVING, AND THE LEVITES WENT WRONG IN THE DAILY HYMN.⁸ IT WAS THEREFORE ORDAINED THAT TESTIMONY SHOULD BE ACCEPTED [ON NEW YEAR] ONLY UNTIL

THE AFTERNOON SACRIFICE, AND THAT IF WITNESSES CAME AFTER THE AFTERNOON SACRIFICE THAT DAY⁹ SHOULD BE KEPT AS HOLY¹⁰ AND ALSO THE NEXT DAY. AFTER THE DESTRUCTION OF THE TEMPLE RABBAN JOHANAN B. ZACCAI ORDAINED THAT TESTIMONY WITH REGARD TO THE NEW MOON SHOULD BE RECEIVED DURING THE WHOLE OF THE DAY.

GEMARA. How did the Levites go wrong in the daily Psalm?¹¹ — Here [in Babylon] it was explained that they did not say any psalm at all.¹² R. Zera, however, said that they recited the weekday psalm along with the regular sacrifice of the afternoon.¹³ Said R. Zera to Ahabah his son: Go and cite to them [the Babylonians] [the following Baraitha]: ‘They made a rule that testimony with regard to the new moon should not be received unless there was still time left to offer the regular sacrifices and the additional sacrifices and their drink-offerings and to recite the psalm without confusion’.¹⁴ Now if you hold that they said the weekday psalm, we understand how there is a possibility of confusion, but if they did not say any psalm at all, how could there be confusion? — Since they did not say a psalm at all, there could be no confusion¹⁵ greater than this.

R. Aha b. Huna raised the following objection [against this latter view]: The regular morning sacrifice on New Year is offered in the usual way.¹⁶ Over the additional sacrifice what psalm is said? [The one commencing], Sing aloud unto God our strength, make a teru'ah¹⁷ unto the God of Jacob.¹⁸ At the afternoon sacrifice what did they say? [The psalm containing the words], The voice of the Lord shaketh the wilderness.¹⁹ When New Year fell on a Thursday, for which the regular psalm is ‘Sing aloud unto God our strength’,²⁰ they did not say ‘Sing aloud’ at the morning service because the same section was afterwards repeated. What then did they say? I removed his shoulder from the burden.²¹ If, however, witnesses came after the regular morning sacrifice,²² they said ‘Sing aloud’, although the verse might afterwards have to be repeated’. Now if you hold that wherever there is a doubt we say the weekday psalm, we understand the statement here that ‘it might be repeated’. But if you hold that they said no psalm at all, what is meant by repeating it? —

(1) Lev. XXIII, 14.

(2) Heb. עצמו של יום lit., ‘the very self of the day’.

(3) Men. 68b.

(4) These words in the text are bracketed.

(5) Heb. התקין a term usually applied to ordinances of the Rabbis not derived from the written text.

(6) That henceforth they should be forbidden to eat the new corn the whole of the sixteenth, this being an injunction of the Scripture.

(7) On the occasion of a New Year (Rashi).

(8) The meaning of this is discussed infra in the Gemara.

(9) I.e., the thirtieth day of the month.

(10) In point of fact it had already been kept as holy from the previous sunset, out of doubt. The rest of it was now to be kept as holy, although the New Moon would not be sanctified till to-morrow, the thirty-first day, which naturally would also be holy. The reason why the rest of the thirtieth day was declared holy was as a precaution lest, if the public were allowed to keep this part as a weekday, they might in future years keep the whole day as a weekday on the assumption that after all the witnesses would not come, or not come till late (Rashi).

(11) Lit., ‘song’. It was the custom for the Levites to chant a psalm while the drink-offering accompanying the daily sacrifices was being offered, as explained in the Gemara infra.

(12) Being in doubt whether to recite the festival psalm or that of the weekday, V. infra.

- (13) Whereas, since the day was eventually declared holy, they should have recited the festival psalm. [No special psalm was instituted to be recited in connection with the morning sacrifice on New Year as witnesses rarely came so early.]
- (14) The Hebrew word is שִׁבוּשׁ which R. Zera apparently understands in the sense of 'gabbling'.
- (15) The word שִׁבוּשׁ being taken in the sense of 'error'.
- (16) I.e., it is accompanied by the weekday psalm, v. p. 144, n. 5.
- (17) E.V. 'shout'.
- (18) Ps. LXXXI, 2. The words 'make a teru'ah' were of course appropriate to the day of teru'ah, — New Year.
- (19) Ps. XXIX, 8. This verse is reminiscent of the shofar blown at the giving of the Law.
- (20) V. infra, in the list of the daily psalms.
- (21) Ps. LXXXI, 7. This verse was said because it refers to Joseph who was supposed to have been liberated on New Year (v. supra 11a). Apparently the latter half of this psalm was said with the morning sacrifice and the first half with the additional sacrifice.
- (22) So that at the time of the sacrifice they did not yet know if the day would be holy.

Talmud - Mas. Rosh HaShana 31a

There the case is different, because it is the psalm of the day.¹

It has been taught: 'R. Judah said in the name of R. Akiba: On the first day [of the week] what [psalm] did they [the Levites] say? [The one commencing] The earth is the Lord's and the fulness thereof,² because He took possession and gave possession³ and was [sole] ruler in His universe.⁴ On the second day what did they say? [The one commencing], Great is the Lord and highly to be praised,⁵ because he divided His works⁶ and reigned over them like a king.⁷ On the third day they said, God standeth in the congregation of God,⁸ because He revealed the earth in His wisdom and established the world for His community.⁹ On the fourth day they said, O Lord, Thou God, to whom vengeance belongeth,¹⁰ because He created the sun and the moon and will one day punish those who serve them. On the fifth day they said, Sing aloud to the God of our strength,¹¹ because He created fishes and birds to praise His name.¹² On the sixth day they said, The Lord reigneth, He is clothed in majesty,¹³ because He completed His work and reigned over His creatures. On the seventh day they said, A psalm a song for the Sabbath day,¹⁴ to wit, for the day which will be all Sabbath.¹⁵ Said R. Nehemiah: What ground had the Sages¹⁶ for making a difference between these sections?¹⁷ No. On the first day [the reason for the psalm said is] because He took possession and gave possession and was [sole] ruler in His world; on the second day because He divided and ruled over them; on the third day because He revealed the earth in His wisdom and established the world for His community; on the fourth day, because He created the sun and the moon and will one day punish those who serve them; on the fifth day because He created birds and fishes to praise His name; on the sixth day because He completed His work and reigned over His creatures; on the seventh day, because He rested. The point at issue between them¹⁸ is whether to accept or not the dictum of R. Kattina; for R. Kattina said: The world is to last six thousand years, and one thousand it will be desolate, as it says, And the Lord alone shall be exalted in that day.¹⁹ Abaye, however, said: It will be desolate two thousand, as it says, After two days He will revive us.²⁰

At the additional sacrifice of Sabbath what did they say? — R. Anan²¹ b. Raba said in the name of Rab: Hazyw Lak.²² R. Hanan b. Raba said also in the name of Rab: As these sections are divided here, so they are divided [when read on Sabbath] in the synagogue.²³ At the afternoon sacrifice of Sabbath what did they say? — R. Johanan said: Then sang,²⁴ and Who is like thee,²⁵ and Then sang.²⁶

The question was raised: Were all these portions said on each Sabbath, or was only one said on every Sabbath? — Come and hear, since it has been taught: 'R. Jose said: By the time the first of these sections²⁷ has come round once, the second has come round twice'.²⁸ This shows that each Sabbath one portion was said: and this may be taken as proved.

R. Judah b. Idi said in the name of R. Johanan: The Divine Presence [so to speak] left Israel by ten stages²⁹ — this we know from references in Scripture — and the Sanhedrin correspondingly wandered to ten places of banishment³⁰ — this we know from tradition. ‘The Divine Presence left Israel by ten stages — this we know from references in Scripture’: [it went] from the Ark-cover to the Cherub³¹ and from the Cherub to the threshold [of the Holy of Holies], and from the threshold to the court, and from the court to the altar,³² and from the altar to the roof [of the Temple], and from the roof to the wall, and from the wall to the town, and from the town to the mountain, and from the mountain to the wilderness, and from the wilderness it ascended and abode in its own place,³³ as it says, I will go and return to my place.³⁴ ‘From the Ark-cover to the Cherub³⁵ and from the Cherub to the threshold’, as it is written, And there will I meet with thee . . . from above the ark-cover,³⁶ and it is written, And the glory of the Lord was gone up from the cherub whereupon it was to the threshold of the house.³⁷ ‘And from the threshold to the court’, as it is written, And the house was filled with the cloud, and the court was full of the brightness of the Lord's glory,³⁸ ‘From the court to the altar’, as it is written, I saw the Lord standing on the altar.³⁹ ‘And from the altar to the roof’, as it is written, It is better to dwell it, a corner of the housetop [than in a house in common with a contentious woman].⁴⁰ ‘From the roof to the wall’, as it is written, Behold, the Lord stood by a wall made by a plumbline.⁴¹ ‘From the wall to the town’, as it is written, The voice of the Lord crieth unto the city.⁴² ‘And from the city to the mountain’, as it is written, And the glory of the Lord went up from the midst of the city and stood upon the mountain which is on the east side of the city.⁴³ ‘And from the mountain to the wilderness as it is written, It is better to dwell in a desert land [than with a contentious woman].⁴⁴ ‘And from the wilderness it went and abode in its own place’, as it is written, I shall go and return to my place until they acknowledge their guilt.⁴⁵

R. Johanan said: The Divine Presence tarried for Israel in the wilderness six months in the hope that they would repent. When [it saw that] they did not repent, it said, Let their soul expire, as it says, But the eyes of the wicked shall fail and they shall have no way to flee and their hope shall be the expiry of the soul.⁴⁶

‘Correspondingly the Sanhedrin wandered to ten places of banishment, as we know from tradition’, namely, from the Chamber of Hewn Stone⁴⁷ to Hanuth,⁴⁸ and from Hanuth to Jerusalem, and from Jerusalem to Jabneh,⁴⁹

and from Jabneh to Usha,¹ and from Usha [back] to Jabneh, and from Jabneh [back] to Usha, and from Usha to Shefar'am,² and from Shefar'am to Beth She'arim, and from Beth She'arim to Sepphoris, and from Sepphoris to Tiberias;³ and Tiberias is the lowest-lying of them all,⁴ as it says, And brought down thou shalt speak out of the ground.⁵ R. Eleazar says: There were six banishments, as it says, For he hath brought down them that dwell on high, the lofty city, laying it low, laying it low even to the ground, bringing it even to the dust.⁶ Said R. Johanan: And from there they are destined to be redeemed, as it says, Shake thyself from the dust, arise.⁷

MISHNAH. R. JOSHUA B. KORHA SAID: THIS FURTHER

REGULATION DID R. JOHANAN B. ZACCAI MAKE, THAT SHOULD THE HEAD OF THE BETH DIN BE IN SOME OTHER PLACE THE WITNESSES SHOULD STILL PROCEED ONLY TO THE PLACE OF THE ASSEMBLY.⁸

GEMARA. A certain woman was summoned to appear before Amemar in Nehardea. Meanwhile Amemar went to Mahuza, but she did not follow him. He accordingly wrote out a summons [under the penalty of the ban]⁹ against her. Said R. Ashi to Amemar: [Is this right] seeing that we have learnt: SHOULD THE HEAD OF THE BETH DIN BE IN SOME OTHER PLACE THE WITNESSES SHOULD STILL PROCEED ONLY TO THE PLACE OF THE ASSEMBLY? — He replied: This refers only to the testimony with regard to the new moon, and [the reason for it is that] if this¹⁰ [were to be insisted on], the result might be to put a stumbling block in their way for the future;¹¹ but in this case, the borrower is a servant to the lender.¹²

Our Rabbis have taught: ‘The priests are not permitted to ascend the duchan¹³ in their sandals, and this is one of the nine regulations laid down by Rabban Johanan b. Zaccai’. [What are these nine?] — Six mentioned in this chapter¹⁴ and one in the preceding chapter¹⁵ and the following one, as it has been taught: ‘One who becomes a proselyte at the present time¹⁶ must set aside a quarter¹⁷ for a nest of pigeons’.¹⁸ Said R. Simeon b. Eleazar: Rabban Johanan took a vote on it and annulled this rule, because it may lead to wrongdoing.¹⁹ As to the last,²⁰ there is a difference of opinion between R. Papa and R. Nahman b. Isaac. R. Papa said it was [the regulation] regarding a vine of the fourth year, whereas R. Nahman b. Isaac said it was the one regarding the thread²¹ of scarlet. ‘R. Papa said it was the regulation regarding the vine of the fourth year’, for we have learnt: [The fruit of] a vine in the fourth year was taken to Jerusalem from any point within a day's journey on all sides.²² The boundary of this area was as follows: Elath on the north, Akribath on the south,²³ Lydda on the west, and Jordan on the east’. [In reference to this] ‘Ulla (or as some say, Rabbah b. ‘Ulla) said in the name of R. Johanan: What was the reason? To decorate the streets of Jerusalem with fruit.²⁴ It has been further taught: ‘R. Eliezer had a vine in its fourth year east of Lydda²⁵ at the side of Kefar Tabi, and R. Eliezer had a mind to declare it free to the poor,²⁶ but his disciples said to him, Rabbi, your colleagues have already taken a vote on it and declared it permitted’.²⁷ Who are his ‘colleagues’? — Rabban Johanan b. Zacca.

‘R. Nahman b. Isaac said it was the tongue of scarlet’, as it has been taught: ‘Originally they used to fasten the thread of scarlet on the door of the [Temple] court on the outside.²⁸ If it turned white the people used to rejoice,²⁹ and if it did not turn white they were sad. They therefore made a rule that it should be fastened to the door of the court on the inside. People, however, still peeped in and saw, and if it turned white they rejoiced and if it did not turn white they were sad. They therefore made a rule that half of it should be fastened to the rock and half between the horns of the goat that was sent [to the wilderness]’. Why did not R. Nahman b. Isaac accept the view of R. Papa? — He could reply: If you assume that it was R. Johanan b. Zaccai [who made the rule about the vine], was he the colleague of R. Eliezer? He was his teacher! [What replies] the other [to this]? — Since they were his disciples [who reported the rule to him], it was not polite of them to say to their teacher, ‘your teacher’. Why did not R. Papa accept the view of R. Nahman b. Isaac? — He could reply: If you assume It was R. Johanan b. Zaccai [who made the rule], was there in the days of R. Johanan b. Zaccai a thread of scarlet [which turned white]? Has it not been taught: ‘R. Johanan b. Zaccai lived altogether a hundred and twenty years. For forty years he was in business, forty years he studied, and forty years he taught’, and it has further been taught: ‘For forty years before the destruction of the Temple the thread of scarlet never turned white but it remained red’.³⁰ Further, the statement of the Mishnah is, ‘After the destruction of the Temple R. Johanan b. Zaccai made a rule’.³¹ [What says] the other [to this]? — During those forty years that he studied³² his status was that of a disciple sitting before his teacher, and he would offer a suggestion and make good his reasons

(1) This was in the time of Rabban Gamaliel II.

(2) The last three in the time of R. Simeon b. Gamaliel. [The Sanhedrin met at Usha mostly after the Hadrianic persecutions, and apparently ceased functioning during the reign of Verus, and re-established in Shefar'am under Marcus Aurelius; v. Horowitz, Palestine, p. 34.]

(3) The last three were in the time of Rabbi.

(4) Being on Lake Galilee below sea-level. This is a figurative way of saying that at Tiberias the authority of the Sanhedrin sank to its lowest level.

(5) Isa. XXIX, 4.

(6) Ibid. XXVI, 5. The six are (i) he hath brought down, (ii) laying it low, (iii) laying it low, (iv) even to the ground, (v) bringing it, (vi) even to the dust.

(7) Ibid. LII, 2.

(8) And the Beth din should declare the New Moon hallowed without the head, though by rights this was his privilege, v. sura 24a.

(9) Heb. פתיחה lit., 'opening' of legal proceedings.

(10) Viz., that they should go after the head.

(11) As the messengers will refrain from going to all this trouble in order to give evidence.

(12) Quoted from Prov. XXII, 7.

(13) V. Glos.

(14) Viz., (i) that the shofar should be blown on Sabbath wherever there is a Beth din, (ii) that the lulab should be taken in the provinces seven days, (iii) that new corn should be forbidden the whole of the sixteenth of Nisan, (iv) that testimony with regard to the new moon should be received the whole day, (v) that witnesses should go only to the place of assembly, (vi) and that the priests should not ascend the dachan in their sandals. [Read with R. Hananel: 'One, the one (first stated), five in this chapter'.]

(15) That the witnesses should be allowed to profane Sabbath only for Nisan and Tishri, v. supra 21b.

(16) I.e., when there is no Temple.

(17) It is not certain whether this means a quarter of a shekel (= half a denar) or a quarter of a denar. V. Tosaf. s.v. רובע.

(18) While the Temple stood a new convert had to bring a sacrifice (v. Ker. 9a), a couple of pigeons being the smallest, and after the destruction of the Temple the Rabbis still insisted on his bringing them in case the Temple should be rebuilt.

(19) Because the money set aside might be used for secular purposes.

(20) Lit., 'and the other'.

(21) Lit., tongue'. The explanation follows immediately.

(22) According to Lev. XIX, 24 fruit produced by a tree in its fourth year was to be 'holy for giving praise to the Lord' and the Rabbis interpreted this to mean that it was to be consumed in Jerusalem. If, however, the tree was not in the Jerusalem district, the money value of the fruit could be taken to Jerusalem instead of the fruit itself.

(23) [Mishnah M.Sh. V, 2 reverses: Elath on the south, Akrobath on the north. Akrobath is perhaps the modern Akrabah twenty-five miles north of Jerusalem, and Elath is identified with (a) Eleutheropolis (Horowitz, Palestine, p. 41) (b) Beth Elonim near Hebron (Klein, D.J. s.v.).]

(24) Hence all this area was put by the Rabbis under the same rule as Jerusalem itself.

(25) I.e., between Lydda and Jerusalem.

(26) So as not to have the trouble of taking it to Jerusalem.

(27) Because as there was no longer a Temple, there was no point any more in decorating the streets of Jerusalem.

(28) After the High Priest had performed the service on the Day of Atonement. V. Yoma, 67a.

(29) This being a sign that their sins had been forgiven.

(30) When then could R. Johanan have had an opportunity of making this rule?

(31) This applies presumably to all his rules and regulations.

(32) While the Temple still existed.

and his teacher would make it a definite rule in his name.

MISHNAH. THE ORDER OF BLESSINGS [IN THE MUSAF 'AMIDAH¹ IS AS FOLLOWS]: [THE READER SAYS THE BLESSING OF] THE PATRIARCHS,² [THAT OF] MIGHTINESS³ AND THAT OF THE SANCTIFICATION OF THE NAME⁴ AND INCLUDES THE KINGSHIP-VERSES⁵ WITH THEM AND DOES NOT BLOW THE SHOFAR. HE THEN SAYS THE SANCTIFICATION OF THE DAY⁶ AND BLOWS, THE REMEMBRANCE-VERSES⁵ AND BLOWS, AND THE SHOFAR-VERSES⁵ AND BLOWS; AND HE THEN SAYS THE BLESSING OF THE TEMPLE SERVICE⁷ AND THE ONE OF THANKSGIVING⁸ AND THE BLESSING OF THE PRIESTS.⁹ THIS IS THE VIEW OF R. JOHANAN B. NURI. SAID R. AKIBA TO HIM: IF HE DOES NOT BLOW THE SHOFAR FOR THE KINGSHIP-VERSES, WHY SHOULD HE SAY THEM? NO; [THE RULE IS AS FOLLOWS]. HE SAYS [THE BLESSING OF] THE PATRIARCHS AND OF THE RESURRECTION AND OF THE SANCTIFICATION OF THE NAME, AND SAYS THE KINGSHIP-VERSES ALONG WITH THE SANCTIFICATION OF THE DAY AND BLOWS THE SHOFAR, THEN HE SAYS THE REMEMBRANCE-VERSES AND BLOWS, AND THE SHOFAR-VERSES AND BLOWS. THEN HE SAYS THE TEMPLE SERVICE BLESSING AND THE THANKSGIVING AND THE BLESSING OF THE PRIEST.

GEMARA. SAID R. AKIBA TO HIM, IF HE DOES NOT BLOW THE SHOFAR FOR THE KINGSHIP-VERSES, WHY DOES HE SAY THEM? [He asks], Why does he say them! But the All-Merciful enjoined that they should be said!¹⁰ — What he really means is, why say ten verses? Why not only nine,¹¹ because if there is a difference [in one particular]¹² so there may as well be a difference [in another]?¹³

Our Rabbis taught: Whence do we learn in the Scripture that we are to say [the blessing of] the Patriarchs? Because it says, Ascribe unto the Lord, O ye sons of might.¹⁴ And whence do we learn that we say the blessing of mightiness? Because it says, Ascribe unto the Lord glory and strength.¹⁵ And whence that we say sanctifications? Because it says, Ascribe unto the Lord the glory of his name, worship the Lord in the beauty of holiness.¹⁶ Whence do we learn that we are to say kingship, remembrance and shofar¹⁷ [verses]? R. Eliezer says: Because it is written, a solemn rest, a memorial proclaimed with the blast of trumpets, a holy convocation.¹⁸ 'A solemn rest': this indicates the sanctification of the day. 'A memorial': this indicates remembrance verses. 'Proclaimed with the blast of horns': this indicates shofar verses. 'A holy convocation': sanctify it by [abstaining from] the doing of work. Said R. Akiba to him: Why should we not interpret 'a solemn rest' to apply to the abstention from work, seeing that the text placed this first?¹⁹ No; [we should interpret thus]: 'A solemn rest': sanctify it by [abstaining from] the doing of work — 'A memorial': this indicates the remembrance verses. 'Proclaimed with the blowing of horns': this indicates shofar-verses. 'A holy convocation': this indicates the sanctification of the day. Whence [then] do we learn that we say kingship-verses? — It has been taught: Rabbi says, I am the Lord your God,²⁰ [and immediately afterwards], In the seventh month,²¹ this [juxtaposition]²² indicates kingship-verses. R. Jose b. Judah said: There is no need [of such an interpretation]. For Scripture says, And they [the trumpets] shall be to you for a memorial before your God.²³ This makes superfluous [the succeeding words], I am the Lord your God. What then is the point of the words, I am the Lord your God? This creates a general pattern²⁴ for all places where we say remembrance verses, [to show] that kingship verses should accompany them.

Where is the blessing of the sanctification of the day to be said? — It has been taught: Rabbi says, It should be said with the kingship verses. For just as on every other occasion²⁵ we find that it comes fourth [in the order of blessings], so here it should come fourth. Rabban Simeon b. Gamaliel says: It should be said with the remembrance verses. Just as we find that on all other occasions it is said in the middle,²⁶ so here it should be in the middle.²⁷

When the Beth din sanctified the New Moon in Usha, R. Johanan b. Beroka went down [before the ark]²⁸ in the presence of Rabban Simeon b. Gamaliel, and read as prescribed by R. Johanan b. Nuri.²⁹ Rabban Simeon said to him: That was not the way they used to do in Jabneh.³⁰ On the second day, R. Hanina the son of R. Jose the Galilean went down and read as prescribed by R. Akiba.³¹ Rabban Simeon b. Gamaliel said: So they used to do in Jabneh. This would seem to show that R. Simeon b. Gamaliel was of the same opinion as R. Akiba. But [how can this be seeing that] R. Akiba said that the kingship verses are to be joined with the sanctification of the day, whereas R. Simeon b. Gamaliel said that the sanctification of the day is to be joined with the remembrance verses? — R. Zera replied: What it indicates is that [in R. Simeon's opinion] the shofar is blown with the kingship verses.

MISHNAH. THERE SHOULD BE RECITED NOT LESS THAN TEN KINGSHIP VERSES, TEN REMEMBRANCE VERSES, AND TEN SHOFAR VERSES. R. JOHANAN B. NURI SAID: IF THE READER SAYS THREE FROM EACH SET³³ HE HAS FULFILLED HIS OBLIGATION.

GEMARA. To what do these ten kingship verses correspond? — R. Levi said, To the ten praises that David uttered in the book of Psalms. But there are a large number of praises there? — It means, those among which occurs, Praise him with the blowing of the shofar.³⁴ R. Joseph said: To the ten commandments that were spoken to Moses on Sinai.³⁵ R. Johanan said: To the ten Utterances by means of which the world was created.³⁶ Which are they? The phrase ‘and he said’ occurs in the account of the creation only nine times? — The words ‘in the beginning’ are also an utterance, as it is written, By the word of the Lord the heavens were made.³⁷

R. JOHANAN B. NURI SAID: IF HE SAYS THREE OF EACH SET HE HAS FULFILLED HIS OBLIGATION. The question was raised: How is this to be understood? Three from the Pentateuch, three from the Prophets and three from the Writings, which would make nine [for each set], so that there is a difference of one between the two authorities, or is it one from the Pentateuch, one from the Prophets and one from the Writings,³⁸ making three for each set, so that they differ considerably? — Come and hear, since it has been taught: ‘There must be recited not less than ten kingship verses, ten remembrance verses, and ten shofar verses, but one who said seven of all of them has fulfilled his obligation, these corresponding to seven firmaments. R. Johanan b. Nuri said: The lowest number one should say is seven,³⁹ but if he said [even] three of them he has fulfilled his obligation, these corresponding to the Torah, the Prophets and the Writings, or, as others report, to Priests, Levites, and lay Israelites’. R. Huna said in the name of Samuel: The halachah is as laid down by R. Johanan b. Nuri.

MISHNAH. NO MENTION IS MADE OF KINGSHIP, REMEMBRANCE AND SHOFAR VERSES THAT SIGNIFY PUNISHMENT. IT IS PROPER TO BEGIN WITH THE TORAH⁴⁰ AND CONCLUDE WITH THE PROPHETS. R. JOSE SAID: IF ONE CONCLUDES WITH THE TORAH HE HAS FULFILLED HIS OBLIGATION.

Talmud - Mas. Rosh HaShana 32b

GEMARA. [What are] KINGSHIP VERSES [signifying punishment]? — For instance, As I live, saith the Lord God, surely with a mighty hand and with an outstretched arm and with fury poured out will I be king over you,¹ and although R. Nahman said, Let the Holy One, blessed be He, be as furious as all this with us so only that He [finally] redeem us, yet since this was spoken in wrath, we do not call wrath to mind at the beginning of the year. REMEMBRANCE VERSES, as for instance, And he remembered that they were flesh² etc. SHOFAR VERSES, as for instance, Blow ye the horn in Gibeah³ etc. If, however, he desires to recite kingship, remembrance and shofar verses mentioning the punishment of idolaters, he may do so. 'Kingship verses', as for instance, The Lord reigneth, let the peoples tremble,⁴ or, The Lord is king for ever and ever, the nations are perished out of his land.⁵

‘Remembrance verses’, as for instance, Remember, O Lord, against the children of Edom⁶ etc. ‘Shofar verses’, as for instance, And the Lord God will blow the horn and will go with whirlwinds of the south,⁷ and the text continues, The Lord of hosts will defend them.⁸ [On the other hand] a verse mentioning the remembrance of an individual is not recited, even if it is for good, as for instance, Remember me, O Lord, when thou favourest thy people,⁹ or, Remember unto to me, O my God, for good.¹⁰ ‘Visitation’ is equivalent to ‘remembrance’, as, for instance, in the verse, And the Lord visited Sarah,¹¹ or, I have surely visited you.¹² This is the view of R. Jose; R. Judah, however, says that ‘visitation’ is not equivalent to ‘remembrance’. Now on R. Jose's view, even granting that ‘visitation’ is equivalent to ‘remembrance’, the text, ‘And the Lord visited Sarah’ refers to the visitation of an individual,¹³ [does it not]? — Since a multitude issued from her,¹⁴ it is as good as a multitude.

[In the text], Lift up your heads, O ye gates, and be ye lifted up, ye everlasting doors, that the king of glory may come in. Who is the king of glory? The Lord strong and mighty, the Lord mighty in battle, Lift up your heads, O ye gates, yea, lift them up, ye everlasting doors, that the king of glory may come in. Who is the king of glory? The Lord of hosts, he is the king of glory,¹⁵ the first [apostrophe] contains two mentions [of God's kingship]¹⁶ and the second three. So R. Jose; R. Judah, however, says that the first contains one and the second two.¹⁷ [In the text], Sing praises to God, sing praises; sing praises unto our king, sing praises. For God is the king of all the earth,¹⁸ there are two mentions [of God's kingship]; so R. Jose. R. Judah, however, says there is only one.¹⁹ They agree, however, that in the verse, God reigneth over the nations, God sitteth upon his holy throne,²⁰ there is only one.

A remembrance verse which also mentions blowing [teru'ah], as for instance, a memorial proclaimed with the blast of horns, a holy convocation may be recited either with the remembrance verses or with the shofar verses; so R. Jose. R. Judah, however, says that it may be recited only with the remembrance verses.²¹ A kingship verse which also contains mention of blowing, as, for instance, The Lord his God is with him and the shouting [teru'ath] for the king is among them,²² may be recited either with the kingship verses or with the shofar verses; so R. Jose. R. Judah, however, says that it may be recited only with the kingship verses.²³ A verse mentioning simply blowing of the trumpet, as for instance, it is a day of blowing the horn [teru'ah] unto you,²⁴ may be recited with the shofar verses; so R. Jose. R. Judah, however, says that it may not be recited at all.²⁵

IT IS PROPER TO BEGIN WITH THE TORAH AND CONCLUDE WITH THE PROPHETS. R. JOSE SAID: IF ONE CONCLUDES WITH THE TORAH HE HAS FULFILLED HIS OBLIGATION. ‘IF ONE CONCLUDES’ [HE HAS FULFILLED]: that is to say, the deed having been done; but he should not do so in the first instance. [Is this correct] seeing that it has been taught: ‘R. Jose says, He who concludes with the Torah verses, he is to be commended’? — Read, ‘He concludes’. But it states [distinctly], IF HE CONCLUDES [etc.], [which implies that] what is done is done, but in the first instance it should not be done? — What is meant is this: ‘It is proper to commence with the Torah and conclude with the Prophets. R. Jose said: It is proper to conclude with the Torah, but if one concluded with the Prophets, he has fulfilled his obligation’. It has been taught to the same effect: ‘R. Eleazar b. R. Jose said: The wethikin,²⁶ used to conclude with the Torah’.

We can understand this being done with the remembrance and shofar verses, because there are numbers of them [in the Pentateuch], but of kingship verses there are only three, viz., The Lord his God is with him and the shouting for the King is among them,²⁷ And he was king in Jeshurun,²⁸ and The Lord shall reign for ever and ever,²⁹ and we require ten verses [in all]³⁰ and [in this way] we cannot find them?³¹ — R. Huna replied: Come and hear. Hear, O Israel, the Lord our God the Lord is one;³² this is a kingship verse according to R. Jose, though R. Judah says it is not a kingship verse. And thou shalt know on that day and lay it to thy heart that the Lord he is God, there is none else,³³ is a kingship verse according to R. Jose, though R. Judah says it is not a kingship verse, Unto thee it was shown, that thou mightest know that the Lord he is God, there is none else beside him³⁴ is a kingship verse according to R. Jose, though R. Judah says it is not a kingship verse.

MISHNAH. OF THOSE WHO PASS BEFORE THE ARK³⁵ ON THE HOLYDAY OF NEW YEAR, THE SECOND³⁶ BLOWS³⁷ THE SHOFAR. ON DAYS WHEN HALLEL IS SAID,³⁸ THE FIRST³⁹ READS ALOUD THE HALLEL.⁴⁰

GEMARA. What special reason is there for the second to blow? [You must say], because of the maxim, In the multitude of people is the king's glory.⁴¹ But if that is so, Hallel should also be recited by the second because 'in the multitude of people is the king's glory'? Should you say, however, that there is a special reason why Hallel is said by the first, because the zealous come early for the performance of religious duties, then let the blowing of the shofar be performed by the first because the zealous come early for the performance of religious duties! — R. Johanan replied: They made this rule at a time when the Government had forbidden [the blowing of the shofar].⁴²

Since it says, ON DAYS WHEN HALLEL IS SAID, we infer that on New Year Hallel is not said. What is the reason? — R. Abbahu replied: The ministering angels said in the Presence of the Holy One, blessed be He: Sovereign of the Universe, why should Israel not chant hymns of praise before Thee on New Year and the Day of Atonement? He replied to them: Is it possible that the King should be sitting on the throne of justice with the books of life and death open before Him, and Israel should chant hymns of praise?

MISHNAH. [FOR THE SAKE OF] THE SHOFAR OF NEW YEAR IT IS NOT ALLOWED TO DISREGARD THE DISTANCE LIMIT⁴³ NOR TO REMOVE DEBRIS NOR TO CLIMB A TREE NOR TO RIDE ON AN ANIMAL NOR TO SWIM ON THE WATER. IT MUST NOT BE SHAPED⁴⁴ EITHER WITH AN IMPLEMENT THE USE OF WHICH IS FORBIDDEN ON ACCOUNT OF SHEBUTH⁴⁵ OR WITH ONE THE USE OF WHICH IS FORBIDDEN BY EXPRESS PROHIBITION.⁴⁶ IF ONE, HOWEVER, DESIRES TO POUR WINE OR WATER INTO IT HE MAY DO SO.⁴⁷ CHILDREN NEED NOT BE STOPPED FROM BLOWING; ON THE CONTRARY, THEY MAY BE HELPED⁴⁸ TILL THEY LEARN HOW TO BLOW. ONE WHO BLOWS MERELY TO PRACTISE⁴⁹ DOES NOT THEREBY FULFIL HIS RELIGIOUS OBLIGATION, NOR DOES ONE WHO HEARS THE BLAST MADE BY ANOTHER WHEN PRACTISING.

GEMARA. What is the reason [why these things may not be done]? — The blowing of the shofar is [based on] a positive precept,⁵⁰ whereas the observance of the holyday is [based both on] a positive⁵¹ and a negative precept,⁵² and a positive precept cannot override both a positive and a negative precept.

NOR TO CLIMB A TREE NOR TO RIDE ON AN ANIMAL etc, Seeing that you have not allowed even Rabbinical [prohibitions to be broken],⁵³ need you mention Pentateuchal ones?⁵⁴ — The Mishnah adopts the style of 'A, and needless to say B'.

The argument is very forced, and Rashi is inclined to regard the whole sentence as spurious. [R. Hananel takes the prohibitions regarding the Sabbath limit and removing the debris to be the Biblical prohibitions referred to.]

Talmud - Mas. Rosh HaShana 33a

IT MUST NOT BE SHAPED EITHER WITH AN IMPLEMENT THE USE OF WHICH IS FORBIDDEN ON ACCOUNT OF SHEBUTH OR WITH ONE THE USE OF WHICH IS FORBIDDEN BY EXPRESS PROHIBITION. 'An instrument the use of which is forbidden on account of shebuth' — as for instance, a sickle.¹ 'An implement which is forbidden by express prohibition' — as for instance, a knife. Seeing that you disallow an implement prohibited on account of shebuth, need you mention one disallowed by express prohibition?² — The Mishnah adopts the style of 'A and needless to say B'.

IF ONE, HOWEVER, DESIRES TO POUR WINE OR WATER INTO IT HE MAY DO SO. Wine or water he may, but urine he may not. Which authority does our Mishnah follow? — That of Abba Saul, as it has been taught: 'Abba Saul says, Wine or water is permissible, these serving to clean it, but urine is forbidden, as showing disrespect'.³

CHILDREN NEED NOT BE STOPPED FROM BLOWING. This would imply that women are stopped. [But how can this be], seeing that it has been taught: 'Neither children nor women need be stopped from blowing the shofar on the Festival'? — Abaye replied: There is no discrepancy; the one statement follows R. Judah, the other R. Jose and R. Simeon, as it has been taught: 'Speak unto the children [bene] of Israel:⁴ [this indicates that] the "sons" [bene] of Israel lay on hands but not the "daughters" of Israel. So R. Judah, R. Jose and R. Simeon say that women also have the option of laying on hands'.⁵

ON THE CONTRARY, THEY MAY BE HELPED UNTIL THEY LEARN HOW TO BLOW. R. Eleazar said: Even on Sabbath. it has been taught to the same effect: 'They may be helped till they learn how to blow even on Sabbath, and children are not stopped from blowing on Sabbath, and needless to say on a [weekday] holyday'. This statement itself involves a contradiction. You say first, 'They may be helped till they learn how to blow, even on Sabbath', from which I should infer that we may actually tell them in the first instance to blow. Then it states, 'They are not stopped', which would indicate that we do not go so far as to stop them, but we do not tell them in the first instance to blow! — There is no contradiction: In the one case we speak of a child old enough to be trained [in the performance of religious precepts],¹ in the other of one not yet old enough to be trained.

(1) To cut ordinary articles with a scythe or sickle on Sabbath is not regarded legally as 'work' because the implement is not being used for its proper purpose. The Rabbis, however, forbade it on account of shebuth.

(2) The sanction for which is Pentateuchal and not merely Rabbinical.

(3) Lit., 'because of respect'.

ONE WHO BLOWS MERELY TO PRACTISE DOES NOT THEREBY FULFIL HIS RELIGIOUS OBLIGATION:² I infer that one who blows to make musical sounds³ does thereby fulfil his religious obligation. May we say that this supports Raba, for Raba said that one who blows to make musical sounds fulfils his religious obligation?⁴ — Perhaps our authority includes ‘making music’ also under the head of ‘practising’.

NOR ONE WHO HEARS THE BLAST MADE BY ANOTHER WHEN PRACTISING. But one who hears the blast from another who is blowing for himself, we are to assume, does fulfil his obligation? If so, this would be a refutation of R. Zera; for R. Zera said to his attendant, ‘Blow with intent to clear me⁵ also’!⁶ — Perhaps our authority having mentioned ‘practising’ in the first clause used the same expression in the second.⁷

GEMARA. [THE LENGTH OF THE TEK'AH IS EQUAL TO THREE TERU'AHs]. But it has been taught that the length of a teki'ah is equal to a teru'ah? — Abaye replied: Our Tanna reckons the teki'ahs of all the sets and the teru'ahs of all the sets,¹⁸ whereas the external Tanna¹⁹ was reckoning one set and no more.²⁰

THE LENGTH OF THE TERU'AH IS EQUAL TO THE LENGTH OF THREE YEBABOTH. But it has been taught, ‘The length of the teru'ah is equal to three shebarim’?²¹ — Abaye said: Here there is really a difference of opinion. It is written, It shall be a day of teru'ah unto you,²² and we translate [in Aramaic], a day of yebaba, and it is written of the mother of Sisera, Through the window she looked forth,²³ [wa-teyabab]. One authority thought that this means drawing a long sigh,²⁴ and the other that it means uttering short piercing cries.

Our Rabbis taught: ‘Whence do we know [that the blowing on New Year must be] with a shofar? Because it says, Thou, shalt make proclamation, with a shofar of teru'ah.²⁵ I know this so far only of the Jubilee; how do I know it of New Year? The text says significantly, In the seventh month,²⁶ when there is no real occasion for the expression, in the seventh month.²⁷ Why then does it say, in the seventh month? To show that all the teru'ahs of the seventh month should be of the same character. How do we know that there must be a plain blast²⁸ before it? Because it says, Thou, shalt make proclamation with a shofar of teru'ah.²⁹ How do we know that there must be a plain blast³⁰ after it? Because it says, Ye shall make proclamation with the shofar.³¹ I know this only of the Jubilee; how do I learn it of New Year also? It says significantly, in the seventh month³² when there is no real occasion for the expression, "in the seventh month". Why then does it say, "in the seventh month"? To indicate that all the teru'ahs of the seventh month should be of the same character. How do we know that there must be three sets of three each? Because it says, Thou shalt make proclamation with the shofar of teru'ah,¹ and again, a solemn rest, a memorial of teru'ah,² and again, a day of teru'ah it shall be to you.³ And how do we know that we can utilize what is said in connection with one for purposes of the other and vice versa?⁴ The word "seventh" occurs twice⁵ to provide a gezerah shawah.⁶ How then is it carried out? There are three [sets] which are nine [blasts]. The length of the teki'ah is equal to that of the teru'ah. The length of the teru'ah is equal to three shebarim'.

This Tanna first derives his inference from an analogy⁷ and now he derives it from a gezerah shawah!⁸ — He reasons thus: 'If there were no gezerah shawah, I would derive the inference from analogy; now, however, that there is a gezerah shawah, I do not require the analogy'.

The following Tanna derives the same lesson from a gezerah shawah [with the blowing of the horn ordained] in the wilderness, as it has been taught: And ye shall blow a teru'ah:⁹ this indicates that there shall be a separate teki'ah¹⁰ and a separate teru'ah. You say, there shall be a separate teki'ah and a separate teru'ah! But can it not be interpreted differently, namely, that the teki'ah and teru'ah are all one?¹¹ When you come to the text, But when the assembly is to be gathered together ye shall blow a teki'ah but not a teru'ah,¹² you must conclude that teki'ah and teru'ah are separate. And how do we know that a plain blast is to precede it [the teru'ah]? Because it says, And ye shall blow a teru'ah.' And how do we know that a plain blast follows it? Because it says, a teru'ah shall they blow.¹³ R. Ishmael the son of R. Johanan b. Beroka said: This¹⁴ is not necessary. For the text says, And ye shall blow a teru'ah a second time.¹⁵ Here the words a second time' are unnecessary.¹⁶ Why then are the words 'a second time' inserted? This furnishes a general rule¹⁷ that wherever teru'ah is mentioned a teki'ah should follow it.¹⁸ So far I know this only of the wilderness.¹⁹ On what ground can I apply it to New Year also? Because we find teru'ah [in one place] and teru'ah [in another place]²⁰ to provide a gezerah shawah. Three teru'ahs are mentioned in connection with New Year — 'a solemn rest, a memorial proclaimed with teru'ah'; 'a day of teru'ah', and 'thou shalt make proclamation with the shofar of teru'ah'. Each teru'ah is accompanied with two teki'ahs. We thus learn that three teru'ahs and six teki'ahs were prescribed for New Year. Two of these are ordained by the Torah and one by the Soferim:²¹ [The teru'ahs mentioned in] 'a solemn rest, a memorial of teru'ah,' and in 'thou shalt make proclamation with the shofar of teru'ah' are ordinances of the Torah; the text 'a day of teru'ah it shall be to you' is required for its own lesson.²² R. Samuel b. Nahmani said in the name of R. Jonathan: One is ordained by the Torah and two by the Soferim: [That mentioned in] 'and thou shalt make proclamation with the shofar of teru'ah' is ordained by the Torah. [The texts] 'a solemn rest, a memorial of teru'ah' and, 'a day of teru'ah it shall be to you', are required for their own lessons. What is meant by saying that 'it [the latter] is required for its own lesson'?²³ — It is required to show that [the blowing must be] in the daytime and not at night. Whence does the other authority derive the rule that the blowing must be by day and not by night? — He derives it from the expression On the Day of Atonement.²⁴ But if he learns it from 'On the Day of Atonement', let him also learn from this text the rule that there is to be a plain blast before the teru'ah and a plain blast after it?²⁵ — He does not accept the implication of the expressions 'and thou shalt proclaim', 'ye shall proclaim'. How then does he expound these words? — [He expounds] 'and thou shalt proclaim' in the same way as R. Mattenah; for R. Mattenah said: 'And thou shalt proclaim': this means, in the usual manner of proclamation.²⁶ The words 'Ye shall proclaim' mentioned by the All-Merciful indicate that the shofar should be taken in the hand,²⁷ and the other, [what says he to this?] — The lesson of R. Mattenah you can learn from the fact that the text uses an unusual expression,²⁸ but that the word means 'taking in the hand' you could not maintain, for one can compare the expression 'passing' here with the expression 'passing' used in connection with Moses.²⁹ It is written here, And ye shall cause to pass a shofar of teru'ah, and it is written elsewhere, And Moses commanded, and they caused a voice to pass.³⁰ Just as there the passing was of a sound, so here it is of a sound.

And to the Tanna who derives the rule [regarding the teki'ah] from [the blowing commanded] in the wilderness, [it may be objected that] just as there trumpets were to be used, so here [on New Year] trumpets should be used? — Therefore it is written, Blow ye the shofar at the New Moon, at the concealment for the day of our festival.³¹ Which is the festival on which the moon is concealed? You must say that this is New Year; and the All-Merciful prescribed the shofar [to be used on it].

R. Abbahu prescribed in Caesarea that there should be a teki'ah, three shebarim, a teru'ah and a teki'ah. How can this be justified?³² If [the sound of teru'ah] is a kind of wailing, then there should be teki'ah, teri'ah³³ and teki'ah, and if it is a kind of groaning, there should be teki'ah, three shebarim, and teki'ah? — He was in doubt whether it was a kind of wailing or a kind of groaning.³⁴ R. 'Awira strongly demurred against this procedure, saying, Perhaps it is a kind of wailing, and the three shebarim make an interruption between the teru'ah and the [first] teki'ah? — We assume that he afterwards blows teki'ah, teru'ah, teki'ah. Rabina strongly demurred against this, saying, Perhaps it is a kind of sighing and the teru'ah makes an interruption between the shebarim and the [second] teki'ah? — We suppose that he afterwards blows teki'ah, shebarim, teki'ah. What then is the point of R. Abbahu's regulation?³⁵ If it is a groaning sound, it has already been made,³⁶ and if it is a wailing sound it has already been made?³⁷ — He was in doubt whether it does not include both groaning and wailing. If so, the reverse should also be carried out, namely, teki'ah, teru'ah, three shebarim, teki'ah, since perhaps it is wailing and groaning? — Ordinarily when a man has a pain, he first groans and then wails.

(23) The gezerah shawah being provided by the other text.
(24) Lev. XXV, 9.
(25) . From the texts, 'and thou shalt make proclamation', 'and ye shall make proclamation', as supra 33b ad fin.
(26) I.e., the shofar must not be held the wrong way up, v. supra 27b.
(27) And not blown.
(28) The word והעברת lit., 'and ye shall cause to pass' instead of 'you shall blow'.
(29) [This is apparently the meaning of this difficult passage].
(30) Ex. XXXVI, 6.
(31) Ps. LXXXI, 4. E.V. 'at the full moon for our feast day, v. supra 8a.
(32) Lit., 'what is your desire?', a formula for posing a dilemma.
(33) I.e., what is elsewhere called yebaba.
(34) And had both sounds blown.
(35) If he repeats both teki'ah, teru'ah, teki'ah, and teki'ah, shebarim, teru'ah.
(36) In teki'ah, teru'ah, teki'ah. [MS.M.: We are making it.]
(37) In teki'ah, shebarim, teki'ah. We then have a set containing four blasts.

nine blasts at nine different times of the day, he has performed his religious obligation. It has been taught to the same effect: 'If one heard nine blasts at nine different times of the day, he has performed his religious obligation. If, however, he heard nine different people at once, he has not performed his obligation.¹ If he hears a teki'ah from one and a teru'ah from another, he has fulfilled his obligation, even if the intervals extended over the whole day'.

But could R. Johanan have said this,² seeing that R. Johanan said in the name of R. Simeon b. Jehozadak: If in the midst of reciting Hallel and the Megillah³ one paused long enough to say the whole, he must go back to the beginning? — There is no contradiction: in one case he was giving his own opinion, in the other that of his teacher. But does not his own opinion [conflict with the above statement]? Was not R. Abbahu once following after R. Johanan reciting the shema',³ and when he came to some dirty alley-ways he stopped, and after they had passed them he asked R. Johanan whether he should finish, and he replied, If you paused long enough to say the whole, you must start again from the beginning? What he meant to say to him was this: 'I do not hold this view,⁴ but according to you who do hold it,⁵ if you have paused long enough to say the whole, you must start afresh'.

Our Rabbis taught: '[On most days]⁶ the omission of one blast is no bar to another, and the omission of one blessing⁷ is no bar to another, but on New Year and the Day of Atonement the omission of one blast or one blessing is a bar to the others'.⁸ What is the reason? — Rabbah said: God proclaimed: Recite before Me on New Year kingship, remembrance and shofar verses; kingship verses to declare Me king over you; remembrance verses, that the remembrance of you may come before Me for good; and through what? Through the shofar.

IF ONE HAS SAID THE [NINE] BLESSINGS AND THEN PROCURES A SHOFAR, HE SOUNDS A TEKIAH, TERUAH, TEKIAH. The reason is that he had no shofar to begin with. This shows that if he had a shofar to begin with, when he hears the blasts he must hear them during the recital of the blessings.⁹ R. Papa b. Samuel rose to say his prayer, and at the same time said to his attendant, When I give you a sign,¹⁰ blow the shofar for me. Said Raba to him:¹¹ This rule¹² was laid down only for a congregation.¹³ It has been taught to the same effect: 'When he hears the blasts, he must hear them in order, and during the recital of the blessings.¹⁴ When does this hold good? In a congregation; but when not praying with the congregation he must hear them in order but not necessarily during the recital of the blessings. If an individual has not blown [the shofar], another may blow it for him, but if an individual has not said the blessings another may not say them for him. It is a greater act of piety to hear the shofar than to say the blessings. Hence¹⁵ if there are two towns in one of which the shofar is being blown and in the other of which the blessings are being said, one should go rather to the place where they are blowing than to the place where they are saying the blessings'. Surely this is self-evident: the former precept is of Pentateuchal sanction, the latter [only] of Rabbinic! — It was necessary to state the rule, [to show that it still applies] even though he is certain of [finding an opportunity for] the latter and not certain of [finding an opportunity for] the former.¹⁶

JUST AS THE CONGREGATIONAL READER IS UNDER OBLIGATION, SO EVERY INDIVIDUAL etc. It has been taught: 'They said to Rabban Gamaliel: Accepting your view,¹⁷ why do the congregation [first] say the ['Amidah] prayer? He replied, So as to give the reader time to prepare his prayer.¹⁸ Rabban Gamaliel then said to them: Accepting your view,¹⁹ why does the reader go down [and stand] before the Ark?²⁰ They replied: So as to clear from his obligation one who is not familiar [with the prayers]. He said to them: Just as he clears one who is not familiar, so he clears one who is familiar'.²¹

Rabbah b. bar Hanah said in the name of R. Johanan: The Sages gave Rabban Gamaliel right. Rab, however, said: The difference of opinion still remains.²² Hiyya the son of Rabbah b. Nahmani heard the argument [reported] and went and repeated it before R. Dimi b. Hinnena. He said to him: Thus said Rab: The difference of opinion still remains. The other said to him: This is what Rabbah b. bar Hanah also said, that when R. Johanan made this statement, Resh Lakish joined issue with him, saying: The difference of opinion still remains. But did R. Johanan say this? Has not R. Hanah of Sepphoris stated that R. Johanan said that the law²³ follows the view of Rabban Gamaliel, and since he said the law is so, we infer that there is a difference of opinion?

- (1) According to Tosaf. the reason is because he does not hear a teruah preceded and followed by a teki'ah. Rashi, however, reads: 'If he heard nine people at once, a teki'ah from one and a teruah from another, he has fulfilled his obligation, and even if he heard at intervals' etc. He points out that it has already been laid down above that two different sounds from two different persons can be discerned at once.
- (2) That it is permissible to hear different blasts at different times.
- (3) V. Glos.
- (4) That it is necessary to pause on coming to a dirty place, (V. Ber. 24b) nor, again, that it is necessary to start afresh after a pause.
- (5) And your difficulty is simply, how long the pause must be.
- (6) E.g., on fast days.
- (7) In the 'Amidah. (V. Glos.).
- (8) I.e., a teruah cannot be blown without a teki'ah before it, nor can remembrance verses be said unless kingship verses have first been said. V. Tosaf. 33b, s.v. שיעור sub fin.
- (9) V. supra 32a.
- (10) As a signal that I have finished a blessing which is to be followed by the blowing of the shofar.
- (11) To reassure him.
- (12) That the blasts must be heard during the recital of the blessings.
- (13) חבר עיר v. Meg. Sonc. ed., p. 164, n. 1.
- (14) Lit., 'on the order of the blessings'.
- (15) Lit., 'how so?'.
- (16) He can always find ten men to make a congregation, but he may come too late to hear the shofar.
- (17) That the reader may recite on behalf of the congregation.
- (18) I. e. , put himself in the proper frame of mind by thinking over the prayers, which in those days were recited from memory.
- (19) That each individual must pray for himself.
- (20) V. supra p. 160, n. 9.
- (21) If he has accidentally omitted something. V. Tosaf. s.v. כך
- (22) [This sentence is rightly omitted in MS.M.]

Talmud - Mas. Rosh HaShana 35a

. When R. Ammi returned from a sea-voyage,¹ he explained it thus: 'The Sages give Rabban Gamaliel right' in regard to the blessings of New Year and the Day of Atonement; and 'the halachah is so', which implies that they differ in regard to the blessings of the rest of the year.² But is this so? Did not R. Hanah of Sepphoris say in the name of R. Johanan, 'The halachah follows Rabban Gamaliel in regard to the blessings of New Year and the Day of Atonement'³ — No, said R. Nahman b. Isaac. Who is it that gave [Rabban Gamaliel] right? R. Meir;⁴ and the halachah is so', which shows that the Rabbis⁵ refer to [the others]. For it has been taught: 'In regard to the blessings of New Year and the Day of Atonement, the reader can clear the congregation of their obligation to say them'.

Why should a difference be made in respect of these [blessings]? Should you say it is because they contain many scriptural texts, has not R. Hananel said in the name of Rab, As soon as one has said, 'And in thy Law it is written saying',⁶ he need not recite any more [texts]? — No; the reason is because there is an extra large number of blessings.⁷

[To revert to] the [above] text — R. Hananel said in the name of Rab, As soon as one has said, "And in thy Law it is written saying", he need not recite any more [texts]'. It was presumed [in the Academy] that this applies only to an individual but not to a congregation. It has been stated, however, [elsewhere]: R. Joshua b. Levi said: [The rule] alike for an individual or a congregation is that as soon as they have said 'And in thy Law it is written saying', they need not recite any more [texts].

R. Eleazar said: A man should always first prepare himself for his prayer⁸ and then say it. R. Abba said: The dictum of R.

Eleazar appears to be well founded in respect of the blessings of New Year and the Day of Atonement and periodical [prayers]⁹ but not of the rest of the year. Is that so? Did not Rab Judah use always to prepare himself for his prayer before praying? — Rab Judah was exceptional; since he prayed only every thirty days,¹⁰ it was [to him] like a periodical [prayer].

R. Aha b. 'Awira said in the name of R. Simeon the Pious: Rabban Gamaliel used to allow even the people in the fields to be cleared [by the reader in the synagogue], and needless to say those in town.¹¹ On the contrary, [we should have expected the opposite, because] the former are prevented from coming and the latter are not prevented, in the same way as Abba the son of R. Benjamin b. Hiyya has stated, 'The People who stand behind the priests are not included in the [priestly] benediction'! — The fact is that when Rabin came [from Palestine] he stated in the name of R. Jacob b. Idi that R. Simeon the Pious said: Rabban Gamaliel allowed only the people in the fields to be cleared [by the reader]. What is the reason? Because they are prevented by their work from coming [to synagogue]. Those in the town, however, are not cleared.¹²

(1) [מִיָּמֵי Aliter: From Jammi, a place in Naftali.]

(2) And thus both statements of R. Johanan might be correct.

(3) Which shows that even on this point the Sages continued to differ with him.

(4) Who agrees with him in regard to the blessings of New Year and the Day of Atonement, and not the Sages, as at first stated in the name of R. Johanan.

(5) Apart from R. Meir.

(6) I.e., the passage which runs in our prayer-book, 'May we offer before thee the additional offerings of this day according to the commandment of thy will as thou hast prescribed for us in thy law'.

(7) Viz., nine instead of seven. [In point of fact the blessings on the Day of Atonement are only seven. [In point of fact the blessings on the Day of Atonement 'blessings' (v. Lewin, Otzar ha-Geonim, Rosh Hashanah p. 73; on this reading render: they (the benedictions) are lengthy. Ritba (a.l.) takes the Day of Atonement throughout this passage to refer to the Day of Atonement on the year of Jubilee, v. supra 33b].

(8) So as to be fluent and avoid all mistakes, v. supra p. 172, n. 2.

(9) For feasts, fasts, etc.

(10) Being occupied in the intervening period with study.

(11) Lit., 'those who are here'.

(12) [Rashi: They themselves must say the prayer and not rely on the reader. Alfasi: They are not cleared by the reader unless they attend the synagogue and hear from him the prayers from beginning to end; v. Commentary of R. Nissim a.l.]

Mishna - Mas. Shekalim Chapter 1

MISHNAH 1. ON THE FIRST OF ADAR¹ PUBLIC ANNOUNCEMENT IS MADE² CONCERNING THE PAYMENT OF THE SHEKELS³ AND CONCERNING THE DIVERSE KINDS.⁴ ON THE FIFTEENTH⁵ THEREOF THE SCROLL [OF ESTHER] IS READ IN WALLED CITIES, AND THE ROADS AND THE BROADWAYS⁶ AND THE RITUAL, WATER BATHS⁷ ARE REPAIRED, AND ALL PUBLIC DUTIES⁸ ARE PERFORMED, AND THE GRAVES ARE MARKED,⁹ AND [MESSENGERS] GO FORTH ALSO CONCERNING THE DIVERSE KINDS.¹⁰

MISHNAH 2. R. JUDAH SAID: AFORETIME THEY USED TO PLUCK UP [THE DIVERSE KINDS], AND CAST THEM BEFORE THE OWNERS.¹¹ [BUT] WHEN TRANSGRESSORS¹² INCREASED IN NUMBER, THEY USED TO PLUCK THEM UP AND CAST THEM ON THE ROADS.¹³ [FINALLY],¹⁴ THEY ORDAINED THAT THE WHOLE FIELD SHOULD BE DECLARED OWNERLESS PROPERTY.

MISHNAH 3. ON THE FIFTEENTH THEREOF TABLES [OF MONEY CHANGERS]¹⁵ WERE SET UP IN THE PROVINCES.¹⁶ ON THE TWENTY-FIFTH THEY WERE SET UP IN THE TEMPLE. WHEN [THE TABLES] WERE SET UP IN THE TEMPLE, THEY BEGAN TO DISTRAIN.¹⁷ WHOM DID THEY DISTRAIN? LEVITES AND ISRAELITES,¹⁸ PROSELYTES AND FREED SLAVES,¹⁹ BUT NOT WOMEN OR SLAVES OR MINORS.²⁰ A MINOR ON WHOSE BEHALF HIS FATHER HAD BEGUN TO PAY THE SHEKEL, MAY NOT DISCONTINUE IT AGAIN. BUT NO DISTRAINT WAS LEVIED ON THE PRIESTS, IN ORDER TO PROMOTE PEACEFULNESS.²¹

MISHNAH 4. R. JUDAH SAID: BEN BUKRI TESTIFIED AT JABNEH THAT A PRIEST WHO PAID THE SHEKEL DID NOT COMMIT A SIN.²² BUT RABBAN JOHANAN THE SON OF ZACCAI SAID TO HIM: NOT SO, BUT A PRIEST WHO DID NOT PAY THE SHEKEL WAS GUILTY OF A SIN. ONLY THE PRIESTS EXPOUNDED THIS VERSE [THUS] FOR THEIR OWN BENEFIT: AND EVERY MEAL-OFFERING OF THE PRIEST SHALL BE WHOLLY BURNT, IT SHALL NOT BE EATEN;²³ IF THEREFORE THE 'OMER²⁴ AND THE TWO LOAVES²⁵ AND THE SHEWBREAD²⁶ ARE [BROUGHT] FROM OUR [CONTRIBUTIONS], HOW CAN THEY BE EATEN?²⁷

MISHNAH 5. ALTHOUGH IT WAS SAID THAT NO DISTRAINT IS LEVIED ON WOMEN OR SLAVES OR MINORS, [YET] IF THESE PAID THE SHEKEL IT IS ACCEPTED OF THEM. IF A HEATHEN OR A CUTHEAN²⁸ PAID THE SHEKEL IT IS NOT ACCEPTED OF THEM. LIKEWISE BIRD-OFFERINGS OF MEN WHO HAD AN ISSUE,²⁹ AND BIRD-OFFERINGS OF WOMEN WHO HAD AN ISSUE,²⁹ AND BIRD-OFFERINGS OF WOMEN AFTER CHILDBIRTH,²⁹ AND SIN-OFFERINGS AND GUILT-OFFERINGS ARE NOT ACCEPTED OF THEM. BUT VOW-OFFERINGS³⁰ AND FREEWILL-OFFERINGS³¹ ARE ACCEPTED OF THEM. THIS IS THE GENERAL RULE: ALL OFFERINGS WHICH CAN BE MADE AS A VOW-OFFERING OR A FREEWILL-OFFERING³² ARE ACCEPTED OF THEM, BUT OFFERINGS THAT CANNOT BE MADE AS A VOW-OFFERING OR A FREEWILL-OFFERING³³ ARE NOT ACCEPTED OF THEM. AND THUS IT IS EXPLICITLY STATED IN [THE BOOK OF] EZRA, WHERE IT IS SAID: YE HAVE NOTHING TO DO WITH US TO BUILD A HOUSE UNTO OUR GOD.³⁴

MISHNAH 6. THE FOLLOWING ARE LIABLE [TO PAY] A SURCHARGE;³⁵ LEVITES AND ISRAELITES AND PROSELYTES AND FREED SLAVES;³⁶ BUT NOT PRIESTS OR WOMEN OR SLAVES OR MINORS.³⁷ IF A MAN PAID THE SHEKEL ON BEHALF OF A PRIEST, OR ON BEHALF OF A WOMAN, OR ON BEHALF OF A SLAVE, OR ON BEHALF OF A MINOR, HE IS EXEMPT.³⁸ IF A MAN PAID THE SHEKEL³⁹ ON HIS OWN BEHALF AND ON BEHALF

OF HIS FELLOW HE IS LIABLE TO PAY BUT ONE SURCHARGE, R. MEIR SAYS: TWO SURCHARGES. IF ONE GAVE A SELA' AND RECEIVED A SHEKEL,⁴⁰ HE IS LIABLE TO PAY TWO SURCHARGES.

MISHNAH 7. IF A MAN PAID THE SHEKEL⁴¹ ON BEHALF OF A POOR MAN OR ON BEHALF OF HIS NEIGHBOUR OR ON BEHALF OF HIS FELLOW-TOWNSMAN, HE IS EXEMPT [FROM A SURCHARGE]. BUT IF HE DID IT AS A LOAN TO THEM HE IS LIABLE. BROTHERS, WHO ARE PARTNERS,⁴² ARE EXEMPT FROM THE TITHE OF CATTLE⁴³ WHEN THEY ARE LIABLE TO A SURCHARGE.⁴⁴ BUT WHEN THEY ARE LIABLE TO THE TITHE OF CATTLE⁴⁵ THEY ARE EXEMPT FROM THE SURCHARGE.⁴⁶ AND HOW MUCH IS THE SURCHARGE? A SILVER MA'AH.⁴⁷ THUS R. MEIR. BUT THE SAGES SAY: HALF A MA'AH.

(1) The twelfth month of the year.

(2) Throughout the Land of Israel and the Diaspora.

(3) The annual contribution towards the upkeep of the Temple and its services which was obligatory on every adult male Israelite. It was derived from the Mosaic Institution described in Ex. XXX, 11-16 (cf. Introduction). The contribution had to be paid before the first of Nisan, the beginning of the religious year, and all public offerings brought during the new year had to come out of the new annual contributions.

(4) Of seeds, prohibited in Lev. XIX, 19; Deut. XXII, 9. Warning was given for the removal from fields and vineyards of a portion of plants which were of a kind different from the main growth, so as to reduce these foreign plants to a quantity which did not fall under the prohibition; cf. Kil. II, 1. Warning was given on the first of Adar before the plants had had time to grow up and render the whole field forfeit.

(5) The purim of Shushan. V. Esther IX, 18-19 and cf. Meg. I, 1ff.

(6) That had been damaged by the winter rains, for the benefit of the pilgrims who went up to Jerusalem for the Passover; or, according to Maimonides, for the benefit of fugitives to the Cities of Refuge; cf. Deut. XIX, 2ff and Mak. II, 5, Sonc. ed. p. 59.

(7) For the immersion of the ritually unclean. The rains might have carried soil into the pools, and thus reduced their water to less than the prescribed quantity of forty se'ahs; cf. Mik. I, 7; 'Ed. I, 3, Sonc. ed. p. 2, n. 7.

(8) That had not been fully performed during the rainy season. A list of these duties is given in the Palestinian Gemara and in the commentaries.

(9) Afresh with lime (cf. M.Sh. V, 1), after the old marks had become obliterated by the rains. These marks served to warn priests and Nazirites against approaching them and becoming defiled; cf. Num. XIX, 16; VI, 6; also Ezek. XXXIX, 15.

(10) To inspect the fields and do what is described in the following section.

(11) In order to shame them.

(12) Who fed their cattle on the uprooted plants.

(13) This prevented the obnoxious plants being used by the owners for cattle food.

(14) When even this failed to deter transgressors, since the uprooting saved them the labour of weeding their fields.

(15) For changing foreign coins of Jews from the Diaspora.

(16) Outside Jerusalem. According to others, outside the Temple (cf. infra and II, 1), and including also Jerusalem.

(17) The goods of those who had not yet paid their shekel.

(18) I.e., Jews who were not priests or Levites.

(19) These four classes were bound by law to pay the shekel.

(20) With these the payment of the shekel was a voluntary act.

(21) Lit., 'because of the ways of peace'. Because the priests contested their obligation to pay the shekel, as stated in the next section. The Palestinian Gemara seems to have read: 'Because of the respect due to them'.

(22) I.e., he may pay it, but he was not bound to pay it.

(23) Lev. VI, 16.

(24) The 'Sheaf of Waving', Lev. XXIII, 9ff; cf. Men. X, 1ff.

(25) Ibid. 17; cf. Men. XI, 1ff.

(26) Ex. XXV, 30; Lev. XXIV, 5ff. These three offerings were bought out of the Shekel fund (cf. infra IV, 1), but were consumed by the priests.

(27) But in reality Lev. VI, 16 applied only to private meal-offerings, and not to public offerings such as the 'Omer, the Two Loaves and the Shewbread.

(28) A person from Cutha, i.e., a Samaritan. It is an opprobrious designation derived from II Kings XVII, 24.

(29) Lit., 'nests', i.e. pairs of turtle-doves or young pigeons, of which one was a sin-offering and the other a burnt-offering; cf. Lev. XV, 14f, 25f; XII, 8.

(30) An undertaking with an expression which binds the person (הרי עלי infra VI, 6) to bring an offering.

(31) An undertaking with an expression which dedicates a particular animal as an offering (הרי זו). In this case if the animal died or was lost the undertaking is considered as discharged; cf. Kin. I, 1.

(32) To the altar, such as burnt-offerings and peace-offerings, fine flour, wine, frankincense, and wood.

(33) To the altar, but only to the Repair of the Temple.

(34) Ezra IV, 3.

(35) To compensate the Temple for any loss that might be incurred in changing the Shekel (half a sela') into sela's; v. next section.

(36) Who are bound by law to pay the Shekel.

(37) Who are not bound to pay it; cf. supra p. 2; nn. 9 and 10.

(38) Even if the payment of the Shekel was not a gift to them, but a loan which they promised to repay; cf. the next section.

(39) In one coin, viz., a sela'.

(40) As change.

(41) As a gift.

(42) In the inheritance of their father. Cf. Hul. I, 7; Bek. IX, 3.

(43) Of young born during their partnership. This tithe is a personal charge, and cattle held in partnership was exempt from it; cf. Bek. ibid.

(44) I.e., when they had become partners again after they had already shared out the inheritance.

(45) Viz., before they had shared out the inheritance, when the cattle is still considered as the property of their father.

(46) If their Shekels were paid out of the inheritance. Their Shekels are then considered as a gift from their father, and a gift Shekel is exempt from the surcharge.

(47) 1/24th of a sela', or 1/12th of the Shekel.

Mishna - Mas. Shekalim Chapter 2

MISHNAH 1. SHEKELS MAY BE CHANGED¹ INTO DARICS² IN ORDER TO [LIGHTEN] THE LOAD OF THE JOURNEY.³ JUST AS THERE WERE CHESTS⁴ IN THE TEMPLE SO WERE THERE CHESTS IN THE PROVINCE.⁵ IF THE PEOPLE OF A TOWN HAD SENT THEIR SHEKELS AND THEY WERE STOLEN OR LOST, THEN IF THE APPROPRIATION⁶ HAD ALREADY BEEN MADE⁷ [THE MESSENGERS] SWEAR THE OATH [OF ACQUITTAL]⁸ TO THE TREASURERS; BUT IF [THE APPROPRIATION HAD] NOT [YET BEEN MADE] THEY SWEAR TO THE TOWNSPEOPLE, AND THE TOWNSPEOPLE MUST PAY [FRESH] SHEKELS IN THE PLACE OF THE [LOST] SHEKELS. [IF THE LOST SHEKELS] WERE FOUND, OR IF THE THIEVES RESTORED THEM, THEN BOTH [THE FIRST SHEKELS AND THEIR SUBSTITUTES] ARE [ACCOUNTED SACRED] SHEKELS,⁹ BUT THEY CANNOT BE CREDITED [TO THE ACCOUNT] OF THE COMING YEAR.¹⁰

MISHNAH 2. IF A MAN GAVE HIS SHEKEL TO HIS FELLOW TO PAY IT ON HIS BEHALF, BUT [HIS FELLOW] PAID IT¹¹ ON BEHALF OF HIMSELF, THEN IF THE APPROPRIATION HAD ALREADY BEEN MADE¹² [HIS FELLOW] IS GUILTY OF SACRILEGE.¹³ IF A MAN PAID HIS SHEKEL OUT OF MONEY BELONGING TO THE SANCTUARY, THEN IF THE APPROPRIATION HAD ALREADY BEEN MADE AND AN ANIMAL [BOUGHT OUT OF THE APPROPRIATION] HAD ALREADY BEEN OFFERED, HE IS GUILTY OF SACRILEGE.¹⁴ [IF HE DID IT WITH MONEY WHICH WAS] THE VALUE OF SECOND TITHES¹⁵ OR THE VALUE OF SEVENTH YEAR PRODUCE,¹⁶ HE MUST

CONSUME [FOOD TO] THE VALUE THEREOF.¹⁷

MISHNAH 3. IF A MAN SAVED COINS AND SAID: LO, THESE ARE FOR MY SHEKEL, BETH SHAMMAI SAY: THE SURPLUS [OF THE COINS GOES TO THE CHESTS OF] FREEWILL-OFFERINGS.¹⁸ BUT BETH HILLEL SAY: THE SURPLUS THEREOF IS COMMON PROPERTY.¹⁹ [IF HE SAID: FROM THESE COINS] I SHALL OFFER MY SHEKEL, [BOTH SCHOOLS] AGREE THAT THE SURPLUS THEREOF IS COMMON PROPERTY. [IF HE SAID]: THESE [COINS] ARE FOR A SIN-OFFERING, [BOTH] AGREE²⁰ THAT THE SURPLUS [GOES TO THE CHESTS OF] FREEWILL-OFFERINGS. [IF HE SAID]: FROM THESE I SHALL OFFER A SIN-OFFERING, [BOTH SCHOOLS] AGREE THAT THE SURPLUS IS COMMON PROPERTY.

MISHNAH 4. R. SIMEON SAID: WHAT IS THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN SHEKELS AND A SIN-OFFERING?²¹ SHEKELS HAVE A FIXED VALUE, BUT A SIN-OFFERING HAS NO FIXED VALUE.²² R. JUDAH SAYS: SHEKELS ALSO HAVE NO FIXED VALUE. FOR WHEN THE ISRAELITES CAME UP OUT OF THE CAPTIVITY²³ THEY USED TO PAY THE SHEKEL IN DARICS,²⁴ THEN THEY PAID THE SHEKEL IN SELA'S²⁵ THEN AGAIN THEY PAID IT IN TIB'IN,²⁶ AND FINALLY THEY SOUGHT TO PAY IT IN DENARS.²⁷ BUT R. SIMEON SAID: NEVERTHELESS THE VALUE THEREOF REMAINED THE SAME FOR EVERYBODY, WHEREAS [IN THE CASE OF] A SIN-OFFERING ONE MAN MAY BRING IT OF THE VALUE OF ONE SELA', ANOTHER MAY BRING IT OF THE VALUE OF TWO SELA'S, AND AGAIN ANOTHER OF THREE SELA'S.

MISHNAH 5. THE SURPLUS OF [MONEY SET ASIDE FOR] SHEKELS IS COMMON PROPERTY, BUT THE SURPLUS OF [MONEY SET ASIDE FOR THE] TENTH OF THE EPHAH,²⁸ AND THE SURPLUS OF [MONEY SET ASIDE FOR] BIRD-OFFERINGS OF MEN WHO HAD AN ISSUE, FOR BIRD-OFFERINGS OF WOMEN WHO HAD AN ISSUE, FOR BIRD-OFFERINGS OF WOMEN AFTER CHILDBIRTH,²⁹ THEIR SURPLUS [GOES TO THE CHESTS OF] FREEWILL-OFFERINGS. THIS IS THE GENERAL RULE: OF ALL [MONIES SET ASIDE] FOR A SIN-OFFERING OR FOR A GUILT-OFFERING, THE SURPLUS [GOES TO THE CHESTS OF] FREEWILL-OFFERINGS. THE SURPLUS OF [MONEY SET ASIDE FOR] A BURNT-OFFERING [MUST BE USED] FOR A BURNT-OFFERING; THE SURPLUS OF [MONEY SET ASIDE FOR] A MEAL-OFFERING [MUST BE USED] FOR A MEAL-OFFERING; THE SURPLUS OF [MONEY SET ASIDE FOR] A PEACE-OFFERING [MUST BE USED] FOR A PEACE-OFFERING; THE SURPLUS OF [MONEY SET ASIDE FOR] A PASSOVER-OFFERING [MUST BE USED] FOR A PASSOVER-OFFERING; THE SURPLUS OF [MONEY RAISED FOR] THE OFFERINGS OF NAZIRITES³⁰ [MUST BE USED] FOR THE OFFERINGS OF OTHER NAZIRITES; THE SURPLUS OF [MONEY RAISED FOR] THE OFFERINGS OF A [PARTICULAR] NAZIRITE [MUST GO] TO THE [CHESTS OF] FREEWILL-OFFERINGS; THE SURPLUS OF [MONEY RAISED FOR] THE POOR [MUST BE USED] FOR [OTHER] POOR; THE SURPLUS OF [MONEY RAISED FOR] A [PARTICULAR] POOR PERSON³¹ [MUST BE GIVEN] TO THAT [POOR PERSON];³² THE SURPLUS OF [MONEY RAISED FOR THE RANSOM OF] CAPTIVES [MUST BE USED] FOR [THE RANSOM OF OTHER] CAPTIVES; THE SURPLUS OF [MONEY RAISED FOR THE RANSOM OF] A [PARTICULAR] CAPTIVE [MUST BE GIVEN] TO THAT CAPTIVE; THE SURPLUS OF [THE MONEY RAISED FOR THE BURIAL OF] THE DEAD [MUST BE USED] FOR [THE BURIAL OF OTHER] DEAD; THE SURPLUS OF [THE MONEY RAISED FOR THE BURIAL OF] A [PARTICULAR] DEAD PERSON [MUST BE GIVEN] TO HIS HEIRS. R. MEIR SAYS: THE SURPLUS OF [MONEY RAISED FOR THE BURIAL OF] A [PARTICULAR] DEAD PERSON MUST BE LAID ASIDE UNTIL ELIJAH COMES.³³ R. NATHAN SAYS: THE SURPLUS OF [MONEY RAISED FOR THE BURIAL OF] A [PARTICULAR] DEAD PERSON [MUST BE USED] FOR BUILDING A MONUMENT FOR HIM OVER HIS GRAVE.

- (1) Lit., 'may be combined' (for purposes of exchange).
- (2) A Persian gold coin; cf. Ezra II, 69; VIII, 27.
- (3) Of the coins on the way up to the Temple
- (4) Heb. 'Shoferoth' (שופרות), horns of blowing. The chests were shaped like the Shofar, narrow at the top where the opening was, and widening lower down. This shape was chosen to prevent the theft of the contents.
- (5) Cf. p. 2 n. 6.
- (6) Lit., 'heave-offering' (תרומה). This term is usually applied to the offering 'heaved' from produce and given to the priest. Here it designates the portion of the shekels taken up periodically in the store-chamber for the current needs of the Temple, as described below, III, 1ff.
- (7) By making the appropriation all the shekels which are due to come to the Temple become the property of the Temple, the appropriation being made also in respect of those shekel payments which had not yet reached the Temple at the time of appropriation. V. B.M. 58a, Sonc. ed. p. 344.
- (8) The oath which acquits unpaid guardians of responsibility for the loss of goods entrusted to them; cf. B.M. 33b.
- (9) Both are the property of the Temple.
- (10) They have to pay the shekel afresh in the next year.
- (11) By error.
- (12) By the appropriation the Temple had already secured possession of the shekel from the first man; cf. p. 5, n. 7.
- (13) In accordance with Lev. V, 15ff; since he used Temple property to discharge a debt. The authorities are divided as to whether in this case also, as in the following case, an animal has first to be offered out of the appropriation before he becomes guilty of sacrilege.
- (14) But otherwise he does not incur guilt, since he has not used Temple money for any common purpose, but only transferred it from one hallowed denomination to another.
- (15) The First Tithe of produce was given to the Levites, Num. XVIII, 21. The Second Tithe had to be consumed itself, or its value in money, in Jerusalem. Cf. Deut. XIV, 24ff; 'Ed. I, 9ff, Sonc. ed. p. 4, n. 16.
- (16) Which is liable to the law of 'Removal' (ביעור), and must be consumed before the Passover; cf. M.Sh. V, 6.
- (17) He must take money equal to the value of the shekel and declare that this money shall be in place of the Second Tithes money or of the Seventh Year produce money that had been given away as a shekel, and then he must use up this money in accordance with the rules laid down for the consumption of Second Tithes (M. Sh. II, 1-4), or of Seventh Year produce (Sheb. VIII, 1-5; IX, 8).
- (18) Cf. infra VI, 6. All the coins saved have become hallowed.
- (19) It may be expended by the owner at his will.
- (20) For the reason stated by R. Simeon in the next section.
- (21) That in the case of a shekel Beth Hillel always hold the surplus of the coins to be common property, but in the case of a sin-offering they agree with Beth Shammai, that in the condition stated in the last section, the surplus falls to the chest of freewill-offerings?
- (22) Hence all the coins might have been used up for a sin-offering, therefore they are all hallowed.
- (23) In the days of Cyrus.
- (24) Viz., half a daric.
- (25) Half a sela'.
- (26) טבעין plural of טבע, minted shekel.
- (27) Half of the tib'in. Some texts add: 'But they were not accepted of them'.
- (28) Lev. V, 11-13.
- (29) Cf. supra p. 3, n. 7.
- (30) Num. VI, 10ff, 14ff.
- (31) For a definite need.
- (32) For his other needs.
- (33) Who will solve the problem of what to do with it; cf. B.M., Sonc. ed. p. 6, n. 2.

Mishna - Mas. Shekalim Chapter 3

MISHNAH 1. AT THREE PERIODS OF THE YEAR WAS THE APPROPRIATION MADE

[FROM THE SHEKELS] IN THE CHAMBER:¹ HALF A MONTH² BEFORE THE PASSOVER, HALF A MONTH BEFORE PENTECOST, AND HALF A MONTH BEFORE THE FEAST OF TABERNACLES. THESE ARE ALSO THE SEASONS³ FOR THE TITHE OF CATTLE;⁴ THUS R. AKIBA. BEN 'AZZAI SAYS: ON THE TWENTY-NINTH OF ADAR,⁵ AND ON THE FIRST OF SIVAN,⁶ AND ON THE TWENTY-NINTH OF AB.⁷ R. ELEAZAR AND R. SIMEON SAY: ON THE FIRST OF NISAN,⁵ ON THE FIRST OF SIVAN,⁶ AND ON THE TWENTY-NINTH OF ELUL. WHEREFORE DID THEY SAY, ON THE TWENTY-NINTH OF ELUL AND NOT ON THE FIRST OF TISHRI?⁸ BECAUSE THE FIRST OF TISHRI IS A FESTIVAL,⁹ AND IT IS NOT PERMITTED TO TITHE ON A FESTIVAL, THEREFORE THEY ADVANCE IT TO THE TWENTY-NINTH OF ELUL.

MISHNAH 3. [MEMBERS] OF RABBAN GAMALIEL'S HOUSEHOLD USED TO ENTER [THE CHAMBER] WITH THEIR SHEKEL BETWEEN THEIR FINGERS, AND THROW IT IN FRONT OF HIM WHO MADE THE APPROPRIATION, WHILE HE WHO MADE THE APPROPRIATION PURPOSELY PRESSED IT INTO THE BASKET.¹⁷ HE WHO MADE THE APPROPRIATION DID NOT MAKE IT UNLESS HE FIRST SAID TO THEM:¹⁸ SHALL I MAKE THE APPROPRIATION? AND THEY SAID TO HIM THREE TIMES:¹⁹ MAKE THE APPROPRIATION! MAKE THE APPROPRIATION! MAKE THE APPROPRIATION!

MISHNAH 4. WHEN HE MADE THE FIRST APPROPRIATION²⁰ HE COVERED [WHAT WAS LEFT] WITH LEATHER SPREADS,²¹ AND WHEN HE MADE THE SECOND APPROPRIATION²² HE AGAIN COVERED [WHAT WAS LEFT] WITH LEATHER SPREADS,²¹ BUT AFTER THE THIRD APPROPRIATION HE DID NOT COVER [WHAT WAS LEFT]. [HE COVERED AFTER THE FIRST TWO APPROPRIATIONS] LEST HE SHOULD FORGET AND MAKE A [FRESH] APPROPRIATION FROM SHEKELS FROM WHICH AN APPROPRIATION HAD ALREADY BEEN MADE. THE FIRST APPROPRIATION HE MADE ON BEHALF OF THE LAND OF ISRAEL, AND THE SECOND ON BEHALF OF THE CITIES NEAR THEREUNTO, AND THE THIRD ON BEHALF OF BABYLON AND ON BEHALF OF MEDIA AND ON BEHALF OF [OTHER] DISTANT COUNTRIES.

(1) In the Temple which serves as the Treasury.

(2) Lit., breaking (into two) I.e., half the period of the preparation for the festival during which the laws of the festival are being expounded.

(3) Lit., 'threshing floors' (גרנות), a term borrowed from the tithe of produce which becomes due when the produce reaches the threshing-floor.

(4) Lev. XXVII, 32; cf. Bek. IX, 5-6. These dates were chosen to enable cattle dealers to sell their young animals after the tithing for the requirement of sacrifices on the three great Festivals of Pilgrimage.

(5) A more definite date than the one given by R. Akiba.

- (6) The supply of young animals was smaller before Pentecost, and the longer period of half a month given by R. Akiba might cause a scarcity of animals for sacrifices on Pentecost.
- (7) And not on or about the first of Tishri. Ben 'Azzai holds that animals born during the month of Elul had to be tithed by themselves, and could not be mixed up with those born before Elul; cf. Bek. IX, 5.
- (8) Like the dates which they gave for Nisan and Sivan.
- (9) The Festival of the New Year.
- (10) Three se'ahs equal the Biblical ephah; cf. 'Ed., Sonc. ed. p. 2, nn. 3, 7.
- (11) To ensure that the contents of each basket would be expended in the order in which they had been taken up.
- (12) The J. Mishnah reads Gamma.
- (13) With a border folded up at the lower end of the cloak. Aruch explains it as a cloak with sleeves. The articles of apparel enumerated may serve as a receptacle for hiding a theft from the shekels.
- (14) I.e., to give no cause for suspicion.
- (15) Num. XXXII, 22.
- (16) Prov. III, 4.
- (17) To make sure that their shekels would be used for the purchase of the offerings enumerated infra IV, 1, and not be left in the residue, ibid. 4.
- (18) To those who stood outside the chamber; v. Maim. Yad. Shekalim, II, 5.
- (19) Cf. Men. X, 3.
- (20) The one taken before the Passover.
- (21) GR. . On which were laid the shekels that arrived later.
- (22) The one taken before Pentecost.

Mishna - Mas. Shekalim Chapter 4

MISHNAH 1. WHAT WAS DONE WITH THE APPROPRIATION? THEY BROUGHT THEREWITH THE DAILY BURNT-OFFERINGS¹ AND THE ADDITIONAL² BURNT-OFFERINGS AND THEIR DRINK-OFFERINGS, THE 'OMER AND THE TWO LOAVES AND THE SHEWBREAD³ AND ALL THE OTHER PUBLIC OFFERINGS.⁴ THOSE WHO WATCHED THE AFTERGROWTHS⁵ IN THE SEVENTH YEAR⁶ RECEIVED THEIR WAGES OUT OF THE APPROPRIATION FROM THE CHAMBER. R. JOSE SAYS: [IF A MAN WISHED] HE COULD VOLUNTEER TO WATCH WITHOUT PAYMENT. BUT THEY SAID TO HIM: THOU, TOO, DOST ADMIT THAT THEY⁷ CAN ONLY BE OFFERED OUT OF PUBLIC FUNDS.⁸

MISHNAH 2. THE [RED] COW⁹ AND THE SCAPEGOAT¹⁰ AND THE STRIP OF SCARLET¹¹ CAME OUT OF THE APPROPRIATION OF THE CHAMBER. THE VIADUCT FOR THE [RED] COW¹² AND THE VIADUCT FOR THE SCAPEGOAT¹³ AND THE STRIP OF SCARLET WHICH WAS BETWEEN ITS HORNS,¹⁴ AND [THE MAINTENANCE OF] THE POOL OF WATER,¹⁵ AND THE WALL OF THE CITY¹⁶ AND THE TOWERS THEREOF AND ALL THE NEEDS OF THE CITY¹⁷ CAME OUT OF THE REMAINDER¹⁸ IN THE CHAMBER. ABBA SAUL SAYS: THE VIADUCT FOR THE [RED] COW THE HIGH PRIESTS MADE OUT OF THEIR OWN [MEANS].

MISHNAH 3. WHAT WAS DONE WITH THE SURPLUS OF THE REMAINDER IN THE CHAMBER?¹⁹ THEREWITH WERE BOUGHT WINES, OILS AND FINE FLOURS,²⁰ AND THE PROFIT BELONGED TO THE SANCTUARY; THUS R. ISHMAEL. R. AKIBA SAYS: ONE MAY NOT DEAL WITH THE PROPERTY OF THE SANCTUARY,²¹ NOR WITH THE PROPERTY OF THE POOR.²²

MISHNAH 4. WHAT WAS DONE WITH THE SURPLUS OF THE APPROPRIATION?²³ [THEREOF WERE MADE] BEATEN PLATES OF GOLD FOR COVERING²⁴ THE INTERIOR OF THE HOLY OF HOLIES. R. ISHMAEL SAYS: THE SURPLUS [FROM THE SALE] OF THE

PRODUCE²⁵ WAS USED FOR THE ALTAR'S 'DESSERT',²⁶ AND THE SURPLUS OF THE APPROPRIATION WAS USED FOR THE VESSELS OF MINISTRATION. R. AKIBA SAYS: THE SURPLUS OF THE APPROPRIATION WAS USED FOR THE ALTAR'S 'DESSERT', AND THE SURPLUS OF THE DRINK-OFFERINGS²⁷ WAS USED FOR THE VESSELS OF MINISTRATION. R. HANANIAH THE CHIEF OF THE PRIESTS²⁸ SAYS: THE SURPLUS OF THE DRINK-OFFERINGS WAS USED FOR THE ALTAR'S 'DESSERT', AND THE SURPLUS OF THE APPROPRIATION WAS USED FOR THE VESSELS OF MINISTRATION. NEITHER OF THESE [TWO SAGES] ALLOWED [A PROFIT FROM THE SALE OF THE PRODUCE].²⁹

MISHNAH 5. WHAT WAS DONE WITH THE SURPLUS OF THE FRANKINCENSE:³⁰ THEY SET APART THEREFROM³¹ THE WAGES OF THE CRAFTSMEN,³² AND WHEN THEY HAD EXCHANGED IT³³ FOR THE WAGES OF THE CRAFTSMEN, THEY GAVE IT TO THE CRAFTSMEN AS THEIR WAGES, AND THEN THEY BOUGHT IT BACK AGAIN OUT OF A NEW APPROPRIATION.³⁴ IF THE NEW ONE³⁵ HAD ARRIVED IN TIME THEY BOUGHT IT BACK AGAIN WITH THE NEW APPROPRIATION, BUT IF NOT, THEY BOUGHT IT BACK AGAIN WITH THE OLD ONE.

MISHNAH 6. IF A MAN DEDICATED HIS POSSESSIONS TO THE SANCTUARY, AND THERE WAS AMONG THEM AUGHT THAT WAS FIT FOR PUBLIC OFFERINGS,³⁶ IT SHOULD BE GIVEN TO THE CRAFTSMEN AS THEIR WAGES; THUS R. AKIBA. BUT BEN 'AZZAI SAID TO HIM: THIS IS NOT IN ACCORDANCE WITH THE ESTABLISHED RULE.³⁷ NAY, RATHER, THEY SET APART THEREFROM³⁸ THE WAGES OF THE CRAFTSMEN, AND WHEN THEY HAD EXCHANGED IT FOR THE MONEY DUE TO THE CRAFTSMEN THEY GAVE IT TO THE CRAFTSMEN AS THEIR WAGES, AND THEN THEY BOUGHT IT BACK AGAIN OUT OF A NEW APPROPRIATION.

MISHNAH 7. IF A MAN DEDICATED HIS POSSESSIONS TO THE SANCTUARY AND THERE WERE AMONG THEM CATTLE FIT FOR THE ALTAR, MALES OR FEMALES, R. ELIEZER SAYS: MALES SHOULD BE SOLD³⁹ FOR THE USE OF BURNT-OFFERINGS AND FEMALES⁴⁰ SHOULD BE SOLD FOR THE USE OF PEACE-OFFERINGS, AND THE PRICE THEREOF TOGETHER WITH THE REST OF THE POSSESSIONS SHOULD GO TO THE REPAIR OF THE TEMPLE.⁴¹ R. JOSHUA SAYS: THE MALES SHOULD THEMSELVES BE OFFERED UP AS BURNT-OFFERINGS⁴² AND THE FEMALES SHOULD BE SOLD FOR THE USE OF PEACE-OFFERINGS, [AND FOR THE PRICE THEREOF BURNT-OFFERINGS SHOULD BE OFFERED],⁴³ AND THE OTHER POSSESSIONS SHOULD GO TO THE REPAIR OF THE TEMPLE. R. AKIBA SAYS: I PREFER THE OPINION OF R. ELIEZER ABOVE THE OPINION OF R. JOSHUA, FOR R. ELIEZER APPLIED A UNIFORM RULE,⁴⁴ BUT R. JOSHUA DIFFERENTIATED.⁴⁵ R. PAPIAS SAID: I HAVE HEARD A TRADITION IN ACCORDANCE WITH THE OPINIONS OF BOTH [SAGES]: THAT IF A MAN DEDICATED TO THE SANCTUARY IN DEFINITE TERMS⁴⁶ IT IS ACCORDING TO THE OPINION OF R. ELIEZER,⁴⁷ BUT IF HE DEDICATED TO THE SANCTUARY IN INDEFINITE TERMS⁴⁸ IT IS ACCORDING TO THE OPINION OF R. JOSHUA.⁴⁹

MISHNAH 8. IF A MAN DEDICATED HIS POSSESSIONS TO THE SANCTUARY AND THERE WERE AMONG THEM THINGS FIT FOR THE ALTAR [SUCH AS] WINES, OILS,⁵⁰ AND BIRDS,⁵¹ R. ELIEZER SAYS: THEY SHOULD BE SOLD FOR THE USE OF [OFFERINGS BELONGING TO] EACH PARTICULAR KIND, AND FOR THE PRICE THEREOF BURNT-OFFERINGS⁵² SHOULD BE OFFERED, WHILE THE OTHER POSSESSIONS SHOULD GO TO THE REPAIR OF THE TEMPLE.

MISHNAH 9. ONCE IN THIRTY DAYS PRICES WERE FIXED [ON BEHALF OF] THE CHAMBER.⁵³ IF A MAN HAD UNDERTAKEN TO SUPPLY FINE FLOURS AT FOUR [SE'AH'S

FOR A SELA'] AND THEY NOW STOOD AT THREE [SE'AHs FOR A SELA'] HE MUST [STILL] SUPPLY AT FOUR [SE'AHs]. [IF HE HAD UNDERTAKEN TO SUPPLY] AT THREE [SE'AHs FOR A SELA'] AND THEY NOW STOOD AT FOUR, HE MUST [ALSO] SUPPLY AT FOUR, FOR THE SANCTUARY HAS THE UPPER HAND.⁵⁴ IF THE FINE FLOUR BECAME WORM-EATEN THE LOSS IS HIS; IF THE WINE BECAME SOUR THE LOSS IS HIS. FOR HE IS NOT ENTITLED TO HIS MONEY⁵⁵ EXCEPT AFTER THE ALTAR HAS ACCEPTED THE OFFERING.⁵⁶

(1) Cf. Num. XXVIII, 1-8.

(2) The special offering for the Sabbath, the New Moon and the Festivals, enumerated in Num. XXVIII, 9-XXIX, 39.

(3) Cf. supra p. 3 nn. 2-4.

(4) E.g., frankincense and the drink-offerings ordained, infra VII, 6.

(5) Growing without human labor; cf. Lev. XXV, 5, 11.

(6) All produce of the Seventh Year was ownerless property and free to man and beast, Lev. ibid. 6-7. As the 'Omer and the Two Loaves had to be offered out of the new produce of the year, therefore in the Seventh Year guardians were set over a special field to guard its aftergrowths for the use of the 'Omer and the Two Loaves for that year, so that they might not be eaten by man or beast.

(7) The 'Omer and the Two Loaves.

(8) But if the watcher is unpaid the aftergrowths become automatically his own private property and could not be offered up; v. B.M., Sonc. ed. pp. 671ff and notes.

(9) Num. XIX, 1ff.

(10) Lev. XVI, 10, 21F.

(11) Which was thrown into the burning Red Cow, including also the accompanying cedar wood and hyssop, Num. XIX, 6. According to others, the strip of scarlet tied on the neck of the goat of the sin-offering in order to distinguish it from the scapegoat, Lev. XVI, 9; v. p. 13, n. 3.

(12) Across the valley which separated the Temple Mount from the Mount of Olives, over which the Red Cow was led by the priest. The viaduct was erected in order to protect the priest against defilement from the possible unsuspected presence of a grave in the valley; cf. Parah III, 6.

(13) A private exit leading out of Jerusalem for the man who carried away the scapegoat, to prevent his being mobbed; cf. Yoma 66a.

(14) Cf. Yoma 41b.

(15) In the Temple Court.

(16) Of Jerusalem.

(17) The maintenance of the water supply, the streets and markets, etc.

(18) What is left over from the shekels after the three appropriations had been made; v. supra III, 2, 4.

(19) After the needs enumerated in the foregoing section (viaducts etc.) had been satisfied.

(20) To be re-sold to those requiring them for their offerings.

(21) (a) Such trafficking is unseemly for the Temple v. Keth. 106b. [(b) Because trafficking may involve loss as well as gain, T.J. a.l.].

(22) 'Because a poor man might come unexpectedly and there would be nothing to give him'. Keth. ibid.; cf. however preceding note (b).

(23) After the needs enumerated in section 1 and the beginning of section 2 had been met.

(24) Cf. Num. XVII, 3; I Kings VI, 20ff.

(25) In accordance with his opinion in the last section.

(26) Lit., 'summer-fruit', eaten as dessert, a figurative name for the burnt-offerings which were offered after all the prescribed public and private offerings had been offered, to prevent the altar standing idle, v. Shebu., Sonc. ed. p. 50, n. 3.

(27) Sold by the officers of the Temple in accordance with infra V, 4.

(28) Segan, v. Sanh., Sonc. ed. p. 97, n. 1.

(29) Against R. Ishmael, and in agreement with R. Akiba supra section 3.

(30) In conformity with an ancient tradition, the incense was prepared for the whole year in advance in a quantity of 365 minas, corresponding to the number of days in the solar year, with an extra three minas for the Day of Atonement, of which one mina was offered daily, one half in the morning and one half in the afternoon (cf. Ex. XXX, 7-8; Ker. 6a). But as the calendar year in force was the lunar year which consists usually of 354 days (excepting the leap year which has 384 days), there was at the end of most years a surplus of eleven minas. This surplus could not be carried over for use in the next year, since all public offerings made from the first of Nisan onwards had to come out of the appropriation of the new shekels (cf. p. 12, n. 4). Hence arose the problem how to enable the surplus from the old year to be used for the new year.

(31) From the shekels in the chamber. So Maimonides and Bertinore. [Aliter: From the surplus of the frankincense (Barneth a.l.). Cf. next section, n. 5.]

(32) Who compounded the incense, made the Shewbread, and guarded the aftergrowths in the Seventh Year; cf. supra section 1, and infra V], 1.

(33) The surplus of the incense, thereby divesting it of its hallowed character and rendering it 'common'. This roundabout method was adopted, instead of selling it straightway, out of reverence for its hallowed character.

(34) And it could be used for the new year.

(35) The contribution of the new shekel.

(36) Frankincense, wine, oil, or flour.

(37) As laid down in the last section.

(38) [מִזְבֵּי] evidently refers to the dedicated objects fit for public offerings; cf. previous section, n. 6.]

(39) But they should not themselves be offered, as, according to the view of R. Eliezer, an ordinary dedication to the Temple belonged to the general Temple fund ('The Repair of the Temple').

(40) Females could not be used for burnt-offerings, but were good for peace-offerings; cf. Lev. I, 3, 10; III, 1, 6.

(41) Cf. II Kings XII, 6ff. This was equivalent to the general Temple fund.

(42) He holds that such was the intention of the dedication.

(43) But not as peace-offerings the flesh of which is eaten by the owner, it being assumed that his intention was to dedicate them exclusively to the altar.

(44) For cattle and other possessions.

(45) Between cattle and other possessions.

(46) Making special mention of the cattle among his possessions.

(47) That cattle should be treated in the same way as his other possessions.

(48) Without mentioning the cattle.

(49) That each is treated in the manner for which it is fit.

(50) For meal-offerings and drink-offerings; cf. Num. XXVIII, 5, 7, etc.

(51) Pigeons and turtle-doves.

(52) This is deduced from the wording of Lev. XXII, 18: Of all their vows and freewill-offerings . . . for a burnt-offering, v. T.J. a.l.

(53) The treasury chamber where the shekels were deposited; III, 1.

(54) Cf. Kid. 29a.

(55) Even if he had received it in advance.

(56) As a valid one.

Mishna - Mas. Shekalim Chapter 5

MISHNAH 1. THESE WERE THE OFFICERS¹ IN THE TEMPLE: JOHANAN THE SON OF PHINEAS WAS OVER THE SEALS, AHIJAH OVER THE DRINK-OFFERINGS,² MATTITHIAH THE SON OF SAMUEL³ OVER THE LOTS,⁴ PETHAHIAH OVER THE BIRD-OFFERINGS (THIS SAME PETHAHIAH WAS MORDECAI. WHEREFORE WAS HIS NAME CALLED PETHAHIAH? BECAUSE HE 'OPENED'⁵ MATTERS AND EXPOUNDED THEM, AND HE UNDERSTOOD THE SEVENTY TONGUES);⁶ THE SON OF AHIJAH WAS OVER THE SICKNESS OF THE BOWELS,⁷ NEHUNIAH WAS DIGGER OF DITCHES,⁸ GEBINI WAS THE CRIER,⁹ THE SON OF GEBER WAS OVER THE LOCKING OF THE GATES,¹⁰ THE SON OF BEBAI WAS OVER THE STRIPS,¹¹ THE SON OF ARZA OVER THE CYMBAL,¹² HYGROS THE SON OF LEVI OVER THE SINGING,¹³ THE HOUSE OF GARMU OVER THE MAKING OF THE SHEWBREAD,¹⁴ THE HOUSE OF ABTINAS OVER THE

PREPARING OF THE FRANKINCENSE,¹⁴ ELEAZAR OVER THE VEIL,¹⁵ AND PHINEAS OVER THE VESTMENTS.¹⁶

MISHNAH 2. THE TREASURERS WERE NOT LESS THAN THREE AND THE SUPERINTENDENTS NOT LESS THAN SEVEN, NOR MAY AUTHORITY BE EXERCISED IN MATTERS OF MONEY BY LESS THAN TWO [OFFICERS], EXCEPT [IN THE CASE] OF AHIJAH¹⁷ WHO WAS OVER THE SICKNESS OF THE BOWELS AND ELEAZAR¹⁷ WHO WAS OVER THE VEIL, FOR THESE HAD BEEN ACCEPTED BY THE MAJORITY OF¹⁸ THE PUBLIC.

MISHNAH 3. THERE WERE FOUR SEALS IN THE TEMPLE, AND ON THEM WAS INSCRIBED [RESPECTIVELY] 'CALF', 'RAM',¹⁹ 'KID', 'SINNER'.²⁰ BEN 'AZZAI SAYS: THERE WERE FIVE AND ON THEM WAS INSCRIBED IN ARAMAIC [RESPECTIVELY] 'CALF', 'RAM', 'KID', 'POOR'²¹ 'SINNER', AND 'RICH'²² 'SINNER'. [THE SEAL INSCRIBED] 'CALF', SERVED FOR THE DRINK-OFFERINGS²³ OF KINE, BOTH GREAT AND SMALL, MALE AND FEMALE; [THE ONE INSCRIBED] 'KID' SERVED FOR THE DRINK-OFFERINGS OF FLOCKS, BOTH GREAT AND SMALL, MALE AND FEMALE, WITH THE EXCEPTION OF THOSE OF RAMS; [THE ONE INSCRIBED] 'RAM' SERVED FOR THE DRINK-OFFERINGS OF RAMS ALONE; [THE ONE INSCRIBED] 'SINNER' SERVED FOR THE DRINK-OFFERINGS OF THE THREE ANIMALS [OFFERED] BY LEPERS.²⁴

MISHNAH 4. IF A MAN REQUIRED DRINK-OFFERINGS HE WOULD GO TO JOHANAN WHO WAS THE OFFICER OVER THE SEALS, AND GIVE HIM MONEY AND RECEIVE FROM HIM A SEAL. THEN HE WOULD GO TO AHIJAH WHO WAS THE OFFICER OVER THE DRINK-OFFERINGS, AND GIVE HIM THE SEAL, AND RECEIVE FROM HIM DRINK-OFFERINGS. AND IN THE EVENING THESE TWO [OFFICERS] WOULD COME TOGETHER, AND AHIJAH WOULD BRING OUT THE SEALS AND RECEIVE MONEY FOR THEIR VALUE. AND IF THERE WAS MORE [THAN THEIR VALUE] THE SURPLUS BELONGED TO THE SANCTUARY,²⁵ BUT IF THERE WAS LESS [THAN THEIR VALUE] JOHANAN WOULD PAY [THE LOSS] OUT OF HIS OWN MEANS; FOR THE SANCTUARY HAS THE UPPER HAND.

MISHNAH 5. IF A MAN LOST HIS SEAL HIS CASE WAS DEFERRED UNTIL THE EVENING.²⁶ IF THEN THEY FOUND [MONEY OVER] TO THE VALUE OF HIS LOST SEAL THEY GAVE [IT] TO HIM, PUT IF NOT HE HAD NOTHING. MOREOVER, ON THE SEALS WAS INSCRIBED THE NAME OF THE DAY [IN ORDER TO GUARD] AGAINST IMPOSTORS.²⁷

MISHNAH 6. THERE WERE TWO CHAMBERS IN THE TEMPLE, ONE THE CHAMBER OF SECRET GIFTS AND THE OTHER THE CHAMBER OF THE VESSELS. THE CHAMBER OF SECRET GIFTS — SIN-FEARING PERSONS²⁸ USED TO PUT THEIR GIFTS THEREIN IN SECRET, AND THE POOR WHO WERE DESCENDED OF THE VIRTUOUS WERE SUPPORTED THEREFROM IN SECRET. THE CHAMBER OF THE VESSELS — WHOEVER OFFERED A VESSEL AS A GIFT USED TO THROW IT THEREIN, AND ONCE IN THIRTY DAYS THE TREASURERS OPENED IT; AND ANY VESSEL THEY FOUND THEREIN THAT WAS OF USE FOR THE REPAIR OF THE TEMPLE THEY LEFT THERE; BUT THE OTHERS WERE SOLD AND THEIR PRICE WENT TO THE CHAMBER OF THE REPAIR²⁹ OF THE TEMPLE.

(1) According to an explanation in the Palestinian Gemara, the functionaries here enumerated were all contemporaries in a particular generation. Another, less likely, explanation given there is that these persons were the worthiest of all the occupants of the offices during the whole existence of the Second Temple. [According to Hoffmann (Die Erste Mishnah

- p. 17) the officers enumerated here date from the time of Agrippa. This is disputed by Graetz MGWJ, XXXIV, 195ff and Buchler, Die Priester, p. 134ff.]
- (2) Cf. infra 4.
- (3) A saying of his in connection with the Temple service is recorded in Yoma 28a.
- (4) By which the various labours connected with the service of the altar were distributed among the priests; v. Yoma II, 2ff.
- (5) I.e. pathah (פתח). This is an allusion to the various difficult problems in connection with bird-offerings discussed in the Tractate Kinnim; cf. also Aboth. III, 19.
- (6) The number of languages into which human speech was traditionally divided, corresponding to the seventy nations enumerated in Gen. X; cf. ibid. 5, 20, 31. Of Mordecai's skill in strange languages, cf. Meg. 13b. The whole bracketed passage is probably an interpolation. The Mordecai mentioned here is identified by the commentators with Mordecai Bilshan (בלשן from לשון, language) of Ezra II, 2. According to Rashi (Men. 64b, cf. Tosaf. ibid.) and Ibn Ezra (on Ezra loc. cit.) this was the Mordecai of the Book of Esther.
- (7) To cure it. The Palestinian Gemara adds that the priests were specially subject to this sickness, because they went about barefooted, ate much meat, and drank much water.
- (8) To supply water to pilgrims to the Temple. Cf. B.K. Sonc. ed. p. 287.
- (9) Who summoned the priests to their labours every morning; cf. Tam. III, 8; Yoma 20b.
- (10) To lock them in the evening and open them again in the morning.
- (11) Strips of cloth of which wicks were made for the lamps and torches of the Temple. So the Palestinian Gemara. The Babylonian Gemara (Yoma 23a) explains it as the straps with which Levites were scourged when found sleeping while on night duty as watchmen. But in Mid. I, 2 the sleeping watchman is beaten with a stick.
- (12) That accompanied the singing of the Levites, Tam. VII, 3.
- (13) Of the Levites, Tam. VII, 4; cf. Yoma 38a. [Whether Ben Arza was a priest or a Levite, v. Buchler op. cit. pp. 126f and 142f.]
- (14) V. Yoma 38a.
- (15) Over its manufacture, etc.; cf. infra VIII, 5.
- (16) Of the priests.
- (17) Who also handled money for the purchase of medicines and of materials for the Veil.
- (18) Some texts omit 'the majority of'.
- (19) Lit., 'male', the Aramaic name of the ram.
- (20) I.e., leper. Leprosy was considered a punishment for certain serious transgressions; cf. 'Ar. 16a.
- (21) Lev. XIV, 21ff.
- (22) I.e., a leper who is not poor. He has to offer the sacrifices prescribed, Lev. ibid. 10.
- (23) Including meal-offerings. These had to accompany every burnt-offering and peace-offering, but differed in their quantities according as the sacrifice was of kine, or of flocks, or a ram; cf. Num. XV, 3-10.
- (24) As prescribed in Lev. XIV, 10, 21 respectively.
- (25) Johanan could not claim it as his own.
- (26) When the two officers met together to settle the daily account.
- (27) Who might use for themselves seals lost by the officers or by the buyer, or who might buy seals when produce was cheap and use them in a time when produce became dear.
- (28) Pious persons who sought to avoid publicity for their deeds of charity.
- (29) Cf. supra p. 15, n. 8.

Mishna - Mas. Shekalim Chapter 6

MISHNAH 1. THERE WERE IN THE TEMPLE THIRTEEN CHESTS,¹ THIRTEEN TABLES AND THIRTEEN PROSTRATIONS. [MEMBERS] OF THE HOUSEHOLD OF RABBAN GAMALIEL AND OF R. HANANIAH THE CHIEF OF THE PRIESTS, USED TO PROSTRATE THEMSELVES FOURTEEN [TIMES]. AND WHERE WAS THE ADDITIONAL [PROSTRATION]? IN FRONT OF THE STORE OF WOOD², FOR THUS THEY HAD A TRADITION FROM THEIR FOREFATHERS THAT THE ARK WAS HIDDEN THERE.³

MISHNAH 2. ONCE IT HAPPENED THAT A CERTAIN PRIEST WHO WAS BUSY⁴ [THERE] NOTICED THAT THE PAVEMENT WAS DIFFERENT [THERE] FROM THE OTHERS. HE WENT AND TOLD [IT] TO HIS FELLOW, BUT BEFORE HE HAD TIME TO FINISH HIS WORDS HIS SOUL DEPARTED. THEN IT BECAME KNOWN OF A SURETY THAT THE ARK WAS HIDDEN THERE.

MISHNAH 3. BUT WHERE DID THEY MAKE THE PROSTRATIONS? FOUR [TIMES] IN THE NORTH, FOUR [TIMES] IN THE SOUTH, THREE [TIMES] IN THE EAST, AND TWICE IN THE WEST, IN FRONT OF THE THIRTEEN GATES. THE SOUTHERN GATES CLOSE TO THE WEST⁵ [SIDE WERE]: THE UPPER GATE,⁶ THE GATE OF THE FUEL,⁷ THE GATE OF THE FIRSTBORN [ANIMALS],⁸ AND THE WATER GATE. WHEREFORE WAS ITS NAME CALLED THE WATER GATE? BECAUSE THROUGH IT WAS BROUGHT IN THE FLASK OF WATER FOR THE LIBATION ON THE FEAST OF TABERNACLES.⁹ R. ELIEZER THE SON OF JACOB SAYS: THROUGH IT THE WATERS TRICKLED FORTH¹⁰ AND IN THE HEREAFTER THEY WILL ISSUE OUT FROM UNDER THE THRESHOLD OF THE HOUSE.¹⁰ OVER AGAINST THEM¹¹ IN THE NORTH CLOSE TO THE WEST WERE:¹² THE GATE OF JECHONIAH, THE GATE OF THE OFFERINGS¹³ THE GATE OF THE WOMEN,¹⁴ AND THE GATE OF SONG.¹⁵ AND WHEREFORE WAS ITS NAME CALLED THE GATE OF JECHONIAH? BECAUSE THROUGH IT JECHONIAH WENT FORTH INTO HIS CAPTIVITY.¹⁶ IN THE EAST WAS THE GATE OF NICANOR,¹⁷ AND IT HAD TWO WICKETS,¹⁸ ONE TO THE RIGHT AND ONE TO THE LEFT. THERE WERE ALSO TWO GATES IN THE WEST WHICH [HOWEVER] HAD NO NAME.¹⁹

MISHNAH 4. THERE WERE THIRTEEN TABLES IN THE TEMPLE, EIGHT OF MARBLE IN THE PLACE OF SLAUGHTERING ON WHICH THE ENTRAILS WERE RINSED, AND TWO TO THE WEST OF THE ASCENT²⁰ [TO THE ALTAR], ONE OF MARBLE AND ONE OF SILVER; ON THAT OF MARBLE WERE PLACED THE LIMBS²¹ [OF THE OFFERINGS], AND ON THAT OF SILVER THE VESSELS OF MINISTRATION. THERE WERE TWO TABLES IN THE PORCH²² WITHIN THE ENTRANCE OF THE HOUSE,²³ ONE OF MARBLE AND THE OTHER OF GOLD; ON THAT OF MARBLE²⁴ THE SHEWBREAD WAS PLACED WHEN IT WAS BROUGHT IN,²⁵ AND ON THAT OF GOLD [THE SHEWBREAD WAS PLACED] WHEN IT WAS TAKEN OUT,²⁶ BECAUSE THINGS SACRED MAY BE RAISED [IN HONOUR] BUT NOT LOWERED.²⁷ AND WITHIN THERE WAS ONE [TABLE] OF GOLD ON WHICH THE SHEWBREAD LAY CONTINUALLY.²⁸

MISHNAH 5. THERE WERE THIRTEEN CHESTS²⁹ IN THE TEMPLE AND ON THEM WAS INSCRIBED [RESPECTIVELY] 'NEW SHEKELS',³⁰ 'OLD SHEKELS',³⁰ 'BIRD-OFFERINGS', 'YOUNG PIGEONS FOR BURNT-OFFERINGS', 'WOOD', 'FRANKINCENSE', 'GOLD FOR THE MERCY-SEAT',³¹ AND ON SIX [WAS INSCRIBED] 'FOR FREEWILL-OFFERINGS'. 'NEW SHEKELS' — THOSE FOR EACH YEAR; 'OLD SHEKELS' — WHOSOEVER HAS NOT PAID HIS SHEKEL IN THE PAST YEAR MAY PAY IT IN THE COMING YEAR; 'BIRD-OFFERINGS' — THESE ARE TURTLE-DOVES; 'YOUNG PIGEONS FOR BURNT-OFFERINGS' — THESE ARE YOUNG PIGEONS. BOTH [THESE TWO CHESTS] ARE FOR BURNT-OFFERINGS; THUS R. JUDAH. BUT THE SAGES SAY: [OF THE CHEST INSCRIBED] 'BIRD-OFFERINGS' ONE [HALF] IS FOR SIN-OFFERINGS AND THE OTHER [HALF] FOR BURNT-OFFERINGS,³² BUT [OF THE CHEST INSCRIBED] 'YOUNG PIGEONS FOR BURNT-OFFERINGS' ALL GOES TO BURNT-OFFERINGS.³³

MISHNAH 6. IF A MAN SAYS: 'LO,³⁴ UPON ME [BE THE DUTY OF OFFERING] WOOD', HE MAY NOT OFFER LESS THAN TWO LOGS; [IF HE SAYS: 'LO, UPON ME BE THE DUTY OF OFFERING] FRANKINCENSE', HE MAY NOT OFFER LESS THAN A HANDFUL [THEREOF]; [IF HE SAYS: 'LO, UPON ME BE THE DUTY OF OFFERING] GOLD', HE MAY NOT OFFER LESS THAN A GOLD DENAR.

‘ON SIX [WAS INSCRIBED] "FOR FREEWILL-OFFERINGS" — WHAT WAS DONE WITH THE FREEWILL-OFFERINGS? THEY BOUGHT WITH THEM BURNT-OFFERINGS, THE FLESH [OF WHICH] WAS FOR THE DIVINE AND THE HIDES FOR THE PRIESTS. THE FOLLOWING IS THE EXPOSITION WHICH WAS EXPOUNDED BY JEHOIDA THE HIGH PRIEST: IT IS A GUILT-OFFERING; HE IS CERTAINLY GUILTY BEFORE THE LORD³⁵ — THIS IS THE GENERAL RULE: WITH WHAT IS [LEFT OVER OF MONEY] OFFERED FOR A SIN-OFFERING OR A GUILT-OFFERING BURNT-OFFERINGS SHOULD BE BOUGHT, [OF WHICH] THE FLESH GOES TO THE DIVINE AND THE HIDES TO THE PRIESTS. THUS THE TWO STATEMENTS OF SCRIPTURE ARE FULFILLED: HE IS CERTAINLY GUILTY UNTO THE LORD³⁶ AND IT IS A GUILT-OFFERING UNTO THE PRIESTS.³⁷ AND SO IT SAYS AGAIN:³⁸ THE MONEY³⁹ FOR THE GUILT OFFERINGS AND THE MONEY FOR THE SIN-OFFERINGS WAS NOT BROUGHT INTO THE HOUSE⁴⁰ OF THE LORD; IT WAS THE PRIESTS’.⁴¹

(1) Cf. supra p. 5, n. 4.

(2) V. Mid. II, 5.

(3) According to one tradition, by King Josiah before the destruction of the First Temple, v. Yoma 53b.

(4) He was engaged in picking the sound wood from the mouldy wood, as mouldy wood was unfit for the altar, Mid. ibid. Cf. also Yoma 54a.

(5) I.e., in the direction from west to east; cf. Mid. II, 6.

(6) [The western-most gate, so called on account of its elevated position, as the Temple court was situated on an incline rising from east to west. V. Hollis F. J., The Archeology of Herod's Temple p. 297.]

(7) Through it the wood for the altar was brought in.

(8) Through it the firstlings were led in preparatory to sacrifice.

(9) Cf. Suk. IV, 9.

(10) Cf. Ezek. XLVII, 2. 1.

(11) I.e., exactly opposite them.

(12) V. p. 22, n. 5.

(13) Through it the Most Holy sacrifices were brought in.

(14) Women entered here to attend to their offerings.

(15) Through it were brought in the musical instruments.

(16) Cf. II Kings XXIV, 12ff.

(17) Named after a man who fetched its doors from Egypt; cf. Yoma 38a.

(18) [These probably gave access to the chambers situated on the north and south respectively of the Gate of Nicanor; cf. Mid. I, 4, v. Hollis op. cit. p. 302.]

(19) [V. Tosaf. Yom Tob a.l. and Hollis pp. 139-53 where the question why these two gates were not named is discussed.]

(20) The inclined plane by which the priests went up to the altar (cf. Ex. XX, 26). V. Mid. III, 3.

(21) To keep them fresh.

(22) Ulam, the hall leading to the interior of the Temple.

(23) The Temple proper.

(24) To keep them fresh.

(25) Waiting to be laid on the table of gold, cf. Ex. XXV, 30; Lev. XXIV, 6.

(26) On the Sabbath, to make room for the new Shewbread (Lev. ibid. 8; Men. XI, 8), and before it was distributed among the priests.

(27) Hence having rested for a week on a table of gold, the Shewbread could not now be laid again on any but another table of gold; cf. Men. VI, 7.

(28) Ex. XXV, 30.

(29) Which served as receptacles of money for the purposes denoted by the various inscriptions on them.

(30) These are couched in Aramaic.

- (31) לכפרת , viz., for the Holy of Holies (Maimonides), as there was no Mercy-seat in the Second Temple. Others suggest the reading לכפורות , for basins; cf. Ezra I, 10; I Chron. XXVIII, 17.
- (32) Therefore a man who was obliged to offer bird-offerings (which had to consist of a pair, one a sin-offering and the other a burnt-offering; cf. supra p. 3, n. 7) could throw money into this chest, and thereby discharge his obligation, since the offerings bought with the money of this chest would be in accordance with his requirements.
- (33) Therefore only freewill-offerings could be thrown into this chest, but not obligatory offerings.
- (34) Cf. Men. XIII, 3.
- (35) Lev. V, 19. The phrase 'It is a guilt-offering' implies that it is like any other guilt-offering of which the priests had a share, in accordance with Lev. VII, 6; on the other hand, the following phrase 'He is certainly guilty unto the Lord' implies that the whole is offered unto the Lord and is consumed by the altar, without leaving a share to the priests, thus contradicting the previous phrase. This contradiction is overcome by assigning the surplus of money offered for a sin-offering or a guilt-offering to the purchase of burnt-offerings, of which part goes to the altar, the flesh, and part to the priests, the hides.
- (36) Viz., the flesh of the offering brought from the surplus of the money intended for a guilt-offering.
- (37) The priests take the hides.
- (38) II Kings XII, 17.
- (39) Viz., the surplus of money originally intended for a guilt-offering or for a sin-offering.
- (40) This is interpreted as meaning 'for the Repair of the House of the Lord', cf. the preceding verses of the chapter.
- (41) This is interpreted to mean: It should be devoted to a sacrifice, of which the priests enjoy a share — the hides.

Mishna - Mas. Shekalim Chapter 7

MISHNAH 1. IF MONEY WAS FOUND BETWEEN THE [CHEST INSCRIBED] 'SHEKELS'¹ AND THE [CHESTS INSCRIBED] 'FOR FREEWILL-OFFERINGS, AND IT WAS NEARER² TO [THE CHEST INSCRIBED] 'SHEKELS', IT GOES TO THE SHEKELS; [IF NEARER TO THE CHESTS INSCRIBED] 'FOR FREEWILL-OFFERINGS', IT GOES TO FREEWILL-OFFERINGS; IF MIDWAY, IT GOES TO FREEWILL-OFFERINGS.³ [IF MONEY WAS FOUND] BETWEEN [THE CHEST INSCRIBED] 'WOOD' AND [THE CHEST INSCRIBED] 'FRANKINCENSE' AND IT WAS NEARER TO [THE CHEST INSCRIBED] 'WOOD', IT GOES TO THE WOOD; [IF NEARER TO THE CHEST INSCRIBED] 'FRANKINCENSE', IT GOES TO FRANKINCENSE; IF MIDWAY, IT GOES TO FRANKINCENSE.⁴ [IF IT WAS FOUND] BETWEEN [THE CHEST INSCRIBED] 'BIRD-OFFERINGS' AND [THE CHEST INSCRIBED] 'YOUNG PIGEONS FOR BURNT-OFFERINGS' AND IT WAS NEARER TO [THE CHEST INSCRIBED] 'BIRD-OFFERINGS' IT GOES TO BIRD-OFFERINGS; [IF NEARER TO THE CHEST INSCRIBED] 'YOUNG PIGEONS FOR BURNT-OFFERINGS', IT GOES TO YOUNG PIGEONS FOR BURNT-OFFERINGS; IF MIDWAY, IT GOES TO YOUNG PIGEONS FOR BURNT-OFFERINGS.⁵ [IF IT WAS FOUND] BETWEEN COMMON [MONEY] AND [SECOND] TITHES [MONEY]⁶ AND IT WAS NEARER TO THE COMMON [MONEY], IT IS CONSIDERED COMMON [MONEY]; IF NEARER TO THE [SECOND] TITHES [MONEY], IT IS CONSIDERED [SECOND] TITHES [MONEY]; IF MIDWAY, IT IS CONSIDERED [SECOND] TITHES [MONEY]. THIS IS THE GENERAL RULE: SUCH MONEY IS ASSIGNED TO THAT WHICH IS NEARER TO IT, EVEN IF IT IS THEREBY MADE LESS IMPORTANT; BUT IF MIDWAY, IT IS ASSIGNED TO THAT WHICH IS THE MORE IMPORTANT.⁷

MISHNAH 2. IF MONEY WAS FOUND⁸ IN FRONT OF CATTLE DEALERS AT ANY TIME OF THE YEAR IT IS DEEMED TO BE [SECOND] TITHES [MONEY];⁹ [IF IT WAS FOUND] IN THE TEMPLE MOUNT IT IS DEEMED TO BE COMMON MONEY;¹⁰ [RUT IF IT WAS FOUND] IN JERUSALEM¹¹ DURING THE SEASON OF FESTIVALS¹² IT IS DEEMED TO BE [SECOND] TITHES [MONEY]. BUT ALL THE REST OF THE YEAR IT IS DEEMED TO BE COMMON [MONEY].¹³

MISHNAH 3. IF FLESH WAS FOUND IN THE TEMPLE COURT [AND IT WAS CUT UP IN]

LIMBS,¹⁴ [IT MUST BE TREATED AS BELONGING TO] BURNT-OFFERINGS; [BUT IF CUT UP IN ORDINARY] PIECES [IT MUST BE TREATED AS BELONGING TO] SIN-OFFERINGS.¹⁵ [IF FLESH WAS FOUND] IN JERUSALEM¹⁶ [IT MUST BE TREATED AS BELONGING TO] PEACE-OFFERINGS.¹⁷ IN EITHER CASE¹⁸ IT MUST BE LEFT TO BECOME DISFIGURED¹⁹ AND MUST THEN BE TAKEN AWAY TO THE PLACE OF BURNING. IF FOUND WITHIN THE BORDERS²⁰ [AND IT WAS CUT UP IN] LIMBS, [IT MUST BE TREATED AS] CARRION;²¹ [BUT IF CUT UP IN ORDINARY] PIECES, IT IS FIT FOR [FOOD].²² BUT [IF FOUND] DURING THE SEASON OF FESTIVALS, WHEN FLESH IS ABUNDANT,²³ IT IS FIT FOR [FOOD] EVEN WHEN CUT UP IN LIMBS.

MISHNAH 4. IF CATTLE WAS FOUND IN JERUSALEM AS FAR AS MIGDAL EDER,²⁴ AND WITHIN A LIKE DISTANCE ON ANY SIDE [OF JERUSALEM], MALES [MUST BE CONSIDERED AS BEING] BURNT-OFFERINGS, BUT FEMALES MUST BE CONSIDERED AS] PEACE-OFFERINGS.²⁵ R. JUDAH SAYS: IF THEY WERE FIT FOR THE PASSOVER-OFFERING,²⁶ [THEY MUST BE CONSIDERED AS] PASSOVER-OFFERINGS [WHEN FOUND] WITHIN THIRTY DAYS BEFORE THE FEAST [OF PASSOVER].²⁷

MISHNAH 5. AFORETIME THEY USED TO DISTRAIN²⁸ ANY ONE WHO HAD FOUND SUCH A [STRAY] ANIMAL, UNLESS HE ALSO OFFERED THE DRINK-OFFERINGS THEREOF. THEN MEN WOULD LEAVE THE ANIMAL AND RUN AWAY; SO THE COURT ORDAINED THAT THE DRINK-OFFERINGS THEREOF SHOULD BE OFFERED OUT OF PUBLIC FUNDS.

MISHNAH 6. R. SIMEON SAID: SEVEN THINGS THE COURT ORDAINED AND THAT WAS ONE OF THEM. [THE OTHERS WERE THE FOLLOWING:] IF A HEATHEN SENT A BURNT-OFFERING FROM THE LANDS BEYOND THE SEA AND WITH IT HE SENT THE DRINK-OFFERINGS²⁹ THEREOF, THEY ARE OFFERED OUT OF HIS OWN MEANS; BUT IF [HE DID] NOT [SEND THE DRINK-OFFERINGS THEREOF], THEY SHOULD BE OFFERED OUT OF PUBLIC FUNDS.³⁰ THUS [ALSO IN THE CASE OF] A PROSELYTE³¹ WHO HAD DIED AND LEFT SACRIFICES [TO BE OFFERED], THEN IF HE HAD ALSO LEFT THE DRINK-OFFERINGS THEREOF THEY ARE OFFERED OUT OF HIS OWN; BUT IF NOT, THEY SHOULD BE OFFERED OUT OF PUBLIC FUNDS.³⁰ IT WAS ALSO A CONDITION LAID DOWN BY THE COURT IN THE CASE OF A HIGH PRIEST WHO HAD DIED³² THAT HIS MEAL-OFFERINGS³³ SHOULD BE OFFERED OUT OF PUBLIC FUNDS.³⁰ R. JUDAH SAYS: [IT WAS OFFERED OUT] OF THE PROPERTY OF HIS HEIRS, AND HAD TO BE OFFERED OF THE WHOLE³⁴ [TENTH].

MISHNAH 7. [THEY FURTHER ORDAINED] CONCERNING THE SALT AND THE WOOD³⁵ THAT THE PRIESTS SHOULD MAKE USE THEREOF;³⁶ AND CONCERNING THE [RED] COW³⁷ THAT THE USE OF ITS ASHES SHOULD NOT INVOLVE THE GUILT OF SACRILEGE;³⁸ AND CONCERNING BIRD-OFFERINGS³⁹ WHICH HAD BECOME UNFIT [FOR SACRIFICE], THAT [OTHERS] SHOULD BE OFFERED [IN THEIR STEAD] OUT OF PUBLIC FUNDS. R. JOSE SAYS: [THE DEALER] WHO SUPPLIED THE BIRD-OFFERINGS WAS BOUND TO SUPPLY [AT HIS COST ALSO THOSE WHICH HAD TO BE OFFERED IN THE STEAD OF] THOSE WHICH HAD BECOME UNFIT.⁴⁰

(1) Cf. supra VI, 5 (p. 24).

(2) The presumption is that the money fell out of the chest nearest to it. This is deduced from Deut. XXI, 3; v. B.B. 23a.

(3) According to the rule laid down below, when the probabilities are evenly balanced, the money should be assigned to the holier of the two, which in this case is the chest of freewill-offerings, since its contents were spent entirely on burnt-offerings for the altar (supra VI, 6), whereas the contents of the chest of shekels were spent also on such less holy objects as the needs of the city of Jerusalem (supra IV, 2).

- (4) Because frankincense, which was an offering for the altar, was holier than the wood which merely served as fuel for the altar.
- (5) Which is the holier of the two, since one of the pair of bird-offerings was a sin-offering (cf. supra p. 3, n. 7), the flesh of which was eaten by the priests (Lev. VI, 19), whereas the burnt-offerings were all consumed by the fire of the altar.
- (6) Cf. supra p. 6, n. 5.
- (7) I.e., that which is holier.
- (8) In Jerusalem.
- (9) The presumption is that the money was lost by people who came to buy cattle for peace-offerings with their own second tithes money, or with the second tithes money left to them by their pilgrim friends when they returned home after the Festival. Here again the rule is followed that in case of doubt the money is to be assigned to the more hallowed object of the two.
- (10) Even during the Festival season. Though most of the money at the time is of second tithe, we assume that the money was lost before the Festival when common money is in ordinary circulation, v. n. 8.
- (11) Not in front of the cattle dealers.
- (12) When the city is full of pilgrims bringing second tithes money.
- (13) Because the streets of Jerusalem (as distinct from the Temple Mount, cf. n. 5) were swept daily, so that any second tithe money brought by the pilgrims would have been swept away. v. B.M. 26a.]
- (14) As prescribed for burnt-offerings in Tam. IV, 2 f.
- (15) Which were so cut up and divided among the priests.
- (16) Outside the Temple Court.
- (17) For these were the most frequent of the Lesser Holy offerings (קדשים קלים) which could be eaten in the Holy City outside the Temple Court; cf. Zeb. V, 7.
- (18) Whether found in the Temple Court or in the city. It cannot be eaten because it may have suffered some defilement.
- (19) It must be left untouched until the third day when such sacrificial flesh becomes 'Remnant' (נותר), and must be burnt, Lev. VII. 17. Cf. also Pes. VII, 9). It cannot, however, be burnt immediately when found, since it may never have suffered any defilement, and it is forbidden to burn sacrificial flesh which is still fit to be eaten.
- (20) Of the Land of Israel, i.e., outside Jerusalem. It is of course assumed that the majority of the inhabitants are Jews.
- (21) For so it was customary to dismember animals unfit for food and leave them to the dogs to tear at them; cf. Deut. XIV, 21.
- (22) One would not take the cutting up an animal in small pieces for dogs.
- (23) And is cut up in limbs for the Festival.
- (24) Cf. Gen. XXXV, 21; Micah IV, 8. It is situated south of Jerusalem on the Hebron road.
- (25) The finder must offer them as such; cf. supra p. 15, n. 7. Most cattle in Jerusalem and the vicinity were intended for sacrifices.
- (26) A male of the sheep or of the goats and one year old; cf. Ex. XII, 5.
- (27) For during that period such animals were mostly intended for the Passover offering.
- (28) His goods to pay for the necessary drink-offerings and meal-offerings; cf. supra p. 19, n. 4.
- (29) Viz. money to pay for them. The drink-offering itself which came from abroad could not be used, because it was considered unclean.
- (30) Out of the Shekel appropriation cf. p. 12, n. 4.
- (31) But in the case of an Israelite his heirs must pay for the drink-offerings.
- (32) And a successor had not yet been appointed.
- (33) The daily meal-offering, morning and evening, prescribed in Lev. VI, 12-16.
- (34) Whether it happened to be the morning or the evening meal-offering, the tenth of an epha was not to be divided as prescribed in Lev. ibid. 13.
- (35) That belong to the Sanctuary.
- (36) In connection with their consumption of the flesh of sacrifices.
- (37) Cf. Num. XIX, 1ff.
- (38) Cf. Lev. V, 14-16.
- (39) Bought by the Temple out of the money placed in the chest for bird-offerings by those on whom such an offering was an obligation; cf. supra p. 24, n. 9.
- (40) Just as the dealer had to make good other similar losses; cf. supra IV, 9.

Mishna - Mas. Shekalim Chapter 8

MISHNAH 1. ANY SPITTLE FOUND IN JERUSALEM¹ IS CLEAN² EXCEPT THAT WHICH IS [FOUND] IN THE UPPER MARKET;³ THUS R. MEIR. R. JOSE SAYS: AT OTHER TIMES OF THE YEAR⁴ [SPITTLE FOUND] IN THE MIDDLE⁵ [OF THE ROAD] IS UNCLEAR, WHILE [SPITTLE FOUND] AT THE SIDES⁶ [OF THE ROAD] IS CLEAN; BUT IN THE SEASON OF FESTIVALS⁷ [SPITTLE FOUND] IN THE MIDDLE [OF THE ROAD] IS CLEAN,⁸ WHILE [THAT WHICH IS FOUND] AT THE SIDES [OF THE ROAD] IS UNCLEAR; FOR SINCE [PERSONS WHO HAVE AN ISSUE] ARE FEW IN NUMBER, THEY BETAKE THEMSELVES [IN THE SEASON OF FESTIVALS] TO THE SIDES OF THE ROAD.⁹

MISHNAH 2. ALL VESSELS FOUND IN JERUSALEM¹⁰ IN THE WAY OF GOING DOWN TO THE PLACE OF IMMERSION¹¹ ARE UNCLEAR, [BUT THOSE FOUND] IN THE WAY OF GOING UP [FROM THE PLACE OF IMMERSION] ARE CLEAN; FOR THEY ARE NOT IN THE SAME CONDITION WHEN ON THE WAY GOING DOWN¹² [TO THE PLACE OF IMMERSION] AS ON THE WAY GOING UP¹³ [THEREFROM]; THUS R. MEIR. R. JOSE SAYS: THEY ARE ALL CLEAN,¹⁴ EXCEPT THE BASKET AND THE SHOVEL AND THE BONE CRUSHER¹⁵ WHICH ARE SPECIALLY CONNECTED WITH [WORK IN] BURIAL-PLACES.

MISHNAH 3. IF A [SLAUGHTERING] KNIFE WAS FOUND ON THE FOURTEENTH¹⁶ [OF NISAN] IT MAY BE USED FORTHWITH FOR SLAUGHTERING.¹⁷ [IF IT WAS FOUND] ON THE THIRTEENTH [OF NISAN] IT MUST BE IMMERSSED AGAIN¹⁸ [BEFORE USE]. BUT A CHOPPER,¹⁹ WHETHER [FOUND] ON THE FOURTEENTH OR ON THE THIRTEENTH, MUST BE IMMERSSED AGAIN [BEFORE USE]. IF THE FOURTEENTH FELL ON A SABBATH IT²⁰ MAY BE USED FOR SLAUGHTERING FORTH WITH;²¹ [IF FOUND] ON THE FIFTEENTH²² IT MAY ALSO BE USED FOR SLAUGHTERING FORTHWITH. IF [THE CHOPPER] WAS FOUND TIED TO A [SLAUGHTERING] KNIFE IT MAY BE TREATED AS THE KNIFE.²³

MISHNAH 4. IF THE VEIL²⁴ WAS DEFILED BY A DERIVED UNCLEANNESS,²⁵ IT IS IMMERSSED WITHIN²⁶ [THE PRECINCTS OF THE TEMPLE] AND BROUGHT IN AGAIN FORTHWITH; BUT IF IT WAS DEFILED BY A PRINCIPAL UNCLEANNESS,²⁵ IT MUST BE IMMERSSED OUTSIDE AND SPREAD OUT IN THE HEL.²⁷ IF IT WAS NEW IT WAS SPREAD OUT ON THE ROOF OF THE COLONNADE,²⁸ SO THAT THE PEOPLE MIGHT BEHOLD ITS FAIR WORKMANSHIP.

MISHNAH 5. RABBAN SIMEON THE SON OF GAMALIEL SAYS IN THE NAME OF R. SIMEON THE SON OF THE CHIEF [OF THE PRIESTS]:²⁹ THE VEIL WAS A HAND BREADTH IN THICKNESS AND WAS WOVEN ON SEVENTY-FOUR CORDS, EACH CORD MADE UP OF TWENTY-TWO THREADS. IT WAS FORTY CUBITS LONG AND TWENTY CUBITS BROAD, AND WAS MADE UP OF EIGHTY-TWO TIMES TEN THOUSAND.³⁰ TWO VEILS WERE MADE EVERY YEAR, AND THREE HUNDRED PRIESTS WERE NEEDED TO IMMERSSE IT.³¹

MISHNAH 6. IF FLESH OF THE MOST HOLY OFFERINGS WAS DEFILED, WHETHER BY A PRINCIPAL UNCLEANNESS³² OR BY A DERIVED UNCLEANNESS,³² WHETHER INSIDE OR OUTSIDE [THE PRECINCTS OF THE TEMPLE]. BETH SHAMMAI SAY: IT MUST ALL BE BURNT WITHIN,³³ EXCEPT WHEN DEFILED OUTSIDE BY A PRINCIPAL UNCLEANNESS. BUT BETH HILLEL SAY: IT MUST ALL BE BURNT OUTSIDE, EXCEPT THAT WHICH WAS DEFILED BY A DERIVED UNCLEANNESS WITHIN.

MISHNAH 7. R. ELIEZER SAYS: [FLESH³⁴ WHICH WAS DEFILED BY AN UNCLEANNESS, WHETHER INSIDE OR OUTSIDE [THE TEMPLE PRECINCTS], MUST BE BURNT WITHIN. R. AKIBA SAYS: WHERE IT WAS DEFIED THERE [ALSO] MUST IT BE BURNT.³⁵

MISHNAH 8. THE LIMBS OF THE DAILY³⁶ BURNT-OFFERING WERE PLACED ON THE HALF OF THE ASCENT³⁷ [TO THE ALTAR] DOWNWARDS ON THE WEST³⁸ SIDE, THOSE OF THE ADDITIONAL.³⁹ BURNT-OFFERING WERE PLACED ON THE HALF OF THE ASCENT DOWNWARDS ON THE EAST SIDE,⁴⁰ WHILE THOSE OF THE NEW MOON⁴¹ OFFERINGS WERE PLACED UNDER THE RIM⁴² OF THE ALTAR DOWNWARDS.

[THE LAWS OF] THE SHEKELS AND OF THE FIRST-FRUIT⁴³ HAVE FORCE ONLY DURING THE TIME OF THE EXISTENCE OF THE TEMPLE, BUT [THE LAWS OF] THE TITHE OF CORN⁴⁴ AND OF THE TITHE OF CATTLE⁴⁵ AND OF THE FIRSTBORN⁴⁶ ARE IN FORCE BOTH DURING THE TIME OF THE EXISTENCE OF THE TEMPLE AND WHEN THERE IS NO TEMPLE IN EXISTENCE. IF A MAN DEDICATED TO THE SANCTUARY SHEKELS AND FIRST-FRUIT WHEN THERE WAS NO TEMPLE IN EXISTENCE, THEY BECOME HOLY. R. SIMEON SAYS: IF HE SAID: 'THE FIRST-FRUIT BE HOLY,'⁴⁷ THEY ARE NOT HOLY.⁴⁸

(1) Where people were usually scrupulous in matters of purity. But outside Jerusalem, where people were not so scrupulous, all spittle found anywhere was declared by a preventive enactment of the Rabbis to be suspect of defilement: cf. Toh. IV, 5.

(2) It need not be suspected of being the spittle of a person who had an issue (cf. Lev. XV, 8), since persons with an issue formed an insignificant minority of the population of Jerusalem.

(3) This was frequented by heathen launderers and also by Jewish persons with an issue.

(4) When persons with a defilement were numerous.

(5) This was crowded by pedestrians.

(6) These were frequented by persons who were scrupulous about their purity and who shunned contact with the crowds in the middle of the road.

(7) When all who had a defilement sought to recover their purity, in order to be able to worship in the Temple.

(8) The crowd walking in the middle of the road may then be presumed to consist of people who had become free of defilement.

(9) So as not to cause a defilement to worshippers and pilgrims walking in the middle of the road.

(10) Outside Jerusalem all articles found anywhere were declared by a preventive enactment of the Rabbis to be suspect of defilement; cf. Toh. IV, 5; and supra n. 1.

(11) To be immersed for the purpose of purification; cf. Lev. XI, 32; XV, 17.

(12) When found on the way down they may be presumed to have been unclean vessels lost before immersion.

(13) When found on the way up they may be presumed to have been lost after immersion. So according to Maimonides. According to Rashi (Pes. 19b) the passage should be rendered as follows: 'For their way of going down (to the place of immersion) is not the same as their way of going up (therefrom),' i.e. things going down to immersion and things going up from immersion went by different routes.

(14) No suspicion need be entertained as to the purity of articles found in Jerusalem.

(15) (מריצה), from the root (רצי), an instrument for reducing the size of bones in order to get them into the basket for removal to the grave. So Maimonides. Others, after the T.J., a.l., explain it as some sort of conveyance or hand cart, from the root (רוי).

(16) The day of slaughtering of the Passover-offering; Ex. XII, 6.

(17) It may be presumed to have been purified for the slaughtering of the Passover-offering.

(18) Even though it may be presumed to have been immersed before by its previous owner. According to Maimonides it refers to the second sprinkling with the Ashes of Purification as prescribed in Num. XIX, 18-19, assuming that the previous owner had it sprinkled only once.

- (19) GR. , a large knife which can be used for slaughtering but is primarily designed for breaking bones, consequently it could not have been intended for use with the Passover-offering, of which no bones must be broken; cf Ex. XII, 46; Num. IX, 12. The probability, therefore, is that it had not been purified.
- (20) The chopper.
- (21) For as it is not permitted to purify vessels on the Sabbath, even a chopper may be presumed to have been purified before the fourteenth of Nisan.
- (22) The Festival day, on which purification was not permitted, so it must be presumed to have been purified before the Festival.
- (23) It may be used for slaughtering straightway, even if found on the fourteenth and not on a Sabbath.
- (24) Of the Temple, Ex. XXVI, 13ff.
- (25) Such as an unclean liquid; cf. 'Ed., Sonc. ed. p. 9 nn. 3, 4.
- (26) In the 'Sea of Solomon'; cf. I Kings VII, 23ff.
- (27) Or 'The Rampart', in the space between the Temple Court and the 'Soreg', or latticed fortifications; cf. Mid. II, 3. Some texts add: 'Because it needs (to wait for) the setting of the sun', before it can recover its purity; cf. Lev. XI, 3.
- (28) On the Temple Mount. From the Hel it could not be seen so well.
- (29) V. supra p. 14, n. 3.
- (30) Threads, or according to others, denars in value. Another reading is (רִיבוֹת) 'damsels', instead of (רִיבּוֹא) 'ten thousand'; i.e., it was woven by eighty-two young damsels.
- (31) When new and before being hung up; cf. Hag. III, 2. The comment of T.J. a.l. on these figures is: 'An exaggeration!' So Maimonides.
- (32) V. p. 34, n. 5.
- (33) Within the Temple Court in the place of Ashes (בֵּית הַדֶּשֶׁן), where the ashes of the altar were deposited; cf. Zeb. V, 2.
- (34) Of Most Holy offerings. No other defiled flesh was permitted to be burnt within the Temple Court.
- (35) Irrespective of the character if the source of defilement.
- (36) Cf. Num. XXVIII, 1-8. The limbs of the daily burnt-offering were not taken up to the altar direct but were first deposited on the ascent by one party of priests, selected by lot, and then another lot was cast for a second party to take them up from the ascent to the top of the altar; v. Yoma 25a and 26a.
- (37) Cf. supra p. 23, n. 13.
- (38) Some texts read 'on the east'.
- (39) For the Sabbath and Festivals; cf. Num. ibid. 9-10, 16ff.
- (40) Some texts read 'on the west'.
- (41) Num. ibid. 11-15.
- (42) Cf. Ex. XXVII, 5. [The reference is not to the rim itself but to a line on the ascent in direct level with the rim, Var. lec. On the rim of the altar above. The 'rim' in this case does not denote the one running about the middle of the altar, but the space on the top of the altar on its four sides for the treading of the priests' feet, v. Mid. III, 1.]
- (43) Ex. XXIII, 19; Deut. XXVI, 1ff.
- (44) Comprising First (Levite's) Tithes, Second Tithes (supra p. 6, n. 5).
- (45) Cf. supra p. 9, n. 4.
- (46) Cf. Num. XVIII, 15-18, etc.
- (47) I.e., he dedicated them to the Sanctuary (Maimonides).
- (48) [Because they are not his property to be dedicated to the Sanctuary. v. Tosaf. Yom Tob. Aliter: 'If he declares his fruit holy as first-fruit, they are not holy'. CHAPTER I

MISHNAH. IF ONE WARNS¹ HIS WIFE [NOT TO ASSOCIATE WITH A CERTAIN MAN]. R. ELIEZER SAYS: HE WARNS HER ON THE TESTIMONY OF TWO WITNESSES,² AND MAKES HER DRINK [THE WATER OF BITTERNESS] ON THE TESTIMONY OF ONE WITNESS³ OR HIS PERSONAL TESTIMONY. R. JOSHUA SAYS: HE WARNS HER ON THE TESTIMONY OF TWO AND MAKES HER DRINK ON THE TESTIMONY OF TWO.

HOW DOES HE WARN HER? IF HE SAYS TO HER IN THE PRESENCE OF TWO, DO NOT CONVERSE WITH THAT MAN, AND SHE CONVERSED WITH HIM, SHE IS STILL PERMITTED TO HER HUSBAND⁴ AND PERMITTED TO PARTAKE OF THE HEAVE-OFFERING.⁵ SHOULD SHE HAVE ENTERED A PRIVATE PLACE WITH HIM AND STAYED WITH HIM A TIME SUFFICIENT FOR MISCONDUCT TO HAVE OCCURRED, SHE IS FORBIDDEN TO HER HUSBAND⁶ AND FORBIDDEN TO PARTAKE OF THE HEAVE-OFFERING. IF [HER HUSBAND] DIED,⁷ SHE PERFORMS THE CEREMONY OF HALIZAH⁸ BUT CANNOT CONTRACT A LEVIRATE MARRIAGE.

GEMARA. Now that the Tanna has finished [Tractate] Nazir, what is his reason for continuing with [Tractate] Sotah?⁹ — It is according to the view of Rabbi; for it has been taught: Rabbi says, Why does the section of the Nazirite adjoin that of the suspected woman?¹⁰ To tell you that whoever witnesses a suspected woman in her disgrace should withhold himself from wine.¹¹ But [the Tanna in the Mishnah] should treat of [Tractate] Sotah first and afterwards that of Nazir!¹² — Since he treated of [Tractate] Kethuboth [marriage-settlements] and dealt with the theme, 'He who imposes in vow upon his wife',¹³ he next treated of [Tractate] Nedarim [Vows]; and since he treated of [Tractate] Nedarim, he proceeded to treat of [Tractate] Nazir which is analogous to Nedarim,¹⁴ and then continues with Sotah for the reason given by Rabbi.

IF ONE WARNS HIS WIFE. As an accomplished fact¹⁵ it is allowable, but as something still to be done it is not. Consequently our Tanna holds that it is forbidden to give a warning.¹⁶

R. Samuel b. R. Isaac said: When Resh Lakish began to expound [the subject of] Sotah, he spoke thus: They only pair a woman with a man according to his deeds;¹⁷ as it is said: For the sceptre of wickedness shall not rest upon the lot of the righteous.¹⁸ Rabbah b. Bar Hanah said in the name of R. Johanan: It is as difficult to pair them as was the division of the Red Sea; as it is said: God setteth the solitary in families: He bringeth out the prisoners into prosperity!¹⁹ But it is not so; for Rab Judah has said in the name of Rab: Forty days before the creation of a child, a Bath Kol²⁰ issues forth and proclaims, The daughter of A is for B;²¹ the house of C is for D; the field of E is for F! — There is no contradiction, the latter dictum referring to a first marriage and the former to a second marriage.

R. ELIEZER SAYS, HE WARNS HER ON THE TESTIMONY OF TWO WITNESSES etc. So far only do [R. Eliezer and R. Joshua] differ, viz. in the matter of warning and seclusion, but in the matter of misconduct [they agree] that one witness is believed.²² We similarly learn in the Mishnah: If one witness says: I saw that she committed misconduct, she does not drink the water.²³ Whence is it derived according to Torah-law that one witness is believed? As our Rabbis taught: And there be no witness against her²⁴ — the text refers to two witnesses.²⁵ But perhaps it is not so and even one [suffices]! There is a teaching to declare, One witness shall not rise up against a man.²⁶

(1) Lit., 'is jealous of, i.e., he gives her a warning because he feels jealous.

(2) There must be two witnesses that he had warned her in their presence; otherwise he cannot require her to drink the water of bitterness.

- (3) That she had secluded herself with the man, after due warning had been given.
- (4) Lit., 'to her house'. Marital relations may continue.
- (5) If her husband is a priest. The heave-offering could be eaten by any member of the priest's household who was ritually clean; Num. XVIII, 8ff.
- (6) Forthwith, before the water is drunk.
- (7) Before she had undergone the ordeal.
- (8) V. Glos.
- (9) What is the association of ideas between the subject of the Nazirite and the woman suspected of infidelity?
- (10) In Num. V and VI.
- (11) Immoderate use of wine is a source of immorality. v. Ber. 63a.
- (12) That being the order in which they are dealt with in Scripture.
- (13) The opening words of Keth. VII.
- (14) A man becomes a nazirite by imposing a vow upon himself.
- (15) This is derived from the addition of the definite article, the literal sense being: he who warns, i.e., he who has given a warning.
- (16) Different views are taken on this question; v. p. 8.
- (17) Only if his actions are righteous does he have a faithful wife.
- (18) Ps. CXXV, 3.
- (19) Ibid. LXVIII, 7. The first clause refers to marriage-making, the second to the release of prisoners. Therefore the two are declared identical as regards difficulty.
- (20) V. Glos.
- (21) Since the marriage is ordained even before birth, it cannot be dependent upon a man's conduct.
- (22) [After due warning had been given and seclusion taken place]. And without drinking the water she leaves her husband's house and does not receive what would normally have been due to her under the marriage-contract.
- (23) Infra 31a.
- (24) Num. V, 13.
- (25) I.e., wherever Scripture uses the word witness, even in the singular, it denotes two.
- (26) Deut. XIX, 15.

Talmud - Mas. Sotah 2b

From the fact that it is stated: '[A] witness¹ shall not rise up against a man', do I not know that one is intended? Why is there a teaching to declare 'one witness'?² This establishes the rule that wherever it is stated 'witness', it signifies two unless the text specifies 'one'; and [in the case under discussion] the All-Merciful declares that when there are not two witnesses against her but only one, and she has not been violated,³ she is forbidden [to her husband].⁴ Now the reason for that⁵ is because it is written: One witness shall not rise up against a man. Were it however not so [stated], I might have supposed that 'witness' in the verse relating to a suspected woman means one.⁶ But if there be not even one witness against her, why should she then be prohibited [to her husband]? — [The verse: One witness etc.] is necessary, because otherwise it might have occurred to me to suppose that 'there be no witness against her' means, he is not believed against her. He is not believed against her! What, then, [does the text] want unless there are two witnesses?⁷ Let the Scriptural text be silent on the point [and not mention it at all], since the rule could have been deduced by analogy from the occurrence of the word *dabar*⁸ in the verse relating to civil actions, and I would know that it applies to every case of testimony mentioned in the Torah! — It was necessary [for Scripture to have mentioned it], because otherwise it might have occurred to me to suppose that the matter is different in the case of a suspected woman inasmuch as there was some basis for the charge, seeing that he had warned her and she had been secluded [with the man]; consequently one witness should be believed against her. But how is it possible to say [that if the Torah had not specified that 'witness' always means two, I might have supposed that the intention of 'there be no witness against her' was] that he is not believed against her and she is permitted to her husband? Surely from what is written: 'and she had not been violated',⁹ it is implied that she is forbidden to him! It was necessary [for Scripture to have mentioned this], because otherwise it might have occurred to me to suppose that [the evidence against her] is not believed unless there are two witnesses,¹⁰ and [that the verse means] that she had not been violated on the evidence of two witnesses. We are consequently taught [that one witness is believed].

R. JOSHUA SAYS: HE WARNS HER ON THE TESTIMONY OF TWO etc. What is R. Joshua's reason? Scripture states 'against her' — I.e., 'against her' [in the matter of misconduct]¹¹ but not in the matter of warning, 'against her' [in the matter of misconduct] but not in the matter of seclusion. R. Eliezer, [on the other hand] says: 'Against her' [in the matter of misconduct] but not in the matter of warning only. Perhaps, however, 'against her' does mean, and not in the matter of seclusion! — Seclusion is compared to 'defilement' [misconduct], for it is written, and he kept close and she be defiled.¹² But warning also is compared to 'defilement', for it is written, and he be jealous of his wife and she be defiled!¹³ — The All-Merciful excluded this by the phrase 'against her'.¹⁴ But what leads you to this conclusion?¹⁵ — It is obvious that seclusion is more serious [than warning] because she is forthwith prohibited to her husband as with 'defilement'. On the contrary, warning is more serious since it is the root cause [of her seclusion rendering her forbidden to her husband]!¹⁶ — If there was no seclusion, would there have been any warning?¹⁷ But if there was no warning, what effect would seclusion have? — Nevertheless seclusion is the more serious since it is the beginning of 'defilement'.

Our Mishnah does not agree with the following Tanna. For it has been taught: R. Jose son of R. Judah says in the name of R. Eliezer: He who warns his wife does so on the testimony of one witness or his personal testimony, and makes her drink [the water of bitterness] on the testimony of two witnesses. The Sages replied: According to the view of R. Jose son of R. Judah, there is no purpose in the matter.¹⁸ What is the reason of R. Jose son of R. Judah? — Scripture states 'against her', i.e., 'against her' [in the matter of misconduct] but not in the matter of seclusion. Perhaps, however, 'against her' means: and not in the matter of warning? — Warning is compared to 'defilement', for it is written, and he be jealous of his wife and she be defiled. But seclusion is also compared to 'defilement', for it is written, and he kept close and she be defiled? — That refers to a length of time sufficient for 'defilement' to have occurred.¹⁹

[It was stated above:] 'The Sages replied: According to the view of R. Jose son of R. Judah, there is no purpose in the matter'. What does this mean? — There may be times when he did not warn her and he claims that he did warn her.²⁰ Is there, then, according to our Mishnah any purpose in the matter, since there may be times when she had not been secluded with the man and the husband claims that she had been secluded?²¹ — R. Isaac b. Joseph said in the name of R. Johanan, [Read] also according to the view of R. Jose son of R. Judah, there is no purpose in the matter. 'Also according to the view of R. Jose son of R. Judah' [you say]; is there, then, no question with respect to our Mishnah? On the contrary, according to our Mishnah there is foundation [for the charge], but in the other case [the view of R. Jose son of R. Judah] there may be no foundation!²² — But if the teaching is reported, it must be in this form: R. Isaac b. Joseph said in the name of R. Johanan: 'According to the view of R. Jose son of R. Judah, and also according to our Mishnah, there is no purpose in the matter.'

R. Hanina of Sura said: Nowadays a man should not say to his wife, 'Do not be secluded with So-and-so', lest we decide according to R. Jose son of R. Judah who said: A warning [is effective] if given on [the husband's] personal testimony. If she then secluded herself with the man, since we have not now the water for a suspected woman to test her, the husband forbids her to himself for all time.

Resh Lakish said: What is the meaning of the term kinnui?²³ A matter which causes hatred [Kin'ah] between her and others. Consequently he holds that the warning can be on [the husband's] personal testimony; and since not everybody knows that he gave her a warning and they say: 'What has happened that she holds herself aloof?' they will proceed to cause hatred against her. R. Jemar b. Shelemia said in the name of Abaye: [Kinnui means] a matter which causes hatred between husband and wife. Consequently he holds that the warning must be on the testimony of two witnesses and everybody is aware that he gave her a warning,²⁴ and it is he who proceeds to cause hatred against her.

(1) And not witnesses.

(2) The word one is superfluous if a single witness is intended, since it would have been sufficient to state a witness.

(3) But consented to the act. Num. V, 13. The English Version translates the verb she be not taken in the act; but the Rabbis understood it in the sense that she was not forced to misconduct and was a consenting party. Cf. the use of the same verb in Deut. XXII, 28. If she had been violated, she was exempt from the ordeal.

(4) Infra 31b. [This proves that in the matter of misconduct one witness is believed, as otherwise whence is it known that she was not violated?]

(5) For maintaining that the term witness' in the case of the Sotah denotes two.

(6) 'And there be no witness against her' means not even one.

(7) What is the purpose of the words if the meaning of there be no witness indicates only one and that his evidence is not accepted?

(8) In connection with infidelity the text has he hath found some unseemly matter (dabar) in her (Deut. XXIV, 1), and in connection with civil actions At the mouth of two witnesses, or at the mouth of three witnesses, shall a matter (dabar) be established (ibid. XIX, 15). By the rule of Gezerah Shawah, analogy of expression, the principle of the latter with regard to the number of witnesses required is also applied to the former.

(9) Therefore it is maintained that misconduct has occurred with her consent.

(10) In a charge of misconduct.

(11) One witness is sufficient; but for warning and seclusion two are necessary.

(12) Num. V, 13.

(13) Ibid. 14.

(14) The phrase 'against her' was explained above as relating only to misconduct.

(15) That 'against her' excludes the idea that warning is to be compared to misconduct, and that only seclusion is to be likened to it.

(16) Without previous warning she would not be prohibited to her husband because of seclusion.

(17) There must have been seclusion to cause jealousy and consequently a warning.

(18) In requiring the husband's personal testimony, since, as the Gemara will explain, it may be false.

(19) So that if the time of seclusion was insufficient, she is not required to drink the water.

(20) So what purpose is there in requiring the husband's unsupported evidence?

(21) The Mishnah compels the woman to drink the water on the unsupported evidence of the husband.

(22) According to the Mishnah there must have been warning on the testimony of two witnesses, so there is some foundation for the charge; but according to R. Jose the husband can give her warning on his uncorroborated testimony which might be groundless.

(23) That is the term used in Num. V, 14, 'he be jealous'.

(24) Since the witnesses are likely to talk of it to others.

Talmud - Mas. Sotah 3a

Conclude that they hold that it is forbidden to give a warning;¹ but according to him who says that it is permissible to give a warning, what is the meaning of Kinnui? — R. Nahman b. Isaac said: Kinnui means nothing but 'warning;' and thus Scripture states: Then the Lord warned [wa-yekna] his land.²

It has been taught: R. Meir used to say: If a person commits a transgression in secret, the Holy One, Blessed be He, proclaims it against him in public; as it is said: And the spirit of jealousy came upon him;³ and the verb 'abar [came upon] means nothing but 'proclaiming', as it is said: And Moses gave commandment, and they caused it to be proclaimed throughout the camp.⁴ Resh Lakish said: A person does not commit a transgression unless a spirit of folly [shetuth] enters into him; as it is said: If any man's wife go aside.⁵ [The word is] written [so that it can be read] sishteh.⁶

The School of R. Ishmael taught: Why does the Torah believe one witness in the case of a suspected woman? Because there was some basis for the charge, seeing that he had warned her and she had secluded herself with the man, and one witness testifies that she had 'defiled' [misconducted] herself. R. Papa said to Abaye, But the warning is mentioned in the text after the seclusion and misconduct?⁷ — He replied to him, We'abar [means] there had already come upon him.⁸ But can that interpretation be also applied to, And every armed man of you will pass over?⁹ — In that passage, since it is written: And the land will be subdued before the Lord, then afterward ye shall return,¹⁰ it follows that the reference is to the future; but here, if it should enter your mind that we follow the order of the text [and we'abar signifies 'will come'], of what use is a warning after misconduct and seclusion had taken place?

The School of R. Ishmael taught: A man does not warn his wife unless a spirit¹¹ enters into him; as it is said: 'And the spirit of jealousy came upon him and he be jealous of his wife'. What is the meaning [of the word] 'spirit'? — The Rabbis declare, It is a spirit of impurity;¹² but R. Ashi declares, It is a spirit of purity.¹³ Reasonable is the view of him who declares that it is a spirit of purity, because it was taught: and he be jealous of his wife — this is voluntary¹⁴ in the opinion of R. Ishmael; but R. Akiba says: It is obligatory. It is well if you say that it means a spirit of purity, then everything is right; but if you say that it means a spirit of impurity, is it voluntary or obligatory for a man to introduce a spirit of impurity into himself!

[To turn to] the main text: And he be jealous of his wife — this is voluntary in the opinion of R. Ishmael; but R. Akiba says: It is obligatory. For her he may defile himself¹⁵ — this is voluntary in the opinion of R. Ishmael; but R. Akiba says: It is obligatory. Of them shall ye take your bondmen for ever¹⁶ — this is voluntary in the opinion of R. Ishmael; but R. Akiba says: It is obligatory. R. Papa said to Abaye — others declare it was R. Mesharsheya who said to Raba: Is this to say that R. Ishmael and R. Akiba differ in this way throughout the Torah, one maintaining that [a precept] is voluntary and the other that it is obligatory? — He replied, They only differ here over texts: And he be jealous of his wife — it is voluntary in the opinion of R. Ishmael; but R. Akiba says: It is obligatory. What is the reason of R. Ishmael? — He holds the same view as that of the following teacher. It has been taught: R. Eliezer b. Jacob says: Since the Torah declares, Thou shalt not hate thy brother in thine heart,¹⁷ it is possible to think that this applies also in such a circumstance;¹⁸ therefore there is a text to say: And the spirit of jealousy came upon him and he be jealous of his wife.¹⁹ And [what is the reason of] R. Akiba? — The word 'jealous' occurs a second time in the verse.²⁰ And [how does] R. Ishmael [explain the repetition of jealous]? — Since it was necessary to write, And she be defiled and afterwards and she be not defiled, the Torah wrote and he be jealous of his wife.²¹ This is in agreement with the teaching of the School of R. Ishmael; for it was taught in the School of R. Ishmael; Wherever a Scriptural passage is repeated, it is only repeated because of some new point contained therein. [Similarly] 'For her he may defile himself — this is voluntary in the opinion of R. Ishmael; but R. Akiba says: It is obligatory. What is the reason of R. Ishmael? — Since it is written: Speak unto the priests the sons of Aaron and say unto them, There shall none defile himself for the dead among his people,²² it was likewise necessary to write, For her he may defile himself. And [from where does] R. Akiba [learn that a priest may so defile himself]? — He derives it from, Except for his kin;²³ what then is the purpose of, For her he should defile himself? [It is to indicate that] it is obligatory. And [how does] R. Ishmael [explain the addition of these words]? — 'For her' he may defile himself but not for any of her limbs.²⁴

(1) Because they explain Kinnui in the sense of hatred, and it is not allowed to create hatred.

Talmud - Mas. Sotah 3b

[What reply does] R. Akiba [make to this explanation]? — If that were the sole intention, the All-Merciful should have written 'for her' and then stop; what is the purpose of the words 'he should defile himself? Deduce therefrom.¹ [How does] R. Ishmael [meet this argument]? — Since the Torah wrote 'for her', it likewise wrote 'he may defile himself this is in agreement with the teaching of the School of R. Ishmael; for it was taught in the School of R. Ishmael: Wherever a Scriptural passage is repeated, it is only repeated because of some new point contained therein. [And similarly,] 'Of them shall ye take your bondmen for ever² — this is voluntary in the opinion of R. Ishmael; but R. Akiba says: It is obligatory. What is the reason of R. Ishmael? — Since it is written: Thou shalt save alive nothing that breatheth,³ it was likewise necessary to write, 'Of them shall ye take your bondmen for ever', in order to indicate that if a man belonging to any other Gentile people has intercourse with a Canaanite woman⁴ and begets a son by her, it is permissible to purchase him as a slave. For it has been taught: Whence is it that if a man belonging to any other Gentile people has intercourse with a Canaanite woman and begets a son by her, it is permissible to purchase him as a slave? There is a text to declare, Moreover of the children of the strangers that do sojourn among you, of them shall ye buy.⁵ It is possible to think that also if a Canaanite had intercourse with a woman belonging to any other Gentile people and he begets a son by her, it is permissible to purchase him as a slave; therefore there is a text to declare, Which they have begotten in your land⁶ — from those born in your land⁷ and not from those who dwell in your land.⁸ And [from where does] R. Akiba [learn this rule]? — He derives it from, 'Of them shall ye buy'; what then is the purpose of, 'Of them ye shall take your bondmen for ever'? [It indicates that] it is obligatory. And [how does] R. Ishmael [explain the addition of these words]? — 'Of them' [he may purchase] but not of your brethren. [From where does] R. Akiba [derive this rule]? — It is deduced from the mention of 'your brethren' at the end of the verse: But over your brethren the children of Israel ye shall not rule, one over another, with rigour.⁹ [How does] R. Ishmael [meet this argument]? — Since the Torah wrote 'But over your brethren', it likewise wrote 'of them'. This is in agreement with the teaching of the School of R. Ishmael; for it was taught in the School of R. Ishmael: Wherever a Scriptural passage is repeated, it is only repeated because of some new point contained therein.

R. Hisda said: Immorality in a house is like a worm in the sesame plant. Further said R. Hisda: Anger in a house is like a worm in the sesame plant. Both these statements refer to a woman, but in the case of a man there is no objection.¹⁰ Further said R. Hisda, At first, before Israel sinned [against morality], the Shechinah abode with each individual; as it is said: For the Lord thy God walketh in the midst of thy camp.¹¹ When they sinned, the Shechinah departed from them; as it is said: That he see no unclean thing in thee and turn away from thee.¹²

R. Samuel b. Nahmani said in the name of R. Jonathan: Whoever performs one precept in this world, it precedes him for the world to come; as it is said: And thy righteousness shall go before thee;¹³ and whoever commits one transgression in this world, it clings to him and precedes him for the Day of Judgment, as it is said: The paths of their way are turned aside; they go up into the waste and perish.¹⁴ R. Eleazar says: It attaches itself to him like a dog; as it is said: He hearkened not unto her, to lie by her, or to be with her¹⁵ — to lie by her in this world, or to be with her in the world to come.

We learn elsewhere: It is a proper conclusion that if the first evidence [that the woman had secluded herself with the man], which does not prohibit her [to her husband] for all time,¹⁶ is not established by fewer than two witnesses, is it not right that the final evidence [that she had misconducted herself] which prohibits her to him for all time, should not be established by fewer than two witnesses! Therefore there is a text to state, ‘And there be no witness against her’, [implying that], whatever [evidence] there may be against her [is believed, even if it be only one witness]. And with respect to the first evidence [about her seclusion with the man, that one witness suffices may be argued by] a fortiori reasoning as follows: If the final evidence [regarding misconduct], which prohibits her to her husband for all time, is established by one witness, is it not proper that the first evidence, which does not prohibit her to him for all time, should be established by one witness! Therefore there is a text to state, Because he hath found some unseemly matter in her,¹⁷ and elsewhere it states: At the mouth of two witnesses, or at the mouth of three witnesses shall a matter be established;¹⁸ as the ‘matter’ mentioned in this latter case must be confirmed by the testimony of two witnesses, so also here [in the case of the suspected woman] the ‘matter’ must be confirmed by the testimony of two witnesses.¹⁹ Is this deduction to be drawn from the words, ‘Because he hath found some unseemly matter in her’? It ought to be derived from ‘against her’ — i.e., ‘against her’ [in the matter of misconduct] but not in the matter of warning, ‘against her’ [in the matter of misconduct] but not in the matter of seclusion!²⁰ — He also says similarly²¹ [and his teaching is to be cited as follows]: Therefore there is a text to state ‘against her’ [in the matter of misconduct] but not in the matter of warning, ‘against her’ [in the matter of misconduct] but not in the matter of seclusion; and whence is it that merely in a case of misconduct, where there had been no warning or seclusion one witness is not believed? It is stated here, ‘Because he hath found some unseemly matter in her’, and elsewhere it states: ‘At the mouth of two witnesses, or at the mouth of three witnesses, shall a matter be established’; as in the ‘matter’ mentioned in the latter case two witnesses are required, so also here [where there has been misconduct without warning and seclusion] two witnesses are required. Our Rabbis have taught: Which is the ‘first testimony’? Evidence of seclusion, and the ‘final testimony’ is evidence of ‘defilement’ [misconduct].

And how long is the duration in the matter of seclusion? Sufficient for misconduct, i.e., sufficient for coition, i.e., sufficient for sexual contact, i.e., sufficient for a person to walk round a date-palm. Such is the view of R. Ishmael; R. Eliezer says: Sufficient for preparing a cup of wine;¹ R. Joshua says: Sufficient to drink it; Ben Azzai says: Sufficient to roast an egg; R. Akiba says: Sufficient to swallow it; R. Judah b. Bathyra says: Sufficient to swallow three eggs one after the other; R. Eleazar b. Jeremiah says: Sufficient for a weaver to knot a thread; Hanin b. Phineas says: Sufficient for a woman to extend her hand to her mouth to remove a chip of wood [from between the teeth]; Pelemon says: Sufficient for her to extend her hand to a basket and take a loaf therefrom. Although there is no proof for this [last opinion] there is an indication, viz., For on account of a harlot, to a loaf of bread.² What is the purpose of all these definitions? — They are necessary; because if we were only taught sufficient for misconduct, I would have thought that it meant sufficient time for her misconduct and her submission;³ therefore it is defined as sufficient for coition.⁴ If, however, it were only taught sufficient for coition, I would have thought that it meant sufficient time for completed coition; therefore it is defined as sufficient for sexual contact. If, further, we had only been taught sufficient for sexual contact, I would have thought that it meant sufficient time for sexual contact and her submission; therefore it is defined as sufficient for misconduct. And how much is the time sufficient for sexual contact? Sufficient for a person to walk round a date-palm.

In contradiction of the above [I quote the following]: And be kept close⁵ — but how long is the duration in the matter of seclusion we have not heard. Since, however, it states 'and she be defiled', deduce that it is time sufficient for misconduct, i.e., sufficient for coition, i.e., sufficient for sexual contact, i.e., sufficient for a date-palm to rebound.⁶ Such is the view of R. Eliezer; R. Joshua says: Sufficient for preparing a cup of wine; Ben Azzai says: Sufficient to drink it; R. Akiba says: Sufficient to roast an egg; R. Judah b. Bathyra says: Sufficient to swallow it.⁷ Now it is assumed that walking round a date-palm and the rebound of a date-palm are identical [in length of time, and the question thus arises:] R. Ishmael said above, 'Sufficient for a person to walk round a date-palm', and R. Eliezer disagreed with him; and here R. Eliezer says: 'Sufficient for a date-palm to rebound'! — Abaye said: 'Walking round' means on foot, and 'rebound' means by the force of the wind. R. Ashi asked: How is 'rebound' to be understood? Does it mean that the palm is blown in one direction and then in its opposite, or perhaps that it is blown in one direction and then in its opposite and finally returns to its original position? — The question remains unanswered.

R. Eliezer said above: ‘Sufficient for preparing a cup of wine’, and here he says: ‘Sufficient for a date-palm to rebound’! — They are alike in duration. R. Joshua said above, ‘Sufficient to drink it’, and here he says: ‘Sufficient for preparing a cup of wine’! — Say [that the correct version is], Sufficient for preparing a cup of wine and drinking it. But why not say rather that they are alike in duration? — If so, he would agree with R. Eliezer's view.⁸ Ben Azzai said above ‘Sufficient to roast an egg’, and here he says: ‘Sufficient to drink [a cup of wine]’! — They are alike in duration. R. Akiba said above, ‘Sufficient to swallow [a roasted egg]’, and here he says: ‘Sufficient to roast an egg’! — Say [that the correct version is], Sufficient to roast an egg and swallow it. But why not say rather that they are alike in duration? — If so, he would agree with Ben Azzai's view. R. Judah b. Bathyra said above, ‘Sufficient to swallow three eggs one after the other’, and here he says: ‘Sufficient to swallow [one roasted egg]’! — He spoke in accordance with the view of R. Akiba who said that we fix as the duration a length of time sufficient to roast and swallow an egg, [and with reference to this he said,] ‘speak rather only of the duration of swallowing’, that is ‘sufficient time to swallow three eggs one after the other’, for that is the same as roasting and swallowing [one egg].⁹

‘R. Eleazar b. Jeremiah says: Sufficient for a weaver to knot a thread’. R. Ashi asked: Does this mean two ends which are distant or near?¹⁰ — The question remains unanswered.

‘Hanin b. Phineas said: Sufficient for a woman to extend her hand to her mouth to remove a chip of wood’. R. Ashi asked: Does this mean wedged tightly [between the teeth] or not? — The question remains unanswered.

‘Pelemo said: Sufficient for her to extend her hand to a basket and take a loaf therefrom’. R. Ashi asked: Is it [a loaf] which is wedged in tightly or not, a new or old [basket],¹¹ a hot or cold [loaf],¹²

(6) After having been bent by the wind.

(7) Tosef. Sot. I, 2.

(8) That cannot be, because he gives a different definition, and so it is impossible to think them alike in duration.

(9) [Why introduce at all the act of roasting, seeing that the act of swallowing by itself can afford a suitable standard for defining the duration?]

(10) I.e., does it include the time spent in bringing the threads together as well as tying them?

(11) In a new basket the ends of straws protrude and catch in the loaves, so that it takes longer to get one out.

(12) A warm loaf has to be drawn out with greater care and therefore takes longer.

wheaten or of barley,¹ soft or hard-baked? — The question remains unanswered.

R. Isaac son of R. Joseph said in the name of R. Johanan: Each of the teachers defined the duration [of coition] from his own experience. But they included Ben Azzai who was unmarried! — If you wish I can say that he had married and separated [from his wife],² or that he had heard it from his master, or that The secret of the Lord is with them that fear him.³

R. ‘Awira expounded sometimes in the name of R. Ammi and at other times in the name of R. Assi: Whoever eats bread without previously washing the hands is as though he had intercourse with a harlot ; as it is said , For on account of a harlot, to a loaf of bread.⁴ Raba said: [On that interpretation] the verse, ‘For on account of a harlot, to a loaf of bread’ should have read: ‘On account of a loaf of bread, to a harlot'! But, said Raba, [the meaning is:] Whoever has intercourse with a harlot will in the end go seeking a loaf of bread.

R. Zerika said in the name of R. Eleazar: Whoever makes light of washing the hands [before and after a meal] will be uprooted from the world. R. Hiyya b. Ashi said in the name of Rab: With the first washing [before the meal] it is necessary to lift the hands up; with the latter washing [after the meal] it is necessary to lower the hands. There is a similar teaching: Who washes his hands [before the meal] must lift them up lest the water pass beyond the joint,⁵ flow back and render them unclean. R. Abbahu says: Whoever eats bread without first wiping his hands is as though he eats unclean food; as it is stated: And the Lord said: Even thus shall the children of Israel eat their bread unclean.⁶

And⁷ what means, And the adulteress hunteth for the precious life? — R. Hiyya b. Abba said in the name of R. Johanan: Every man in whom is haughtiness of spirit will in the end stumble through an [unfaithful] married woman; as it is said: 'And the adulteress hunteth for the precious life'. Raba said: [On that interpretation] the word 'precious' should have been 'haughty'! Furthermore the verse should have read, [The haughty soul] hunteth [the adulteress]! But, said Raba, [the meaning is:] Whoever has intercourse with a married woman, even though he had studied Torah, of which it is written: It is more precious than rubies,⁸ i.e., above a High Priest who enters into the innermost part of the Sanctuary, she will hunt him to the judgment of Gehinnom.⁹ R. Johanan said in the name of R. Simeon b. Yohai: Every man in whom is haughtiness of spirit is as though he worships idols; it is written here, Every one that is proud in heart is an abomination to the Lord,¹⁰ and it is written elsewhere, Thou shalt not bring an abomination into thine house.¹¹ R. Johanan himself said: He is as though he had denied the fundamental principle;¹² as it is said: Thine heart be lifted up and thou forget the Lord thy God, etc.¹³ R. Hama b. Hanina said: He is as though he had broken all the laws of sexual morality;¹⁴ it is written here, Every one that is proud in heart is an abomination to the Lord, and it is written elsewhere, For all these abominations, etc.¹⁵ 'Ulla said: He is as though he had erected an idolatrous altar; as it is said: Cease ye from man whose breath is in his nostrils;¹⁶ for wherein [bammeh] is he to be accounted of?¹⁷ — read not bammeh but bamah [an idolatrous altar].

What means, Hand to hand, he shall not escape punishment?¹⁸ Rab said: Whoever has intercourse with a married woman, though he proclaim the Holy One, blessed be He, to be Possessor of heaven and earth as did our father Abraham, of whom it is written: I have lift up mine hand unto the Lord, God Most High, Possessor of heaven and earth,¹⁹ he will not escape the punishment of Gehinnom. The students of the School of R. Shila objected: [On that interpretation] the phrase 'Hand to hand etc.' should have read: 'Of my [God's] hand will not escape punishment'! But, said they of the School of R. Shila, [the meaning is:] Though he received the Torah as did our teacher Moses, of whom it is written: At his right hand was a fiery law unto them,²⁰ he will not escape the punishment of Gehinnom. R. Johanan objected: [On that interpretation] the phrase 'Hand to hand' should have read 'Hand from hand'!²¹ But, said R. Johanan,

[the meaning is:] Though he practise charity in secret,¹ concerning which it is written: 'A gift in secret pacifieth anger,² he will not escape the punishment of Gehinnom. Whence is there a prohibition for the haughty of spirit? — Raba said in the name of Ze'iri: Hear ye, and give ear; be not proud.³ R. Nahman b. Isaac said: [It is derived] from this passage, Thine heart be lifted up, and thou forget the Lord thy God,⁴ and it is written: Beware lest thou forget the Lord thy God.⁵ This is in accord with what R. Abin said in the name of R. Elai; for R. Abin said in the name of R. Elai: Wherever it is stated 'Beware' 'lest' and 'Do not' the reference is to a prohibition.

R. 'Awira expounded, sometimes he said it in the name of R. Assi and at other times in the name of R. Ammi: Every man in whom is haughtiness of spirit will in the end be reduced in rank; as it is said: They are exalted, there will be reduction of status;⁶ and lest you think that they remain in existence, the text continues, 'And they are gone'. If, however, he changes [and becomes humble], he will be gathered [to his fathers] in his due time like our father Abraham; as it is said: But when they are lowly, they are gathered in like all⁷ — i.e., like Abraham, Isaac and Jacob in connection with whom the word 'all' is used.⁸ If not, They are cut off as the tops of the ears of corn.⁹ What means 'as the tops of the ears of corn'? R. Huna and R. Hisda [explain it]. One says that it means like the awn of the grain, and the other that it means like the ears themselves. This is quite right according to him who says that it means like the awn of the grain, since it is written 'as the tops of the ears of corn'; but according to him who says that it means like the ears themselves, what signifies 'as the tops of the ears of corn'? — R. Assi said, and it was similarly taught in the School of R. Ishmael: It is like a man who enters his field; he gleans the tallest ears.

With him also that is of a contrite and humble spirit.¹⁰ R. Huna and R. Hisda [explain it]. One says that it means the contrite is with Me, and the other that I [God] am with the contrite. The more probable view is in accord with him who holds the meaning to be I am with the contrite; for behold, the Holy One, blessed be He, ignored all the mountains and heights and caused His Shechinah to abide upon Mount Sinai, but did not elevate Mount Sinai [up to Himself].

R. Joseph said: Man should always learn from the mind of his Creator; for behold, the Holy One, blessed be He, ignored all the mountains and heights and caused His Shechinah to abide upon Mount Sinai, and ignored all the beautiful trees and caused His Shechinah to abide in a bush.¹¹

R. Eleazar also said: Every man in whom is haughtiness of spirit is fit to be hewn down like an Asherah.¹² It is written here, The high ones of stature shall be hewn down,¹³ and elsewhere it is written: And ye shall hew down their Asherim.¹⁴ Further said R. Eleazar, Every man in whom is haughtiness of spirit, his dust will not be disturbed [for the Resurrection]; as it is said: Awake and sing, ye that dwell in the dust¹⁵ — it is not said 'ye that lie in the dust', but, 'ye that dwell [shokne] in the dust', i.e., each one who during his lifetime made himself a neighbour [shaken] to the dust [by his humility]. Further said R. Eleazar: Over every man in whom is haughtiness of spirit the Shechinah laments; as it is said: But the haughty he knoweth from afar.¹⁶

R. Awira expounded, and according to another version it was R. Eleazar: Come and see that the manner of the Holy One, blessed be He, is not like the manner of human beings. The manner of human beings is for the lofty to take notice of the lofty and not of the lowly; but the manner of the Holy One, blessed be He, is not so. He is lofty and He takes notice of the lowly, as it is said: For though the Lord be high, yet hath he respect unto the lowly.¹⁷

R. Hisda said, and according to another version it was Mar 'Ukba: Every man in whom is haughtiness of spirit, the Holy One, blessed be He, declares, I and he cannot both dwell in the world; as it is said: Whoso privily slandereth his neighbour, him will I destroy; him that hath an high look and a proud heart will I not suffer¹⁸ — read not 'him' [I cannot suffer], but 'with him'¹⁹ I cannot [dwell]. There are some who apply this teaching to those who speak slander; as it is said, 'whoso privily slandereth his neighbour, him will I destroy'.

R. Alexandri said: Every man in whom there is haughtiness of spirit, even the slightest wind will disturb;²⁰ as it is said: But the wicked are like the troubled sea.²¹ If the sea, which contains so many quarters of a log,²² is ruffled by the slightest wind, how much more so a human being who contains but one quarter of a log.²³

R. Hiyya b. Ashi said in the name of Rab: A disciple of the Sages should possess an eighth [of pride].²⁴ R. Huna the son of R. Joshua said: [This small amount of pride] crowns him like the awn of the grain. Raba said: [A disciple of the Sages] who possesses [haughtiness of spirit] deserves excommunication, and if he does not possess it he deserves excommunication.²⁵ R. Nahman b. Isaac said: He should not possess it or part of it; is it a trifling matter concerning which it is written: Every one that is proud in heart is an abomination to the Lord!²⁶

Hezekiah said: A man's prayer is not heard unless he makes his heart [soft] like flesh; as it is said, And it shall come to pass, that from one new moon to another, shall all flesh come to worship, etc.²⁷ R. Zera said: Concerning flesh it is written: And it is healed;²⁸ but it is not written concerning man, And he is healed.

R. Johanan said: The word for man [adam] indicates dust, blood and gall;²⁹ the word for flesh [basar] indicates shame, stench and worm. Some declare that [instead of 'stench' we should have the word] Sheol, since its initial letter corresponds.³⁰

For a rising and for a scab,¹ and se'eth ['rising'] means nothing else than elevation, as it is said: Upon all the high mountains, and upon all the hills that are nisa'oth [lifted up].² Sappahath ['scab'] means nothing else than attachment; as it is said: Attach me, I pray thee, into one of the priests' offices, that I may eat a morsel of bread.³

R. Joshua b. Levi said: Come and see how great are the lowly of spirit in the esteem of the Holy One, blessed be He, since when the Temple stood, a man brought a burnt-offering and received the reward of a burnt-offering, a meal-offering and he received the reward of a meal-offering; but as for him whose mind is lowly, Scripture ascribes it to him as though he had offered every one of the sacrifices; as it is said: The sacrifices of God are a broken spirit.⁴ More than that, his prayer is not despised; as it continues: A broken and a contrite heart, O God, thou wilt not despise.

R. Joshua b. Levi further said: He who calculates his ways in this world will be worthy to behold the salvation of the Holy One, blessed be He; as it is said: To him that ordereth his way will I show the salvation of God⁵ — read not we-sam [that ordereth] but we-sham [who calculates] his way.⁶

HOW MUST HE WARN HER? etc. This is self-contradictory. You declare, IF HE SAYS TO HER IN THE PRESENCE OF TWO, DO NOT CONVERSE WITH THAT MAN — consequently conversation is the equivalent of seclusion.⁷ He then proceeds to teach: AND SHE CONVERSED WITH HIM, SHE IS STILL PERMITTED TO HER HUSBAND AND PERMITTED TO PARTAKE OF THE HEAVEOFFERING — consequently conversation is nothing! — Abaye said: This is what he means: [If he said to her,] Do not converse, and she conversed with him, Do not converse, and she secluded herself with him, that is nothing; [but if he said to her,] Do not be secluded with him, and she conversed with him, she is still permitted to her husband and permitted to partake of the heave-offering. Should she have entered a private place with him and stayed a time sufficient for misconduct to have occurred, she is forbidden to her husband and forbidden to partake of the heave-offering.

IF [HER HUSBAND] DIED, SHE PERFORMS THE CEREMONY OF HALIZAH. Why so? Let her also contract a levirate marriage! — R. Joseph said: Scripture declared: And when she is departed out of his house, she may go and be another man's wife⁸ — she may marry 'another' man but not her brother-in-law.⁹ Abaye said to him, According to your argument, Halizah also should be unnecessary! He replied to him, If the husband is living, is not a Get required?¹⁰ So here likewise Halizah is necessary.¹¹ Another version is: R. Joseph said: The All-Merciful declared: And when she is departed out of his house, she may go and be another man's wife, so as not to destroy his house;¹² and you argue, let her also contract a levirate marriage!¹³ Abaye said to him, According to your argument, she should never marry again so as not to destroy another man's house! — He replied to him,

(9) ['Another' excludes the brother-in-law whose marriage to her is but a continuation, so to speak, of her first marriage. The derivation is based on the superfluous word 'another' which is taken to refer to a case where the wife was charged with an 'unseemly thing' and her husband died. The meaning of the verse would accordingly be as follows: If she found no favour . . . because he hath found some unseemly thing, he shall write her a bill of divorcement. When she departs out of his house (whether on his death or on divorce) and she goeth and becometh another man's wife, implying she can become the wife only of another man but not the brother-in-law.]

(13) And perhaps destroy the brother-in-law's house.

Talmud - Mas. Sotah 6a

Do we compel any other man to marry her [as in the case of a brother-in-law where it is a duty]! Another version is: R. Joseph replied: The text calls [the second husband] 'another', because he is not the equal of the first husband, since the latter removes wickedness from his house [by divorcing his wife] whereas the other introduces wickedness into his house [by marrying such a woman]; and you argue, let her also contract a levirate marriage! Abaye said to him, According to your argument, if she does marry another man and he died without issue, she may not contract a levirate marriage since the text calls him 'another'!¹ — While living with the second husband she may have been of spotless reputation! Raba said: It is an a fortiori argument:² if she is forbidden to [her husband] to whom she is [otherwise] allowed, how much more so to [her brother-in-law] to whom she is [normally] forbidden! Abaye said to him, According to your argument, if a High Priest betrothed a widow and he died and had a brother who was an ordinary priest, she may not marry him, since if she becomes forbidden to one to whom she is [otherwise] allowed, how much more so to one to whom she is [normally] forbidden!³ [You say,] 'If she becomes forbidden' — she is actually forbidden;⁴ 'to one to whom she is allowed' — he is forbidden [to marry her]! But [ask rather as follows: According to Raba's argument] if the wife of a priest had been violated and he died, and he had a brother who was disqualified,⁵ she may not marry him, since if she is forbidden to [her husband]⁶ to whom she is [otherwise] allowed, how much more so to one to whom she is [normally] forbidden!⁷ — A woman who had been violated is permitted to a non-priest and the prohibition does not apply in his case.⁸

MISHNAH. THE FOLLOWING⁹ ARE PROHIBITED TO PARTAKE OF THE HEAVE-OFFERING:¹⁰ SHE WHO SAYS, 'I AM UNCLEAN TO THEE';¹¹ WHEN WITNESSES CAME [AND TESTIFIED] THAT SHE HAD MISCONDUCTED HERSELF;¹² SHE WHO SAYS, I REFUSE TO DRINK [THE WATER]'; WHEN THE HUSBAND IS UNWILLING TO MAKE HER DRINK [THE WATER]: AND WHEN THE HUSBAND COHABITED WITH HER ON THE JOURNEY.¹³

GEMARA. R. Amram said: The following did R. Shesheth tell us and enlighten our eyes from our Mishnah:¹⁴ In the case of a suspected woman where the witnesses against her are in a far-distant land,¹⁵ the water does not prove her.¹⁶ What is the reason? Because Scripture states: And be kept close and she be defiled and there be no witness against her¹⁷ — this is when there is nobody who knows anything against her, thus excluding the case when there are men who know something against her.¹⁸ And he enlightened our eyes from our Mishnah where it is taught: WHEN WITNESSES CAME [AND TESTIFIED] THAT SHE HAD MISCONDUCTED HERSELF. When did the witnesses come? If we say that they came before she drank the water, she is an adulteress;¹⁹ consequently they could only have come after she had drunk the water. This is quite right if you say that the water does not prove her,²⁰ then all is clear; but if you say that [in such a circumstance] the water does prove her, the water may demonstrate retrospectively that the witnesses were false!²¹ — R. Joseph said to him, Still I maintain that the water does prove her, and answer that some merit she possesses causes the water to suspend its effect.²² In what do [R. Joseph and R. Shesheth] differ? — In the matter of her becoming ill, according to the teaching of Rabbi. For we learn: Rabbi says: Merit [in the woman] causes the water of bitterness to suspend its effect, and she never bears a child or thrives, but she gradually grows ill and finally dies through that death.²³ R. Shesheth is of the opinion that both in the view of Rabbi and of the Rabbis she grows ill;²⁴ and R. Joseph is of the opinion that in the view of Rabbi she grows ill but in the view of the Rabbis she does not.²⁵

R. Shimi b. Ashi raised an objection: R. Simeon says: Merit does not cause the water of bitterness to suspend its effect; and if you say that merit does cause the water of bitterness to suspend its effect, you discredit the water in the case of all the women who drink it and defame the pure woman who drank it, since people will say: They were unclean, only their merit caused the water to suspend its effect upon them.²⁶ But if it is so,²⁷ then through [the teaching], 'Where the witnesses against her are in a far-distant land', you likewise defame the pure women who drank and people will say: They were unclean, only the witnesses against them are in a far-distant land! — [The reply to R. Shimi is:] You quote R. Simeon; but as R. Simeon holds that merit does not cause the water to suspend its effect, he similarly holds that the existence of witnesses does not cause it to suspend its effect.

Rab raised an objection: The following have their meal-offerings destroyed:²⁸

- (1) [And how can we compel the brother-in-law to marry her?]
 - (2) [To forbid her to the brother-in-law.]
 - (3) As wife of his brother. The conclusion is false, because such a levirate marriage is permissible.
 - (4) A High Priest is not allowed to marry a widow; Lev. XXI, 14.
 - (5) From the priesthood because he was the issue of another marriage which was illegal.
 - (6) A priest could not continue to live with his wife after she had been violated.
 - (7) The argument is false, because the man disqualified from the priesthood could marry his childless brother's widow if she had been violated.
 - (8) I.e., a non-priest was not obliged to divorce his wife who was the victim of violation.
 - (9) Wives of priests.
 - (10) For all time, even if the woman be a priest's daughter (v. Bertinoro).
 - (11) She admits misconduct.
 - (12) Even if she had successfully come through the ordeal, v. Gemara.
 - (13) To Jerusalem, where alone the ordeal was carried out. V. Mishnah p. 30.

- (14) He found support for his teaching in the statement of the Mishnah.
- (15) And unable to appear before a Court to give evidence that she misconducted herself.
- (16) It has no effect, though she be guilty.
- (17) Num. V, 13.
- (18) 'No witness' is now interpreted literally, and not as before, viz., only one witness.
- (19) As the result of their evidence; [consequently she is forbidden to partake of the heave-offering, v. Yeb. 44b].
- (20) If there are witnesses of her misconduct who have not testified.
- (21) Because, if she came through successfully, her reputation is cleared. [Why then should she be prohibited to partake of the heave-offering for all time?]
- (22) This point is discussed immediately. If this view is accepted, the water does not affect her although the witnesses are true.
- (23) Through her belly swelling and her thigh falling (Num. V, 27). The passage is cited from infra 22b.
- (24) And the Sages only disagree with him on the question whether she dies. In any case, if she does not grow ill, it cannot be attributed to her merit but to the fact that there are witnesses who have not given evidence.
- (25) So that on either view, if the water has no effect, it is due to her merit.
- (26) Also quoted from infra 22b.
- (27) Viz., that the existence of absent witnesses causes the water not to take effect.

Talmud - Mas. Sotah 6b

She who says: 'I am unclean'; and when witnesses came [and testified] that she had misconducted herself.¹ When did the witnesses come? If I say that they came before the offering was hallowed,² then it can become non-holy?³ Consequently they could only have come after it had been hallowed. This is quite right if you say that the water proves her;⁴ consequently she is qualified to have [the flour] hallowed and offered on her behalf, and since it was hallowed from the commencement, it is certainly holy⁵ and for that reason her meal-offering is destroyed. But if you say that the water does not prove her, it becomes evident retrospectively that the hallowing was from the commencement in error,⁶ and therefore [the flour] becomes non-holy!⁷ — Rab Judah of Diskarta⁸ said: Suppose that [after the hallowing] she committed adultery within the Temple-precincts,⁹ since it was hallowed from the commencement, it is certainly holy! R. Mesharsheya objected: But do not the priestly novitiates accompany her?¹⁰ — Rab Judah [meant,] She committed adultery with one of these novitiates. R. Ashi¹¹ said: Suppose it was necessary for her to relieve herself, do you think that the priestly novitiates hang on to her headgear!¹² R. Papa said: The matter is certainly as we originally explained;¹³ and when you argue, [The offering] becomes non-holy, [the answer is that the rule by which the offering is destroyed] is a decree of the Rabbis lest it should be said, we may take [the flour] out of the ministering vessel for secular use.

R. Mari raised an objection: If her offering became ritually defiled before it became hallowed in the vessel, behold it is like all meal-offerings¹⁴ and is redeemed; but if [it became defiled] after it had been hallowed in the vessel, behold it is like all meal-offerings [in such a circumstance] and is destroyed.¹⁵ If the handful of flour¹⁶ was hallowed but there was not sufficient time to offer it before [the husband] died¹⁷ or she died, behold it is like all the meal-offerings and must be destroyed. If the handful had been offered but there was not sufficient time [for the priest] to eat the remainder¹⁸ before [the husband] died or she died, behold it is like all the meal-offerings and is eaten; because it was brought from the commencement in connection with a matter of doubt,¹⁹ it atoned for the doubt which is now ended. If witnesses came [and testified] against her that she had misconducted herself, her meal-offering is destroyed; should the witnesses against her be proved to be perjurers,²⁰ her meal-offering is non-holy?²¹ — You mention perjured witnesses; the fact that they were perjured witnesses is generally known.²²

There is a teaching in accord with the view of R. Shesheth²³ but not for the same reason as his,²⁴ viz., If she be clean²⁵ — [this indicates] there are no witnesses against her in a far-distant land;²⁶ ‘and if she be clean’ — [the addition of and indicates] it is not merit that causes the water to suspend its effect; [‘and if] she [be clean’] — [meaning that she has escaped the effect of the water because she is in fact clean] and not because women who spin by moonlight were discussing her.²⁷ Now as for R. Simeon,²⁸ agreed that he does not expound the conjunction and;²⁹ still there is the case

(1) Quoted from infra p. 144.

(2) By the priest placing the flour in one of the ministering vessels.

(3) By being redeemed; so why does the Mishnah say it is destroyed?

(4) And she drank the water before witnesses testified.

(5) Even after the witnesses gave evidence.

(6) Since witnesses proved her guilty and the ordeal was unnecessary.

(7) And does not even have to be redeemed since the hallowing was based on an error.

(8) [Deskarah, 16 miles N.E. of Bagdad; Obermeyer, Die Landschaft Babylonian, p. 116.]

(9) And witnesses came to testify concerning this act of infidelity.

(10) So that adultery could not occur there.

(11) Who rejects the thought that she could be guilty with one of the novitiates.

(12) When she retired to relieve herself. Consequently she could have the opportunity with another than the novitiates.

(13) That the witnesses came concerning the first act of infidelity.

(14) Which became defiled before being hallowed.

(18) Of the flour which is not burnt upon the altar and is the priest's perquisite.

(19) The woman's chastity.

(20) Zomemim v. Glos. Before the meal-offering was burnt upon the altar.

(21) Though it has been placed in the vessel; and we do not say, as above, that by a Rabbinic decree, it must be destroyed. This contradicts the view given by R. Papa.

(22) So that it will be recognised that the offering was never holy.

(23) Viz., that the water does not take effect when there are absent witnesses.

(24) Which is based on the phrase ‘No witness against her’ (v. supra p. 24). The teaching finds another derivation in support.

(25) Num. V, 28.

(26) The verse is thus explained; if she be really pure and did not escape the effect of the water through the witnesses being far away, then she will conceive.

(27) Women gather together in the moonlight to spin and gossip. To be talked about by them was a sufficient disgrace to suspend the effect of the water.

(28) Who holds that merit does not suspend the effect of the water.

(29) To derive from it a Scriptural basis for his view.

Talmud - Mas. Sotah 7a

where there are witnesses against her in a far-distant land!¹ — That is uncommon.²

MISHNAH. HOW DOES [THE HUSBAND] DEAL WITH HER? HE BRINGS HER TO THE COURT OF JUSTICE IN THE PLACE WHERE HE RESIDES, AND THEY ASSIGN TO HIM TWO DISCIPLES OF THE SAGES³ LEST HE COHABIT WITH HER ON THE JOURNEY.⁴ R. JUDAH SAYS, HER HUSBAND IS TRUSTED WITH HER.⁵

GEMARA. Two [disciples of the Sages] and he make three. Is this to say that it supports the teaching of Rab? For Rab Judah said in the name of Rab: [The Rabbis] did not teach [that a woman may be in the company of two men] except in a city; but on a journey there must be three, in case one of them should have need to relieve himself and consequently one of them will be left alone with [the possibility of] immorality!⁶ — No; here the reason is that they should be witnesses against him.⁷ [But the fact that] disciples of the Sages are necessary and not ordinary men, does this not support another teaching of Rab? For Rab Judah said in the name of Rab: [The Rabbis] did not teach [that a woman may be in the company of two men] except in the case of pure men; but in the case of dissolute men not even with ten. It once happened that ten men carried a [live] woman [out of the city] in a coffin [to violate her]! — No; here the reason is that they will know to warn him.⁸

R. JUDAH SAYS, HER HUSBAND etc. It has been taught: R. Judah says: By a fortiori reasoning [it is deduced] that a husband is trusted.⁹ If a husband is trusted in the matter of his wife during menstruation where the penalty is excision,¹⁰ how much more so in the matter of his wife under suspicion in connection with which there is a mere prohibition.¹¹ And [how do] the Rabbis [meet this argument]? — The same reasoning establishes [their view]: in the case of a wife during menstruation where the penalty is excision, since it is so stringent, the husband is trusted; but in the case of a wife under suspicion where [cohabitation] is a mere prohibition, since there is no stringent [penalty] for him, he is not trusted. But does R. Judah derive his view from a fortiori reasoning? He surely derives it from a Scriptural text; for it has been taught: Then shall the man bring his wife unto the priest¹² — according to the Torah it is the husband who has to bring his wife; but said the Sages, They assign to him two disciples of the Sages lest he cohabit with her on the journey. R. Jose says: By a fortiori reasoning [it is deduced] that a husband is trusted with her. If a husband is trusted in the matter of his wife during menstruation where the penalty is excision, how much more so in the matter of his wife while under suspicion in connection with which there is a mere prohibition. [The Sages] replied to him, No; if you argue [that he may be trusted] in the case of his wife during menstruation to whom he will have a right [on her recovery], will you argue so in the case of his wife under suspicion when he may never have a right to her!¹³ It further states: Stolen waters are sweet, etc.¹⁴ R. Judah says: According to the Torah it is the husband who has to bring his wife; as it is said: Then shall the man bring his wife!¹⁵ — At first he argued his view to [the Sages] by a fortiori reasoning; but when they refuted it, he then quoted the text to them. But R. Judah's opinion is the same as that of the first Tanna!¹⁶ — There is a point of difference between them, viz., [the continuation], 'But, said the Rabbis' etc.¹⁷

MISHNAH. THEY BRING HER UP TO THE GREAT COURT OF JUSTICE WHICH IS IN JERUSALEM, AND [THE JUDGES] SOLEMNLY CHARGE HER IN THE SAME WAY THAT THEY CHARGE WITNESSES IN CAPITAL CASES¹⁸ AND SAY TO HER, 'MY DAUGHTER, WINE DOES MUCH, FRIVOLITY DOES MUCH, YOUTH DOES MUCH, BAD NEIGHBOURS DO MUCH.¹⁹ DO IT²⁰ FOR THE SAKE OF HIS GREAT NAME WHICH IS WRITTEN IN HOLINESS SO THAT IT MAY NOT BE OBLITERATED BY THE WATER.'²¹ AND THEY RELATE TO HER MATTERS WHICH NEITHER SHE NOR ALL THE FAMILY OF HER FATHER'S HOUSE IS WORTHY TO HEAR.²² — IF SHE SAID, 'I HAVE MISCONDUCTED MYSELF', SHE GIVES A QUITTANCE FOR HER MARRIAGE-SETTLEMENT²³ AND DEPARTS;²⁴ BUT IF SHE SAYS, 'I AM PURE', THEY BRING HER UP TO THE EAST GATE WHICH IS BY THE ENTRANCE OF NICANOR'S GATE²⁵ WHERE THEY GIVE SUSPECTED WOMEN THE WATER TO DRINK, PURIFY WOMEN AFTER CHILDBIRTH AND PURIFY LEPERS.²⁶ A PRIEST SEIZES HER GARMENTS²⁷ — IF THEY ARE RENT THEY ARE RENT, AND IF THEY BECOME UNSTITCHED THEY ARE UNSTITCHED UNTIL HE UNCOVERS HER BOSOM,²⁸ AND HE UNDOES HER HAIR. R. JUDAH SAYS: IF HER BOSOM WAS BEAUTIFUL HE DOES NOT UNCOVER IT, AND IF HER HAIR WAS BEAUTIFUL HE DOES NOT UNDO IT. — IF SHE WAS CLOTHED IN WHITE, HE CLOTHES HER IN BLACK. IF SHE WORE GOLDEN ORNAMENTS

AND NECKLACES, EAR-RINGS AND FINGER-RINGS, THEY REMOVE THEM FROM HER IN ORDER TO MAKE HER REPULSIVE. AFTER THAT [THE PRIEST] TAKES A COMMON ROPE¹ AND BINDS IT OVER HER BREASTS.² WHOEVER WISHES TO LOOK UPON HER COMES TO LOOK WITH THE EXCEPTION OF HER MALE AND FEMALE SLAVES, BECAUSE HER HEART IS MADE DEFIANT THROUGH THEM. ALL WOMEN ARE PERMITTED³ TO LOOK UPON HER, AS IT IS SAID, THAT ALL WOMEN MAY BE TAUGHT NOT TO DO AFTER YOUR LEWDNESS.⁴

GEMARA. Whence is this?⁵ — R. Hiyya b. Gamda said in the name of R. Jose b. Hanina: From the analogous use of the word 'law'. It is written here, And the priest shall execute upon her all this law;⁶ and elsewhere it is written: According to the tenor of the law which they shall teach thee.⁷ As in this latter case it is [the Court of] seventy-one,⁸ so also in the former it is [the Court of] seventy-one.

AND [THE JUDGES] SOLEMNLY CHARGE HER etc. I quote in contradiction: Just as they solemnly charge her not to drink,⁹ so they solemnly charge her to drink, saying to her, 'My daughter, if the matter is clear to thee that thou art pure, rely upon thy purity and drink; because the water of bitterness is only like dry powder which is placed upon living flesh. If there is a wound, it penetrates and goes through [the skin]; and if there is no wound, it has no effect.¹⁰ — There is no contradiction; here [they charge her not to drink] before [the writing on] the scroll is blotted out,¹¹ and there [they charge her to drink] after it has been blotted out.¹²

AND SAY TO HER etc. Our Rabbis have taught: He tells her narratives and incidents which occurred in the early writings;¹³ for instance, Which wise men have told and have not hid it [from their fathers],¹⁴ namely Judah confessed and was not ashamed; what was his end? He inherited the life of the world to come. Reuben confessed and was not ashamed; what was his end? He inherited the world to come. And what was their reward? What was their reward [you ask]! It was as we have just mentioned. But [the meaning is], What was their reward in this world? Unto them alone the land was given, and no stranger passed among them.¹⁵ It is quite right with Judah; we find that he confessed, for it is written: And Judah acknowledged them, and said: She is more righteous than I.¹⁶ Whence, however, is it that Reuben confessed? — As R. Samuel b. Nahmani said in the name of R. Johanan: What means that which is written: Let Reuben live and not die; and this for Judah?¹⁷ All the years that the Israelites were in the wilderness, Judah's bones¹⁸ kept turning in his coffin until Moses arose and begged mercy for him. He said before Him, Lord of the Universe, who caused Reuben to confess? It was Judah,¹⁹ [as it is stated], 'And this for Judah'; immediately [after Moses prayed], 'Hear, Lord, the voice of Judah', each limb entered its socket.²⁰ But [the angels] would not permit him to enter the heavenly Academy;²¹ [so Moses prayed], 'And bring him in unto his people'. He was unable to discuss the theme which the Rabbis were then debating; [so Moses prayed], 'With his hands let him contend for himself.'²² He was still not able to secure a decision in accordance with the traditional practice; [so Moses prayed], 'Be an help against his adversaries'.²³ It is quite right that Judah confessed so that Tamar should not be burnt; but why did Reuben confess? Surely R. Shesheth has declared: Consider him shameless who [publicly] specifies his sins! — [Reuben confessed] so that his brothers should not be suspected [of his offence].

IF SHE SAID, 'I HAVE MISCONDUCTED MYSELF' etc. Is it to be concluded from this that a quittance is written out?²⁴ — Abaye said: Read [in our Mishnah]: [The document of the marriage-settlement] is torn. Raba replied to him, But the Mishnah mentions A QUITTANCE! But, said Raba, we deal here with places where they do not write a document for a marriage-settlement.²⁵

BUT IF SHE SAYS, 'I AM PURE', THEY BRING HER UP TO THE EAST GATE. 'THEY BRING HER UP'?

But she is already there!¹ — They lead her up² and lead her down, for the purpose of wearying her.³ For it has been taught: R. Simeon b. Eleazar says: The Court causes the witnesses to be taken from place to place that their mind may become confused and they retract [their evidence, if false].⁴

WHERE THEY GIVE SUSPECTED WOMEN THE WATER TO DRINK etc. This is quite right in the case of suspected women; because it is written: And the priest shall set the woman before the Lord.⁵ Likewise is it with lepers; because it is written: And the priest that cleanseth him shall set the man . . . before the Lord.⁶ But why a woman after childbirth? Is it to say because they come to stand by their offerings; for it has been taught: A person's offering is not sacrificed until he stands by it? If so, it should also apply to men and women with a running issue!⁷ — It does indeed also apply to them, and the Tanna [in the Mishnah] only specifies one of them.⁸ Our Rabbis have taught: They do not give two suspected women the water to drink at the same time, so that the heart of one should not become defiant because of the other.⁹ R. Judah says: It is not from this reason, but Scripture declares, [The priest shall cause] her [to swear]¹⁰ — her alone. And for the first Tanna it is likewise written 'her'!¹¹ — The first Tanna is R. Simeon who expounds the reason of Scriptural texts¹² and [here] he states the reason: What is the meaning of 'her'? Her alone, so that the heart of one should not become defiant because of the other. What difference is there, then, between them? — The difference between them is the case of a woman who is trembling.¹³ But even if [a woman] is trembling, may we give her the water to drink [simultaneously with another woman] when, behold, we may not perform precepts in bundles?¹⁴ For we have learnt: They do not give two suspected women the water to drink at the same time, nor purify two lepers at the same time, nor bore the ears of two slaves at the same time,¹⁵ nor break the necks of two calves at the same time,¹⁶ because we may not perform precepts in bundles! — Abaye said, but others declare it was R. Kahana: There is no contradiction; the latter case referring to one priest,¹⁷ the other to two priests.

A PRIEST SEIZES HER GARMENTS. Our Rabbis have taught: And let the hair of the woman's head go loose.¹⁸ I only have here mention of her head; whence is it derived that it applies to her body?¹⁹ The text states: 'the woman's'.²⁰ If so, what is the object of the text declaring, 'And let the hair of the head go loose'? It teaches that the priest undoes her hair.²¹

R. JUDAH SAYS, IF HER BOSOM WAS BEAUTIFUL etc. Is this to say that R. Judah is afraid of impure thoughts being aroused and the Rabbis do not fear this? Behold we have heard the opposite opinion of them; for it has been taught: In the case of a man [who is to be stoned] they cover him with one piece of cloth in front, and in the case of a woman with two pieces, one in front and one behind, because the whole of her is considered nudity. This is the statement of R. Judah; but the Sages say: A man is stoned naked but a woman is not stoned naked!²² — Rabbah answered: What is the reason here?²³ Lest she go forth from the Court innocent, and the priestly novitiates become inflamed through her, whereas in the other case she is stoned. Should you reply that it may cause them to be inflamed by another woman, Raba²⁴ declared: We have learnt a tradition that the evil impulse only bears sway over what a person's eyes see. Raba asked: Is it, then, that R. Judah contradicts himself and the Rabbis do not contradict themselves? But, said Raba, R. Judah does not contradict himself as we have just explained²⁵

, and the Rabbis likewise do not contradict themselves. What is the reason here?¹ Because [it is written], That all women may be taught not to do after your lewdness.² In the other case [of stoning], however, there cannot be a severer warning than that.³ Should you argue, Let both be inflicted upon her,⁴ R. Nahman said in the name of Rabbah b. Abbuha: The text states: Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself⁵ — choose for him [or her] a light death. Is this to say that Mishnaic teachers disagree [with respect to this teaching] of R. Nahman?⁶ — No; everybody is in agreement with R. Nahman's teaching, but they differ here on the following point: [the Rabbis] hold that disgrace is worse than physical pain, and [R. Judah] holds that physical pain is worse than disgrace.⁷ IF SHE WAS CLOTHED IN WHITE etc. It has been taught: If black garments became her, they clothe her in mean garments.

IF SHE WORE GOLDEN ORNAMENTS etc. This is obvious. Since she has to be made repulsive how much more is it necessary to do this!⁸ — What you might have thought is that with these ornaments upon her, the disgrace would be greater; as the proverb declares, 'Stripped naked, yet wearing shoes'. Therefore we are taught [that all ornaments must be removed].

AFTER THAT [THE PRIEST] TAKES A COMMON ROPE etc. R. Abba asked R. Huna, Does [the absence of] a common rope invalidate the ceremony of a suspected woman? If the purpose is that her garments should not slip down from her, then a small belt would also suffice; or is it perhaps as the Master said: 'She girded herself with a belt [to adorn herself] for him,⁹ therefore the priest takes a common rope and binds it over her breasts', and consequently [its absence] does invalidate the ceremony? — He replied: You have [the reason stated:] After that he takes a common rope and binds it over her breast so that her garments should not slip down from her.

WHOEVER WISHES TO LOOK UPON HER COMES TO LOOK etc. This is self-contradictory! You say: WHOEVER WISHES TO LOOK UPON HER COMES TO LOOK; consequently it makes no difference whether they be men or women. Then it is taught: ALL WOMEN ARE PERMITTED TO LOOK UPON HER — hence women are [permitted] but men are not! — Abaye answered: Explain it¹⁰ as referring to women. Raba said to him, But the Mishnah states: WHOEVER WISHES TO LOOK UPON HER COMES TO LOOK! But, said Raba, [the meaning is:] WHOEVER WISHES TO LOOK UPON HER COMES TO LOOK, it makes no difference whether they be men or women; but women are obliged¹¹ to look upon her, as it is said: 'That all women may be taught not to do after your lewdness.' MISHNAH. IN THE MEASURE WITH WHICH A MAN MEASURES IT IS METED OUT TO HIM. SHE ADORNED HERSELF FOR A TRANSGRESSION; THE HOLY ONE, BLESSED BE HE, MADE HER REPULSIVE. SHE EXPOSED HERSELF FOR A TRANSGRESSION; THE HOLY ONE, BLESSED BE HE, HELD HER UP FOR EXPOSURE. SHE BEGAN THE TRANSGRESSION WITH THE THIGH AND AFTERWARDS WITH THE WOMB; THEREFORE SHE IS PUNISHED FIRST IN THE THIGH AND AFTERWARDS IN THE WOMB,¹² NOR DOES ALL THE BODY ESCAPE. GEMARA. R. Joseph said: Although the measure¹³ has ceased, [the principle] IN THE MEASURE has not ceased.¹⁴ For R. Joseph said, and similarly taught R. Hiyya: From the day the Temple was destroyed, although the Sanhedrin ceased to function, the four modes of execution¹⁵ did not cease. But they did cease! — [The meaning is:] The judgment¹⁶ of the four modes of execution did not cease. He who would have been condemned to stoning either falls from a roof [and dies] or a wild beast tramples him [to death]. He who would have been condemned to burning either falls into a fire or a serpent stings him. He who would have been condemned to decapitation is either handed over to the [Gentile] Government¹⁷ or robbers attack him. He who would have been condemned to strangulation either drowns in a river or dies of a quinsy.¹⁸

It has been taught: Rabbi¹⁹ used to say: Whence is it that in the measure with which a man measures it is meted out to him? As it is said: By measure in sending her away thou dost contend with her.²⁰ I have here only a se'ah;²¹ whence is it to include a trikab and half a trikab, a kab and half a kab, a quarter, an eighth, a sixteenth and a thirtysecond part of a kab? There is a text to state, For all the armour of the armed man in the tumult.²² And whence is it that every perutah²³ reckons together into a great sum? There is a text to state, Laying one thing to another to find out the account.²⁴ Thus we find in the case of a suspected woman that in the measure with which she measured it was meted out to her. She stood at the entrance of her house to display herself to the man; therefore a priest sets her by the Nicanor-gate and displays her disgrace to all. She wound a beautiful scarf about her head for him; therefore a priest removes her headgear and places it under her feet. She beautified her face for him; therefore her face is made to turn green in colour.¹ She painted her eyes for him; therefore her eyes protrude. She plaited her hair for him; therefore a priest undoes her hair. She signalled to him with her finger; therefore her fingernails fall off. She girded herself with a belt for him; therefore a priest takes a common rope and ties it above her breasts. She thrust her thigh towards him; therefore her thigh falls. She received him upon her body; therefore her womb swells. She gave him the world's dainties to eat; therefore her offering consisted of animal's fodder.² She gave him costly wine to drink in costly goblets; therefore a priest gives her water of bitterness to drink in a potsherd. She acted in secret; and He that dwelleth in the secret place of the Most High³ directed His face against her [to punish her], as it is said: The eye also of the adulterer waiteth for the twilight, saying: No eye shall see me.⁴ Another version is: She acted in secret; the All-present proclaims it in public, as it is said: Though his hatred cover itself with guile, his wickedness shall be openly shewed before the congregation.⁵

Since [the teaching that even the slightest sin is punished] is derived from 'Laying one thing to another to find out the account', why do I require 'For all the armour of the armed man in the tumult'? — That [the punishment is] according to measure. But since that is derived from 'For all the armour of the armed man in the tumult', why do I require 'By measure in sending her away thou dost contend with her'? — It is in accord with the teaching of R. Hinena b. Papa; for R. Hinena b. Papa said: The Holy One, blessed be He, does not exact punishment of a nation until the time of its banishment into exile, as it is said: 'By measure in sending her away, etc'. But it is not so; for Raba has said: Why are three cups mentioned in connection with Egypt?⁶ One which she drank in the days of Moses; one which she drank in the days of Pharaoh-Necho;⁷ and one which she is destined to drink with her allies! Should you reply that they passed away, and these are different [Egyptians],⁸ behold it has been taught: R. Judah said: Minyamin, an Egyptian proselyte, was a colleague of mine among the disciples of R. Akiba; and Minyamin, the Egyptian proselyte, told me: 'I am an Egyptian of the first generation,⁹ and I married an Egyptian woman of the first generation; I will marry my son to an Egyptian woman of the second generation so that my grandson may be permitted to enter the Community'!¹⁰ — But if the above statement was made it was made as follows: R. Hinena b. Papa said: The Holy One, blessed be He, does not exact punishment of a king until the time of his banishment into exile, as it is said: 'By measure in sending her away, etc'. Amemar applied this teaching of R. Hinena b. Papa to the following: What means the text: For I the Lord change not; therefore ye, O sons of Jacob, are not consumed'?¹¹ 'I the Lord change not' — I have not smitten a people and repeated it;¹² 'therefore ye, O sons of Jacob, are not consumed' — that is what is written: I will spend Mine arrows upon them¹³ — Mine arrows will be spent, but [the sons of Jacob] will not cease. R. Hamuna said: The Holy One, blessed be He, does not exact punishment of a man until his measure [of guilt] is filled; as it is said: 'In the fullness of his sufficiency he shall be in straits, etc'.¹⁴ R. Hinena b. Papa expounded: What means the text: Rejoice in the Lord, O ye righteous; praise is comely for the upright?¹⁵ Read not praise is na'wah ['comely'], but praise is neweh ['a habitation']. This alludes to Moses and David over whose works [in erecting a Sanctuary] their enemies had no power.¹⁶ Of [the Temple planned by] David, it is written: Her gates are sunk in the ground.¹⁷ With regard to Moses the Master said: After the first Temple was erected, the Tent of Meeting was stored away, its boards, hooks, bars, pillars and sockets. Where [were they stored]? — R. Hisda said in the name of Abimi: Beneath the crypts of the Temple.

Our Rabbis have taught: The suspected woman¹⁸ set her eyes on one who was not proper for her; what she sought was not given to her¹⁹ and what she possessed was taken from her;²⁰ because whoever sets his eyes on that which is not his is not granted what he seeks and what he possesses is taken from him.

Talmud - Mas. Sotah 9b

We thus find it with the primeval serpent [in the Garden of Eden] which set its eyes on that which was not proper for it; what it sought was not granted to it and what it possessed was taken from it. The Holy One, blessed be He, said: I declared: Let it be king over every animal and beast; but now, Cursed art thou above all cattle and above every beast of the field.¹ I declared, let it walk with an erect posture; but now it shall go upon its belly. I declared: Let its food be the same as that of man; but now it shall eat dust. It said: I will kill Adam and marry Eve; but now, I will put enmity between thee and the woman, and between thy seed and her seed.² Similarly do we find it with Cain, Korah, Balaam, Doeg, Ahitophel, Gehazi, Absalom, Adonijah, Uzziah and Haman, who set their eyes upon that which was not proper for them; what they sought was not granted to them and what they possessed was taken from them.

SHE BEGAN THE TRANSGRESSION WITH THE THIGH etc. Whence is this? Shall I say because it is written: When the Lord doth make thy thigh to fall away and thy belly to swell?³ But it is likewise written: Her belly shall swell and her thigh shall fall away!⁴ — Abaye said: When [the priest] utters the curse, he first curses the thigh and then curses the belly; but when the water produces its effect it does so in its normal order, viz., the belly first and then the thigh. But also in connection with the curse, it is written: Make thy belly to swell and thy thigh to fall away!⁵ — That is what the priest informs her, viz., that it affects her belly first and then the thigh so as not to discredit the water of bitterness.⁶

MISHNAH. SAMSON WENT AFTER [THE DESIRE OF] HIS EYES; THEREFORE THE PHILISTINES PUT OUT HIS EYES, AS IT IS SAID, AND THE PHILISTINES LAID HOLD ON HIM, AND PUT OUT HIS EYES.⁷ ABSALOM GLORIED IN HIS HAIR; THEREFORE HE WAS HANGED BY HIS HAIR. AND BECAUSE HE COHABITED WITH THE TEN CONCUBINES OF HIS FATHER, THEREFORE HE WAS STABBED WITH TEN LANCES, AS IT IS SAID, AND TEN YOUNG MEN THAT BARE JOAB'S ARMOUR COMPASSED ABOUT.⁸ AND BECAUSE HE STOLE THREE HEARTS, THE HEART OF HIS FATHER, THE HEART OF THE COURT OF JUSTICE, AND THE HEART OF ISRAEL, AS IT IS SAID, SO ABSALOM STOLE THE HEARTS OF THE MEN OF ISRAEL,⁹ THEREFORE THREE DARTS WERE THRUST THROUGH HIM, AS IT IS SAID, AND HE TOOK THREE DARTS IN HIS HAND, AND THRUST THEM THROUGH THE HEART OF ABSALOM.¹⁰ — IT¹¹ IS THE SAME IN CONNECTION WITH THE GOOD. MIRIAM WAITED A SHORT WHILE FOR MOSES, AS IT IS SAID, AND HIS SISTER STOOD AFAR OFF;¹² THEREFORE ISRAEL WAS DELAYED FOR HER SEVEN DAYS IN THE WILDERNESS, AS IT IS SAID, AND THE PEOPLE JOURNEYED NOT TILL MIRIAM WAS BROUGHT IN AGAIN.¹³ JOSEPH EARNED MERIT BY BURYING HIS FATHER AND THERE WAS NONE AMONG HIS BROTHERS GREATER THAN HE; AS IT IS SAID, AND JOSEPH WENT UP TO BURY HIS FATHER, ETC.,¹⁴ AND THERE WENT UP WITH HIM BOTH CHARIOTS AND HORSEMEN.¹⁵ WHOM HAVE WE GREATER THAN JOSEPH SINCE NONE OTHER THAN MOSES OCCUPIED HIMSELF WITH HIS BURIAL? MOSES EARNED MERIT THROUGH THE BONES OF JOSEPH AND THERE WAS NONE IN ISRAEL GREATER THAN HE, AS IT IS SAID, AND MOSES TOOK THE BONES OF JOSEPH WITH HIM.¹⁶ WHOM HAVE WE GREATER THAN MOSES SINCE NONE OTHER THAN THE OMNIPRESENT OCCUPIED HIMSELF [WITH HIS BURIAL], AS IT IS SAID, AND HE BURIED HIM IN THE VALLEY?¹⁷ NOT ONLY CONCERNING MOSES DID THEY SAY THIS, BUT CONCERNING ALL THE RIGHTEOUS, AS IT IS SAID, AND THY RIGHTEOUSNESS SHALL GO BEFORE THEE, THE GLORY OF THE LORD SHALL BE THY REARWARD.¹⁸

GEMARA. Our Rabbis have taught: Samson rebelled [against God] through his eyes, as it is said: And Samson said unto his father, Get her for me, because she is pleasing in my eyes;¹⁹ therefore the Philistines put out his eyes, as it is said: And the Philistines laid hold on him and put out his eyes.²⁰ But it is not so; for behold it is written: But his father and his mother knew not that it was of the Lord!²¹ — When he went [to choose a wife] he nevertheless followed his own inclinations.²² It has been taught: Rabbi says: The beginning of his [Samson's] degeneration occurred in Gaza; therefore he received his punishment in Gaza. 'The beginning of his [Samson's] degeneration was in Gaza', as it is written: And Samson went to Gaza, and saw there an harlot etc.,²³ 'therefore he received his punishment in Gaza,' as it is written: And they brought him down to Gaza.²⁴ But behold it is written: And Samson went down to Timnah!²⁵ — Nevertheless the beginning of his degeneration occurred in Gaza.²⁶

And it came to pass afterward, that he loved a woman in the valley of Sorek, whose name was Delilah.²⁷ It has been taught: Rabbi says: If her name had not been called Delilah, she was fit that it should be so called. She weakened²⁸ his strength, she weakened his heart, she weakened his actions. 'She weakened his strength', as it is written: And his strength went from him.²⁹ 'She weakened his heart', as it is written: And when Delilah saw that he had told her all his heart.³⁰ 'She weakened his actions' since the Shechinah departed from him, as it is written: But he wist not that the Lord had departed from him.³¹

'And when Delilah saw that he had told her all his heart'. How did she know this?³² R. Hanin said in the name of Rab: Words of truth are recognisable. Abaye said: She knew that this righteous man would not utter the Divine Name in vain; when he exclaimed: I have been a Nazirite unto God,³³ she said: Now he has certainly spoken the truth.

And it came to pass, when she pressed him daily with her words, and urged him.³⁴ What means 'and urged him'? R. Isaac of the School of R. Ammi said: At the time of the consummation, she detached herself from him.

Now therefore beware, I pray thee, and drink no wine nor strong drink, and eat not any unclean thing.³⁵ What means 'any unclean thing'? Furthermore, had she [Samson's mother] up to then eaten unclean things? R. Isaac of the School of R. Ammi said: [She had hitherto eaten] things forbidden to a Nazirite.

But God clave the hollow place that is in Lehi.³⁶ R. Isaac of the School of R. Ammi said: He [Samson] lusted for what was unclean;³⁷ therefore his life was made dependent upon an unclean thing.³⁸

And the spirit of the Lord began, etc.³⁹ R. Hama b. Hanina said: Jacob's prophecy became fulfilled, as it is written: Dan shall be a serpent in the way.⁴⁰

To move him in Mahaneh-Dan.⁴¹ R. Isaac of the School of R. Ammi said: This teaches that the Shechinah kept ringing in front of him like a bell;⁴² it is written here to move him [lefa'amo] in Mahaneh-Dan, and it is written elsewhere A golden bell [pa'amon] and a pomegranate.⁴³ Between Zorah and Eshtaol⁴⁴ — R. Assi said: Zorah and Eshtaol are two great mountains, and Samson uprooted them and ground one against the other.

And he shall begin to save Israel.⁴⁵ R. Hama b. Hanina said:

Talmud - Mas. Sotah 10a

The oath of Abimelech became void, as it is written: That thou wilt not deal falsely with me, nor with my son, nor with my son's son.¹

And the child grew, and the Lord blessed him.² Wherewith did He bless him? — Rab Judah said in the name of Rab: With his physique which was like that of other men but his manly strength was like a fast-flowing stream.³

And Samson called unto the Lord, and said: O Lord God, remember me, I pray Thee and strengthen me, I pray Thee, that I may be at once avenged of the Philistines for my two eyes.⁴ Rab said: Samson spoke before the Holy One, blessed be He, Sovereign of the Universe, Remember on my behalf the twenty⁵ years I judged Israel, and never did I order anyone to carry my staff from one place to another.

And Samson went and caught three hundred foxes.⁶ Why just foxes? — R. Aibu b. Nagari said in the name of R. Hiyya b. Abba: Samson declared: Let [the animal] come which turns backward⁷ and exact punishment of the Philistines who went back on their oath.⁸

It has been taught: R. Simeon the Pious said: The width between Samson's shoulders was sixty cubits, as it is said: And Samson lay till midnight, and arose at midnight and laid hold of the doors of the gate of the city, and the two posts, and plucked them up, bar and all, and put them upon his shoulders;⁹ and there is a tradition that the gates of Gaza were not less than sixty cubits [in width]. And he did grind in the prison house.¹⁰

R. Johanan said: 'Grind' means nothing else than [sexual] transgression; and thus it is stated: Then let my wife grind unto another.¹¹ It teaches that everyone brought his wife to him to the prison that she might bear a child by him [who would be as strong as he was]. R. Papa said: That is what the proverb tells, 'Before the wine-drinker [set] wine, before a ploughman a basket of roots.'

R. Johanan also said: Whoever is faithless, his wife is faithless to him; as it is said: If mine heart have been enticed unto a woman, and I have laid wait at my neighbour's door¹² and it continues, Then let my wife grind unto another, and let others bow down upon her. That is what the proverb tells, 'He among the full-grown pumpkins and his wife among the young ones'.

R. Johanan also said: Samson judged Israel in the same manner as their Father in heaven; as it is said: Dan shall judge his people as One.¹³ R. Johanan also said: Samson was called by the name of the Holy One, blessed be He; as it is said: For the Lord God is a sun and a shield.¹⁴ According to this argument, [his name] may not be erased!¹⁵ — The intention is that [his name] was typical of the name of the Holy One, blessed be He;¹⁶ as the Holy One, blessed be He, shields the whole world, so Samson shielded Israel during his generation.

R. Johanan also said: Balaam was lame in one leg, as it is said: And he went shefi;¹⁷ Samson was lame in both legs, as it is said: An adder in the path.¹⁸

Our Rabbis have taught: Five were created after the likeness of Him Who is above, and all of them incurred punishment on account of [the feature which distinguished] them: Samson in his strength, Saul in his neck,¹⁹ Absalom in his hair,²⁰ Zedekiah in his eyes, and Asa in his feet. 'Samson [was punished] in his strength', as it is written: And his strength went from him.²¹ 'Saul [was punished] in his neck', as it is written: Saul took his sword and fell upon it.²² 'Absalom [was punished] in his hair', as we shall have occasion to explain later. Zedekiah [was punished] in his eyes, as it is written: They put out the eyes of Zedekiah.²³ Asa [was punished] in his feet, as it is written: But in the time of his old age he was diseased in his feet;²⁴ and Rab Judah said in the name of Rab, Podagra [gout] attacked him.

Mar Zutra, son of R. Nahman, asked R. Nahman, What is Podagra like? — He answered: Like a needle in living flesh. How did he know this? — Some say he suffered from it himself; others say that he heard it from his teacher;²⁵ and others declare, The secret of the Lord is with them that fear Him, and He will shew them His covenant.²⁶

Raba expounded: Why was Asa punished? Because he imposed forced labour²⁷ upon the disciples of the Sages, as it is said: Then King Asa made a proclamation unto all Judah; none was exempted.²⁸ What means 'none was exempted'? — Rab Judah said in the name of Rab: Even the bridegroom from his chamber and the bride from her canopy.

It is written: And Samson went down to Timnah,²⁹ and it is written: Behold, thy father-in-law goeth up to Timnah!³⁰ R. Eleazar said: Since in the case of Samson he was disgraced there, it is written in connection with it 'went down;' but in the case of Judah, since he was exalted in it,³¹ there is written in connection with it 'goeth up'. R. Samuel b. Nahmani said: There are two places named Timnah; one [was reached] by going down and the other by going up. R. Papa said: There is only one place named Timnah; who came to it from one direction had to descend and from another direction had to ascend, as, e.g., Wardina, Be Bari and the market-place of Neresh.³²

She sat in the gate of Enaim.³³ R. Alexander said: It teaches that she [Tamar] went and sat at the entrance [of the hospice] of our father Abraham, to see which place all eyes [‘enaim] look. R. Hanin said in the name of Rab: It is a place named Enaim, as it states: Tappuah and Enam.³⁴ R. Samuel b. Nahmani said: [It is so called] because she gave eyes to her words.³⁵ When [Judah] solicited her, he asked her, ‘Art thou perhaps a Gentile?’ She replied: ‘I am a proselyte’. ‘Art thou perhaps a married woman?’ She replied: ‘I am unmarried’. ‘Perhaps thy father has accepted on thy behalf betrothals?’³⁶ She replied: ‘I am an orphan’. ‘Perhaps thou art unclean?’ She replied: ‘I am clean’.

And he planted a tamarisk tree in Beer-sheba.³⁷ Resh Lakish said: It teaches that he [Abraham] made an orchard and planted in it all kinds of choice fruits. R. Judah and R. Nehemiah [differ in this matter]; one said that it was an orchard and the other that it was a hospice. It is right according to him who said that it was an orchard, since it is written ‘and he planted’; but according to him who said that it was a hospice, what means ‘and he planted?’ — It is similarly written: And he shall plant the tents of his palace, etc.³⁸

And he called there on the name of the Lord, the Everlasting God.³⁹ Resh Lakish said: Read not ‘and he called’ but 'and he made to call', thereby teaching that our father Abraham caused the name of the Holy One, blessed be He, to be uttered by the mouth of every passer-by. How was this? After [travellers] had eaten and drunk, they stood up to bless him; but, said he to them, 'Did you eat of mine? You ate of that which belongs to the God of the Universe. Thank, praise and bless Him who spake and the world came into being'.

When Judah saw her, he thought her to be an harlot; for she had covered her face.¹ Because she had covered her face he thought her to be an harlot! — R. Eleazar said: She had covered her face in her father-in-law's house;² for R. Samuel b. Nahmani said in the name of R. Jonathan: Every daughter-in-law who is modest in her father-in-law's house merits that kings and prophets should issue from her. Whence is this? From Tamar. Prophets [issued from her], as it is written: The vision of Isaiah the son of Amoz,³ and kings [issued from her] through David; and R. Levi has said: This is a tradition in our possession from our fathers that Amoz and Amaziah⁴ were brothers.

When she was brought forth.⁵ Instead of muzeth the verb should have been mithwazzeth!⁶ R. Eleazar said: [The verb in the text implies] that after her proofs⁷ were found, Samael⁸ came and removed them, and Gabriel⁹ came and restored them. That is what is written: For the Chief Musician, the silent dove of them that are afar off. Of David, Michtam¹⁰ — R. Johanan said: At the time when her proofs were removed, she became like a silent dove. 'Of David', 'Michtam' — [that means] there issued from her David who was meek [mach] and perfect [tam] to all. Another explanation of 'Michtam' is: his wound [makkah]¹¹ was whole [tammah], since he was born already circumcised. Another explanation of 'Michtam' is: just as in his youth [before he became king] he made himself small in the presence of anyone greater than himself to study Torah, so was he the same in his greatness.¹²

She sent to her father-in-law, saying: By the man whose these are, am I with child.¹³ She ought to have told [the messenger] plainly!¹⁴ — R. Zutra b. Tobiah said in the name of Rab — another version is, R. Hama b. Bizna said in the name of R. Simeon the Pious; and still another version is, R. Johanan said in the name of R. Simeon b. Yohai: Better for a man to cast himself into a fiery furnace rather than shame his fellow in public. Whence is this? From Tamar.¹⁵

Discern, I pray thee.¹⁶ R. Hama b. Hanina said: With the word 'discern' [Judah] made an announcement to his father, and with the word 'discern' an announcement was made to him. With the word 'discern' he made an announcement — Discern now whether it be thy son's coat or not;¹⁷ and with the word 'discern' an announcement was made to him — Discern, I pray thee, whose are these.¹⁶ The word 'na' ['I pray thee'] is nothing else than an expression of request. She said to him, 'I beg of thee, discern the face of thy Creator and hide not thine eyes from me'.¹⁸

And Judah acknowledged them, and said: She is more righteous than I.¹⁹ That is what R. Hanin b. Bizna said in the name of R. Simeon the Pious: Joseph who sanctified the heavenly Name in private²⁰ merited that one letter should be added to him from the Name of the Holy One, blessed be He, as it is written: He appointed it in Joseph for a testimony.²¹ Judah, however, who sanctified the heavenly Name in public merited that the whole of his name should be called after the Name of the Holy One, blessed be He.²² When he confessed and said: She is more righteous than I, a Bath Kol²³ issued forth and proclaimed, 'Thou didst rescue Tamar and her two sons from the fire. By thy life, I will rescue through thy merit three of thy descendants from the fire'. Who are they? Hananiah, Mishaël and Azariah.²⁴ 'She is more righteous than I' — how did he know this?²⁵ A Bath Kol issued forth and proclaimed, 'From Me came forth secrets.'²⁶

And he knew her again no more.²⁷ Samuel the elder, father-in-law of R. Samuel b. Ammi said in the name of R. Samuel b. Ammi: Having once known her,²⁸ he did not separate from her again. It is written here, 'And he knew her again no more [Yasaf], and elsewhere it is written: With a great voice increasing [Yasaf].'²⁹

ABSALOM GLORIED IN HIS HAIR etc. Our Rabbis have taught: Absalom rebelled [against his father] through his hair, as it is said: There was none to be so much praised as Absalom for his beauty . . . And when he polled his head, now it was at every year's end that he polled it because the hair was heavy on him therefore he polled it, he weighed the hair of his head at two hundred shekels, after the king's weight.³⁰ It has been taught that [the king's weight] was the weight with which the men of Tiberias and Sepphoris weigh. Therefore he was hanged by his hair, as it is said: And Absalom chanced to meet the servants of David. And Absalom rode upon his mule, and the mule went under the thick boughs of a great oak, and his head caught hold of the oak, and he was taken up between the heaven and the earth,; and the mule that was under him went on.³¹ He took a sword and wished to cut himself loose;³² but it was taught in the School of R. Ishmael, At that moment Sheol was split asunder beneath him.³³

And the king was much moved, and went up to the chamber over the gate, and wept; and as he went, thus he said: O my son Absalom, my son, my son Absalom! would God I had died for thee, O Absalom, my son, my son.³⁴ And the king covered his face, and the king cried with a loud voice, O my son Absalom, O Absalom my son, my son.³⁵ Why is 'my son' repeated eight times? Seven to raise him from the seven divisions of Gehinnom; and as for the last, some say to unite his [severed] head to his body and others say to bring him into the World to Come.

Now Absalom in his lifetime had taken and reared up.³⁶ What means 'had taken'? — Resh Lakish said: He had made a bad purchase for himself.³⁷ The pillar which is in the king's dale, etc. — R. Hanina b. Papa said: In the deep plan of the King of the Universe;³⁸

as it is written: I will raise up evil against thee out of thine own house.¹ Similarly it is stated: So he sent him [Joseph] out of the vale of Hebron.² R. Hanina b. Papa said: [The meaning is:] It was through the deep plan of that righteous man [Abraham] who had been buried in Hebron; as it is written: Know of a surety that thy seed shall be a stranger in a land that is not theirs.³

For he said: I have no son.⁴ Had he, then, no sons? Behold it is written: And unto Absalom there were born three sons and one daughter!⁵ — R. Isaac b. Abdimi said: [His meaning was] that he had no son fit for the kingship. R. Hisda said: There is a tradition that whoever burns his neighbour's produce will not leave a son to succeed him; and he [Absalom] had burnt [the produce] of Joab, as it is written: Therefore he said unto his servants, See, Joab's field is near mine, and he hath barley there; go and set it on fire. And Absalom's servants set the field on fire.⁶

IT IS THE SAME IN CONNECTION WITH THE GOOD. MIRIAM etc. Is this like [the other cases mentioned]? There she waited a short while [for Moses], here [the Israelites waited for her] seven days?⁷ — Abaye said: Read that in connection with the good [the principle of measure for measure] does not apply. Raba said to him, But the Mishnah teaches IT IS THE SAME IN CONNECTION WITH THE GOOD! But, said Raba, the Mishnah must be understood thus: It is the same in connection with the good that there is the same measure; nevertheless the measure in the case of the good is greater than the measure in the case of punishment.⁸

And his sister stood afar off.⁹ R. Isaac said: The whole of this verse is spoken with reference to the Shechinah: 'and stood', as it is written: And the Lord came and stood etc.¹⁰ 'His sister', as it is written: Say unto wisdom, thou art my Sister.¹¹ 'Afar off', as it is written: The Lord appeared from afar unto me.¹² 'To know', as it is written: For the Lord is a God of knowledge.¹³ 'What', as it is written: What doth the Lord require of thee?¹⁴ 'Done', as it is written: Surely the Lord God will do nothing.¹⁵ 'To him', as it is written: And called it Lord is peace.¹⁶

Now there arose a new king etc.¹⁷ Rab and Samuel [differ in their interpretation]; one said that he was really new, while the other said that his decrees were made new. He who said that he was really new did so because it is written 'new'; and he who said that his decrees were made new did so because it is not stated that [the former king] died and he reigned [in his stead]. Who knew not Joseph — he was like one who did not know [Joseph] at all.

And he said unto his people, Behold the people of the children of Israel.¹⁸ A Tanna taught: He [Pharaoh] originated the plan first, and therefore was punished first. He originated the plan first, as it is written: And he said unto his people; therefore he was punished first, as it is written: Upon thee, and upon thy people, and upon all thy servants.¹⁹

Come, let us deal wisely with him²⁰ — it should have been with them! — R. Hama b. Hanina said: [Pharaoh meant,] Come and let us outwit the Saviour of Israel. With what shall we afflict them? If we afflict them with fire, it is written: For, behold the Lord will come with fire,²¹ and it continues, For by fire will the Lord plead etc.²² [If we afflict them] with the sword, it is written: And by His sword with all flesh.²³ But come and let us afflict them with water, because the Holy One, blessed be He, has already sworn that he will not bring a flood upon the world; as it is said: For this is as the waters of Noah unto Me, etc.²⁴ They were unaware, however, that He would not bring a flood upon the whole world but upon one people He would bring it; or alternatively, He would not bring [the flood] but they would go and fall into it. Thus it says: And the Egyptians fled towards it.²⁵ This is what R. Eleazar said: What means that which is written: Yea, in the thing wherein they zadu [dealt proudly] against them?²⁶ In the pot in which they cooked were they cooked. Whence is it learnt that 'zadu' means cooking? — Because it is written: And Jacob sod [wa-yazed] pottage.²⁷

R. Hiyya b. Abba said in the name of R. Simai: There were three in that plan,²⁸ viz. Balaam, Job²⁹ and Jethro. Balaam who devised it was slain; Job who silently acquiesced was afflicted with sufferings; Jethro, who fled, merited that his descendants should sit in the Chamber of Hewn Stone,³⁰ as it is said: And the families of scribes which dwelt at Jabez; the Tirathites, the Shimeathites, the Sucathites. These are the Kenites that came of Hammath, the father of the house of Rechab;³¹ and it is written: And the children of the Kenite, Moses' father-in-law etc.³²

And fight against us and get them up out of the land³³ — it should have read 'and we will get us up!'³⁴ — R. Abba b. Kahana said: It is like a man who curses himself and hangs the curse upon somebody else.

Therefore they did set over him taskmasters³⁵ — it should have read 'over them'! — It was taught in the School of R. Eleazar b. Simeon, It indicates that they brought a brick-mould and hung it round Pharaoh's neck; and every Israelite who complained that he was weak was told, 'Art thou weaker than Pharaoh?'

Missim ['taskmasters'] — i.e., something which forms [mesim].³⁶ 'To afflict him with their burdens' — it should have read 'them'! — The [meaning is] to afflict Pharaoh with the burdens of Israel.³⁷

interpretation]; one said, [They were so called] because they endangered [mesakkenoth] their owners,³⁸ while the other said because they impoverished [memaskenoth] their owners,³⁹ for a master has declared that whoever occupies himself with building becomes impoverished.⁴⁰

Pithom and Raamses³⁵ — Rab and Samuel differ [in their interpretation];⁴¹ one said: Its real name was Pithom, and why was it called Raamses? Because one building after another collapsed [mithroses]. The other said that its real name was Raamses, and why was it called Pithom? Because the mouth of the deep [pi tehom] swallowed up one building after another.

But the more they afflicted him, the more he will multiply and the more he will spread abroad⁴² — it should have read ‘the more they multiplied and the more they spread abroad!’ — Resh Lakish said: The Holy Spirit announced to them. ‘The more he will multiply and the more he will spread abroad’.

And they were grieved [wa-yakuzu] because of the children of Israel⁴² — this teaches that they were like thorns [kozim] in their eyes.

with rigour [parek].¹ R. Eleazar said: [It means] with a tender mouth [peh rak];² R. Samuel b. Nahmani said: [It means] with rigorous work [perikah]. And they made their lives bitter with hard service, in mortar and in brick etc. Raba said: At first it was in mortar and in brick; but finally it was in all manner of service in the field. All their service wherein they made them serve with rigour.³ R. Samuel b. Nahmani said in the name of R. Jonathan: They changed men's work for the women and the women's work for the men; and even he who explained [parek] above as meaning 'with tender mouth' admits that here it means 'with rigorous work'.

R. Awira expounded: As the reward for the righteous women who lived in that generation were the Israelites delivered from Egypt. When they went to draw water, the Holy One, blessed be He, arranged that small fishes should enter their pitchers, which they drew up half full of water and half full of fishes. They then set two pots on the fire, one for hot water and the other for the fish, which they carried to their husbands in the field, and washed, anointed, fed, gave them to drink and had intercourse with them among the sheepfolds, as it is said: When ye lie among the sheepfolds etc.⁴ As the reward for 'When ye lie among the sheepfolds', the Israelites merited the spoliation of the Egyptians, as it is said: As the wings of a dove covered with silver, and her pinions with yellow gold.⁵ After the women had conceived they returned to their homes; and when the time of childbirth arrived, they went and were delivered in the field beneath the apple-tree, as it is said: Under the apple-tree I caused thee to come forth [from thy mother's womb] etc.⁶ The Holy One, blessed be He, sent down someone from the high heavens who washed and straightened the limbs [of the babes] in the same manner that a midwife straightens the limbs of a child; as it is said: And as for thy nativity, in the day thou wast born thy navel was not cut, neither wast thou washed in water to cleanse thee.⁷ He also provided for them two cakes, one of oil and one of honey, as it is said: And He made him to suck honey out of the rock, and oil etc.⁸ When the Egyptians noticed them, they went to kill them; but a miracle occurred on their behalf so that they were swallowed in the ground, and [the Egyptians] brought oxen and ploughed over them, as it is said: The ploughers ploughed upon my back.⁹ After they had departed, [the Israelite women with their babes] broke through [the earth] and came forth like the herbage of the field, as it is said: I caused thee to multiply as the bud of the field;¹⁰ and when [the babes] had grown up, they came in flocks to their homes, as it is said: And thou didst increase and wax great and didst come with ornaments¹¹ — read not with ornaments [ba'adi 'adayim] but in flocks [be'edre 'adarim]. At the time the Holy One, blessed be He, revealed Himself by the Red Sea, they recognised Him first, as it is said: This is my God and I will praise Him.¹²

And the king of Egypt spake to the Hebrew midwives etc.¹³ Rab and Samuel [differ in their interpretation]; one said they were mother and daughter, and the other said they were daughter-in-law and mother-in-law. According to him who declared they were mother and daughter, they were Jochebed and Miriam; and according to him who declared they were daughter-in-law and mother-in-law, they were Jochebed and Elisheba.¹⁴ There is a teaching in agreement with him who said they were mother and daughter; for it has been taught: ‘Shiphrah’¹⁵ is Jochebed; and why was her name called Shiphrah? Because she straightened [meshappereth] the limbs of the babe. Another explanation of Shiphrah is that the Israelites were fruitful [sheparu] and multiplied in her days. ‘Pu’ah’ is Miriam; and why was her name called Puah? Because she cried out [po’ah] to the child¹⁶ and brought it forth. Another explanation of Pu’ah is that she used to cry out through the Holy Spirit¹⁷ and say: ‘My mother will bear a son who will be the saviour of Israel’.

And he said: When ye do the office of a midwife to the Hebrew women etc.¹⁸ What means ‘obnayim’?¹⁹ R. Hanan said: He entrusted them with an important sign and told them that when a woman bends to deliver a child, her thighs grow cold like stones [‘abanim’].²⁰ Another explains [the word ‘obnayim’] in accordance with what is written: Then I went down to the potter’s house, and, behold, he wrought his work on the wheels.²¹ As in the case of a potter, there is a thigh on one side, a thigh on the other side and the wooden block in between, so also with a woman there is a thigh on one side, a thigh on the other side and the child in between.

If it be a son, then ye shall kill him.²² R. Hanina said: He entrusted them with an important sign, viz., if it is a son, his face is turned downward and if a daughter, her face is turned upward.²³ But the midwives feared God, and did not as the king of Egypt spoke to them.²⁴ Instead of alehen [‘to them’] we should have had ‘lahen’!²⁵ — R. Jose son of R. Hanina said: It teaches that he solicited them for immoral intercourse,²⁶ but they refused to yield. But saved the men children alive — A Tanna taught: Not only did they not put them to death, but they supplied them with water and food.²⁷ And the midwives said unto Pharaoh, Behold the Hebrew women are not as the Egyptian women etc.²⁸ What means hayoth?²⁹ If it is to say they were actually midwives,³⁰ do you infer that a midwife does not require another midwife to deliver her child! — But [the meaning is] they said to him, This people are compared to an animal [hayyah] — Judah [is called] a lion’s whelp;³¹ of Dan [it is said] Dan shall be a serpent;³² Naphtali [is called] a hind let loose;³³ Issachar a strong ass;³⁴ Joseph a firstling bullock;³⁵ Benjamin a wolf that ravineth.³⁶ [Of those sons of Jacob where a comparison with an animal] is written in connection with them, it is written: but [in the instances where such a comparison] is not written, there is the text: What was thy mother? A lioness; she couched among lions etc.³⁷

And it came to pass, because the midwives feared God, that He made them houses.³⁸ Rab and Samuel [differ in their interpretation]; one said they are the priestly and Levitical houses, and the other said they are the royal houses. One who says they are the priestly and Levitical houses: Aaron and Moses; and one who says they are the royal houses: for also David descended from Miriam, as it is written: And Azubah died, and Caleb took unto him Ephrath, which bare him Hur,³⁹ and it is written: Now David was the son of that Ephrathite etc.⁴⁰

And Caleb the son of Hezron begat children of Azubah his wife and of Jerioth,’ and these were her sons: Jeshar and Shobab and Ardon.⁴¹ ‘The son of Hezron’? He was the son of Jephunneh!⁴² — [It means] that he was a son who turned [panah] from the counsel of the spies. Still, he was the son of Kenaz, as it is written: And Othniel the son of Kenaz, Caleb’s younger brother, took it!⁴³ — Raba said: He was the stepson of Kenaz.

There is also evidence for this, since it is written, [And Caleb the son of Jephunneh] the Kenizzite.¹ Conclude, therefore, that Azubah is identical with Miriam; and why was her name called Azubah? Because all men forsook her ['azabuhah] at first.² 'Begat!'³ But he was married to her! — R. Johanan said: Whoever marries a woman for the name of heaven,⁴ the text ascribes it to him as though he had begotten her. 'Jerioth' — [she was so named] because her face was like curtains.⁵ 'And these were her sons' — read not baneha [her sons] but boneha [her builders].⁶ 'Jesher' [he was so called] because he set himself right [yishsher].⁷ 'Shobab' — [he was so called] because he turned his inclination aside [shibbeb].⁸ 'And Ardon' — [he was so called] because he disciplined [radah] his inclination. Others say: Because his face was like a rose [wered].

And Ashhur the father of Tekoa had two wives, Helah and Naarah.⁹ Ashhur is identical with Caleb; and why was his name called Ashhur? Because his face was blackened [hushheru] through his fasts.¹⁰ 'The father' - he became a father to her.¹¹ 'Tekoa' - he fixed [taka'] his heart on his Father in heaven.¹² 'Had two wives' — [this means] Miriam became like two wives. 'Helah and Naarah' — she was not both Helah and Naarah, but at first she was Helah [an invalid] and finally Naarah [a young girl].¹³ And the sons of Helah were Zereth, Zohar and Ethnan.¹⁴ 'Zereth' — [Miriam was so called] — because she became the rival [zarah] of her contemporaries [in beauty]. 'Zohar' — because her face was [beautiful] like the noon [zoharayim]. 'Ethnan' — because whoever saw her took a present ['ethnan] to his wife.¹⁵

And Pharaoh charged all his people.¹⁶ R. Jose son of R. Hanina said: He imposed the same decree upon his own people.¹⁷ R. Jose son of R. Hanina also said: He made three decrees: first, 'if it be a son, then ye shall kill him'; then 'every son that is born ye shall cast into the river'; and finally he imposed the same decree upon his own people.

And there went a man of the house of Levi.¹⁸ Where did he go? R. Judah b. Zebina said that he went in the counsel of his daughter. A Tanna taught: Amram was the greatest man of his generation; when he saw that the wicked Pharaoh had decreed 'Every son that is born ye shall cast into the river', he said: In vain do we labour. He arose and divorced his wife.¹⁹ All [the Israelites] thereupon arose and divorced their wives. His daughter said to him, 'Father, thy decree is more severe than Pharaoh's; because Pharaoh decreed only against the males whereas thou hast decreed against the males and females. Pharaoh only decreed concerning this world whereas thou hast decreed concerning this world and the World to Come.'²⁰ In the case of the wicked Pharaoh there is a doubt whether his decree will be fulfilled or not, whereas in thy case, though thou art righteous, it is certain that thy decree will be fulfilled, as it is said: Thou shalt also decree a thing, and it shall be established unto thee!²¹ He arose and took his wife back; and they all arose and took their wives back.

And took to wife¹⁸ — it should have read 'and took back'!²² R. Judah b. Zebina said: — He acted towards her as though it had been the first marriage; he seated her in a palanquin, Aaron and Miriam danced before her, and the Ministering Angels proclaimed, A joyful mother of children.²³

A daughter of Levi.¹⁸ How is this possible! She was one hundred and thirty years old, and he calls her 'a daughter'! (For R. Hama b. Hanina said: This²⁴ refers to Jochebed whose conception occurred during the journey [to Egypt] and her birth between the walls;²⁵ as it is said: Who was born to Levi in Egypt²⁶ — her birth occurred in Egypt but her conception did not occur there.)²⁷ — Rab Judah said: [She is called 'a daughter'] because the signs of maidenhood were reborn in her.²⁸

And the woman conceived and bare a son.²⁹ But she had already been pregnant three months!³⁰ — R. Judah b. Zebina said: It compares the bearing of the child to its conception; as the conception was painless so was the bearing painless. Hence [it is learnt] that righteous women were not included in the decree upon Eve.³¹

And when she saw him that he was good.²⁹ It has been taught: R. Meir says: His name was Tob [good]; R. Judah says: His name was Tobiah; R. Nehemiah says: [She foresaw that he would be] worthy of the prophetic gift; others say: He was born circumcised; and the Sages declare, At the time when Moses was born, the whole house was filled with light — it is written here, And when she saw him that he was good, and elsewhere it is written: And God saw the light that it was good.³²

She hid him three months.²⁹ [She was able to do this] because the Egyptians only counted [the period of her pregnancy] from the time that she was restored [to youth], but she was then already pregnant three months.

And when she could not longer hide him³³ — why? She should have gone on hiding him! — But whenever the Egyptians were informed that a child was born, they would take other children there so that it should hear them [crying] and cry with them; as it is written: Take us the foxes, the little foxes etc.³⁴

She took for him an ark of bulrushes³⁵ — why just bulrushes? R. Eleazar said: Hence [it is learnt] that to the righteous their money is dearer than their body;³⁵ and why so? — That they should not stretch out their hand to robbery.³⁶ R. Samuel b. Nahmani says: [She selected them] because they are a soft material which can withstand both soft and hard materials.³⁷

And daubed it with slime and with pitch³⁸ — A Tanna taught: The slime was inside and the pitch outside so that that righteous child should not smell the bad odour.

And she put the child therein and laid it in the reeds [suf]³⁸ — R. Eleazar said: In the Red [suf] Sea; R. Samuel b. Nahmani said:

Talmud - Mas. Sotah 12b

It means reeds, as it is written: The reeds and flags shall wither away.¹

And the daughter of Pharaoh came down to bathe at the river.² R. Johanan said in the name of R. Simeon b. Yohai: It teaches that she went down there to cleanse herself of her father's idols;³ and thus it says: When the Lord shall have washed away the filth of the daughters of Zion etc.⁴ And her maidens walked along etc.⁵ R. Johanan said: The word for 'walk' means nothing else than death; and thus it says: Behold I am going to die.⁶ And she saw the ark among the reeds.² When [the maidens] saw that she wished to rescue Moses, they said to her, 'Mistress, it is the custom of the world that when a human king makes a decree, though everybody else does not obey it, at least his children and the members of his household obey it; but thou dost transgress thy father's decree!' Gabriel came and beat them to the ground.

And sent her handmaid to fetch it² — R. Judah and R. Nehemiah [differ in their interpretation]; one said that the word means 'her hand' and the other said that it means 'her handmaid'. He who said that it means 'her hand' did so because it is written ammathah;⁷ he who said that it means 'her handmaid' did so because the text has not yadah [her hand]. But according to him who said that it means 'her handmaid', it has just been stated that Gabriel came and beat them to the ground!⁸ — He left her one, because it is not customary for a king's daughter to be unattended. But according to him who said that it means 'her hand', the text should have been yadah! — It teaches us that [her arm] became lengthened; for a master has said: You find it so⁹ with the arm of Pharaoh's daughter and similarly with the teeth of the wicked, as it is written: Thou hast broken [shibbarta] the teeth of the wicked,¹⁰ and Resh Lakish said: Read not shibbarta but shirbabta [thou has lengthened].¹¹

She opened it and saw the child¹² — it should have been 'and saw'. R. Jose b. R. Hanina said: She saw the Shechinah with him.¹³

And, behold, the boy wept¹² — he is called a 'child' and then a 'boy'! — A Tanna taught: He was a child but his voice was like that of a grown boy; such is the view of R. Judah. R. Nehemiah said to him, If so, you have made our master Moses into one possessed of a blemish;¹⁴ but it teaches that his mother made for him a canopy [such as is used at the marriage] of boys¹⁵ in the ark, saying: 'Perhaps I may not be worthy [to be present at] his marriage-canopy'.

And she had compassion on him and said: Of the Hebrews' children is this.¹² How did she know it? — R. Jose b. R. Hanina said: Because she saw that he was circumcised. 'Is this' — R. Johanan said: It teaches that she unwittingly prophesied that 'this' one will fall [into the river] but no other will fall.¹⁶ That is what R. Eleazar said: What means the text: And when they shall say unto you, Seek unto them that have familiar spirits and unto the wizards, that chirp and that mutter?¹⁷ They foresee and know not what they foresee; they mutter and know not what they mutter. They saw that Israel's saviour would be punished through water; so they arose and decreed, Every son that is born ye shall cast into the river.¹⁸ After they had thrown Moses [into the water], they said: 'We do not see that sign any longer';¹⁹ they thereupon rescinded their decree. But they knew not that he was to be punished through the water of Meribah.²⁰ That is what R. Hama b. Hanina said: What means the text: These are the waters of Meribah, because they strove?²¹ These are [the waters] about which Pharaoh's magicians saw and erred; and concerning this Moses said: Six hundred thousand footmen etc.²² Moses said to Israel, 'On my account were all of you delivered [from drowning by the edict of Pharaoh]'.²³

R. Hanina b. Papa said: That day²⁴ was the twenty-first of Nisan,²⁵ and the Ministering Angels spoke before the Holy One, blessed be He, 'Lord of the Universe! Shall he who will utter a song to Thee by the Red Sea on this day be punished on this day?' R. Aha b. Hanina said: That day was the sixth of Sivan,²⁶ and the Ministering Angels spoke before the Holy One, blessed be He, 'Lord of the Universe! Shall he who will receive the Torah on Mount Sinai on this day be punished on this day?' It is quite right according to him who said that it was the sixth of Sivan, for then it occurred three months [after his birth]; for a master has said: Moses died on the seventh of Adar²⁷ and was born on the seventh of Adar, and from the seventh of Adar to the sixth of Sivan is three months. But according to him who said that it was the twenty-first of Nisan, how could it have been?²⁸ — That year was a leap year;²⁹ the greater part of the first [Adar] and the greater part of the last [Nisan] and a full month in between.³⁰

Then said his sister to Pharaoh's daughter, Shall I go and call thee a nurse of the Hebrew women?³¹ Why just 'of the Hebrew women'? — It teaches that they handed Moses about to all the Egyptian women but he would not suck. He³² said: Shall a mouth which will speak with the Shechinah suck what is unclean! That is what is written: Whom will He teach knowledge etc.³³ — To whom will He teach knowledge and to whom will He make the message understandable? To them that are weaned from the milk, and drawn from the breasts.

And Pharaoh's daughter said unto her, Go etc.³⁴ R. Eleazar said: It teaches that she went quickly like a young woman.³⁵ R. Samuel b. Nahmani said: [She is called] the maid ['almah] because she made the words secret.³⁶

And Pharaoh's daughter said unto her, Take this child away.³⁷ R. Hama b. Hanina said: She prophesied without knowing what she prophesied — Heliki ['take away'] — behold what is thine [ha sheliki].

And I will give thee thy wages.³⁸ R. Hama b. Hanina said: Not enough that the righteous have their loss restored to them but they also receive their reward in addition.

And Miriam the prophetess, the sister of Aaron, took etc.³⁹ The 'sister of Aaron' and not the sister of Moses! — R. Amram said in the name of Rab, and according to others it was R. Nahman who said in the name of Rab: It teaches that she prophesied while she yet was the sister of Aaron only⁴⁰ and said: 'My mother will bear a son who will be the saviour of Israel'. When Moses was born, the whole house was filled with light; and her father arose and kissed her upon her head, saying 'My daughter, thy prophecy has been fulfilled'; but when they cast him into the river, her father arose and smacked her upon her head, saying: 'Where, now, is thy prophecy!' That is what is written: And his sister stood afar off to know what would be done to him¹ — what would be the fate of her prophecy.

JOSEPH EARNED MERIT etc. Why the difference that first it is written: And Joseph went up to bury his father, and with him went up all the servants of Pharaoh etc.,² followed by, And all the house of Joseph, and his brethren, and his father's house,³ and in the sequel it is written: And Joseph returned into Egypt, he and his brethren,⁴ followed by, And all that went up with him to bury his father? — R. Johanan said: At first, before [the servants of Pharaoh] beheld the glory of the Israelites, they did not treat them with respect;⁵ but in the sequel, when they beheld their glory, they treated them with respect. For it is written: And they came to the threshing-floor of Atad;⁶ but is there a threshing-floor for brambles? — R. Abbahu said: It teaches that they surrounded Jacob's coffin with crowns like a threshing-floor which is surrounded with a hedge of brambles, because the sons of Esau, of Ishmael and of Keturah also came. A Tanna taught: They all came to wage war [against the Israelites]; but when they saw Joseph's crown hanging upon Jacob's coffin, they all took their crowns and hung them upon his coffin. A Tanna taught: Sixty-three crowns were hung upon Jacob's coffin.

And there they lamented with a very great and sore lamentation.⁷ It has been taught: Even the horses and asses [joined in the lamentation]. When [the cortege] arrived at the Cave of Machpelah, Esau came and wished to prevent [the interment there], saying to them, Mamre, Kiriath-arba, the same is Hebron⁸ — now R. Isaac has said: Kiriath-arba [is so called] because four couples [were buried there], viz. Adam and Eve, Abraham and Sarah, Isaac and Rebekah, and Jacob and Leah — [Jacob] had buried Leah in his portion and what remains belongs to me'. They replied to him, 'Thou didst sell it'. He said to them, 'Granted that I sold my birth-right, but did I sell my plain heir's right!' They replied: 'Yes, for it is written: In my grave which I [Jacob] have digged for me',⁹ and R. Johanan has said in the name of R. Simeon b. Jehozadak: The word kirah [dig] means nothing else than 'sale' [mekirah], and thus in the coast-towns they use kirah as a term for 'sale'. — He said to them, 'Produce a document [of sale] for me'. They replied to him, 'The document is in the land of Egypt. Who will go for it? Let Naphtali go, because he is swift as a hind'; for it is written: Naphtali is a hind let loose, he giveth goodly words¹⁰ — R. Abbahu said: Read not 'goodly words' [imre shefer] but imre sefer [words of a document]. Among those present was Hushim, a son of Dan, who was hard of hearing; so he asked them, 'What is happening?' They said to him, '[Esau] is preventing [the burial] until Naphtali returns from the land of Egypt'. He retorted: 'Is my grandfather to lie there in contempt until Naphtali returns from the land of Egypt!' He took a club and struck [Esau] on the head so that his eyes fell out and rolled to the feet of Jacob. Jacob opened his eyes and laughed; and that is what is written: The righteous shall rejoice when he seeth the vengeance; he shall wash his feet in the blood of the wicked.¹¹ At that time was the prophecy of Rebekah fulfilled, as it is written: Why should I be bereaved of you both in one day?¹² Although the death of the two of them did not occur on the one day, still their burial took place on the same day. — But if Joseph had not occupied himself with [Jacob's burial], would not his brethren have occupied themselves with it? Behold it is written: For his sons carried him into the land of Canaan!¹³ — They said [among themselves], 'Leave him [to conduct the interment]; for the honour [of our father] will be greater [when it is conducted] by kings than by commoners'.

WHOM HAVE WE GREATER THAN JOSEPH etc.? Our Rabbis have taught: Come and see how beloved were the commandments by Moses our teacher; for whereas all the Israelites occupied themselves with the spoil, he occupied himself with the commandments, as it is said: The wise in heart will receive commandments etc.¹⁴ But whence did Moses know the place where Joseph was buried? — It is related that Serah, daughter of Asher, was a survivor of that generation. Moses went to her and asked: 'Dost thou know where Joseph was buried?' She answered him, 'The Egyptians made a metal coffin for him which they fixed in the river Nile so that its waters should be blessed'. Moses went and stood on the bank of the Nile and exclaimed: 'Joseph, Joseph! the time has arrived which the Holy One, blessed be He, swore, "I will deliver you", and the oath which thou didst impose upon the Israelites¹⁵ has reached [the time of fulfilment]; if thou wilt shew thyself, well and good; otherwise, behold, we are free of thine oath'. Immediately Joseph's coffin floated [on the surface of the water]. Be not astonished that iron should float; for, behold, it is written: As one was felling a beam, the axe-head fell into the water etc. Alas, my master, for it was borrowed. And the man of God said: Where fell it? And he shewed him the place. And he cut down a stick and cast it in thither, and made the iron to swim.¹⁶ Now cannot the matter be argued by a fortiori reasoning — if iron floated on account of Elisha who was the disciple of Elijah who was the disciple of Moses, how much more so on account of Moses our teacher! R. Nathan says: He was buried in the sepulchre of the kings; and Moses went and stood by the sepulchre of the kings and exclaimed. 'Joseph! the time has arrived which the Holy One, blessed be He, swore "I will deliver you", and the oath which thou didst impose upon the Israelites has reached [the time of fulfilment]; if thou wilt shew thyself, well and good; otherwise, behold, we are free of thine oath'. At that moment, Joseph's coffin shook, and Moses took it and carried it with him. All those years that the Israelites were in the wilderness, those two chests, one of the dead and the other of the Shechinah,¹⁷ proceeded side by side, and passersby used to ask: 'What is the nature of those two chests?' They received the reply: 'One is of the dead and the other of the Shechinah'. 'But is it, then, the way of the dead to proceed with the Shechinah?' They were told,

'This one [Joseph] fulfilled all that was written in the other'.¹ But if Moses had not occupied himself with him, would not the Israelites have occupied themselves with him? Behold, it is written: And the bones of Joseph which the children of Israel brought up out of Egypt buried they in Shechem!² Furthermore, if the Israelites had not occupied themselves with him, would not his own sons have done so? And, behold, it is written: And they became the inheritance of the children of Joseph!³ — They⁴ said [to one another], 'Leave him; his honour will be greater [when the burial is performed] by many rather than by few'; and they also said: 'Leave him; his honour will be greater [when the burial is performed] by the great rather than by the small'.

Buried they in Shechem.³ Why just in Shechem? — R. Hama son of R. Hanina said: From Shechem they stole him,⁵ and to Shechem we will restore what is lost. The following verses are contradictory: it is written: And Moses took the bones of Joseph with him,⁶ and it is written: And the bones of Joseph which the children of Israel brought up⁷ etc.! — R. Hama son of R. Hanina said: Whoever performs a task without finishing it and another comes and completes it, Scripture ascribes it to the one who completed it as though he had performed it. R. Eleazar said: He⁸ is likewise deposed from his greatness; for it is written: And it came to pass at that time that Judah went down.⁹ R. Samuel b. Nahmani said: He also buries his wife and children; for it is written: Shua's daughter, the wife of Judah, died etc.,¹⁰ and it is written: But Er and Onan died.¹¹

Rab Judah said in the name of Rab: Why was Joseph called 'bones' during his lifetime?¹² Because he did not interfere to safeguard his father's honour when [his brothers] said to him, Thy servant our father¹³ and he made no reply to them. Rab Judah also said in the name of Rab, and others declare that it was R. Hama son of R. Hanina: Why did Joseph die before his brothers? Because he gave himself superior airs.

And Joseph was brought down to Egypt.¹⁴ R. Eleazar said: Read not 'was brought down' but 'brought down', because he brought Pharaoh's astrologers down from their eminence.¹⁵ And Potiphar, an officer of Pharaoh's bought him, Rab said: He bought him for himself;¹⁶ but Gabriel came and castrated him,¹⁷ and then Gabriel came and mutilated him [pera'], for originally his name

WHOM HAVE WE GREATER THAN MOSES etc. And the Lord said unto me, Let it suffice thee.¹⁹ R. Levi said: With the word 'suffice' [Moses] made an announcement and with the word 'suffice' an announcement was made to him. With the word 'suffice' he made an announcement: 'Suffice you';²⁰ and with the word 'suffice' an announcement was made to him: 'Let it suffice thee'. Another explanation of 'Let it suffice [rab] thee' is, Thou hast a master [rab], viz., Joshua.²¹ Another explanation of 'Let it suffice thee' is, That people should not say: How severe the Master is and how persistent the pupil is.²² And why so? In the School of R. Ishmael it was taught: According to the camel is the burden.²³

And he said unto them, I am an hundred and twenty years old this day.²⁴ Why does the text state 'this day?' [The meaning is], This day are my days and years completed.²⁵ Its purpose is to teach you that the Holy One, blessed be He, completes the years of the righteous from day to day, and from month to month; for it is written: The number of thy days I will fulfil.²⁶ I can no more go out and come in²⁴ — what means 'go out and come in'? If it is to be understood literally, behold it is written: And Moses was an hundred and twenty years old when he died; his eye was not dim, nor his natural force abated;²⁷ it is also written: And Moses went up from the plains of Moab unto mount Nebo;²⁸ and it has been taught: Twelve steps were there, but Moses mounted them in one stride! — R. Samuel b. Nahmani said in the name of R. Jonathan: [It means] to 'go out and come in' with words of Torah, thus indicating that the gates of wisdom were closed against him. And Moses and Joshua went, and presented themselves in the tent of meeting.²⁹ A Tanna taught: That was a Sabbath when two teachers [gave discourses] and the authority was taken from one to be transferred to the other. It has further been taught: R. Judah said: Were it not for a Scriptural text, it would be impossible to utter the following. Where did Moses die? In the portion of Reuben, for it is written: And Moses went up from the plains of Moab unto mount Nebo, and Nebo was located in the portion of Reuben, for it is written: And the children of Reuben built . . . and Nebo etc.³⁰ — It was called Nebo because three prophets [nebi'im] died there, viz. Moses, Aaron, and Miriam. — And where was Moses buried? In the portion of Gad, for it is written: And he provided the first part for himself etc.³¹ Now what was the distance between the portion of Reuben and that of Gad? Four mil.³² Who carried him those four mil? It teaches that Moses was laid upon the wings of the Shechinah, and the Ministering Angels kept proclaiming, He executed the justice of the Lord, and His judgments with Israel,³³ and the Holy One, blessed be He, declared: Who will rise up for Me against the evil-doers? Who will stand up for Me against the workers of iniquity?³⁴

Samuel³⁵ said [that God declared], Who is as the wise man? and who knoweth the interpretation of a thing?³⁶ R. Johanan said [that God declared], Where shall wisdom be found?³⁷ R. Nahman said [that God announced], So Moses died there etc.³⁸ Semalyon³⁹ said: So Moses died there, the great Sage of Israel.⁴⁰

It has been taught: R. Eliezer the Elder said: Over an area of twelve mil square, corresponding to that of the camp of Israel, a Bath Kol made the proclamation, 'So Moses died there', the great Sage of Israel. Others declare that Moses never died; it is written here, 'So Moses died there', and elsewhere it is written: And he was there with the Lord.⁴¹ As in the latter passage it means standing and ministering, so also in the former it means standing and ministering.

And He buried him in the valley in the land of Moab over against Beth-peor.⁴² R. Berechyah said: Although [Scripture provides] a clue within a clue, nevertheless no man knoweth of his sepulchre.⁴² The wicked Government once sent to the governor¹ of Beth-peor [the message], 'Shew us where Moses is buried'. When they stood above, it appeared to them to be below; when they were below, it appeared to them to be above. They divided themselves into two parties; to them who were standing above it appeared below, and to those who were below it appeared above. This is in fulfilment of what is said: 'No man knoweth of his sepulchre'. R. Hama son of R. Hanina said: Even Moses our teacher does not know where he is buried; it is written here, 'No man knoweth of his sepulchre', and it is written elsewhere, And this is the blessing wherewith Moses the man of God blessed.² R. Hama son of R. Hanina also said: Why was Moses buried near Beth-peor? To atone for the incident at Peor.³

R. Hama son of R. Hanina further said: What means the text: Ye shall walk after the Lord your God?⁴ Is it, then, possible for a human being to walk after the Shechinah; for has it not been said: For the Lord thy God is a devouring fire?⁵ But [the meaning is] to walk after the attributes of the Holy One, blessed be He. As He clothes the naked, for it is written: And the Lord God made for Adam and for his wife coats of skin, and clothed them,⁶ so do thou also clothe the naked. The Holy One, blessed be He, visited the sick, for it is written: And the Lord appeared unto him by the oaks of Mamre,⁷ so do thou also visit the sick. The Holy One, blessed be He, comforted mourners, for it is written: And it came to pass after the death of Abraham, that God blessed Isaac his son,⁸ so do thou also comfort mourners. The Holy one, blessed be He, buried the dead, for it is written: And He buried him in the valley,⁹ so do thou also bury the dead.

‘Coats of skin’ — Rab and Samuel [differ in their interpretation]; one said that it means a material that grows from the skin, and the other a material from which the [human] skin derives pleasure.¹⁰

R. Simlai expounded: Torah begins with an act of benevolence¹¹ and ends with an act of benevolence. It begins with an act of benevolence, for it is written: And the Lord God made for Adam and for his wife coats of skin, and clothed them;¹² and it ends with an act of benevolence, for it is written: ‘And He buried him in the valley’.

R. Simlai expounded: Why did Moses our teacher yearn to enter the land of Israel? Did he want to eat of its fruits or satisfy himself from its bounty? But thus spake Moses, ‘Many precepts were commanded to Israel which can only be fulfilled in the land of Israel. I wish to enter the land so that they may all be fulfilled by me’. The Holy One, blessed be He, said to him, ‘Is it only to receive the reward [for obeying the commandments] that thou seekest? I ascribe it to thee as if thou didst perform them’; as it is said: Therefore will I divide him a portion with the great, and he shall divide the spoil with the strong; because he poured out his soul unto death, and was numbered with the transgressors; yet he bare the sins of many, and made intercession for the transgressors.¹³ ‘Therefore will I divide him a portion with the great’ — it is possible [to think that his portion will be] with the [great of] later generations and not former generations; therefore there is a text to declare, ‘And he shall divide with the strong’, i.e., with Abraham, Isaac and Jacob who were strong in Torah and the commandments. ‘Because he poured out his soul unto death’ — because he surrendered himself to die, as it is said: And if not, blot me, I pray thee etc.¹⁴ ‘And was numbered with the transgressors’ — because he was numbered with them who were condemned to die in the wilderness. ‘Yet he bare the sins of many’ — because he secured atonement for the making of the Golden Calf. ‘And made intercession for the transgressors’ — because he begged for mercy on behalf of the sinners in Israel that they should turn in penitence; and the word pegi'ah [‘intercession’] means nothing else than prayer, as it is said: Therefore pray not thou for this people, neither lift up cry nor prayer for them, neither make intercession to Me.¹⁵

CHAPTER II

MISHNAH. [THE HUSBAND] BRINGS HER MEAL-OFFERING¹⁶ IN A BASKET OF PALM-TWIGS AND PLACES IT UPON HER HANDS IN ORDER TO WEARY HER. WITH ALL OTHER MEAL-OFFERINGS, THE BEGINNING AND END OF THEIR [SACRIFICE] ARE IN MINISTERING VESSELS; BUT WITH THIS, ITS BEGINNING IS IN A BASKET OF PALM-TWIGS AND ITS END IN A MINISTERING VESSEL. ALL OTHER MEAL-OFFERINGS REQUIRE OIL AND FRANKINCENSE, BUT THIS REQUIRES NEITHER OIL NOR FRANKINCENSE. ALL OTHER MEAL-OFFERINGS CONSIST OF WHEAT, BUT THIS CONSISTS OF BARLEY. THE MEAL-OFFERING OF THE ‘OMER,¹⁷ ALTHOUGH

CONSISTING OF BARLEY, WAS IN THE FORM OF GROATS; BUT THIS WAS IN THE FORM OF COARSE FLOUR. RABBAN GAMALIEL SAYS: AS HER ACTIONS WERE THE ACTIONS OF AN ANIMAL, SO HER OFFERING [CONSISTED OF] ANIMAL'S FODDER. GEMARA. It has been taught: Abba Hanin says in the name of R. Eliezer: What is the purpose [of placing the basket upon her hands]? In order to weary her so that she may retract.¹⁸ If the Torah has such consideration¹⁹ for them who transgress His will, how much more so for them who perform His will. But whence is it [known that the object of this regulation is] to show consideration; perhaps it is to avoid [the Divine Name on] the scroll being obliterated? — He is of the opinion

WITH ALL OTHER MEAL-OFFERINGS etc. The following is quoted in contradiction: How is the procedure of meal-offerings? A man brings a meal-offering from his house² in silver or golden baskets, places it in a ministering vessel, hallows it in a ministering vessel, adds to it its oil and frankincense, and carries it to a priest who carries it to the altar and brings it near unto the south-west corner opposite the point of the altar's horn, and that suffices. He then moves the frankincense to one side [of the vessel], takes a handful [of the flour] from a place where its oil is abundant, sets it in a ministering vessel, hallows it in a ministering vessel, gathers its frankincense and places it on the top thereof, and sets it upon the altar and fumigates it in a ministering vessel. He next salts [the handful of flour] and sets it upon the fire. When the handful has been offered, the remainder may be eaten, and the priests are allowed to mix it with wine, oil and honey, and are only forbidden to make it leaven.³ Now here it is taught that [meal-offerings are brought only] in silver or golden baskets!⁴ — R. Papa said: The correct version [of the Mishnah] is: in vessels which are proper to be used as ministering vessels. It therefore follows that a basket of palm-twigs is not proper to be used as a vessel. This would not agree with the view of R. Jose son of R. Judah; for it has been taught: As regards a ministering vessel of wood, Rabbi disqualifies it but R. Jose son of R. Judah allows it! — If you wish you may say that it is in accord even with the view of R. Jose son of R. Judah, because he is referring to [wooden vessels which are] valuable, but does he say that with regard to [wooden vessels which are] inferior?⁵ Does R. Jose son of R. Judah not hold with the text: Present it now unto thy governor?⁶

‘Places it in a ministering vessel and hallows it in a ministering vessel’. Is the conclusion to be drawn from this that the ministering vessels only hallow when such is the intention!⁷ — The correct version is: places it in a ministering vessel in order to hallow it in a ministering vessel. ‘Adds to it its oil and frankincense’; as it is said: He shall pour oil upon it, and put frankincense thereon.⁸ ‘And carries it to a priest’; for it is written: And he shall bring it to Aaron's sons etc.⁹ ‘Who carries it to the altar’; for it is written: And he shall bring it unto the altar.¹⁰ Brings it near unto the south-west corner opposite the point of the altar's horn, and that suffices’. Whence is this? — For it is written: And this is the law of the meal-offering: the sons of Aaron shall offer it before the Lord, before the altar;¹¹ and it has been taught: ‘Before the Lord’ — it is possible [to think that this means] on the west [side of the altar],¹² therefore the text declares, ‘Before the altar’.¹³ If [Scripture only had] ‘before the altar’, it is possible [to think that this means] on the south side, therefore the text declares, ‘Before the Lord’. So what was the procedure? He sets it on the south-west corner opposite the point of the altar's horn, and that suffices. R. Eleazar says: It is possible [to think that the meaning is] he sets it on the west of the horn or the south of the horn; but you can answer: Wherever you find two texts, one self-confirmatory and confirming the words of the other, whereas the second is self-confirmatory but annuls the words of the other, we abandon the latter and accept the former. Thus when you emphasize ‘before the Lord’ on the west [side of the altar],¹⁴ you annul ‘before the altar’ on the south side;¹⁵ but when you emphasize ‘before the altar’ on the south side,¹⁴ you confirm ‘before the Lord’ on the west side.¹⁴ What, then, is the procedure? He brings it on the south of the horn. But how do you confirm it?¹⁶ — R. Ashi said: This Tanna holds that the whole of the altar stood in the north.¹⁷

What means ‘and that suffices’?¹⁸ — R. Ashi said: It was necessary [to mention this], because otherwise it may have occurred to me to say that the bringing of the meal-offering itself [to the altar without the ministering vessel] is required. Consequently we are informed [that the contrary is the correct procedure]. But say that it is really so [and the ministering vessel is not necessary]! — The text states: And it shall be presented unto the priest, and he shall bring it unto the altar¹⁹ — as the presentation to the priest is in a [ministering] vessel, so also the bringing to the altar must be in a [ministering] vessel.

and fumigates it in a ministering vessel'. He fumigates it in a ministering vessel' [you say]!¹ — The correct version is: and sets it upon the altar in a ministering vessel to fumigate it. He next salts [the handful of flour] and sets it upon the fire'; for it is written: And every oblation of thy meal-offering shalt thou season with salt.² 'When the handful has been offered, the remainder may be eaten'. Whence is this? — For it is written: And the priest shall burn the memorial of it etc.,³ and it is written: And that which is left of the meal-offering shall be Aaron's and his sons'.⁴ 'When the handful has been offered etc.' — this⁵ is differently explained by two teachers; for it has been reported: From what time does the taking of the 'handful' render the eating of the remainder permissible? R. Hanina says: When the fire takes hold of it; R. Johanan said: When the fire burns the greater part of it. 'And the priests are allowed to mix it with wine, oil and honey' — for what reason? The text states: By reason of the anointing,⁶ i.e., as a mark of eminence, in the same manner as kings take their food. 'And are only forbidden to make it leaven'; for it is written: It shall not be baked with leaven, their portion⁷ — R. Simeon b. Lakish says: [It means] that even their portion must not be baked with leaven.

WITH ALL OTHER MEAL-OFFERINGS etc. But do all other meal-offerings⁸ require oil and frankincense? Behold, there is the meal-offering of the sinner concerning which the All-Merciful said: He shall put no oil upon it, neither shall he put any frankincense thereon!⁹ — This is what he intends: All other meal-offerings require oil and frankincense, and consist of wheat in the form of fine flour; but the meal-offering of the sinner, although it does not require oil and frankincense, consists of wheat in the form of fine-flour; the meal-offering of the 'omer, although it consists of barley, requires oil and frankincense and is in the form of groats; but this one [of the suspected woman] does not require oil and frankincense, and consists of barley in the form of coarse flour.

It has been taught: R. Simeon said: It is right that the meal-offering of a sinner should require oil and frankincense, so that a sinner should not gain;¹⁰ why, then, are they not required? That his offering should not be luxurious. It is also right that an ordinary sin-offering¹¹ should require drink-offerings, so that a sinner should not gain; why, then, are they not required? That his offering should not be luxurious. The sin-offering of a leper, however, and his trespass-offering do require drink-offerings because they are not due to sin. But that is not so; for, behold R. Samuel b. Nahmani said in the name of R. Jonathan: On account of seven faults does the plague of leprosy occur etc.!¹² — In this case he received atonement [of his sin] by the plague¹³ he suffered; and when he brings an offering, it is only to allow him to participate in what is holy.¹⁴ According to this conclusion, the sin-offering of a Nazirite should require drink-offerings, since it is not due to a sin! He holds with R. Eliezer ha-Kappar who said: A Nazirite is also a sinner.¹⁵

RABBAN GAMALIEL SAYS, AS etc. It has been taught: Rabban Gamaliel¹⁶ said to the Sages: Learned men, permit me to explain this allegorically.¹⁷

He had heard R. Meir say: She fed him with the dainties of the world; therefore her offering is animal's fodder.¹ Then said he to him, You may be right about a rich woman, but what of a poor woman! But [the reason is], As her actions were the action of an animal, so her offering [consisted of] animal's fodder.

MISHNAH. [THE PRIEST] TAKES AN EARTHENWARE BOWL AND POURS HALF A LOG OF WATER INTO IT FROM THE LAVER. R. JUDAH SAYS: A QUARTER [OF A LOG]. JUST AS [R. JUDAH] REDUCES THE AMOUNT OF WRITING,² SO HE REDUCES THE QUANTITY OF WATER. [THE PRIEST] ENTERS THE TEMPLE AND TURNS RIGHT. THERE WAS A PLACE THERE A CUBIT SQUARE IN EXTENT WITH A MARBLE TABLET, TO WHICH A RING WAS ATTACHED. HE LIFTS THIS OUT, TAKES SOME DUST FROM BENEATH IT WHICH HE PUTS [INTO THE BOWL] JUST SUFFICIENT TO BE VISIBLE ABOVE THE WATER; AS IT IS SAID, AND OF THE DUST THAT IS ON THE FLOOR OF THE TABERNACLE THE PRIEST SHALL TAKE, AND PUT IT INTO THE WATER.³

GEMARA. A Tanna taught: [The priest takes] a new earthenware bowl — such is the opinion of R. Ishmael. What is R. Ishmael's reason?⁴ — He derives it from the common use of the word 'vessel' [here and in the law] of a leper. As with the latter new earthenware was required, so here likewise was new earthenware required. Whence is it that there [with a leper it must be new]? — For it is written: And the priest shall command to kill one of the birds in an earthen vessel over running water⁵ — as it must be running water which has not been previously used, so also it must be a vessel which has not been previously used. According to this argument, as there [with a leper] it had to be running water, so also here [with a suspected woman] it had to be running water! — In the view of R. Ishmael that is indeed so; for R. Johanan said the water from the laver⁶ was according to R. Ishmael spring-water, and the Sages declare that it can be ordinary water. It may, however, be objected [to this argument] that as with a leper it is necessary to have cedar wood, hyssop and scarlet,⁷ [so are these required with the water of bitterness]!⁸ — Rabbah said: The text mentions in an earthen vessel,⁹ i.e., a vessel to which I referred previously.¹⁰ Raba said: [The Rabbis in our Mishnah] did not teach [that a used vessel may be employed] except when its exterior is not blackened [by smoke]; but if its exterior is blackened it is unfit for use. What is their reason? — It is analogous to the water: just as the water must not be changed in appearance,¹¹ so also the vessel must not be changed in appearance. Raba asked: How is it if the earthenware had been blackened and re-whitened by being passed through the furnace again? Do we say that since it has once been rejected, it remains rejected; or perhaps, since it has been restored, it is suitable? — Come and hear: 'R. Eleazar says: If a man twisted cedar wood, scarlet and hyssop into a cord for the purpose of carrying his bundle on his back, they are unfit [to be used in the ceremony of purification];' and yet they are here again smoothed out!¹² But in that case we suppose that [some of the material] has been peeled off.¹³

[THE PRIEST] ENTERS THE TEMPLE AND TURNS RIGHT etc. For what reason? Because a Master has declared: All the turns which thou dost make must only be to the right.

THERE WAS A PLACE THERE A CUBIT etc. Our Rabbis have taught: 'And of the dust that is etc.' — it is possible to think that [the priest] may prepare [dust] from outside and bring it in; therefore there is a text to state, 'On the floor of the tabernacle'. If 'on the floor of the tabernacle', it is possible to think that he may dig for it with an axe; therefore there is a text to state 'that is'. How was it done? If [dust] is there, take of it; if none is there, put some there [and take of it]. Another [Baraitha] taught: 'And of the dust that is' — this teaches that he prepares some from outside and brings it in. 'On the floor of the tabernacle' — Issi b. Judah says: It includes the floor

(10) Viz., in the law of the leper. Hence it is established that a new vessel is also necessary in the ceremony of the water of bitterness.

(11) Although they do not insist on running water, it must not be discoloured by dirt.

(12) When they are disconnected. So by analogy the earthenware cannot be made fit for use by re-whitening.

(13) While it was used as a cord; therefore the restoration is not complete. But in the case of the vessel there is complete restoration and so it is allowed.

[of the Tabernacle] in Shiloh, Nob, Gideon and the permanent Temple; Issi b. Menahem says: It is unnecessary [to include the permanent Temple];¹ if in the case of a minor defilement² Scripture does not differentiate [between the temporary Tabernacle and the permanent Temple], in the case of the defilement of a married woman³ how much more so [is it unnecessary to differentiate]. Why, then, does the text state 'on the floor of the tabernacle'? He may not take it from the midst of a heap.⁴

The following question was asked: If there is no dust, how is it about putting ashes there? According to the view of Beth Shammai, the question does not arise because they said that we never find ashes called dust; but the question does arise according to the view of Beth Hillel because they said that we do find ashes called dust.⁵ How is it then? Although the word 'dust' is used, it is here written 'on the floor of the tabernacle';⁶ perhaps, however, the phrase 'on the floor of the tabernacle' is intended to be understood according to the interpretation of Issi b. Judah and Issi b. Menahem?⁷ — Come and hear: for R. Johanan said in the name of R. Ishmael: In three places the halachah crushes the Scriptural text under heel:⁸ the Torah states with dust,⁹ whereas the halachah allows [the blood to be covered] with anything; the Torah states no razor,¹⁰ whereas the legal decision is [that a Nazirite may not shave] with anything; the Torah states a book,¹¹ whereas the legal decision [allows] any [form of document]. Now if this¹² is so, it should also have been enumerated! — He taught [some instances] and omitted others. What else, then, did he omit?¹³ — He omitted [the shaving] of a leper;¹⁴ for it has been taught: And it shall be on the seventh day that he shall shave all his hair — that is a generalization; off his head and his beard and his eyebrows — that is a particularization; even all his hair he shall shave off¹⁵ — that is again a generalization. Now [the rule of exegesis is]: when there is a general proposition, followed by the enumeration of particulars, and this is followed by a general proposition, include only that which resembles the particulars.¹⁶ As the particulars refer to a part [of the body] where the hair grows and is visible, so every place where the hair grows and is visible [comes within the scope of the law]. What does it include? It includes the hair on the private part. What does it exclude? It excludes that of the arm-pit and the whole body [which is normally covered]. The halachah, however, is: he shaves himself as smooth as a gourd.¹⁷ For we have learnt: When [the priest] comes to shave the leper, he passes a razor over all his flesh;¹⁸ and it continues,¹⁹ On the seventh day he shaves²⁰ the second shaving after the manner of the first.²¹ R. Nahman b. Isaac said: [R. Johanan] enumerated instances where the halachah crushes the Scriptural text under heel; but here it crushes a Rabbinical teaching²² under heel.²³ R. Papa said: [R. Johanan] enumerated instances where the halachah crushes the Scriptural text under heel and overthrows it; but here it crushes the text under heel and extends it.²⁴ R. Ashi said: According to whom is this teaching [that only the visible parts of the body are to be shaved]? It is R. Ishmael who expounds [the Torah] by the rule of generalization and particularization.²⁵

(1) In Jerusalem.

(2) I.e., entrance into the Temple-precincts while ritually unclean. This is not an offence punished by a Court with death.

(3) Which is a capital crime.

(4) It must first be scattered on the floor. [In contradiction to the second Baraitha cited which permits the bringing in dust from elsewhere and putting it forthwith into the water].

(5) This matter, with reference to covering the blood after slaughter of an animal, is discussed in Hul. 88b.

(6) So it is impossible to think that ashes could be meant.

(7) If these words intend the inclusion of temporary Sanctuaries and the Temple, then 'dust' could here signify ashes.

(8) I.e., practice goes beyond the letter of the Torah.

- (22) [A teaching derived from Rabbinic exegesis. MS.M. reads 'Midrash'; v. Chajes, Z.H. ntes.]
- (23) And therefore R. Johanan's list of three cases is complete.
- (24) [By shaving the whole body the demands of the text are not set aside but extended.]
- (25) He elaborated thirteen rules of interpretation, and that quoted above is one of them. [And so according to R. Ishmael in whose name the above enumeration was reported by R. Johanan the list is complete].

Talmud - Mas. Sotah 16b

According to whom [is the teaching that he must be shaved the second time] as smooth as a gourd? It is R. Akiba who expounds [the Torah] by the rule of amplification and limitation; for it has been taught: 'And it shall be on the seventh day that he shall shave all his hair' — that is an amplification; 'off his head and his beard and his eyebrows' — that is a limitation; 'even all his hair he shall shave off' — that is again an amplification. Now [the rule of exegesis is]: Where there is an amplification, followed by a limitation, and this is followed by an amplification, the amplification applies to the whole. In which respect is there an amplification? It includes all the body [to be shaved]. In which respect is there a limitation? It excludes the hair which grows inside the nostril. How is it, then, with our original question [whether ashes may be used when there is no dust]? — Come and hear: For R. Huna b. Ashi said in the name of Rab: If there is no dust there, he brings decayed herbage and hallows it! — But this is no proof. Decayed herbage may indeed be [called] dust but not ashes.

JUST SUFFICIENT TO BE VISIBLE ABOVE THE WATER. Our Rabbis have taught: Three things must be visible, viz., the dust in the ceremony of the suspected woman, the ashes in the ceremony of the red heifer¹ and the spittle in the ceremony of Halizah.² They said in the name of R. Ishmael, Also the blood of the bird.³ What is R. Ishmael's reason? — Because it is written: And shall dip them in the blood of the bird etc.;⁴ and it has been taught: 'in the blood' — it is possible [to think that they must be dipped] in blood and not in water; therefore the text declares '[over the running] water'. If Scripture [had only mentioned] 'water', it would be possible [to think that they must be dipped] in water and not in blood; therefore the text declares 'in the blood'. What, then, was the procedure? He brings water in which the blood of the bird is recognisable. What is the quantity? A quarter [of a log]. And [why is this instance not included in their enumeration by] the Rabbis? — That is part of the subject-matter; for thus said the All-Merciful, Dip in blood and water.⁵ [How is this argument met by] R. Ishmael? — In that case, the All-Merciful should have written: 'And he shall dip in them'; so why [is it stated] in blood and in water? That [the blood] must be recognisable. And [how is this argument met by] the Rabbis? — If the All-Merciful had written: 'And he shall dip in them', I might have imagined [that he was to dip] in each separately; therefore He wrote 'in blood and in water' to indicate that they must be mixed. [How does] R. Ishmael [answer this point]? That they are to be mixed [is learnt from] another verse; it is written: And kill one of the birds in an earthen vessel over running water.⁶ [How do] the Rabbis [answer this point]? — If [we had to learn it] from that passage, we might have thought that he is to kill it near a vessel, press the jugular veins,⁷ and receive the blood in another vessel. Hence we are informed [by this verse that the killing must be done over the vessel containing the water].

R. Jeremiah asked R. Zera, How is it if [the bird] was so big that [its blood] effaced [all trace of] the water, or if it was so small that [all trace of its blood] was effaced by the water? He answered: Have I not told thee not to take thyself beyond the legal decision?⁸ The Rabbis estimated [the quantity of a quarter of a log] by a free bird;⁹ and this is never so big that [its blood] should efface [all trace of] the water, nor so small that [all trace of its blood] should be effaced by the water.

Our Rabbis have taught: If he put the dust [in the bowl] before the water, it is invalid; but R. Simeon allows it. What is the reason of R. Simeon? — Because it is written: And for the unclean they shall take of the dust of the burning of the sin-offering;¹⁰ and it has been taught: R. Simeon said: Was it dust and not ashes? The text changes the expression to indicate that a conclusion was to be drawn from it by the rule of analogy: it is mentioned here ‘dust’, and there [in the ceremony of the suspected woman] it is also mentioned ‘dust’; as in the second instance the dust had to be placed over the water,¹¹ so also here the dust had to be placed over the water; and further, as it is valid here if he put the dust on before the water, so also there [in the ceremony of the suspected woman] it is valid if he put the dust on before the water.¹² Whence is this derived there [in the rite of the red heifer]? — There are two texts: It is written thereto,¹³ consequently the ashes are first; and it is written running water in a vessel, consequently the water is first. So what was the procedure? He can put either in first. [How is this interpretation answered by] the Rabbis?¹⁴ — ‘In a vessel’ — precisely so;¹⁵ ‘thereto’ — that they are to be mixed. But say rather that ‘thereto’ means precisely so;¹⁶ and ‘in a vessel’ means that the water must be poured directly into the vessel from the spring!¹⁷ — As we find that everywhere it is the qualifying element which is on top,¹⁸ so also here¹⁹ the qualifying element must be on top.

(18) [In the case of a suspected woman, and of a leper, the qualifying elements — i.e., the dust which gives the water of bitterness its efficacy and the blood of the bird — must be placed on top as indicated by the plain meaning of the Scriptural texts: Num. V, 17, and Lev. XIV, 6.]

(19) With the ashes of the red heifer.

Talmud - Mas. Sotah 17a

MISHNAH. WHEN HE COMES TO WRITE THE SCROLL, FROM WHAT PLACE DOES HE WRITE? FROM IF NO MAN HAVE LAIN WITH THEE¹ . . . BUT IF THOU HAST GONE ASIDE, BEING UNDER THY HUSBAND ETC.² HE DOES NOT, HOWEVER, INCLUDE, THEN THE PRIEST SHALL CAUSE THE WOMAN TO SWEAR,³ BUT CONTINUES WITH, THE LORD MAKE THEE A CURSE AND AN OATH . . . AND THIS WATER THAT CAUSETH THE CURSE SHALL GO INTO THY BOWELS AND MAKE THY BELLY TO SWELL, AND THY THIGH TO FALL AWAY.⁴ HE DOES NOT, HOWEVER, INCLUDE, AND THE WOMAN SHALL SAY, AMEN, AMEN. R. JOSE SAYS, HE MAKES NO OMISSIONS.⁵ R. JUDAH SAYS, HE WRITES NONE OF ALL THIS EXCEPT, THE LORD MAKE THEE A CURSE AND AN OATH ETC. AND THIS WATER THAT CAUSETH THE CURSE SHALL GO INTO THY BOWELS ETC. AND DOES NOT INCLUDE, AND THE WOMAN SHALL SAY, AMEN, AMEN.

GEMARA. On what point do they differ? — They differ in [the interpretation of] the following verse: And the priest shall write these curses in a book.⁶ R. Meir⁷ is of the opinion that curses denotes [the passages which are] actually curses;⁸ the curses⁹ is to include the curses which result from the benedictions;¹⁰ 'these' is to exclude the curses in Deuteronomy;¹¹ 'the these' is to exclude instructions [given to the officiating priest] and the responses of Amen [made by the woman]. R. Jose agrees with all that has been stated, except that he interprets the particle 'eth'¹² as indicating the inclusion of instructions and responses, whereas R. Meir draws no deductions from the occurrences of the particle 'eth. R. Judah, on the other hand, expounds all the above points as implying limitation; 'curses' denotes [the passages which are] actually curses; 'the curses' is to exclude the imprecations which result from the benedictions; 'these' is to exclude the imprecations in Deuteronomy; 'the these' is to exclude instructions and responses. What is the difference that R. Meir interprets the definite article [in the curses] as implying amplification and the definite article [in the these] as implying limitation? — When the definite article occurs in connection with amplification¹³ it also denotes amplification, and when it occurs in connection with limitation¹⁴ it also denotes limitation. But R. Meir does not accept the rule that an affirmative is to be deduced as the corollary of a negative!¹⁵ — R. Tanhum said: It is written hinnaki.¹⁶

R. Akiba expounded: When husband and wife are worthy, the Shechinah abides with them; when they are not worthy fire consumes them.¹⁷ Raba said: [The fire which results] from the woman is severer than that from the man.¹⁸ What is the reason? In the case of the former [the letters aleph and shin] are consecutive, but not in the case of a man.¹⁹

Raba said: Why does the Torah command that dust should be provided for [the ceremony of] a suspected woman? If she be innocent, there will issue from her a son like our father Abraham, of whom it is written: Dust and ashes;²⁰ and if she be not innocent, she reverts to dust.²¹

Raba expounded: As a reward for our father Abraham having said: 'I am but dust and ashes', his descendants were worthy to receive two commandments, viz., the ashes of the red heifer and the dust [of the ceremony] of a suspected woman. But there is likewise dust for the covering of the blood!²² — In this case [the use of dust is merely] the completion of the commandment without any advantage [to the performer].²³

Raba expounded: As a reward for our father Abraham having said: I will not take a thread nor a shoelatchet,²⁴ his descendants were worthy to receive two commandments, viz., the thread of blue²⁵ and the thong of the phylacteries. It is right in the case of the thong of the phylacteries, for it is written: And all the peoples of the earth shall see that thou art called by the name of the Lord,²⁶ and it has been taught: R. Eliezer the Elder says: This refers to the phylactery worn upon the head;²⁷ but what is [the advantage to him who performs the law] of the thread of blue? — It has been taught: R. Meir used to say: Why is blue specified from all the varieties of colours? Because blue resembles [the colour of] the sea, and the sea resembles [the colour of] heaven, and heaven resembles [the colour of] the Throne of Glory, as it is said: And they saw the God of Israel and there was under His feet as it were a paved work of sapphire stone, and as it were the very heaven for clearness,²⁸ and it is written: The likeness of a throne as the appearance of a sapphire stone.²⁹

- (1) Num. V, 19, — ‘be thou free from this water of bitterness’.
- (2) Ibid. 20, — [This is taken to imply a curse; v. infra].
- (3) Ibid. 21.
- (4) Ibid. 22.

- (7) Who is the author of the anonymous statement in the Mishnah, v. Sanh. 86a.
- (8) ‘The Lord make thee etc.’, verse 20.
- (9) According to Hebrew idiom, ‘these curses’ is literally ‘the curses the these’.
- (10) [I.e., ‘if no man have lain with thee . . . be thou free’ implies that ‘if thou hast gone aside . . . be thou not free’].
- (11) If the text of Num. V, 23 had read ‘and the priest will write the curses in a book’ it might have been understood as referring to the curses in Deut. XXVIII, 16ff.
- (12) The sign of the accusative before ‘these curses’.
- (13) The phrase ‘and the priest will write’ is a general statement — an amplification.
- (14) ‘These’ is a limited term.
- (15) How then does he consider verse 20 to imply a curse, v. Kid. 61a-62a and Shebu. 36a.
- (16) ‘Be free’ in Num. V, 19. Since the word is defectively spelt without the mater lectionis, and the Hebrew letter he closely resembles the letter heth, it might be taken to mean ‘be strangled’; and so an imprecation is mentioned and it has not to be deduced as a corollary, v. Shebu (Sonc. ed.) p. 213, n. 6.
- (17) The letters of the word for ‘husband’ are aleph, yod and shin, and for ‘wife’ aleph, shin and he. The yod and he form the Divine Name; but if omitted, only aleph and shin are left which form the word esh ‘fire’.
- (18) I.e., a bad wife is more destructive of domestic happiness than a bad husband.
- (19) The first and second letters of the word for ‘woman’ or ‘wife’ form esh; but in the word for ‘husband’ or ‘man’ they are the first and third letters.
- (20) Gen XVIII, 27.

Talmud - Mas. Sotah 17b

DIFTERA¹ BUT ON A [PARCHMENT] SCROLL, AS IT IS SAID, IN A BOOK.² NOR DOES HE WRITE WITH A [PREPARATION OF] GUM OR VITRIOL³ OR WITH ANYTHING WHICH INDENTS [THE PARCHMENT] BUT WITH INK,⁴ AS IT IS SAID, AND BLOT OUT⁵ — WRITING WHICH IS CAPABLE OF BEING BLOTTED OUT.

GEMARA. Raba said: A scroll for a suspected woman which one wrote at night is invalid. What is the reason? An analogy is drawn between two passages where the word ‘law’ occurs: here it is written: And the priest shall execute upon her all this law,⁶ and elsewhere it is written: According to the tenor of the law which they shall teach thee, and according to the judgment.⁷ As judgment [could only be delivered] in the daytime,⁸ so a scroll for a suspected woman [could only be written] in the daytime. If he wrote the text not in its proper order,⁹ it is invalid; for it is written: And he shall write these curses¹⁰ — just as they are written [in the Scriptural text]. If he wrote it before she took the oath upon herself, it is invalid; as it is said: He shall cause her to swear and after that, He shall write.¹¹ If he wrote it in the form of a letter,¹² it is invalid — ‘in a book’ said the All-merciful.

(12) I.e., without first tracing lines to secure evenness of script, as is required with a scroll of the Law, v. Git. (Sonc. ed.) p. 20, n. 3.

Talmud - Mas. Sotah 18a

If he wrote it on two folios it is invalid; the All-merciful spoke of one ‘book’ and not of two or three books. If he wrote one letter and blotted it out [with the water of bitterness] and then wrote another letter and blotted it out¹ it is invalid; for it is written: And the priest shall execute upon her all this law.

Raba asked: How is it if he wrote two scrolls for two suspects and blotted them in one vessel of water? Do we only require that the writing should be expressly for each case? That we have here; or perhaps it is also necessary to have obliteration expressly for each case! If, furthermore, you conclude that we also require obliteration expressly for each case, how is it if he obliterated them in two vessels and then mixed them? Do we only require that the obliteration should be expressly for each case? That we have here; or perhaps each of the women does not drink the water prepared for her! If, furthermore, you conclude that [this renders the rite invalid because] each of the women does not drink the water prepared for her, how is it if he again divided the water into two parts [after having mixed it]? Is there or is there not a retrospective differentiation?² — The questions remain unanswered. Raba asked: How is it if he made her drink through a straw or tube? Is that to be regarded as a mode of drinking or not? — The question remains unanswered. R. Ashi asked: How is it if some of the water was spilt or remained over? The question remains unanswered.

R. Zera said in the name of Rab: Why are two oaths mentioned in connection with a suspected woman?³ One [was imposed] before [the writing on] the scroll was blotted out and the other after it was blotted out. Raba demurred: They are both written [in the Scriptural text] before [the inscription on] the scroll was obliterated! But, said Raba, with one oath a curse was connected⁴ and not with the other. What was the formula of the oath with which a curse was connected? — R. Amram said in the name of Rab: 'I make thee swear that thou hast not misconducted thyself, for if thou hast, may [the curses] befall thee.' Raba asked: [In this wording] the curse and the oath are distinct!⁵ But, said Raba, [the formula is], 'I make thee swear that if thou hast misconducted thyself, may [the curses] befall thee'.⁶ R. Ashi asked: [In this wording] there is a curse but no oath! But, said R. Ashi, [The formula is], 'I make thee swear that thou hast not misconducted thyself; and that if thou hast, may [the curses] befall thee'.

MISHNAH. TO WHAT DOES SHE RESPOND 'AMEN, AMEN'? AN 'AMEN' OVER THE CURSE AND AN 'AMEN' OVER THE OATH; AN 'AMEN' WITH RESPECT TO THIS MAN⁷ AND AN 'AMEN' WITH RESPECT TO ANY OTHER MAN;⁸ AN 'AMEN' THAT I DID NOT GO ASTRAY AS A BETROTHED MAIDEN OR MARRIED WOMAN

(1) He did not write out the text in full before obliterating it.

(2) Bererah v. Glos. Do we regard the water now divided as being differentiated and identical with the original quantities of water?

(4) Verse 21 where the phrase oath of cursing occurs.

(5) [The oath here is not connected with the curse, but relates to the wife's fidelity.]

(6) [The oath relates only to the wife's conduct and is not connected with the curse.]

(7) Who is the cause of the ordeal.

(8) With whom she may have associated without her husband's knowledge.

Talmud - Mas. Sotah 18b

OR [A CHILDLESS WIDOW] WAITING FOR MY BROTHER-IN-LAW'S [DECISION WHETHER HE WOULD MARRY ME] OR TAKEN TO HIS HOUSE,¹ AND AN 'AMEN' THAT I HAVE NOT MISCONDUCTED MYSELF AND IF I HAVE MAY [THE CURSES] BEFALL ME. R. MEIR SAYS: ONE 'AMEN' IS THAT I HAVE NOT MISCONDUCTED MYSELF AND THE OTHER 'AMEN' THAT I WILL NOT MISCONDUCT MYSELF.

ALL AGREE THAT A MAN CANNOT MAKE A STIPULATION WITH HER IN RESPECT OF THE TIME BEFORE SHE WAS BETROTHED² OR AFTER SHE IS DIVORCED. IF SHE SECLUDES HERSELF WITH ANOTHER MAN³ AND MISCONDUCTS HERSELF AND SUBSEQUENTLY [HER HUSBAND] TAKES HER BACK, HE CANNOT MAKE A STIPULATION WITH HER [IN RESPECT OF THIS].⁴ THIS IS THE GENERAL RULE: HE CANNOT MAKE A STIPULATION WITH HER IN RESPECT OF ANY ACT OF COHABITATION WHICH DOES NOT RENDER HER PROHIBITED TO HIM.

GEMARA. R. Hamnuna said: [A childless widow] waiting for her brother-in-law's [decision whether he would marry her] who acted immorally is forbidden to her levir.⁵ Whence is this? Since the Mishnah teaches: [A CHILDLESS WIDOW] WAITING FOR MY BROTHER-IN-LAW'S [DECISION WHETHER HE WOULD MARRY ME] OR TAKEN TO HIS HOUSE. This is quite right if you say that she is prohibited [to her brother-in-law] then he can make a stipulation with her;⁶ but if you say that she is not prohibited to him,⁷ how can he make a stipulation with her; for we have learnt: THIS IS THE GENERAL RULE: HE CANNOT MAKE A STIPULATION WITH HER IN RESPECT OF ANY ACT OF COHABITATION WHICH DOES NOT RENDER HER PROHIBITED TO HIM! In the West,⁸ however, they said: The legal decision is not in agreement with R. Hamnuna. But whose [then] is the teaching concerning [A CHILDLESS WIDOW] WAITING FOR HER BROTHER-IN-LAW OR TAKEN TO HIS HOUSE? — It is R. Akiba's; for he said: No betrothal can take effect in cases which are subject to a mere negative prohibition,⁹ and he regards her¹⁰ act as equal to an incestuous union.¹¹

R. Jeremiah asked: Can he make a stipulation in connection with a first marriage¹² or her marriage with his brother?¹³ — Come and hear: THIS IS THE GENERAL RULE: HE CANNOT MAKE A STIPULATION WITH HER IN RESPECT OF ANY ACT OF COHABITATION WHICH DOES NOT RENDER HER PROHIBITED TO HIM. Consequently when it would render her prohibited to him he can make a stipulation with her. Draw that conclusion.¹⁴

R. MEIR SAYS: ONE 'AMEN' IS THAT I HAVE NOT MISCONDUCTED MYSELF etc. It has been taught: When R. Meir declares, AND THE OTHER 'AMEN' THAT I WILL NOT MISCONDUCT MYSELF, it does not imply that if she in the future misconducts herself, the water affects her now; but should she later misconduct herself, the water will bestir and affect her.

R. Ashi asked: Can a man make a stipulation with regard to remarriage?¹⁵ [Do we argue] that for the present she is not prohibited to him [and therefore he cannot make a stipulation with her], or that it may happen that he will divorce and remarry her [and therefore can make a stipulation]? — Come and hear: ALL AGREE THAT A MAN CANNOT MAKE A STIPULATION WITH HER IN RESPECT OF THE TIME BEFORE SHE WAS BETROTHED OR AFTER SHE IS DIVORCED. IF SHE SECLUDES HERSELF WITH ANOTHER MAN AND MISCONDUCTS HERSELF AND SUBSEQUENTLY [HER HUSBAND] TOOK HER BACK, HE CANNOT MAKE A STIPULATION WITH HER [IN RESPECT OF THIS]. Hence if he takes her back and she then misconducts herself, he can make a stipulation [in respect of this]. Draw that conclusion.¹⁶

Our Rabbis have taught: This is the law of jealousy¹⁷ — it teaches that a woman may drink [the water of bitterness] and do so again.¹⁸ R. Judah says: 'This'¹⁹ indicates that a woman does not drink and do so again. R. Judah said: It happened that Nehonia the welldigger²⁰ testified before us that a woman had drunk [the water of bitterness] and had done so a second time. We accepted his testimony as relating to two husbands but not one husband. The Sages, however, declared that a woman does not drink and do so again, whether it be in respect of one husband or two husbands. But for the first Tanna [cited above] it is likewise written 'This'.²¹ And for the latter Rabbis [cited above] it is likewise written 'the law of'.²² — Raba said: In the case of the same husband and the same paramour none differ that a woman does not drink and do so again,

(1) For the purpose of marriage, but before its consummation.

(2) That she had never acted immorally.

(3) After being divorced, and the divorce was not on account of misconduct because in that event there could be no re-marriage.

(4) In respect of what she may have done after the divorce.

(5) Because she is regarded as a wife who was unfaithful to her husband.

(6) In respect of her conduct before he married her; and if she was immoral, he may not marry her.

(7) For immorality before marriage.

(8) The Palestinian Schools.

(9) Without carrying with them the death penalty or of kareth. There is such a prohibition in connection with a childless widow's marriage (v. Deut. XXV, 5) v. Yeb. 10b.

(10) The childless widow who acted immorally.

(11) [And therefore forbidden to her brother-in-law just as a wife who misconducted herself is forbidden to her husband.]

(12) When he had remarried her after divorcing her can he make her swear that she had been faithful to him during their first marriage?

(13) After he had gone through the levirate-marriage with her, can he make her swear that she had not misconducted herself whilst living with his brother?

(14) In both of the contingencies mentioned immorality would render her prohibited; so he can make the stipulation.

(15) Since R. Meir interprets 'Amen' as referring to what may occur in the future, suppose a husband makes a condition that his wife shall not misconduct herself if he divorces her and remarries her, and after remarriage she is unfaithful?

(16) That such a stipulation is permissible.

(17) Num. V, 29. The text is literally 'law of jealousies', which is taken to mean: the law is to be applied in every instance of suspicion.

(18) If suspected a second time.

(19) The word has an exclusive meaning, and equals this is the only time the woman undergoes the ordeal.

(20) [V. B.K. (Sonc. ed.) p. 287. He however could not have testified before R. Judah who lived about 200 years later. The text must accordingly be connected with the parallel passage in J. Sotah II, where the reading is Nehemia of Shihin testified in the name of R. Akiba v. Hyman, A Toledoth, p. 924.]

(21) He permits a woman to drink a second time; why does he not interpret 'This' is an exclusive sense?

(22) Why do they not understand this as not permitting the second ordeal?

Talmud - Mas. Sotah 19a

for it is written 'This'. In the case of two husbands and two paramours none differ that a woman drinks and does so again, for it is written 'the law of. Where they differ is in the case of the same husband and two paramours, or two husbands and the same paramour. The first Tanna holds that 'the law of indicates the inclusion of them all, and 'This' indicates the exclusion of the case of the same husband and the same paramour. The Rabbis hold that 'This' indicates the exclusion of them all, and 'the law of indicates the inclusion of the case of two husbands and two paramours. R. Judah holds that 'This' is to exclude two cases and 'the law of is to include two cases. 'This' is to exclude two cases, viz., the same husband and the same paramour, and the same husband and two paramours; 'the law of is to include two cases, viz., two husbands and the same paramour, and two husbands and two paramours.

CHAPTER III

MISHNAH. HE¹ TAKES HER MEAL-OFFERING OUT OF THE BASKET OF PALM-TWIGS AND PLACES IT IN A MINISTERING VESSEL AND SETS IT UPON HER HAND; AND THE PRIEST PLACES HIS HAND UNDER HERS AND WAVES IT.²

HAVING WAVED IT, HE BROUGHT A HANDFUL [TO THE ALTAR], FUMIGATED IT, AND THE REMAINDER WAS EATEN BY THE PRIESTS. HE [FIRST] GIVES [HER THE WATER OF BITTERNESS] TO DRINK, AND THEN SACRIFICES HER MEAL-OFFERING. R. SIMEON SAYS: HE SACRIFICES HER MEAL-OFFERING AND THEN GIVES HER TO DRINK, AS IT IS SAID, AND AFTERWARD SHALL MAKE THE WOMAN DRINK THE WATER;³ BUT IF HE GAVE HER TO DRINK AND THEN SACRIFICED HER MEAL-OFFERING IT IS VALID.

GEMARA. R. Eleazar said to R. Joshiah his contemporary:⁴ You shall not sit down⁵ until you have explained the following: Whence is it that the meal-offering of a suspected woman requires to be waved? 'Whence have we it? It is written In connection therewith, And shall wave⁶ — But [my question is], whence [is it that it has to be done] with [the co-operation of] the owner?'⁷ — It is derived from the analogous use of the word 'hand' in connection with the peace-offering. Here it is written: 'The priest shall take out of the woman's hand', and there it is written: His own hands shall bring.⁸ As in this present case it refers to the priest [who waves the offering of the suspected woman], so there it refers to the priest;⁹ and as there [in the waving of the peace-offering] the owner [holds it during the rite] so here the owner [holds it]. What, then, was the procedure? — [The priest] places his hand under the hands of the owner and waves.

HAVING WAVED IT, HE BROUGHT A HANDFUL... HE [FIRST] GIVES [HER THE WATER OF BITTERNESS] TO DRINK, AND THEN SACRIFICES HER MEAL-OFFERING. But he has already offered it!¹⁰ — This is what is intended:¹¹ What is the procedure in connection with meal-offerings? He waves, brings a handful [to the altar]. fumigates it and the remainder is eaten by the priests. As to the giving of the water to drink, on this R. Simeon and the Rabbis differ; because the Rabbis hold that he gives her to drink and then sacrifices her meal-offering, whereas R. Simeon holds that he sacrifices her meal-offering and then gives her to drink, as it is said: 'And afterwards shall make the woman drink'.

BUT IF HE GAVE HER TO DRINK AND THEN SACRIFICED HER MEAL-OFFERING IT IS VALID.

(1) According to Rashi it is the husband; other commentators declare it is the priest.

(2) The offering, forward and backward, and up and down.

(3) Num. V, 26.

(9) Who performs the act of waving although it is not explicitly mentioned.

(10) Since the Mishnah stated: HE BROUGHT A HANDFUL (TO THE ALTAR), FUMIGATED IT.

(11) This Mishnah is describing the order of the sacrifice without any reference to whether it comes before or after the drinking of the water.

Talmud - Mas. Sotah 19b

Our Rabbis taught: And when he hath made her drink¹ — what does this intend to tell us since It has already been stated: And he shall make the woman drink?² [It informs us] that if [the writing on] the scroll has been obliterated and she says: 'I refuse to drink', they exert influence upon her and make her drink by force. Such is the statement of R. Akiba. R. Simeon says: 'And afterwards shall make the woman drink' — what does this intend to tell us since it has already been stated: 'And he shall make the woman drink'? [It informs us] that it only takes place after all the rites mentioned above have been carried out, thus indicating that three things prevent [the giving of the water to drink]: [the priest] must have offered the handful, [the writing on] the scroll must have been blotted out, and [the woman] must have taken the oath. '[The priest] must have offered the handful' — R. Simeon is consistent with his opinion when he said that the priest sacrifices her meal-offering and then gives her to drink. '[The writing on] the scroll must have been blotted out' — [obviously so], for what else could he give her to drink!³ — R. Ashi said: No, it is necessary [to mention this for the case where] a trace of the inscription is recognisable.⁴ '[The woman] must have taken the oath.' [This means] merely she does not drink, but they write the scroll for her [before she takes the oath]? But Raba has said: If he wrote the scroll for a suspected woman before she took the oath, what he did was Invalid! — [R. Simeon] mentioned this⁵ unnecessarily. On what, then, do they differ? — There are three verses: first 'he shall make the woman drink', second 'and afterward shall make drink', and third 'and when he hath made her drink'. The Rabbis hold that the first phrase is required for the subject-matter, i.e., he gives her to drink and then sacrifices her meal-offering; the phrase 'and afterward shall make drink' is necessary [to cover the case where] a trace of the inscription is recognisable; and the third phrase indicates that if [the writing on] the scroll has been obliterated and she says 'I refuse to drink', they exert influence upon her and make her drink by force. R. Simeon, on the other hand, holds that 'and afterward shall make drink' is required for the subject-matter. i.e., he sacrifices her meal-offering and then gives her to drink. The first phrase is to indicate that if he first gave her to drink and afterward sacrificed her meal-offering it is valid; and the third phrase denotes that if [the writing on] the scroll has been obliterated and she says 'I refuse to drink', they exert influence upon her and make her drink by force. The Rabbis, however, do not hold that the text opens with [a commandment which is only valid as] an accomplished fact.⁶

Does R. Akiba hold that they give her to drink by force? Surely it has been taught: R. Judah says: They insert iron tongs into her mouth, so that if [the writing on] the scroll has been obliterated and she says 'I refuse to drink', they exert influence upon her and make her drink by force. R. Akiba says: Do we require anything else than to prove her, and is she not actually proved!⁷ But so long as the priest has not offered the handful, she can retract;⁸ and when he has offered the handful, she cannot retract! — But, even on your reasoning, the teaching is inconsistent. It states: 'When he has offered the handful, she cannot retract', but is she not actually proved!⁹ [You must perforce say] that there is no contradiction; as one case is where she retracts through trembling and the other where she retracts through defiance;¹⁰ and this is what he means: when [she retracts] through defiance she does not drink at all; but when it is through trembling, so long as the priest has not offered the handful she is able to retract, since [the writing on] the scroll had not yet been obliterated, or even if it had been obliterated because the priests acted illegally in obliterating it; but if he had offered the handful, in which case the priests acted legally in obliterating it, she is unable to retract.¹¹

(1) Num. V. 27.

(2) Ibid. 24. In the consonantal text the two verbs look the same, but there is a grammatical difference.

(3) Since the writing was an essential ingredient of what she drank.

(4) R. Simeon insists on total obliteration.

(5) That she first takes the oath before drinking; for it must have been done before the scroll was written.

(6) A Biblical precept states what is or is not to be done, not that something should not be done but, if accomplished, it is allowed to stand. For this reason they reject R. Simeon's explanation of the first phrase.

(7) Her refusal to drink is interpreted as an admission of guilt. R. Akiba is therefore against force being used.

(8) And admit guilt, and so avoid force.

(9) By refusing to drink before the handful was offered.

(10) Only in the latter is the refusal considered an admission of guilt.

(11) [Similarly R. Akiba in stating in the first Baraita that she is given to drink by force refers to the case when it is through trembling.]

Talmud - Mas. Sotah 20a

But R. Akiba [nevertheless] contradicts himself; he declared above that it was the obliteration [of the inscription] which prevents [her from retracting], and here he declares that [the offering of the] handful prevents her! — There are two Tannaim [who take opposite sides on this question] in the view of R. Akiba.

The question was asked, how is it if she said: 'I refuse to drink' through defiance and she retracts and says 'I am willing to drink'? Is it that since she said: 'I refuse to drink' she admitted 'I am unclean', and having presumed her self to be unclean, she is unable to retract; or perhaps, since she says 'I am willing to drink', she evidences that she first spoke in terror? — The question remains unanswered. Samuel's father said: It is necessary to put something bitter into the water. What is the reason? Scripture declares, The water of bitterness¹ — i.e., [water] which had been previously made bitter.

MISHNAH. IF, BEFORE [THE WRITING ON] THE SCROLL HAD BEEN BLOTTED OUT, SHE SAID 'I REFUSE TO DRINK', HER SCROLL IS STORED AWAY² AND HER MEAL-OFFERING IS SCATTERED OVER THE ASHES.³ HER SCROLL IS NOT VALID TO BE USED IN GIVING ANOTHER SUSPECTED WOMAN TO DRINK. IF [THE WRITING ON] THE SCROLL HAS BEEN BLOTTED OUT AND SHE SAID 'I AM UNCLEAN', THE WATER IS Poured AWAY AND HER MEAL-OFFERING IS SCATTERED IN THE PLACE OF THE ASHES.⁴ IF [THE WRITING ON] THE SCROLL HAD BEEN BLOTTED OUT AND SHE SAID

'I REFUSE TO DRINK', THEY EXERT INFLUENCE UPON HER AND MAKE HER DRINK BY FORCE.

SHE HAD SCARCELY FINISHED DRINKING WHEN HER FACE TURNS GREEN, HER EYES PROTRUDE AND HER VEINS SWELL;⁵ AND IT IS EXCLAIMED, REMOVE HER THAT THE TEMPLE-COURT BE NOT DEFILED'.⁶ IF SHE POSSESSED A MERIT, IT [CAUSES THE WATER] TO SUSPEND ITS EFFECT UPON HER. SOME MERIT SUSPENDS THE EFFECT FOR ONE YEAR, ANOTHER FOR TWO YEARS, AND ANOTHER FOR THREE YEARS. HENCE DECLARED BEN AZZAI, A MAN IS UNDER THE OBLIGATION TO TEACH HIS DAUGHTER TORAH, SO THAT IF SHE HAS TO DRINK [THE WATER OF BITTERNESS], SHE MAY KNOW THAT THE MERIT SUSPENDS⁷ ITS EFFECT. R. ELIEZER SAYS: WHOEVER TEACHES HIS DAUGHTER TORAH TEACHES HER OBSCENITY. R. JOSHUA SAYS: A WOMAN PREFERS ONE KAB⁸ AND SEXUAL INDULGENCE TO NINE KAB⁹ AND CONTINENCE. HE USED TO SAY, A FOOLISH PIETIST, A CUNNING ROGUE, A FEMALE PHARISEE, AND THE PLAGUE OF PHARISEES¹⁰ BRING DESTRUCTION UPON THE WORLD.

GEMARA. Rab Judah declared that Samuel said in the name of R. Meir: When I studied Torah with R. Akiba, I used to put vitriol¹¹ into the ink and he said nothing to me; but when I went to R. Ishmael, he said to me, 'My son, what is thy occupation?' I answered: 'I am a scribe'.¹² He told me: 'My son, be careful, because thy work is the work of Heaven; if thou omittest a single letter or addest a single letter, thou dost as a consequence destroy the whole world'.¹³ I said to him, 'There is an ingredient which I put into the ink, and its name is vitriol'. He asked me, 'May we put vitriol into the ink? The Torah has said: He shall blot out,¹⁴ i.e., writing which can be blotted out!' What did [R. Ishmael] intend to tell [R. Meir] that the latter answered him in that manner?¹⁵ — [R. Meir] meant, Obviously, I am skilled in the rules of defective and plene spelling;¹⁶ but I even have no reason to fear lest a fly should come and settle upon the crownlet of the letter D and obliterate it so that it makes it look like the letter R.¹⁷ There is an ingredient which I put into the ink, and its name is vitriol. But it is not so, for it has been taught: R. Meir said: When I studied Torah with R. Ishmael, I used to put vitriol into the ink and he said nothing to me; but when I went to R. Akiba, he forbade it to me! Here is an inconsistency in [the order of the Rabbis upon whom R. Meir] attended, and an inconsistency in [the name of the Rabbi who] forbade it. It is quite right, there is no inconsistency in [the order of the Rabbis upon whom R. Meir] attended; he first went to R. Akiba, but when he was unable [to follow his arguments],¹⁸ he went to R. Ishmael. After having studied¹⁹ with him, he returned to R. Akiba whose reasoning he was then able to grasp. But there is an inconsistency in [the name of the Rabbi who] forbade it! — That is a difficulty.

It has been taught: R. Judah says: R. Meir used to declare that for all [kinds of script] we may put vitriol into the ink except only for the portion concerning the suspected woman. R. Jacob says in his [R. Meir's] name, Except the portion of the suspected woman [written] in the Temple.¹ What is the difference between them? — R. Jeremiah said: The point between them is [whether it is permissible] to blot out from the Torah [-scroll the passage required for the rite of the water of bitterness];² and these teachers [differ on the same issue] as the following teachers, for it has been taught: Her scroll is not valid to be used in giving another suspected woman to drink. R. Ahi b. Joshiah says: Her scroll is valid to be used in giving another suspected woman to drink.³ R. Papa said: perhaps it is not so, the first teacher only gives his opinion there because [the scroll] was designated for Rachel and cannot therefore be re-designated for Leah, but since the text of the Torah-scroll is written without reference to any individual, we may obliterate [the passage]. R. Nahman b. Isaac said: perhaps It is not so; R. Ahi b. Joshiah only gives his opinion there in the case of a scroll which was written for the purpose of the curses; but with a Torah-scroll which is written for the purpose of study, we may not obliterate [the passage]. Does not, then, R. Ahi b. Joshiah accept what we learnt: If a man wrote [a document] to divorce his wife but changed his mind, and then met a man who resided in the same city⁴ and said to him, 'My name is identical with yours and my wife's name identical with your wife's name', it is invalid [as a document] wherewith to divorce?⁵ — They answer: There [in connection with divorce] the All-Merciful declared: He shall write for her⁶ — we require that it should be written expressly for her; here likewise [it is stated], Shall execute upon her⁷ — what is intended by the word 'execute'? The obliteration [of the writing].⁸

SHE HAD SCARCELY FINISHED DRINKING WHEN HER FACE etc. Whose [teaching] is this?⁹ — It is R. Simeon's, because he said that [the priest] sacrifices her meal-offering and then gives her to drink,¹⁰ since the water does not affect her so long as her meal-offering is not sacrificed, as it is written: A meal-offering of memorial, bringing iniquity to remembrance.¹¹ But cite the continuation [of the Mishnah]: IF SHE POSSESSED A MERIT, IT [CAUSES THE WATER] TO SUSPEND ITS EFFECT UPON HER — this accords with the view of the Rabbis; because if [it be supposed that it accords with the view of] R. Simeon, behold he has declared: Merit does not cause the water of bitterness to suspend its effect!¹² — R. Hisda said: Whose is it, then? It is R. Akiba's, because he said: He sacrifices her meal-offering and then gives her to drink, and on the question of [the effect of] merit he agrees with the Rabbis.

AND IT IS EXCLAIMED, 'REMOVE HER' etc. What is the reason? — Perhaps she dies. Is this to say that a corpse is forbidden in the camp of the Levites?¹³ But it has been taught: One who is defiled through contact with a corpse is permitted to enter the camp of the Levites; and not only did they say this of one who is defiled through contact with a corpse but even the corpse itself [may be taken there], as it is said: And Moses took the bones of Joseph with him¹⁴ — 'with him', i.e., in his division!¹⁵ — Abaye said: [The reason is] lest she become menstruant.¹⁶ Is this to say that a sudden fright brings on [menstruation]? — Yes, for it is written: And the queen was exceedingly grieved,¹⁷ and Rab said, [It means] that she became menstruant. But we have learnt: Trembling holds back [the menstrual] flow! — Fear holds it back but a sudden fright brings It on.

IF SHE POSSESSED A MERIT etc. Whose teaching is our Mishnah? It is not that of Abba Jose b. Hanan, nor of R. Eleazar b. Isaac of Kefar Darom, nor of R. Ishmael; for it has been taught: If she possess a merit, it suspends [the effect of the water] for three months, sufficiently long for pregnancy to be recognisable. Such is the statement of Abba Jose b. Hanan; R. Eleazar b. Isaac of Kefar Darom says: For nine months, as it is stated: Then she shall be free and shall conceive seed,¹⁸ and elsewhere it declares, A seed shall serve him, it shall be related¹⁹ — i.e., a seed which is fit to be related.²⁰ R. Ishmael says: For twelve months, and although there is no proof of this, yet there is some indication; because it is written, Wherefore, O king, let my counsel be acceptable unto thee, and break off thy sins by righteousness, and thine iniquities by showing mercy to the poor,'

if there may be a lengthening of thy tranquility,¹ and it is written: All this came upon king Nebuchadnezzar,² and it is written: At the end of twelve months!³ — [The teaching is] certainly R. Ishmael's and he found a verse which mentions [the period] and repeats it; for it is written: Thus saith the Lord: For three transgressions of Edom.⁴ But why [was it said] that although there is no proof of this, yet there is some indication?⁵ — It may be different with heathens upon whom [God] does not execute judgment immediately.

AND ANOTHER FOR THREE YEARS etc. What sort of merit? If I answer merit of [studying] Torah, she is [in the category] of one who is not commanded and fulfils!⁶ — Rather must it be merit of [performing] a commandment. But does the merit of performing a commandment protect as much as that? — Surely it has been taught: The following did R. Menahem son of R. Jose expound: For the commandment is a lamp and Torah is light⁷ — the verse identifies the commandment with a lamp and Torah with light; the commandment with a lamp to tell thee that as a lamp only protects temporarily, so [the fulfilment of] a commandment only protects temporarily; and Torah with light to tell thee that as light protects permanently, so Torah protects permanently; and it states: When thou walkest it shall lead thee etc.⁸ — ‘when thou walkest it shall lead thee’, viz., In this world; ‘when, thou sleepest it shall watch over’ thee, viz., in death; and when, thou awakest it shall talk with thee, viz., in the Hereafter. Parable of a man who is walking in the middle of the night and darkness, and is afraid of thorns, pits, thistles, wild beasts and robbers, and also does not know the road in which he is going. If a lighted torch is prepared for him, he is saved from thorns, pits and thistles; but he is still afraid of wild beasts and robbers, and does not know the road in which he is going. When, however, dawn breaks, he is saved from wild beasts and robbers, but still does not know the road in which he is going. When, however, he reaches the cross-roads, he is saved from everything.⁹ Another explanation is: A transgression nullifies¹⁰ [the merit of] a commandment but not of [study of] Torah; as it is said: Many waters cannot quench love!¹¹ — Said R. Joseph: A commandment protects and rescues¹² while one is engaged upon it; but when one is no longer engaged upon it, it protects¹³ but does not rescue. As for [study of] Torah, whether while one is engaged upon it or not, it protects and rescues. Raba demurred to this: According to this reasoning, did not Doeg and Ahitophel engage upon [study of] Torah; so Why did it not protect them?¹⁴ — But, said Raba, while one is engaged upon [study of] Torah, it protects and rescues, and while one is not engaged upon it, it protects but does not rescue. As for a commandment whether while one is engaged upon it or not, it protects but does not rescue.

Rabina said: It is certainly merit of [the study of] Torah [which causes the water to suspend its effect]; and when you argue that she is in the category of one who is not commanded and fulfils, [it can be answered] granted that women are not so commanded, still when they have their sons taught Scripture and Mishnah and wait for their husbands until they return from the Schools,¹⁵ should they not share [the merit] with them?

What means ‘the cross-roads’ [in the parable related above]? — R. Hisda said: It alludes to a disciple of the Sages and the day of his death. R. Nahman b. Isaac said: It alludes to a disciple of the Sages and his fear of sin.¹⁶ Mar Zutra said: It alludes to a disciple of the Sages when the tradition cited by him is in accord with the halachah.¹⁷ Another explanation is: A transgression nullifies [the merit of] a commandment but not of [study of] Torah. R. Joseph said: R. Menahem son of R. Jose expounded that verse¹⁸ as though [it were Interpreted] from Sinai, and had Doeg and Ahitophel expounded it [similarly], they would not have pursued David, as it is written, saying: God hath forsaken him, etc.¹⁹ What verse did they expound?²⁰ — That he see no unclean thing in thee etc.²¹ They did not know, however, that a transgression nullifies [the merit of] a commandment but not of [study of] Torah.²² What means He would utterly be condemned?²³ — ‘Ulla said: Not like Simeon the brother of Azariah nor like R. Johanan of the Prince's house²⁴ but like Hillel²⁵ and Shebna. When R. Dimi came²⁶ he related that Hillel and Shebna were brothers; Hillel engaged in [study of] Torah and Shebna was occupied in business. Eventually [Shebna] said to him, ‘Come, let us become partners and divide [the profits]’. A Bath Kol²⁷ issued forth and proclaimed. If a man would give all the substance of his house etc.²⁸

HENCE DECLARED BEN AZZAI: A MAN IS UNDER THE OBLIGATION TO TEACH . . . R. ELIEZER SAYS: WHOEVER TEACHES HIS DAUGHTER TORAH TEACHES HER OBSCENITY. Can it enter your mind [that by teaching her Torah he actually teaches her] obscenity! — Read, rather: as though he had taught her obscenity. R. Abbahu said: What is R. Eliezer's reason? — Because it is written: I wisdom have made subtilty my dwelling,¹ i.e., when wisdom enters a man subtilty enters with it.

And what do the Rabbis² make of the words 'I wisdom'? — They require them in accordance with the teaching of R. Jose son of R. Hanina; for R. Jose son of R. Hanina said: Words of Torah only remain with him who renders himself naked³ on their behalf; as it is said: 'I wisdom have made nakedness my dwelling'. R. Johanan said: Words of Torah only remain with him who makes himself like one who is as nothing, as it is said: Wisdom shall be found from nothing.⁴

R. JOSHUA SAYS: A WOMAN PREFERS etc. What does he intend? — He means that a woman prefers one kab and sensuality with it to nine kab with continence.

What is the cunning rogue like? — R. Johanan says: He who explains his case to the judge before the other party to the suit arrives.⁵ R. Abbahu says: He who gives a poor man a denar to bring his possessions to the total of two hundred zuz;⁶ for we have learnt; He who possesses two hundred zuz may not take gleanings, forgotten sheaves, the produce of the corner of the field, or the poor tithe;⁷ but should he lack one denar of the two hundred [zuz], even if a thousand persons give him [the gleanings, etc.] simultaneously, he may accept.⁸ R. Assi said in the name of R. Johanan: [A cunning rogue is] he who gives advice to sell an estate which is inconsiderable;⁹ for R. Assi said in the name of R. Johanan: If the male-orphans sold an inconsiderable estate before [the daughters established their claim at a Court], their act of selling is legal. Abaye said: [A cunning rogue is] he who gives advice to sell property in accordance with the view of Rabban Simeon b. Gamaliel; for it has been taught: [If a man said], 'My property is for you and after you for So-and-so', and the first person went and sold it and ate up [the proceeds], the second man can recover from the purchaser. Such is the statement of Rabbi; Rabban Simeon b. Gamaliel says: The second only receives what the first left.¹⁰ R. Joseph b. Mama said in the name of R. who learnt Scripture and Mishnah but did not attend upon Rabbinical scholars.¹

It has been reported, If one has learnt Scripture and Mishnah but did not attend upon Rabbinical scholars, R. Eleazar says he is an 'Am ha-arez'² R. Samuel b. Nahmani says he is a boor; R. Jannai says he is a Samaritan;³ R. Aha b. Jacob says he is a magician.⁴ R. Nahman b. Isaac said: The definition of R. Aba b. Jacob appears the most probable; because there is a popular saying: The magician mumbles and knows not what he says; the tanna⁵ recites and knows not what he says.

Our Rabbis taught: Who is an 'Am ha-arez? Whoever does not recite the Shema⁶ morning and evening with its accompanying benedictions; such is the statement of R. Meir. The Sages say: Whoever does not put on the phylacteries. Ben Azzai says: Whoever has not the fringe upon his garment.⁷ R. Jonathan b. Joseph says: Whoever has sons and does not rear them to study Torah. Others say: Even if he learnt Scripture and Mishnah but did not attend upon Rabbinical scholars, he is an 'Am ha-arez. If he learnt Scripture but not Mishnah, he is a boor; if he learnt neither Scripture nor Mishnah, concerning him Scripture declares, I will sow the house of Israel and the house of Judah with the seed of man and with the seed of beast.⁸

My son, fear thou the Lord and the king, and mingle not with them that are given to change.⁹ R. Isaac said: They are the men who learn legal decisions.¹⁰ This is self-evident!¹¹ — [It is not, because] you might have supposed [that the text meant], they who repeat a sin, and that it is according to the teaching of R. Huna; for R. Huna said: When a man commits a transgression and repeats it, it becomes to him something which is permissible. Therefore he informs us [that this is not the intention of the text]. A Tanna taught: The Tannaim¹² bring destruction upon the world. How can it occur to you to say that they bring destruction upon the world! Rabina said: Because they decide points of law from their teachings.¹³ It has been similarly taught: R. Joshua said: Do they destroy the world? Rather do they cultivate the world, as it is said: As for the ways, the world is for him.¹⁴ But [the reference is to] those who decide points of law from their teachings.

A FEMALE PHARISEE etc. Our Rabbis have taught: A maiden who gives herself up to prayer,¹⁵ a gadabout widow,¹⁶ and a minor whose months are not completed¹⁷ — behold these bring destruction upon the world. But it is not so; for R. Johanan has said: We learnt fear of sin from a maiden [who gave herself up to prayer] and [confidence in] the bestowal of reward from a [gadabout] widow! Fear of sin from a maiden — for R. Johanan heard a maiden fall upon her face and exclaim, ‘Lord of the Universe! Thou hast created Paradise and Gehinnom; Thou hast created righteous and wicked. May it be Thy will that men should not stumble through me’. [Confidence in] the bestowal of reward from a widow — a certain widow had a Synagogue in her neighbourhood; yet she used to come daily to the School of R. Johanan¹⁸ and pray there. He said to her, ‘My daughter, is there not a Synagogue in your neighbourhood?’ She answered him, ‘Rabbi, but have I not the reward for the steps!’¹⁹ — When it is said [that they bring destruction upon the world] the reference is to such a person as Johani the daughter of Retibi.²⁰ What means ‘a minor whose months are not completed’? — They explained it thus: It refers to a disciple who rebels against the authority of his teachers. R. Abba said: It refers to a disciple who has not attained the qualification to decide questions of law and yet decides them; for R. Abbahu declared that R. Huna said in the name of Rab, What means that which is written: For she hath cast down many wounded, yea, all her slain are a mighty host?²¹ ‘For she hath cast down many wounded’ — this refers to a disciple who has not attained the qualification to decide questions of law and yet decides them; ‘yea, all her slain are a mighty host’ — this refers to a disciple who has attained the qualification to decide questions of law and does not decide them.

Talmud - Mas. Sotah 22b

At what age [is he qualified]? — At forty.¹ But it is not so, for Rabbah decided questions of Law!²

— [He did so only in a town where the Rabbis] were his equals.³

AND THE PLAGUE OF PHARISEES etc. Our Rabbis have taught: There are seven types of Pharisees: the shikmi Pharisee, the nikpi Pharisee, the kizai Pharisee, the ‘pestle’ Pharisee, the Pharisee [who constantly exclaims] ‘What is my duty that I may perform it?’, the Pharisee from love [of God] and the Pharisee from fear. The shikmi Pharisee — he is one who performs the action of Shechem.⁴ The nikpi Pharisee — he is one who knocks his feet together.⁵ The kizai Pharisee — R. Nahman b. Isaac said: He is one who makes his blood to flow against walls.⁶ The ‘pestle’ Pharisee — Rabbah b. Shila said: [His head] is bowed like [a pestle in] a mortar. The Pharisee [who constantly exclaims] ‘What is my duty that I may perform it?’ — but that is a virtue! — Nay, what he says is, ‘What further duty is for me that I may perform it?’⁷ The Pharisee from love and the Pharisee from fear — Abaye and Raba said to the tanna [who was reciting this passage], Do not mention ‘the Pharisee from love⁸ and the Pharisee from fear’; for Rab Judah has said in the name of Rab: A man should always engage himself in Torah and the commandments even though it be not for their own sake,⁹ because from [engaging in them] not for their own sake, he will come [to engage in them] for their own sake. R. Nahman b. Isaac said: What is hidden is hidden, and what is revealed is revealed; the Great Tribunal will exact punishment from those who rub themselves against the walls.¹⁰

King Jannai¹¹ said to his wife’, ‘Fear not the Pharisees and the non-Pharisees but the hypocrites who ape the Pharisees; because their deeds are the deeds of Zimri¹² but they expect a reward like Phineas’.¹³ MISHNAH R, SIMEON SAYS: MERIT DOES NOT CAUSE THE WATER OF BITTERNESS TO SUSPEND ITS EFFECT, AND IF YOU SAY THAT MERIT DOES CAUSE THE WATER OF BITTERNESS TO SUSPEND ITS EFFECT, YOU DISCREDIT THE WATER IN THE CASE OF ALL THE WOMEN WHO DRINK IT AND DEFAME THE PURE WOMAN WHO DRANK IT, SINCE PEOPLE WILL SAY, THEY WERE UNCLEAN, ONLY THEIR MERIT CAUSED THE WATER TO SUSPEND ITS EFFECT UPON THEM. RABBI SAYS: MERIT CAUSES THE WATER OF BITTERNESS TO SUSPEND ITS EFFECT, AND SHE NEVER BEARS A CHILD OR THRIVES, BUT SHE GRADUALLY GROWS ILL AND FINALLY DIES THROUGH THAT DEATH.¹⁴

IF HER MEAL-OFFERING BECAME DEFILED BEFORE IT BECAME HALLOWED IN THE [MINISTERING] VESSEL, BEHOLD IT IS LIKE ALL MEAL-OFFERINGS [SIMILARLY DEFILED] AND CAN BE REDEEMED;¹⁵ BUT IF [IT BECAME DEFILED] AFTER IT HAD BEEN HALLOWED IN THE [MINISTERING] VESSEL, BEHOLD IT IS LIKE ALL MEAL-OFFERINGS [SIMILARLY DEFILED] AND IS DESTROYED. THE FOLLOWING HAVE THEIR MEAL- OFFERINGS DESTROYED:

(1) Tosaphoth explains this to mean after forty years of study. It may, however, be connected with the statement in Ab. V, 24, At forty for understanding.

(2) He died at the age of forty; v. R. H. 18a.

(3) Since they were not his superiors in learning, he decided questions although less than the requisite age. [Tosaf. s.v. שוין explains that Rabbah surpassed all other scholars in his town, and the restriction applies only where there are others equal in learning to the young scholar. For further notes on the passage, v. A.Z. (Sonc. ed.) p. 101.]

(4) Who was circumcised from an unworthy motive (Gen. XXXIV). The J. Talmud (Ber. 14b) explains: who carries his religious duties upon his shoulder (shekem), i.e., ostentatiously.

(5) He walks with exaggerated humility. According to the J. Talmud: He says: Spare me a moment that I may perform a commandment.

(6) In his anxiety to avoid looking upon a woman he dashes his face against the wall. The J. Talmud explains: calculating Pharisee, i.e., he performs a good deed and then a bad deed, setting one off against the other.

(7) As though he had fulfilled every obligation.

(8) [Abaye and Raba understood ‘love’ and ‘fear’ to denote love of the rewards promised for the fulfilment of precepts and fear of punishment for transgressing them. In J. Ber., however, they are both taken in reference to God — i.e., love of God and fear of Him.]

(9) From pure and disinterested motives.

(10) In simulated humility. Others render: who wrap themselves in their cloaks. The meaning is that hypocrisy is of no avail against the Judge Who reads the heart.

Talmud - Mas. Sotah 23a

SHE WHO SAYS, 'I AM UNCLEAN TO THEE',¹ WHEN WITNESSES CAME [AND TESTIFIED] THAT SHE HAD MISCONDUCTED HERSELF, SHE WHO SAYS I REFUSE TO DRINK, WHEN THE HUSBAND REFUSES TO LET HER DRINK, AND WHEN HER HUSBAND COHABITED WITH HER ON THE JOURNEY [TO JERUSALEM]. FURTHERMORE, THE MEAL-OFFERINGS OF ALL WOMEN MARRIED TO PRIESTS ARE DESTROYED.² THE MEAL-OFFERING OF THE DAUGHTER OF AN ISRAELITE³ WHO IS MARRIED TO A PRIEST IS DESTROYED. BUT THE MEAL-OFFERING OF A PRIEST'S DAUGHTER WHO IS MARRIED TO AN ISRAELITE IS EATEN. WHAT [DIFFERENCES ARE THERE IN LAW] BETWEEN A PRIEST AND A PRIEST'S DAUGHTER? THE MEAL-OFFERING OF A PRIEST'S DAUGHTER IS EATEN BUT THE MEAL-OFFERING OF A PRIEST IS NOT EATEN.⁴ A PRIEST'S DAUGHTER MAY BECOME DECLASSED,⁵ BUT A PRIEST DOES NOT BECOME DECLASSED.⁶ A PRIEST'S DAUGHTER MAY RENDER HERSELF UNCLEAN BY CONTACT WITH THE DEAD, BUT A PRIEST MAY NOT RENDER HIMSELF UNCLEAN BY CONTACT WITH THE DEAD. A PRIEST EATS OF THE MOST HOLY [CLASS OF OFFERINGS],⁷ BUT A PRIEST'S DAUGHTER MAY NOT EAT OF THE MOST HOLY.

WHAT [DIFFERENCES ARE THERE IN LAW] BETWEEN A MAN AND A WOMAN? A MAN RENDS HIS CLOTHES AND LOOSENS HIS HAIR,⁸ BUT A WOMAN DOES NOT REND HER CLOTHES AND LOOSEN HER HAIR. A MAN MAY VOW THAT HIS SON WILL BECOME A NAZIRITE, BUT A WOMAN MAY NOT VOW THAT HER SON WILL BECOME A NAZIRITE.⁹ A MAN MAY BE SHAVED ON ACCOUNT OF THE NAZIRITESHIP OF HIS FATHER,¹⁰ BUT A WOMAN CANNOT BE SHAVED ON ACCOUNT OF THE NAZIRITESHIP OF HER FATHER. A MAN MAY SELL HIS DAUGHTER,¹¹ BUT A WOMAN MAY NOT SELL HER DAUGHTER. A MAN MAY GIVE HIS DAUGHTER IN BETROTHAL,¹² BUT A WOMAN MAY NOT GIVE HER DAUGHTER IN BETROTHAL. A MAN IS STONED NAKED, BUT A WOMAN IS NOT STONED NAKED.¹³ A MAN IS HANGED,¹⁴ BUT A WOMAN IS NOT HANGED. A MAN IS SOLD FOR HIS THEFT,¹⁵ BUT A WOMAN IS NOT SOLD FOR HER THEFT.

GEMARA. Our Rabbis taught: The meal-offerings of all women who had married into the priesthood are to be destroyed.¹⁶ How is this? In the case of the daughter of a priest, Levite or Israelite who had married a priest, her meal-offering is not eaten because he has a share in it,¹⁷ nor is it treated as a holocaust¹⁸ because she¹⁹ has a share in it; but the handful is offered separately and the remainder separately. But there is to be applied here the rule that whatever sacrifice has a portion thereof treated as 'offerings made by fire' comes under the law of ye shall not burn!²⁰ — R. Judah, son of R. Simeon b. Pazi said: They are burnt as fuel,²¹ in accordance with the statement of R.

Eliezer; for it has been taught: R. Eliezer says: For a sweet savour²² thou mayest not bring it [upon the altar] but thou mayest bring it as fuel. This is right for R. Eliezer who holds this opinion; but what is there to say as regards the Rabbis who do not hold this opinion? — [They declare that] it is to be treated according to the view of R. Eleazar b. Simeon; for it has been taught: R. Eleazar b. Simeon says: The handful²³ is offered separately and the remainder is scattered upon the place of the ashes.

(1) To her husband through infidelity.

(2) Although not defiled. The law of Lev. II, 3 does not apply, v. Gemara.

(3) A non-priest.

(4) V. Lev. VI, 16.

(5) By contracting an illegal marriage. Even after divorce or in widowhood she loses her privileges.

(6) Permanently by contracting an illegal marriage. After divorce or his wife's death he regains his privileges.

(7) A sin-offering or guilt-offering.

(8) When declared a leper (Lev. XIII, 45).

(9) V. Nazir 28b.

(10) I.e., in the event of his father's death, he can go through the ceremony described in Num. VI, 18, v. Nazir 30a.

(11) As a bondwoman (Ex. XXI, 7).

(12) Without her consent when she is a minor.

(13) V. Sanh. 44b.

(14) After capital punishment (Deut. XXI, 22).

(15) Ex. XXII, 2.

(16) And not eaten by the priests.

(17) The flour belongs to him, and so the offering in fact comes under the law of Lev. VI, 16.

(18) Which is the way the meal-offering of a priest is treated

(19) Who is a non-priest.

(20) Lev. II, 11. In this verse the word mimmennu 'of it' appears to be superfluous, and the deduction is drawn that the parts of a sacrifice which are designated as not to be burnt upon the altar must not be burnt upon it. How, then, can it be stated that 'the remainder' is to be burnt separately?

(21) Upon the altar but not as part of the sacrifice.

(22) Ibid. 12.

(23) Of a meal-offering for a sin brought by a priest. Lev. VI, 16 speaks of a freewill-offering.

Talmud - Mas. Sotah 23b

And even the Rabbis only differ from R. Eleazar b. Simeon in the matter of the meal-offering brought by a sinner from among the priests which is something to be offered [in its entirety],¹ but even here² the Rabbis admit.³

[THE MEAL-OFFERING] OF THE DAUGHTER OF AN ISRAELITE WHO IS MARRIED etc. What is the reason? — Because Scripture declared: And every meal-offering of the priest shall be wholly burnt; it shall not be eaten⁴ — 'of the priest' but not of a priest's daughter.⁵

A PRIEST'S DAUGHTER MAY BECOME DECLASSIFIED, BUT A PRIEST DOES NOT BECOME DECLASSIFIED. Whence have we this? — Because Scripture declared: He shall not profane his seed among his people⁶ — his seed may become profaned,⁷ but he himself cannot become profaned.

A PRIEST'S DAUGHTER MAY RENDER HERSELF UNCLEAN etc. What is the reason? — Scripture declared: Speak unto the priests the sons of Aaron⁸ — 'the sons of Aaron' but not the daughters of Aaron.

A PRIEST EATS OF THE MOST HOLY — for it is written: Every male among the children of Aaron shall eat of it.⁹

WHAT [DIFFERENCES ARE THERE IN LAW] BETWEEN A MAN etc. Our Rabbis taught: [He is a leprous] man.¹⁰ I have here only mention of a man; whence is it [that the law applies to] a woman? When it states: And the leper in whom [the plague is],¹¹ behold here are two.¹² If so, what does the word ‘man’ indicate? [It is to be applied] to the subject-matter of what follows, viz., it is a man who rends his clothes etc, [but not a woman].

A MAN MAY VOW THAT HIS SON WILL BECOME A NAZIRITE, BUT A WOMAN CANNOT VOW THAT HER SON WILL BECOME A NAZIRITE. R. Johanan said: This is a legal decision [traditionally handed down] in connection with a Nazirite.¹³

A MAN MAY BE SHAVED ON ACCOUNT OF THE NAZIRITESHIP OF HIS FATHER, BUT A WOMAN CANNOT BE SHAVED ON ACCOUNT OF THE NAZIRITESHIP OF HER FATHER. R. Johanan said: This is a legal decision [traditionally handed down] in connection with a Nazirite.¹⁴

A MAN MAY GIVE HIS DAUGHTER IN BETROTHAL, BUT A WOMAN CANNOT GIVE HER DAUGHTER IN BETROTHAL. Because it is written: I gave my daughter unto this man.¹⁵

A MAN MAY SELL HIS DAUGHTER, BUT A WOMAN MAY NOT SELL HER DAUGHTER. Because it is written: And if a man sell his daughter.¹⁶

A MAN IS STONED NAKED etc. What is the reason? — And stone him¹⁷ — what means ‘him’? If I say that it means him and not her, behold it is written: Then shalt thou bring forth that man or that woman!¹⁸ But [the meaning is] ‘him’ without his clothing but not her without her clothing.

A MAN IS HANGED etc. What is the reason? — Scripture declared: And thou hang him on a tree¹⁹ — ‘him’ but not her.

A MAN IS SOLD FOR HIS THEFT, BUT A WOMAN IS NOT SOLD FOR HER THEFT. What is the reason? — Scripture declared: Then he shall be sold for his theft²⁰ — ‘for his theft’ but not for her theft.

CHAPTER IV

MISHNAH. A BETROTHED MAIDEN AND A CHILDLESS WIDOW WAITING FOR HER BROTHER-IN-LAW [TO DECIDE WHETHER HE WILL MARRY HER] DO NOT DRINK [THE WATER OF BITTERNESS]²¹ AND DO NOT RECEIVE WHAT IS DUE UNDER THE MARRIAGE-SETTLEMENT; AS IT IS SAID, WHEN A WIFE, BEING UNDER HER HUSBAND, GOETH ASIDE,²² THUS EXCLUDING A BETROTHED MAIDEN AND A CHILDLESS WIDOW WAITING FOR HER BROTHER-IN-LAW. A WIDOW WHO HAD MARRIED A HIGH PRIEST,²³ A DIVORCED WOMAN OR A HALUZAH²⁴ WHO HAD MARRIED AN ORDINARY PRIEST, AN ILLEGITIMATE

(1) According to the Rabbis, this sin-offering is to be dealt with in the same manner as the ordinary meal-offering of the priest and burnt in its entirety without the handful being first removed and offered.

(2) With the meal-offering of a priest's wife which is not something to be wholly offered, since this is treated like a non-priest.

OR A NETHINAH¹ WHO HAD MARRIED AN ISRAELITE, AND AN ISRAELITE'S DAUGHTER WHO HAD MARRIED AN ILLEGITIMATE OR A NATHIN DO NOT DRINK [THE WATER OF BITTERNESS] AND DO NOT RECEIVE WHAT IS DUE UNDER THE MARRIAGE-SETTLEMENT.

THE FOLLOWING DO NOT DRINK AND DO NOT RECEIVE THE MARRIAGE-SETTLEMENT: SHE WHO SAYS 'I AM UNCLEAN WHEN WITNESSES CAME [AND TESTIFIED] THAT SHE HAD MISCONDUCTED HERSELF, AND SHE WHO SAYS 'I REFUSE TO DRINK'. WHEN HER HUSBAND IS UNWILLING TO LET HER DRINK, OR WHEN HER HUSBAND COHABITED WITH HER ON THE JOURNEY [TO JERUSALEM]. SHE RECEIVES THE MARRIAGE-SETTLEMENT BUT DOES NOT DRINK. IF THE HUSBANDS DIED BEFORE [THE WOMEN] DRANK, BETH SHAMMAI DECLARE THAT THEY RECEIVE THE MARRIAGE-SETTLEMENT BUT DO NOT DRINK, AND BETH HILLEL DECLARE THAT THEY EITHER DRINK OR DO NOT RECEIVE THE MARRIAGE-SETTLEMENT.

[A WIFE] WHO WAS PREGNANT BY A FORMER HUSBAND OR WAS SUCKLING A CHILD BY A FORMER HUSBAND² DOES NOT DRINK AND DOES NOT RECEIVE THE MARRIAGE-SETTLEMENT. SUCH IS THE STATEMENT OF R. MEIR; BUT THE RABBIS DECLARE THAT HE IS ABLE TO SEPARATE FROM HER AND TAKE HER BACK AFTER THE PERIOD [OF TWO YEARS]. A WOMAN INCAPABLE OF CONCEPTION,³ ONE TOO OLD TO BEAR CHILDREN, AND ONE WHO IS UNFIT TO BEAR CHILDREN⁴ DO NOT RECEIVE THE MARRIAGE-SETTLEMENT AND DO NOT DRINK.⁵ R. ELIEZER SAYS: HE IS ABLE TO MARRY ANOTHER WIFE⁶ AND HAVE OFFSPRING BY HER. AS FOR ALL OTHER WOMEN, THEY EITHER DRINK OR DO NOT RECEIVE THE MARRIAGE-SETTLEMENT.

THE WIFE OF A PRIEST DRINKS AND IS PERMITTED TO HER HUSBAND.⁷ THE WIFE OF A EUNUCH⁸ DRINKS. THROUGH [SECLUSION WITH] ALL PERSONS FORBIDDEN TO

HER IN MARRIAGE⁹ JEALOUSY [NECESSITATING THE ORDEAL] IS ESTABLISHED WITH THE EXCEPTION OF A MINOR¹⁰ AND ONE NOT A MAN.¹¹

IN THE FOLLOWING CASES A COURT OF LAW CAN GIVE WARNING:¹² WHEN THE HUSBAND IS A DEAF-MUTE OR HAS BECOME INSANE OR IS IMPRISONED. NOT FOR THE PURPOSE OF MAKING HER DRINK DID THEY SAY THIS, BUT TO DISQUALIFY HER IN CONNECTION WITH THE MARRIAGE-SETTLEMENT. R. JOSE SAYS: ALSO TO MAKE HER DRINK; WHEN HER HUSBAND IS RELEASED FROM PRISON HE MAKES HER DRINK.

GEMARA. [In the instances enumerated by the Mishnah, the husband] does not let her drink, but he may give her a warning.¹³ Whence is this learnt? — Our Rabbis taught: Speak unto the children of Israel and say¹⁴ — [the addition of 'and say'] is to include a betrothed maiden and a childless widow waiting for her levir in the law respecting the warning. Whose is [the teaching of] our Mishnah? — It is R. Jonathan's; for it has been taught: Being under thy husband¹⁵ excludes a betrothed maiden. It is possible to think that we are also to exclude a childless widow; therefore the text repeats the word 'man'.¹⁶ Such is the statement of R. Joshiah. R. Jonathan says: 'Being under thy husband' excludes a childless widow. [It is possible to think that] we exclude a childless widow waiting for her levir but not a betrothed maiden; therefore there is a text to declare, When a wife, being under her husband, goeth aside,¹⁷ thus excluding a betrothed maiden. One teacher¹⁸ considers a betrothed maiden as more bound to him since the marriage ensues through him and they stone her on his account;¹⁹ whereas the other teacher considers that a childless widow is more bound to [her brother-in-law] since the nuptial surrender is not lacking.²⁰ What, then, does R. Jonathan make of the repetition of the word 'man'? — He requires it to include the wife of a deaf-mute man, the wife of an imbecile, and the wife of

(1) A descendant of the Gibeonites (Josh. IX) with whom Israelites were not allowed to intermarry. An illegitimate was debarred under the law of Deut. XXIII, 3, E.V. 2.

(2) Under Rabbinic Law, a pregnant woman who had been divorced or widowed should not marry for two years. This Mishnah deals with the case where she married within that period and her husband became jealous of her.

(3) Lit., 'ram-like', v. Keth. 11a.

(4) This refers to a woman who lost the capability of bearing by taking some drug and not just barren or too old to bear children.

(5) Because marriage with such as these is forbidden to one who has no children.

(6) In addition to her; he therefore regards such a marriage as valid.

(7) If proved innocent.

(8) Who became so after marriage.

(9) E.g., her father or brother.

(10) Under the age of nine years.

(11) Explained in the Gemara.

(12) Instead of the husband, when they have cause to suspect the wife.

(13) Not to associate with the man, in order to deny her right to the marriage settlement if she disobeyed.

(14) Num. V, 12.

(15) Ibid. 19.

(16) In verse 12 any man's wife is literally: a man, a man, his wife. The addition of the word 'man' is taken to include the case of a childless widow, waiting for her levir.

(17) Ibid. 29.

(18) R. Jonathan.

(19) If she is unchaste (Deut. XXII, 24).

(20) By the death of her husband she ipso facto becomes the wife of her brother-in-law if he wishes to take her, and an act of cohabitation constitutes a marriage.

Talmud - Mas. Sotah 24b

a weak-minded man.¹ And what does R. Joshiah make of the phrase 'being under her husband'? — He requires it to draw an analogy between a husband and wife and between a wife and husband.² Now the reason [given why a betrothed maiden is excluded] is because these Scriptural texts occur, otherwise I would have said that a betrothed maiden must drink; but when R. Aha b. Hanina came from the South he brought this teaching with him: Besides thine husband³ — i.e., when intercourse with a husband had preceded intercourse with a paramour and not when intercourse with a paramour had preceded intercourse with a husband!⁴ — Rami b. Hama said, [It is necessary to rely upon the texts] for such a contingency as when the fiance had had intercourse with her in her father's house.⁵ Similarly with a childless widow the texts would be required for the contingency as when the brother-in-law had had intercourse with her in her father-in-law's house,⁶ but can you call her a childless widow waiting for her levir'? [In such circumstances], Surely she is his legal wife; for Rab has said: He⁷ has acquired her [as his wife] in every respect!⁸ — It is as Samuel said: He has only acquired her for the objects mentioned in the Scriptural portion.⁹ If that is so, are we to say that Rab agrees with R. Joshiah¹⁰ and Samuel with R. Jonathan?¹¹ — Rab can reply. I even agree with R. Jonathan, because from the fact that it was necessary for the text to exclude her,¹² it follows that she is his legal wife.

(1) V. infra 27a.

(2) This is likewise expounded infra 27a.

(3) Num. V, 20.

(4) Consequently a betrothed maiden is excluded from the law.

(5) Before marriage.

(6) After her husband's death.

(7) The levir.

(8) By cohabitation. If, e.g., he is a priest, she partakes of the heave-offering.

(9) Deut. XXV, 5-10. viz., to be his brother's heir and free himself from the ceremony of Halizah; but cohabitation would not constitute a marriage to give her the right to partake of the heave-offering if he was a priest.

(10) Who says that a childless widow waiting for her levir drinks, and that can arise in the case where the cohabitation occurred in her father's house.

(11) Who holds that she does not drink, for cohabitation does not constitute full marriage.

(12) A childless widow who cohabited with her brother-in-law.

Talmud - Mas. Sotah 25a

Similarly Samuel can reply. I even agree with R. Joshiah. because from the fact that it was necessary for the text to include her, it follows that she is not his wife at all.

The question was asked: Does a woman who transgresses [the Jewish] ethical code¹ require to be warned in order to make her lose her marriage-settlement or does she not require it? Do we say that since she transgresses the ethical code she does not require to be warned; or perhaps warning is necessary because she may reform? — Come and hear: A BETROTHED MAIDEN AND A CHILDLESS WIDOW WAITING FOR HER BROTHER-IN-LAW² DO NOT DRINK AND DO NOT RECEIVE WHAT IS DUE UNDER THE MARRIAGE-SETTLEMENT. [In these instances the man] does not let her drink but he may give her warning. But for what purpose [does he warn her]? Is it not to make her lose her marriage-settlement!³ — Abaye said: No; [the purpose is] to prohibit her to himself [in marriage]. R. Papa said: [The purpose is] to make her drink when she is married;⁴ as it has been taught: We may not warn a betrothed maiden with the object of making her drink while she is betrothed; but we may warn a betrothed maiden with the object of making her drink when she is married.

Raba said: Come and hear: A WIDOW WHO HAD MARRIED A HIGH PRIEST, A DIVORCED WOMAN OR A HALUZAH WHO HAD MARRIED AN ORDINARY PRIEST, AN ILLEGITIMATE OR A NETHINAH WHO HAD MARRIED AN ISRAELITE, AND AN ISRAELITE'S DAUGHTER WHO HAD MARRIED AN ILLEGITIMATE OR A NATHIN DO NOT DRINK AND DO NOT RECEIVE WHAT IS DUE UNDER THE MARRIAGE-SETTLEMENT. They do not drink but they receive a warning. But for what purpose? If [you answer] to make them prohibited to the husband, behold they are already prohibited;⁵ rather must it be to make them lose the marriage-settlement! — Rab Judah of Diskarta⁶ said: No; [the purpose is] to prohibit her to the paramour as to the husband; as we learn: Just as she is prohibited to the husband so is she prohibited to the paramour.⁷

R. Hanina of Sura said; Come and hear: IN THE FOLLOWING CASES A COURT OF LAW CAN GIVE WARNING: WHEN THE HUSBAND IS A DEAF-MUTE OR HAS BECOME INSANE OR IS IMPRISONED. NOT FOR THE PURPOSE OF MAKING HER DRINK DID THEY SAY THIS BUT TO DISQUALIFY HER IN CONNECTION WITH THE MARRIAGE-SETTLEMENT. Conclude from this that she does require to be warned! That conclusion is to be drawn. But why did not [the other Rabbis] draw the inference from this passage? — [They thought] perhaps it is different in the circumstance where she had no cause at all to be afraid of her husband.⁸

The question was asked: If a woman transgresses [the Jewish] ethical code and the husband desired to retain her, may he do so or may he not? Do we say that the All-Merciful depends upon the husband's objection [to her conduct],⁹ and in this case he does not object; or, perhaps, since [a husband normally] objects, he must object [and divorce her]? — Come and hear: IN THE FOLLOWING CASES A COURT OF LAW CAN GIVE WARNING: WHEN THE HUSBAND IS A DEAF-MUTE OR HAS BECOME INSANE OR IS IMPRISONED. Should you maintain that if the husband desired to retain her he may do so, can the Court of Law do something of which the husband may not approve?¹⁰ — As a general rule, when a woman transgresses the ethical code, [the husband] is agreeable [to the warning].

The question was asked: If a husband retracted his warning, is the warning retracted or not?¹¹ Do we say that the All-Merciful depends upon the husband's warning and here the husband retracted it; or perhaps since he already gave a warning he is unable to withdraw it? — Come and hear: IN THE FOLLOWING CASES A COURT OF LAW CAN GIVE WARNING: WHEN THE HUSBAND IS A DEAF-MUTE OR HAS BECOME INSANE OR IS IMPRISONED. Should you maintain that if a husband retracted his warning his warning is retracted, can we¹² perform an action which the husband may come and retract!¹³ — As a general rule, a man agrees with the opinion of a Court of Law.¹⁴

Come and hear: And they assign to him two disciples of the Sages lest he cohabit with her on the journey.¹⁵ Should you maintain that if a husband retracted his warning the warning is retracted, let him then withdraw it and cohabit with her! — Why are disciples of the Sages specified? Because they are learned men, so that if he wishes to cohabit with her, they say to him, 'Withdraw your warning and cohabit with her'.¹⁶

Come and hear: R. Josiah said: Three things did Ze'ira tell me as emanating from the men of Jerusalem:¹⁷ If a husband retracted his warning the warning is retracted; if a Court of Law wished to pardon an elder who rebelled [against their decision] they may pardon him; and if the parents wished to forgive a stubborn and rebellious son¹⁸ they may forgive him.¹⁹ When, however, I came to my colleagues in the South, they agreed with me in respect of two but did not agree with me in respect of the rebellious elder, so that disputes should not multiply in Israel. Deduce therefrom that if a husband retracted his warning the warning is retracted. Draw that conclusion.

In this connection R. Aha and Rabina differ. One said that [the warning can be] retracted before seclusion but not after seclusion, and the other said that also after seclusion it can be retracted. The more probable view is that of him who said that it cannot be retracted. Whence is this learnt? — [It is to be inferred] from the answer which the Rabbis gave to R. Jose; for it has been taught: R. Jose says: By a fortiori reasoning [it is deduced] that a husband is trusted with her. If a husband is trusted in the matter of his wife during menstruation where the penalty is excision, how much more so in the matter of his wife while under suspicion in connection with which there is a mere prohibition! [The Rabbis] replied to him, No; if you argue [that he may be trusted] in the case of his wife during menstruation to whom he will have a right [on her recovery], will you argue so in the case of his wife while under suspicion when he may never have a right to her!²⁰ Now if you maintain that [a warning may be] retracted after seclusion, then it can happen that he may again have a right to her; because if he so desire, he can retract his warning and cohabit! Therefore deduce from this that after seclusion it cannot be retracted. Draw that conclusion.

IF THE HUSBANDS DIED BEFORE [THE WOMEN] DRANK, BETH SHAMMAI etc. On what point [do the two Schools] differ?

Beth Shammai are of opinion that a bond which is due for redemption is considered as having been redeemed;²¹

(1) And thereby shows an indifference for public opinion; such a woman is put away without recovering her kethubah, v. Keth. 72a.

(2) These too had transgressed the ethical code by their act of seclusion.

(3) Consequently, without warning she would not lose it.

(4) If she secluded herself with a man after marriage, then the warning which the husband gave her for a previous action, while she was betrothed, is still valid.

(5) Since such a marriage is contrary to law.

(6) V. supra p. 26, n. 7.

(7) V. infra 27b.

(9) Because Scripture declares, 'and he be jealous of his wife'. If he is not jealous, is her conduct to be overlooked?

(10) The Court, representing the husband, would thereby involve him in an act which was contrary to his wish, and this is not legally possible, v. Keth. 11a.

(11) [Assuming that the husband may retain a wife who transgresses the ethical code, the question still arises whether he can retract or not in the case where he had given her a warning.]

By analogy, the widow is automatically entitled to her marriage-settlement on the husband's death and the onus is upon the heirs to prove that she had forfeited it by producing witnesses that she had committed adultery.

whereas Beth Hillel are of opinion that a bond which is due for redemption is not considered as having been redeemed.¹

[A WIFE] WHO WAS PREGNANT BY A FORMER HUSBAND etc. R. Nahman said in the name of Rabbah b. Abbuha: The dispute² is in connection with a barren woman and one too old to bear children; but as for a woman incapable of conception, all agree that she does not drink and does not receive her marriage-settlement, as it is said: Then she shall be free and shall conceive seed³ — i.e., one whose way it is to conceive seed, thus excluding one whose way is not to conceive seed. An objection was raised: 'If a man gives a warning to his betrothed or to his brother's childless widow, should she seclude herself [with the other man] before the marriage, she does not drink and does not receive her marriage-settlement'.⁴

(1) As the creditor must first establish his right to the debtor's property, so the widow must prove her right to the marriage-settlement by drinking the water, since she is under suspicion; for fuller notes v. Shebu. (Sonc. ed.) p. 298, n. 5.

Talmud - Mas. Sotah 26a

'[A wife] who was pregnant by a former husband or was suckling a child by a former husband does not drink and does not receive the marriage-settlement.'¹ Such is the statement of R. Meir; because R. Meir says: A man may not marry a woman who is pregnant by a former husband or is suckling a child by a former husband, and if he married her he must let her go and never take her back; the Sages, on the other hand, say: He must let her go, but when the time arrives when he may marry her² he marries her. 'If a youth married a barren woman or one too old to bear, and he did not previously have a wife and children, she does not drink and does not receive the marriage-settlement. R. Eliezer says: He is able to marry another wife and have offspring by her'.³ But 'if a man gives a warning to his betrothed or to his brother's childless widow and she secluded herself after marriage, she either drinks or does not receive the marriage-settlement. If the wife is pregnant or suckling a child by himself,⁴ she either drinks or does not receive the marriage-settlement. And if a youth married a barren woman or one too old to bear, and he already had a wife and children, she either drinks or does not receive the marriage-settlement. The legal wife of an illegitimate,⁵ the legal wife of a Nathin, the wife of a proselyte or freed slave, and a woman incapable of conception either drink or do not receive the marriage-settlement.⁶ Here the woman incapable of conception is specified [among the woman who are required to drink]! It is a refutation of R. Nahman.⁷

R. Nahman can reply, [That which I stated above is a difference between] Tannaim, whereas I agree with the following Tanna. For it has been taught: R. Simeon b. Eleazar says: A woman incapable of conception does not drink and does not receive the marriage-settlement, as it is said: Then she shall be free and shall conceive seed⁸ — i.e., one whose way is to conceive seed, thus excluding one whose way is not to conceive seed.⁹ What, then, do the Rabbis make of the phrase 'Then she shall be free and shall conceive seed'? They require it in accordance with the following teaching: 'Then she shall be free and conceive seed' — so that if she had been barren, she now becomes visited.¹⁰ Such is the statement of R. Akiba. R. Ishmael said to him, In that case, all barren women will seclude themselves and be visited, and since this one did not seclude herself she will be the loser!¹¹ If so, what is the purpose of 'Then she shall be free and shall conceive seed'? If she formerly bore children in pain she will now bear with ease; if formerly girls she will now give birth to boys; if formerly short she will now bear tall children; if formerly dark she will now have fair children.

‘The legal wife of an illegitimate [either drinks or does not receive the marriage-settlement]’ — this is self-evident!¹² — What you might have said was that disqualified [members of the Community] should not be multiplied.¹³ Therefore he informs us [that such a marriage is treated like any other].

‘The wife of a proselyte or freed slave and a woman incapable of conception [either drink or do not receive the marriage-settlement]’ — this is self-evident! — What you might have said was, Speak unto the children of Israel¹⁴ — but not to proselytes. Therefore he informs us [that proselytes are included in the law]. Or as an alternative answer: And say¹⁵ is to be interpreted as including [the wife of a proselyte, etc.].

THE WIFE OF A PRIEST DRINKS etc. This is self-evident! — What you might have said was, And she had not been violated¹⁶ — then she is prohibited [to her husband];¹⁷ hence if she had been violated she is permitted to him; but this woman [being the wife of a priest] is prohibited to him even if she had been violated, and consequently she does not drink. Therefore he informs us [that she does undergo the ordeal].

AND IS PERMITTED TO HER HUSBAND. This is self-evident! — R. Huna said: [This refers to a case where] she becomes ill.¹⁸ But if she becomes ill, the water has proved her [guilty]! — [It refers to a case where] she becomes ill in other limbs.¹⁹ What you might have said was that she had committed adultery, and the fact that the water did not affect her in the usual way was due to her having acted immorally under force and as such she is prohibited to a priest. Therefore he informs us [that she is permitted to her husband].

THE WIFE OF A EUNUCH DRINKS. This is self-evident! — What you might have said was, Besides thine husband²⁰ declared the All Merciful, and this man [being a eunuch] does not come within the category [of husband]. Therefore he informs us [that he is considered to be her husband for the law of the ordeal].

THROUGH [SECLUSION WITH] ALL PERSONS FORBIDDEN TO HER IN MARRIAGE JEALOUSY IS ESTABLISHED. This is self-evident!

(2) I.e., after the lapse of two years from the birth of the child.

(3) Tosef. ibid. 5. The last sentence occurs in the Mishnah p. 120, and instead the Tosef. reads: R. Eliezer says: He is able to separate from her and take her back after a time.

Talmud - Mas. Sotah 26b

— What you might have said was, The phrase ‘and she be defiled’ occurs twice¹ — once with respect to the husband and the other with respect to the paramour² — but it only applies when she becomes prohibited [to the paramour] by this act of adultery; but where she was in any event forbidden to him, conclude that she is not [barred from marrying him]. Therefore he informs us [that she has to undergo the ordeal although the paramour was forbidden to her in any case and if guilty she cannot marry her paramour].

WITH THE EXCEPTION OF A MINOR etc. A man³ declared the All-Merciful, not a minor. AND ONE NOT A MAN. Whom does this exclude? If I answer that it is to exclude one whose flesh is wasted,⁴ behold Samuel has said: A warning [against seclusion] can be given in connection with a man who is wasting and he disqualifies for partaking of the heave-offering!⁵ (A warning [against seclusion] can be given in connection with him — this is self-evident! — What you might have said was, ‘And a man lie with her carnally’ declared the All-Merciful and such a one does not come within that category; therefore he informs us [that seclusion with him does bring the woman within the scope of the law]. And he disqualifies for partaking of the heave-offering — that is self-evident! — What you might have said was, He shall not profane his seed⁶ declared the All-Merciful-one who had ‘seed’ can profane,⁷ but one who had no ‘seed’ cannot profane; therefore he informs us [that he can profane].⁸) If, on the other hand, it is to exclude a gentile, behold R. Hamnuna has said: A warning [against seclusion] can be given in connection with a gentile and he disqualifies for partaking of the heave-offering! (A warning [against seclusion] can be given in connection with him — this is self-evident! — What you might have said was, The phrase ‘and she be defiled’ occurs twice — once with respect to the husband and the other with respect to the paramour — but it only applies when she becomes prohibited [to the paramour] by this act of adultery; but where she was in any event forbidden to him,⁹ conclude that she is not [warned against seclusion]. Therefore he informs us [that a warning can be given with respect to a gentile]. And he disqualifies for partaking of the heave-offering — this is self-evident! — What you might have said was, And if a priest's daughter be married unto a stranger¹⁰ declared the All-Merciful, i.e., when there was a legal marriage-status, but not when there is no legal marriage-status. Therefore he informs us [that a gentile] does disqualify her. This is in agreement with R. Johanan who said in the name of R. Ishmael: Whence is it that a gentile or a slave who had intercourse with a priest's daughter or Levite's daughter or an Israelite's daughter disqualifies her [for the heave-offering]? As it is said: But if a priest's daughter be a widow, or divorced¹¹ — only In the case of a man where her widowhood or divorce [is legally recognised],¹² thus excluding a gentile or slave where her widowhood or divorce is not [legally recognised].)¹³ What, then, [does the phrase AND NOT A MAN] exclude? — R. Papa said: It excludes an animal, because there is not adultery in connection with an animal.¹⁴

Raba of Parazika¹⁵ asked R. Ashi, Whence is the statement which the Rabbis made that there is no adultery in connection with an animal? — Because it is written: Thou shalt not bring the hire of a harlot or the wages of a dog etc.;¹⁶ and it has been taught: The hire of a dog¹⁷ and the wages of a harlot¹⁸ are permissible, as it is said: Even both these¹⁹ — the two [specified in the text are abominations] but not four.²⁰

What is the purpose [of the Scriptural phrase] carnally?²¹ — It is required for this teaching: ‘Carnally’ to the exclusion of something else. What means ‘something else’? — R. Shesheth said: It excludes the case where he warned her against unnatural intercourse. Raba said to him, [It excludes the case where he warned her against] unnatural intercourse? It is written: As lying with womankind!²² But, said Raba, it excludes the case where he warned her against contact of the bodies.²³ Abaye said to him, That is merely an obscene act [and not adultery], and did the All-Merciful prohibit [a wife to her husband] for an obscene act? But, said Abaye, it excludes the case where he warned her against external contact. This is quite right according to him who maintains that by sexual contact is to be understood insertion²⁴ inasmuch as external contact is not regarded, and consequently the Scriptural phrase is intended to exclude the latter; but according to him who maintains that sexual contact is the external contact what is there to say? — Certainly [the Scriptural phrase is intended to exclude the case where] he warned her against contact of the bodies; and should you argue that the All-Merciful made it depend upon the husband's objection [to such conduct] and behold the husband did object,²⁵ therefore he informs us [that the phrase 'carnally' is to exclude this].

a woman of ill-repute rather than the daughter of a woman of ill-repute, since the former comes from pure stock and the latter from impure stock.¹ R. Johanan, however, said: Let a man marry the daughter of a woman of ill-repute rather than a woman of ill-repute, since the former is presumably chaste whereas the latter is not. An objection was raised: One should marry a woman of ill-repute! — Raba said: Can you possibly think that [the meaning is that] he should marry [a woman of ill-repute who is such] at the outset? But the statement should take this form: 'If a man married [a woman of ill-repute]'; and similarly [read] 'the daughter of a woman of ill-repute'.² But the legal decision is: Let a man marry the daughter of a woman of ill-repute rather than a woman of ill-repute; because R. Tahlifa, the son of the West,³ recited in the presence of R. Abbahu, If a woman is an adulteress, her children are legitimate since the majority of the acts of cohabitation are ascribed to the husband.

R. Amram asked: How is it if she was excessively dissolute?⁴ According to him who maintains that a woman only conceives immediately before her period the question does not arise, because [the husband] may not know [when this is] and does not watch her; but the question does arise according to him who maintains that a woman only conceives immediately after the time of her purification. How is it then? Does he watch her since he knows when this occurs; or perhaps this is of no account since she is excessively dissolute?⁵ The question remains unanswered.

IN THE FOLLOWING CASES A COURT OF LAW etc. Our Rabbis taught: 'Man' — why does Scripture repeat the word?⁶ To include the wife of a deaf man, the wife of an imbecile, the wife of a weak-minded man, and cases where the husband has gone on a journey to a distant country or is imprisoned, that a Court of Law can give them warning to disqualify them in connection with the marriage-settlement. It is possible [to think that the warning] is also to make them drink; therefore there is a text to say: Then shall the man bring his wife.⁷ R. Jose says: It is also to make the woman drink so that when the husband is released from prison he makes her drink.⁸ On what do they differ? — The Rabbis are of the opinion that we require that the same man who 'warned' her must 'bring' her,⁹ whereas R. Jose is of the opinion that we do not require that the same man who 'warned' her must 'bring' her.¹⁰

Our Rabbis taught: When a wife, being under her husband, goeth aside¹¹ — this is to compare a husband with a wife and a wife with a husband. For what practical purpose? — R. Shesheth said: Just as he does not make her drink if he is blind, as it is written: And it be hid from the eyes of her husband,¹² so she does not drink if she is blind. R. Ashi said: Just as a woman who is lame or armless does not drink, for it is written,

(1) [As it is not known with whom the mother had relation.]

(2) [Since the Baraitha has to be amended in any case we might just as well amend 'a woman' into 'the daughter of a woman etc.'].]

And the priest shall set the woman before the Lord . . . and put the meal-offering in her hands,¹ so he does not make her drink if he is lame or armless. Mar son of R. Ashi said: Just as a dumb woman does not drink, for it is written And the woman shall say Amen, Amen,² so he does not make her drink if he is dumb.

MISHNAH. JUST AS THE WATER PROVES HER SO THE WATER PROVES HIM,³ AS IT IS SAID, 'AND SHALL ENTER ð TWICE.⁴ JUST AS SHE IS PROHIBITED TO THE HUSBAND⁵

SO IS SHE PROHIBITED TO THE PARAMOUR;⁶ AS IT IS SAID, DEFILED . . . AND IS DEFILED.⁷ THIS IS THE STATEMENT OF R. AKIBA. R. JOSHUA SAID: THUS USED ZECHARIAH B. HAKAZAB TO EXPOUND.⁸ RABBI SAYS: THE WORD DEFILED OCCURS TWICE IN THE SCRIPTURAL PORTION,⁹ ONE REFERRING [TO HER BEING PROHIBITED] TO THE HUSBAND AND THE OTHER TO THE PARAMOUR.

ON THAT DAY,¹⁰ R. AKIBA EXPOUNDED, AND EVERY EARTHEN VESSEL, WHEREINTO ANY OF THEM FALLETH, WHATSOEVER IS IN IT SHALL BE UNCLEAN,¹¹ IT DOES NOT STATE TAME [IS UNCLEAN] BUT YITMA',¹² I.E. TO MAKE OTHERS UNCLEAN. THIS TEACHES THAT A LOAF WHICH IS UNCLEAN IN THE SECOND DEGREE,¹³ MAKES [WHATEVER IT COMES IN CONTACT WITH] UNCLEAN IN THE THIRD DEGREE. R. JOSHUA SAID: WHO WILL REMOVE THE DUST FROM THINE EYES, R. JOHANAN B. ZAKKAI, SINCE THOU SAYEST THAT ANOTHER GENERATION IS DESTINED TO PRONOUNCE CLEAN A LOAF¹⁴ WHICH IS UNCLEAN IN THE THIRD DEGREE ON THE GROUND THAT THERE IS NO TEXT IN THE TORAH ACCORDING TO WHICH IT IS UNCLEAN!¹⁵ IS NOT R. AKIBA THY PUPIL?¹⁶ HE ADDUCES A TEXT IN THE TORAH ACCORDING TO WHICH IT IS UNCLEAN, VIZ., 'WHATSOEVER IS IN IT SHALL BE UNCLEAN'.

ON THAT DAY R. AKIBA EXPOUNDED, AND YE SHALL MEASURE WITHOUT THE CITY FOR THE EAST SIDE TWO THOUSAND CUBITS ETC.¹⁷ BUT ANOTHER TEXT STATES, FROM THE WALL OF THE CITY OUTWARD A THOUSAND CUBITS ROUND ABOUT.¹⁸ IT IS IMPOSSIBLE TO SAY THAT IT WAS A THOUSAND CUBITS SINCE IT HAS BEEN ALREADY STATED TWO THOUSAND CUBITS'; AND IT IS IMPOSSIBLE TO SAY THAT IT WAS TWO THOUSAND CUBITS SINCE IT HAS BEEN ALREADY STATED 'A THOUSAND CUBITS'! HOW WAS IT THEN? A THOUSAND CUBITS FOR THE SUBURB¹⁹ AND TWO THOUSAND CUBITS FOR THE SABBATH-LIMIT.²⁰ R. ELIEZER THE SON OF R. JOSE THE GALILEAN SAYS: A THOUSAND CUBITS FOR THE SUBURB AND TWO THOUSAND CUBITS FOR FIELDS AND VINEYARDS.²¹

ON THAT DAY R. AKIBA EXPOUNDED, THEN SANG MOSES AND THE CHILDREN OF ISRAEL THIS SONG UNTO THE LORD AND SPAKE, SAYING,²² THERE WAS NO NEED FOR THE WORD 'SAYING', SO WHY WAS IT ADDED? IT TEACHES THAT THE ISRAELITES RESPONDED TO EVERY SENTENCE AFTER MOSES, IN THE MANNER OF READING HALLEL,²³ 'I WILL SING UNTO THE LORD, FOR HE HATH TRIUMPHED GLORIOUSLY,²⁴ ON THAT ACCOUNT IS THE WORD 'SAYING' MENTIONED. R. NEHEMIAH SAYS: IN THE MANNER OF READING THE SHEMA²⁵ AND NOT HALLEL.

ON THAT DAY R. JOSHUA B. HYRCANUS EXPOUNDED: JOB ONLY SERVED THE HOLY ONE, BLESSED BE HE, FROM LOVE: AS IT IS SAID, THOUGH HE SLAY ME, YET WILL I WAIT FOR HIM.²⁶ AND SHOULD IT BE STILL DOUBTFUL WHETHER THE MEANING IS 'I WILL WAIT FOR HIM' OR 'I WILL NOT WAIT',²⁷ THERE IS ANOTHER TEXT TO DECLARE, TILL I DIE I WILL NOT PUT AWAY MINE INTEGRITY FROM ME.²⁸ THIS TEACHES THAT WHAT HE DID WAS FROM LOVE. R. JOSHUA [B. HANANIAH] SAID: WHO WILL REMOVE THE DUST FROM THINE EYES, R. JOHANAN B. ZAKKAI, SINCE THOU HAST BEEN EXPOUNDING ALL THY LIFE THAT JOB ONLY SERVED THE ALL-PRESENT FROM FEAR, AS IT IS SAID, THAT MAN WAS PERFECT AND UPRIGHT, AND ONE THAT FEARED GOD. AND ESCHEWED EVIL!²⁹ DID NOT JOSHUA, THE PUPIL OF THY PUPIL,³⁰ TEACH THAT WHAT HE DID WAS FROM LOVE?³¹ that if there be sin in him¹ the water proves him, [it may be asked] should there be sin in him on his own account does the water prove her for her own sin, and behold it has been taught: And the man shall be free from iniquity, and that woman shall bear her iniquity,² i.e., so long as the husband is free from iniquity the water proves his wife, but if the husband is not free from iniquity the Water does not prove his wife! — Should [the Mishnah, on the other hand, refer] to the paramour, it should have used the same phraseology as in the continuation, viz., 'Just as she is prohibited to the husband so is she prohibited to the paramour'³ — It certainly refers to the paramour; but in the first clause since it uses the word 'HER' it uses the word HIM and in the continuation since it used the word 'HUSBAND' it used the word 'PARAMOUR'.

AS IT IS SAID 'AND SHALL ENTER' TWICE. The question was asked: Does [the teacher in the Mishnah] mean 'shall enter and shall enter' or 'and shall enter and shall enter'?⁴ — Come and hear: JUST AS SHE IS PROHIBITED TO THE HUSBAND SO IS SHE PROHIBITED TO THE PARAMOUR; AS IT IS SAID, DEFILED. . . AND IS DEFILED.⁵ But it is still questionable whether [the teacher in the Mishnah] draws the conclusion from the repetition of ‘defiled’ or from the conjunction in ‘defiled . . . and is defiled’! — Come and hear: Since he states in the continuation, RABBI SAYS: THE WORD DEFILED OCCURS TWICE IN THE SCRIPTURAL PORTION, ONE REFERRING TO THE HUSBAND AND THE OTHER TO THE PARAMOUR, it follows that it is R. Akiba who expounds the conjunction ‘and’. Consequently for R. Akiba there are six texts [containing the phrase ‘and shall enter’]⁶ — one for the command regarding her⁷ and one for the command regarding him;⁸ one for the action regarding her and one for the action regarding him;⁹ one for the notification¹⁰ regarding her and one for the notification regarding him. For Rabbi,¹¹ on the other hand, there are three texts — one for the command, one for the action and one for the notification.¹² But whence does Rabbi derive the teaching: JUST AS THE WATER PROVES HER SO THE WATER PROVES HIM? — He derives it from [the following teaching]: For it has been taught: And make the belly to swell and the thigh to fall away,¹³ i.e., the belly and thigh of the paramour. You say it is the belly and thigh of the paramour; perhaps it is not so, but the belly and thigh of the adulteress! Since it is stated and her belly shall swell and her thigh shall fall away,¹⁴ here it is clearly the belly and thigh of the adulteress which are referred to; so how am I to explain ‘and make the belly to swell and the thigh to fall away’? It refers to the belly and thigh of the paramour. And the other?¹⁵ — It indicates that the priest informs her that [the water] affects the belly first and then the thigh so as not to discredit the water of bitterness.¹⁶ And the other?¹⁷ — If that were so, It should have been written ‘her belly and her thigh’; what means ‘belly and thigh’ [without specification]? Conclude that the reference is to the paramour. But am I to suppose that [the phrase without specification] is intended only for this?¹⁸ — If that were so, it should have been written ‘his belly and his thigh’; what means ‘belly and thigh’? Draw two inferences therefrom.¹⁹

R. JOSHUA SAID, THUS USED ZECHARIAH etc. Our Rabbis taught: Why is it mentioned three times in the Scriptural portion if she be defiled,²⁰ she be defiled,²¹ and she is defiled?²² One [to make her prohibited] to the husband, one to the paramour, and one for partaking of the heave-offering. This is the statement of R. Akiba. R. Ishmael said: It is an a fortiori conclusion; if a divorced woman,²³ who is allowed to partake of the heave-offering, is prohibited [to marry into] the priesthood, how much more must a woman who is prohibited from partaking of the heave-offering²⁴ be prohibited [to marry into] the priesthood!²⁵ For what purpose²⁶ is it stated and she be defiled . . . and she be not defiled?²⁷ If she be defiled, why should she drink; and if she be not defiled, why does he make her drink! Scripture informs you that in a doubtful case she is prohibited. From this you can draw an analogy [with respect to the defilement caused] by a creeping thing:²⁸ if in the case of a suspected woman, where the effect is not the same should the act be in error or in presumption, under compulsion or of free will,²⁹ there is the consequence [of being prohibited] when there is a doubt as when there is certainty; how much more so must there be the consequence [of defilement] in a case of doubt as in a case of certainty with a creeping thing where the effect is the same whether [the contact was] in error or in presumption, or whether it was under compulsion or of free will!

(1) By having cohabited with her after she had secluded herself with the other man.

(2) Nun., V, 31.

(3) And state, ‘so the water proves the paramour’.

(4) I.e., is the inference drawn from the redundant and or from the repetition of the word?

(5) Similarly in the first clause the deduction is drawn from the redundant and.

(6) In verses 22, 24 and 27, the conjunction ‘and’ duplicating each.

Talmud - Mas. Sotah 28b

And from the position you have taken up¹ [proceed to draw the following deductions]: As [the case of doubt in connection with] the suspected woman can only occur in a private domain [where seclusion takes place],² so [the case of doubt in connection with] a creeping thing can only occur [when the contact takes place] in a private domain.³ And as [the case in connection with] a suspected woman is a matter where there is a rational being to be interrogated,⁴ so [in the case of doubt in connection with] a creeping thing it must be a matter where there is a rational being to be interrogated.⁵ Hence [the Rabbis] said: Where there is a rational being to be interrogated, should a doubtful [case of defilement] occur in a private domain it is regarded as unclean, but should it occur in a public place as clean; and when there is no rational being to be interrogated whether it occurs in a private domain or in a public place a doubtful [case of defilement] is regarded as clean.⁶

R. Akiba dealt above with [the woman being prohibited to partake] of the heave-offering, and R. Ishmael answers him with a statement about the priesthood!⁷ And further, whence does R. Akiba derive [the rule that the suspected woman cannot marry into] the priesthood? Should you answer that with reference to [this rule about] the priesthood a Scriptural text is not necessary,

- (1) Viz., drawing the above analogy.
- (2) As distinct from a public place.
- (3) If the doubt occurred about contact in a public place, there is no defilement.
- (4) As to whether she had misconducted herself or not.
- (5) There must have been a person present who can be questioned about the probability of the contact having taken place.¹⁴
- (6) Thus the end of the cited Baraita.
- (7) Into which an adulteress cannot marry. The reply was quite irrelevant to the issue.

Talmud - Mas. Sotah 29a

since a woman about whom there is a doubt whether she is immoral is treated like an immoral woman,¹ then [for the rule about] the heave-offering a Scriptural verse should likewise be unnecessary, since a woman about whom there is a doubt whether she is immoral is treated like an immoral woman!² — But according to R. Akiba, there are four texts [where the word ‘defiled’ occurs]³ — one [to prohibit the woman] to the husband, one to the paramour, one to the priesthood and one for the heave-offering. Whereas according to R. Ishmael there are [only] three texts⁴ — one [to prohibit her] to the husband, one to the paramour, and one for the heave-offering; and [the prohibition] regarding the priesthood he deduces by a fortiori reasoning. Whence, however, does R. Ishmael [know] that a text is required for the heave-offering and that [the prohibition] regarding the priesthood is to be deduced by a fortiori reasoning; perhaps [a text] is required as regards the priesthood and the heave-offering is permitted to her!⁵ — He can reply to you, This is proved by the analogy of the husband and paramour: just as [the prohibition] respecting husband and paramour is in force already during the lifetime [of the husband],⁶ so also [the prohibition] respecting the heave-offering is likewise to come into force during his lifetime, to the exclusion of that respecting the priesthood which comes into effect after death.⁷ R. Akiba, on the other hand,⁸ does not accept the analogy of the husband and paramour; and even if he accepted it, a teaching which is deducible by a fortiori reasoning Scripture took the trouble to write down.⁹

R. Giddal said in the name of Rab: The [difference between] a case where there is a rational being to be interrogated and one where there is no rational being to be interrogated is derived from the following texts: And the flesh that toucheth any unclean thing shall not be eaten¹⁰ — when the thing is certainly unclean it may not be eaten; hence when there is a doubt whether it is unclean or clean it may be eaten. Consider now the continuation: And as for the flesh, all that is clean shall eat [sacrificial] flesh¹¹ — [A man who is] certainly clean may eat, but when there is a doubt whether he is unclean or clean he may not eat!¹² Is not, then, the conclusion to be drawn from this that in one case there is a rational being to be interrogated and not in the other?¹³ The statement of R. Giddal in the name of Rab was necessary, and it was also necessary to derive [the rule of defilement caused by a creeping thing] from the case of the suspected woman; for if [it had only been based on] the teaching of Rab, I would have said that the rule was the same whether [the defilement occurred] in a private domain or a public place; therefore it was also necessary to derive it from the case of a suspected woman.¹⁴ If, further, it [had been derived solely] from the case of the suspected woman, I would have said that the rule¹⁵ only applied when that which was touched and that which touched it were both rational beings.¹⁶ So it is necessary [to have Rab's teaching].¹⁷

ON THAT DAY R. AKIBA EXPOUNDED, AND EVERY EARTHEN VESSEL etc. Since it has no [basis in Scripture according to which it is unclean],¹⁸ why should it be unclean? — Rab Judah said in the name of Rab, It has none from the Torah, but it has one as a deduction from a fortiori reasoning: If a tebul yom,¹⁹ who is allowed with non-holy food,²⁰ disqualifies²¹ the heave-offering,²² how much more so must a loaf unclean in the second degree, which is disqualified in the case of non-holy food,²³ render the heave-offering unclean in the third degree! It can, however, be objected, This²⁴ applies to a tebul yom because he may be a source of primary defilement.²⁵ [But it may be answered,] You can draw [the necessary conclusion]

(1) ‘A harlot’ (Lev. XXI, 7) whom a priest may not marry.

(2) And if a priest's daughter loses the right to eat of the heave-offering though lawfully married to a non-priest (Lev. XXII, 12), how much more must she forfeit it if she is immoral; v. Yeb. 68a.

(3) In Num. V, 17, 28 and 29. In the last verse it is preceded by ‘and’, which is understood as the duplication of the term.

(4) He does not expound ‘and’.

(5) Why does he not apply one occurrence of the word ‘defiled’ to the matter of the priesthood instead of the heave-offering?

(6) She is forbidden to the paramour whilst the husband is yet alive.

(7) During the husband's lifetime she cannot in any way marry into the priesthood since a priest may not marry a divorcee; the prohibition is consequently to refer here to after the husband's death, that even then a priest may not marry the suspected woman. Since the analogy does not apply, the text cannot be applied to this prohibition.

(8) Who bases the prohibition of marriage with a priest on a text.

- (9) So the fact that the rule could be arrived at by deduction does not obviate R. Akiba's contention that it is based on a text.
- (10) Lev. VII, 19.
- (11) Ibid., sic.
- (12) Contrary conclusions are drawn from the verse.
- (13) The clause 'and as for flesh etc.' speaks of a man who is the object of uncleanness and a rational being to be interrogated; whereas the former 'and the flesh that toucheth etc.' refers to where there is no rational being to be interrogated.
- (14) From which it is learnt that the rule is not the same in both localities.
- (15) About a doubtful case of defilement being regarded as unclean.
- (16) As happens with the suspected woman.
- (17) That it is sufficient if the object touched is a rational being for a doubtful case to be unclean. It is not required that the defiling agent should also be a rational being.
- (18) As R. Johanan declares in the Mishnah; and yet he held it to be defiled.
- (19) Lit., 'bathed during day', i.e., an unclean person who has undergone immersion but awaits sunset before he regains his state of purity. V. Lev. XXII, 7.
- (20) And does not defile it.
- (21) [פסול This term denotes the last degree of uncleanness which cannot communicate defilement to any other object coming into contact with it.]
- (22) By touching it so that it may not be eaten by a priest. v. Yeb. 74b.
- (23) [If a creeping thing touches an object which in turn comes into contact with non-holy food, the latter, which is in the second degree of uncleanness, is disqualified; v. Lev. XI, 33.]
- (24) The disqualifying of the heave-offering.
- (25) Lit., 'father of defilement'. By, e.g., having touched a corpse or by himself being a leper. Tebul yom cannot thus be made the basis of deduction.

Talmud - Mas. Sotah 29b

from a tebul yom [who was defiled] by a creeping thing.¹ [Should it be objected that] it applies [only] to a tebul yom [who was defiled] by a creeping thing because he belongs to that category in which there may be a primary source of defilement],² the case of an earthenware vessel proves [the contrary].³ [And should it be objected that] it applies to an earthenware vessel because its interior space renders unclean,⁴ the case of tebul yom proves [the contrary].⁵

Thus the original reasoning [by a fortiori] holds good, since the characteristic [of the tebul yom] is unlike the characteristic [of the earthenware vessel]⁶ and vice versa;⁷ the point they have in common is that they are allowed with non-holy food but disqualify the heave-offering.⁸ How much more, then, must a loaf unclean in the second degree, which disqualifies in the case of non-holy food, disqualify the heave-offering! ANOTHER GENERATION,⁹ however, might object. What is the point common to them both? That in each there is a characteristic which makes for severity!¹⁰ But R. Johanan does not raise an objection on the ground that there is in each a characteristic which makes for severity.¹¹

It has been taught: R. Jose said: Whence is it that with sacrificial food there is disqualification with the fourth degree of defilement? It is a deduction [from a fortiori reasoning]: If one lacking atonement,¹² who is permitted with the heave-offering,¹³ is disqualified as regards sacrificial food,¹⁴ how much more does the third degree, which is disqualified with the heave-offering,¹⁵ create a fourth degree of defilement with sacrificial food! We learnt [the rule about] a third degree of defilement with sacrificial food from the Torah and a fourth degree from a fortiori reasoning,¹⁶ whence have we it from the Torah that there is a third degree with sacrificial food? — As it is written: And the flesh that toucheth any unclean thing shall not be eaten¹⁷ — do we not deal here with [flesh] that touched something unclean in the second degree?¹⁸ And the All-Merciful declared:

‘It shall not be eaten’. A fourth degree [is derived] from a fortiori reasoning as we stated above.

R. Johanan said: I do not understand the Master's¹⁹ reason²⁰ since its refutation is by its side, viz., food which is made unclean by contact with a tebul yom proves [the contrary], inasmuch as it is disqualified in the case of heave-offering but does not create a fourth degree of defilement with sacrificial food. For it has been taught: Abba Saul said: A tebul yom is unclean in the first degree as regards sacrificial food to create two further degrees of defilement²¹ and one degree of disqualification.²² R. Meir Says: He creates one further degree of defilement and one of disqualification. The Sages Say: Just as he disqualifies food or liquids of the heave-offering,²³ so he disqualifies sacrificial food and drinks.²⁴ To this R. Papa demurred: Whence is it that R. Jose holds the same view as the Rabbis? perhaps he holds the same view as Abba Saul who says [that the tebul yom] creates two further degrees of defilement and one of disqualification! — If it enter your mind that he holds the same view as Abba Saul, let him [deduce the rule about] a fourth degree of defilement with sacrificial food from the case of food that is rendered unclean by contact with a tebul yom [as follows]: If a tebul yom is himself allowed with non-holy food,²⁵ and yet you say that food which is unclean through him creates a fourth degree with sacrificial food,

- (1) He is then unclean in the first degree but not a source of primary cause of defilement. A creeping thing is a primary source of defilement.
- (2) [A man who touches a dead body becomes a primary source of uncleanness. This does not apply to foodstuffs.]
- (3) Since it can never be a primary source of defilement and yet defiles the heave-offering by contact.
- (4) Without actual contact, v. Lev. XI, 33.
- (5) Because he obviously cannot defile except by direct contact and yet he disqualifies the heave-offering by touching it.
- (6) Since the latter unlike the former defiles by its interior space.
- (7) The former, unlike the latter, being possibly a primary source of defilement.
- (8) [This is difficult to explain, since an earthenware vessel does disqualify non-holy food (v. Lev. XI, 33ff). Rashi suggests another reading which is not free from difficulty. Tosaf. of Sens explains the reference to be to a broken earthenware vessel which in respect of non-holy food communicates no defilement.]
- (9) Which would not regard this as unclean.
- (10) In the law relating thereto, viz., the tebul yom can be a primary source of defilement and the interior space of an earthenware vessel can render unclean.
- (11) Because the characteristic of severity is peculiar to each and not common to both.
- (12) E.g., a leper on his recovery, (v. Lev. XIV, 9ff). The seventh day the sacrifice had not yet been offered, and he may not partake of sacrificial food until this has been done.
- (13) And does not disqualify it by his touch.
- (14) I.e., he disqualifies it by his touch.
- (15) As proved on a fortiori reasoning, supra.
- (16) [Once the third degree is derived from the Torah, it is possible to employ the a fortiori reasoning in regard to the fourth degree. Were it not so, we should have required the a fortiori reasoning for the third degree only.]
- (17) Lev. VII, 19.
- (18) Since ‘unclean thing’ means that which had been rendered unclean by something else. The flesh was accordingly unclean in the third degree.
- (19) V. Nazir (Sonc. ed.) p. 64, n. 1.
- (20) R. Jose's argument as given in the preceding paragraph with respect to a fourth degree with holy food.
- (21) What touches him is unclean in the second degree and what this touches is unclean in the third.
- (22) If the heave-offering was touched by the object unclean in the third degree it would become disqualified but would not create a fourth degree.
- (23) But does not create any further degree of defilement.
- (24) [Without creating a further degree of defilement. Whereas, adopting R. Jose's arguments the food touched by the tebul yom should on a fortiori reasoning produce here a disqualification in the fourth degree.]
- (25) And does not disqualify it.

then that which is unclean in the third degree through contact with what is unclean in the second degree — the second degree which is itself forbidden in the case of non-holy food¹ — must all the more create a fourth degree with the holy!² And should you reply [as stated above], ‘It can, however, be objected. It applies to a tebul yom because he may be a primary source of defilement’, behold he [R. Jose] derived his argument from one lacking atonement and [he] did not raise this objection.³

R. Assi said in the name of Rab — another version is Rabbah b. Issi said in the name of Rab — , R. Meir, R. Jose, R. Joshua, R. Eleazar and R. Eliezer all hold the view that what is unclean in the second degree does not create a third degree with non-holy food. R. Meir — for we have learnt: Everything that requires immersion in water according to the statement of the scribes⁴ defiles the holy, disqualifies the heave-offering, and is permitted with the non-holy and with the tithe. Such is the statement of R. Meir; but the Sages prohibit in the case of the tithe.⁵ R. Jose — as we have stated above; for if it were so,⁶ then let him derive a fourth degree with the heave-offering and a fifth with the sacrificial food.⁷ R. Joshua — for we have learnt: R. Eliezer Says: He who eats food unclean in the first degree is unclean in the first degree; [if he eats] food unclean in the second degree he is unclean in the second degree; and similarly with the third degree. R. Joshua Says: He who eats food unclean in the first or second degree is unclean in the second degree; [if he eats food unclean] in the third degree, he is unclean in the second degree as regards the sacrificial food but not unclean in the second degree as regards the heave-offering. This⁸ is said of non-holy food which was prepared in the purity of the heave-offering.⁹ [This means, does it not,] ‘When it is in the purity of the heave-offering’ but not when it is in the purity of the sacrificial food?¹⁰ Conclude, then, that he holds that [normally] what is unclean in the second degree does not create a third degree with the non-holy. R. Eleazar — for it has been taught: R. Eleazar says: The following three are alike: the first degree of defilement in the case of the sacrificial food, the non-holy and the heave-offering; it creates two further degrees of defilement and one of disqualification with the sacrificial food;¹¹ it creates one further degree of defilement and one of disqualification with the heave-offering;¹² and it creates one degree of disqualification with the non-holy.¹³ R. Eliezer-for we have learnt: R. Eliezer Says: Hallah¹⁴ may be taken from [dough] which is pure on account of that which is defiled. How is this? There are two portions of dough, one pure and the other defiled. He takes a quantity sufficient for hallah¹⁵ from the dough from which its hallah had not been removed,¹⁶ and places a piece less than the size of an egg¹⁷ in the centre [of the defiled dough] so that [it may be considered that hallah] had been taken from the mass [of the defiled dough].

(1) Non-holy food can become unclean in the second degree.

(2) [The advantage of this deduction consists in that it is more direct than that of R. Jose, which involves a second a fortiori reasoning to prove that there is a disqualification in the third degree in the case of the heave-offering (v. p. 145, n. 3) Tosaf.]

(3) I.e., that one lacking atonement is different since he may be a primary source of defilement. The reason R. Jose did not raise this objection is evidently because he is no longer regarded as unclean, and the same applies to a tebul yom. Consequently R. Jose cannot be said to agree with Abba Saul, but must agree with the Rabbis, hence the question of R. Johanan.

(4) Viz., things which, according to the Torah, are clean, but the Rabbis take a stricter view.

(5) To be eaten; v. Parah, XI, 5.

(6) That there was a third degree of defilement with the non-holy.

(7) From his own a fortiori reasoning cited above.

(8) That food in the third degree renders the one eating it unclean in respect of sacrificial food.

(9) I.e., when a priest took upon himself that even the non-holy food he ate should be in the same state of purity as the heave-offering. But ordinary non-holy food cannot become unclean in the third degree.

(10) [As non-holy food cannot be raised to the level of purity of sacrificial food. Rashi reads: ‘but not when it is ordinary non-holy food’. This is also the reading of MS.M.]

- (11) There is thus a fourth degree of defilement.
- (12) There is then a third degree.
- (13) And so there is no third degree with the non-holy.
- (14) Part of the dough presented to the priest; v. Num. XV, 17-21.
- (15) One twenty-fourth of the whole in the case of an individual and half of that proportion in the case of a baker.
- (16) The pure dough.
- (17) A quantity less than the size of an egg cannot communicate defilement.

Talmud - Mas. Sotah 30b

The Sages, however, forbid this. And it has also been taught: [The quantity¹ may be] equal to the size of an egg. — [Now the schoolmen] held that both [these teachings]² refer to dough which is unclean in the first degree, and that non-holy food from which hallah had not yet been taken is not like hallah.³ Is it not, then, to be supposed that they differ on this point: One⁴ holds that a second degree of defilement does not create a third with the non-holy,⁵ whereas the others hold that it does create a third degree with the non-holy?⁶ R. Mari b. R. Kahana said: All agree that a second degree of defilement does not create a third with the non-holy; but here they differ with regard to non-holy food from which hallah had yet to be taken. One holds that it is like hallah;⁷ the other holds that it is not like hallah. If you like I can say that all agree that non-holy food from which hallah had yet to be taken is not like hallah and a second degree of defilement does not create a third with the non-holy; and here they differ on whether it is permitted to apply the laws of defilement to non-holy food in the land of Israel.⁸ One⁹ holds that it is permitted to apply the laws of defilement to non-holy food in the land of Israel, the others hold that it is prohibited.¹⁰

ON THAT DAY R. AKIBA EXPOUNDED, [AND YE SHALL MEASURE] etc. On what do they¹¹ differ? — One holds that the regulations concerning the Sabbath-limit are an institution of the Torah,¹² whereas the other holds they are an institution of the Rabbis.

Our Rabbis taught: On that day R. Akiba expounded: At the time the Israelites ascended from the Red Sea, they desired to utter a Song; and how did they render the song? Like an adult who reads the Hallel [for a congregation]¹³ and they respond after him with the leading word.¹⁴ [According to this explanation] Moses said: 'I will sing unto the Lord' and they responded, 'I will sing unto the Lord'; Moses said: 'For He hath triumphed gloriously' and they responded, 'I will sing unto the Lord'. R. Eliezer son of R. Jose the Galilean declares, Like a minor who reads the Hallel [for a congregation], and they repeat after him all that he Says.¹⁵ [According to this explanation] Moses said: 'I will sing unto the Lord' and they responded, 'I will sing unto the Lord'; Moses said: 'For He hath triumphed gloriously' and they responded, 'For He hath triumphed gloriously'. R. Nehemiah declares: Like a school-teacher¹⁶ who recites¹⁷ the Shema' in the Synagogue, viz., he begins first and they respond after him.¹⁸ On what do they differ? — R. Akiba holds that the word 'saying'¹⁹ refers to the first clause;²⁰ R. Eliezer son of R. Jose the Galilean holds that 'saying' refers to every clause; and R. Nehemiah holds that 'and spake' indicates that they sang all together 'and saying' that Moses began first.

Our Rabbis taught: R. Jose the Galilean expounded: At the time the Israelites ascended from the Red Sea, they desired to utter a Song; and how did they render the song? The babe lay upon his mother's knees and the suckling sucked at his mother's breast; when they beheld the Shechinah, the babe raised his neck and the suckling released the nipple from his mouth, and they exclaimed: This is my God and I will Praise Him;²¹ as it is said: Out of the mouths of babes and sucklings hast thou established strength.²² R. Meir used to say: Whence is it that even the embryos in their mothers' womb uttered a song? As it is said,

(1) [According to R. Eliezer.]

- (2) [The one that holds that the quantity should be less than the size of an egg as well as the other, that it may be the size of an egg.]
- (3) I.e., like heave-offering in respect of the law of defilement. [But is treated like non-holy, both on the view of R. Eliezer and the Rabbis. For this reason even if the quantity placed between the two doughs is of the size of an egg it does not communicate the defilement in the second degree, which it contracts from the defiled dough to the pure one, since there is no third degree with non-holy.]
- (4) R. Eliezer.
- (5) [For this reason he allows in the second teaching a quantity of the size of an egg; and the reservation in the first teaching is merely as a precaution lest the piece of dough may come in contact with impure dough after the hallah has been designated.]
- (6) This shews that R. Eliezer holds that there is no third degree with non-holy food.
- (7) The Rabbis consider that it can create a third degree.
- (8) In Ber. 47b R. Meir defines an 'Am ha-arez (v. supra p. 110) as one who does not eat his non-holy food in a condition of ritual purity; but the Rabbis give a different definition.
- (9) R. Eliezer.
- (10) [And their concern is with the piece of dough placed between the two doughs which, though less than the size of an egg, can yet contract defilement.]
- (11) R. Akiba and R. Eliezer, son of R. Jose of Galilee.
- (12) R. Akiba takes this view; and therefore, according to him, the Torah had to make provision for the Sabbath-limit in the cities of refuge.
- (13) He acts as precentor and his rendering is on their behalf so that they may thereby fulfil their duty to recite it.
- (14) Lit., 'heads of chapters'. According to a statement in Suk. 38a, the response consisted of the word Hallelujah.
- (15) Since he was a minor, his rendering would not exempt them from saying every word.
- (16) Whose class was usually in the Synagogue and so he acted as Precentor.
- (17) The word pores is lit., 'divide', and its exact meaning is disputed. V. Elbogen. Der jüdische Gottesdienst, pp. 514ff and the references cited there.
- (18) Elbogen takes this to mean that the Precentor and Congregation read the verses alternately. Rashi's explanation is: he reads the benedictions preceding the Shema' which they repeat after him and then they read the Shema in unison. According to this explanation, Moses and the Israelites were divinely inspired so that they independently sang the same words in unison.
- (19) In Ex. XV, 1.
- (20) 'I will sing unto the Lord', and that only was the Israelite's response.
- (21) Ibid. 3.
- (22) Ps. VIII, 3. E.V. 2.

Talmud - Mas. Sotah 31a

Bless ye the Lord in the Congregations, even the Lord, from the fountain of Israel.¹ But these could not behold [the Shechinah]! — R. Tanhum said: The abdomen became for them a kind of transparent medium and they did behold it.

ON THAT DAY R. JOSHUA B. HYRCANUS EXPOUNDED, JOB ONLY SERVED etc. But let him see how the word 'lo'² is spelt; if it is written with lamed and aleph then it means 'not', and if with lamed and waw then it means for Him!³ But is the meaning 'not' wherever the spelling is lamed and aleph? Can it apply to: In all their affliction there was affliction to Him?⁴ [The word 'lo', 'to Him'] is spelt lamed and aleph, but does it here also signify 'not'? And should you say that here too [it means 'not'], behold it continues with: And the angel of His presence saved them!⁵ But sometimes it has one meaning and at other times the other meaning.

It has been taught: R. Meir Says: It is declared of Job one that feared God,⁶ and it is declared of Abraham thou fearest God;⁷ just as 'fearing God' with Abraham indicates from love, so 'fearing God' with Job indicates from love. Whence, however, have we it in connection with Abraham himself [that he was motivated by love]? As it is written: The seed of Abraham who loved Me.⁸ What difference is there between one who acts from love and one who acts from fear? — The difference is that indicated in this teaching: R. Simeon b. Eleazar says: Greater is he who acts from love than he who acts from fear, because with the latter [the merit] remains effective for a thousand generations but with the former it remains effective for two thousand generations. Here it is written: Unto thousands of them that love Me and keep My commandments⁹ and elsewhere it is written: And keep His commandments to a thousand generations.¹⁰ But in this latter passage it is likewise written: ‘With them that love Him and keep His commandments to a thousand generations! — In the first verse cited [the word ‘thousand’] is attached [to them that love Me,] whereas in the second verse [cited the word ‘thousand’] is attached [to keep His commandments].¹¹

Two disciples were once sitting in the presence of Raba. One said to him, In my dream they read to me, O how great is Thy goodness which Thou hast laid up for them that fear Thee.¹² The other said to him, In my dream they read to me, But let all those that put their trust in Thee rejoice, let them ever shout for joy, because Thou defendest them; let them also that love Thy name be joyful in Thee.¹³ He replied to them, Both of you are completely righteous Rabbis, but one is actuated by love and the other by fear.

CHAPTER VI

MISHNAH. IF A MAN WARNED HIS WIFE AND SHE SECLUDED HERSELF [WITH ANOTHER MAN], EVEN IF HE HEARD [THAT SHE HAD DONE SO] FROM A FLYING BIRD,¹⁴ HE DIVORCES HER AND GIVES HER THE MARRIAGE-SETTLEMENT.¹⁵ SUCH IS THE STATEMENT OF R. ELIEZER. R. JOSHUA SAYS: [HE DOES NOT DO THIS] UNTIL WOMEN WHO SPIN BY MOONLIGHT DISCUSS HER.¹⁶

IF ONE WITNESS SAID, I SAW THAT SHE COMMITTED MISCONDUCT, SHE DOES NOT DRINK THE WATER.¹⁷ NOT ONLY THAT, BUT EVEN A SLAVE, MALE OR FEMALE,¹⁸ IS BELIEVED ALSO TO DISQUALIFY HER FOR THE MARRIAGE-SETTLEMENT. HER MOTHER-IN-LAW, HER MOTHER-IN-LAW'S DAUGHTER, HER ASSOCIATE-WIFE,¹⁹ HER SISTER-IN-LAW²⁰ AND HER STEPDAUGHTER²¹ ARE BELIEVED, NOT TO DISQUALIFY HER FOR THE MARRIAGE-SETTLEMENT BUT THAT SHE SHOULD NOT DRINK.

IT²² IS A PROPER CONCLUSION THAT IF THE FIRST EVIDENCE [THAT THE WOMAN HAD SECLUDED HERSELF WITH THE MAN], WHICH DOES NOT PROHIBIT HER [TO HER HUSBAND] FOR ALL TIME,²³ IS NOT ESTABLISHED BY FEWER THAN TWO WITNESSES, IS IT NOT RIGHT THAT THE FINAL EVIDENCE [THAT SHE HAD MISCONDUCTED HERSELF] WHICH PROHIBITS HER TO HIM FOR ALL TIME, SHOULD NOT BE ESTABLISHED BY FEWER THAN TWO WITNESSES! THEREFORE THERE IS A TEXT TO STATE, AND THERE BE NO WITNESS AGAINST HER,²⁴ I.E., WHATEVER [EVIDENCE] THERE MAY BE AGAINST HER [IS BELIEVED, EVEN IF IT BE ONLY ONE WITNESS]. AND WITH RESPECT TO THE FIRST EVIDENCE [ABOUT HER SECLUSION WITH THE MAN, THAT ONE WITNESS SUFFICES MAY BE ARGUED BY] A FORTIORI REASONING AS FOLLOWS IF

- (15) He gives this to her if he was unwilling for her to drink the water, (Rashi). [According to this interpretation the husband, if he wishes, can make her drink even on the strength of a vague rumour, even as he can on the evidence of one witness to the seclusion, according to R. Eliezer. Rashbam, however, holds that a vague rumour is not on par with one witness and the husband therefore, though he cannot make her drink, must put her away and give her the marriage-settlement. THE FINAL EVIDENCE [REGARDING MISCONDUCT], WHICH PROHIBITS HER TO HER HUSBAND FOR ALL TIME, IS ESTABLISHED BY ONE WITNESS, IS IT NOT PROPER THAT THE FIRST EVIDENCE, WHICH DOES NOT PROHIBIT HER TO HIM FOR ALL TIME, SHOULD BE ESTABLISHED BY ONE WITNESS! THEREFORE THERE IS A TEXT TO STATE, BECAUSE HE HATH FOUND SOME UNSEEMLY MATTER IN HER,¹ AND ELSEWHERE IT STATES, AT THE MOUTH OF TWO WITNESSES, OR AT THE MOUTH OF THREE WITNESSES, SHALL A MATTER BE ESTABLISHED;² AS THE 'MATTER' MENTIONED IN THIS LATTER CASE MUST BE CONFIRMED BY THE TESTIMONY OF TWO WITNESSES, SO ALSO HERE [IN THE CASE OF THE SUSPECTED WOMAN] THE 'MATTER' MUST BE CONFIRMED BY THE TESTIMONY OF TWO WITNESSES.

IF ONE WITNESS SAYS THAT SHE MISCONDUCTED HERSELF AND ANOTHER WITNESS SAYS THAT SHE DID NOT,³ OR IF A WOMAN SAYS [OF HER] THAT SHE MISCONDUCTED HERSELF AND ANOTHER WOMAN SAYS THAT SHE DID NOT, SHE DRINKS THE WATER. IF ONE WITNESS SAYS THAT SHE MISCONDUCTED HERSELF AND TWO SAY THAT SHE DID NOT, SHE DRINKS THE WATER. IF TWO SAY THAT SHE MISCONDUCTED HERSELF AND ONE SAYS THAT SHE DID NOT, SHE DOES NOT DRINK IT.

GEMARA. [Why does the teacher in the Mishnah use] the Scriptural text: 'Because he hath found some unseemly matter in her'? He should have used [the teaching]: 'Against her' — i.e., 'against her' [in the matter of misconduct] but not in the matter of warning, 'against her' [in the matter of misconduct] but not in the matter of seclusion!⁴ — He does also intend to say this: Therefore there is a text to state 'against her' — i.e., 'against her' [in the matter of misconduct] but not in the matter of warning, 'against her' [in the matter of misconduct] but not in the matter of seclusion. Whence, however, have we it that one witness is not believed in an ordinary charge of infidelity where there was neither warning nor seclusion? Here [in connection with infidelity] the word ‘matter’ occurs and it also occurs [in the law of evidence]; as with the latter [a charge is established] by two witnesses so [is the former established] by two witnesses.

IF ONE WITNESS SAYS THAT SHE MISCONDUCTED HERSELF. The reason [why one witness is not accepted] is because there is another who contradicts him; but where nobody contradicts him one witness is believed — Whence have we this rule? Because our Rabbis have taught: ‘And there be no witness against her’ — the text refers to two witnesses. You say that it refers to two witnesses; but perhaps it is not so and even one [suffices]! There is a teaching to declare, One witness shall not rise up against a man etc.⁵ From the fact that it is stated: ‘[A] witness shall not rise up against a man,’ do I not know that one is intended? Why is there a teaching to declare one witness? This establishes the rule that wherever it is stated witness, it signifies two unless the text specifies ‘one’, and [in the case under discussion] the All-Merciful declares that when there are not two witnesses against her but only one, ‘and she has not been violated,’ she is forbidden [to her husband].⁶

But since, according to the Torah one witness is believed, how is it possible for another to contradict him? Surely ‘Ulla has said: Wherever the Torah accepts the testimony of one witness, he is regarded as two, and the evidence of one is of no account when opposed by two!⁷ — But, said ‘Ulla, read the Mishnah as, ‘She does not drink’;⁸ and R. Isaac similarly declared that she does not drink, but R. Hiyya said that she does drink. The view of ‘Ulla creates a difficulty against the statement of R. Hiyya!⁹ — There is no difficulty; one statement refers to evidence given simultaneously¹⁰ and the other when one witness follows the other.¹¹

We learnt: IF ONE WITNESS SAYS THAT SHE MISCONDUCTED HERSELF AND TWO SAY THAT SHE DID NOT, SHE DRINKS THE WATER. Consequently if there was one [against her] and one [for her], she would not drink; this is a refutation of R. Hiyya! — R. Hiyya can reply: And according to your view [that she does not drink] consider the next clause: IF TWO SAY THAT SHE MISCONDUCTED HERSELF AND ONE SAYS THAT SHE DID NOT, SHE DOES NOT DRINK IT. Consequently if there was one [against her] and one [for her], she would drink! But the whole [of this section of Mishnah] refers to disqualified witnesses,¹² and it is R. Nehemiah's teaching; for it has been taught: R. Nehemiah says: ‘Wherever the Torah accepts the testimony of one witness, [the decision] follows the majority of persons [who testify]’, so that two women against one man is identical with two men against one man. But there are some who declare that wherever a competent witness came [and testified] first, even a hundred women are regarded as equal to one witness;¹³

(1) Deut. XXIV, 1.

(2) Ibid. XIX, 15.

(3) At the time of seclusion.

(4) For notes v. supra 3b.

(5) Deut. XIX, 15.

(6) For notes v. supra 3b.

(7) So that the evidence of the first witness, being accepted by the Torah, must stand though it is contradicted by another.

(8) Instead of ‘she drinks the water’, and she is held to be guilty.

(9) If the Torah accepts one witness, why should she drink the water?

(10) If it is contradictory it is not accepted.

(11) If one witness had testified and been accepted, another cannot come subsequently and offer contradictory evidence.

(12) Viz., women and slaves; and it teaches that two witnesses of this class can discredit the evidence of a competent witness.

(13) And they cannot upset his testimony.

and with what circumstance are we dealing here?¹ For example, if it was a woman who came first [and testified]; and R. Nehemiah's statement is to be construed thus: R. Nehemiah says: 'Wherever the Torah accepts the testimony of one witness, [the decision] follows the majority of persons [who testify]', so that two women against one woman is identical with two men against one man, but two women against one man is like half and half.² Why, then, have we two teachings concerning disqualified witnesses?³ What you might have said was that when we follow the majority of persons [who testify] it is for taking the severer view, but to take the lenient view we do not follow [the majority]. Therefore [the Mishnah] informs us [of one case where the accused must drink and one where she does not drink, and in each the majority is followed].

MISHNAH. THE FOLLOWING MAY BE RECITED IN ANY LANGUAGE: THE SECTION CONCERNING THE SUSPECTED WOMAN,⁴ THE CONFESSION MADE AT THE PRESENTATION OF THE TITHE,⁵ THE SHEMA',⁶ THE 'PRAYER',⁷ THE GRACE AFTER MEALS,⁸ THE OATH CONCERNING TESTIMONY⁹ AND THE OATH CONCERNING A DEPOSIT.¹⁰

THE FOLLOWING ARE RECITED IN THE HOLY TONGUE:¹¹ THE DECLARATION MADE AT THE OFFERING OF THE FIRSTFRUITS,¹² THE FORMULA OF HALIZAH,¹³ THE BLESSINGS AND CURSES,¹⁴ THE PRIESTLY BENEDICTION,¹⁵ THE BENEDICTION OF THE HIGH PRIEST,¹⁶ THE SECTION OF THE KING,¹⁷ THE SECTION OF THE CALF WHOSE NECK IS BROKEN,¹⁸ AND THE ADDRESS TO THE PEOPLE BY THE PRIEST ANOINTED [TO ACCOMPANY THE ARMY] IN BATTLE.¹⁹

WHENCE IS IT THAT THE DECLARATION MADE AT THE OFFERING OF THE FIRST-FRUITS [MUST BE IN HEBREW]? [IT IS STATED]. SIDE THE ARK AND ON THAT SIDE ETC.²⁷ THEY TURNED THEIR FACES TOWARDS MOUNT GERIZIM AND OPENED WITH THE BLESSING: BLESSED BE THE MAN THAT MAKETH NOT A GRAVEN OR MOLTEN IMAGE',²⁸ AND BOTH PARTIES²⁹ RESPOND AMEN. AND SPENT THE NIGHT IN THEIR PLACE.¹

GEMARA. Whence have we it that the section concerning the suspected woman [may be recited in any language]? — As it is written: And the priest shall say unto the woman² — in whatever language he speaks.

Our Rabbis taught: They explain to her in any language she understands for what reason she is about to drink the water, in what [sort of vessel] she drinks, why she had misconducted herself and in what manner she had misconducted herself. For what reason she is about to drink the water — because of [her husband's] warning and her subsequent seclusion. In what [sort of vessel] she drinks — in a potsherd.³ Why she had misconducted herself- because of levity and childishness. And in what manner she had misconducted herself — whether in error or deliberately, under compulsion or of free will. But why all this? So as not to discredit the water of bitterness.⁴

THE CONFESSION MADE AT THE PRESENTATION OF THE TITHE. Whence have we it that this [may be recited in any language]? — As it is written: And thou shalt say before the Lord thy God, I have put away the hallowed things out of mine house,⁵ and the deduction is to be drawn from the analogous use of the word 'say' in connection with the suspected woman that it may be in whatever language he speaks. R. Zebid said to Abaye, But let the deduction be drawn from the analogous use of the word 'say' in connection with the Levites⁶ [as follows]: As there it means that it must be in the holy tongue so here it must be in the holy tongue! — [He answered], We deduce [the meaning of] an unqualified use of 'say' from another occurrence of an unqualified use of 'say, but we do not deduce [the meaning of] an unqualified use of 'say' from a passage where the expression 'answer and say' occurs.⁷

It has been taught: R. Simeon b. Yohai said: A man should recount what is to his credit in a low voice and what is to his discredit in a loud voice. That he is to recount what is to his credit in a low voice [is learnt] from the confession made at the presentation of the tithe, and what is to his discredit in a loud voice from the declaration made at the offering of the first-fruits.⁸ But should one recount what is to his discredit in a loud voice? Surely R. Johanan has said in the name of R. Simeon b. Yohai: Why was it instituted that the 'prayer'⁹ should be recited softly? So as not to put transgressors to shame;¹⁰ for behold, Scripture made no distinction as to the place of a sin-offering or burnt-offering!¹¹ — Do not read [in R. Simeon's statement] 'his discredit' but 'his trouble';¹² as it has been taught: And he shall cry, Unclean, unclean¹³ — it is necessary [for the leper] to make his trouble known to the multitude so that the multitude may pray on his behalf; and thus everybody to whom a calamity has occurred should make it known to the multitude so that the multitude may pray on his behalf. The [above] text states: 'R. Johanan said in the name of R. Simeon b. Yohai: Why was it instituted that the 'prayer' should be recited softly? So as not to put transgressors to shame; for, behold, Scripture made no distinction as to the place of a sin-offering or burnt-offering.' But it is not so, for there is a difference in the treatment of the blood. The blood of a sin-offering [was applied] above [the red line which ran round the altar], whereas the blood of a burnt-offering [was applied] below it! — Only the priest would know that. There is, however, the difference that for a sin-offering a female animal was sacrificed and for a burnt-offering a male! — Being covered by the fat tail [the sex would not be recognised]. That is quite right with a female lamb, but what of a female goat?¹⁴ — In that case the man brought the shame upon himself, because he should have offered a lamb but offered a goat. What, however, of the sin-offering brought for idolatry when only a goat suffices!¹⁵ — In that case let him experience shame so that he may receive atonement.

THE SHEMAÐ. Whence have we it that this [may be recited in any language]? As it is written: Hear, O Israel¹⁶ — in any language you understand.

Our Rabbis taught: The Shema' must be recited as it is written.¹⁷ Such is the statement of Rabbi but the Sages say: In any language. What is Rabbi's reason? — Scripture declares, And [these words] shall be,¹⁸ i.e., they must remain as they are. And [what is the reason of] the Rabbis? — Scripture declares, 'Hear, O Israel' — in any language you understand. But for the Rabbis it is likewise written: 'And [these words] shall be'!¹⁹ — That indicates that one may not read it in the wrong order.²⁰ And whence does Rabbi derive the rule that one may not read it in the wrong order? — From the fact that the text uses ‘these words’ and not merely ‘words’. And the Rabbis?²¹ — They draw no inference from the use of ‘these words’ instead of ‘words’. But for Rabbi it is likewise written: ‘Hear’! — He requires that for the rule: Make audible to your ears what you utter with your lips.²² And the Rabbis? — They agree with him who said that if one has not recited the Shema’ audibly he has fulfilled his obligation. It is possible to say that Rabbi holds

(1) Viz., in Gilgal where they were again set up (Josh. IV, 20).

(2) Num. V, 21.

(3) V. supra p. 38.

(4) So that if she had offended in error or under compulsion and the water did not affect her, she should not think there would have been no effect if she had offended deliberately or of her free will.

(5) Deut. XXVI, 13.

(6) V. ibid. XXVII, 14 and Mishnah p. 157.

(7) Viz., in connection with the Levites. Consequently the analogy is drawn with the reference to the suspected woman and not the Levites.

(8) In the former he tells how he had done his duty (V. Deut. XXVI, 13f.) and in that connection the unqualified ‘say’ occurs. In the latter he tells of his humble ancestry (ibid. 5ff.) and in that connection ‘answer and say’, i.e., say aloud, occurs.

(21) What do they derive from the use of ‘these words’?

(22) I.e., the Shema’ must be recited audibly.

that the whole Torah may be read in any language; for if you maintain that it may be read¹ only in the holy tongue, wherefore had the All-Merciful to write ‘And [these words] shall be’? — It is necessary because it is written ‘Hear’.² It is likewise possible to say that the Rabbis hold that the whole Torah must be read in the holy tongue; for if you maintain that it can be read in any language, wherefore had the All-Merciful to write the word ‘Hear’? — It is necessary because it is written ‘And [these words] shall be’.³

THE ‘PRAYER’. [It may be recited in any language because] it is only supplication, and one may pray in any language he wishes. But may the ‘prayer’ be recited in any language? Behold Rab Judah has said: A man should never pray for his needs in Aramaic. For R. Johanan declared: If anyone prays for his needs in Aramaic, the Ministering Angels⁴ do not pay attention to him, because they do not understand that language! — There is no contradiction, one referring to [the prayer] of an individual and the other to that of a Congregation.⁵ And do not the Ministering Angels understand Aramaic? Behold it has been taught: Johanan, the High Priest, heard a Bath Kol⁶ issue from within the Holy of Holies announcing, 'The young men who went to wage war against Antioch⁷ have been victorious.'⁸ It also happened with Simeon the Righteous⁹ that he heard a Bath Kol issue from within the Holy of Holies announcing, 'Annulled is the decree which the enemy intended to introduce into the Temple'. Then was Caius Caligula¹⁰ slain and his decrees annulled. They noted down the time [when the Bath Kol spoke] and it tallied.¹¹ Now it was in Aramaic that it spoke! — If you wish I can say that it is different with a Bath Kol since it occurs for the purpose of being generally understood;¹² or if you wish I can say that it was Gabriel who spoke; for a Master has declared: Gabriel came and taught [Joseph] the seventy languages.¹³

THE GRACE AFTER MEALS. [That this may be recited in any language is derived from] the text: And thou shalt eat and be full, and thou shalt bless the Lord thy God¹⁴ — in any language wherein thou utterest a benediction.

THE OATH CONCERNING TESTIMONY. [That this may be uttered in any language is derived from] the text: And if any one sin, in that he heareth the voice of adjuration¹⁵ — in whatever language he hears it.

THE OATH CONCERNING A DEPOSIT. [That this may be uttered in any language] is derived from the analogous use of the phrase 'if any one sin' in the oath concerning testimony.¹⁶

THE FOLLOWING ARE RECITED IN THE HOLY TONGUE: THE DECLARATION MADE AT THE OFFERING OF THE FIRST-FRUITS, THE FORMULA OF HALIZAH, etc. down to: WHENCE IS IT THAT THE DECLARATION MADE AT THE OFFERING OF THE FIRST-FRUITS [MUST BE IN HEBREW]? [IT IS STATED], AND THOU SHALT ANSWER AND SAY BEFORE THE LORD THY GOD, AND ELSEWHERE IT IS STATED, AND THE LEVITES SHALL ANSWER AND SAY; AS THE LATTER MUST BE IN THE HOLY TONGUE, SO MUST THE FORMER BE IN THE HOLY TONGUE. But whence have we it of the Levites themselves [that they used Hebrew]? — It is derived from the analogous use of the word 'voice' in connection with Moses. Here it is written with a loud voice,¹⁷ and elsewhere it is written: Moses spake and God answered him by a voice;¹⁸ as in the latter passage it was in the holy tongue, so also in the other passage it means in the holy tongue.

WHENCE IS IT THAT THE FORMULA OF HALIZAH etc. What, then, do the Rabbis make of the word 'thus'?¹⁹ — They require it to indicate that each act²⁰ invalidates [the ceremony by its omission]. And R. Judah?²¹ — From the use of 'Kakah' instead of koh.²² And the Rabbis? — They draw no inference from the use of 'Kakah' instead of koh.

(1) In the synagogue (Rashi).

(2) If he were of the opinion that the Torah can only be read in Hebrew, it would necessarily apply to the Shema'. Why, then, should he draw a conclusion from shall be? He does so to oppose the inference which the Rabbis draw from Hear.

(3) Which might otherwise be taken to indicate that the Shema' must be read in Hebrew.

(4) Who convey the petitions to the Throne of Glory.

(5) With the latter, the help of the angels is not required.

(6) V. Glos. This is evidently the incident related by Josephus (Ant. XIII, X, 3) of John Hyrcanus.

(7) [Antiochus Cyzicenus, over whom the children of John Hyrcanus were victorious, v. loc. cit., and Derenbourg, Essai, p. 47.]

(8) This and the following announcements were made in Aramaic, so the angels must have understood it.

(9) Possibly the High Priest Simon, son of Boethus, also called Cantheras, as Josephus describes him (op. cit. XIX, VI, 2). [For other views v. HUCA VIII-IX, p. 300.]

(10) The name is corrupted in the text. He ordered that his statue should be placed in the Temple and worshipped (Josephus, War II, X, 1.)

(11) With the time of Caligula's assassination.

- (12) And Aramaic was the vernacular of the period.
- (13) V. infra. Gabriel was exceptional; but the other angels were ignorant of Aramaic.
- (14) Deut. VIII, 10.
- (15) Lev. V, 1.
- (16) V. ibid. 21.
- (17) Deut. XXVII, 14.
- (18) Ex. XIX, 19.
- (19) Upon which R. Judah bases the teaching that the formula must be in Hebrew.
- (20) Mentioned in Deut. XXV, 9, viz., loosing the shoe, spitting in his face, and pronouncing the formula.
- (21) From where does he derive this teaching?
- (22) Both words signify 'thus'; and since the text has the longer form, he takes it as an indication that the formula must be in Hebrew and also that the omission of an act invalidates the ceremony.

Talmud - Mas. Sotah 33b

What, then, does R. Judah make of the phrase 'and she shall answer and say'?¹ — He requires it for the purpose of deducing that the Levites [must pronounce the blessings and curses] in the holy tongue.² But let him derive that from the analogous use of the word 'voice' in connection with Moses! — He had learnt [from his teacher] to draw an inference from the analogous use of the word 'answer' but not from 'voice'.³ It has been similarly taught: R. Judah says: Wherever [in Scripture the words] 'thus', both in the form of 'koh' and 'kakah', or 'answer and say' occur, [what has to be spoken] must only be in the holy tongue. The word 'koh' is found in 'Thus ye shall bless',⁴ 'kakah' in connection with Halizah, and 'answer and say' with the Levites.

HOW WERE THE BLESSINGS AND CURSES [PRONOUNCED]? WHEN ISRAEL CROSSED THE JORDAN etc. Our Rabbis taught: Are they not beyond Jordan?⁵ [This means] on the other side of the Jordan and beyond; such is the statement of R. Judah. Behind the way of the coming of the sun⁶ — the place where the sun dawns.⁷ In the land of the Canaanites which dwell in the Arabah⁶ — i.e., mount Gerizim and mount Ebal where the Cutheans⁸ dwell. Over against Gilgal⁶ — [this means] near Gilgal.⁹ Beside the terebinths of Moreh⁶ — [this means] Shechem. Elsewhere it states: And Abram passed through the land unto the place of Shechem unto the terebinth of Moreh;¹⁰ as the terebinth of Moreh mentioned in this latter verse is Shechem, so in the former verse it means Shechem.

It has been taught:¹¹ R. Eleazar son of R. Jose said: In this connection I proved the Samaritan Scriptures¹² to be false. I said to them, 'You have falsified your Torah¹³ but you gained nothing thereby.¹⁴ You declare that 'the terebinths of Moreh' means Shechem; we too admit that 'the terebinths of Moreh' means Shechem. We learnt this by an inference from analogy;¹⁵ but how have you learnt it!'¹⁶

R. Eleazar said: 'Are they not beyond the Jordan'? [This means] near the Jordan; because if it signified on the other side of the Jordan and beyond, is it not written: And it shall be when ye are passed over Jordan!¹⁷ 'Behind the way of the coming of the sun' — [this means] the place where the sun sets.¹⁸ 'In the land of the Canaanites' — i.e., the land of the Hivites. 'Which dwell in the Arabah' — but do they not dwell among mountains and hills!¹⁹ 'Over against Gilgal' — but they could not see Gilgal!²⁰ — R. Eliezer b. Jacob says: Scripture has here only the intention of pointing out to them the route for the second [part of the journey] as it had pointed out to them the route for the first [part of the journey].²¹ 'The way' — [this means], Proceed along the high-road and not through fields and vineyards. 'Which dwell' — [this means], Pass through inhabited territory and not through deserts. 'In the Arabah' — [this means], Pass through the plain and not through mountains and hills.

Our Rabbis taught: How did Israel cross the Jordan? Each day [during the journey in the wilderness] the ark journeyed behind two standards,²² but on this day [of crossing] it journeyed in front; as it is said: Behold, the ark of the covenant of the Lord of all the earth passeth over before you.²³ Each day the Levites carried the ark, but on this day the priests carried it; as it is said: And it shall come to pass, when the soles of the feet of the priests that bear the ark of the Lord etc.²⁴ — It has been taught: R. Jose says: On three occasions the priests carried the ark: when they crossed the Jordan, when they walked round Jericho,²⁵ and when they deposited it in its place.²⁶ —

Talmud - Mas. Sotah 34a

When the feet of the priests were dipped in the water, the water flowed backward; as it is said: And when they that bore the ark were come unto the Jordan . . . that the waters which came down from above stood and rose up in one heap.¹ What was the height of the water? Twelve mil by twelve mil in accordance with the dimensions of the camp of Israel.² Such is the statement of R. Judah; and R. Eleazar b. Simeon said to him, According to your explanation, which is swifter, man or water?

Surely water is swifter; therefore the water must have returned and drowned them!³ It rather teaches that the waters were heaped up like stacks to a height of more than three hundred mil, until all the kings of the East and West saw them; as it is said: And it came to pass, when all the kings of the Amorites, which were beyond Jordan westward, and all the kings of the Canaanites, which were by the sea, heard how that the Lord had dried up the waters of Jordan from before the children of Israel until they were passed over, that their heart melted, neither was there spirit in them any more, because of the children of Israel.⁴ And also Rahab the harlot said to Joshua's messengers, For we have heard how the Lord dried up the water of the Red Sea etc.;⁵ and it continues, And as soon as we heard it, our hearts did melt neither did there remain any more etc.⁶

While they were still in the Jordan, Joshua said to them, Know why you are crossing the Jordan; it is on condition that you disinherit the inhabitants of the land from before you; as it said: Then ye shall drive out all the inhabitants of the land from before you etc.⁷ If you do this, well and good; otherwise the water will return and drown you [othekem].⁸ — What means 'othekem'? Me and you. While they were still in the Jordan, Joshua said to them, Take you up every man of you a stone upon his shoulder, according unto the number of the tribes of the children of Israel etc.;⁹ and it continues, That this may be a sign among you, that when your children ask in time to come, saying: What mean ye by these stones? etc.¹⁰ It was to be a monument for the children that their fathers had crossed the Jordan. While they were still in the Jordan, Joshua said to them. Take you hence out of the midst of the Jordan, out of the place where the priests' feet stood firm, twelve stones, and carry them over with you, and lay them down in the lodging place, where ye shall lodge this night etc.¹¹ It is possible [to think that they were to deposit them] in any lodging place; therefore there is a text to state, 'Where ye shall lodge this night'.

R. Judah¹² said: Abba Halafta, R. Eliezer b. Mathia and Hananiah b. Hakinai stood upon those stones and estimated that each was equal to about forty se'ah.¹³ There is a tradition that the weight which a man can raise upon his shoulder is a third of the weight he can carry;¹⁴ so from this you may calculate what was the weight of the cluster of grapes,¹⁵ as it is said: And they bare it upon a staff between two.¹⁶ From the fact that it is stated upon a staff do I not know that it [was carried] between two? Why, then, is there a text to state 'between two'? [It means] on two staffs. R. Isaac said: [It means] a series of balancing poles.¹⁷ How was it? Eight [spies] carried the grape-cluster,¹⁸ one carried a pomegranate, one carried a fig, and Joshua and Caleb did not carry anything. If you wish I can say [that they did not carry anything] because they were the most distinguished of them,¹⁹ or alternatively that they did not have a share in the plan.²⁰

R. Ammi and R. Isaac the smith differ in opinion. One said: According to the statement of R. Judah,²¹

(1) Josh. III, 15f.

(2) supra p. 71. So that as soon as the last Israelite had crossed over, the waters returned.

(3) If the water rose to twelve mil only to subside again, they would not have been able to traverse a sufficient distance to escape the returning water.

(4) Josh. V, 1.

(5) Ibid. II, 10.

(6) Ibid. 11.

(7) Num. XXXIII. 52.

(9) Josh. IV, 5.

(10) Ibid. 6.

(11) Josh. IV, 3.

(12) The reading should be: R. Jose.

(13) The se'ah was a measure of capacity; so what is here meant is a weight equal to that of forty se'ah of wheat.

- (14) . When others help to set it upon his shoulder. Consequently the weight of each was 120 se'ah.
 (15) Carried by the spies.
 (16) Num. XIII, 23.
 (17) For four couples of carriers.
 (18) [The weight of which would have been on this calculation 960 se'ahs, that is 8 times 120.]
 (19) And so it was beneath their dignity.
 (20) The bringing of the fruit was part of the plan to discourage the community. They would judge from its size what must be the stature of the inhabitants.
 (21) That the water was twelve mil in height.

they crossed over in the formation of their encampment, and according to the statement of R. Eleazar b. Simeon¹ they crossed over in single file.² The other said: According to the statement of both teachers they crossed over in the formation of their encampment. One teacher was of the opinion that man was swifter, and the other that water was swifter.³ Send for thee men⁴ — Resh Lakish said: ['For thee' means] from thine own mind;⁵ because does anybody choose a bad position for himself?⁶ That is what is written: And the thing pleased me well⁷ — Resh Lakish said: It pleased me [Moses] well but not the All-Present.

That they search the land for us⁸ — R. Hiyya b. Abba said: The spies aimed at nothing else than discrediting the land of Israel. Here it is written: That they may search [we-yahperu] the land for us, and elsewhere it is written: Then the moon shall be confounded [we-haferah] and the sun ashamed etc.⁹

And these were their names: of the tribe of Reuben, Shammua the son of Zaccur.¹⁰ R. Isaac said: It is a tradition in our possession from our forefathers that the spies were named after their actions, but only with one has it survived with us: Sethur the son of Michael.¹¹ [He was named] Sethur because he undermined [sathar] the works of the Holy One, blessed be He; and Michael [was so named] because he suggested that God [el] was weak [mak].¹² R. Johanan said: We can also explain [the name] Nahbi the son of Vophsi.¹³ [He was named] Nahbi because he hid [hikbi] the words¹⁴ of the Holy One, blessed be He; and Vophsi [was so named] because he stepped over [pasa'] the attributes¹⁵ of the Holy One, blessed be He.

And they went up by the South and he came unto Hebron¹⁶ — it should have read 'and they came'! — Raba said: It teaches that Caleb held aloof from the plan of the spies and went and prostrated himself upon the graves of the patriarchs, saying to them, 'My fathers, pray on my behalf that I may be delivered from the plan of the spies'. (As for Joshua, Moses had already prayed on his behalf; as it is said: And Moses called Hoshea the son of Nun Joshua,¹⁷ [meaning], May Jah save thee [yoshi'aka] from the plan of the spies.) That is the intention of what is written: But My servant Caleb, because he had another spirit with him.¹⁸

And there were Ahiman, Sheshai and Talmai¹⁹ — Ahiman [was so named because he was] the strongest [meyuman] of them; Sheshai because he made the earth like pits [shehithoth];²⁰ Talmai because he made the earth like furrows [telamim]. Another explanation:²¹ Ahiman built 'Anath, Sheshai built Alash, and Talmai built Telbesh.²² The children of Anak — [they are so called] because they wore the sun as a necklace [ma'anikin] owing to their stature.

Now Hebron was built seven years¹⁹ — what means 'was built'? If I say that it means actually built, is it possible that a man constructs a house for his younger son before his elder son; as it is written: And the sons of Ham: Cush and Mizraim?²³ But [the intention is], it was seven times more productive than Zoan. There is no worse stony ground in all the land of Israel than Hebron, and that is why they bury the dead there; and there is none among all the countries superior to the land of Egypt, as it is said: Like the garden of the Lord, like the land of Egypt;²⁴ and there is no place superior to Zoan In all the land Egypt, as it is written: For his princes are at Zoan.²⁵ Nevertheless Hebron was seven times more productive than Zoan. But was Hebron stony ground; behold it is written: And it came to pass at the end of forty years, that Absalom said unto the king, I pray thee, let me go [and pay my vow . . . in Hebron];²⁶ and R. Iwya — another version is, Rabbah b. Bar Hanan-said: He went to fetch lambs from Hebron; and there is also a teaching: [The best] rams are from Moab and lambs from Hebron! — From that very fact [it is proved that the land was stony]; because the soil is thin it produces pastures²⁷ and the cattle grow fat there.

And they returned from spying out the land . . .

and they went and came.¹ R. Johanan said in the name of R. Simeon b. Yohai, It compares the going to the coming back; as the coming back was with an evil design, so the going was with an evil design.² And they told him and said: We came etc.,³ and it continues, Howbeit the people are strong.⁴ R. Johanan said⁵ in the name of R. Meir, Any piece of slander, which has not some truth in the beginning, will not endure in the end.⁶

And Caleb stilled [wa-yahas] the people concerning Moses⁷ — Rabbah said, [It means] that he won them over [hissithan] with words. When Joshua began to address them, they said to him,

‘Would this person with the lopped-off head⁸ speak to us!’ [Caleb] said [to himself], If I address them [in the same strain as Joshua], they will answer me in like manner and silence me; so he said to them, ‘Is it this alone that Amram's son has done to us!’⁹ They thought that he was speaking to censure Moses, so they were silent. Then he said to them, ‘He brought us out of Egypt, divided the Red Sea for us and fed us with manna. If he were to tell us, Prepare ladders and ascend to heaven, should we not obey him! Let us go up at once and possess it etc.’¹⁰

But the men that went up with him said: We will not be able etc.¹¹ R. Hanina b. Papa said: A grievous statement did they make at that moment, viz. For they are stronger than we — read not than we but than He;¹² as it were even the master of the house cannot remove his furniture from there.¹³

It is a land that eateth up the inhabitants thereof.¹⁴ Raba expounded: The Holy One, blessed be He, said: I intended this for good¹⁵ but they thought it in a bad sense. I intended this for good, because wherever [the spies] came, the chief [of the inhabitants] died, so that they should be occupied [with his burial] and not inquire about them.¹⁶ (Others say that Job died then and the whole world was occupied with mourning for him.) But they thought it in a bad sense: It is a land that eateth up the inhabitants thereof.¹⁷

And we were in our own sight as grasshoppers, and so we were in their sight.¹⁸ R. Mesharsheya said: The spies were liars. As regards ‘we were in our own sight as grasshoppers’, very well; but how could they know that ‘so we were in their sight’? But it is not so;¹⁹ for when [the inhabitants] held their funeral-meal²⁰ they ate it beneath cedar trees, and when [the spies] saw them they climbed the trees and sat there. Then they heard them say: ‘We see men like grasshoppers in the trees’.

And all the congregation lifted up their voice and wept.²¹ Rabbah said in the name of R. Johanan: That day was the ninth of Ab;²² and the Holy One, blessed be He, said: They are now weeping for nothing, but I will fix [this day] for them as an occasion of weeping for generations.

But all the congregation bade them stone them with stones,²³ and it continues, And the glory of the Lord appeared in the tent of meeting. R. Hiyya b. Abba said: It teaches that they took stones and hurled them against Him Who is above.²⁴ Even those men that did bring up an evil report of the land died by the plague.²⁵ R. Simeon b. Lakish said: They died an unnatural death.²⁶ R. Hanina b. Papa said: R. Shila of Kefar Temarthah expounded; It²⁷ teaches that their tongue was elongated and reached down to their navel, and worms issued from their tongue and penetrated their navel and from their navel they penetrated their tongue. R. Nahman b. Isaac said: They died of croup.²⁸

When²⁹ the last of the Israelites ascended from the Jordan, the waters returned to their place; as it is said: And it came to pass, when the priests that bore the ark of the covenant of the Lord were come up out of the midst of the Jordan, and the soles of the priests’ feet were lifted up unto the dry ground, that the waters of Jordan returned unto their place, and went over all its banks, as aforetime.³⁰ Consequently the ark and its bearers and the priests were on one side [of the Jordan] and the Israelites on the other!³¹ The ark carried its bearers and passed over [the river]; as it is said: And it came to pass, when all the people were clean passed over, that the ark of the Lord passed over, and the priests, in the presence of the people.³² On that account was Uzza punished, as it is said: And when they came unto the threshing-floor of Chidon, Uzza put forth his hand to hold the ark.³³ The Holy One, blessed be He, said to him, ‘Uzza, [the ark] carried its bearers; must it not all the more [be able to carry] itself!’

And the anger of the Lord was kindled against Uzzah; and God smote him there for his error [shall] etc.³⁴ R. Johanan and R. Eleazar [differ on the interpretation of the word ‘shal’]. One said [that it means] on account of the act of error [shalu];³⁵ the other said [that it means] he relieved himself in its presence.³⁶

And there he died by³⁷ the ark of God. R. Johanan said: Uzzah entered the World to Come, as it is stated 'with the ark of God' — as the ark endures for ever, so Uzzah entered the World to Come.

And David was angry, because the Lord had broken forth upon Uzzah.³⁸ R. Eleazar said: His face was changed [so that it became in colour] like a cake baked upon the coals [hararah]. Are we to infer from this that wherever wa-yihar occurs it has this meaning? — In other passages the word 'af [anger] is added but here it is not added.

Raba expounded: Why was David punished?³⁹ Because he called words of Torah 'songs', as it is said: Thy statutes have been my songs in the house of my pilgrimage.⁴⁰ The Holy One, blessed be He, said to him, 'Words of Torah, of which it is written: Wilt thou set thine eyes upon it? It is gone,⁴¹ thou recitest as songs! I will cause thee to stumble in a matter which even school-children know.' For it is written: But unto the sons of Kohath he gave none, because the service of the sanctuary etc.;⁴² and yet [David] brought it in a waggon.

And he smote of the men of Beth-Shemesh, because they looked into the ark.⁴³ God smote them because they looked into the ark! R. Abbahu and R. Eleazar [differ in their interpretation]; one said that they went on reaping while they prostrated themselves [before the ark],⁴⁴ the other said that they also used this [disrespectful] language to it,

'Who embittered thee that thou wast thus embittered,¹ and what has come upon thee that thou art now appeased?' Even He smote of the people seventy men and fifty thousand men.² R. Abbahu and R. Eleazar [differ in their interpretation]; one said that there were only seventy men [smitten] each of whom was the equal of fifty thousand men, while the other said that there were fifty thousand men [smitten] each of whom was equal to the seventy who constituted the Sanhedrin.

And it was so, that when they that bore the ark of the Lord had gone six paces, he sacrificed an ox and a fatling,³ and it is also written, [They sacrificed] seven bullocks and seven rams!⁴ — R. Papa said in the name of Samuel: [The two passages are reconciled by supposing that] at each pace an ox and a fatling [were offered] and at each six paces seven bullocks and seven rams. R. Hisda said to him, On your theory you filled the whole of the land of Israel with high places! But, said R. Hisda, at each six paces an ox and a fatling [were offered] and at each six sets of six paces seven bullocks and seven rams.

[In one place the name of the threshing-floor] is written Chidon [and in another] Nacon!⁵ — R. Johanan said: At first [it was called] Chidon and afterwards Nacon.⁶

In consequence [of what is related in the Scriptures], you must conclude that there were three sets of stones: one which Moses caused to be erected in the land of Moab, as it is said: Beyond Jordan, in the land of Moab, began Moses to declare etc.,⁷ and elsewhere it states: Thou shalt write upon the stones all the words of this law [very plainly],⁸ and the inference is drawn from the use of the analogous word [that as in the latter passage stones were employed, they were similarly employed in connection with what is narrated in the first passage]. The second set was that which Joshua caused to be erected in the midst of the Jordan, as it is said: And Joshua set up twelve stones in the midst of Jordan.⁹ The third set was that which he caused to be erected in Gilgal, as it is said: And those twelve stones which they took.¹⁰

Our Rabbis taught: How did the Israelites inscribe the Torah? — R. Judah says: They inscribed it upon the stones, as it is stated: ‘Thou shalt write upon the stones all the words of this law etc.’ After that they plastered them over with plaster. R. Simeon said to him, According to your explanation, how did the nations of that period learn the Torah!¹¹ — He replied to him, The Holy One, blessed be He, endowed them with exceptional intelligence; and they sent their scribes who peeled off the plaster and carried away [a copy of the inscription]. On that account was the verdict sealed against them [to descend] to the pit of destruction, because it was their duty to learn [Torah] but they failed to do so. R. Simeon says: They inscribed it upon the plaster and wrote below, That they teach you not to do after all [their abominations].¹² Hence you learn that if they turn in penitence they would be accepted. Raba b. Shila said: What is R. Simeon's reason? — Because it is written: And the peoples shall be as the burnings of lime¹³ — i.e., on account of the matter of the plaster.¹⁴ And [how does] R. Judah [explain this verse]? — [Their destruction will be] like plaster — as there is no other remedy for plaster except burning, so there is no other remedy for those nations [who cleave to the abominations] except burning. According to whom [is the following teaching] which has been taught: And thou carriest them away captive¹⁵ — this is to include Canaanites who reside outside the land [of Israel] so if they turn in penitence they will be accepted.

Talmud - Mas. Sotah 36a

According to whom is this? — According to R. Simeon.

Come and see how many miracles were performed on that day. Israel crossed the Jordan, came to mount Gerizim and mount Ebal [thus traversing a distance of] more than sixty mil, no creature was able to withstand them and whoever withstood them was immediately panic-stricken; as it is said: I will send My terror before thee, and will discomfort all the people to whom thou shalt come, etc.,¹ and it states: Terror and dread falleth upon them . . . till Thy people pass over, O Lord.² This alludes to the first advance [of Israel in the days of Joshua]; and ‘Till the people pass over which Thou hast gotten’² alludes to the second advance [in the days of Ezra]. Conclude from this that the Israelites were worthy that a miracle should be performed on their behalf during the second advance as in the first advance, but sin caused [it to be withheld].

After that they brought the stones, built the altar, and plastered it with plaster, and inscribed thereon all the words of the Torah in seventy languages; as it is said: Very plainly.³ Then they sacrificed burnt-offerings and peace-offerings, ate and drank and rejoiced, pronounced the blessings and the curses,⁴ packed up the stones, and came and lodged in Gilgal; as it is said: Carry them over with you and lay them down in the lodging place.⁵ It is possible [to think that they were to deposit them] in any lodging place; therefore there is a text to state, Where ye shall lodge this night,⁵ and then it is written: And those twelve stones, which they took [out of Jordan, did Joshua set up in Gilgal].⁶

A Tanna taught: The hornet did not pass over [Jordan] with them; but behold it is written: And I will send the hornet before thee!⁷ — R. Simeon b. Lakish said: It stood by the bank of the Jordan and injected a virus [into the Canaanites] which blinded their eyes above and castrated them below; as it is said: Yet destroyed I the Amorite before them, whose height was like the height of the cedars, and he was strong as the oaks; yet I destroyed his fruit from above and his roots from beneath etc.⁸ R. Papa said: There were two hornets, one in the period of Moses and the other in the period of Joshua; the former did not pass over [Jordan] but the other did.

SIX TRIBES ASCENDED THE SUMMIT OF MOUNT GERIZIM etc. What means and the half of them?⁹ — R. Kahana said: As they were divided here [on the mounts]¹⁰ so were they divided on the stones of the ephod.¹¹ An objection was raised: The High priest had two precious stones on his shoulders, one on this side and one on the other side; upon them were inscribed the names of the twelve tribes, six on one stone and six on the other, as it is said: Six of their names on the one stone, [and the names of the six that remain on the other stone, according to their birth].¹² [This indicates that] the second six were to be according to their birth, but the first six were not to be according to their birth; because [the name of] Judah came first, and there were fifty letters, twenty-five on each stone. R. Hanina b. Gamaliel says:

Talmud - Mas. Sotah 36b

They were not apportioned upon the stones as they were apportioned in the Book of Numbers¹ but as they were apportioned in the second Book of the Pentateuch.² How then [were they arranged]? The sons of Leah in order of seniority [on one stone, and on the other] the sons of Rachel, one on top and the other at the bottom, with the sons of the hand-maids in the centre.³ In that case, how am I to explain 'according to their birth'? [It means that the inscription was] according to the names which their father called them and not according to the names which Moses called them — Reuben and not Reubeni, Simeon and not Simeoni, Dan and not had-Dani, Gad and not hag-Gadi.⁴ This is a refutation of R. Kahana!⁵ The refutation [is unanswered].

What, then, is the meaning of 'and the half of them'? — It has been taught: 'The half in front of mount Gerizim was larger than that in front of mount Ebal, because [the tribe of] Levi was below

[with the ark].⁶ On the contrary, for the reason that Levi was below it must have been smaller!⁷ — This is what he intends: Although Levi was below [the party on mount Gerizim was still larger] because the sons of Joseph were included with them [and they were very numerous]; as it is said: And the children of Joseph spake unto Joshua, saying: Why hast thou given me but one lot and one part for an inheritance, seeing I am a great people? . . . And Joshua said unto them, If thou be a great people, get thee up to the forest.⁸ He said to them, ‘Go, hide yourselves in the forests that the evil eye⁹ may not have sway over you’. They replied to him, ‘The evil eye can bear no sway over the seed of Joseph’; for it is written: Joseph is a fruitful bough, a fruitful bough by a fountain,¹⁰ and R. Abbahu said: Read not ‘ale ‘ayin [by a fountain] but ‘ole ‘ayin [overcoming the eye]. R. Jose b. Hanina said: [It is derived] from this passage, And let them grow [we-yidgu] into a multitude in the midst of the earth¹¹ — as the water covers the fish [dagim] in the sea so that the [evil] eye bears no sway over them, so the [evil] eye bears no sway over the seed of Joseph.

[It was stated above that on the stones of the ephod] were fifty letters; but there were fifty less one! — R. Isaac said: One letter was added to the name of Joseph, as it is said: He appointed it in Joseph for a testimony, when he went out over the land of Egypt.¹² R. Nahman b. Isaac objected: We require according to their birth!¹³ — But [the correct explanation is] that throughout the whole Torah Benjamin's name is spelt without the letter yod [before the final letter], but here [on the ephod] it was spelt complete with yod; as it is written: But his father called him Benjamin.¹⁴

R. Hanā¹⁵ b. Bizna said in the name of R. Simeon the Pious: Because Joseph sanctified the heavenly Name in private one letter was added to him from the Name of the Holy One, blessed be He; but because Judah sanctified the heavenly Name in public, the whole of his name was called after the Name of the Holy One, blessed be He. How was it with Joseph [that he sanctified the Name]? — As it is written: And it came to pass about this time, that he went into the house to do his work.¹⁶ R. Johanan said: This teaches that both [Joseph and Potiphar's wife] had the intention of acting immorally. ‘He went into the house to do his work’ — Rab and Samuel [differ in their interpretation]. One said that it really means to do his work; but the other said that he went to satisfy his desires.¹⁷ ‘And there was none of the men of the house etc. — is it possible that there was no man in a huge house like that of this wicked [Potiphar]! — It was taught in the School of R. Ishmael: That day was their feast-day, and they had all gone to their idolatrous temple; but she had pretended to be ill because she thought, I shall not have an opportunity like to-day for Joseph to associate with me. And she caught him by his garment, saying etc.¹⁸ At that moment his father's image came and appeared to him through the window and said: ‘Joseph, thy brothers will have their names inscribed upon the stones of the ephod and thine amongst theirs; is it thy wish to have thy name expunged from amongst theirs and be called an associate of harlots?’ (As it is written: He that keepeth company with harlots wasteth his substance.)¹⁹ Immediately his bow abode in strength²⁰ — R. Johanan said in the name of R. Meir: [This means] that his passion subsided. And the arms of his hands were made active²⁰ — he stuck his hands in the ground so that his lust came out from between his finger-nails. ‘By the hands of the Mighty One of Jacob’²⁰ — Who caused his name to be engraven upon the stones of the ephod but the Mighty One of Jacob? ‘From thence is the shepherd, the stone of Israel’²¹ — from there was he worthy to be made a shepherd, as it is said: Give ear, O Shepherd of Israel, Thou that leadest like the flock of Joseph.²²

It has been taught: Joseph was worthy that twelve tribes should issue from him as they issued from his father Jacob, as it is said: These are the generations of Jacob, Joseph;²³ but his lust came out from between his finger-nails.²⁴ Nevertheless they²⁵ issued from his brother Benjamin and were given names on his own account; as it is said: And the sons of Benjamin: Bela and Becher and Ashbel etc.²⁶ [He was called] Bela, because [Joseph] was swallowed up [nibla’] among the peoples. [He was called] Becher, because [Joseph] was the firstborn [bekor] of his mother. [He was called] Ashbel, because God sent [Joseph] into captivity [sheba'o el]. [He was called] Gera, because [Joseph] dwelt [gar] in lodgings [in a strange land]. [He was called] Naaman, because he was especially beloved [na'im]. [They were called] Ehi and Rosh, because [Joseph] is my brother [ahi] and chief [rosh]. [They were called] Muppim and Huppim, because [Benjamin said: Joseph] did not see my marriage-canopy [huppah] and I did not see his.²⁷ [He was called] Ard, because [Joseph] descended [yarad] among the peoples. Others explain [that he was called] Ard, because [Joseph's] face was like a rose [wered].

R. Hiyya b. Abba said in the name of R. Johanan: At the moment when Pharaoh said to Joseph, And without thee shall no man lift up his hand etc.,²⁸ Pharaoh's astrologers exclaimed: 'Wilt thou set in power over us a slave whom his master bought for twenty pieces of silver!' He replied to them, 'I discern in him royal characteristics.' They said to him, 'In that case he must be acquainted with the seventy languages'. Gabriel came and taught [Joseph] the seventy languages, but he could not learn them. Thereupon [Gabriel] added to his name a letter from the Name of the Holy One, blessed be He, and he learnt [the languages] as it is said: He appointed it in Joseph²⁹ for a testimony, when he went out over the land of Egypt, where I [Joseph] heard a language that I knew not.³⁰ On the morrow, in whatever language Pharaoh conversed with him he replied to him; but when [Joseph] spoke to him in the holy tongue he did not understand what he said. So he asked him to teach it to him; he taught it to him but he could not learn it. [Pharaoh] said to him, 'Swear to me that thou wilt not reveal this';³¹ and he swore to him. When [Joseph] later said to him, My father made me swear, saying,³² he remarked to him, 'Go, ask [to be released from] thine oath.'³³ He replied to him, 'I will also ask [to be released from my oath] concerning thee'.³⁴ Therefore, although it was displeasing to him, [Pharaoh] said to him, Go up and bury thy father, according as he made thee swear.³⁵

What was it that Judah did?³⁶ — As it has been taught: R. Meir said: When the Israelites stood by the Red Sea, the tribes strove with one another, each wishing to descend into the sea first. Then sprang forward the tribe of Benjamin and descended first into the sea; as it is said: There is little Benjamin their ruler¹ — read not rodem [their ruler] but rad yam [descended into the sea]. Thereupon the princes of Judah hurled stones at them; as it is said: The princes of Judah their council.² For that reason the righteous Benjamin was worthy to become the host of the All-Powerful,³ as it is said: He dwelleth between his shoulders.⁴ R. Judah said to [R. Meir]: That is not what happened; but each tribe was unwilling to be the first to enter the sea. Then sprang forward Nahshon the son of Amminadab⁵ and descended first into the sea; as it is said: Ephraim compasseth me about with falsehood, and the house of Israel with deceit; but Judah yet ruleth with God.⁶ Concerning him it is stated in Scripture,⁷ Save me O God, for the waters are come in unto my soul. I sink in deep mire, where there is no standing etc.⁸ Let not the waterflood overwhelm me, neither let the deep swallow me up etc.⁹ At that time Moses was engaged for a long while in prayer; so the Holy One, blessed be He, said to him, 'My beloved ones are drowning in the sea and thou prolongest prayer before Me!' He spake before Him, 'Lord of the Universe, what is there in my power to do?' He replied to him, Speak unto the children of Israel that they go forward. And lift thou up thy rod, and stretch out thy hand etc.¹⁰ For that reason Judah was worthy to be made the ruling power in Israel, as it is said: Judah became His sanctuary, Israel his dominion.¹¹ Why did Judah become His sanctuary and Israel his dominion? Because the sea saw [him] and fled.¹²

It has been taught. R. Eliezer b. Jacob says: It is impossible to declare that Levi [was stationed] below since it is stated that he was above,¹³ and it is impossible to declare that he was above since it is stated that he was below;¹⁴ so how was it? The elders of the priests and Levites were below and the rest above. R. Joshiyah said: All [the Levites] who were qualified to serve [as bearers of the ark] were below and the rest above. Rabbi says: Both [the priests and Levites] and also [the Israelites] were standing below.¹⁵ They turned their faces towards mount Gerizim and opened with the blessing, and then towards mount Ebal and opened with the curse; for what means 'al'?¹⁶ It means 'near to'; as it has been taught: And thou shalt put pure frankincense near ['al] each row¹⁷ — Rabbi says: 'Al means 'near to'. You declare that 'al means 'near to'; but perhaps it is not so and the signification is actually 'upon'? Since it states: Thou shalt put a veil 'al the ark,¹⁸ conclude that 'al means 'near to'.

THEY TURNED THEIR FACES TOWARDS MOUNT GERIZIM AND OPENED WITH THE

BLESSING etc. Our Rabbis taught: There was a benediction in general and a benediction in particular, likewise a curse in general and a curse in particular.¹⁹ [Scripture states]: to learn, to teach, to observe and to do;²⁰ consequently there are four [duties associated with each commandment]. Twice four are eight¹ and twice eight are sixteen.² It was similar³ at Sinai and the plains of Moab; as it is said: These are the words of the covenant which the Lord commanded Moses etc.'⁴ and it is written: Keep therefore the words of this covenant etc.⁵ Hence there were forty-eight covenants in connection with each commandment.⁶ R. Simeon excludes [the occasion of] Mount Gerizim and Mount Ebal⁷ and includes that of the Tent of Meeting in the wilderness.⁸ The difference of opinion here is the same as that of the teachers in the following: R. Ishmael says: General laws were proclaimed at Sinai and particular laws in the Tent of Meeting. R. Akiba says: Both general and particular laws were proclaimed at Sinai, repeated in the Tent of Meeting, and for the third time in the plains of Moab. Consequently there is not a single precept written in the Torah in connection with which forty-eight covenants were not made. R. Simeon b. Judah of Kefar Acco⁹ said in the name of R. Simeon: There is not a single precept written in the Torah in connection with which forty-eight times six hundred and three thousand, five hundred and fifty¹⁰ covenants were not made. Rabbi said: According to the reasoning of R. Simeon b. Judah of Kefar Acco who said in the name of R. Simeon that there is not a single precept written in the Torah in connection with which forty-eight times six hundred and three thousand, five hundred and fifty covenants were not made, it follows that for each Israelite there are six hundred and three thousand, five hundred and fifty commandments.¹¹ What is the issue between them? — R. Mesharsheya said: The point between them is that of personal responsibility and responsibility for others.¹²

R. Judah b. Nahmani, the lecturer¹³ of Simeon b. Lakish, expounded: The whole section [of the blessings and curses] refers to none other than the adulterer and adulteress. [It states,] Cursed be the man that maketh a graven or molten image etc.¹⁴ Does it suffice merely to pronounce cursed with such a person!¹⁵ — But it alludes to one who has immoral intercourse, and begets a son who goes to live among heathens¹⁶ and worships idols; cursed be the father and mother of this man since they were the cause of his sinning.¹⁷

Our Rabbis taught: Thou shalt set the blessing upon Mount Gerizim and the curse etc.¹⁸ What is the purpose of this text? If it is to teach that the blessing [is to be pronounced] on Mount Gerizim and the curse on mount Ebal, it has already been said: These shall stand upon mount Gerizim to bless the people,¹⁹ and it continues, And these shall stand upon mount Ebal for the curse!²⁰ But [the purpose is to indicate] that the blessing must precede the curse. It is possible to think that all the blessings must precede the curses; therefore the text states 'blessing' and 'curse, I.e., one blessing precedes a curse and all the blessings do not precede the curses. A further purpose is to draw a comparison between blessing and curse to tell us that as the curse is pronounced by the Levites so the blessing must be pronounced by the Levites; as the curse is uttered in a loud voice so must the blessing be uttered in a loud voice; as the curse is said in the holy tongue²¹ so must the blessing be said in the holy tongue; as the curse is in general and particular terms so must the blessing be in general and particular terms; and as with the curse both parties respond with Amen so with the blessing both parties respond with Amen.

AS WRITTEN,¹ BUT IN THE PROVINCE IN ITS SUBSTITUTED NAME.² IN THE PROVINCE THE PRIESTS RAISE THEIR HANDS IN A LINE WITH THEIR SHOULDERS, BUT IN THE TEMPLE ABOVE THEIR HEADS, EXCEPT THE HIGH PRIEST WHO DOES NOT RAISE HIS HANDS HIGHER THAN THE PLATE.³ R. JUDAH SAYS: ALSO THE HIGH PRIEST RAISES HIS HANDS HIGHER THAN THE PLATE, AS IT IS SAID, AND AARON LIFTED UP HIS HANDS TOWARD THE PEOPLE AND BLESSED THEM.⁴

GEMARA. Our Rabbis taught: On this wise ye shall bless⁵ — i.e., in the holy tongue. You say that it means in the holy tongue; but perhaps it is not so and it means in any language! It is stated here, ‘On this wise ye shall bless,’ and elsewhere it is stated: These shall stand to bless the people,⁶ as in this latter passage it was in the holy tongue, so also in the former it was in the holy tongue. R. Judah says: [This deduction] is unnecessary, because it states ‘on this wise’ [which signifies] that they must pronounce it in this language [as written in Scripture].⁷

Another [Baraitha] taught: ‘On this wise ye shall bless’ — i.e., standing. You say that it means standing; but perhaps that is not so and [the benediction may be pronounced] even sitting! It is stated here, ‘On this wise ye shall bless,’ and elsewhere it is stated: ‘These shall stand to bless’ — as here it was standing so in the former passage it was standing. R. Nathan says: [This deduction] is unnecessary; behold it states: To minister unto Him and to bless in His name⁸ — as [the priest] ministers standing so he blesses standing. Whence is it that the ministering itself [was performed standing]? Because it is written: To stand to minister.⁹

Another [Baraitha] taught: ‘On this wise ye shall bless’ — i.e., with raising of the hands. You say that it means with raising of the hands; but perhaps that is not so [and the benediction can be pronounced] without raising of the hands! It is stated here, ‘On this wise ye shall bless’, and elsewhere it is stated: ‘And Aaron lifted up his hands toward the people and blessed them’;¹⁰ as in this latter passage it was with raising of the hands, so also in the former passage it was with raising of the hands. R. Jonathan raised the question: If [your reasoning is valid], then as in that passage¹⁰ [the benediction was pronounced] by the High Priest, on the new moon¹¹ and in the service of the Community, so also here it must be the High Priest, on the new moon and in the service of the Community! R. Nathan says: [This deduction] is unnecessary; behold it states: Him and his sons for ever,¹² comparing him and his sons — as [the High Priest pronounced the benediction] with raising of the hands, so also his sons with raising of the hands. Furthermore it is written for ever,¹³ and a comparison is drawn between the benediction and ministering.¹⁴

Another [Baraitha] taught: ‘On this wise ye shall bless the children of Israel’ — with the use of the Shem Hameforash.¹⁵ You say that it means with the Tetragrammaton; but perhaps that is not so and a substituted name was used!¹⁶ There is a text to say: So shall they put My name¹⁷ — My name which is unique to Me. It is possible to think that [the Shem Hameforash was also used] in places outside the Temple; but it is stated here, ‘So shall they put My name’ and elsewhere it is stated: To put His name there¹⁸ — as in this latter passage it denotes in the Temple so also in the former passage it denotes in the Temple. R. Joshiah says: [This deduction] is unnecessary; behold it states: In every place where I cause My name to be remembered I will come unto thee.¹⁹ Can it enter your mind that every place is intended?²⁰ But the text must be transposed thus: In every place where I will come unto thee and bless thee will I cause My name to be remembered; and where will I come unto thee and bless thee? In the Temple; there, in the Temple, will I cause My name to be remembered.

Another [Baraitha] teaches: ‘On this wise ye shall bless the children of Israel’ — I have here only the children of Israel; whence is it that proselytes, women and enfranchised slaves [are included]? There is a text to state, Ye shall say unto them²¹ — i.e., to all of them.

Another [Baraita] teaches: 'On this wise ye shall bless' — i.e., face to face.²² You say that it means face to face; but perhaps that is not so and it means the face [of the priests] towards the back [of the people]! There is a text to state, 'Ye shall say unto them' — i.e., like a man who talks to his companion.

Another [Baraita] teaches: 'On this wise ye shall bless — i.e., in a loud voice. But perhaps it is not so and the meaning is softly! There is a text to state, 'Ye shall say unto them' — like a man who talks to his companion.

Abbaye said: We have a tradition that [the Precentor]²³ exclaims 'Kohanim!' when [at least] two are present but he does not exclaim 'Kohen!' when only one is there;²⁴ as it is said: Ye shall say unto them — i.e., [at least] unto two. R. Hisda said: We have a tradition that [when the Precentor is himself] a kohen he exclaims 'Kohanim!' but a lay-Israelite does not; as it is said: 'Ye shall say unto them' — the saying must come from one of their own body. The legal decision is in accord with the view of Abaye and not according to R. Hisda.

R. Joshua b. Levi said: Whence is it that the Holy One, blessed be He, desires the priestly benediction? As it is said: So shall they put My name upon the children of Israel; and I will bless them.² R. Joshua b. Levi also said: Every kohen who pronounces the benediction is himself blessed, but if he does not pronounce it he is not blessed; as it is said: I will bless them that bless thee.³ R. Joshua b. Levi also said: Any kohen who refuses to ascend the platform⁴ transgresses three positive commandments, viz., ‘On this wise shall ye bless’, ‘Ye shall say unto them’, and ‘So shall they put My name’. Rab said: We have to take into consideration that he might be the son of a divorcee or the son of a Haluzah.⁵ But [R. Joshua and Rab] are not at variance, one referring to a case where he ascends [the platform] occasionally,⁶ the other to a case where he does not occasionally ascend it.

R. Joshua b. Levi also said: Any kohen who does not ascend [the platform] in the ‘Service’⁷ may not ascend later; as it is said: And Aaron lifted up his hands toward the people, and blessed them, — and he came down from offering the sin-offering and the burnt-offering and the peace-offering.⁸ As in this passage [the benediction occurred] during the ‘Service’, so here [in the Synagogue] it must be [during the prayers relating to] the ‘Service’. But that is not so, seeing that R. Ammi and R. Assi ascended [at a later point in the liturgy]! — R. Ammi and R. Assi had already moved their feet [at the proper point to ascend the platform] but did not reach there [in time]. This is as R. Oshaia taught, [The statement that the kohen may not ascend after that point in the liturgy] does not apply except when he had not moved his feet, but if he had moved his feet he may ascend. It has been similarly learnt: If he⁹ is confident that he can raise his hands [for the benediction] and resume the prayers [without an error], he is permitted to do so;¹⁰ on arguing in this connection that he surely does not move [his feet],¹¹ [the reply was] that he shifts a little [to one side]; so also in the present instance, if [a kohen] moves a little [to ascend at the right point, it is sufficient].

R. Joshua b. Levi also said: We give the cup of blessing¹² for the recital of the Grace after meals only to one who is of a generous disposition,¹³ as it is said: He that hath a bountiful eye shall be blessed, for he giveth of his bread to the poor¹⁴ — read not yeborak [‘shall be blessed’] but yebarek [shall say the Benediction]. R. Joshua b. Levi also said: Whence is it that even the birds recognise those who have a niggardly spirit?¹⁵ As it is said: For in vain is the net spread in the eyes of any bird.¹⁶ R. Joshua b. Levi also said: Whoever accepts hospitality of men of niggardly spirit transgresses a prohibition; as it is said: Eat thou not the bread of him that hath an evil eye, [neither desire thou his dainties]. For as he reckoneth within himself; so is he; eat and drink, saith he to thee, [but his heart is not with thee].¹⁷ R. Nahman b. Isaac said: He transgresses two prohibitions, ‘Eat thou not’ and ‘Neither desire thou’. R. Joshua b. Levi also said: [The necessity for] the heifer whose neck is to be broken¹⁸ only arises on account of the niggardly of spirit, as it is said: Our hands have not shed this blood.¹⁹ But can It enter our minds that the elders of a Court of Justice are shedders of blood! The meaning is, [The man found dead] did not come to us for help and we dismissed him, we did not see him and let him go — i.e., he did not come to us for help and we dismissed him without supplying him with food, we did not see him and let him go without escort.²⁰

Adda said in the name of R. Simlai: In a Synagogue where all the worshippers are kohanim, they all ascend the platform. For whom, then, do they pronounce the benediction? R. Zera answered: For their brethren [working] in the fields.²¹ But it is not so; for Abba the son of R. Minyamin b. Hiyya taught: The people who are behind the kohanim do not come within the scope of the benediction!²² — There is no contradiction; the former refers to men who are compelled [to be absent] and the latter to men who are not compelled [to be stationed behind the kohanim]. But R. Shimi of the Fort of Shihori taught: In a Synagogue where all the worshippers are kohanim, some ascend [the platform] and the rest respond with Amen! — There is no contradiction; the latter refers to where ten remain [to respond Amen] and the former where ten do not remain.

The [above] text stated: ‘Abba the son of R. Minyamin b. Hiyya taught: The people who are behind the kohanim do not come within the scope of the benediction.’ It is obvious that the tall do not create an obstruction for the short,²³ nor does the ark [where the Torah-scrolls are deposited] create an obstruction; but how is it with a partition [within the Synagogue]? — Come and hear: R. Joshua b. Levi said: Even a partition of iron does not divide between Israel and their Father in heaven. The question was asked: How is it with those standing on the side [of the kohanim]? — Abba Mar son of R. Ashi said: Come and hear: We have learnt: If he intended to sprinkle²⁴ in front of him and he sprinkled behind him, or vice versa, the sprinkling is invalid; [but if he intended to sprinkle] in front of him and did so on the sides in front of him, his sprinkling is valid.¹

Raba son of R. Huna said: When the Torah-scroll is unrolled² it is forbidden to converse even on matters concerning the law; as it is said: And when he opened it all the people stood up,³ and standing up signifies nothing else than silence, as it is said: And I wait because they speak not, because they stand still and answer no more.⁴ R. Zera said in the name of R. Hisda: [It may be derived] from this passage, And the ears of all the people were attentive unto the book of the law.⁵

R. Joshua b. Levi also said: Any kohen who has not washed his hands may not lift them up [to pronounce the benediction]; as it is said: Lift up your hands in holiness and bless ye the Lord.⁶

His disciples asked R. Eleazar b. Shammua, 'How have you prolonged your life?' He replied:

‘Never have I made use of a Synagogue as a short cut,⁷ nor stepped over the heads of the holy people,⁸ nor lifted up my hands [as a kohen] without first uttering a benediction.’ What benediction did he utter? — R. Zera said in the name of R. Hisda: ‘[Blessed art Thou, O Lord our God, King of the Universe] Who hast commanded us with the sanctity of Aaron and hast commanded us to bless Thy people Israel in love’.⁹ When he [the priest] moves his feet [to ascend the platform] what does he say? — ‘May it be pleasing before Thee, O Lord our God, that this benediction wherewith Thou hast commanded us to bless Thy people Israel may be free from stumbling and iniquity.’ When he turns his face from the Congregation [to the ark after pronouncing the benediction] what does he say? — R. Hisda led R. ‘Ukba forward¹⁰ and the latter explained [that what he says is], ‘Lord of the Universe, we have performed what Thou hast decreed upon us;¹¹ fulfil with us

R. Hisda said: The kohanim are not permitted to bend their fingerjoints² until they turn their faces from the congregation.

R. Zera said in the name of R. Hisda: The Precentor is not permitted to exclaim ‘Kohanim!’³ until the response of Amen [to the preceding benediction] had been completed by the congregation; and the kohanim are not permitted to begin the benediction until the announcement [of ‘Kohanim!'] had been completed by the Precentor; and the congregation is not permitted to respond Amen until the benediction had been completed by the kohanim, — and the kohanim are not permitted to begin another section of the benediction until the response of Amen had been completed by the congregation [to the preceding].

R. Zera also said in the name of R. Hisda: The kohanim are not permitted to turn their faces from the congregation ‘until the Precentor begins the paragraph ‘Grant peace’;⁴ nor are they permitted to move their feet and descend until the Precentor has finished ‘Grant peace’.

R. Zera also said in the name of R. Hisda: The congregation is not permitted to respond Amen until a benediction had been completed by the Precentor; and the reader is not permitted to read in the Torah until the response of Amen [to the preliminary benediction] had been completed by the congregation; and the translator⁵ is not permitted to begin the translation until the verse had been completed by the reader; and the reader is not permitted to begin another verse until the translation [of the preceding verse] had been completed by the translator.

R. Tanhum said in the name of R. Joshua b. Levi: He who is to read the lection from the prophets must first read [a passage] in the Torah.⁶ R. Tanhum also said in the name of R. Joshua b. Levi: He who is to read the lection from the prophets is not permitted to begin his recital until the Torah-scroll is rolled up.⁷ R. Tanhum also said in the name of R. Joshua b. Levi: The Precentor is not permitted to strip the ark bare in the presence of the Congregation because of the dignity of the congregation.⁸ R. Tanhum also said in the name of R. Joshua b. Levi: The congregation is not permitted to depart until the Torah-scroll is removed⁹ and deposited in its place. Samuel said: [They may not depart] until [the Pre centor] has gone out.¹⁰ There is no variance between them; the former refers to when there is another exit,¹¹ the latter to when there is not another exit. Raba said: Bar Ahina explained to me [that the Scriptural basis for this regulation is], Ye shall walk after the Lord your God.¹²

While the kohanim are blessing the people¹³ what do the latter say? — R. Zera declared in the name of R. Hisda: Bless the Lord, ye angels of His, ye mighty in strength . . . Bless the Lord, all ye His hosts, ye ministers of His that do His pleasure. Bless the Lord, all ye His works, in all places of His dominion. Bless the Lord, O my soul.¹⁴ What do they say [during the benediction] in the additional service of the Sabbath?¹⁵ — R. Assi declared: A Song of Ascents, Behold, bless ye the Lord, all ye servants of the Lord . . . Lift up your hands in holiness and bless ye the Lord.¹⁶ Blessed be the Lord Out of Zion, Who dwelleth at Jerusalem. Praise ye the Lord.¹⁷ But they should also say: The Lord bless thee out of Zion¹⁸ which occurs in that context! — Judah the son of R. Simeon b. Pazzi answered: Since he commenced with the blessings of the Holy One, blessed be He, he should conclude with His blessings. What do they say in the afternoon — service of a fast-day?¹⁹ — R. Aha b. Jacob declared: Though our iniquities testify against us, work Thou for Thy name's sake . . . O Thou hope of Israel, the Saviour thereof in the time of trouble, why shouldest Thou be as a sojourner in the land . . . Why shouldest Thou be as a man astonied, as a mighty man that cannot save? etc.²⁰

What do they say in the concluding service of the Day of Atonement?¹ — Mar Zutra declared — according to another version, there is a teaching to this effect — :Behold, thus shall the man be blessed that feareth the Lord. The Lord shall bless thee out of Zion, and thou shalt see the good of Jerusalem all the days of thy life. Yea, thou shalt see thy children's children. Peace be upon Israel.² Where did they say these verses? — R. Joseph answered: Between each benediction. R. Shesheth answered: At the mention of the Divine Name. R. Mari and R. Zebid differ on this matter; one said: A verse [by the congregation is to be recited] simultaneously with a verse [by the kohanim], while the other said, [The congregation recites] the whole for each verse [by the kohanim]. R. Hiyya b. Abba said: Whoever recites them outside the Temple simply errs.³ R. Hanina b. Papa said: Know that even in the Temple it is unnecessary to recite them; for is there a servant whom one blesses without his listening! R. Aha b. Hanina said: Know that even outside the Temple it is necessary to recite them; for is there a servant whom one blesses without his face brightening!⁴

R. Abbahu said: At first I used to recite them; but when I saw that R. Abba of Acco did not recite them I also did not. R. Abbahu also said: At first I used to think that I was humble; but when I saw R. Abba of Acco offer one explanation and his Amora⁵ offer another without his taking exception. I considered that I was not humble. How did R. Abbahu display humility? — The wife of R. Abbahu's Amora said to R. Abbahu's wife, 'My husband has no need of [instruction from] your husband; and when he bends down⁶ and straightens himself, he merely pays him respect'.⁷ R. Abbahu's wife went and reported this to him, and he said to her, 'Why worry about it? Through me and him the All-Highest is praised'. Further, the Rabbis decided to appoint R. Abbahu as principal [of the Academy]; but when he saw that R. Abba of Acco had numerous creditors [pressing for payment], he said to the Rabbis, 'There is a greater [scholar than I for the office]'. R. Abbahu and R. Hiyya b. Abba once came to a place; R. Abbahu expounded Aggada⁸ and R. Hiyya b. Abba expounded legal lore. All the people left R. Hiyya b. Abba and went to hear R. Abbahu, so that the former was upset. [R. Abbahu] said to him: 'I will give you a parable. To what is the matter like? To two men, one of whom was selling precious stones and the other various kinds of small ware. To whom will the people hurry? Is it not to the seller of various kinds of small ware?' Everyday R. Hiyya b. Abba used to accompany R. Abbahu to his lodging-place because he was esteemed by the Government; but on that day R. Abbahu accompanied R. Hiyya b. Abba to his lodging-place, and still his mind was not set at rest.

While the Precentor recites the paragraph 'We give thanks'⁹ what does the congregation say? — Rab declared: 'We give thanks unto Thee, O Lord our God, because we are able to give Thee thanks'. Samuel declared: 'God of all flesh, seeing that we give Thee thanks'. R. Simai declared: 'Our Creator and Creator of all things in the beginning, seeing that we give Thee thanks.' The men of Nehardea¹⁰ declared in the name of R. Simai: 'Blessings and thanksgiving to Thy great Name because Thou hast kept us alive and preserved us, seeing that we give Thee thanks'. R. Aha b. Jacob used to conclude thus: 'So mayest Thou continue to keep us alive and be gracious to us; and gather us together and assemble our exiles to Thy holy courts to observe Thy statutes and to do Thy will with a perfect heart, seeing that we give Thee thanks'. R. Papa said: Consequently let us recite them all.¹¹

R. Isaac said: Let respect for the congregation be always upon thee; for behold, the kohanim had their faces towards the people and their backs towards the Shechinah.¹² R. Nahman said: It is derived from this text: Then David the king stood up upon his feet and said: Hear me, my brethren and my people.¹³ If [he called them] 'my brethren' why 'my people', and vice versa? — R. Eleazar said: David told the Israelites, If you listen to me, you are my brethren; if not, you are my people and I will rule you with a rod. The Rabbis said: It is derived from the regulation that the kohanim are not permitted to ascend the platform wearing their shoes. This is one of the ten ordinances which R.

Johanan b. Zakkai instituted. What was the reason? Was it not out of respect for the congregation? — R. Ashi said: No; [the reason] there was lest the shoe-lace become untied and he proceeds to retie it, and people will say: 'He is the son of a divorcee or a Haluzah'.¹⁴

For what reason is this? — Because the response of Amen was not made in the Temple.

Our Rabbis taught: Whence is it that the response of Amen was not made in the Temple? As it is said: Stand up and bless the Lord your God from everlasting to everlasting.¹ And whence is it that every benediction must be followed by an expression of praise? As it is said: And blessed be Thy glorious name which is exalted above all blessing and praise² — i.e., upon every benediction ascribe praise to Him.

MISHNAH. WHAT WAS THE PROCEDURE WITH THE BENEDICTIONS OF THE HIGH PRIEST?³ THE SYNAGOGUE ATTENDANT TAKES A TORAH-SCROLL AND HANDS IT TO THE SYNAGOGUE-PRESIDENT. THE SYNAGOGUE-PRESIDENT HANDS IT TO THE DEPUTY⁴ AND HE HANDS IT TO THE HIGH PRIEST. THE HIGH PRIEST STANDS, RECEIVES [THE SCROLL] AND READS [THEREIN] AFTER THE DEATH⁵ AND HOWBEIT ON THE TENTH DAY.⁶ THEN HE ROLLS THE TORAH-SCROLL TOGETHER, PLACES IT IN HIS BOSOM AND EXCLAIMS, 'MORE THAN I HAVE READ BEFORE YOU IS WRITTEN HERE!' GEMARA. Is it to be deduced from this⁹ that honour may be paid to a disciple in the presence of his master? — Abaye said: [No]; all this was done for the purpose of honouring the High Priest.

THE HIGH PRIEST STANDS, RECEIVES [THE SCROLL] AND READS etc. [Since it is stated that] he stands, it follows that he had been sitting; but a Master has said: In the Temple-court the kings of the house of David alone were allowed to sit, as it is said: Then David the king went in, and sat before the Lord, and he said: Who am I? etc!’¹⁰ — It is as R. Hisda declared, [This occurred] in the Court of Women;¹¹ and here also [with the reading of the High Priest] it was in the Court of Women. An objection was raised: Where did the lection take place? In the Temple-court; R. Eliezer b. Jacob declares it was on the Temple Mount, as it is said,

(1) Neh. IX, 5. This was the response to be used in the Temple; not Amen. [No satisfactory reason has so far been given for this regulation. Graetz MGWJ 1872, pp. 492ff., suggests that this does not mean that the response Amen was not allowed in the Temple, but that the solemnity of its service, heightened by the pronunciation of the Tetragrammaton as written, demanded a more extensive and impressive formula than the single Amen. Talmud - Mas. Sotah 41a

And he read therein before the broad place that was before the water gate.¹ R. Hisda said: In the Court of Women.

AND READS [THEREIN] AFTER THE DEATH AND HOWBEIT ON THE TENTH DAY. I quote in contradiction: We may skip a passage in the Prophets but not in the Torah!² — Abaye said: There is no contradiction; the latter teaching refers to a case where the passage skipped is sufficiently long to interrupt the translator, whereas [in the Mishnah] it is not sufficiently long to interrupt the translator.³ On this point, however, it has been taught: We may skip a passage in the Prophets but not in the Torah. How much may be skipped [in the reading of the Prophets]? A passage which is not sufficiently long to interrupt the translator. Consequently so far as the Torah is concerned nothing at all [may be skipped]! — But Abaye said: There is no contradiction; the teaching [that we may skip a passage in the reading of the Torah] applies to where there is one theme,⁴ the other teaching to where there are two themes. Thus it has been taught: We may skip [a passage] in the Torah where there is one theme and in the Prophets where there are two themes, but in either case only when it is not sufficiently long to interrupt the translator. We may not, however, skip from one Prophetical Book to another; but with a book of the Minor Prophets⁵ we may skip [from one to another] except that this may not be done from the end of the Book to its beginning.⁶

THEN HE ROLLS THE TORAH-SCROLL TOGETHER, PLACES IT IN HIS BOSOM etc. Why all this?⁷ — So as not to discredit the Torah-Scroll.⁸

THE PASSAGE ‘ON THE TENTH DAY’, WHICH IS IN THE BOOK OF NUMBERS, HE READS BY HEART. Let him roll up the Scroll and recite [the passage]!⁹ — R. Huna b. Judah said in the name of R. Shesheth: Because we do not roll up a Torah-scroll in the presence of a congregation.¹⁰ Then let another Torah-scroll be brought and read [it therein]! — R. Huna b. Judah said: [No], because it would discredit the first.¹¹ R. Simeon b. Lakish said: Because we may not pronounce an unnecessary benediction.¹² Do we, then, pay attention to [the reason that it would] discredit [the first Scroll]? Behold, R. Isaac the smith said: When the new moon of Tebeth¹³ falls on the Sabbath, three Scrolls are brought: the first for the lection of the [Sabbath] day, the second for [the portion of] the new moon, and the third for [the portion of] Hanukkah!¹⁴ — When three men [read] in three Scrolls, there is no fear about [a Scroll] being discredited, but when one man [reads] in two Scrolls there is this fear.

AND HE RECITES EIGHT BENEDICTIONS IN CONNECTION THEREWITH etc. Our Rabbis taught: [The High Priest] pronounces a benediction over the Torah just as we do in Synagogue;¹⁵ for the Temple-service for the thanksgiving,¹⁶ and for the pardon of sin as usual;¹⁷ over the Temple separately,¹⁸ over the priests separately, over the Israelites separately — and over Jerusalem separately.

AND THE REST OF THE PRAYER. Our Rabbis taught: The rest of the prayer consists of petitions song and supplication that Thy people Israel is in need of salvation; and he concludes with, '[Blessed art Thou, O Lord,] Who hearkenest unto prayer.' From this point onward,¹⁹ each individual brings a Torah-scroll from his house and reads therein. For what purpose is this done? To display its beauty in public.²⁰ MISHNAH. WHAT WAS THE PROCEDURE IN CONNECTION WITH THE PORTION READ BY THE KING? AT THE CONCLUSION OF THE FIRST DAY OF THE FESTIVAL [OF TABERNACLES] IN THE EIGHTH,²¹ I.E., THE END OF THE SEVENTH,²² THEY ERECT A WOODEN DAIS IN THE TEMPLE COURT, UPON WHICH HE SITS; AS IT IS SAID, AT THE END OF EVERY SEVEN YEARS, IN THE SET TIME etc.²³ THE SYNAGOGUE-ATTENDANT²⁴ TAKES A TORAH-SCROLL AND HANDS IT TO THE SYNAGOGUE PRESIDENT,²⁵ AND THE SYNAGOGUE-PRESIDENT HANDS IT TO THE [HIGH PRIEST'S] DEPUTY. HE HANDS IT TO THE HIGH PRIEST WHO HANDS IT TO THE KING. THE KING STANDS AND RECEIVES IT, BUT READS SITTING. KING AGRIPPA²⁶ STOOD AND RECEIVED IT AND READ STANDING, FOR WHICH ACT THE SAGES PRAISED HIM. WHEN HE REACHED, THOU MAYEST NOT PUT A FOREIGNER OVER THEE,²⁷ HIS EYES RAN WITH TEARS.²⁸ THEY SAID TO HIM, 'FEAR NOT, AGRIPPA, THOU ART OUR BROTHER, THOU ART OUR BROTHER!' [THE KING] READS FROM THE BEGINNING OF DEUTERONOMY UP TO THE SHEMA',²⁹ THE SHEMA', AND IT SHALL COME TO PASS IF YE HEARKEN,³⁰ THOU SHALT SURELY TITHE,³¹ WHEN THOU HAST MADE AN END OF TITHING,³² THE PORTION OF THE KING,³³ AND THE BLESSINGS AND CURSES, UNTIL HE FINISHES ALL THE SECTION. THE KING PRONOUNCES THE SAME BENEDICTIONS AS THE HIGH PRIEST, EXCEPT THAT HE SUBSTITUTES ONE FOR THE FESTIVALS INSTEAD OF ONE FOR THE PARDON OF SIN. GEMARA. Does it enter your mind [that the Mishnah means] the eighth [day of the Festival]! — Read 'the eighth [year].'³⁴ But why all this?³⁵ — It is all necessary; for if the All-Merciful had only written 'at the end', I might have thought that the reckoning was to be from then³⁶ although they had not observed a year of release;³⁷ therefore the All-Merciful wrote in 'the year of release', If the All-Merciful had only written 'the year of release', I might have thought that this means the end of the year of release;³⁸ therefore the All-Merciful wrote 'in the set time.'³⁹ If He had only written 'in the set time', I might have thought that this means at the New Year festival; therefore the All-Merciful wrote 'in the feast of tabernacles'. And if the All-Merciful had only written 'in the feast of tabernacles', I might have thought that this means on the last day of the festival; therefore the All-Merciful wrote 'when all Israel is come'⁴⁰

, i.e., the beginning of the Festival.

THE SYNAGOGUE-ATTENDANT TAKES A TORAH-SCROLL AND HANDS IT TO THE SYNAGOGUE-PRESIDENT. Is it to be deduced from this that honour may be paid to a disciple in the presence of his master?¹ — Abaye said: [No]; all this was done for the purpose of honouring the king.

THE KING STANDS AND RECEIVES IT, BUT READS SITTING. KING AGRIPPA STOOD

AND RECEIVED IT AND READ STANDING. [Since it is stated that] he stands, it follows that he had been sitting. But a Master has said: In the Temple-court the kings of the House of David alone were allowed to sit; as it is said: Then David the king went in, and sat before the Lord, and he said etc.¹² — It is as R. Hisda declared: [This occurred] in the Court of Women, and here also [with the reading by the king] it was in the Court of Women. FOR WHICH ACT THE SAGES PRAISED HIM. Since they praised him, it follows that he acted rightly; but R. Ashi has said: Even according to him who maintains that when a Nasi³ forgoes the honour due to him one may avail himself of the permission, when a king forgoes the honour due to him one may not avail himself of the permission; as it is said: Thou shalt set a king over thee⁴ — that his authority⁵ may be over thee! — It is different [with the fulfilment of] a precept.⁶

WHEN HE REACHED 'THOU MAYEST NOT PUT [etc.]'. A Tanna taught in the name of R. Nathan: At that moment⁷ the enemies of Israel⁸ made themselves liable to extermination, because they flattered Agrippa. R. Simeon b. Halafta said: From the day the fist of flattery prevailed, justice became perverted, conduct deteriorated, and nobody could say to his neighbour, 'My conduct is better than yours'. R. Judah the Palestinian — another version, R. Simeon b. Pazzi — expounded: It is permitted to flatter the wicked in this world, as it is said: The vile person shall be no more called liberal, nor the churl said to be bountiful⁹ — consequently it is allowed in this world. R. Simeon b. Lakish said: [It may be derived] from this text: As one seeth the face of God, and thou wast pleased with me.¹⁰ On this point he is at variance with R. Levi; for R. Levi said: A parable of Jacob and Esau: To what is the matter like? To a man who invited his neighbour to a meal, and the latter perceived that he wished to kill him. So he said to him, 'The taste of this dish of which I am partaking is like the dish I tasted in the king's palace'. The other said [to himself]. 'He is acquainted with the king!' So he became afraid and did not kill him.¹¹ R. Eleazar said: Every man in whom is flattery brings anger upon the world: as it is said: But they that are flatterers at heart lay up anger.¹² Not only that, but their prayer remains unheard; as it continues, They cry not for help when He chasteneth them.¹³ (Mnemonic:¹⁴ Anger, embryo, Gehinnom, in his hand, menstruant, exile).

R. Eleazar also said: As for any man in whom is flattery, even the embryos in their mothers' wombs curse him; as it is said: He that saith unto the wicked, Thou art righteous, peoples shall curse him, nations shall abhor him¹⁵ — the word kob ['abhor'] means nothing but 'curse', as it is said: Whom God hath not cursed;¹⁶ and le'om [nation] means nothing but 'embryo', as it is said: And the one le'om [nation] shall be stronger than the other nation.¹⁷ R. Eleazar also said: Every man in whom is flattery will fall into Gehinnom; as it is said: Woe unto them that call evil good, and good evil etc.¹⁸ What is Written after that? Therefore as the tongue of fire devoureth the stubble, and as the dry grass sinketh down in the flame etc.¹⁹ R. Eleazar also said: Whoever flattereth his neighbour²⁰ will finally fall into his hand; if he does not fall into his hand, he will fall into the hand of his sons; and if he does not fall into his sons' hand, he will fall into the hand of his grandsons; as it is stated: And Jeremiah said to Hananiah, Amen; the Lord do so; the Lord perform thy words,²¹ and it is written,

And when he was in the gate of Benjamin, a captain of the ward was there, whose name was Irijah, the son of Shelemiah, the son of Hananiah,' and he laid hold on Jeremiah the prophet, saying: Thou fallest away to the Chaldeans. Then said Jeremiah, It is false,' I fall not away to the Chaldeans etc.,¹ and it continues, So he laid hold on Jeremiah and brought him to the princes.² R. Eleazar also said: Any community in which is flattery is as repulsive as a menstruant woman; as it is said: 'For the community of flatterers is galmud'³ — and in over-sea towns they call a menstruant woman galmudah. What means galmudah? — She is separated [gemulah da] from her husband. R. Eleazar also said: Any community in which is flattery will finally go into exile. It is written here, 'For the community of flatterers is galmud', and elsewhere it is written: Then shalt thou say in thine heart, Who hath gotten me these, seeing I have been bereaved of my children, and am solitary [galmudah], an exile and wandering to and fro etc.⁴

R. Jeremiah b. Abba said: Four classes will not receive the presence of the Shechinah: the class of scoffers, the class of flatterers, the class of liars, and, the class of slanderers. The class of scoffers, as it is written: He stretched out His hand against scorners.⁵ The class of flatterers, as it is written: For a flatterer shall not come before Him.⁶ The class of liars, as it is written: He that speaketh falsehood shall not be established before Mine eyes.⁷ The class of slanderers, as it is written: For Thou art not a God that hath pleasure in wickedness; evil shall not sojourn with Thee⁸ — i.e., Thou art righteous, O Lord, evil may not sojourn in Thy habitation.

CHAPTER VIII

MISHNAH. AT THE TIME WHEN THE ANOINTED FOR BATTLE⁹ ADDRESSES THE PEOPLE HE SPEAKS IN THE HOLY TONGUE, AS IT IS SAID, AND IT SHALL BE, WHEN YE DRAW NIGH UNTO THE BATTLE, THAT THE PRIEST SHALL APPROACH¹⁰ — I.E., THE ANOINTED FOR BATTLE; AND SPEAK UNTO THE PEOPLE — I.E., IN THE HOLY TONGUE; AND SHALL SAY UNTO THEM, HEAR, O ISRAEL, [YE DRAW NIGH THIS DAY UNTO BATTLE AGAINST YOUR ENEMIES]¹¹ — 'AGAINST YOUR ENEMIES' BUT NOT AGAINST YOUR BRETHREN, NOT JUDAH AGAINST SIMEON NOR SIMEON AGAINST BENJAMIN, SO THAT IF YOU¹² FALL INTO THEIR HAND THEY SHALL HAVE MERCY UPON YOU, AS IT IS SAID, AND THE MEN WHICH HAVE BEEN EXPRESSED BY NAME ROSE UP, AND TOOK THE CAPTIVES, AND WITH THE SPOIL CLOTHED ALL THAT WERE NAKED AMONG THEM, AND ARRAYED THEM, AND SHOD THEM, AND GAVE THEM TO EAT AND TO DRINK, AND ANOINTED THEM, AND CARRIED ALL THE FEEBLE OF THEM UPON ASSES, AND BROUGHT THEM TO JERICHO, THE CITY OF PALM TREES, UNTO THEIR BRETHREN; THEN THEY RETURNED TO SAMARIA ETC.¹³ AGAINST YOUR ENEMIES DO YOU MARCH, SO THAT IF YOU FALL INTO THEIR HAND THEY WILL HAVE NO MERCY UPON YOU. LET NOT YOUR HEART FAINT; FEAR NOT NOR TREMBLE ETC.¹⁴ — 'LET NOT YOUR HEART FAINT' AT THE NEIGHING OF THE HORSES AND THE BRANDISHING OF SWORDS; 'FEAR NOT' BECAUSE OF THE CRASH

OF SHIELDS AND THE TRAMP OF THE SOLDIERS' FOOTWEAR; — 'NOR TREMBLE' AT THE SOUND OF TRUMPETS; 'NEITHER BE YE AFFRIGHTED' AT THE SOUND OF BATTLE-CRIES. FOR THE LORD YOUR GOD IS HE THAT GOETH WITH YOU¹⁵ THEY COME [RELYING] UPON THE MIGHT OF FLESH AND BLOOD, BUT YOU COME [RELYING] UPON THE MIGHT OF THE ALL-PRESENT. THE PHILISTINES CAME [RELYING] UPON THE MIGHT OF GOLIATH; BUT WHAT WAS HIS FATE? IN THE END HE FELL BY THE SWORD AND THEY FELL WITH HIM. THE AMMONITES CAME [RELYING] UPON THE MIGHT OF SHOBACH;¹⁶ BUT WHAT WAS HIS FATE? IN THE END HE FELL BY THE SWORD AND THEY FELL WITH HIM. BUT WITH YOU IT IS OTHERWISE; 'FOR THE LORD YOUR GOD IS HE THAT GOETH WITH YOU TO FIGHT WITH YOU ETC.' [THIS ALLUDES TO] THE CAMP OF THE ARK.¹⁷

GEMARA. How does [the author of the Mishnah] prove his point?¹⁸ — He proves it thus: It is stated in this connection 'and speak', and elsewhere it states: Moses spake, and God answered him by a voice;¹⁹ as in the latter passage it was in the holy tongue, so also in the former it was in the holy tongue.

Our Rabbis taught: The priest shall approach and speak unto the people.²⁰ It is possible to think that any priest who so desires [may address them]; therefore there is a text to state, And the officers shall speak²¹ — as the officers must have been appointed so must the priest have been appointed [for the purpose]. But I might say that it is the High Priest [who addresses them]! — It is analogous to the case of an officer; as an officer has a superior appointed over him,²² so also the priest [who addresses the people] has a superior appointed over him.²³ But the High Priest likewise [has a superior over him]. viz., the king! — He is referring to his service.²⁴ But I might say that it is the deputy High Priest [who addresses them]!²⁵ — The deputy High Priest is not considered appointed; as it has been taught: R. Hanina, the deputy of the priests,²⁶ said: For what is the priests' deputy appointed? If any disqualification should occur to the High Priest, he enters and functions in his stead.²⁷

'And shall say unto them, Hear, O Israel'. Why must he just [open with the words] 'Hear, O Israel'? — R. Johanan said in the name of R. Simeon b. Yohai: The Holy One, blessed be He, said to Israel, Even if you only fulfilled morning and evening the commandment to recite the Shema',²⁸ you will not be delivered into [the enemy's] hand.

'Let not your heart faint; fear not' etc. Our Rabbis taught: He addresses them twice: once on the boundary²⁹ and once on the battle-field. What does he say on the boundary?

Talmud - Mas. Sotah 42b

'Hear the words of the War-regulations and return home'.¹ What does he say to them on the battle-field? 'Let not your heart faint; fear not, nor tremble, neither be ye affrighted'. [These four expressions] correspond to the four means adopted by the nations of the world [to terrorise the enemy]: they crash [their shields], sound [trumpets], shout [battle-cries] and trample [with their horses].

THE PHILISTINES CAME [RELYING] UPON THE MIGHT OF GOLIATH etc. Goliath [was so named], said R. Johanan, because he stood with affrontery [gilluy panim] before the Holy One, blessed be He; as it is said: Choose you a man for you, and let him come down to me.² The word 'man' signifies none other than the Holy One, blessed be He, as it is said: The Lord is a man of war.³ The Holy One, blessed be He, declared: Behold, I will bring about his downfall through the hand of a son of man; as it is said: David was the son of that man of Ephrath.⁴

R. Johanan said in the name of R. Meir: In three places did his mouth trap that wicked man:⁵ first, 'Choose you a man for you, and let him come down to me';² second, 'If he be able to fight with me, and kill me etc.,'⁶ and third, 'Am I a dog, that thou comest to me with staves?'⁷ David likewise replied to him, Thou contest to me with a sword, and with a spear, and with a javelin;⁸ and he continued, But, I come to thee in the name of the Lord of hosts, the God of the armies of Israel, which thou hast defied.⁸

And the Philistine drew near morning and evening.⁹ R. Johanan said: To make them omit the recital of the Shema' morning and evening.

And presented himself forty days.⁹ R. Johanan said: [The period] corresponds to the forty days in which the Torah was given.¹⁰

And there went out a champion [benayim] out of the camp of the Philistines etc.¹¹ What means 'benayim'? — Rab said: That he was built up [mebunneh] without any blemish. Samuel said: He was the middle one [benoni] of his brothers.¹² In the School of R. Shila they explained: He was made like a building [binyan]. R. Johanan said: He was the son of a hundred fathers and one mother [ben nane].¹³ 'Named Goliath of Gath' — R. Joseph learnt: [He is so described] because all men pressed his mother like a wine-press [gath].

The text has ma'aroth¹⁴ but we read the word as ma'arkoth! R. Joseph learnt: Because all had intercourse [he'eru] with his mother. The text has Harafah and also Orpah!¹⁵ — Rab and Samuel [differ in their interpretation]. One said that her name was Harafah and why was she called Orpah?

Because all had intercourse with her from the rear 'orfin] — The other said: Her name was Orpah; and why was she called Harafah? Because all ground her like a bruised corn [harifoth]. Thus it states: And the woman took and spread the covering over the well's mouth and strewed harifoth [bruised corn] thereon.¹⁶ If you like, I can derive [the meaning of harifoth] from this verse: Though thou shouldest bray a fool in a mortar with a pestle among harifoth [bruised corn].¹⁷

These four were born to Harafah in Gath; and they fell by the hand of David, and by the hand of his servants.¹⁸ Who were they? — R. Hisda said: Saph, Madon, Goliath and Ishbi-benob.¹⁹ 'And they fell by the hand of David, and by the hand of his servants', as it is written: And Orpah kissed her mother-in-law, but Ruth clave unto her.²⁰ R. Isaac said: The Holy One, blessed be He, spake, May the sons of the one who kissed²¹ come and fall by the hand of the sons of the one who clave.

Raba expounded: As a reward for the four tears which Orpah dropped upon her mother-in-law, she merited that four mighty warriors should issue from her; as it is said: And they lifted up their voice and wept again.²²

The text further has hez [the arrow] of his spear but we read 'ez [the staff] of his spear!²³ — R. Eleazar said: [It indicates that] we have not reached half [hazi] the praise of that wicked man.²⁴ Hence [it is learnt] that it is forbidden to recount the praise of the wicked. Then [Scripture] should not have begun to recount it at all! — [The object] is to proclaim the praise of David [who conquered such a giant].

THE AMMONITES CAME [RELYING] UPON THE MIGHT OF SHOBACH etc. [The name] is written Shobach and also Shofach!²⁵ — Rab and Samuel [differ in their interpretation]. One said that his name was Shofach; and why was he called Shobach? Because he was made like a dove-cote [shobak].²⁶ The other said that his name was Shobach; and why was he called Shofach? Because whoever beheld him was [through terror] poured out [nishpak] before him like a ewer. Their quiver ['ashpah] is an open sepulchre, they are all mighty men.²⁷ Rab and Samuel [differ in their interpretation]; another version is, R. Ammi and R. Assi [differ in their interpretation]. One said: At the time when they shot an arrow they made heaps upon heaps [ashpatoth] of slain; and should you say that this was only because they were only skilled in fighting, there is a text to state, They are all mighty men.²⁸ The other said: At the time when they relieved themselves they made heaps and heaps of excrement; and should you say that this was due to disorder of the bowels, there is a text to state, They are all mighty men.²⁹ R. Mari said: Infer from this that whoever has excessive excrement suffers from disorder of the bowels. What is the practical purpose of this? — He should take steps [to cure himself].

Heaviness in the heart of a man maketh it stoop [yashhennah].³⁰ — R. Ammi and R. Assi [differ in their interpretation]. One said, [The last word means], let him dismiss it [yissehennah] from his mind; the other said, [it means], let him talk of it [yesihenah] with others.

were deposited in the ark. Thus it states: And Moses sent them, a thousand of every tribe, to the war, them and Phinehas¹ — 'them' refers to the Sanhedrin; 'Phinehas' was the [priest] Anointed for Battle; 'with the vessels of the sanctuary' i.e., the ark and the tablets [of the decalogue] which were in it; 'and the trumpets for the alarm' i.e., the horns.² — A Tanna taught: Not for naught did Phinehas go to the battle [against Midian] but to exact judgment on behalf of his mother's father [Joseph]; as it is said: And the Midianites sold him into Egypt etc.³ Is this to say that Phinehas was a descendant of Joseph? But behold it is written: And Eleazar Aaron's son took him one of the daughters of Putiel to wife; [and she bare him Phinehas]!⁴ Is it not to be supposed, then, that he was a descendant of Jethro who fattened [pittem]⁵ calves for idolatry? — No; [he was a descendant] of Joseph⁶ who mastered [pitpet] his passion. But did not the other tribes despise him⁷ [saying], 'Look at this son of Puti, the son whose mother's father fattened calves for idolatry; he killed a prince in Israel!'⁸ But, if his mother's father was descended from Joseph, then his mother's mother was descended from Jethro; and if his mother's mother was descended from Joseph, then his mother's father was descended from Jethro. This is also proved as a conclusion from what is written: 'One of the daughters of Putiel', from which are to be inferred two [lines of ancestry].⁹ Draw this conclusion.

ALL THESE HEAR THE PRIEST'S WORDS CONCERNING THE WAR-REGULATIONS AND RETURN HOME; BUT THEY SUPPLY WATER AND FOOD AND REPAIR THE ROADS [FOR THE ARMY].

THE FOLLOWING DO NOT RETURN HOME: HE WHO BUILT A LODGE,¹⁹ A LOGGIA OR A VERANDAH; HE WHO PLANTED FOUR FRUIT-TREES OR FIVE TREES WHICH ARE NOT FRUIT-BEARING; HE WHO TOOK BACK HIS DIVORCED WIFE. IF A HIGH PRIEST MARRIED A WIDOW, OR AN ORDINARY PRIEST MARRIED A DIVORCEE OR A HALUZAH,²⁰ OR A LAY ISRAELITE MARRIED AN ILLEGITIMATE OR A NETHINAH,²¹ OR THE DAUGHTER OF AN ISRAELITE MARRIED AN ILLEGITIMATE OR A NATHIN, HE DOES NOT RETURN HOME.²² R. JUDAH SAYS: ALSO HE WHO REBUILT A HOUSE UPON ITS FOUNDATIONS DOES NOT RETURN HOME. R. ELIEZER SAYS: ALSO HE WHO BUILT A BRICK-HOUSE IN SHARON²³ DOES NOT RETURN HOME.

THE FOLLOWING DO NOT MOVE FROM THEIR PLACE:²⁴ HE WHO BUILT A NEW HOUSE AND DEDICATED IT, PLANTED A VINEYARD AND USED ITS FRUIT, MARRIED HIS BETROTHED, OR TOOK HOME HIS BROTHER'S CHILDLESS WIDOW; AS IT IS SAID, HE SHALL BE FREE AT HOME ONE YEAR²⁵ — 'AT HOME,' THIS REFERS TO HIS HOUSE; 'SHALL BE' REFERS TO HIS VINEYARD; 'AND SHALL CHEER HIS WIFE' REFERS TO HIS WIFE; WHICH HE HATH TAKEN' IS TO INCLUDE HIS BROTHER'S CHILDLESS WIDOW. THESE DO NOT SUPPLY WATER AND FOOD AND REPAIR THE ROADS [FOR THE ARMY]. GEMARA. Our Rabbis taught: 'And the officers shall speak' — it is possible to think that this refers to their own words;²⁶ but when it states: And the officers shall speak further,²⁷ behold this is to be understood as their own words; so how am I to explain 'And the officers shall speak'? Scripture alludes to the words of the priest Anointed for Battle. So what was the procedure? A priest speaks [the words] and an officer proclaims them [to the army]. One [authority] taught: A priest speaks [the words] and an officer proclaims them; another taught: A priest speaks [the words] and a priest proclaims them; while yet another taught: An officer speaks [the words] and an officer proclaims them! — Abaye said: What, then, was the procedure? From 'when ye draw nigh' down to 'and the officers shall speak'²⁸ a priest speaks and a priest proclaims. From 'and the officers shall speak' down to 'and the officers shall speak further'²⁹ a priest speaks and an officer proclaims. From 'and the officers shall speak' onwards an officer speaks and an officer proclaims.

WHAT MAN IS THERE THAT HATH BUILT A NEW HOUSE? etc. Our Rabbis taught: 'That hath built' — I have here only the case where he built; whence is it [that the law applies also to a case where] he purchased, inherited or somebody gave it to him as a present? There is a text to state, What man is there that hath built a house.³⁰ I have here only the case of a house; whence is it that it includes a barn for straw, a stable for cattle, a shed for wood and a storehouse? There is a text to state 'that hath built' — i.e., whatever [structure be erected]. It is possible to imagine that I am also to include one who built a lodge, loggia or verandah; there is a text to state 'a house' — as 'house' implies a place suitable for habitation so every [building for which exemption may be claimed must be] suitable for habitation. R. Eliezer b. Jacob says: [The word] 'house' [is to be interpreted] according to its usual definition; [and the fact that Scripture does not read] 'and hath not dedicated' but and hath not dedicated it³¹ is to exclude a robber.³² Is this to say that [this teaching] is not in agreement with that of R. Jose the Galilean?³³ For if it agreed with R. Jose the Galilean, behold he has said: Fainthearted³⁴ i.e., he who is afraid because of the transgressions he had committed!¹ — You may even say that it agrees with R. Jose the Galilean, as, e.g., when the man had repented and restored the monetary value. But in that event he becomes the purchaser, and as such returns home! — Since it originally came into his possession as the result of robbery, he does not [return home].

AND WHAT MAN IS THERE THAT HATH PLANTED A VINEYARD? etc. Our Rabbis taught: 'That hath planted' — I have here only the case where he planted; whence is it [that the law applies also to a case where] he purchased, inherited or somebody gave it to him as a present? There is a text to state, And what man is there that hath planted a vineyard. I have here only the case of a vineyard; whence is it that it includes five fruit-trees and even of other kinds [of plantings]? There is a text to state 'that hath planted'. It is possible to think that I am also to include one who planted four fruit-trees or five trees which are not fruit-bearing; therefore there is a text to state 'a vineyard'. R. Eliezer says: [The word] 'vineyard' [is to be interpreted] according to its usual definition; [and the fact that Scripture does not read] 'one hath not used the fruit' but 'and hath not used the fruit thereof is to exclude one who bends or grafts [the vine]. But we have the teaching: IT IS ALL ONE WHETHER HE PLANTED, BENT OR GRAFTED IT! — R. Zera said in the name of R. Hisda: There is no contradiction, the latter referring to a permitted grafting and the former to a prohibited grafting.² What is an instance of this permitted grafting? If I say a young shoot on a young shoot, it follows that he ought to return home on account of [planting] the first young shoot! It must therefore be [grafting] a young shoot on an old stem. But R. Abbahu has said: If he grafted a young shoot on an old stem, the young shoot is annulled by the old stem and the law of 'orlah³ does not apply to it! — R. Jeremiah said: It certainly refers to a young shoot on a young shoot, and [the case of a permitted grafting is where], e.g., he planted the first [stem] for a hedge or for timber; as we have learnt: He who plants for a hedge or for timber is exempt from the law of 'orlah.⁴

What is the distinction that a young shoot is annulled [when grafted] on an old stem⁵ but not [when grafted] on a young shoot?⁶

In the former case if he reconsiders his intention with regard to it, it is incapable of retraction;⁷ but in the latter case if he reconsiders his intention with regard to it, it is capable of retraction⁸ since it is then analogous to [plants which] grow of themselves;⁹ for we have learnt: When they grow of themselves they are liable to 'orlah. But let him explain [the Mishnah¹⁰ as dealing with] the case of a vineyard belonging to two partners, where each returns home on account of his own [grafting]!¹¹ — R. Papa declared: This is to say that in the case of a vineyard belonging to two partners, the war-regulations do not apply to it.¹² Why, then, is it different with five brothers, one of whom dies in battle,¹³ that they all return home? — In the latter illustration we apply the words 'his wife' to each one of them;¹⁴ but in the other we cannot apply the words 'his vineyard' to each one of them.¹⁵

R. Nahman b. Isaac said: [The Mishnah deals with the] case where he grafted¹⁶ a tree into vegetables, and this accords with the view of the teacher responsible for the following teaching: If one bends¹⁷ a tree into vegetables — Rabban Simeon b. Gamaliel allows it in the name of R. Judah b. Gamda of Kefar Acco,¹⁸ but the Sages forbid it. When R. Dimi came [from Palestine to Babylon] he reported in the name of R. Johanan, Whose teaching is it?¹⁹ It is that of R. Eliezer b. Jacob. Did not R. Eliezer b. Jacob declare above, The word 'vineyard' [is to be interpreted] according to its usual definition? So here also 'planted' [is to be interpreted] according to its usual definition; hence if he planted he does [return home], but if he bends or grafts he does not.²⁰

When R. Dimi came he reported that R. Johanan said in the name of R. Eliezer b. Jacob: A young shoot less than a handbreadth in height is liable for 'orlah so long as it appears to be a year old;²¹ but this only applies where there are two plants with two other plants parallel to them and one in front.²² Should, however, the entire vineyard [consist of such shoots], then it is talked about.²³

When R. Dimi came he reported that R. Johanan said in the name of R. Eliezer b. Jacob: A dead body affects four cubits with respect to the recital of the shema',²⁴ as it is said: Whoso mocketh the poor reproacheth his Maker.²⁵ R. Isaac declared that R. Johanan said in the name of R. Eliezer b. Jacob: A step-daughter reared with her [step-] brothers is forbidden to marry one of them because she appears to be their sister. But this is not so since the relationship is generally known.²⁶

R. Isaac also declared that R. Johanan said in the name of R. Eliezer b. Jacob: If gleanings, forgotten sheaves and the corner of the field²⁷ are gathered into a barn, they become subject to the tithe.²⁸ 'Ulla said: He only intended this to refer to a rural district, but in the city the fact [that the owner is a poor man who collected the produce from the fields of others] is generally known.

R. Isaac also declared that R. Johanan said in the name of R. Eliezer b. Jacob: A shoot which is less than a handbreadth in height does not make the seeds forfeit;²⁹ but this only applies when there are two plants with two other plants parallel to them and one in front. Should, however, the entire vineyard [consist of such shoots] it does make [the seeds] forfeit.

R. Isaac also declared that R. Johanan said in the name of R. Eliezer b. Jacob:

- (1) Consequently a robber may return home.
 - (2) Two different species.
 - (3) Lit., 'circumcision', the Law of Lev. XIX, 23 forbidding the enjoyment of the fruit of a tree during the first three years of growth. Since this regulation does not apply to a young shoot grafted on an old stem, it is not regarded as a new planting.
 - (4) And similarly he would not have to return on account of it.
 - (5) And its fruit is not subject to 'orlah.
 - (6) [Since it has been stated that one returns on account of a young shoot grafted on to another which has been planted for timber.]
 - (7) An old stem can never become young again, consequently the young shoot grafted to it becomes annulled.
 - (8) The planter can change his mind within the first three years, and determine the purpose of the young shoot, originally grafted for timber, to be for fruit, so that it becomes itself subject to 'orlah.
 - (9) And at the time of their plantation there was no definite purpose in the mind of the planter whether it was for fruit or timber.
 - (10) Which rules that one returns on account of grafting.
 - (11) [Instead of the far-fetched circumstance where the first young shoot was planted for timber.]
 - (12) Lit., 'they do not return on account of it from the army'. The partners do not have exemption for a new planting or grafting which belongs to them jointly, so that the Mishnah cannot deal with such a case.
 - (13) Leaving no offspring so that his wife is due to marry one of his brothers.
 - (14) Since it is not determined which one will marry her.
 - (15) Because it belongs to them jointly.
 - (16) [So Rashi. Rabina is answering the question in the Mishnah exempting one who grafts, cur. edd: 'bent'.]
 - (17) [Tosef. Kil. I, has 'grafts'.]
 - (18) [Being a permissible grafting it exempts the owner.]
 - (19) Viz., the statement above: is to exclude one who bends or grafts (the vine).
 - (20) [Even in a permissible case of bending or grafting.]
 - (21) Because if he uses its fruit, it might seem to others that he was doing what was forbidden.
 - (22) Five plants so arranged are considered a vineyard, to which all agree that the law of 'orlah applies, v. Ber. 35a.
 - (23) It is generally known that the vineyard has this peculiarity, and he may use the fruit.
 - (24) It may not be recited within the four cubits.
 - (25) Prov. XVII, 5. To perform a precept near a corpse is to deride it, since it is denied the privilege.
 - (26) That they have neither father or mother in common.
 - (27) V. Lev. XIX, 9f. and Deut. XXIV, 19.
 - (28) Because people may think that it is the produce of the man's field.
 - (29) Under the law forbidding mixture; v. Deut. XXII, 9.

Talmud - Mas. Sotah 44a

A dead body affects four cubits with respect to communicating defilement.¹ Similarly teaches a Tanna: With a fore-court of a burial vault,² whoever stands within it is clean, provided there is in it a space of four cubits.³ Such is the statement of Beth Shammai; but Beth Hillel declare, [A space of] four handbreadths'.³ When does this⁴ apply? If the entrance is from above; but if the entrance is from the side,⁵ all agree that [a space of] four cubits [is necessary]. This should be just the reverse!⁶ On the contrary, when [the entrance is] from the side, he merely steps aside and goes out; but when it is from above it is impossible for him to avoid forming a cover!⁷ — But read thus: when does [the statement of Beth Hillel] apply? To [a vault] whose entrance is from the side; but if the entrance is from above [a space of] four cubits [is necessary].⁸ Now [the teaching that one is clean who stands therein] only holds good of a fore-court of a burial vault where the partitions [between the graves and the fore-court] are distinctly marked, but a corpse in general affects four cubits.⁹

AND WHAT MAN IS THERE THAT HATH BETROTHED A WIFE? etc. Our Rabbis taught: 'That hath betrothed' — it is all one whether he betrothed a virgin or a widow or a childless widow waiting for her brother-in-law; and even when there are five brothers, one of whom died in battle, they all return home.¹⁰ [The fact that Scripture does not read] 'and hath not taken' but 'and hath not taken her' is to exclude a High Priest who married a widow, an ordinary priest who married a divorcee or a Haluzah, a lay Israelite who married an illegitimate or a Nethinah, or a daughter of an Israelite married to an illegitimate or a Nathin. Is this to say that [this teaching is] not in agreement with R. Jose the Galilean? For if it agreed with R. Jose the Galilean, behold he has said: 'Fainthearted' i.e., he who is afraid because of the transgressions he had committed!¹¹ — You may even say that it agrees with R. Jose the Galilean, and it is in accord with Rabbah; for Rabbah said: He is certainly not guilty until he has cohabited with her. For what is the reason [of the prohibition] shall he not take?¹² So that he shall not profane [his seed].¹³ Hence he does not receive the punishment of lashes¹⁴ until he has cohabited with her. Our Rabbis taught: [The order of the phrases is] 'that hath built', 'that hath planted', 'that hath betrothed'. The Torah has thus taught a rule of conduct: that a man should build a house, plant a vineyard and then marry a wife. Similarly declared Solomon in his wisdom, Prepare thy work without, and make it ready for thee in the field, and afterwards build thine house¹⁵ — 'prepare thy work without', i.e., a dwelling place; 'and make it ready for thee in the field', i.e., a vineyard; 'and afterwards build thine house', i.e., a wife. Another interpretation is: 'prepare thy work without', i.e., Scripture; 'and make it ready for thee in the field', i.e., Mishnah; 'and afterwards build thine house', i.e., Gemara. Another explanation is: 'prepare thy work without', i.e., Scripture and Mishnah; 'and make it ready for thee in the field', i.e., Gemara; 'and afterwards build thine house,' i.e., good deeds. R. Eliezer, son of R. Jose the Galilean says: 'Prepare thy work without,' i.e., Scripture: Mishnah and Gemara; 'and make it ready for thee in the field,' i.e., good deeds; 'and afterwards build thine house,' i.e., make research [in the Torah] and receive the reward.

THE FOLLOWING DO NOT RETURN HOME: HE WHO BUILT A LODGE etc. A Tanna taught: If [when rebuilding the house] he adds a row [of fresh bricks] to it, he does return home.¹⁶

R. ELIEZER SAYS: ALSO HE WHO BUILT A BRICK-HOUSE IN SHARON DOES NOT RETURN HOME. A Tanna taught: [The reason is] because they have to renew it twice in a period of seven years.

THE FOLLOWING DO NOT MOVE FROM THEIR PLACE: HE WHO BUILT A NEW HOUSE AND DEDICATED IT etc. Our Rabbis taught: A new wife¹⁷ — I have here only 'a new wife'; whence is it [that the law applies also to] a widow and divorcee? There is a text to state 'wife', i.e., in every case. Why, however, does the text state 'a new wife'? [It means] one who is new to him, thus excluding the case of a man who takes back his divorced wife, since she is not new to him.

Our Rabbis taught: He shall not go out in the host¹⁸ — and it is possible to think that he does not go out in the host, but he supplies water and food and repairs the roads [for the army]; therefore there is a text to state, 'Neither shall he be charged with any business'. It is possible to think that I am also to include [among those who do not move from their place] the man who built a house but did not dedicate it, or planted a vineyard and did not use its fruit, or betrothed a wife but did not take her; therefore there is a text to state, 'Neither shall he be charged' — but you may charge others.¹⁹ Since, however, it is written 'Neither shall he be charged', what is the purpose of 'He shall not go out in the host'?²⁰ So that a transgression of the Law should involve two prohibitions.

MISHNAH. AND THE OFFICERS SHALL SPEAK FURTHER UNTO THE PEOPLE ETC.²¹ R. AKIBA SAYS: 'FEARFUL AND FAINTHEARTED' IS TO BE UNDERSTOOD LITERALLY VIZ., HE IS UNABLE TO STAND IN THE BATTLE-RANKS AND SEE A DRAWN SWORD. R. JOSE THE GALILEAN SAYS: 'FEARFUL AND FAINTHEARTED' ALLUDES TO ONE WHO IS AFRAID BECAUSE OF THE TRANSGRESSIONS HE HAD COMMITTED; THEREFORE THE TORAH CONNECTED ALL THESE²² WITH HIM THAT HE MAY RETURN HOME ON THEIR ACCOUNT.²³ R. JOSE SAYS: A HIGH PRIEST WHO MARRIED A WIDOW, AN ORDINARY PRIEST WHO MARRIED A DIVORCEE OR HALUZAH, A LAY ISRAELITE WHO MARRIED AN ILLEGITIMATE OR NETHINAH, AND THE DAUGHTER OF AN ISRAELITE WHO MARRIED AN ILLEGITIMATE OR A NATHIN-BEHOLD SUCH AN ONE IS 'FEARFUL AND FAINTHEARTED'.²⁴

AND IT SHALL BE, WHEN THE OFFICERS HAVE MADE AN END OF SPEAKING UNTO THE PEOPLE, THAT THEY SHALL APPOINT CAPTAINS OF HOSTS AT THE HEAD OF THE PEOPLE.²⁵ AND AT THE REAR OF THE PEOPLE THEY STATION GUARDS IN FRONT OF THEM AND OTHERS BEHIND THEM, WITH IRON AXES IN THEIR HANDS, AND SHOULD ANYONE WISH TO FLEE, THEY HAVE PERMISSION TO SMITE HIS THIGHS,

(6) Viz., that when the entrance is from the side the requirement should be less strict.

(7) When he climbs up to get out he may put his hands upon the graves; therefore a larger space should be required since the probability of contracting defilement is greater.

(8) [This is the end of the cited Mishnah Oh. XV, 8. What follows is from a Baraita another version of which is to be found in Tosef. Oh. XV.]

(22) Those who had exemption because of a new house etc.

(23) Otherwise anyone who claimed exemption because of sinfulness had to expose himself publicly as a transgressor.

(24) The difference in the point of view of R. Jose the Galilean and R. Jose will be explained in the Gemara.

(25) Deut. XX, 9.

BECAUSE THE BEGINNING OF FLIGHT IS FALLING,¹ AS IT IS SAID, ISRAEL IS FLED BEFORE THE PHILISTINES, AND THERE HATH BEEN A GREAT SLAUGHTER AMONG THE PEOPLE;² AND FURTHER ON IT STATES, AND THE MEN OF ISRAEL FLED FROM BEFORE THE PHILISTINES AND FELL DOWN SLAIN ETC.³

TO WHAT DOES ALL THE FOREGOING APPLY? TO VOLUNTARY WARS, BUT IN THE WARS COMMANDED BY THE TORAH⁴ ALL GO FORTH EVEN A BRIDEGROOM FROM HIS CHAMBER AND A BRIDE FROM HER CANOPY.⁵ R. JUDAH SAYS: TO WHAT DOES ALL THE FOREGOING APPLY? TO THE WARS COMMANDED BY THE TORAH; BUT IN OBLIGATORY WARS⁶ ALL GO FORTH, EVEN A BRIDEGROOM FROM HIS CHAMBER AND A BRIDE FROM HER CANOPY.

GEMARA. What is the difference between R. Jose and R. Jose the Galilean?⁷ — The issue between them is the transgression of a Rabbinical ordinance.⁸ With whom does the following teaching accord: He who speaks between [donning] one phylactery and the other⁹ has committed a transgression and returns home under the war-regulations? With whom [does it accord]? With R. Jose the Galilean. Who is the Tanna of the following: Our Rabbis taught: If he heard the sound of trumpets and was terror-stricken, or the crash of shields and was terror-stricken, or [beheld] the brandishing of swords and the urine discharged itself upon his knees, he returns home? With whom [does it accord]? Are we to say that it is with R. Akiba and not R. Jose the Galilean?¹⁰ — In such a circumstance even R. Jose the Galilean admits [that he returns home], because it is written: Lest his brethren's heart melt as his heart.¹¹

AND IT SHALL BE, WHEN THE OFFICERS HAVE MADE AN END etc. The phrase, BECAUSE THE BEGINNING OF FLIGHT IS FALLING should be, 'because falling is the beginning of flight'! Read [in the Mishnah]: Because falling is the beginning of flight.

TO WHAT DOES ALL THE FOREGOING APPLY? TO VOLUNTARY WARS etc. R. Johanan said: [A war] which is [designated] voluntary according to the Rabbis is commanded according to R. Judah,¹² and [a war] which is [designated] commanded according to the Rabbis is obligatory according to R. Judah.¹³ Raba said:¹⁴ The wars waged by Joshua to conquer [Canaan] were obligatory in the opinion of all; the wars waged by the House of David for territorial expansion were voluntary in the opinion of all; where they differ is with regard to [wars] against heathens so that these should not march against them. One¹⁵ calls them commanded and the other voluntary, the practical issue being that one who is engaged in the performance of a commandment is exempt from the performance of another commandment.¹⁶

CHAPTER IX

MISHNAH. [THE DECLARATION OVER] THE HEIFER WHOSE NECK IS TO BE BROKEN MUST BE IN THE HOLY TONGUE; AS IT IS SAID, IF ONE BE FOUND SLAIN IN THE EARTH . . . THEN THY ELDERS AND THY JUDGES SHALL COME FORTH.¹⁷ THREE USED TO GO FORTH FROM THE SUPREME COURT IN JERUSALEM; R. JUDAH SAYS: FIVE, AS IT IS STATED, THY ELDERS, I.E., TWO, 'AND THY JUDGES' I.E., TWO, AND SINCE A COURT OF JUSTICE CANNOT CONSIST OF AN EVEN NUMBER, THEY ADD ONE MORE.

IF [THE CORPSE] WAS FOUND HIDDEN IN A HEAP OF STONES, OR HANGING ON A TREE, OR FLOATING UPON THE SURFACE OF THE WATER, THEY DO NOT BREAK [A HEIFER'S NECK]. BECAUSE IT IS STATED, 'IN THE EARTH' — AND NOT HIDDEN IN A HEAP OF STONES, NOR HANGING ON A TREE IN A FIELD, NOR FLOATING UPON THE SURFACE OF THE WATER. IF IT WAS FOUND NEAR TO THE FRONTIER, OR A CITY THE MAJORITY OF WHOSE INHABITANTS WERE HEATHENS, OR A CITY IN WHICH THERE IS NO COURT OF JUSTICE, THEY DO NOT BREAK [A HEIFER'S NECK]. THEY ONLY MEASURE¹⁸ THE DISTANCE TO A CITY IN WHICH THERE IS A COURT OF JUSTICE.

GEMARA. How does [the author of the Mishnah] prove his point?¹⁹ — R. Abbahu said: This is what he intends: It is stated: And they shall answer and say²⁰ and elsewhere it is stated: And the Levites shall answer and say etc.,²¹ as the answering mentioned in this latter passage was in the holy tongue, so here also it was in the holy tongue, and as to the procedure in the ceremony of the heifer whose neck was to be broken — IF ONE BE FOUND SLAIN IN THE EARTH . . . THEN THY ELDERS AND THY JUDGES SHALL COME FORTH. THREE USED TO GO FORTH FROM THE SUPREME COURT IN JERUSALEM; R. JUDAH SAYS: FIVE etc.

Our²² Rabbis taught: 'Then thy elders and thy judges shall come forth' — 'thy elders', i.e., two, 'and thy judges', i.e., two, and since a Court of justice cannot consist of an even number, they add one more; hence there were five. Such is the statement of R. Judah; but R. Simeon says: 'Thy elders', i.e., two, and since a Court of Justice cannot consist of an even number, they add one more; hence there were three. But for R. Simeon also it is written 'and thy judges'! — He requires that for [the teaching that they must be] the most distinguished of thy judges. And [where does] R. Judah [derive the teaching that they must be the most distinguished]? — It follows from 'thy' in 'thy elders'.²³ [How does] R. Simeon [meet this argument]? — If the All-Merciful had only written 'elders', I might have thought that even old men from the market-place [would suffice]; therefore the All-Merciful wrote 'thy elders'. If, further, the All-Merciful had only written 'thy elders', I might have thought that even [members of] a minor Sanhedrin²⁴ [would suffice]; therefore the All-Merciful wrote 'and thy judges' i.e., the most distinguished of thy judges. [Where does] R. Judah [derive the teaching that they must be members of the Supreme Court]? — He draws an analogy between the use of the word 'elders' here and in the phrase the elders of the Congregation;²⁵ as it there denotes the most distinguished men of the congregation so here also it denotes the most distinguished men of the congregation. If he makes a deduction, then let him deduce the whole from there and what is the necessity of 'and thy judges'!²⁶ — But the 'and' in 'and thy judges' [denotes that the phrase is to be used] for obtaining the requisite number. [How does] R. Simeon [meet this argument]?²⁷

(24) Consisting of twenty-three members, and not the Great Sanhedrin in Jerusalem of seventy-one members.

(25) E.g., in Lev. IV, 15.

(26) In Sanh. 3b it is argued that Lev. IV, 15 must be interpreted in the sense that five elders are required; that being so, why does not R. Judah use that argument and not 'and thy judges' for his opinion that five are necessary?

(27) Since he only requires three.

Talmud - Mas. Sotah 45a

He draws no deduction from 'and';¹ (for what then does the All-Merciful intend by the phrase? — They are to be the most distinguished of thy judges.)² But on this line of argument: 'and they shall come forth'³ i.e., two, 'and they shall measure' i.e., two; according to R. Judah, then, there must be nine and according to R. Simeon there must be seven!⁴ — [No; the two phrases] are required for the following teaching:⁵ 'They shall come forth' — they and not their agents; 'and they shall measure' — even if it is found obviously near to a particular city,⁶ they must still measure since it is a commandment to carry out the measurement.

Our Mishnah is not in agreement with R. Eliezer b. Jacob; for it has been taught: R. Eliezer b. Jacob says: 'Thy elders' i.e., the Sanhedrin; 'thy judges' i.e., the king and High priest—the king, for it is written: The king by judgment establisheth the land;⁷ and the High priest, for it is written: And thou shalt come unto the priests the Levites, and unto the judge that shall be etc.⁸ The question was asked: Is R. Eliezer b. Jacob only at variance [in defining 'judges'] as the king and High priest, but as regards [the number of members of] the Sanhedrin does he agree with R. Judah or R. Simeon; or perhaps he is also at variance on that matter too and requires the whole of the Sanhedrin? — R. Joseph said: Come and hear: If they⁹ found a rebellious elder¹⁰ in Beth Pagi,¹¹ and he rebelled against them,¹² it is possible to think that his act of rebellion is punishable; therefore there is a text to State, Then shalt thou arise and get thee up unto the place.¹³ This teaches that the 'place' determines [whether the act of rebellion is punishable].

Now how many of them had gone forth [from the Great Sanhedrin to Beth Pagi]? If I say that only a part of them had gone forth, perhaps they who remain behind are of the same opinion as the accused!¹⁴ It is therefore evident that all must go forth. And for what purpose? If for a secular object, was it possible for them all to go? For behold it is written: Thy navel is like a round goblet, wherein no mingled wine is wanting,¹⁵ so that should a member have need to go out [from the hall where the Sanhedrin was in session], he may only do so if twenty-three [of his colleagues] remain, corresponding to the number of a minor Sanhedrin, otherwise he may not leave! Obviously, then, [they had gone forth] for a religious object. For what object? Must it not be to measure in connection with the heifer, according to the opinion of R. Eliezer b. Jacob?¹⁶ — Abaye said to [R. Joseph], No; [they may all go forth for such a purpose as] to add to the boundaries of the city [of Jerusalem] or the Temple-courts; as we have learnt: We do not add to the boundaries of the city [of Jerusalem] or the Temple-courts except by a Court of seventy-one.¹⁷ There is a teaching in agreement with R. Joseph: If they¹⁸ met in Beth Pagi, and [an elder] rebelled against them; e.g., they went forth to carry out a measurement in connection with the heifer, or to add to the boundaries of the city [of Jerusalem] or the Temple-courts,¹⁹ it is possible to think that his act of rebellion is punishable; therefore there is a text to State, Then shalt thou arise and get thee up [etc.].¹³ This teaches that the 'place' determines [whether the act of rebellion is punishable]. IF [THE CORPSE] WAS FOUND HIDDEN IN A HEAP OF STONES, OR HANGING ON A TREE. Is this to say that our Mishnah agrees with R. Judah and not the Rabbis? For it has been taught: And hast forgot a sheaf in the field²⁰ — this excludes [a sheaf] which was hidden; such is the statement of R. Judah, but the Sages declare that 'in the field' is to include a hidden sheaf!²¹ — Rab said: You may even maintain that it agrees with the Rabbis since each case is to be explained in the light of its context. [In connection with the corpse] it is written: 'If one be found slain,' i.e., wherever it be found; 'in the earth', i.e., to the exclusion of one which is hidden. The other case [of the sheaf] is to be explained in the light of the context; for it is written: 'When thou reapest thine harvest in thy field and hast forgot a sheaf. There is an analogy between the forgotten sheaf and the harvesting: as the harvesting is visible to all so the forgotten sheaf must be visible to all;²² and the fact that the All-Merciful wrote 'in the field' is to include a hidden sheaf. Then let R. Judah likewise draw an analogy between the forgotten sheaf and the harvesting!²³ — He actually does so; but [he argues], What is the purpose of 'in the field'? It is required to include standing-corn which is forgotten.²⁴ From where, then, do the Rabbis derive the regulation of standing-corn which is forgotten? — They derive it from, When thou reapest thine harvest in thy field [and hast forgot].²⁵ And [how does] R. Judah [explain this phrase]? — He requires it for the teaching of R. Abbahu in the name of R. Eleazar; for R. Abbahu said in the name of R. Eleazar: It excludes the case where sheaves were carried [by the wind] into his neighbours' field.²⁶ And [from where] do the Rabbis [derive this regulation]? — From the fact that Scripture has 'thy field' and not merely 'the field'. And [what of] R. Judah? — He draws no inference from 'thy field' as distinct from 'the field'. R. Jeremiah asked: How is it if sheaves were carried²⁷ into his own field? Is the air-space above a field identical with the field or not? — R. Kahana said to R. Papi another version is, R. Kahana said to R. Zebid, The problem is to be solved from the teaching of R. Abbahu who said in the name of R. Eleazar, 'It excludes the case where sheaves were carried [by the wind] into his neighbour's field,' implying, does it not, that only [when they are carried into] his neighbour's field they are [excluded], but [if the wind drops them] into his own field they are not!²⁸ But according to your reasoning, [it would follow that] if the sheaves were carried into his neighbour's field [and alighted upon a stone, etc.,] they are excluded, but should they lie [upon the ground] they are not;²⁹ surely we require [the sheaves to be] 'in thy field', but they are not there! Rather must they [argue thus]:³⁰ 'It excludes when the sheaves were] in his neighbour's field' even if actually lying upon the ground; and the expression 'carried' is only employed because this could have happened only if they were 'carried' [by the force of the wind].

Come and hear: If he laid hold of a sheaf to convey it into the city, placed it on top of another sheaf belonging to his neighbour and forgot it, the lower is considered to be a forgotten sheaf but not the upper. R. Simeon b. Judah says in the name of R. Simeon: Neither is a forgotten sheaf, the lower because it is hidden and the upper because it is suspended.³¹ Hence they only differ as regards the lower, but with respect to the upper they all agree that it is not a hidden sheaf!³² — It is different in this circumstance, because having taken hold of it he has the right to it. If that is so,³³ why use the argument 'placed it on top of another sheaf belonging to his neighbour'? It would have been the same if he had laid it upon the field [of his neighbour]! — That is so; but he used the illustration of 'on top of another sheaf belonging to his neighbour', because of the instance of the lower sheaf [about which there was a difference of opinion]. Why, then, should he use the phrase 'because it is suspended'?³⁴ — Read: because it is like something suspended.³⁵

Abaye said: Behold I am like Ben Azzai in the streets of Tiberias.³⁶ So one of the Rabbis asked Abaye, If there were two corpses, one on top of the other,³⁷ from which is the measurement taken? [Do we argue that with] two things of the same kind [the lower] is regarded as hidden and with two things of the same kind [the upper] is not regarded as suspended, so that he takes the measurement from the upper; or perhaps with two things of the same kind [the upper] is regarded as suspended and with two things of the same kind [the lower] is not regarded as hidden, so that he takes the measurement from the lower; or perhaps with two things of the same kind [the lower] is regarded as hidden and with two things of the same kind [the upper] is regarded as suspended, so that he takes measurement neither from the lower nor the upper! — He replied to him,

Talmud - Mas. Sotah 45b

You have it stated: 'If he laid hold of a sheaf to convey it into the city, placed it on top of another sheaf belonging to his neighbour and forgot it, the lower is considered to be a forgotten sheaf but not the upperð. R. Simeon b. Judah says in the name of R. Simeon: Neither is a forgotten sheaf, the lower because it is hidden and the upper because it is suspended. Now they were¹ of the opinion that these Tannaim agreed with R. Judah who said: 'In the field', i.e., to the exclusion of one which is hidden. Do they, then, not differ on this issue: One holds that with two things of the same kind [the lower] is regarded as hidden, and the other holds it is not regarded as hidden? — No; if they were of the same opinion as R. Judah, they all agree that with two things of the same kind [the lower] is regarded as hidden; but here the difference is the same as that of R. Judah and the Rabbis. The Rabbis here agree with the Rabbis there,² and R. Simeon b. Judah agrees with R. Judah.³ If that is so, why use the argument ‘on top of another sheaf belonging to his neighbour’? It would have been the same if he had placed it on the earth or on pebbles! That is so; but the purpose was to let you know how strong is the position of R. Judah who said that even with two things of the same kind [the lower] is regarded as hidden.

Our Rabbis taught: ‘Slain,’ but not strangled,⁴ ‘slain,’ but not one who is expiring;⁵ ‘in the land’, but not hidden in a heap of stones; ‘lying’, but not hanging on a tree; ‘in the earth’, but not floating upon the surface of the water. R. Eleazar says: In all these cases, if the person had been slain, they break the heifer's neck. It has been taught: R. Jose b. Judah said: They asked R. Eleazar, Do you not admit that if he had been strangled and was lying upon a dung-heap,⁶ they do not break the heifer's neck?⁷ [Yes:] consequently [you must agree that] ‘slain’ indicates one who is not strangled; similarly ‘in the earth’ indicates one who is not hidden in a heap of stones, ‘lying’ one who is not hanging on a tree, ‘in the earth’ one who is not floating upon the surface of the water! [How does] R. Eleazar [meet this argument]? — The word ‘slain’ is written redundantly.⁸

IF IT WAS FOUND NEAR TO THE FRONTIER, OR A CITY THE MAJORITY OF WHOSE INHABITANTS WERE GENTILES etc. Because it is written ‘be found’, thus excluding what commonly occurs.⁹ OR A CITY IN WHICH THERE IS NO COURT OF JUSTICE. Because we require ‘the elders of that city’, and such are not [forthcoming].

THEY ONLY MEASURE THE DISTANCE TO A CITY [IN WHICH THERE IS A COURT OF JUSTICE]. This is obvious! Since he stated: OR A CITY IN WHICH IS NO COURT OF JUSTICE [etc.], I know that they only measure the distance to a city in which there is a Court of Justice! — He thereby informs us what is taught in the following: Whence is it that if it was found near a city in which there is no Court of Justice, they leave [the city out] and measure to [the nearest] city which has a Court of Justice? There is a text to state, The elders of that city shall take,¹⁰ i.e., in every case.¹¹

MISHNAH. IF [THE CORPSE] WAS FOUND EXACTLY BETWEEN TWO CITIES, BOTH OF THEM BRING TWO HEIFERS [BETWEEN THEM]. SUCH IS THE STATEMENT OF R. ELIEZER;¹² BUT JERUSALEM DOES NOT BRING A HEIFER WHOSE NECK IS TO BE BROKEN. IF THE HEAD WAS FOUND IN ONE PLACE AND THE BODY IN ANOTHER PLACE, THEY CARRY THE HEAD TO THE BODY. SUCH IS THE STATEMENT OF R. ELIEZER.¹³ R. AKIBA SAYS: [THEY CARRY] THE BODY TO THE HEAD. FROM WHAT PART [OF THE BODY] DO THEY MEASURE? R. ELIEZER SAYS: FROM THE NAVEL; R. AKIBA SAYS: FROM THE NOSE; R. ELIEZER B. JACOB SAYS: FROM THE PLACE WHERE HE WAS MADE A SLAIN PERSON, FROM THE NECK.

GEMARA. What is R. Eliezer's reason?¹³ — He holds that it is possible to make an exact measurement; and the word ‘nearest’¹⁴ holds good of even more than one city. BUT JERUSALEM DOES NOT BRING A HEIFER WHOSE NECK IS TO BE BROKEN. Because Scripture declares, To possess it,¹⁵ and he is of the opinion that Jerusalem was not apportioned among the tribes.

IF THE HEAD WAS FOUND IN ONE PLACE etc. In what do they differ? If I should say that they differ on the question from where the measurement is to be taken, behold since [the author of the Mishnah] states in the sequel: FROM WHAT PART [OF THE BODY] DO THEY MEASURE? it follows that we are not dealing here with the subject of measurement! — R. Isaac said: They differ because of the regulation that a meth mizwah¹⁶ acquires his place; and thus he means to say: He acquires his place for burial, and where the head is found in one place and the body in another, they carry the head to the body [and bury it there]. Such is the statement of R. Eliezer; but R. Akiba says, [They carry] the body to the head [and bury it there]. In what do they differ? One is of the opinion that the body is in the place where it fell and the head rolled away, while the other is of the opinion that the head remains in the place where it falls while the body falls some way off.

FROM WHAT PART [OF THE BODY] DO THEY MEASURE? In what do they differ? One is of the opinion that the source of existence is in the nose, while the other is of the opinion that the source of existence is in the navel. Is this to say [that they differ on the same point] as the following teachers: From where is the embryo formed? From the head, and thus it states: Thou art He that took me [gozi] out of my mother's womb,¹⁷ and it further states: Cut off [gozi] thine hair and cast it away etc.¹⁸ Abba Saul Says: It is from the navel, and its root spreads in all directions [from there]! — You may even say that Abba Saul [agrees with R. Akiba], because Abba Saul's statement only applies to the formation, that when an embryo is formed it is formed from the centre, but with respect to existence all agree that [its source is] in the nose; for it is written: All in whose nostrils was the breath of the spirit of life etc.¹⁹

R. ELIEZER B. JACOB SAYS: FROM THE PLACE WHERE HE WAS MADE A SLAIN PERSON, FROM THE NECK. What is the reason of R. Eliezer b. Jacob? — Because it is written: To lay thee upon the necks of the wicked that are slain.²⁰

MISHNAH. WHEN THE ELDERS OF JERUSALEM²¹ HAD DEPARTED AND GONE AWAY, THE ELDERS OF THAT CITY²² TAKE A HEIFER OF THE HERD²³ WHICH HAS NOT DRAWN IN THE YOKE, AND A BLEMISH DOES NOT DISQUALIFY IT. THEY BRING IT DOWN TO A RAVINE WHICH IS STONY²⁴ — ‘ETHAN’ IS TO BE UNDERSTOOD IN ITS LITERAL SENSE OF ‘HARD’ — BUT EVEN IF IT BE NOT STONY, IT IS FIT [FOR THE CEREMONY]. THEY THEN BREAK ITS NECK WITH A HATCHET FROM BEHIND.²⁵ THE SITE MAY NEVER BE SOWN OR TILLED, BUT IT IS PERMITTED TO CARD FLAX AND CHISEL STONES THERE. THE ELDERS OF THAT CITY THEN WASH THEIR HANDS WITH WATER IN THE PLACE WHERE THE HEIFER'S NECK WAS BROKEN AND DECLARE, OUR HANDS HAVE NOT SHED THIS BLOOD, NEITHER HAVE OUR EYES SEEN IT.²⁶ BUT CAN IT ENTER OUR MINDS THAT THE ELDERS OF A COURT OF JUSTICE ARE SHEDDERS OF BLOOD! [THE MEANING OF THEIR STATEMENT IS], HOWEVER, [THE MAN FOUND DEAD] DID NOT COME TO US [FOR HELP] AND WE DISMISSED HIM WITHOUT SUPPLYING HIM WITH FOOD, WE DID NOT SEE HIM AND LET HIM GO WITHOUT ESCORT.²⁷

Talmud - Mas. Sotah 46a

THEN THE PRIESTS EXCLAIM, FORGIVE, O LORD, THY PEOPLE ISRAEL, WHOM THOU HAST REDEEMED, AND SUFFER NOT INNOCENT BLOOD TO REMAIN IN THE MIDST OF THY PEOPLE ISRAEL.¹ THERE IS NO NEED FOR THEM TO SAY, AND THE BLOOD SHALL BE FORGIVEN THEM;² BUT THE HOLY SPIRIT ANNOUNCES TO THEM, 'WHEN YOU ACT THUS, THE BLOOD IS FORGIVEN YOU.'

GEMARA. But that a blemish disqualified a heifer may be deduced by a fortiori reasoning from the instance of the [red] cow:³ if a blemish disqualifies a cow which is not disqualified on account of age,⁴ how much more must a blemish disqualify a heifer which is disqualified on account of age! — It is different there, because Scripture stated: Wherein is no blemish⁵ — a blemish disqualifies [a red cow] but does not disqualify a heifer. According to this argument,⁶ the other disqualifications on account of work having been done by it should not apply [to the red cow];⁷ why, then, did Rab Judah say in the name of Rab, If a person laid a bundle of sacks upon it,⁸ it is disqualified, but with a heifer [it is not disqualified] until it draws [a load]!⁹ — It is different with a [red] cow, because we derive the meaning of the term 'yoke' [in connection with a red cow] from its occurrence in connection with a heifer.¹⁰ But let [the deduction that a blemish disqualifies] a heifer be also drawn from the instance of a [red] cow on the basis of a common use of the term 'yoke'! — Behold the All-Merciful has excluded that by using the word 'wherein' [bah]. But with the heifer it is likewise written 'wherewith' [bah]!¹¹ — This is required to exclude animals destined as sacrifices which are not disqualified by having been used for work; because it might have occurred to you to say: Let us draw a conclusion by a fortiori reasoning from the heifer: if a heifer which is not disqualified by a blemish is disqualified by having been used for work, how much more must animals destined as sacrifices, which are disqualified by a blemish, be disqualified by having been used for work! It can, however, be objected: This is right for a heifer because it is also disqualified by an age-limit! — Do you mean to say, then, that there are no animals destined as sacrifices which are disqualified by an age-limit? Hence a text is necessary for those offerings which are disqualified by an age-limit.¹² Is, however, [the regulation that] animals destined as sacrifices are not disqualified by having been used for work derived from here?¹³ Surely it is derived from the following: Blind, or broken, or maimed, or having a wen, or scurvy or scabbed, ye shall not offer these unto the Lord¹⁴ — these ye shall not offer, but you may offer animals as sacrifices which have been used for work! — [This verse]¹⁵ is necessary, because it might have occurred to you to say: This only applies where they have been used for permissible work, but where it was for prohibited work¹⁶ conclude that they are forbidden [as sacrifices]! So it was necessary [to have this verse from which we infer that the animals may be offered even if they had been used for prohibited work]. But it could likewise have been derived from the following: Neither from the hand of a stranger shall ye offer the bread of your God of any of these¹⁷ — these you shall not offer, but you may offer animals which have been used for work! — [This verse]¹⁵ is necessary, because it might have occurred to you to say: This only applies when they were worked while they were still not designated as sacrifices, but when they were worked after having been designated as sacrifices conclude that they are forbidden! So it was necessary [to have this verse from which we infer that even then they are acceptable as offerings].

The above text [teaches]: ‘Rab Judah said in the name of Rab: If a person laid a bundle of sacks upon it, it is disqualified; but with a heifer [it is not disqualified] until it draws [a load]’. It is objected: Yoke¹⁸ — I have only mention of a yoke; whence is it that there are other [disqualifications on account of] work having been done by it? You may argue by a fortiori reasoning: if a heifer which is not disqualified by a blemish is disqualified by having been used for work, how much more must a [red] cow, which is disqualified by a blemish, be disqualified by having been used for various kinds of work! And if you like you may argue:¹⁹ It is stated here ‘yoke’ and there [with the heifer] it is stated ‘yoke’, as there the various kinds of work disqualify, so here [with the red cow] the various kinds of work disqualify. But why have this alternative argument?²⁰ — Because you might reply [as mentioned above], ‘It can, however, be objected: This is right for a heifer because it is also disqualified by an age-limit’. Or it might also [be objected] that the case of animals destined as sacrifices proves [the contrary, thus:] a blemish disqualifies them but the fact that they were used for work does not disqualify them. [Therefore the alternative line of reasoning is employed:] It is stated here ‘yoke’ and there [with the heifer] it is stated ‘yoke’; as there the various kinds of work [disqualify], so here [with the red cow] the various kinds of work [disqualify].

Now from the same line of reasoning: You may conclude as there [with the heifer it is not disqualified] until it draws [a load], so here [with the red cow it is not disqualified] until it draws [a load]!²¹ — This is a matter disputed by Tannaim. Some of them deduce it from the instance of the heifer,²² while others deduce it from [the law of the red] cow itself.²³ For it has been taught: ‘Yoke’ — I have mention only of a yoke; whence is it that various kinds of work [disqualify]? There is a text to state, Upon which never came yoke²⁴ i.e., [work] of any sort. If that is so, why is ‘yoke’ specified? A yoke disqualifies whether during the time of work or not during the time of work,²⁵ but the various kinds of work only disqualify during the time of work.²⁶ But say that ‘upon which never came’ is general and ‘yoke’ is particular, and where there is a case of general and particular, only what is in the particular is in the general²⁷ — viz., a yoke only [disqualifies] and nothing else! The phrase ‘which’ is inclusive [of various kinds of work], and there is a similar teaching in connection with the heifer as follows: Yoke²⁸ — I have mention only of a yoke; whence is it that various kinds of work [disqualify]? There is a text to state, ‘Which hath not been wrought with’ — i.e., [work] of any sort. If that is so, why is ‘yoke’ specified? A yoke disqualifies whether during the time of work or not during the time of work, but the various kinds of work only disqualify during the time of work. But say that ‘which hath not been wrought with’ is general and ‘yoke’ is particular, and where there is a case of general and particular, only what is in the particular is in the general — viz. a yoke [disqualifies] and nothing else!²⁹ — The phrase ‘which’ is inclusive [of various kinds of work].

R. Abbahu said: I asked R. Johanan, To what extent must there be drawing by a yoke [to constitute a disqualification]?³⁰ — He replied: The full extent of the yoke. The question was asked: Does this mean its length or breadth? One of the Rabbis, named R. Jacob, answered: The statement of R. Johanan was explained to me as indicating drawing by a yoke to the extent of a handbreadth in its breadth. Then [R. Johanan] should have said: A handbreadth!-He intended to inform us that the minimum of a yoke [in its breadth] is a handbreadth. For what purpose does he deduce this? — For buying and selling. R. Johanan b. Saul said: Why does the Torah mention that he should bring a heifer into a ravine? The Holy One, blessed be He, said: Let something which did not produce fruit³¹ have its neck broken in a place which is not fertile and atone for one who was not allowed to produce fruit. What [does this last word] 'fruit' mean? If I answer [that it means] offspring, then according to this argument we should not break a heifer's neck if [the man found dead] was old or castrated! Therefore [by 'fruit' must be understood the performance of] commandments.³²

AND BRING IT DOWN TO A RAVINE WHICH IS STONY 'ETHAN' IS TO BE UNDERSTOOD IN ITS LITERAL SENSE OF 'HARD'. Our Rabbis taught: Whence is it that 'ethan' means 'hard'? As it is said, (12) E.g., the lambs offered on the Passover are specified as being of the first year, (Num. XXVIII, 19).

(13) From the restrictive particle written with the heifer.

(14) Lev. XXII, 22.

(15) The 'wherewith' stated with the heifer.

(16) E.g., on the Sabbath.

(17) Ibid. 25.

(18) Num. XIX, 2.

(19) Not by a fortiori reasoning but from the analogous occurrence of 'yoke'.

(20) Why does not the first suffice?

(21) Which refutes Rab Judah.

(22) This is the Tanna of the Baraitha cited. He will accordingly not disqualify the cow until it draws.

(23) The Tanna who follows.

(24) Num. XIX, 2.

(25) If he put the yoke on the animal to ease the load and not for the purpose of drawing it.

(26) If, e.g., he put sacks upon it not as a burden, there is no disqualification. Where, however, the sacks were placed as a load there is immediate disqualification, even though the cow did not draw. This is in agreement with Rab Judah.

(27) The general rule must be restricted in application to what is contained in the particular.

(28) Deut. XXI, 3.

(29) This is one of the principles of hermeneutics according to R. Ishmael. V. B.K., 54a.

(30) With a heifer.

(31) A heifer less than a year old could not bring forth young.

(32) Which produces a harvest of merit; and he was prevented by his murder from doing this.

Talmud - Mas. Sotah 46b

Strong [ethan] is thy dwelling-place, and thy nest is set in the rock;¹ and it states: Hear, O ye mountains, the Lord's controversy, and ye enduring foundations [ethanim] of the earth.² Others, however, say: Whence is it that 'ethan' means 'old'? As it is stated: It is an ethan nation, it is an ancient nation.³

THEY THEN BREAK ITS NECK WITH A HATCHET FROM BEHIND. What is the reason [that it is done from behind]? — He derives it by the analogous word ‘breaking’ [stated] in the case of a bird brought as a sin.offering.⁴

THE SITE MAY NEVER BE SOWN OR TILLED. Our Rabbis taught: Which is neither plowed nor sown⁵ — this refers to the past; such is the statement of R. Joshiah. R. Jonathan says: It refers to the future. Raba said: Nobody disputes as to the future since it is written: It shall not be sown;⁶ when they differ as to the past, R. Joshiah argues, Is it written: ‘And it shall not be tilled’?⁷ And R. Jonathan argues, Is it written: ‘Which has not been tilled’?⁸ And [how does] R. Joshiah [meet R. Jonathan's argument]? — The relative pronoun ‘which’ must be understood of the past.⁹ And R. Jonathan? — ‘Which’ is employed in an inclusive sense.¹⁰

BUT IT IS PERMITTED TO CARD FLAX AND CHISEL STONES THERE. Our Rabbis taught: ‘Which is neither plowed nor sown’ — I have here only sowing; whence is it that the other kinds of agricultural work [are prohibited]? There is a text to state, ‘which is neither plowed’ — i.e., [agricultural labour] in any form. If that is so, why is it stated ‘nor sown’?¹¹ Its purpose is to inform us that as sowing is special since it is connected with the soil itself, so everything which is connected with the soil itself [is forbidden], to the exclusion of carding flax and chiselling stones which are not connected with the soil itself. But argue that ‘which is neither plowed’ is general and ‘nor sown’ particular, and where there is a case of general and particular, only what is in the particular is in the general — viz. sowing only [is forbidden] but nothing else! — The term ‘which’ is employed in an inclusive sense.

THE ELDERS OF THAT CITY THEN WASH THEIR HANDS etc. Our Rabbis taught: And all the elders of that city, who are nearest unto the slain man, shall wash their hands over the heifer whose neck was broken in the valley.¹² There was no need to state, ‘whose neck was broken’!¹³ Why, then, is ‘whose neck was broken’ added? [It signifies], Over the place of the heifer's neck where it was broken. They then declare, ‘Our hands have not shed this blood, neither have our eyes seen it’. But can it enter our minds that [the members of a] Court of Justice shed blood! [The meaning of their statement is], however, [The man found dead] did not come to us for help and we dismissed him without supplying him with food, we did not see him and let him go without an escort. It has been taught: R. Meir used to say: We may compel a person to escort [a traveller],¹⁴ because the reward for escorting is limitless; as it is said: And the watchers saw a man come forth out of the city, and they said unto him, Shew us, we pray thee, the entrance into the city, and we will deal kindly with thee.¹⁵ It continues, And he shewed them the entrance into the city.¹⁶ What was the kindness they did to him? They slew the whole of the city at the edge of the sword, but let that man and his family go.

And the man went into the land of the Hittites, and built a city, and called the name thereof Luz: which is the name thereof unto this day.¹⁷ It has been taught: That is the Luz in which they dye the blue;¹⁸ that is the Luz against which Sennacherib marched without disturbing it,¹⁹ against which Nebuchadnezzar marched without destroying it, and even the Angel of Death has no permission to pass through it, but when the old men there become tired of life²⁰ they go outside the wall and then die. For is not the matter²¹ an a fortiori inference? If this Canaanite, who did not utter a word or walk a step,²² caused deliverance to come to himself and his seed unto the end of all generations, how much more so he who performs the act of escorting by actually going with the person! How did he show them [the way]? — Hezekiah said: He just curved his mouth for them;²³ R. Johanan said: He pointed for them with his finger. There is a teaching in agreement with R. Johanan, viz., Because this Canaanite pointed with his finger, he caused deliverance to come to himself and his seed unto the end of all generations.

R. Joshua b. Levi said: Whoever is on a journey and has no escort should occupy [his mind] with Torah;²⁴ as it is said: For they shall be a chaplet of grace unto thy head, and chains about thy neck.²⁵ R. Joshua b. Levi also said: Because of the four paces with which Pharaoh accompanied Abraham, as it is said: And Pharaoh gave men charge concerning him etc.,²⁶ he [was allowed to] enslave the latter's descendants for four hundred years, as it is said: And shall serve them, and they shall afflict them four hundred years.²⁷ Rab Judah said in the name of Rab: Whoever accompanies his neighbour four cubits in a city will come to no harm [when on a journey]. Rabina accompanied Raba b. Isaac four cubits in a city; danger threatened him but he was saved.

Our Rabbis taught: A teacher [accompanies] his pupils until the outskirts²⁸ of a city; one colleague [accompanies] another up to the Sabbath-limit;²⁹ a pupil [accompanies] his master a distance without limit.³⁰ But how far?³¹ — R. Shesheth said: Up to a parasang. This only applies when his master is not a distinguished scholar; but should his master be a distinguished scholar [he accompanies him] three parasangs.

R. Kahana once accompanied R. Shimi b. Ashi from Pum-Nahara to Be-Zinyatha.³² When they arrived there, he said to him, 'Is it true what you say, that these palms of Babylon are from the time of Adam?' He answered: 'You have reminded me of something which R. Jose b. Hanina said, viz., What means that which is written: Through a land that no man passed through, and where no man dwelt?³³ Since no man passed through it, how could anyone dwell there, and since nobody dwelt there how could anyone pass through it! But [the meaning is], A land concerning which Adam decreed that it should be inhabited has become inhabited, and a land concerning which Adam did not so decree has not been inhabited'.³⁴ R. Mordecai accompanied R. Ashi from Hagronia³⁵ to Be-Kafi;³⁶ another version is to Be-Dura.³⁷ R. Johanan said in the name of R. Meir: Whoever does not escort others or allow himself to be escorted is as though he sheds blood; for had the men of Jericho escorted Elisha he would not have stirred up bears against the children, as it is said: And he went up from thence unto Bethel; and as he was going up by the way, there came forth little children out of the city, and mocked him, and said unto him, Go up, thou bald head; go up, thou bald head.³⁸ What they said to him was, 'Go up, thou who hast made this place bald for us!'³⁹ What means 'little children'?⁴⁰ — R. Eleazar said: Ne'arim [children] means they were bare [menu'arim] of precepts; 'little' means they were little of faith.⁴¹ A Tanna taught: They were youths [ne'arim] but they behaved like little children. R. Joseph demurred to this: But perhaps they were so called after the name of the place; for is it not written: And the Syrians had gone out in bands, and had brought away captive out of the land of Israel a little maid,⁴² and the question is asked by us a maid [na'arah] and little?⁴³ And R. Pedath explained: She was a little girl from a place called Ne'uran!⁴⁴ — In this passage her place is not specified,⁴⁵ but in the other their place is specified.⁴⁶

And he looked behind him and saw them, and cursed them in the name of the Lord.⁴⁷ What did he see? — Rab said: He actually looked upon them, as it has been taught: Rabban Simeon b. Gamaliel says: Wherever the Sages set their eyes there is either death or calamity.⁴⁸ Samuel said: He saw that their mothers had all become conceived with them on the Day of Atonement.⁴⁹ R. Isaac the smith said: He saw that their hair was plaited as with Amorites.⁵⁰ R. Johanan said: He saw that there was no sap of the commandments in them. But perhaps there would have been such in their descendants!⁵¹ — R. Eleazar said: Neither in them nor in their descendants unto the end of all generations.

And there came forth two she-bears out of the wood, and tore forty and two children of them.⁵²

Talmud - Mas. Sotah 47a

Rab and Samuel [differ in their interpretation]; one said it was a miracle, while the other said it was a miracle within a miracle. He who said it was a miracle did so because there was a forest but there were no bears;¹ he who said it was a miracle within a miracle did so because there was no forest nor were there any bears. [But according to the latter interpretation] there need have been [provided] bears but not a forest! — [It was required] because [the bears] would have been frightened.²

R. Hanina said: On account of the forty-two sacrifices which Balak, king of Moab, offered,³ were forty-two children cut off from Israel. But it is not so; for Rab Judah has said in the name of Rab: Always should a man occupy himself with Torah and the commandments even though it be not for their own sake,⁴ for from [occupying himself with them] not for their own sake he comes to do so for their own sake; because as a reward for the forty-two sacrifices which Balak, king of Moab, offered,⁵ he merited that Ruth should issue from him and from her issued Solomon concerning whom it is written: A thousand burnt-offerings did Solomon offer!⁶ And R. Jose b. Honi said: Ruth was the daughter of Eglon the son of Balak!⁷ — Nevertheless his desire was to curse Israel.⁸ And the men of the city said unto Elisha, Behold, we pray thee, the situation of this city is pleasant, as my lord seeth etc.⁹ [But how could it be so] since 'the water is naught and the land miscarrieth'! What, then, was its pleasantness? — R. Hanin said: The favour of a place in the estimation of its inhabitants. R. Johanan said: There are three kinds of favour: the favour of a locality in the estimation of its inhabitants, the favour of a woman in the estimation of her husband, and the favour of an article in the estimation of its purchaser.

Our Rabbis taught: Elisha was afflicted with three illnesses: one because he stirred up the bears against the children, one because he thrust Gehazi away with both his hands, and one of which he died; as it is said: Now Elisha was fallen sick of his sickness whereof he died.¹⁰

Our Rabbis have taught: Always let the left hand thrust away and the right hand draw near. Not like Elisha who thrust Gehazi away with both his hands (and not like R. Joshua b. Perahiah who thrust one of his disciples away with both his hands).¹¹ How is it with Elisha? As it is written: And Naaman said: Be content, take two talents,¹² and it is written: And he said unto him, Went not my heart with thee when the man turned again from his chariot to meet thee? Is it a time to receive money, and to receive garments, and oliveyards, and sheep and oxen, and manservants and maidservants?¹³ But had he received all these things? Silver and garments were what he had received! — R. Isaac said: At that time Elisha was engaged [in the study of the Law concerning] the eight kinds of [unclean] creeping things;¹⁴ so he said to [Gehazi], 'You wicked person, the time has arrived for you to receive the reward for [studying the law of] the eight creeping things.'¹⁵ The leprosy therefore of Naaman shall cleave unto thee and unto thy seed for ever.¹⁶ Now there were four leprosy men¹⁷ — R. Johanan said: This refers to Gehazi and his three sons. And Elisha came to Damascus¹⁸ — why did he go there?¹⁹ — R. Johanan said: He went to induce Gehazi to repent but he refused. He said to him, 'Repent'; but he replied: 'Thus have I received from thee that whoever sinned and caused others to sin is deprived of the power of doing penitence'. What had he done? Some say: He applied a loadstone to the idolatrous image of Jeroboam²⁰ and suspended it between heaven and earth. Others say: He engraved upon it the Name [of God] so that it used to exclaim, 'I [am the Lord thy God]' and 'Thou shalt have no [other God beside me]' — Still others say: He drove the Rabbis from before him, as it is written: And the sons of the prophets said unto Elisha, Behold now, the place where we dwell before thee is too strait for us²¹ — hence, up to then it had not been too strait.

What²² was the incident with R. Joshua b. Perahiah? — When King Jannaeus²³ put the Rabbis to death, Simeon b. Shetah was hid by his sister, whilst R. Joshua b. perahiah fled to Alexandria in Egypt. When there was peace,²⁴ Simeon b. Shetah sent [this message to him]: 'From me, Jerusalem, the Holy city, to thee Alexandria in Egypt. O my sister, my husband²⁵ dwelleth in thy midst and I abide desolate'. [R. Joshua] arose and came back and found himself in a certain inn where they paid him great respect. He said: 'How beautiful is this 'aksania'!²⁶ One of his disciples²⁷ said to him, 'My master, her eyes are narrow!' He replied to him, 'Wicked person! Is it with such thoughts that thou occupiest thyself !' He sent forth four hundred horns and excommunicated him.²⁸ [The disciple] came before him on many occasions, saying 'Receive me'; but he refused to notice him. One day while [R. Joshua] was reciting the Shema', he came before him. His intention was to receive him and he made a sign to him with his hand, but the disciple thought he was repelling him. So he went and set up a brick and worshipped it. [R. Joshua] said to him, 'Repent'; but he answered him, 'Thus have I received from thee that whoever sinned and caused others to sin is deprived of the power of doing penitence'. A Master has said: The disciple practised magic and led Israel astray.

It has been taught: R. Simeon b. Eleazar says: Also human nature²⁹ should a child and woman thrust aside with the left hand and draw near with the right hand.³⁰

MISHNAH. IF THE MURDERER WAS DISCOVERED BEFORE THE HEIFER'S NECK WAS BROKEN, IT GOES FREE AND FEEDS WITH THE HERD; BUT IF AFTER THE HEIFER'S NECK WAS BROKEN, IT IS BURIED IN THAT PLACE BECAUSE IT CAME THERE FROM THE OUTSET IN CONNECTION WITH A MATTER OF DOUBT,³¹ AND ATONED FOR THE DOUBT WHICH IS NOW GONE. IF THE HEIFER'S NECK WAS BROKEN AND AFTERWARDS THE MURDERER IS DISCOVERED, BEHOLD HE IS EXECUTED.

IF ONE WITNESS SAYS 'I SAW THE MURDERER' AND ONE WITNESS SAYS 'YOU DID NOT SEE HIM',³² OR IF A WOMAN SAYS 'I SAW HIM' AND ANOTHER WOMAN SAYS 'YOU DID NOT SEE HIM', THEY BREAK ITS NECK. PERISHAH, APPEARED;³⁴ HE WAS AFTERWARDS RENAMED 'SON OF THE MURDERER — WHEN ADULTERERS MULTIPLIED THE CEREMONY OF THE BITTER WATER WAS DISCONTINUED AND IT WAS R. JOHANAN B. ZAKKAI WHO DISCONTINUED IT, AS IT IS SAID, I WILL NOT PUNISH YOUR DAUGHTERS WHEN THEY COMMIT WHOREDOM, NOR YOUR BRIDES WHEN THEY COMMIT ADULTERY, FOR THEY THEMSELVES ETC.³⁵ WHEN JOSE B. Talmud - Mas. Sotah 47b

. UP TO HIS DAYS THE HAMMER USED TO STRIKE¹ IN JERUSALEM, AND IN HIS DAYS THERE WAS NO NEED TO INQUIRE ABOUT DEMA².

GEMARA. Our Rabbis taught: Whence is it that if the heifer's neck had been broken, and the murderer is afterwards discovered, they do not set him free? There is a text to state, And no expiation can be made for the land for the blood that is shed therein, but by the blood of him that shed it.³

contradicts him, one witness is believed. Whence is this? — As our Rabbis taught: And it be not known who hath smitten him⁴ — hence if it be known who had smitten him, even by one person at the other end of the world, they do not break the neck. R. Akiba says: Whence is it that if the Sanhedrin saw a person commit murder, but they do not recognise him, the neck of the heifer is not broken? There is a text to state, Neither have our eyes seen it;⁵ but [in this case] they had seen it.⁶

Now that you admit that one witness is believed, how is it possible for another individual to contradict him? Surely ‘Ulla has said: Wherever the Torah accepts the testimony of one witness, he is regarded as two [witnesses], but the evidence of one is not regarded as the evidence of two!⁷ ‘Ulla can reply to you, Read in the Mishnah: They do not break its neck. Similarly said R. Isaac, Read in the Mishnah: They do not break its neck; but R. Hiyya said: Read in the Mishnah: They break its neck. Then R. Hiyya is in conflict with the teaching of ‘Ulla! — There is no contradiction, one case referring to evidence given simultaneously⁸ and the other when one witness follows the others.⁹

The Mishnah declares: IF ONE WITNESS SAYS ‘I SAW THE MURDERER’ AND TWO SAY ‘YOU DID NOT SEE HIM’, THEY BREAK ITS NECK. Consequently if there is one against one, they do not break its neck; and this is a refutation of R. Hiyya's statement!¹⁰ — But according to your own argument, cite the continuation: IF TWO SAY ‘WE SAW HIM’ AND ONE SAYS TO THEM ‘YOU DID NOT SEE HIM’, THEY DO NOT BREAK ITS NECK. Consequently if — there is one against one, they do break its neck!¹¹ But our Mishnah deals entirely with disqualified witnesses,¹² and is in accord with R. Nehemiah who said,¹³ Wherever the Torah accepts the testimony of one witness, [the decision] follows the majority of persons [who testify], so that two women against one woman is identical with two men against one man. But there are some who declare that wherever a competent witness came [and testified] first, even a hundred women are regarded as equal to one witness; and with what circumstance are we dealing here? For example, if it was a woman who came first [and testified]; and R. Nehemiah's statement is to be construed thus: R. Nehemiah Says: Wherever the Torah accepts the testimony of one witness, [the decision] follows the majority of persons [who testify], so that two women against one woman is identical with two men against one man, but two women against one man is like half and half. Why, then, have we two teachings concerning disqualified witnesses?¹⁴ What you might have said was that when we follow the majority of persons [who testify] it is for taking the severer view, but to take the lenient view we do not follow [the majority]. Therefore [the Mishnah] informs us [of one case where the neck is broken and one where it is not, and in each the majority is followed].

WHEN MURDERERS MULTIPLIED etc. Our Rabbis taught: When murderers multiplied the ceremony of breaking a heifer's neck was discontinued, because it is only performed in a case of doubt; but when murderers multiplied openly, the ceremony of breaking a heifer's neck was discontinued.

WHEN ADULTERERS MULTIPLIED etc. Our Rabbis taught: And the man shall be free from iniquity¹⁵ — at the time when the man is free from iniquity, the water proves his wife; but when the man is not free from iniquity, the water does not prove his wife. Why, then, [was it necessary for the Mishnah to add]: AS IT IS SAID, ‘I WILL NOT PUNISH YOUR DAUGHTERS WHEN THEY COMMIT WHOREDOM etc.’? Should you say that his own iniquity [prevents the water from proving his wife] but the iniquity of his sons and daughters does not, come and hear: ‘I WILL NOT PUNISH YOUR DAUGHTERS WHEN THEY COMMIT WHOREDOM, NOR YOUR BRIDES WHEN THEY COMMIT ADULTERY’. And should you say that his sin with a married woman [prevents the water from proving his wife] but not if it was with an unmarried woman, come and hear: FOR THEY THEMSELVES GO ASIDE WITH WHORES AND WITH THE HARLOTS etc.’ What means And the people that doth not understand shall be overthrown?¹⁶ R. Eleazar said: The prophet spoke to Israel, If you are scrupulous with yourselves, the water will prove your wives; otherwise the water will not prove your wives.

When hedonists multiplied, justice became perverted,¹⁷ conduct deteriorated and there is no satisfaction [to God] in the world. When they who displayed partiality in judgment multiplied, the command Ye shall not be afraid [of the face of man]¹⁸ became void and Ye shall not respect [persons in judgment]¹⁹ ceased to be practised; and people threw off the yoke of heaven and placed upon themselves the yoke of human beings. When they who engaged in whisperings in judgment²⁰ multiplied, fierceness of [the divine] anger increased against Israel and the Shechinah departed; because it is written: He judgeth among the judges.²¹ When there multiplied [men of whom it is said] Their heart goeth after their gain,²² there multiplied they who call evil good and good evil.²³ When there multiplied they 'who call evil good and good evil', woes²⁴ increased in the world. When they who draw out their spittle²⁵ multiplied, the arrogant increased, disciples diminished, and Torah went about [looking] for them who would study it. When the arrogant multiplied, the daughters of Israel began to marry arrogant men, because our generation looks only to the outward appearance. But that is not so; for a Master has declared: An arrogant person is not acceptable even to the members of his household, as it is said: A haughty man one abideth not at home²⁶ — i.e., even in his own house! — At first they jump round him, but in the end he becomes repugnant to them.

When there multiplied they who forced their goods upon householders,²⁷ bribery increased as well as miscarriage of justice, and happiness ceased. When there multiplied [judges] who said 'I accept your favour' and 'I shall appreciate your favour', there was an Increase of Every man did that which was right in his own eyes;²⁸ common persons were raised to eminence, the eminent were brought low, and the kingdom [of Israel] deteriorated more and more. When envious men and plunderers [of the poor] multiplied, there increased they who hardened their hearts and closed their hands from lending [to the needy], and they transgressed what is written in the Torah, viz., Beware that there be not etc.²⁹ When there multiplied women who had stretched forth necks and wanton eyes,³⁰ [the need] increased for the bitter water but it ceased [to be used]. When receivers of gifts multiplied, the days [of human life] became fewer and years were shortened; as it is written: But he that hateth gifts shall live.³¹ When the haughty of heart multiplied, dissensions increased in Israel. When the disciples of Shammai and Hillel multiplied who had not served [their teachers] sufficiently, dissensions increased in Israel and the Torah became like two Torahs. When there multiplied they who accepted charity of Gentiles, Israel became on top and they below, Israel went forward and they backward.³²

whereas we present it to the priests.¹ Then let them make the confession over the other tithes!² — Resh Lakish said: Any household which does not make the confession over the first tithe may not make it over the other tithes. For what reason? — Abaye said: Because Scripture deals with that first;³ This implies that they had separated it [before proceeding to the other tithes]. But surely it has been taught: He also annulled the confession and decreed in respect of demai;⁴ because he sent [inspectors] throughout the Israelite territory and discovered that they only separated the great terumah⁵ but as for the first and second tithes some fulfilled the law while others did not.⁶ So he said to [the people], 'My sons, come, I will tell you this. Just as in [the neglect] of the "great terumah" there is mortal sin,⁷ so with [the neglect] to present the terumah of the tithe and with the use of untithed produce there is mortal sin'. He thus arose and decreed for them that whoever purchases fruits from an 'Am ha-arez⁸ must separate the first and second tithes therefrom. From the first tithe he separates the terumah of the tithe and gives it to a priest, and as for the second tithe he should go up and eat it in Jerusalem. With regard to the first tithe and the tithe of the poor⁹ whoever demands them from his neighbour has the onus of proving [that they had not been already apportioned]!¹⁰ [Johanan] made two decrees: he abolished the confession [over the presentation of the first tithe] in the case of the Haberim¹¹ and decreed in regard to the demai¹² of the 'Amme ha-arez.¹³

HE ALSO ABOLISHED THE WAKERS. What does 'WAKERS' mean? — Rehabah said: The Levites used daily to stand upon the dais and exclaim, Awake, why sleepest Thou, O Lord?¹⁴ He said to them, Does, then, the All-Present sleep? Has it not been stated: Behold, He that keepeth Israel shall neither slumber nor sleep!¹⁵ But so long as Israel abides in trouble and the Gentiles are in peace and comfort, the words 'Awake, why sleepest Thou, O Lord'? [should be uttered].¹⁶

AND KNOCKERS. What does 'KNOCKERS' mean? — Rab Judah said in the name of Samuel: They used to make an incision on the calf between its horns¹⁷ so that the blood should flow into its eyes.¹⁸ [Johanan] came and abolished the practice because it appeared as though [the animal had] a blemish. There is a Baraitha which teaches: They used to strike [the animal] with clubs as is the practice with idolatry. [Johanan] said to them, How long will you feed the altar with nebeloth!¹⁹

[How could he have described the carcasses as] nebeloth when they had been properly slaughtered! — Rather [should they be described as] terefoth,²⁰ since the membrane of the brain may have been perforated. He [thereupon] arose and ordained rings for them in the ground.²¹

UP TO HIS DAYS THE HAMMER USED TO STRIKE IN JERUSALEM. On the intermediate days of the Festival.²²

ALL HIS DAYS²³ THERE WAS NO NEED TO INQUIRE ABOUT DEMAI. As we have explained above.²⁴

MISHNAH. WHEN THE SANHEDRIN CEASED [TO FUNCTION], SONG CEASED FROM THE PLACES OF FEASTING; AS IT IS SAID, THEY SHALL NOT DRINK WINE WITH A SONG ETC.²⁵

WHEN THE FORMER PROPHETS²⁶ DIED, THE URIM AND THUMMIM²⁷ CEASED. WHEN [THE SECOND] TEMPLE WAS DESTROYED, THE SHAMIR AND NOPHETH ZUFIM²⁸ CEASED, AND MEN OF FAITH DISAPPEARED FROM ISRAEL; AS IT IS SAID, HELP, LORD, FOR THE GODLY MAN CEASETH ETC.²⁹ RABBAN SIMEON B. GAMALIEL SAYS: R. JOSHUA TESTIFIED THAT FROM THE DAY THE TEMPLE WAS DESTROYED, THERE IS NO DAY WITHOUT A CURSE, THE DEW HAS NOT DESCENDED FOR A BLESSING, AND THE FLAVOUR HAS DEPARTED FROM THE FRUITS. R. JOSE SAYS: THE FATNESS³⁰ WAS ALSO REMOVED FROM THE FRUITS. R. SIMEON B. ELEAZAR SAYS; [THE CESSATION OF] PURITY HAS REMOVED TASTE AND FRAGRANCE [FROM FRUITS]; [THE CESSATION OF] THE TITHES HAS REMOVED THE FATNESS OF CORN. BUT THE SAGES SAY: IMMORALITY AND WITCHCRAFT DESTROYED EVERYTHING.

GEMARA. How do we know that the text, [‘They shall not drink wine with a song’] — applies to the time when the Sanhedrin ceased? — R. Huna, son of R. Joshua, said: Because Scripture states: The elders have ceased from the gate, the young men from their music.³¹

Rab said: The ear which listens to song should be torn off. Raba said: When there is song in a house there is destruction on its threshold; as it is stated: Their voice shall sing in the windows, desolation shall be in the thresholds, for He hath laid bare the cedar work.³² What means ‘for he hath laid bare [‘erah] the cedar work’? — R. Isaac said: Is a house panelled with cedar-wood a city [‘irah]?³³ But [the meaning is] even a house panelled with cedars will be overthrown [mithro'ea’].³⁴ R. Ashi said: Infer from this that when destruction begins, it begins on the threshold; as it is stated: ‘Desolation shall be in the thresholds’ — Or if you will, deduce it from here: And the gate is smitten with destruction.³⁵ Mar, son of R. Ashi said: I have personally seen him,³⁶ and he goes like an ox.

R. Huna said: The singing of sailors and ploughmen is permitted, but that of weavers is prohibited.³⁷ R. Huna abolished singing, and a hundred geese were priced at a zuz³⁸ and a hundred se'ahs of wheat at a zuz and there was no demand for them [even at that price];³⁹ R. Hisda came and [ordered R. Huna's edict to be] disregarded, and a goose was required [even at the high price of] a zuz but was not to be found.⁴⁰ R. Joseph said: When men sing and women join in it is licentiousness; when women sing and men join in it is like fire in tow.⁴¹ For what practical purpose is this mentioned? — To abolish the latter before the former.⁴²

R. Johanan said: Whoever drinks to the accompaniment of the four musical instruments⁴³ brings five punishments to the world; as it is stated: Woe unto them that rise up early in the morning, that they may follow strong drink, that tarry late into the night, till wine inflame them! And the harp, and the lute, the tabret and the pipe, and wine, are in their feasts; but they regard not the work of the Lord.⁴⁴ What is written after this? ‘Therefore My people are gone into captivity for lack of knowledge' — they therefore cause captivity in the world; 'and their honourable men are famished' — they therefore bring hunger into the world; and their multitude are parched with thirst⁴⁵ — they therefore cause Torah to be forgotten by its students. And the mean man is bowed down and the great man is humbled⁴⁶ — they therefore cause humiliation to the haters of God⁴⁷ — and 'man' signifies none other than the Holy One, blessed be He, as it is said: The Lord is a man of war,⁴⁸ 'and the eyes of the lofty are humbled' they therefore cause the humiliation of Israel. And what is written after that? Therefore

- (1) Deut. XXVI, 13 requires that the first tithe should be given to the Levites; but it is related in Yeb. 86b that because the Levites refused to join in the return from Babylon, Ezra punished them by having the tithe transferred to the priests.
 - (2) The second and poor tithes.
 - (3) The Rabbis explain the verse as follows: 'Thou shalt give it unto the Levite' i.e., the first tithe; 'and unto the stranger' i.e., the tithe of the poor; 'within thy gates' i.e., the second tithe.
 - (4) The reason given by R. Jose b. Hanina.
 - (5) The part which is separated in the first instance is the 'great terumah' or offering for the priests, to distinguish it from the 'terumah of the tithe', i.e., the tenth part given by the Levite of the tithe he receives, to the priest; then the first tithe is taken from the remainder for the Levites; after that the second tithe is removed to be eaten by the owner in Jerusalem (Deut. XIV, 22ff.); and each third year a tithe is allocated to the poor (ibid. XXVI, 12); v. Glos., s.v. Terumah.
 - (6) I. H. Weiss (Dor I p. 119) suggests that at that time there was a growing aversion against paying the tithe to the Levites, firstly because their status had changed from the period when the land was apportioned among the tribes and they had no share; and secondly because part of the produce had to be paid as a tax to the Government and the law of the tithe pressed very heavily upon the people.
 - (7) I.e., the penalty involved is death at the hands of Heaven.
 - (8) V. p. 110 n. 1.
 - (9) Since they are non-holy and may be eaten by any person.
 - (10) This shows that the people neglected the separation of the tithe to the Levite.
 - (11) The opposite of the 'Amme ha-arez. They were most scrupulous in the allocation of the tithes. The reason for his edict was, as stated, because the tithe was presented to a priest and not a Levite.
 - (12) 'Doubtful produce', corn purchased from a farmer about which there is a doubt whether the tithes had been apportioned.
 - (13) Because he learnt from his inspectors that the law was being neglected. It could therefore be safely assumed that the 'Amme ha-arez, were not observing it. Consequently if one purchased their produce, he had the responsibility of apportioning the tithes.
 - (14) Ps. XLIV, 24.
 - (15) Ibid. CXXI, 4.
 - (16) Since his reign was blessed with peace and prosperity, he felt it was unnecessary for the Levites to use the words.
 - (17) Before it was slaughtered for the altar.
 - (18) To prevent it from seeing what was to happen so that it should not struggle.
 - (19) I.e., animals which died not by the act of ritual slaughter.
 - (20) Animals found to possess a disqualification during the examination which followed the act of slaughter.
 - (21) To hold the animals fast so that they should not struggle, and the other methods were discontinued.
 - (22) I.e., work used to be done on those days, which were a semi-festival, and he abolished the practice.
 - (23) [The actual reading in our Mishnah is 'IN HIS DAYS'.]
 - (24) The purchaser had the responsibility of separating the tithe himself, so there was no need to inquire whether the produce had been tithed before the sale.
 - (25) Isa. XXIV, 9' The authority of the Sanhedrin was ended by the Roman General Gabinius in the middle of the first cent. B.C.E. Cf. Josephus, Ant. XIV, v. 4.
 - (26) The phrase is explained in the Gemara.
 - (27) V. Ex. XXVIII, 30.
 - (28) Shamir is the name of a worm which tradition relates had the power of splitting the hardest stone. The Gemara will explain Nopheth Zufim, a phrase occurring in Ps. XIX, 11, lit., 'the droppings of the honeycomb'.
 - (29) Ps. XII, 2. That the second and not the first Temple is intended here is proved in Tosaf. to Git! 68a.

- (30) Nourishing quality.
- (31) Lam. V, 14. The elders sat in the gate of the city to judge.
- (32) Zeph. II, 14. The last clause is understood as: even a cedar house, i.e., even the strongly-built house, will be destroyed.
- (33) So Maharsha. Rashi explains differently.
- (34) Hath laid bare ('erah) is connected with a root רעע 'to be razed'.
- (35) Isa. XXIV, 12.
- (36) The demon of destruction, v. B.K. 21a.
- (37) Singing helps the former in their work, but with the latter it is done out of frivolity.
- (38) A small coin worth about sevenpence.
- (39) Through the decline of feasting.
- (40) The demand for geese had become so great.
- (41) A woman's singing aroused sexual passion. The latter is more serious, because it implies a wilful act on the part of the men to listen to the female voices.
- (42) If both cannot be suppressed at the same time, the latter should receive more attention as being the worse of the two.
- (43) Mentioned in the verse to be quoted.
- (44) Isa. V, 11f.
- (45) Ibid. 23.
- (46) Ibid. 15.
- (47) A euphemism for God Himself.

Talmud - Mas. Sotah 48b

Sheol hath enlarged her desire and opened her mouth without measure; and their glory, and their multitude, and their pomp, and he that rejoiceth among them, descend into it.¹

WHEN THE FORMER PROPHETS DIED. Who are the former prophets? — R. Huna said: They are David, Samuel and Solomon. R. Nahman said: During the days of David, they were Sometimes successful² and at other times unsuccessful; for behold, Zadok consulted it and succeeded, whereas Abiathar consulted it and was not successful, as it is said. And Abiathar went up.³ Rabbah b. Samuel objected: [It is written], And he⁴ set himself to seek God all⁵ the days of Zechariah who had understanding in the vision of God.⁶ Was this not by means of the urim and Thummim?⁷ — No, it was through the prophets.

Come and hear: When the first Temple was destroyed — the cities with pasture land⁸ were abolished, the Urim and Thummim ceased, there was no more a king from the House of David; and if anyone incites you to quote, And the governor said unto them that they should not eat of the most holy things till there stood up a priest with Urim and Thummim,⁹ reply to him: [It is only a phrase for the very remote future] as when one man says to another, 'Until the dead revive and the Messiah, son of David, comes'! — But, said R. Nahman: Who are the former prophets? [The term 'former'] excludes Haggai, Zechariah, and Malachi who are the latter [prophets]. For our Rabbis have taught: When Haggai, Zechariah and Malachi died, the Holy Spirit¹⁰ departed from Israel; nevertheless they made use of the Bath Kol.¹¹ On one occasion [some Rabbis] were sitting in the upper chamber of Gurya's house in Jericho; a Bath Kol was granted to them from heaven which announced, 'There is in your midst one man who is deserving that the Shechinah should alight upon him, but his generation is unworthy of it'. They all looked at Hillel the elder; and when he died, they lamented over him, 'Alas, the pious man! Alas, the humble man! Disciple of Ezra!' On another occasion they were sitting in an upper chamber in Jabneh; a Bath Kol was granted to them from heaven which announced, 'There is in your midst one man who is deserving that the Shechinah should alight upon him, but his generation is unworthy of it'. They all looked at Samuel the Little;¹² and when he died, they lamented over him, 'Alas, the humble man! Alas, the pious man! Disciple of Hillel!' At the time of his death he also said,¹³ ‘Simeon and Ishmael¹⁴ [are destined] for the sword and their colleagues for death, and the rest of the people for spoliation, and great distress will come upon the nation.’ They also wished to lament over R. Judah b. Baba,¹⁵ ‘Alas, the pious man! Alas, the humble man!’ But the times were disturbed and they could not lament publicly over those who had been slain by the government.

WHEN [THE SECOND] TEMPLE WAS DESTROYED, THE SHAMIR CEASED etc. Our Rabbis taught: With the Shamir Solomon built the Temple,¹⁶ as it is said: And the house, when it was in building, was built of stone made ready at the quarry.¹⁷ The words are to be understood as they are written;¹⁸ such is the statement of R. Judah. R. Nehemiah asked him, Is it possible to say so? Has it not been stated: All these were of costly stones . . . sawed with saws!¹⁹ If that be so, why is there a text to State, There was neither hammer, nor axe nor any tool of iron heard in the house, while it was in the building?²⁰ [It means] that they prepared them outside and brought them within. Rabbi said: The statement of R. Judah is probable in connection with the stones of the Sanctuary, and the statement of R. Nehemiah in connection with [Solomon's] house. For what purpose, then, according to R. Nehemiah, was the Shamir necessary? — It was required as taught in the following: We may not write with ink upon these stones,²¹ because it is said: Like the engravings of a signet,²² nor cut into them with a knife because it is said: In their settings;²³ but he writes with ink upon them, shows the Shamir [the written strokes] on the outside, and these split of their own accord,²⁴ like a fig which splits open in summer and nothing at all is lost, or like a valley which splits asunder in the rainy season and nothing at all is lost.

Our Rabbis taught: The Shamir is a creature about the size of a barley-corn, and was created during the six days of Creation.²⁵ No hard substance can withstand it. How is it kept? They wrap it in tufts of wool and place it in a leaden tube full of barley-bran.

R. Ammi said: When the first Temple was destroyed, fringed²⁶ silk and white glass²⁷ ceased to be used. There is a teaching to the same effect: When the first Temple was destroyed, fringed silk and white glass and iron chariots ceased to be used. Some say: Also wine-jelly²⁸ which comes from Senir²⁹ and resembles cakes of figs.

AND NOFETH ZUFIM. What means NOFETH ZUFIM? — Rab said: The fine flour which floats [zofah] upon the top of a sieve [nafah] and resembles dough kneaded with honey and oil. Levi said: It is two loaves attached to [opposite sides of] an oven which keep on swelling until they touch one another.³⁰ R. Joshua b. Levi said: It is the honey which comes from the hills [zofim].³¹ How is this known?³² — As R. Shesheth³³ translated:³⁴ When the bees spring forth and fly in the heights of the world and collect honey from the herbage on the mountains.

We have learnt there:³⁵ Whatever is poured out³⁶ is clean with the exception of thick honey and batter.³⁷ What means zifim [thick]? — R. Johanan said: Honey used for adulteration [ziyyef]; and Resh Lakish said: It is named after its place, as it is written: Zif, Telem and Bealoth.³⁸ You may similarly quote, When the Zifites came and said to Saul, Doth not David etc.³⁹ What means Zifites? — R. Johanan said: Men who falsify their words; and R. Eliezer says: They are named after their place, as it is written: Zif Telem, and Bealoth.³⁸

AND MEN OF FAITH DISAPPEARED. R. Isaac said: These are men who had faith in the Holy One, blessed be He. For it has been taught: R. Eliezer the Great⁴⁰ declares: Whoever has a piece of bread in his basket and Says. ‘What shall I eat tomorrow?’ belongs only to them who are little in faith. And that is what R. Eleazar said: What means that which is written: For who hath despised the day of small things?⁴¹ [It signifies,] What is the cause that the tables of the righteous are despoiled in the Hereafter?⁴² The smallness [of faith] which was in them, that they did not trust in the Holy One, blessed be He. Raba said: They are the little ones⁴³ among the children of the wicked of Israel who despoil the verdict upon their fathers in the Hereafter, Saying before Him, 'Sovereign of the Universe! Since thou art about to exact punishment of them, why hast Thou blunted their teeth?'¹

R. Elai b. Jebarekya said: Had it not been for the prayer of David, all Israel would have been sellers of rubbish,² as it is stated: Grant them esteem, O Lord.³

R. Elai b. Jebarekya also said: Had it not been for the prayer of Habakkuk, two disciples of the Sages would have to cover themselves with one garment⁴ and occupy themselves with Torah; as it is stated: O Lord, I have heard the report of Thee and am afraid; O Lord, revive Thy work in the midst of the years⁵ — read not 'in the midst of the years [bekereb shanim]' but in the drawing together of two [bekerub shenayim].⁶

R. Elai b. Jebarekya also said: If two disciples of the Sages proceed on a journey and there are no words of Torah between them, they are deserving of being burnt with fire; as it is stated: And it came to pass, as they still went on, that, behold, a chariot of fire etc.⁷ The reason [why the chariot of fire appeared] was that there was discussion [of Torah between them]; hence if there had not been such discussion, they would have deserved to be burnt.

R. Elai b. Jebarekya also said: If two disciples of the Sages reside in the same city and do not support each other in [the study of] the law, one dies and the other goes into exile;⁸ as it is stated: That the manslayer might flee thither, which slayeth his neighbour without knowledge,⁹ and 'knowledge' means nothing but Torah, as it is stated: My people are destroyed for lack of knowledge.¹⁰

R. Judah, son of R. Hiyya said: Any disciple of the Sages who occupies himself with Torah in poverty will have his prayer heard; as it is stated: For the people shall dwell in Zion at Jerusalem; thou shalt weep no more; He will surely be gracious unto thee at the voice of thy cry; when He shall hear, He will answer thee,¹¹ and it continues, And the Lord will give you bread in adversity and water in affliction.¹² R. Abbahu said: They also satisfy him from the lustre of the Shechinah, as it is stated: Thine eyes shall see thy Teacher.¹³ R. Aha b. Hanina said: Neither is the veil¹⁴ drawn before him, as it is said: 'Thy teacher shall no more be hidden.'

RABBAN SIMEON B. GAMALIEL SAYS IN THE NAME OF R. JOSHUA:¹⁵ FROM THE DAY THAT THE TEMPLE WAS DESTROYED, THERE IS NO DAY etc. Raba said: And the curse of each day is severer than that of the preceding, as it is stated: In the morning thou shalt say: Would God it were even! and at even thou shalt say: Would God it were morning.¹⁶ Which morning [would they long for]? If I say the morning of the morrow, nobody knows what it will be. Therefore [it must be the morning] which had gone.¹⁷ How, in that case, can the world endure?¹⁸ — Through the doxology recited after the Scriptural reading,¹⁹ and [the response of] 'May His great Name [be blessed]' [which is uttered in the doxology] after studying Aggada;²⁰ as it is stated: A land of thick darkness, as darkness itself, a land of the shadow of death, without any order.²¹ Hence if there are Scriptural readings, it is illumined from the thick darkness.

THE DEW HAS NOT DESCENDED FOR A BLESSING AND THE FLAVOUR HAS DEPARTED FROM THE FRUITS etc. It has been taught: R. Simeon b. Eleazar Says: [The cessation of] purity has removed taste and fragrance [from fruits]; [the cessation of] tithes has removed the fatness of corn. R. Huna once found a juicy date which he took and wrapped in his mantle. His son, Rabbah, came and said to him, 'I smell the fragrance of a juicy date'. He said to him, 'My son, there is purity in thee',²² and gave it to him. Meanwhile [Rabbah's] son, Abba, came; [Rabbah] took it and gave it to him. [R. Huna] said to [Rabbah], 'My son, thou hast gladdened my heart²³ and blunted my teeth'.²⁴ That is what the popular proverb Says, 'A father's love is for his children; the children's love is for their own children.' R. Aha b. Jacob reared R. Jacob, his daughter's son. When he grew up, [the grandfather] said to him, 'Give me some water to drink'. He replied: 'I am not thy son'.²⁵ That is what the popular proverb says: 'Rear me, rear me';²⁶ I am thy daughter's son'.

MISHNAH. DURING THE WAR WITH VESPASIAN²⁷ THEY [THE RABBIS] DECREED AGAINST [THE USE OF] CROWNS WORN BY BRIDEGROOMS AND AGAINST [THE USE OF] THE DRUM.²⁸ DURING THE WAR OF QUIETUS²⁹ THEY DECREED AGAINST [THE USE OF] CROWNS WORN BY BRIDES AND THAT NOBODY SHOULD TEACH HIS SON GREEK. DURING THE FINAL WAR³⁰ THEY DECREED THAT A BRIDE SHOULD NOT GO OUT IN A PALANQUIN³¹ IN THE MIDST OF THE CITY, BUT OUR RABBIS DECREED THAT A BRIDE MAY GO OUT IN A PALANQUIN IN THE MIDST OF THE CITY.

WHEN R. MEIR³² DIED, THE COMPOSERS OF FABLES CEASED. WHEN BEN AZZAI³³ DIED, THE ASSIDUOUS STUDENTS [OF TORAH] CEASED. WHEN BEN ZOMA³⁴ DIED, THE EXPOSITORS CEASED.³⁵ WHEN R. AKIBA³⁶ DIED, THE GLORY OF THE TORAH CEASED. WHEN R. HANINA B. DOSA DIED, MEN OF DEED³⁷ CEASED. WHEN R. JOSE KETANTA DIED, THE PIOUS MEN CEASED; AND WHY WAS HIS NAME CALLED KETANTA? BECAUSE HE WAS THE YOUNGEST³⁸ OF THE PIOUS MEN.³⁹ WHEN R. JOHANAN B. ZAKKAI⁴⁰ DIED, THE LUSTRE OF WISDOM CEASED.⁴¹ WHEN RABBAN GAMALIEL THE ELDER DIED, THE GLORY OF THE TORAH CEASED, AND PURITY AND ABNEGATION PERISHED. WHEN R. ISHMAEL B. FABI⁴² DIED, THE LUSTRE OF THE PRIESTHOOD CEASED. WHEN RABBI DIED, HUMILITY AND FEAR OF SIN CEASED.⁴³ R. PHINEAS B. JAIR SAYS: WHEN [THE SECOND] TEMPLE WAS DESTROYED, SCHOLARS⁴⁴ AND NOBLEMEN WERE ASHAMED AND COVERED THEIR HEAD,⁴⁵ MEN OF DEED WERE DISREGARDED, AND MEN OF ARM AND MEN OF TONGUE⁴⁶ GREW POWERFUL. NOBODY ENQUIRES,⁴⁷ NOBODY PRAYS [ON THEIR BEHALF], AND NOBODY ASKS.⁴⁸ UPON WHOM IS IT FOR US TO RELY? UPON OUR FATHER WHO IS IN HEAVEN. R. ELIEZER THE GREAT SAYS: FROM THE DAY THE TEMPLE WAS DESTROYED, THE SAGES BEGAN TO BE LIKE SCHOOL-TEACHERS,⁴⁹ SCHOOL-TEACHERS LIKE SYNAGOGUE-ATTENDANTS, SYNAGOGUE-ATTENDANTS LIKE COMMON PEOPLE, AND THE COMMON PEOPLE

BECAME MORE AND MORE DEBASED; AND THERE WAS NONE TO ASK, NONE TO INQUIRE. UPON WHOM IS IT FOR US TO RELY? UPON OUR FATHER WHO IS IN HEAVEN. IN THE FOOTSTEPS OF THE MESSIAH¹ INSOLENCE WILL INCREASE AND HONOUR DWINDLE;² THE VINE WILL YIELD ITS FRUIT [ABUNDANTLY] BUT WINE WILL BE DEAR;³ THE GOVERNMENT WILL TURN TO HERESY⁴ AND THERE WILL BE NONE [TO OFFER THEM] REPROOF; THE MEETING-PLACE [OF SCHOLARS] WILL BE USED FOR IMMORALITY; GALILEE WILL BE DESTROYED, GABLAN⁵ DESOLATED, AND THE DWELLERS ON THE FRONTIER WILL GO ABOUT [BEGGING] FROM PLACE TO PLACE WITHOUT ANYONE TO TAKE PITY ON THEM; THE WISDOM OF THE LEARNED⁶ WILL DEGENERATE, FEARERS OF SIN WILL BE DESPISED, AND THE TRUTH WILL BE LACKING; YOUTHS WILL PUT OLD MEN TO SHAME, THE OLD WILL STAND UP IN THE PRESENCE OF THE YOUNG, A SON WILL REVILE HIS FATHER, A DAUGHTER WILL RISE AGAINST HER MOTHER, A DAUGHTER-IN-LAW AGAINST HER MOTHER-IN-LAW, AND A MAN'S ENEMIES WILL BE THE MEMBERS OF HIS HOUSEHOLD;⁷ THE FACE OF THE GENERATION WILL BE LIKE THE FACE OF A DOG,⁸ A SON WILL NOT FEEL ASHAMED BEFORE HIS FATHER. SO UPON WHOM IS IT FOR US TO RELY? UPON OUR FATHER WHO IS IN HEAVEN.

GEMARA. Rab said: [The decree against the use of a crown] applies only to one made of salt and brimstone,⁹ but if made of myrtle or roses it is permitted; and Samuel said: Also one made of myrtle or roses is prohibited, but if made of reeds or rushes it is permitted; and Levi said: Also one made of reeds or rushes is prohibited. Similarly taught Levi in his Mishnah:¹⁰ It is also prohibited if made of reeds or rushes.

AND AGAINST [THE USE OF] THE DRUM [IRUS]. What means IRUS? — R. Eleazar said: A drum with a single bell.¹¹ Rabbah b. R. Huna made a tambourine for his son; his father came and broke it, saying to him, 'It might be substituted for a drum with a single bell. Go, make for him [an instrument by stretching the skin] over the mouth of a pitcher or over the mouth of a kefiz'.¹²

DURING THE WAR OF QUIETUS THEY DECREED AGAINST [THE USE OF] CROWNS WORN BY BRIDES etc. What means 'crowns worn by brides'? — Rabbah b. Bar Hanah said in the name of R. Johanan: A [miniature] golden city.¹³ There is a teaching to the same effect: What are 'crowns worn by brides'? — A golden city. But one may make a cap for her out of fine wool. A Tanna taught: They also decreed against [the use of] the canopy of bridegrooms. What means 'canopy of bridegrooms'? — Crimson silk embroidered with gold. There is a teaching to the same effect. The canopy of bridegrooms is crimson silk embroidered with gold. But we may make a framework of laths and hang on it anything one desires.

AND THAT NOBODY SHOULD TEACH HIS SON GREEK. Our Rabbis taught: When the kings of the Hasmonean house fought one another,¹⁴ Hyrcanus was outside and Aristobulus within. Each day¹⁵ they used to let down denarii in a basket, and haul up for them [animals for] the continual offerings. An old man there, who was learned in Greek wisdom,¹⁶ spoke with them¹⁷ in Greek,¹⁸ saying: 'As long as they carry on the Temple-service, they will never surrender to you'. On the morrow they let down denarii in a basket, and hauled up a pig.¹⁹ When it reached half way up the wall, it stuck its claws [into the wall] and the land of Israel was shaken over a distance of four hundred parasangs. At that time they declared, - 'Cursed be a man who rears pigs and cursed be a man who teaches his son Greek wisdom!' Concerning that year we learnt that it happened that the 'omer²⁰ had to be supplied from the gardens of Zarifim and the two loaves from the valley of En-Soker.²¹ But it is not so!²² For Rabbi said: Why use the Syrian language in the land of Israel? Either use the holy tongue or Greek! And R. Joseph said: Why use the Syrian language in Babylon? Either use the holy tongue or Persian! — The Greek language and Greek wisdom are distinct.²³ But is Greek philosophy forbidden? Behold Rab Judah declared that Samuel said in the name of Rabban Simeon b. Gamaliel, What means that which is written: Mine eye affecteth my soul, because of all the daughters of my city?²⁴ There were a thousand pupils in my father's house; five hundred studied Torah and five hundred studied Greek wisdom, and of these there remained only I here and the son of my father's brother in Assia!²⁵ — It was different with the household of Rabban Gamaliel because they had close associations with the Government;²⁶ for it has been taught: To trim the hair in front²⁷ is of the ways of the Amorites;²⁸ but they permitted Abtilus b. Reuben²⁹ to trim his hair in front because he had close associations with the Government. Similarly they permitted the household of Rabban Gamaliel to study Greek wisdom because they had close associations with the Government.

DURING THE FINAL WAR THEY DECREED THAT A BRIDE SHOULD NOT GO OUT IN A PALANQUIN etc. Why? — For reasons of chastity.³⁰

WHEN RABBAN JOHANAN [B. ZAKKAI] DIED, [THE LUSTRE OF] WISDOM CEASED. Our Rabbis taught: When R. Eliezer died, the Torah-scroll was hidden away.³¹ When R. Joshua died, counsel and thought ceased.³² When R. Akiba died, the arms of the Torah ceased and the fountains of wisdom were stopped up. When R. Eleazar b. Azariah died, the crowns of wisdom ceased, because the crown of the wise is their riches.³³ When R. Hanina b. Dosa died, men of deed ceased. When Abba³⁴ Jose b. Ketanta died, the pious men ceased; and why was his name called Abba Jose b. Ketanta? Because he was the youngest of the pious men. When Ben Azzai died, the assiduous students [of Torah] ceased. When Ben Zoma died, the expositors ceased. When Rabban Simeon b. Gamaliel died, locusts³⁵ came up and troubles increased. When Rabbi died, troubles were multiplied twofold.

CHAPTER I

MISHNAH. WHEN DO WE [BEGIN TO] MAKE MENTION OF THE POWER OF RAIN?¹ R. ELIEZER SAYS: ON THE FIRST DAY OF THE FEAST.² R. JOSHUA SAYS: ON THE LAST DAY OF THE FEAST. R. JOSHUA SAID TO HIM: SEEING THAT RAIN ON THE FEAST IS A SIGN OF [GOD'S] ANGER³ WHY MAKE MENTION OF IT? THEREUPON R. ELIEZER SAID TO HIM: I ALSO DID NOT SAY TO PRAY⁴ BUT TO MAKE MENTION [IN THE WORD] 'HE CAUSETH THE WIND TO BLOW AND THE RAIN TO FALL'⁵ -IN ITS DUE SEASON. HE [R. JOSHUA] REPLIED TO HIM: IF THAT IS SO ONE SHOULD AT ALL TIMES MAKE MENTION OF IT.

WE PRAY FOR RAIN ONLY CLOSE TO THE RAINY SEASON. R. JUDAH SAYS: THE LAST TO STEP BEFORE THE ARK⁶ ON THE LAST DAY OF THE FEAST MAKES MENTION, THE FIRST DOES NOT; ON THE FIRST DAY OF PASSOVER THE FIRST MAKES MENTION, THE LAST DOES NOT.

GEMARA. What has the Tanna [in mind] when he teaches WHEN etc.?⁷ -The Tanna refers to [a Mishnah] elsewhere which teaches: We make mention of the Power of Rain in the [benediction of] the Revival of the Dead,⁸ and we pray for [rain] in the Benediction of the Years⁹ and [we insert] the Habdulah¹⁰ in [the benediction] 'Thou favourest man with knowledge'.¹¹ [With that passage in mind] the Tanna now teaches: When do we [begin] to make mention of the Power of Rain? Would it not have been more appropriate to teach it there, why did he leave it until now? — [Say] rather, because the Tanna had just completed [learning the Tractate] Rosh Hashanah¹² where we have learnt: And on the Feast [the world] is judged through water. And, [as there] he taught: 'And on the Feast [the world] is judged through water,' therefore there he teaches: When do we [begin] to make mention of the Power of Rain. But let him teach: When do we [begin] to make mention of Rain: why, the Power of Rain? -R. Johanan said: Because Rain comes down by the Power [of God], as it is said, Who doeth great things und unsearchable, marvellous things without number.¹³ And it is [further] written, Who giveth rain upon the earth, and sendeth waters upon the fields.¹⁴ Where [in these verses is this idea] implied? — Rabbah b. Shila replied: It is derived from the analogous use of the word heker in verses treating of Creation. Here it is written, 'Who doeth great things and unsearchable'. And there it is written, 'Hast thou not known? hast thou not heard that the everlasting God, The Lord, the Creator of the ends of the earth, fainteth not, neither is weary? His discernment is past searching out.'¹⁵ And [of Creation] it is [also] written, Who by Thy strength settest fast the mountains, Who art girded about with might.¹⁶ Whence do we know that mention of Rain is to be made in the Prayer?¹⁷ - It has been taught: To love the Lord your God and to serve Him with all your heart.¹⁸ What is Service of Heart? You must needs say, Prayer. And the verse following reads, That I will give the rain of your land in its season, the former rain and the latter rain.¹⁹

R. Johanan said: Three keys the Holy One blessed be He has retained in His own hands and not entrusted to the hand of any messenger, namely, the Key of Rain, the Key of Childbirth, and the Key of the Revival of the Dead. The Key of Rain, for It is written, The Lord will open unto thee His good treasure, the heaven to give the rain of thy land in its season,²⁰ The Key of Childbirth, for it is written, And God remembered Rachel, and God hearkened

(1) The term 'power of Rain' is applied to the phrase 'He causeth the wind to blow and the rain to fall' inserted in the second benediction of the prayer known as 'the Eighteen Benedictions' — The Tefillah (v. Glos.) On the expression POWER OF RAIN v. infra.

- (2) The Feast, הַחֹהֵן, the name by which the festival of Tabernacles is referred to in Mishnah and Talmud. Cf. I Kings VIII, 2, 65; Neh. VIII, 14, 15.
- (3) Lit., curse, v. Suk. 28b.
- (4) I.e., to insert in the ninth benediction the words, 'Give dew and rain for a blessing upon the face of the earth'.
- (5) V. n. 1.
- (6) To step before the Ark (tebah), a technical term denoting the recitation of the tefillah or the Amidah by the reader. V. R.H., Sonc. ed. p. 160, n. 9.
- (7) What is the Tanna's authority that the power of rain has to be mentioned at all?
- (8) The second benediction.
- (9) The ninth benediction.
- (10) Additional prayer inserted in the fourth benediction in the evening service at the termination of Sabbath and festivals.
- (11) Ber. 33a.
- (12) The order of the tractates of the Mishnah mentioned here is the same as given by the Gaon Sherira of Pumbeditha (968 C.E.) in the letter addressed by him to the community of Kairwan. (V. Neubauer Med. Jew. Chronicles, p. 13). The same sequence is given by Maimonides in the Introduction to his Commentary on the Mishnah.
- (13) Job V, 9-10. The Gemara cites IX, 10, but the commentators substitute for it V, 9 which makes the sequence of ideas clearer.
- (14) V. supra n. 5.
- (15) Isa. XL, 28.
- (16) Ps. LXV, 7. Rabbah b. Shilah infers from the analogous use of the word יָקַר, in Job (where it speaks of rain) and Isaiah (where it refers to Creation) that just as God displayed 'Power' at Creation so too 'Power is a concomitant of rain. Hence the expression, POWER OF RAIN.

Talmud - Mas. Ta'anith 2b

to her, and opened her womb.¹ The Key of the Revival of the Dead, for it is written, And ye shall know that I am the Lord, when I have opened your graves.² In Palestine they said: Also the Key of Sustenance, for it is said, Thou openest thy hand etc.³ Why does not R. Johanan include also this [key]? — Because in his view sustenance is [included in] Rain.⁴

R. ELIEZER SAYS: ON THE FIRST DAY OF THE FEAST etc. The question was asked, Whence did R. Eliezer derive this? Did he learn it from Lulab⁵ or from the Libation of Water?⁶ If he learnt it from Lulab, then just as the obligation of the use of the Lulab comes into force on the [first] day of Tabernacles, so too should we begin to make mention of rain on that day. Or perhaps he learnt it from Libation. [If so, then] just as Water Libation may be [carried out] on the evening [preceding the first day] — (for a Master [interpreting the verse], And the meal-offering thereof and their drink-offerings,⁷ said, Even by night)-so too should one begin to make mention of rain on that evening!⁸ — Come and hear: R. Abbahu said: R. Eliezer deduced it from Lulab only. Some there are who say: R. Abbahu had a tradition. Whilst others say: He based it on a Baraitha. Which is the Baraitha? — It has been taught: 'When do we [begin to] make mention of Rain? R. Eliezer says: From the time of the taking up of the Lulab; R. Joshua says, From the time when the Lulab is discarded.'⁹ Said R. Eliezer: Seeing that these Four Species are intended only to make intercession for water,¹⁰ therefore as these cannot [grow] without water so the world [too] cannot exist without water. R. Joshua said to him: Is not rain on the Feast a sure sign of [God's] anger? R. Eliezer replied: I too did not say to pray but to make mention. And just as one makes mention of the Revival of the Dead all the year round¹¹ although it will take place only in its proper time, so too should mention be made of the Power of Rain all the year round although it comes only in its due season. Therefore if one desires to make mention all the year round he may do so. Rabbi says: I hold the view that when one ceases to pray [for rain]¹² one should also no longer make mention of it. R. Judah b. Bathyra says: On the second day of the Feast one [begins] to make mention. R. Akiba says: On the sixth day of the Feast. R. Judah says in the name of R. Joshua: The last to step before the Ark on the last day of the Feast makes mention, the first does not; on the first day of Passover the first makes mention, the last does not. Did not then R. Eliezer reply well to R. Joshua?— R. Joshua can answer you: It is quite in order to make mention of the Revival of the Dead [all the year round], since any day may be its time, but is rain seasonable at all times? Have we not learnt: Should Nisan terminate and then rain fall it is a sign of [God's] anger, for it is said, Is it not wheat harvest to-day etc.?¹³

‘R. Judah b. Bathyra says: on the second day of the Feast one [begins] to make mention’. What is R. Judah b. Bathyra's reason? — It has been taught: R. Judah b. Bathyra says, Of the second day of the Feast, Scripture Says, we-niskehem,¹⁴ [‘and their drink-offerings’] and of the sixth day, u-nesakeah¹⁵ [‘and its drink-offerings’] and of the seventh day, kemishpatam¹⁶ [according to their rule]. Note [the letters] Mem, Yod, Mem which form the word mayim [‘water’].¹⁷ Here you have the biblical allusion to the Libation of Water. And what makes him [R. Judah b. Bathyra] fix it on the second day? — Because [the first of the allusions to the Water Libation] is found in connection [with the order for] the second day. Hence why we should [begin] to make mention on the second day. R. Akiba says: On the sixth day of the Feast one [begins] to make mention, for of the sixth day Scripture says, And its drink-offerings.¹⁸ Scripture thus speaks of two libations,¹⁹ the Libation of Water and the Libation of Wine. Perhaps both Libations must be of wine? — He [R. Akiba] is of the same opinion as R. Judah b. Bathyra who said, There is an allusion to water.²⁰

(8) [On this first interpretation of Rashi this verse is irrelevant and is to be omitted, v. Rashi. On the second interpretation the argument will run as follows: Should R. Eliezer deduce his opinion from the Water Libation, the mention of rain would have to be mentioned in the evening, seeing that the evening is a time at which drink-offerings (of wine) may be offered. Once, however, it is granted that the mention of rain starts on the evening, it will have to be the preceding, so as to be on the same day as the Water Libation (the night always being counted with the following day). Talmud - Mas. Ta'anith 3a

If he accepts the view of R. Judah b. Bathyra let him also agree with him [that one begins to make mention on the second day of the Feast]? — R. Akiba holds the view that the additional Libation occurs in the text¹ on the sixth day.

It has been taught: R. Nathan says, In the holy place shalt thou pour out a drink-offering of strong drink unto the Lord.² Scripture [here] speaks of two Libations, the Libation of Water and the Libation of Wine.³ Perhaps both are of wine? — If it were so, he should have said, either hassek hassek or nasok nesek. What is the force [of the words] hassek nesek? — From this is to be inferred, that one points to the Libation of Water, and the other to the Libation of Wine.⁴

Who is the authority for that which we have learnt, The Libation of Water [is performed] throughout the seven days [of the Feast]? Is it R. Joshua? He would have stated on one day only!⁵ Is it R. Akiba? According to him it is performed on two days!⁶ Is it R. Judah b. Bathyra? According to him it is performed on six days?⁷ — I can still say, It is R. Judah b. Bathyra and he will hold the same opinion as R. Judah of the following Mishnah. For we have learnt: R. Judah says, A vessel of a log⁸ capacity was used for Libation throughout the eight days [of the Feast]; but he [R. Judah b. Bathyra] excludes the first day and includes the eighth day.⁹ Why does he exclude the first day? Is it because the [first of the] biblical allusions to water [is to be found] on the second day? Then the eighth day too should be excluded seeing that the last [of the] allusions to water is on the seventh day! — It must then be R. Joshua, and as for the Libation of Water being performed throughout the seven days [of the Feast] this is founded on a tradition;¹⁰ for R. Ami said in the name of R. Johanan, in the name of R. Nehunia a native¹¹ of the Plain of Beth-Hawartan,¹² the laws concerning the Ten Young Trees,¹³ the Willow of the Brook,¹⁴ and the Libation of Water are laws [communicated] to Moses from Sinai.¹⁵

'R. Judah in the name of R. Joshua says: The last to step before the Ark on the last day of the Feast makes mention [of rain], the first does not; on the first day of Passover the first makes mention, the last does not. Which R. Joshua? Is it R. Joshua of our Mishnah? Surely he said, ON THE LAST DAY OF THE FEAST ONE MAKES MENTION? Or, is it R. Joshua of the Baraitha? Surely he said: From the day that the Lulab is discarded? And further, when it is taught: R. Judah says in the name of Ben Bathyra: The last to step before the Ark on the last day of the Feast makes mention. Which Ben Bathyra [is meant]? Is it R. Judah b. Bathyra? Surely he said: On the second day of the Feast one makes mention? — R. Nathan bar Isaac replied: [In both passages cited] it is R. Joshua b. Bathyra. Sometimes he is called by his own name and some times he is referred to by his father's name; by the one before his ordination, and by the other after his ordination.

It has been taught: The Sages did not make it obligatory on one to make mention of dew and winds, but if one desires to make mention he may do so. What is the reason? — R. Hanina said: Because they are never withheld. And how do we know that dew is never withheld? — For it is written, And Elijah the Tishbite, who was of the settlers of Gilead, said to Ahab: As the Lord the God of Israel liveth, before whom I stand, there shall not be dew nor rain these years but according to my word.¹⁶ And it is written further, Go, show thyself unto Ahab, and I will send rain upon the land.¹⁷ Of dew, however, Scripture does not speak. Why?

Talmud - Mas. Ta'anith 3b

Because it is never withheld. But if it is never withheld, why did Elijah take an oath on it? — This is what he conveyed to him [Ahab]. The dew of blessing also would not fall. Then the dew of blessing should also have been restored? — Because the difference would not have been discernable. How do we know that winds are not withheld? R. Joshua b. Levi said: Scripture says, For I have spread you abroad as the four winds of heaven, saith the Lord.¹ What does the prophet desire to convey? Shall we say that the Holy One, blessed be He, spoke thus to Israel, 'I have scattered you to the four corners of the world'. If so, Scripture should have said not 'as the four' but 'to the four'. But this is what he meant: 'As the world cannot endure without winds, so too the world cannot exist without Israel'. R. Hanina said: Therefore, if in the summer one inserted [in the Tefillah the words], 'He causeth the wind to blow', he is not compelled to repeat [the Tefillah]; if, however, he said, 'He causeth the rain to fall', he is compelled to repeat [it]. Similarly, if in winter one did not insert, 'He causeth the wind to blow', he is not compelled to repeat; if, however, he did not say, 'He causeth the rain to fall', he is compelled to repeat. And furthermore, even if he said, 'He causeth the wind to pass and the dew to disappear',² he is not compelled to repeat.

A Tanna taught: The Sages did not make it obligatory to make mention of clouds and winds, but if one desires to make mention he may do so. What is the reason? Is it because they are never withheld? But are they never withheld? Did not R. Joseph learn, 'And He will shut up the heaven',³ means, in respect of clouds and winds. You say that this verse is in respect of clouds and winds, perhaps it is not so but means in respect of rain? When Scripture adds, So that there shall be no rain, rain is thus already referred to. What then is the force of [the words], And He will shut up the heaven? [It must mean] in respect of clouds and winds'. There will then be a contradiction between 'winds and winds' and between 'clouds and clouds'? — There is really no contradiction between clouds and clouds'. In the one case [the reference is] to early clouds⁴ and in the other to late clouds.⁵ Between winds and winds' too there is no contradiction; in the one case they are normal winds and in the other extraordinary winds.⁶ But are not extraordinary winds suitable for⁷ [winnowing] in the barn? — This can be done with sieves [independently of the wind].

A Tanna taught: The clouds and the winds are secondary to rain.⁸ Which are they? 'Ulla said, or as some say, R.⁹ Judah said: Those that come after the rain. Can we then say that these are beneficial? Is it not written, The Lord will make the rain of thy land powder and dust,¹⁰ and on this 'Ulla, or as some say, R. Judah commented, [This refers to] the wind following the rain?¹¹ — There is no contradiction; in the one case [it speaks] of when the rain comes down gently and in the other when it comes down with vehemence.¹² In the latter it throws up dust, and in the former it does not.

Rab Judah further said: Wind after rain is as beneficial as rain, clouds after rain as beneficial as rain, sunshine after rain as beneficial as twofold rain. What does this exclude? — The glow after sunset and sunshine between clouds.

Raba said: Snow is beneficial to the mountains as fivefold rain to the earth, as it is said, For he saith to the snow, 'Fall thou on the earth'; likewise to the shower of rain and to the showers of His mighty rain.¹³

Raba further said: Snow is beneficial to the mountain, heavy rain to the trees, gentle rain to the fruits of the field, drizzling rain ['urpila] even to the seeds under a hard clod. What is 'urpila? 'Uru pili ['Wake up ye cracks'].

Raba further said: A young scholar may be likened to the seeds under a hard clod; once he has sprouted he soon shoots forth.

Raba further said: If a young scholar gets into a rage it is because the Torah inflames him, as it is said, Is not my word like a fire? said the Lord.¹

R. Ashi said:² A scholar who is not as hard as iron is no scholar, as it is said, And like a hammer that breaketh the rock in pieces.³ R. Abba said to R. Ashi: You have learnt this from that verse but we have learnt it from the following verse: A land whose stones are iron.⁴ Do not read, abaneha [stones] but boneha [builders].⁵ Rabina said: Despite this, a man should train himself to be gentle, for it is said, Therefore remove vexation from thy heart, etc.⁶

R. Samuel b. Nahmani said in the name of R. Jonathan: Three [men] made haphazard requests,⁷ two of them were fortunate in the reply they received and one was not, namely, Eliezer, the servant of Abraham; Saul, the son of Kish; and Jephtha the Gileadite. Eliezer, the servant of Abraham, as it is written, So let it come to pass, that the damsel to whom I shall say, 'Let down thy pitcher etc.'⁸ She might have been lame or blind, but he was fortunate in the answer given to him in that Rebecca chanced to meet him. Saul, the son of Kish, as it is written, And it shall be, that the man who killeth him, the king will enrich him with great riches, and will give him his daughter.⁹ [He] might have been a slave or a bastard. He too was fortunate in that it chanced to be David. Jephtha, the Gileadite, as it is written, Then it shall be, that whatsoever cometh forth out of the doors of my house etc.¹⁰ It might have been an unclean thing. He, however, was fortunate in that it so happened that his own daughter came to meet him. This is what the prophet had in mind when he said to Israel, Is there no balm in Gilead? Is there no physician there?' And it is further written, Which I commanded not, nor spake it, neither came it to my mind.¹¹ 'Which I commanded not': This refers to the sacrifice of the son of Mesha, the king of Moab, as it is said, Then he took his eldest son that should have reigned in his stead and offered him for a burnt-offering.¹² 'Nor spake it'; This refers to the daughter of Jephtha.¹³ 'Neither came it to my mind': This refers to the sacrifice of Isaac, the son of Abraham.

R. Berekiah said: The Congregation of Israel also made a thoughtless request, yet God granted that request,¹⁴ as it is said, And let us know, eagerly strive to know the Lord. His going forth is sure as the morning: and He shall come to us as the rain.¹⁵ The Holy One, blessed be He, said to her [Israel]: My daughter, thou askest for something¹⁶ which at times is desirable and at other times is not desirable, but I will be unto thee something which is desirable at all times, as it is said, I will be as dew unto Israel.¹⁷ She further made another thoughtless request. She said before Him,: O God, Set me as a seal upon thy heart,- as a seal upon thine arm.¹⁸ Thereupon the Holy One, blessed be He, replied to her: My daughter, thou askest for something which at times can be seen and at other times cannot be seen. I, however, will make of thee something which can be seen at all times, as it is said, Behold I have graven thee upon the palms of My hands.¹⁹

WE PRAY FOR RAIN ONLY etc. [The scholars] were of the opinion that 'praying' and 'making mention' are one and the same thing. Who is the authority for this?-Raba replied: It is R. Joshua, who said, [We begin to make mention of rain] from the time when the Lulab is discarded —²⁰ Abaye said to him: You can even say, that it is R. Eliezer; 'praying', however, is one thing and 'making mention' is another. Others have the reading:

Shall we say it is R. Joshua, who said, From the time when the Lulab is disvow annulled by appealing to Phinehas who was in Gilead for a remission of the vow; cf. Gen. Rab. LX, .] carded? — Raba replied: You can even say that it is R. Eliezer; 'praying', however, is one thing and 'making mention' is another,

R. JUDAH SAYS: THE LAST TO STEP BEFORE THE ARK etc. The following was cited in contradiction to this: Until when do we [continue] to pray for rain? R. Judah says: Until Passover is over; R. Meir says, Until the end of Nisan! — R. Hisda replied: The two statements [of R. Judah] are not contradictory; the one refers to 'praying' and the other to 'making mention'; 'praying'¹ one continues [until] the end of Passover] but 'making mention' is discontinued on the first day [of Passover]. 'Ulla said: This [solution of the contradiction] by R. Hisda is as difficult as vinegar to the teeth, and as smoke for the eyes. If one makes mention of rain at such times when it is not permissible to pray for² [it], how much more so should one make mention of rain when it is permissible to pray for it? — It must be, says 'Ulla, that [there is a dispute] between two Tannaim as to the opinion of R. Judah. R. Joseph said: What is the meaning of, 'Until Passover is over'? Until the first reader on the first day of Passover is over [with his prayers].³ Said Abaye to him: Is there then a place in the Festival [Tefillah] for inserting the prayer for rain? He replied to him: Yes, the Meturgeman⁴ 'prays' — Does then the Meturgeman ever pray for something of which the community has no need? Therefore, the better solution is that of 'Ulla.

Rabbah said: What is the meaning of, 'Until Passover is over'? Until the time limit for the slaughtering of the Paschal offering has passed;⁵ and as at its beginning⁶ so at its end; just as at its beginning one makes mention [of rain] although one has not yet [begun] to pray,⁷ so too at its end he makes mention although he no longer has to pray.⁸ Abaye replied: I can understand that one should make mention at the beginning, seeing that making mention is a form of propitiation [prefatory to prayer] but as for the end, what place is there for such propitiation? Therefore, the better solution is that of 'Ulla.

R. Assi said in the name of R. Johanan, The halachah is according to R. Judah. Thereupon R. Zera asked R. Assi: Could then R. Johanan [really] have said so? Have we not learnt: We [begin] to pray for rain on the third of Marcheshvan; Rabban Gamaliel said: On the seventh of the same month — And with reference to this R. Eleazar declared: The halachah is according to Rabban Gamaliel. He [R. Assi] replied to him: You set one authority against another!⁹ Moreover, if you like I will say there is no contradiction; the one [case] speaks of 'praying' and the other of 'making mention'.¹⁰ But did not R. Johanan say: Whenever one prays one should also make mention? That [rule] applies only to the discontinuation [of 'praying'].¹¹ But did not R. Johanan say: When one begins to make mention one should also [begin] to pray; when one discontinues to pray one should also cease to make mention? — There is really no contradiction; one statement refers to us [Babylonians] and the other to them [Palestinians],¹² Why should we be different? — Is it because we have produce in the field?¹³ They also have Pilgrims?¹⁴ -R. Johanan speaks [of con — ditions] after Temple times.¹⁵ Now that you have arrived at this conclusion [I can say], Both teachings apply equally to them [Palestinians] and there is no contradiction; the one speaks [of conditions] in Temple times and the other [of conditions] after Temple times. But as for us who observe two days [of the festival],¹⁶ what shall our practice be? — Rab says: He begins [to make men-tion] in the Additional Service of the Eighth Day of the Feast, he discontinues in the Afternoon Service and in the Evening Service and in the Morning Service but resumes in the Additional Service of the second day. Samuel said to them [to the scholars]: Go and say to Abba:¹⁷ After you have declared the day holy¹⁸ can you declare it again a weekday?¹⁹ — Therefore Samuel said: He begins [to make mention] in the Additional Service and in the Afternoon Service and discontinues in the Evening Service and in the Morning Service [of the following day], and resumes it in the Additional Service

The function of this official in Talmudic times was to interpret to the audience in the Synagogue in a popular manner and to enlarge upon the theme of the rabbi lecturing. (13) And therefore rain was not opportune as long as the harvest had not been gathered in.

(14) And therefore mention of rain should be put off as late as possible to enable the Pilgrims to reach home in comfort before the rains set in. MISHNAH. UNTIL WHEN DO WE PRAY FOR RAIN? R. JUDAH SAYS: UNTIL THE PASSOVER IS OVER. R. MEIR SAYS: UNTIL

. Raba said: Once he has begun [to make mention] he should not discontinue. And so said R. Shesheth: Once he has begun he should not discontinue. Rab also retracted his statement. For R. Hananel said in the name of Rab: One counts twenty-one days from New Year¹ and begins to make mention in the same way as one counts Ten Days [of Penitence] from the New Year until the Day of Atonement; and once he has begun he should not discontinue. And the law is, once he has begun he should not discontinue.

THE END OF NISAN, AS IT IS SAID: AND HE CAUSETH TO COME DOWN FOR YOU THE RAIN, THE FORMER RAIN AND THE LATTER RAIN, AT THE FIRST.²

GEMARA. R. Nahman said to R. Isaac: Does then the former rain [fall] in Nisan? The former rain surely [falls] in Marcheshvan. It has been taught: Former rain, [falls] in Marcheshvan and latter rain in Nisan. He replied: Thus said R. Johanan, This verse³ was fulfilled in the days [of the prophet] Joel, the son of Pethuel, That which the palmer-worm hath left hath the locust eaten etc.⁴ In that year, although Adar had passed yet no rain had fallen, and it was not until the first of Nisan that the first rain, came down. Thereupon the prophet said to Israel, 'Go and sow' — They replied, If a man has a kab⁵ of wheat or two kabim of barley, should he eat them and keep himself alive, or sow them and die? He answered: 'Despite this, go and sow' — A miracle happened for them and they discovered whatever [grain] which was hidden [in the chinks of] the walls and in the ant-holes; they proceeded to sow on the second, on the third, and on the fourth and the second rain came down on the fifth of Nisan; on the sixteenth of Nisan they offered the 'Omer;⁶ and thus it so came about that the grain which should take six months to ripen ripened in eleven days.⁷ To that generation was applied the scriptural verses, They that sow in tears shall reap in joy. Though he goeth on his way weeping that beareth the measure of seed etc.⁸ What is the meaning of, 'Though he goeth on his way weeping that beareth the measure etc.'? — Rab Judah said: When the ox is ploughing, on his forward journey he weeps, but on his return journey he eats the young green from the furrows — And this is the force of the words, 'He shall come home with joy' — What is the meaning of, 'Bearing his sheaves'? — R. Hisda said: Others say it was taught in a Baraita: The stalk was then one span and the ear two spans.

R. Nahman said to R. Isaac: What is the meaning of the scriptural verse, For the Lord hath called for a famine, and it shall also come upon the land seven years?⁹ What had they to eat during these seven years? — He replied: Thus said R. Johanan, In the first year they ate what was stored up in the houses, in the second what was in the fields, in the third the flesh of clean animals, in the fourth the flesh of unclean animals, in the fifth the flesh of forbidden animals and reptiles, in the sixth the flesh of their sons and daughters and in the seventh the flesh of their own arms and thus the verse of Scripture was fulfilled, They eat every man the flesh of his own arms.¹⁰

Further, R. Nahman said to R. Isaac: What is the meaning of the scriptural verse, The Holy One in the midst of thee and I will not come in to the city?¹¹ [Surely it cannot be that] because the Holy One is in the midst of thee I shall not come into the city! He replied: Thus said R. Johanan: The Holy One, blessed be He, said, 'I will not enter the heavenly Jerusalem until I can enter the earthly Jerusalem'. Is there then a heavenly Jerusalem?—Yes; for it is written, Jerusalem thou art builded as a city that is compact together.¹²

R. Nahman further said to R. Isaac: What is the meaning of the verse, But they are altogether brutish and foolish; the vanities by which they are instructed are but a stock?¹³ — He replied: Thus said R. Johanan, There is one thing that brings about the perdition of the wicked in Gehenna¹⁴ and that is, idolatrous worship. Here it is written, 'The vanities by which they are instructed' and elsewhere [of the idols] it is written, They are a vanity, a work of delusion.¹⁵

R. Nahman further said to R. Isaac: What is the meaning of the verse, For my people have committed two evils?¹⁶ Were they only two? Has he then ignored the fact that they were twenty-four?¹⁷ — He [R. Isaac] replied: There is one [evil] which is equal to two, and that is, idolatrous worship, for it is written, For my people have committed two evils: they have forsaken me, the fountain of living waters and hewed them out cisterns, broken cisterns.¹ And further it is written, For pass over to the isles of the Kittites, and see, and send unto Kedar, and consider diligently etc. Hath nation changed its gods, which are yet no gods? But my people hath changed its glory for that which doth not profit.²

A Tanna taught: The Kittites worship fire and the Kedarites water, and although they know that water extinguishes fire they have yet not changed their gods but my people hath changed their God for that which doth not profit.

R. Nahman further said to R. Isaac: What is the meaning of the verse, And it came to pass when Samuel was old.³ Did Samuel ever reach old age? He lived only for fifty-two years. For a Master said: If a man dies in his fifty-second year he is said to have died at the age reached by Samuel, the Ramathite?⁴ — He replied: Thus said R. Johanan: Old age came prematurely upon him, for it is written, It repenteth Me that I have set up Saul to be king.⁵ Samuel complained before Him: Sovereign of the Universe! You have made me equal to Moses and Aaron, for it is written, Moses and Aaron are amongst His priests, and Samuel among them that call upon His name.⁶ As in the case of Moses and Aaron the work of their hands did not come to nought in their lifetime, so too let not the work of my hands come to nought in my lifetime. The Holy One, blessed be He, replied: How shall I act? Shall Saul die? Of this Samuel will not approve. Shall Samuel die young? People will speak ill of him.⁷ Shall neither Saul nor Samuel die? The time has come for David to reign and one reign may not encroach on another even by a hair's breadth. Thereupon the Holy One, blessed be He, said: I will make him prematurely old and this is what is written, Now Saul was sitting in Gibeah, under the Tamarisk tree in Ramah.⁸ How comes Gibeah to Ramah?⁹ This is to teach you that it was the prayer of Samuel the Ramathite that was the cause of Saul's two and a half years'¹⁰ sojourn as king in Gibeah? Should then one man be put aside because of another? — Yes, for R. Samuel b. Nahmani said in the name of R. Jonathan: What is the meaning of the verse, Therefore have I hewed them by the prophets, I have slain them by the words of my mouth?¹¹ Scripture does not say, by their works,' but, 'by the words of my mouth', this proves that one may be put aside because of another.

R. Nahman and R. Isaac were sitting at a meal and R. Nahman said to R. Isaac: Let the Master expound something. He replied: Thus said R. Johanan: One should not converse at meals lest the windpipe acts before the gullet and his life will thereby be endangered. After they ended the meal he added: Thus said R. Johanan: Jacob our patriarch is not dead. He [R. Nahman] objected: Was it then for nought that he was bewailed and embalmed and buried?—The other replied: I derive this from a scriptural verse, as It is said, Therefore fear thou not, O Jacob, My servant, saith the Lord; neither be dismayed, O Israel,— for, lo, I will save thee from afar and thy seed from the land of their captivity.¹²

The verse likens him [Jacob] to his seed [Israel]; as his seed will then be alive so he too will be alive.

R. Isaac said: Whosoever repeats [the name] Rahab, Rahab, becomes immediately subject to an onset of issue.¹³ Thereupon R. Nahman said to him: I have repeated it and was not in any way affected. R. Isaac replied: I speak only of one who knew her intimately (and recalls her likeness).¹⁴ When they were about to part, [R. Nahman] said: Pray Master, bless me. He replied: Let me tell you a parable — To what may this be compared? To a man who was journeying in the desert; he was hungry, weary and thirsty and he lighted upon a tree the fruits of which were sweet, its shade pleasant, and a stream of water flowing beneath it; he ate of its fruits, drank of the water, and rested under its shade. When he was about to continue his journey, he said: Tree, O Tree, with what shall I bless thee? Shall I say to thee, ‘May thy fruits be sweet’? They are sweet already; that thy shade be pleasant? It is already pleasant; that a stream of water may flow beneath thee? Lo, a stream of water flows already beneath thee; therefore [I say], ‘May it be [God's] will that all the shoots taken from thee be like unto thee’. So also with you. With what shall I bless you? With [the knowledge of the Torah?] You already possess [knowledge of the Torah]. With riches? You have riches already. With children? You have children already. Hence [I say], ‘May it be [God's] will that your offspring be like unto you’.

Our Rabbis have taught: [‘Former rain is termed] ‘yoreh’,¹ because it warns² people to plaster their roofs and to gather in their fruits and to attend to all their needs.³ Another explanation: It saturates⁴ the ground and waters it right down to its depths, as it is said, Watering her ridges abundantly, settling down the furrows thereof, thou makest her soft with showers; thou blessest the growth thereof.⁵ Another explanation: [It is termed] ‘yoreh’ because it comes down⁶ gently and not heavily. Or perhaps [it is termed] ‘yoreh’ because it causes the fruit to fall⁷ and it washes away the seed, and the trees? The text [therefore] adds ‘malkosh’ [‘latter rain’];⁸ just as latter rain is a blessing, so too is former rain. Or perhaps [it is termed] ‘malkosh’,⁹ because It razes the houses to the ground and it shatters the trees and brings up the crickets? The text [therefore] adds ‘yoreh’; just as former rain is a blessing so too is latter rain. How do we know that ‘yoreh’ itself is a blessing? — For it is written, Be glad then ye children of Zion, and rejoice in the Lord your God; for He giveth you the former rain [moreh] in just measure and He causeth to come down for you the rain, the former rain and the latter rain, at the first.¹⁰

Our Rabbis have taught: Former rain [falls] in Marcheshvan and latter rain in Nisan. You say, Former rain in Marcheshvan and latter rain in Nisan; perhaps it is otherwise, former rain in Tishri and latter rain in Iyar? The text [therefore] adds, in its due season.¹¹ R. Nehilai b. Idi said in the name of Samuel: [‘Latter rain’ is termed] ‘malkosh’ because it is a thing that removes the stiff-neckedness of Israel.¹² The school of R. Ishmael taught: It is something that fills the stalks with grain.¹³ In a Baraitha it has been taught: [It is] something which falls both upon the ears and upon the stalks.¹⁴

Our Rabbis have taught: Former rain [falls] in Marcheshvan and latter rain in Nisan. You say, Former rain in Marcheshvan; perhaps, on Kislev? The text [therefore] adds, ‘in its due season, former rain and latter rain, as latter rain is that which comes in due season (since should Nisan pass and no rain fall, it is not a sign of blessing)¹⁵ so too former is that which comes in due season.

Another [Baraitha] teaches: Former rain [falls] in Marcheshvan and latter rain in Nisan; this is the opinion of R. Meir; but the Sages say: Former rain [falls] in Kislev. Who are the Sages? R. Hisda replied: It is R. Jose. For it has been taught: Which is the first rainfall?¹⁶ The early [rain] falls on the third of Marcheshvan, the intermediate on the seventh, the late on the seventeenth; this is the opinion of R. Meir. R. Judah says: On the seventh, on the seventeenth, and on the twenty-third. R. Jose says: On the seventeenth, on the twenty-third and on the first of Kislev. And likewise R. Jose used to say: The individuals do not begin to fast until the first day of Kislev. R. Hisda said: The halachah is according to the opinion of R. Jose.

Amemar reported R. Hisda's statement in the following version: On the third day of Marcheshvan we pray for rain; Rabban Gamaliel says, On the seventh of the month. R. Hisda said: The halachah is according to Rabban Gamaliel. In accordance with whose view then is the following which has been taught: R. Simeon b. Gamaliel says: If rain falls on seven days in succession you may consider it as the combination of the first, the second [or the second] and the third rainfall?¹⁷ — It is in accordance with the opinion of R. Jose.¹⁸ R. Hisda said: The halachah is according to R. Jose. The reason for giving a date for the first rainfall is evident seeing that from that date we begin to pray for rain; likewise the date of the third rainfall is given because from that date we begin to fast; but what may be the reason for giving the date of the second rainfall?—R. Zera replied: It has to do with Vows. For we have learnt:

Talmud - Mas. Ta'anith 6b

If one interdicts himself by a vow [from the enjoyment of anything] until the rainy season or until rain has fallen, then his vow remains operative until the second rainfall.¹ R. Zebid said: It has to do with Olives — We have learnt: When is it permissible for any man to take of the gleanings² [of the field] and of the forgotten sheaves³ and of the corners of the field?⁴ After the nemushot have departed. When [is it permissible to take] of the grapes that have fallen off the branches and of the gleanings of the vine?⁵ After the poor have left the vineyard and have come back again. When of the olives?⁶ After the second rainfall.⁷ Who are the nemushoth?— R. Johanan said: Old People who walk on a staff⁸. Resh Lakish said: Those who glean behind the gleaners.⁹

R. Papa said: [The date of the second rainfall is necessary] so that travellers should know whether they may walk on private paths¹⁰ [across the fields]. For a Master said:¹¹ It is permissible for any one to walk on private paths until the second rainfall. R. Nahman b. Isaac said: [The date is necessary] for the disposal of the produce grown during the sabbatical year. For we have learnt: Until when is it permissible to derive benefit from the burning of straw and stubble grown in the sabbatical year? Until the second rainfall.¹² Why? Because it is written, And for thy cattle, and for the beasts that are in thy land;¹³ so long as there is food for the beast in the field you may feed your cattle in the house, but when there is no more food in the field for the beast to eat, you must withhold food that is in your house from the cattle.

R. Abbahu said: What is the meaning of rebi'ah?¹⁴ That which fructifies the ground — This is according to the teaching of Rab Judah who said: Rain is the husband of the soil, for it is written, For as the rain cometh down and the snow from heaven, and returneth not thither except it water the earth, and make it bring forth and bud.¹⁵

R. Abbahu further said: The first rainfall [to be beneficial] should be sufficient to penetrate the soil one handbreadth deep, the second should be sufficient to make of it a stopper for a cask.

R. Hisda said: When it has rained sufficient to make [of the soil] a stopper for a cask then [the curse contained in the words 'and He will shut up']¹⁶ does not apply.

R. Hisda further said: If rain came down before [the time for reciting in the Shema'], 'and He will shut up' then the curse contained in these words does not apply.¹⁷ Abaye thereupon interjected: This only holds good when the rain fell before [the time for the recital of the words,] 'and He will shut up' in the evening [Shema'], but if rain fell before [the time for their recital in] the morning [Shema'] then the curse can still be said to apply.¹⁸ For R. Judah b. Isaac said: The morning clouds have no significance, for it is written, O Ephraim, what shall I do unto thee? For your goodness is as the morning cloud, etc.¹⁹ Said R. Papa to Abaye: But people say, if it rains when the gates are opened [in the morning], 'lay down thy sack ass-driver and sleep'!²⁰ — This is no contradiction. In the one case the heavens are overcast with thick clouds and the other with light clouds.²¹

Rab Judah said: Happy is the year wherein [the month of] Tebeth is widowed.²² Some say it is so because the gardens do not lie waste²³ [or, because the schools are not empty]; others say, Because the grain will not become subject to blast. Is that so? Did not R. Hisda say: Happy is the year wherein [the month of] Tebeth is muddy!²⁴ — This is no contradiction. The former is the case when rain had already fallen [in the previous months] and the latter when it had not yet fallen.

R. Hisda further said: If rain falls on some parts of the country and not on others then [the curse contained in the words], ‘and He will shut up’ cannot be said to apply. Is that so? Is it not written, And I also have withholden the rain from you, when there were three months to the harvest: and I caused it to rain upon one city and caused it not to rain upon another city; one piece was rained upon etc.²⁵ And referring to this verse, Rab Judah said in the name of Rab: Both are a curse! — There is no contradiction. In the one case [Scripture speaks of] abnormal rain and in the other of normal rain. R. Ashi said: This can in fact be proved from the use of the word timoter in the verse, that is to say, it will be a place [flooded by] rain.²⁶ And thus [the interpretation] is proved.

R. Abbahu said: When do we [begin to] recite the benediction over rain?²⁷ When the bridegroom goes forth to meet the bride.²⁸ What benediction should one recite? — Rab Judah said in the name of Rab: ‘We give thanks unto Thee, O Lord, our God for every single drop which thou hast caused to fall upon us’. And R. Johanan concluded the benediction thus: ‘Though our mouths were full of song as the sea, and our tongues of exultation as the multitude of its waves, etc.!’ until, ‘Let not Thy mercies forsake us O Lord, our God, even as they have not forsaken us. Blessed art Thou to Whom abundant thanksgivings are due’. ‘Abundant thanksgivings’ and not ‘all the thanksgivings’? — Raba replied: Read, ‘The God to Whom thanksgivings are due’. R. Papa said: Therefore are due’.

R. Abbahu said: The day when rain fails is greater than [the day of] the Revival of the Dead, for the Revival of the Dead is for the righteous only whereas rain is both for the righteous and for the wicked. And he differs from the opinion of R. Joseph who said: As [rain] is equal to the Revival of the Dead the mention of it has therefore been inserted in the section of the Revival of the Dead.¹

Rab Judah said: The day when rain falls is as great as the day when the Torah was given, as it is said, My doctrine shall drop as the rain:² and by ‘doctrine’ surely, Torah is meant as it is said, For I give you good doctrine, forsake ye not my Torah.³ Raba said: It is even greater than the day when the Torah was given, as it is said, My doctrine shall drop as the rain.⁴ Who is dependent upon whom? You must needs say, the lesser upon the greater.⁵

Raba pointed out a contradiction. It is written ‘My doctrine shall drop as the rain’, and immediately on this follows, My speech shall distil as dew.⁶ [The implication here is]. if the scholar is a worthy person then he is like unto dew, but if he is not then drop him like rain.⁷

It has been taught in a Baraita: R. Banna'ah used to say: Whosoever occupies himself with the Torah for its own sake his learning becomes an elixir of life to him, for it is said, It is a tree of life to them that grasp it;⁸ and it is further said, It shall be as health to thy navel;⁹ and it is also said, For whoso findeth me findeth life.¹⁰ But, whosoever occupies himself with the Torah not for its own sake, it becomes to him a deadly poison, as it is said, My doctrine shall drop as the rain, and ‘arifa surely means, death, as it is said, And they shall break [we'arfu] the heifer's neck there in the valley.¹¹

R. Jeremiah said to R. Zera: Pray, Master, come and teach. The latter replied: I do not feel well enough¹² and am not able to do so. [Then said R. Jeremiah] Pray, Master, expound something of an aggadic character, and he replied: Thus said R. Johanan: What is the meaning of the verse, For is the tree of the field man?¹³ Is then man the tree of the field? [This can only be explained if we connect the verse with the words immediately before it] where it is written, For thou mayest eat of them, but thou shalt not cut them down; but then again it is written, ‘It thou shalt destroy and cut down’?¹⁴ How is this to be explained?-If the scholar is a worthy person learn [eat] from him and do not shun [cut] him, but if he is not destroy him and cut him down.

R. Hama b. Hanina said: What is the meaning of the verse, Iron sharpeneth iron?—¹⁵ This is to teach you that just as in the case of one [iron] iron sharpeneth the other so also do two scholars sharpen each others mind by halachah.

Rabbah b. Hanah said: Why are the words of the Torah likened to fire, as it is said, Is not my word like as fire? saith the Lord?¹⁶ This is to teach you that just as fire does not ignite of itself so too the words of the Torah do not endure with him who studies alone. This is in agreement with what R. Jose b. Hanina said: What is the meaning of the verse, A sword is upon the lonely,¹⁷ and they shall become fools?¹⁸ This means, destruction comes upon the enemies¹⁹ of such scholars who confine themselves to private study; and what is even more they become stultified, as it is said, And they shall become fools; and what is more they are guilty of sin. For here it is written, And they shall become fools, and there it is written, For that we have done foolishly and for that we have sinned.²⁰ If you wish, you can infer it from the following verse, The princes of Zoan are become fools . . . they have caused Egypt to go astray.²¹

R. Nahman b. Isaac said: Why are the words of the Torah likened to a tree, as it is said, It is a tree of life to them that grasp it? This is to teach you. just as a small tree may set on fire a bigger tree so too it is with scholars, the younger sharpen the minds of the older. This will be in agreement with what R. Hanina said: I have learnt much from my teachers, and from my colleagues more than from my teachers, but from my disciples more than from them all.

R. Hanina b. Papa pointed out a contradiction . It is written, Unto him that is thirsty bring ye water;²² and it is also written Ho, everyone that thirsteth come ye for water.²³ If he is a worthy disciple, then, ‘Unto him that is thirsty bring ye water’, but if he is not, then, ‘Ho, everyone that thirsteth come ye for water’.

R. Hanina b. Hama pointed out a contradiction. It is written, Let thy springs be dispersed abroad,²⁴ and it is also written, Let them be only thine own!²⁵ If he is a worthy disciple. ‘Let thy springs be dispersed abroad,’²⁶ but if not, ‘Let them be thine own’.

R. Hanina b. Ida said: Why are the words of the Torah likened unto water-as it is written, ‘Ho, everyone that thirsteth, come ye for water’? This is to teach you, just as water flows from a higher level to a lower, so too the words of the Torah endure only with him who is meekminded. R. Oshaia said: Why are the words of the Torah likened unto these three liquids, water, wine and milk — as it is written, ‘Ho, everyone that thirsteth come ye for water’; and it is written, Come ye, buy and eat; yea, come buy wine and milk without money, and without price?²⁷ This is to teach you, just as these three liquids can only be preserved in the most inferior of vessels, so too the words of the Torah endure only with him who is meekminded. This is illustrated by the story of the daughter of the Roman Emperor²⁸ who addressed R. Joshua b. Hanania, ‘O glorious Wisdom in an ugly vessel’. He replied, ‘Does not your father keep wine in an earthenware vessel?’ She asked, ‘Wherein else shall he keep it?’ He said to her, ‘You who are nobles should keep it in vessels of gold and silver’. Thereupon she went and told this to her father and he had the wine put into vessels of gold and silver and it became sour. When he was informed of this he asked his daughter, ‘Who gave you this advice?’ She replied. ‘R. Joshua b. Hanania’ — Thereupon the Emperor had him summoned before him and asked him, ‘Why did you give her such advice?’ He replied, ‘I answered her according to the way that she spoke to me’. But are there not good-looking people who are learned?

— If these very people were ugly they would be still more learned.¹ Another explanation: Just as these three liquids can become unfit for consumption only through inattention,² so too the words of the Torah are forgotten only through inattention.

R. Hania b. Hanina said: The day when rain falls is as great as the day on which heaven and earth were created, as it is said, Drop down, ye heavens from above, and let the skies pour down righteousness: let the earth open, that they may bring forth salvation, and let her cause righteousness to spring up together; I the Lord have created it.³ It is not said, 'I created them', but I have created it.⁴

R. Oshaia said: The day when rain falls is great for on it even salvation springs forth and waxes great, as it is said, 'Let the earth open, that they may bring forth salvation'.

R. Tanhum b. Hanilai said, No rain falls unless the sins of Israel have been forgiven, as it is said, Lord, Thou hast been favourable unto Thy land, Thou hast turned the Captivity of Jacob. Thou hast forgiven the iniquity of Thy people, Thou hast pardoned all their sins. Selah.⁵ Ze'iri of Dahabath⁶ said to Rabina: You have learnt it from this verse, but we have learnt from the following verse, Then hear Thou in heaven and forgive the sin etc.⁷

R. Tanhum the son of R. Hiyya of Kefar Acco⁸ said: Rain is withheld only when the enemies of Israel⁹ have merited destruction as it is said, Drought and heat consume the snow waters; so doth the nether world those that have sinned.¹⁰ Ze'iri of Dahabath said to Rabina: You have learnt from this verse, but we have learnt it from the following verse, And He will shut up the heaven . . . and ye perish quickly.¹¹

R. Hisda said: Rain is withheld only because of the neglect to bring heave-offerings and tithes, as it is said, Drought and heat¹² consume the snow waters. How is this derived from the verse? — In the school of R. Ishmael it was taught: Because you have not performed in the summer the things I have commanded you, you shall be denied snow waters in the winter.

R. Simeon b. Pazzi said: Rain is withheld only because of those who talk slander, as it is said, The north wind bringeth forth rain, and a backbiting tongue an angry countenance.¹³

R. Salla said in the name of R. Hamnuna: Rain is withheld only because of the insolent, as it is said, Therefore the showers have been withheld, and there hath been no latter rain; yet thou hadst a harlot's forehead etc.¹⁴

R. Salla further said in the name of R. Hamnuna: Any man who is insolent stumbles in the end into sin, for it is said, 'Thou hadst a harlot's forehead'. R. Nahman said: It is evident that he [actually] stumbled into sin, for it is said 'Thou hadst' and not, 'thou wilt have'. Rabbah the son of R. Huna said: It is permissible to call 'wicked' any one who is insolent, as it is said, A wicked man hardeneth his face.¹⁵ R. Nahman the son of R. Isaac said: One may even hate him, as it is said, And the boldness of his face is changed.¹⁶ Do not read yeshuneh [changed] but yesuneh [hated].

R. Kaltina said: Rain is withheld only because of the neglect of the Torah, as it is said, By slothfulness the rafters sank in [yimak].¹⁷ Because of the sloth displayed by Israel in not occupying themselves with the Torah the enemy of the Holy One, blessed be He,¹⁸ becomes Poor. Mak, actually means, poor, as it is said, But if he be too poor [mak] for thy valuation.¹⁹ Mekoreh actually denotes God, as it is said, Who layest [ha-mekoreh] the beams of Thine upper chambers in the waters.²⁰ R. Joseph derived it from the following verse, And how men see not the light which is bright in the skies; but the wind passeth and cleanseth them.²¹ And 'light' surely means Torah, as it is said, For the commandment is a lamp and the teaching [Torah] is light.²² 'Which is bright in the skies': [With reference to this] it was taught In the school of R. Ishmael: Even when the heavens are full of white spotted clouds ready to cause dew and rain to fall a wind passes and cleanses them.²³

R. Ammi said: Rain is withheld only because of the sin of violent robbery, as it is said, He covereth His hands with the lightning;²⁴ that is to say, for the sin [of violent robbery committed by] their hands He covereth the light. And 'hands' surely signifies, violent robbery, as it is said, And from the violence that is in their hands,²⁵ and 'light' Surely [stands for] rain, as it is said, He spreadeth abroad the cloud of His lightning.²⁶ What is then his remedy? — Let a man make many prayers, as it is said, And giveth it a charge that it strike the mark [be-mafgi'ah],²⁷ and pegi'ah is prayer, as it is said, Therefore pray not thou for this people . . . neither make intercession [tifga'] to me.²⁸

R. Ammi further said: What is the meaning of the verse, If the iron be blunt, and one do not whet the edge?²⁹ If you see the sky hard as iron so that neither dew nor rain fall, this is to be attributed to the deeds of the generation which are corrupt, as it is said, And one do not whet the edge. What then shall be their remedy? Let them make many prayers [for mercy], as it is said, Then must he put to more strength; but wisdom is profitable to direct.³⁰ [The latter words indicate,] how much more [efficacious their prayer would prove] if their deeds had originally been righteous.³¹

It is a well established Talmudic teaching that no amends can be made for robbery by prayer alone; this must be accompanied by restitution, v. infra 16a and Yoma 85b.]

to whom his studies are as hard as iron,¹ it is because he has failed to systematize his studies, as it is said, And one do not whet the edge.² What is his remedy? Let him attend the school even more regularly, as it is said, Then must he put to more strength; but wisdom is profitable to direct. [The latter words indicate] how much more profitable would his efforts be if he had originally systematized his studies. Thus for example, Resh Lakish made it his practice to repeat in systematic order his studies forty times corresponding to the forty days³ during which the Torah was given, and only then would he come before R. Johanan. R. Adda b. Abbahu made it his practice to repeat in systematic order his studies twenty-four times corresponding to the [twenty-four books⁴ which embody] the Torah, the Prophets and the Hagiographa, and only then would he come before Raba.

Raba said: If you see a student who finds his studies as hard as iron, it is because his teacher does not encourage him,⁵ as it is said, 'and one do not whet the edge'.⁶ What is his remedy? Let him seek many companions [to intercede for him with his teacher], as it is said. 'Then must he put to more strength; but wisdom is profitable to direct.' [The latter words indicate,] how much more successful he would have been had his efforts originally found favour with his teacher.

R. Ammi further said: What is the meaning of the verse, If the serpent bite before it is charmed, then the charmer hath no advantage?⁷ If you see a generation over whom the heavens are rust coloured⁸ like copper so that neither dew nor rain falls, it is because that generation is wanting in men who pray softly.⁹ What then is their remedy? Let them go to one skilled in the art of praying softly, as it is written, The noise thereof telleth concerning it.¹⁰ 'Then the charmer hath no advantage' [means]: 'As to him who is skilled in the art of praying softly and does not do so what benefit has he?'¹¹ But if he has prayed softly and was not answered, what is his remedy? Let him go to the most pious man of that generation that he may intercede abundantly for him, as it is said, And giveth it a charge that it strike the mark [be-mafgia'h]. and striking the mark [pegi'ah] is prayer, as it is said, Therefore pray not thou for this people, neither lift up cry nor prayer for them, neither make intercession [tifga'] to Me.¹² But if he did pray softly and proved successful and on account of this he becomes overproud he thereby brings divine displeasure upon the world, as it is said, The cattle also concerning the storm that cometh up.¹³

Raba said: Two scholars who reside in the same city but are intolerant of each other in matters of halachah provoke anger and bring it upon themselves, as it is said, The cattle also concerning the storm that cometh up.¹⁴

Resh Lakish said: What is the meaning of the verse, If the serpent bite before it is charmed, then the charmer hath no advantage? In the Messianic age all animals will assemble and come to the serpent and say to him, 'The lion claws [his victim] and devours him, the wolf tears him and devours him, but as for thee what benefit dost thou derive? His reply will be, The charmer hath no advantage.¹⁵

R. Ammi said: A man's prayer is only answered if he takes his heart into his hand,¹⁶ as it is said, Let us lift up our heart with our hands.¹⁷ [But it is not so. Surely]¹⁸ Samuel appointed an amora¹⁹ to act for him and his exposition ran thus: But they beguiled Him with their mouth, and lied unto Him with their tongue. For their heart was not steadfast with Him, neither were they faithful in His covenant; and yet, But He being full of compassion, forgiveth iniquity etc.²⁰ — This is no contradiction. The one refers to the individual, and the other to the community.²¹

R. Ammi said: Rain falls only for the sake of Men of Faith,²² as it is said, Truth springeth out of the earth and righteousness hath looked down from heaven.²³

R. Ammi further said: Come and see how great the Men of Faith are as is evidenced from the episode of the Weasel²⁴ and the Well. If this is the case with one who trusts in the Weasel and the Well how much more so if one trusts in the Holy One blessed be He!

R. Johanan said: He who leads a righteous life [on earth below]²⁵ is judged strictly [in heaven] above, as it is said, Truth springeth out of the earth and righteousness hath looked down from heaven. R. Hiyya b. Abin in the name of R. Huna [adduced this lesson] from this verse, And Thy wrath according to the fear that is due unto Thee.²⁶ Resh Lakish said: [It may be adduced] from this verse, Thou didst take away him that joyfully worked righteousness, those that remembered Thee in Thy ways — behold Thou wast wroth, and we sinned-upon them have we stayed of old, that we might be saved.²⁷

R. Joshua b. Levi said: He who joyfully bears the chastisements that befall him brings salvation to the world as it is said, 'Upon them have we stayed of old, that we might be saved'.

Resh Lakish said: What is the meaning of the verse, And He will shut up the heaven?²⁸ — When the heavens are shut up so that neither dew nor rain falls it is like to a woman who is in labour but who cannot give birth. This is in keeping with what Resh Lakish said in the name of Bar Kappara: 'Withholding' is applied to rain, and 'withholding' is applied to a woman;

(8) Taking נשך to bite, in the Aramaic sense of שתך to become rusty coloured; נחש shortened for נחשת copper. The heavens are, so to speak, covered with a deposit of copper-rust and this prevents rain and dew from falling.

(9) לחש to charm, is also used in the sense of, to whisper. and then to pray. The Tefillah (v. Glos.) was recited in silence.

(13) Job XXXVI, 33- The verse is generally interpreted, that the cattle through their greater sensitiveness to atmospheric conditions feel in advance the coming of the storm. The Gemara reads מקנה (for מקנה of the Massoretic Text) in the sense of, acquire, and it takes אף to be a noun meaning anger; and עולה exalted or elated (with pride). The meaning of the verse according to this interpretation would be: He brings upon the world divine displeasure who is overbearing with pride because his prayer was answered.

(14) Raba takes מקנה=...התקנה ב to provoke; אף as previously, and על יעולה= that cometh up.

(15) Heb. בשל הלשון lit., 'the man of tongue'; figuratively, the slanderer. The allusion here is to the tempting of Eve, Gen. III.

(19) Same as Meturgeman. V. supra p. 12, n. 4.

(20) Ps. LXXVIII, 36-38. [MS.M. adds: 'Do these (verses) not contradict one another'. This reading makes unnecessary the insertion noted on p. 32, n. 7. V. Marginal Glosses.]

(21) The prayers of a community are accepted even if they do not come up to the higher standard set by R. Ammi.

(22) Trustworthy men, honest in business. Cf. Prov. XXVIII, 20 איש אמונות.

(23) Ps. LXXXV, 12. R. Ammi takes the verse to mean: When there is truth on earth righteousness symbolizing rain, (cf. Isa. XLV, 8) looketh down from heaven.

(24) An allusion to the story of a young man who extracted a promise of marriage from a maiden who had fallen into a well, if he rescued her. The well and a passing weasel were made witnesses to the undertaking and avenged subsequently the maiden for the young man's breach of promise. V. Rashi and Tosaf. a.l. and Aruch s.v. הלד.

Talmud - Mas. Ta'anith 8b

'withholding' is applied to a woman, as it is said, For the Lord had fast closed up all the wombs;¹ and 'withholding' is applied to rain, as it is written, 'And He will shut up the heaven.' 'Bearing' is applied to a woman, and 'bearing' is applied to rain; 'bearing' is applied to a woman, as it is written, And she conceived and bore a son;² and 'bearing' is applied to rain, as it is written, And make it bear³ and bud.⁴ 'Remembering' is applied to a woman and 'remembering' is applied to rain; 'remembering' is applied to a woman, as it is written, And the Lord remembered Sarah;⁵ and 'remembering' is applied to rain, as it is written, Thou hast remembered the earth, and watered her, greatly enriching her, with the river of God that is full of water.⁶ What is the meaning of, 'With the river of God that is full of water'? — A Tanna taught: There is in heaven a kind of chamber from which the rain issues.

R. Samuel b. Nahmani said: What is the meaning of the verse, Whether it be for correction, or for His earth, or for mercy, that He cause it to come?⁷ If the rain is 'for correction,' [then it falls] upon the mountains and upon the hills; if it is 'for mercy', He causes it to come upon His earth, upon the fields and upon the vineyards;⁸ if it is 'for correction', upon the trees; if it is upon His earth, upon the seeds [in the ground]; if it is 'for mercy', He causes it to come for cisterns, pits and caves.

In the days of R. Samuel b. Nahmani there was a famine and pestilence. People asked, What shall we do? Shall we pray for [the removal] of the two? That is not possible. Let us then pray for [the removal of] the pestilence and we will endure the famine. Thereupon R. Samuel b. Nahmani said to them: Let us rather pray [for the removal of] the famine, because when the All-Merciful gives plenty, He gives it for the living, as it is said, Thou openest Thy hand, and satisfiest every living thing with favour.⁹ How do we know that it is not fitting to pray for two things [at the same time]? — Because it is written, So we fasted and besought our God for this.¹⁰ ‘This’ would indicate that there were other things to pray for. In the West [Palestine] it was reported in the name of R. Haggai that it could be adduced from this verse, That they might ask mercy of the God of heaven concerning this secret.¹¹ ‘This would indicate that there were other things too [to pray for]. In the days of R. Zera there was a religious persecution and fasting was also prohibited. R. Zera said to his colleagues: Let us now resolve to fast and when the decree is rescinded we will observe these fasts. His colleagues asked him: What is your authority for this? He replied: Because it is written, Then said he unto me, ‘Fear not, Daniel, for from the first day when thou didst set thy heart to understand, and to humble thyself before thy God, thy words were heard’.¹²

R. Isaac said: If rain falls on the eve of Sabbath then though the years be [years of drought] as in the days of Elijah¹³ it is yet none-the-less but a sign of [divine] anger.¹⁴ This is in agreement with the statement of Rabbah b. Shila who said: The day when rain falls is as hard [to bear]¹⁵ as a day of Judgment.¹⁶ Amemar said: Were it not that mankind must have rain we would pray and have it cease.

R. Isaac further said: Sunshine on the Sabbath is an act of kindness towards the poor, as it is said, But unto you that fear My name shall the sun of righteousness arise with healing in its wings.¹⁷

R. Isaac further said: The day when rain falls is great for thereon even the peruta¹⁸ in one's purse is blessed, as it is said, To give the rain of Thy land in its season, and to bless all the work of thy hands.¹⁹

R. Isaac further said: Blessing is only possible in things hidden from sight, as it is said, The Lord will command the blessing with thee in thy barns.²⁰ In the school of R. Ishmael it was taught: Blessing is only possible in things not under the direct control of the eye, as it is said, ‘The Lord will command the blessing with thee in thy barns.’

Our Rabbis have taught: On entering the barn to measure the new grain one shall recite the benediction, ‘May it be Thy will O Lord, our God, that Thou mayest send blessing upon the work of our hands’. Once he has begun to measure he says, ‘Blessed be He who sends blessing into this heap’. If, however, he first measured the grain and then recited the benediction then his prayer is in vain, because blessing is not to be found in anything that has been already weighed or measured or numbered, but only in a thing hidden from sight.

(Mnemonic: Gathering of Armies, Charity, Tithes, Sustenance.)

R. Johanan said: The day on which rain falls is as great as the day of the Gathering of exiled [Israel,] as it is said, Turn our captivity: O Lord, as the streams in the dry land.²¹ By ‘streams’ rain is meant, as it is said, And the channels of the sea appeared.²²

R. Johanan further said: The day when rain falls is great, for thereon even warring armies cease [fighting], as it is said, Watering her ridges abundantly, settling down the furrows thereof.²³

R. Johanan further said: Rain is withheld only on account of those who subscribe to charity in public and fail to pay, as it is said, As vapours and wind without rain, so is he that boasteth himself of a false gift²⁴

Talmud - Mas. Ta'anith 9a

, Thou shalt surely tithe?¹ Give tithes that you may be enriched.² R. Johanan met the young son³ of Resh Lakish and said to him, 'Recite to me the Bible verse [you have learnt to-day]. The latter replied, 'Thou shalt surely tithe', at the same time asking, 'What may be the meaning of these words?' R. Johanan answered, 'Give tithes that you may be enriched'. The boy then asked, 'Whence do you adduce this?' R. Johanan replied: 'Go test it [for yourself]'. The boy thereupon asked: Is it permissible to try the Holy One, blessed be He, seeing that it is written, Ye shall not try the Lord?⁴ -R. Johanan replied: Thus said R. Oshaia: The case of tithe-giving is excepted [from the prohibition], as it is said, Bring ye the whole tithe unto the storehouse, that there may be food in My house, and try Me now herewith, saith the Lord of Hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing, that there shall be more than sufficiency.⁵ (What is the meaning [of the words], 'That there shall be more than sufficiency?' — R. Rami b. Hama said in the name of Rab: Until your lips grow weary from saying, 'It is enough'.) The boy thereupon exclaimed, Had I reached this verse [in my Bible studies] I should need neither you nor R. Oshaia, your teacher. On another occasion R. Johanan met the young son of Resh Lakish sitting and reciting the verse, The foolishness of man perverteth his way; and his heart fretteth against the Lord.⁶ R. Johanan thereupon⁷ exclaimed in amazement: Is there anything written in the Hagiographa to which allusion cannot be found in the Torah? The boy replied: Is then this verse not alluded to in the Torah, seeing that it is written, And their heart failed them, and they turned trembling one to another, saying: 'What is this that God hath done unto us?'⁸ R. Johanan lifted up his eyes and stared at him, whereupon the boy's mother came and took him away, Saying to him, 'Go away from him, lest he do unto you as he did unto your father'.⁹

R. Johanan further said: Rain may fall even for the sake of an individual but sustenance [is granted] only for the sake of the many. [That] rain [may fall] for the sake of even one man may be learnt from the verse where it is written, The Lord will open unto thee his good treasure, the heaven to give the rain of thy land;¹⁰ sustenance for the sake of the many, as it is written, Behold I will cause to rain bread for you.¹¹

An objection was raised: R. Jose the son of R. Judah says: Three good leaders had arisen for Israel, namely. Moses, Aaron and Miriam, and for their sake three good things were conferred [upon Israel], namely, the Well,¹² the Pillar of Cloud and the Manna; the Well, for the merit of Miriam; the Pillar of Cloud for the merit of Aaron; the Manna for the merit of Moses. When Miriam died the well disappeared, as it is said, And Miriam died there,¹³ and immediately follows [the verse], And there was no water for the congregation; and it returned for the merit of the [latter] two. When Aaron died the clouds of glory disappeared, as it is written, And the Canaanite, the king of Arad heard.¹⁴ What news did he hear? He heard that Aaron had died, and that the clouds of glory had disappeared; he thought that he was free to make war on Israel. Therefore it is written, And all the congregation saw that Aaron was dead.¹⁵ With reference to which R. Abahu said: Do not read, 'they saw' [wayir-u] but 'they were seen' [wayyero-u].¹⁶ This is also in accordance with the view of Resh Lakish who said: [The word] ki may be used in four different senses, namely, 'if' 'perhaps'. 'but', 'because'.¹⁷ The two [the Well and the Cloud] returned because of the merit of Moses, but when Moses died all of them disappeared, as it is said, And I cut off the three shepherds in one month.¹⁸ Did they then all [three] die in one month? Did not Miriam die in Nisan, Aaron in Ab and Moses in Adar? This therefore is meant to teach you that the three good gifts which were given because of their merit were nullified and they all disappeared in one month. Thus we find that sustenance¹⁹ may be granted for the sake of one individual! — The case of Moses is exceptional; as he prayed on behalf of the many, he himself is regarded as a multitude.

R. Hunah b. Manoah and R. Samuel b. Idi and R. Hiyya of Wastanya²⁰ were wont to attend the discourses of Raba. When Raba died they came to those of R. Papa and whenever he expounded to them a law which did not appeal to them they winked at one another, and thus hurt him greatly.

In a dream he was made to recite the verse, 'And I cut off the three shepherds'. When next day these disciples took leave of him he said to them, Go in peace.¹

R. Shimi b. Ashi was wont to frequent [the discourses] of R. Papa and used to annoy him, very much with questions. One day he observed that R. Papa fell on his face² [in prayer] and he heard him saying. 'May God preserve me from the insolence of Shimi'. The latter thereupon vowed silence and annoyed him no more [with questions].

Resh Lakish too held the view that rain may fall even for the sake of an individual, for Resh Lakish said: Whence do we adduce that rain may fall even for the sake of an individual? Because it is written, Ask ye of the Lord rain in the time of the latter rain, even of the Lord that maketh lightnings, and He will give them showers of rain, to every one grass in the field.³ You might have thought, only when all need [it]. therefore Scripture says. 'to everyone'. Further, it has been taught: Had Scripture said, 'to everyone' [only] you might have thought [rain would fall] only when one needs it for all his fields, therefore Scripture adds, 'field'. Had the word 'field' [been used] you might have thought only when the whole field needs [rain] Scripture therefore adds, 'grass'. This is borne out by the case of Daniel b. Kattina who had a garden which he was in the habit of inspecting daily and he would exclaim, 'This bed needs water and that one does not'; and rain would fall on those beds that needed water.

What is the meaning of the verse, 'Even the Lord that maketh hazizim [lightnings]? — R. Jose son of R. Hanina said: This teaches that God provides a haziz for each righteous man. What are hazizim? Rab Judah said: Porehoth.⁴ R. Johanan said: Porehoth are a sign of [coming] rain. What are porehoth? — R. Papa said: A thin cloud under a thick cloud. Rab Judah said: Should fine rain come down before the heavy rain then the rain will continue for some time; should it follow a heavy downpour of rain then the rain will soon cease. If before the rain, the rain will continue, of this the sieve serves as a reminder; if after a heavy rain, the rain will cease, of this goats' excrement serves as a reminder.⁵

'Ulla chanced to be in Babylon and observing light clouds [porehoth] he exclaimed, 'Remove the vessels for rain is now coming'. No rain however fell and he exclaimed, As the Babylonians are false, so too is their rain.

'Ulla chanced to be in Babylon and observing that a basketful of dates was being sold for a zuz⁶ he exclaimed, 'A basketful of honey for a zuz and yet the Babylonians do not occupy themselves with the study of the Torah'. During the night he was in agony [from eating the dates] and he then exclaimed, 'A basketful of knives for a zuz and yet the Babylonians occupy themselves with the study of the Torah.

It has been taught: R. Eliezer said: The whole world draws its water supply from the waters of the ocean, as it is said, But there went up a mist from the earth and watered the whole of the ground.⁷ Thereupon R. Joshua said to him: But are not the waters of the ocean salty? He replied: They are sweetened by the clouds. R. Joshua said: The whole world drinks from the upper waters, as it is said, And drinketh water as the rain of heaven cometh down.⁸ If so, what is the force of the verse, 'But there went up a mist from the earth'? This teaches that the clouds grow in strength as they rise towards the firmament and then open their mouth as a flask and catch the rain water, as it is said, Which distil rain from His vapour,⁹ they are perforated like a sieve and they slowly distil [mehashroth] waters on the ground. as it is said, Distilling [hashroth] of waters, thick clouds of the skies;¹⁰ there is but one hand-breadth space between one drop and another, in order to teach you that the day on which rain falls is as great as the day whereon heaven and earth were created, as it is said, Who doeth great things past finding out;¹¹ and it is written, Who giveth rain upon the earth;¹² and it is also written, Hast thou not known? hast thou not heard that the everlasting God, the Lord . . . His discernment is past finding out?¹³

Whose view is supported by the verse, Who waterest the mountains from Thine upper chambers,¹⁴ which R. Johanan interprets to mean the upper chambers of the Almighty? Whose view? — It is that of R. Joshua. And R. Eliezer's¹⁵ view?—As [the waters] ultimately find their way above [Scripture] aptly terms them, 'from Thine upper chambers'¹⁴ For if it were not so, how will you explain, Powder and dust from heaven?'¹⁶ What you must [say is] that as these rise upwards [from the ground] the words, 'from heaven' are quite aptly applied to them. Likewise as the waters eventually find their way above Scripture aptly refers to them as, from Thine upper chambers'. Whose view supports R. Hanina who said this, He gathereth the waters of the sea together as a heap; He layeth up the deeps in storehouses,¹⁷ [as meaning,] Who caused the storehouses to be filled with grain? The deeps—the view of R. Eliezer. And what of R. Joshua's [view]?¹⁸ — That [verse] refers to Creation of the world.

Our Rabbis have taught: Palestine was created first and then the rest of the world, as it is said, While as yet He had not made the earth, nor the fields.¹ Palestine is watered by the Holy One, blessed be He, and the rest of the world is watered by a messenger, as it is said, Who giveth rain upon the earth, and sendeth waters upon the fields.² Palestine is watered by the rain and the rest of the world is watered by the residue,³ as it is said, 'Who giveth rain upon the earth, etc'.⁴ Palestine is watered first and then the rest of the world, as it is said, 'Who giveth rain upon the earth, etc'. This may be compared to a man making cheese; he removes first what is edible and discards the refuse.

The Master said: '[The waters of the ocean] are sweetened by the clouds' — Whence does he learn this? R. Isaac b. Joseph said in the name of R. Johanan: It is written, Darkness of waters, thick clouds of the skies,⁵ and it is also written, Distilling of waters, thick clouds of the skies,⁶ take away the kaf and add it to the [word written with] resh and read haksharath.⁷ As for R. Joshua what use does he make of these verses? — He is of the opinion that these verses are the basis for the statement made by R. Dimi when he came [to Babylon] and he reported that in Palestine people say, If the clouds are bright they contain little water, but if they are dark they contain much water.⁸ In keeping with whose view is the teaching which has been taught: The upper waters remain suspended by Divine command, and their fruit is the rain-water, as it is said, The earth is full of the fruit of Thy works?⁹ This is according to R. Joshua. And as for R. Eliezer?-[He is of the opinion] that this [verse] refers to the other handiwork of God.

R. Joshua b. Levi said: The whole world is watered by the residue of the Garden of Eden, as it is said, And a river went out of Eden, etc.¹⁰ A Tanna taught: The residue of a kor¹¹ is enough to irrigate a tarkab.¹²

Our Rabbis taught: Egypt is four hundred parasangs by four hundred, and it is one sixtieth of the size of Ethiopia; Ethiopia is one sixtieth of the world, and the world is one sixtieth of the Garden [of Eden].¹³ and the Garden is one sixteenth of Eden, and Eden is one sixtieth of Gehenna;¹⁴ thus the whole world compared with the Gehenna is but as a lid to the pot. Some say that Gehenna has no limit in size; others say that Eden is without limit. R. Oshaia said: What is the meaning of the verse, O thou that dwellest upon many waters, abundant in treasures?¹⁵ What has brought it about that Babylon's treasures are full of corn? Because it dwells by many waters.¹⁶ Rab said: Babylon is rich because it harvests without rain. Abaye said: We have a tradition, Better is a flooded land than an arid land.

MISHNAH. ON THE THIRD OF MARCHESHVAN WE [BEGIN TO] PRAY FOR RAIN. R. GAMALIEL SAYS: ON THE SEVENTH, [THAT IS.] FIFTEEN DAYS AFTER THE FEAST SO THAT THE LAST ISRAELITE¹⁷ MAY REACH THE RIVER EUPHRATES.

GEMARA. R. Eleazar said: The halachah is according to R. Gamaliel. It has been taught: Hananiah says: In the Diaspora¹⁸ [we do not begin to pray] until the sixtieth day after the [Tishri] cycle.¹⁹ R. Huna b. Hiyya said in the name of Samuel: The halachah is according to Hananiah. Is it really so? Was not a question asked of Samuel: When do we begin to make mention [of the words] 'and give dew and rain'? and he replied, 'When wood is brought into the house of Tabut,²⁰ the fowler'? — Perhaps the two time limits are identical. A question was asked in the school: Is the sixtieth day counted with those that precede it or with those that follow it?²¹ -Come and hear:²² Rab said: The sixtieth day is counted with those that follow it; and Samuel said: With those that precede it.²³ R. Nahman said: The mnemonic for this is, the highlands need water, but the lowlands do not.²⁴ R. Papa said: The halachah is that the sixtieth day is counted with those that follow it.²⁵

MISHNAH. IF THE SEVENTEENTH OF MARCHESHVAN CAME AND NO RAIN FELL THE YEHDIM²⁶ [INDIVIDUALS] BEGIN TO FAST THREE FASTS; THEY MAY EAT AND DRINK AFTER IT GETS DARK²⁷ [AND ON THESE FASTS] IT IS PERMISSIBLE FOR THEM TO DO WORK, TO BATHE, TO ANOINT THEMSELVES WITH OIL, TO WEAR SHOES, AND TO HAVE

of Tabernacles may reach home without being inconvenienced by the rain. MARITAL RELATIONS. IF THE NEW MOON OF KISLEV CAME AND NO RAIN FELL THE BETH DIN ORDAIN UPON THE COMMUNITY THREE FASTS; [ON THESE] THEY MAY EAT AND DRINK WHILST IT IS STILL DARK AND IT IS PERMISSIBLE TO DO WORK, TO BATHE, TO ANOINT ONESELF WITH OIL, TO WEAR SHOES, AND TO HAVE MARITAL RELATIONS.

GEMARA. Who are the yehidim? R. Huna said: The rabbis. R. Huna further said: The yehidim fast three fasts, [that is to say, on] Monday, Thursday and Monday. What new fact does he teach us? Has it not already been taught to us:²⁸ No fast is ordained upon the community to begin on a

Thursday in order to prevent a rise in food prices.²⁹ Hence the order of the first three fasts must be, Monday, Thursday, Monday? You might have thought that this applies only to public fasts but not to those of individuals therefore he teaches us [that it applies] equally to those of individuals. The same has been taught us elsewhere: When the yehidim begin to fast they fast on Monday, Thursday and Monday, and they interrupt³⁰ their fasts on New Moon and on such festive days as are enumerated in the Scroll of Fasts.¹

The Rabbis have taught: Let not a man say, 'I am but a disciple and I am therefore not worthy to consider myself a yahid', since all Disciples of the Wise are accounted yehidim. Who is a yahid? And who is a disciple? A yahid is one worthy to be appointed Leader of the Community; a disciple is one who is asked any question of halachah connected with his studies and can answer it — even though it is on a subject dealt with in the Tractate Kallah.² Our Rabbis have taught: Not everyone desirous to consider himself a yahid may do so;³ a disciple however may do so; this is the opinion of R. Meir. R. Jose says: Anyone may do so, and may he be remembered for good, because it is not an advantage to him but a hardship. Another [Baraitha] teaches: Not everyone desirous to consider himself a yahid may do so; a disciple however may do so; this is the opinion of R. Simeon son of R. Eliezer. R. Simeon b. Gamaliel says: This only applies to things which are to his distinction⁴ but in things which cause him hardship any one may do so and may he be remembered for good, because it is not an advantage to him but a hardship.

Our Rabbis have taught: If one fasted on account of some visitation and it passed, or for a sick person and he recovered, he should nevertheless complete his fast. If one journeys from a place where they do not fast to a place where they do, he should fast with them; from a place where they do fast to a place where they do not, he should nevertheless complete his fast. If he forgot and ate and drank let him not make it patent in public nor may he indulge in delicacies, as it is written, And Jacob said to his sons: Why should you show yourself?⁵ Jacob conveyed thereby to his sons' 'When you are fully sated do not show yourselves either before Esau or before Ishmael that they should not envy you'. See that ye fall not out by the way. R. Eleazar said: Joseph said to his brethren, 'Do not busy yourselves with questions of law lest the road become uncertain for you [you lose the way]'.⁶ Is it really so; did not R. Elia b. Berackiah say: Two scholars who are journeying on the road and they do not discuss words of Torah merit to be devoured by fire, as it written, And it came to pass, as they still went on and talked, that behold, there appeared a chariot of fire, and horses of fire, which parted them asunder?⁷ — [They parted asunder] only because they talked [of Torah] but if they had not talked they would have merited to be devoured by fire! — There is no contradiction. The latter case speaks of repeating one's studies, and the former of cogitation.

A Tanna taught: [Joseph said to his brethren] 'Do not take big strides and bring the sun into the city'. 'Do not take big strides': For a Master said: Big strides rob a man of one five-hundredth part of his eyesight. 'And bring the sun into the city': As Rab Judah said in the name of Rab: Let a man always leave [the city by 'daylight',⁸ and enter it by 'daylight, as it is said, As soon as the morning was light, the men were sent away.⁹ Rab Judah said¹⁰ in the name of R. Hiyya: He who journeys on the road should not eat more than one eats in years of famine. Why? Here [in Babylonia] they explained the reason to be in order to prevent digestive troubles¹¹ but in Palestine they said, in order [to make] his provisions last [throughout the whole journey]. What is the difference between the two [reasons]? — The difference is apparent in the case of a man on board ship¹ or of a man journeying from one inn to another.² R. Papa ate a piece of bread at every parasang; he was therefore of the opinion that the reason is in order to prevent digestive troubles.³

(1) Megillath Ta'anith. A chronicle enumerating thirty-five eventful days in the history of the Jewish people on which fasting is forbidden. The Scroll was written between 66-70 C.E. V. Zeitlin, Megillat Taanit.

(2) There are two explanations of the term Kallah. (a) It is the name of an apocryphal tractate of the Talmud not usually studied. (b) The term signifies the half-yearly assemblies in the Babylonian schools in Adar and Elul when a particular tractate was studied and the lecture sessions thrown open to all. V. Shab. 114a and commentaries ad loc.; J.E. VII, 423. and Kid., Sonc. ed. p. 247 n. 4.

Rab Judah said in the name of Rab:⁴ He who starves himself in years of famine escapes unnatural death, as it is said, In famine He will redeem thee from death.⁵ [Scripture should have said] 'from famine'. This is therefore what [Scripture] meant to convey. As a reward for starving himself in years of famine one will escape unnatural death. Resh Lakish said: A man may not have marital relations during years of famine, as it is said, And unto Joseph were born two sons before the year of famine came.⁶ A Tanna taught: Childless people may have marital relations in years of famine. Our Rabbis have taught: When Israel is in trouble and one of them separates himself from them, then the two ministering angels who accompany every man come and place their hands upon his head and say, 'So-and-so who separated himself from the community shall not behold the consolation of the community'. Another [Baraita] taught: When the community is in trouble let not a man say, 'I will go to my house and I will eat and drink and all will be well with me'. For of him who does so Scripture says, And behold joy and gladness, slaying oxen and killing sheep, eating flesh and drinking wine — 'Let us eat and drink, for to-morrow we shall die'.⁷ What follows after this [verse]? — And the Lord of Hosts revealed Himself in mine ears; surely this iniquity shall not be expiated by you till ye die. This is the conduct of the ordinary man, but what does Scripture say of the conduct of the wicked? Come ye, I will fetch wine, and we will fill ourselves with strong drink; and to-morrow shall be as this day.⁸ What follows after this [verse]? The righteous perisheth, and no man layeth it to heart . . . that the righteous is taken away from the evil to come.⁹ But rather a man should share in the distress of the community, for so we find that Moses, our teacher, shared in the distress of the community, as it is said, But Moses' hands were heavy; and they took a stone and put it under him, and he sat thereon.¹⁰ Did not then Moses have a bolster or a cushion to sit on? This is then what Moses meant [to convey], 'As Israel are in distress I too will share with them. He who shares in the distress of the community will merit to behold its consolation'.¹¹ Perhaps a man will say, 'Who is there to testify against me?' The very stones of his house and its beams testify against him, as it is written, For the stone shall cry out of the wall, and the beam out of the timber shall answer it.¹² In the school of R. Shila it was taught: The two ministering angels who accompany every man testify against him, as it is said, For He will give His angels charge over thee.¹³ R. Hidka says: A man's own soul testifies against him, as it is said, Keep the doors of thy mouth from her that lieth in thy bosom.¹⁴ And some say: A man's own limbs testify against him, as it is said, Ye are my witnesses saith the Lord.¹⁵

A God of faithfulness and without iniquity.¹⁶ 'A God of faithfulness': Just as punishment will be exacted of the wicked in the world to come even for a slight transgression which they commit, So too is punishment exacted in this world of the righteous for any slight transgression which they commit. 'And without iniquity': Just as the righteous will receive their reward in the world to come, even for the least meritorious act which they do, so too are the wicked rewarded in this world even for the least meritorious act which they do. Just and right is He:¹⁷ They [the Rabbis] said: When a man departs to his eternal home all his deeds are enumerated before him and he is told, Such and such a thing have you done, in such and such a place on that particular day. And he replies, 'Yes'. Then they say to him. 'Sign' — And he signs, as it is said, He sealeth up the hand of every man.¹⁸ And what is even more, he acknowledges the justice of the verdict and he says. 'You have judged me well', in order that the words of Scripture may be fulfilled, That thou mayest be justified when Thou speakest.¹⁹

Samuel said: Whosoever fasts [for the sake of self-affliction] is termed a sinner. He is of the same opinion as the following Tanna. For it has been taught: Eleazar ha-Kappar Berabbi²⁰ Says: What is Scripture referring to when it says [of the Nazirite] , And make atonement for him, for that he sinned by reason of the soul.²¹ Against which soul did he sin?²² [It must refer to the fact that] he denied himself wine. We can now make this inference from minor to major: If this man [Nazirite] who denied himself wine only is termed, Sinner, how much more so he who denies himself the enjoyment of ever so many things. R. Eleazar says: He is termed, Holy. as it is said, He shall be holy, he shall let the locks of the hair of his head grow long.²³ If this man [Nazirite] who denied himself wine only is termed, Holy. how much more so he who denies himself the enjoyment of ever so many things — How will then Samuel explain the verse wherein he is termed, Holy? — That refers to the locks growing long. And how will R. Eleazar explain the statement that he is termed, Sinner?—That is because he defiled himself [by contact with the dead]. But did R. Eleazar say so? Did he not say: Let a man always consider himself as if the Holy One dwells within him, as it is said, The Holy One in the midst of thee, and I will not come in fury?¹ — This is no contradiction. The one speaks of him, who is able to bear self-affliction and the other of one who is not able. Resh Lakish says: He is termed, Pious, as it is said, The Pious man² weans his own soul but he that is cruel etc.³ R. Shesheth, said: The young scholar who would afflict himself by fasting let a dog devour his meal.⁴

R. Jeremiah b. Abba said: There are no public fasts⁵ in Babylonia except [the Fast of] the Ninth of Ab.⁶ R. Jeremiah b. Abba further said in the name of Resh Lakish: A scholar may not afflict himself by fasting because he lessens thereby his heavenly work.⁷

THEY MAY EAT AND DRINK AFTER IT GETS DARK etc. R. Ze'ira said in the name of R. Hanina: An individual who has undertaken to fast though he may have eaten and drunk the whole of the [preceding] night, yet on the morrow he should recite the [special] prayer for fast days; if, however, he has continued his fast throughout the following night he may not recite the prayer for fast days [on the next day].⁸ R. Joseph asked: What view does R. Huna take? Does he take the view that one cannot [undertake a] fast for a matter of hours? Or perhaps one can undertake a fast for hours, but if one does so he should not recite the [special] prayer for fast days?⁹ — Abaye replied to him: It is quite definite R. Huna may hold the opinion that one can undertake a fast for a matter of hours and if one does so he may recite the [special] prayer for fast days, but here the case is different since he did not previously take upon himself¹⁰ [to fast]. Mar 'Ukba¹¹ chanced to come to Ganzaka¹² and he was asked: Is fasting for a matter of hours considered a fast or not? and he was unable to answer. [They then asked him] are wine-jars belonging to idolaters prohibited for use or not and he was unable to answer; [he was then asked] in which [garments] did Moses perform the service [in the Tabernacle] during the seven days of consecration¹³ and he was unable to answer. He went and inquired in the House of Learning and he was told, the law is that fasting for a matter of hours is considered a fast and we do recite the [special] prayer for fast days [if one has completed the fast].¹⁴ Further the law is that wine-jars belonging to idolaters may be used after twelve months; Moses performed the service during the seven days of consecration dressed in a white frock. R. Kahana taught: In a white frock without a border.¹⁵

R. Hisda said:

(1) Hosea XI, 9. R. Eleazar holds the view that the divine is ever present in man. How could then a man who fasts be called holy seeing that he humiliates God through his fasting.

(2) E.V. 'merciful'. Resh Lakish takes חַסִּיד as denoting חַסִּיד.

(3) Prov. XI, 17. Resh Lakish takes גִּמְלָה in the sense of, to wean (e.g., Gen. XXI, 8). He refrains from food (Rashi). [Aliter: Resh Lakish considers the one who does not fast as pious on this view the verse is rendered: The pious man doeth good to his own soul, v. Tosaf. s.v. גִּמְלָה]

(4) He deserves to have no food on which to break his fast.

(5) Observed with the same strictness as the fast of the ninth of Ab.

(6) [The reference is (a) to rain fasts of which some were subject to the stringencies of the ninth of Ab (v. infra 30a). As Babylon could do with a minimum of rain (v. supra) such fasts were not decreed (v. Tosaf. s.v. אֵין); (b) To fasts decreed for some visitation. Since there was no Sanhedrin in Babylon they were not treated as public fasts. An exception to this rule is the ninth of Ab which has been decreed for all generations by a Sanhedrin of a former age. v. Me'iri, a.I.]

(7) He weakens himself by fasting and consequently his studies suffer.

(8) Every fast must be explicitly undertaken on the preceding day. קִבְלַת תַּעֲנִית In the case where he merges one day's fast into another for which he has failed to make that undertaking he is not entitled to recite the עֲנִי prayer (v. P. B. p. 50) since the second day's fast in the absence of the undertaking is considered no fast and can be broken at will (Rashi).

(9) [I.e. is R. Huna's view that a fast that has not been undertaken in the preceding day is considered no fast at all, and consequently may be broken at will, or though the fast prayer is not provided for such a fast, it is nevertheless considered a fast in so far that once begun it has to be continued to the end of the stipulated time (Rashi). For other interpretations v. R. Hananel and R. Gershom.]

(10) [I.e., the question whether fasting by hours is considered a fast has no bearing on it. Huna's case where the individual incidentally merged one day's fast into another without at all intending the second day to be a fast. Where, however, a man vows to fast for a number of hours, the fast indeed may be considered a fast in every respect (Rashi).]

Talmud - Mas. Ta'anith 12a

With reference to what you said that one may fast for a matter of hours this only applies if [the man concerned] had not tasted anything until the evening. Abaye said to him: This is then a full fast! — This speaks of a case where the fast was only an after thought.¹

R. Hisda further said: A fast over which the sun has not set cannot be deemed a fast. An objection was raised against this. The men of the Mishmar fast but do not complete [the day]. [There fasting] is merely in order to afflict themselves [in sympathy with the community].²

Come and hear: R. Eleazar b. Zadok said: I am a descendant of Sena'ah³ of the tribe of Benjamin; once the [fast of] the ninth of Ab fell on the Sabbath and we postponed it until the day after the Sabbath and we fasted but did not complete the fast because it was our festive day!⁴ — There too the fasting was merely in order to afflict themselves [in sympathy with the community].

Come and hear: R. Johanan [once] said: 'I will fast until I return home'! — There he said this merely in order to evade the hospitality of the house of the Nasi.⁵

Samuel said: A fast which one does not undertake before sunset on the previous day is not deemed to be a fast. But what if a man does observe such a fast? — Rabbah b. Shila replied: It may be compared to a pair of bellows filled with wind.⁶ At what time should one undertake such a fast? — Rab said: During the time that one may read the Afternoon Service, and Samuel said, In the course of the Afternoon Tefillah. R. Joseph said: The view of Samuel appears the more reasonable, since it is written in the Scroll of Fasts: Therefore any man who has been subject to a fast previous to this [i.e., the incidence of these festive days] should build himself⁷ [by an undertaking]. Does this not refer to an undertaking made during prayer?⁸ — No; this only denotes that he is forbidden [to break his fast because of his previous undertaking]. R. Hiyya and R. Simeon b. Rabbi differ on this question. One reads⁹ yesar¹⁰ ['he should bind himself by his under-taking'] and the other reads, yeaser¹¹ [he is forbidden, i.e., to break his fast]. The one who reads, yesar, justifies his view in the way we have just stated, but the one who reads, yeaser, what does this mean? — It has been taught in the Scroll of Fasts: Any man who is subject to a fast previous to this [incidence of these festive days] is forbidden [to break his fast]. How is this to be understood? If a man undertook to fast on Mondays and Thursdays throughout the year and any of the festive days enumerated in the Scroll of Fasts happens to fall on those days, then if his vow was made previous to our decree his vow overrides our decree, but if our decree was made before his vow then our decree overrides his vow.

Our Rabbis taught: Until when may one eat and drink [on the night preceding a fast]? Until the rise of dawn; this is the opinion of Rabbi. R. Eliezer b. Simeon says: Until cock crow. Abaye said: This only holds good where a man had not yet finished his meal, but if he had finished his meal he may not eat again.

Raba raised an objection against this: If one had completed his meal and rose from the table, he may eat further! — There it speaks of the case where he had not yet removed the [table].¹² Some say, Raba said: This holds good only when he has not gone to sleep, but if he has gone to sleep he may not eat again. Abaye raised an objection against this: If one had gone to sleep and then got up he may eat again! — There it speaks of the case where he was merely dozing. What constitutes dozing?—R. Ashi replied:

(1) R. Hisda's interpretation of fasting for a matter of hours is this. A man was too occupied for the first half of the day to have a meal and decides that he would end the day without food so as to make it constitute a fast. In such special circumstances the fast is a valid one, though the man had not explicitly undertaken it on the day previous (V. Rashi).

A sleep which is no sleep, a wakefulness which is no wakefulness, he answers when he is called, but cannot recall an argument; when, however, he is reminded of something he remembers it.

R. Kahana said in the name of Rab: An individual who has undertaken a fast is forbidden to wear shoes because we fear that perhaps he has undertaken a public fast.¹ How shall he declare his vow [to be able to wear shoes]?-Rabbah b. Shila said: He should make the following declaration, 'To-morrow I shall observe before Thee a private fast'. The Rabbis said to R. Shesheth: We have seen Rabbis who come to an Assembly on a fast day wearing their shoes. Thereupon he became angry and asked them, Perhaps they even eat? Abaye and Raba used to come [to the Assembly] wearing shoes² without soles. Meremar and Mar Zutra used to change the right [shoe] to the left [foot] and the left to the right.³ The scholars of the school of R. Ashi wore their shoes as usual; they were of the same opinion as Samuel who said: In Babylonia except for the Fast of the Ninth of Ab there are no public fasts.⁴

Rab Judah said in the name of Rab: One may borrow a fast and repay it [on another day]; When I repeated this [statement] before Samuel he said to me, Did he then take a vow upon himself that he must pay it?-He merely undertook to afflict himself, if he is able he afflicts himself, if not he does not do so. Some say, Rab Judah said in the name of Rab: One may borrow his fast and repay it. When I repeated this before Samuel he said to me, This is self-evident; even if it is merely a vow, would he not have to pay a vow on the next day or on a later day?

R. Joshua, the son of R. Idi chanced to be with R. Assi, and after they had prepared in his honour a three-year-old calf⁵ they said to him, 'Will the Master partake of it?' He replied. 'I am fasting'. They said to him, 'Let the Master borrow and repay [the fast later]'. Is the Master not in agreement with the view of Rab Judah, who said in the name of Rab: One may borrow a fast and repay it? — He replied: [Mine] is a fast for a [bad] dream, and Rabbah b. Mehasiah said in the name of R. Hama b. Guriah, in the name of Rab: Fasting is as efficacious for the bad dream as fire is for tow, and upon this R. Hisda commented: And [the fast must be] on the same day; and R. Joseph added: Even if [the day] is the Sabbath. What amends shall he make [for having fasted on the Sabbath]? — He should observe an additional fast.⁶

MISHNAH. IF THESE FAST DAYS PASSED AND THERE WAS NO ANSWER TO THEIR PRAYERS, THE BETH DIN ORDAIN UPON THE COMMUNITY THREE FURTHER FASTS; [ON DAYS PRECEDING THESE FASTS] THEY MAY EAT AND DRINK [ONLY] WHILST IT IS STILL DAY, AND THEY MAY NOT [ON THESE FAST DAYS] DO WORK, NOR BATHE, NOR ANOINT THEMSELVES WITH OIL, NOR WEAR SHOES, NOR HAVE MARITAL RELATIONS; AND THE BATHS TOO ARE CLOSED. IF THESE [DAYS] PASSED AND THERE WAS [STILL] NO ANSWER TO THEIR PRAYERS THE BETH DIN ORDAIN UPON THE COMMUNITY A FURTHER SEVEN [FASTS]. MAKING THIRTEEN IN ALL. [IN THIS RESPECT ARE] THE LATTER MORE STRINGENT THAN THE FORMER⁷ IN THAT ON THEM THE ALARM IS SOUNDED AND THE SHOPS ARE CLOSED. ON MONDAYS THE

SHUTTERS [OF THE SHOPS] ARE OPENED A LITTLE WHEN IT GETS DARK, BUT ON THURSDAYS THEY ARE PERMITTED⁸ [THE WHOLE DAY]⁹ IN HONOUR OF THE SABBATH. IF THESE PASSED AND THERE WAS [STILL] NO ANSWER TO THEIR PRAYERS THEN BUSINESS IS RESTRICTED AS ALSO IS BUILDING, PLANTING, BETROTHAL AND MARRIAGE; AND MEN GREET ONE ANOTHER AS PEOPLE LABOURING UNDER DIVINE DISPLEASURE. THE YEHDIM¹⁰ BEGIN THEIR FASTING ANEW AND CONTINUE UNTIL THE END OF NISAN; IF NISAN PASSES AND RAIN FALLS THIS IS A SIGN OF DIVINE ANGER, AS IT IS WRITTEN, IS IT NOT WHEAT HARVEST TO-DAY, etc.¹¹

GEMARA. It is reasonable that all the other restrictions [should be forbidden] because they give pleasure, but why work which is a source of pain? — R. Hisda replied in the name of R. Jeremiah b. Abba: Scripture says. Sanctify ye a fast, call a solemn assembly, gather the elders.¹² This means that [the fast day is to be treated] like a solemn assembly. Just as it is not permissible to do work on a solemn assembly it is likewise not permissible to do work on a fast day. Perhaps just as on the solemn assembly work is forbidden from the preceding evening so too on a fast day work should close on the preceding evening? — R. Zeira replied: R. Jeremiah b. Abba explained the matter to me thus: Scripture says, Gather the elders'; it is to be like a gathering of elders, as the elders foregather by day so too the fast commences on the day. Perhaps [it commences] from noon? — R. Shisha b. Idi replied: This is a support for R. Huna who said: The assembly [of the community on a fast day] takes place in the morning. How do they spend [the day]?-Abaye replied: From morning to midday they look into the affairs of the city;¹³ from then onwards they read for a quarter of the day from the Torah and the Prophets and the rest of the day [is spent] in praying for mercy, as it is said, And they stood up in their place, and read in the book of the Law of the Lord their God a fourth part of the day; and another fourth part they confessed and prostrated themselves before the Lord their God.¹⁴

Perhaps the order of the day is to be reversed? — This cannot possibly be so, seeing that it is written, Then were assembled unto me everyone that trembled at the words of the God of Israel, because of the faithlessness of them of the captivity etc.;¹ and then follows, And at the evening offering I arose from my fasting . . . and spread out my hands unto the Lord.²

Rafram b. Papa said in the name of R. Hisda: On any fast ordained on account of mourning, as for example the Ninth of Ab and a mourner, it is forbidden to bathe in warm or in cold water, but on any fast ordained merely to prevent indulgence in pleasure, as for example, a public fast day, bathing in warm water is forbidden but permissible in cold water. R. Idi b. Abin said: We too have learnt: AND THE BATHS TOO ARE CLOSED? Abaye said to him: If it were forbidden to bathe even in cold water, then it should have stated, 'and the rivers are stopped up'! — R. Shisha the son of R. Idi replied: This was the difficulty which my father felt. [He argued]. Let us see: the Mishnah already states, IT IS NOT PERMISSIBLE TO BATHE, why does it add AND THE BATHS TOO ARE CLOSED? Evidently from this is to be concluded that [bathing] in warm water is forbidden but permissible in cold water.

Shall we say that the following supports [R. Hisda]: 'All those who have to take the ritual bath³ immerse in the usual way both on the Ninth of Ab and on the Day of Atonement'. In what [water is here meant]? Is it in warm [water]? Is then [ritual] immersion in warm water permissible, seeing that such water must of a necessity be drawn⁴ [and is therefore unfit for immersion]? It must therefore be in cold [water]; and yet it is only those who have to take the ritual bath who may [immerse] but others may not?⁵ — Said R. Hana b. Kattina [No:] This [passage] has special reference to the hot springs of Tiberias. If this is so how is the concluding statement to be understood? R. Hanina, the Deputy High Priest said: Our House of God merits that a man should for its sake forego an immersion once a year.⁶ Now should you say that bathing in cold water is permissible, let him then bathe in cold water! — R. Papa replied: [It speaks] of a place where cold water is not available.

Come and hear: When the Rabbis declared that it is not permissible to do work [on a public fast day] this applies only to the day but not to the night [preceding]; and when they declared that it is not permissible to wear shoes, this applies only within the city, but on the road it is permissible. How should a man act? When he sets out on a journey he puts his shoes on, but when he enters the city he removes them. And when they declared that it is not permissible to bathe they meant the whole body but he may wash his face, hands or feet. You will find that the same applies to one placed under the ban and also to the mourner. Now does not [this last statement] imply that they are subject to all [the restrictions mentioned previously]? This being so, of what [water does the Baraitha] speak? Shall we say warm water? Is it then permissible [for a mourner] to wash his face, hands or feet [in warm water]? Did not R. Shesheth say: The mourner may not put even his finger into warm water? Therefore [it must speak of] cold water!⁷ — No; it refers indeed to warm water, and as for your difficulty in interpreting, 'and the same applies to one placed under the ban and also to the mourner', [you must take] this to refer only to the remaining restrictions⁸ [and not to bathing].

Come and hear: R. Abba the Priest said in the name of R. Jose the Priest: It happened that the sons of R. Jose b. Hanina died and he bathed in cold water throughout the seven days [of mourning]! — In his case one bereavement followed close on the other. For it has been taught: Where a man suffers one bereavement close upon another and his hair weighs heavy upon him he may thin them out with a razor and he may also wash his clothes in water. R. Hisda said: With a razor but not with scissors, in water but not in natron nor in sand.

Raba said: A mourner may bathe in cold water all the seven days in the same way as he may partake of meat and wine. An objection was raised against this:

(1) Ezra IX, 4.

(2) Ezra IX, 5.

(3) E.g. a woman after menstruation or confinement. (V. Num. XIX, 17.)

(4) Ritual immersion takes place only either in running water i.e., in a stream, or in a natural spring or in a ritual bath the waters of which are directly connected with them. To be warmed, waters would have to be 'drawn', and this is not permissible.

(5) This supports R. Hisda.

(6) On the ninth of Ab because of national mourning.

(7) [This shows that on a public fast day, as in the case of a mourner, bathing in cold water is forbidden in opposition to

R. Hisda.]

(8) I.e., working and wearing shoes.

Talmud - Mas. Ta'anith 13b

A girl who has reached adolescence¹ may not make herself unsightly during the days of mourning for her father.² This implies that a girl who has not reached adolescence may [make herself unsightly]. And in which respect [may she neglect herself]? By not bathing. [This being so], in what water? Shall I say in warm? [Then how can you say that] a girl who has not reached adolescence may not neglect herself [in this respect]? Did not R. Hisda say: A mourner may not put even his finger in warm water? Therefore [it must speak of] cold water!³ — No; [it speaks of] painting the eyelids and dyeing the hair.

Shall we say that the following supports Raba: R. Abba the Priest said in the name of R. Jose the Priest: It happened that the sons of R. Jose b. Hanina died and he bathed in cold water throughout the seven days [of mourning]. The answer is, in his case one bereavement followed close on the other. For it has been taught: Where a man suffers one bereavement close upon another and his hair weighs heavy upon him he may thin them out with a razor and he may also wash his clothes in water. R. Hisda said: With a razor, but not with scissors, In water, but not in natron, nor in sand nor in aloe.

Some say. Raba said: The mourner may not [bathe] in cold water all the seven days. Why this differentiation [between bathing in cold water] and partaking of meat and wine?⁴ — Of these [the mourner] may partake in order to counteract his fear.⁵ Shall we say that support may be adduced from the following passage: A girl who has reached adolescence may not make herself un-sightly [during the days of mourning for her father]. This implies that one who has not reached adolescence may? And in what respect may she neglect herself? [By not bathing]. [This being so], in what water? Is it in warm water? Then how can you say that a girl who has reached adolescence may not neglect herself in this respect? Did not R. Hisda say: A mourner may not put even his finger in warm water? Therefore [it must speak of] cold water! — No; it speaks of painting the eyelids and dyeing the hair. R. Hisda said this proves⁶ that a mourner is forbidden to wash his clothes throughout the seven days of mourning.⁷ The law is, a mourner is forbidden to bathe his whole body either in warm or in cold water all the seven days; his face, hands and feet he may not [wash] in warm water but in cold water he may; anointing is not permitted at all; if, however, it is to remove the dirt it is permissible.

Where is the prayer for the fast day⁸ inserted?⁹ Rab Judah brought his son R. Isaac [to the school]¹⁰ and he expounded as follows: An individual who has taken upon himself a fast should recite the prayer for the fast day. And where does he insert it? Between the benediction for 'Redemption' and the benediction for 'Healing'.¹¹ R. Isaac demurred to this [saying]: Is it proper that an individual should insert [in his prayers] a special benediction for himself? Therefore said R. Isaac: [He includes it] in the benediction 'Thou hearkenest to the prayer'.¹² And so, too, said R. Shesheth: [In the benediction] 'Thou hearkenest to the prayer'. An objection was raised [against this]: The only difference between [the Order of Prayer] of an individual on a fast day and a community is that the former recites eighteen benedictions and the latter recite nineteen. Now what is [meant by] an 'individual' and what by a 'community'? Shall we say that [by] an 'individual' [is meant] literally and [by] 'community' the Representative of the community [leading in prayer]?¹³ If so, are the benedictions [recited by the latter] nineteen? Are they not rather twenty-four?¹⁴ Therefore the [Baraita quoted] should read thus: The only difference between an individual who has undertaken a private fast and an individual who has undertaken a public fast is that the former recites eighteen [benedictions] and the latter nineteen.¹⁵ From which one may infer that an individual may insert a special benediction for himself.¹⁶ No; [by 'community' is definitely meant], the Representative of the Community and as to your difficulty, that the Representative recites twenty-four benedictions [and not nineteen]. [this refers] to the first three fasts when the twenty-four are not [recited]. But is this so? Is it not stated that the only difference between the first three [fasts] and the middle three [fasts] is that work is permissible on the former and forbidden on the latter? Does this not imply that with regard to the recital of the twenty-four [benedictions] both are alike?—The Tanna [of the Baraitha] has stated only one [difference] and has left out [others] — What other differences has he left out besides this one?¹⁷ And further, does he not explicitly state: The only difference etc.? — The Tanna speaks only of differences with regard to things forbidden on the fast days and not [of differences with regard to] prayers. And if you like, I can say that even on the middle three fasts the twenty-four benedictions are also not recited. But is this so? Has it not been taught: ‘The only difference between the second three [fasts] and the last seven is that on the latter the alarm is sounded and the shops are closed.’ Does this not imply that in all other respects they are alike? And should you reply that here too [the Tanna] stated one difference only and left out [others], I would object on the ground that it explicitly states, ‘The only difference’! — Do you assume the expression, ‘The only difference etc.’

to denote the absolute exclusion of any other differences? Has he not left out [mention of the taking out of] the Ark?¹ — [As for the taking out of the] Ark this cannot be considered an omission because [the Baraitha] enumerates only things done in private but not things done in public. R. Ashi said: This² may also be deduced from our Mishnah where it is learnt: IN WHAT RESPECT ARE THE LATTER MORE STRINGENT THAN THE FORMER?³ IN THAT ON THEM THE ALARM IS SOUNDED AND THE SHOPS ARE CLOSED. This would imply that in all other respects they are alike. And should you reply that here too [the Mishnah] has stated only one [difference] and left out [others]. I would object, the Mishnah explicitly states, IN WHAT RESPECT ARE THE LATTER etc.’⁴ — Do you assume the expression, ‘IN WHAT RESPECT ARE THE LATTER etc. literally? Has he not also left out [mention of the taking out of] the Ark?— [As for the taking out of] the Ark this cannot be considered an omission because he mentions it in the next chapter. If now that you have arrived at this conclusion [the difference in respect of the recital of] the twenty-four benedictions is also no omission since he mentions it [also] in the next chapter. What is the final decision [with regard to the insertion of the special benediction for fast days]?⁵ R. Samuel b. Sasartai said, and so too R. Hiyya b. Ashi in the name of Rab: [He inserts it] between 'Redemption' and 'Healing'. R. Ashi said in the name of R. Jannai, the son of R. Ishmael: In [the benediction] 'Who hearkenest unto prayer.

One Baraitha teaches: Pregnant women and nursing mothers fast on the first fasts but not on the last; another teaches: They fast on the last but not on the first; and yet another teaches: They fast neither on the first nor on the last! — R. Ashi said: Take it that they fast on the middle set of fasts and in this way all [three Baraithas] will be reconciled.⁶

IN WHAT RESPECT ARE THE LATTER MORE STRINGENT THAN THE FORMER? IN THAT ON THEM THE ALARM IS SOUNDED AND THE SHOPS ARE CLOSED. How do we sound the alarm? — Rab Judah said: By the shofar.⁷ Rab Judah the son of R. Samuel b. Shilath in the name of Rab said: By [the recital of the] 'anenu.⁸ The scholars assumed that the authority who said by the 'anenu was opposed to the sounding of the alarm by the shofar and that the one who said by the shofar was opposed to the recital of the 'anenu. But has it not been taught: No less than seven fasts are ordained upon the community upon each of which the alarm is sounded eighteen times; [as] a sign to remember this take Jericho. Now at Jericho the shofar [was used to give the alarm]. This would be a refutation of him who said: By 'anenu [only]! Hence [we must conclude] that all are agreed that the sounding of the shofar constitutes the sounding of an alarm, and that they differ only with regard to [the recital of] the 'anenu; one takes the view that it constitutes the sounding of an alarm, and the other that it does not. The authority who says that the recital of the 'anenu constitutes the sounding of an alarm [will hold] how much more so does the sounding of the shofar, but the authority who says, 'by the shofar', would exclude the recital of the 'anenu. But has it not been taught: In the case of all other visitations that break out [in the world], as for example. Itch, Locusts, Flies, Hornets, Gnats and the invasion by Snakes and Scorpions they did not sound the alarm, but they cried aloud? And as crying can only be by mouth, the sounding of the alarm must consequently be by the shofar! — This forms a subject of dispute amongst the Tannaim, for it has been learnt: In the case of these [calamities] they sound the alarm even on the Sabbath ; when a city is surrounded by a ravaging troop, or is in danger of inundation by a river or when a ship is foundering on the sea, R. Jose said: [We may sound the alarm to summon] help but not for intercession! Now with what [is the alarm sounded]? Shall we say by the shofar? Is then the sounding of the shofar on the Sabbath permissible? It must therefore be by the recital of the 'anenu, and this is termed: 'Sounding the alarm'. This proves it.

; he ordained thirteen fast days and their prayer was not answered. He thought of ordaining additional fasts but R. Ammi said to him, 'Did not [the Sages] declare we should not trouble the community unduly'. Said R. Abba the son of R. Hiyya b. Abba, 'R. Ammi [in saying this] was studying his own interests',¹ for thus did R. Hiyya b. Abba say in the name of R. Johanan: The statement [cited by R. Ammi] holds good only so far [as fasts for] rain are concerned, but in the case of other forms of visitation the fasts are continued until their prayers are answered from heaven. It has been taught to the same effect: When they [the Sages] instituted the order of fasts for [twice] three days, and then a further seven days, they intended these to be applicable only in the case of fasts for rain, but in all other forms of visitation the fasts are to be continued until their prayers are answered from heaven. Shall we say that this will be a refutation of R. Ammi? — R. Ammi can answer you: The Tannaim are divided on this question. For it has been taught: Not more than thirteen fasts are ordained upon the community because we should not trouble the community unduly; this is the opinion of Rabbi. R. Simeon b. Gamaliel says: This is not the real reason² [why no additional fasts are ordained] but it is because after these thirteen fasts the time of rainfall has gone.

The inhabitants of Nineveh³ sent to enquire of Rabbi: How should we who need rain even in the Tammuz cycle act?⁴ Are we to consider ourselves individuals and [insert the special prayer for rain] in 'Who hearkenest unto prayer'. or shall we consider ourselves a community and [insert it] in the 'Blessing of the Years'?⁵ He sent [word] back to them: Consider yourselves individuals and [insert the prayer] in, 'Who hearkenest unto prayer'. An objection was raised [against this]: R. Judah said: When did this order of fasts apply? Only at such times when the seasons of the year were normal⁶ and Israel dwelt in their own land, but to-day all depends upon the years, the countries and the seasons! He replied:⁷ You cite a Baraitha in refutation of Rabbi; Rabbi is a Tanna and has the right to differ [from a Baraitha]. What is the final decision [with regard to this matter]? — R. Nahman said: [The blessing is inserted] in the Blessing of the Years. R. Shesheth said: In 'Who hearkenest unto prayer'. The Law is [it is inserted in]. 'Who hearkenest unto prayer'.

ON MONDAYS THE SHUTTERS [OF THE SHOPS] ARE OPENED A LITTLE WHEN IT GETS DARK; BUT ON THURSDAYS THEY ARE PERMITTED⁸ THE WHOLE DAY IN HONOUR OF THE SABBATH. The question was raised: How did [the Mishnah] teach? Was it that on Mondays the shutters are opened a little when it gets dark and on Thursdays they are opened [a little] during the whole day in honour of the Sabbath, or perhaps, that on Mondays they are open a little and on Thursdays they are open wide for the whole day? — Come and hear: It has been taught: On Mondays they are opened slightly till the evening and on Thursdays they remain wide open the whole day in honour of the Sabbath; should there be two doors then one is kept open and the other remains closed; should there be a stand⁹ in front of the door he may open [the door] in the usual way without any compunction.

IF THESE 'PASSED WITHOUT THEIR PRAYER BEING ANSWERED THEN BUSINESS DEALINGS ARE RESTRICTED AS WELL AS BUILDING AND PLANTING. It has been taught: By BUILDING [is to be understood] building for joyous purposes, and by PLANTING planting for joyous purposes. What is 'building' for joyous purposes? — Building a house for the marriage-feast of one's own son. What is 'planting' for joyous purposes? When one erects a royal banqueting hall.¹⁰

AND GREETING. Our Rabbis taught: Scholars do not greet one another at all; the greetings of the ignorant are reciprocated in an undertone in a solemn manner; people are seated covered in mourner's fashion and like those placed under the ban, and like men labouring under Divine displeasure, until mercy is shown to them from heaven.

R. Eleazar said: A prominent man should not fall upon his face¹¹ unless he is confident that he will be answered like Joshua. as it is said, And the Lord said unto Joshua. 'Get thee up; wherefore now art thou fallen upon thy face?’¹² R. Eleazar further said: A prominent man should not put on sackcloth unless he is confident that he will be answered like Jehoram, the Son of Ahab, as it is said, And it came to pass, when the king heard the words of the woman, that he rent his clothes — now he was passing by upon the wall — and the people looked, and, behold, he had sackcloth within upon his flesh, etc.¹³

R. Eleazar further said: Not everyone [is answered] through rending his garments nor is everyone [answered] through falling [on his face]. Moses and Aaron [were answered] through falling [on the face], Joshua and Caleb through rending [their] garments. Moses and Aaron through falling [on the face]; for it is written, Then Moses and Aaron fell on their faces.¹⁴ Joshua and Caleb through rending [their] garments, for it is written, And Joshua the son of Num and Caleb ... rent their clothes.¹⁵ R. Ze'ira and some say, R. Samuel b. Nahmani demurred to this. Had it been written [in the verse] ‘Joshua’. it would be as you say, but seeing that the verse reads ‘And Joshua’, they may have done both.¹⁶

R. Eleazar further said: Not all [will in the Messianic era] rise [before Israel], nor will all prostrate themselves; kings will rise and princes prostrate themselves; ‘Kings will rise’, for it is written, Thus saith the Lord, the Redeemer of Israel, his Holy One to him who is despised of men, to him who is abhorred of nations, to a servant of rulers; kings shall see and arise;¹ ‘and princes will prostrate themselves,’ for it is written, Princes and they shall prostrate themselves. R. Ze'ira and some say R. Samuel b. Nahmani demurred to this. Had it been written in the verse, ‘And princes shall prostrate themselves’, it would be as you say, but seeing that the verse reads, ‘Princes and they shall prostrate themselves,’ they will perhaps do both.

R. Nahman b. Isaac declared: I say furthermore, Not all are destined to share in the light nor all in the gladness. Light shall be for the righteous and gladness for the upright. ‘Light for the righteous’, for it is written, Light is sown for the righteous;² And gladness for the upright’. for it is written, And gladness for the upright in heart.²

MISHNAH. WHAT IS THE ORDER [OF SERVICE] FOR FAST DAYS?³ THE ARK IS TAKEN OUT TO THE OPEN SPACE⁴ OF THE CITY, WOOD ASHES ARE PLACED ON THE ARK, ON THE HEAD OF THE NASI⁵ AND ON THE HEAD OF THE AB-BETH-DIN.⁶ EVERYONE ELSE PUTS ASHES ON HIS OWN HEAD; THE ELDER AMONG THEM ADDRESSES THEM WITH WORDS OF ADMONITION [TO REPENTANCE] THUS, OUR BRETHREN, SCRIPTURE DOES NOT SAY OF THE PEOPLE OF NINEVEH, AND GOD SAW THEIR SACKCLOTH AND THEIR FASTING, BUT, AND GOD SAW THEIR WORKS, THAT THEY TURNED FROM THEIR EVIL WAY;⁷ AND IN THE PROPHETS IT IS SAID, AND REND YOUR HEART AND NOT YOUR GARMENTS.⁸ WHEN THEY STAND UP TO PRAY THEY PLACE [AS READER] BEFORE THE ARK AN OLD MAN CONVERSANT [WITH THE PRAYERS], WHO HAS CHILDREN AND WHOSE HOUSE IS EMPTY [OF FOOD], SO THAT HIS HEART IS CONCENTRATED ON HIS PRAYER; HE RECITES BEFORE THEM TWENTY-FOUR BENEDICTIONS, THE EIGHTEEN RECITED DAILY, TO WHICH HE ADDS SIX AS FOLLOWS, ZIKRONOTH,⁹ SHOFAROTH,¹⁰ AND [THESE PSALMS]: IN MY DISTRESS I CALLED UNTO THE LORD;¹¹ I WILL LIFT UP MINE EYES UNTO THE MOUNTAINS ETC.;¹² OUT OF THE DEPTHS HAVE I CALLED THEE, O LORD;¹³ A PRAYER OF THE AFFLICTED WHEN HE FAINTETH.¹⁴ R. JUDAH SAYS: HE NEED NOT RECITE THE ZIKRONOTH AND SHOFAROTH, BUT INSTEAD HE SHOULD RECITE THE FOLLOWING SCRIPTURAL, PASSAGES, IF THERE BE IN THE LAND FAMINE, IF THERE BE PESTILENCE;¹⁵ THE WORD OF THE LORD THAT CAME TO JEREMIAH CONCERNING THE DROUGHTS;¹⁶ AND HE ENDS EACH [OF THE ADDITIONAL SIX] SECTIONS WITH ITS APPROPRIATE CONCLUDING BENEDICTION. THE FIRST HE CONCLUDES WITH, 'HE WHO ANSWERED ABRAHAM ON MT. MORIAH, HE SHALL ANSWER YOU AND HEARKEN THIS DAY TO THE VOICE OF YOUR CRY. BLESSED ART THOU O LORD WHO REDEEMEST ISRAEL. THE SECOND HE CONCLUDES WITH, 'HE WHO ANSWERED OUR FATHERS AT THE RED SEA, HE SHALL ANSWER YOU AND HEARKEN THIS DAY TO THE VOICE OF YOUR CRY. Talmud - Mas. Ta'anith 15b

IN THE DAYS OF R. HALAFTA AND R. HANINA B. TRADYON THAT A MAN STEPPED BEFORE THE ARK AND COMPLETED THE ENTIRE BENEDICTION AND THEY DID NOT RESPOND, 'AMEN'.¹ [THE SYNAGOGUE ATTENDANT CALLED OUT], SOUND A TEKIAH, PRIESTS, SOUND A TEKIAH.² [THEN THE READER EXCLAIMED], HE WHO ANSWERED ABRAHAM OUR FATHER ON MT. MORIAH, HE SHALL ANSWER YOU, AND HEARKEN THIS DAY TO THE VOICE OF YOUR CRY. [THE SYNAGOGUE ATTENDANT CONTINUED], SOUND A TERUAH,³ CHILDREN OF AARON, SOUND A TERUAH. [THEN THE READER EXCLAIMED], HE WHO ANSWERED OUR FATHERS AT THE RED SEA, HE SHALL ANSWER YOU AND HEARKEN THIS DAY TO THE VOICE OF YOUR CRY. AND WHEN THE MATTER CAME UP BEFORE THE WISE, THEY DECLARED, THIS⁴ WAS OUR ORDER OF PROCEDURE ONLY AT THE EASTERN GATES AND ON THE TEMPLE MOUNT.⁵

ON THE FIRST THREE [RAIN]⁶ FASTS THE MEN OF THE MISHMAR⁷ FAST BUT DO NOT COMPLETE THEIR FAST, AND THE MEN OF THE BETH-AB⁸ DO NOT FAST AT ALL. ON THE SECOND THREE [RAIN FASTS]⁹ THE MEN OF THE MISHMAR FAST AND COMPLETE THEIR FAST AND THE MEN OF THE BETH-AB FAST BUT DO NOT COMPLETE THEIR FAST; ON THE LAST SEVEN⁹ BOTH FAST AND COMPLETE THEIR FAST; THIS IS THE OPINION OF R. JOSHUA. THE SAGES, HOWEVER, SAY: ON THE FIRST THREE FASTS NEITHER FAST AT ALL, ON THE SECOND THREE, THE MEN OF THE MISHMAR FAST AND DO NOT COMPLETE THEIR FAST; BUT THE MEN OF THE BETH-AB DO NOT FAST AT ALL; ON THE LAST SEVEN, THE MEN OF THE MISHMAR FAST AND COMPLETE THEIR FAST, AND THE MEN OF THE BETH-AB FAST BUT DO NOT COMPLETE THEIR FAST.

THE MEN OF THE MISHMAR ARE PERMITTED TO DRINK WINE IN THE EVENINGS BUT NOT DURING THE DAY,¹⁰ BUT THE MEN OF THE BETH-AB MAY NOT [DRINK WINE] EITHER ON THE DAY OR ON THE PRECEDING EVENING. BOTH THE MEN OF THE MISHMAR AND THE MEN OF THE MA'AMAD¹¹ MAY NOT CUT THEIR HAIR NOR WASH THEIR CLOTHES, BUT ON A THURSDAY THEY MAY IN HONOUR OF THE SABBATH.

THE RESTRICTION AGAINST MOURNING ON THE DAYS ENUMERATED IN THE SCROLL OF FASTS¹² APPLIES EQUALLY TO THE PRECEDING DAY BUT NOT TO THE DAY FOLLOWING. R. JOSE SAYS: IT IS FORBIDDEN [TO MOURN] BOTH ON THE PRECEDING DAY AND) THE DAY FOLLOWING. AS FOR FASTING IT IS PERMITTED ON THE PRECEDING DAY AND ON THE DAY FOLLOWING. R. JOSE SAYS: IT IS FORBIDDEN ON THE PRECEDING DAY BUT PERMITTED ON THE DAY FOLLOWING.

WE DO NOT ORDAIN UPON THE COMMUNITY A FAST TO COMMENCE ON A THURSDAY IN ORDER NOT TO CAUSE A RISE IN THE MARKET PRICES. HENCE THE FIRST THREE FASTS ARE HELD [IN THIS ORDER], MONDAY, THURSDAY, AND MONDAY; THE SECOND THREE, THURSDAY, MONDAY, AND THURSDAY; R. JOSE SAYS: JUST AS THE FIRST THREE [FASTS] SHOULD NOT COMMENCE ON A THURSDAY SO TOO NEITHER THE SECOND [THREE] NOR THE LAST [SEVEN].

WE DO NOT ORDAIN UPON THE COMMUNITY A FAST ON NEW MOON, ON HANUKKAH, OR ON PURIM, BUT IF THEY HAD ALREADY BEGUN [A SERIES OF FASTS AND ONE OF THESE FESTIVE DAYS INTERVENED] THEY DO NOT INTERRUPT [THEIR FASTS]; THIS IS THE OPINION OF RABBAN GAMALIEL. R. MEIR SAID: EVEN THOUGH R. GAMALIEL IS OF THE OPINION THAT THE [FASTS] SHOULD NOT BE INTERRUPTED HE YET AGREES THAT THEY SHOULD NOT COMPLETE THEIR FASTS. AND THE SAME APPLIES TO THE NINTH OF AB SHOULD IT FALL ON A FRIDAY.

GEMARA. WHAT IS THE ORDER [OF SERVICES] FOR FAST DAYS? THE ARK IS TAKEN out etc. Does all this apply to the first six fasts? If so, is there not a contradiction raised against this? [For it has been taught]: On the first three and also on the second three [fasts] they enter the synagogue and pray there in the same way as they pray all the year round, but on the last seven the Ark is taken to the open space of the city and ashes are placed on the Ark and also upon the head of the Ab-Beth-din, and everyone else puts ashes upon his own head. R. Nathan says: They take wood-ashes!¹³ — R. Papa replied: Our Mishnah also refers to the last seven fasts.

AND ON THE HEAD OF THE NASI: And afterwards [the Mishnah] states, EVERYONE ELSE PUTS ASHES UPON HIS OWN HEAD. But is it so? Has it not been taught: Rabbi says: Where it is a case of doing honour we begin at the most distinguished, but where it is a case of censuring we begin at the least important; as it is said, And Moses said unto Aaron, and unto Eleazar and unto Ithamar;¹⁴ but where it is a case of censuring we begin at the least important, (for a Master said:) First the serpent was cursed, and afterwards Eve and [only] then Adam?—Here [in our Mishnah] it is also a case of doing honour, because [by this act] the people convey to them¹⁵ [the thought] you are worthy to entreat for mercy on behalf of us all.

EVERYONE ELSE PUTS ASHES ON HIS OWN HEAD: R. Adda said: Seeing that everyone else puts the ashes on his own head let also the Nasi and the Ab-Beth-din themselves take ashes and place them on their own heads! Why should someone else take ashes and put them on their head? — R. Aba of Caesarea replied: To humiliate oneself is not the same as being humiliated by others.

Talmud - Mas. Ta'anith 16a

And where [on the head] does he put [the ashes]?-R. Isaac said: On the place of the phylacteries, as it is said, To appoint unto them that mourn in Zion, to give unto them a garland for ashes.¹ (Mnemonic: open space, Ark, sackcloth, wood-ashes, dust, cemetery, Moriah.)

Why do they go out to the open space [of the city]?-R. Hiyya b. Abba said: In order to express thereby [the idea], We have prayed in private but we have not been answered; we will [therefore] humiliate ourselves in public. Resh Lakish said: We have exiled ourselves [from the House of God] may our exile atone for us. What is the difference between the two explanations? — The difference is when they move from one synagogue to another.²

And why do they take out the Ark to the open space of the city? — R. Joshua b. Levi said: In order to express thereby [the idea], We had a vessel which we kept hidden and now because of our sins it has been rendered common.

And why do they clothe themselves in sackcloth? — R. Hiyya b. Abba said: In order to express thereby [the idea], We consider ourselves animals³ [before God].

And why do they place wood-ashes upon the Ark? — R. Judah b. Pazzi said: As if to say, I will be with him in trouble.⁴ Resh Lakish said: [As if to say] In all their afflictions He was afflicted.⁵ R. Zera said: When I first saw the rabbis placing wood-ashes on the Ark my whole body shook.

And why does everyone else put ashes on his head? — With regard to this there is a difference of opinion between R. Levi b. Hama and R. Hanina. One says: [To signify thereby], We are merely like ashes before Thee; and the other says: That [God] may remember for our sake the ashes of Isaac.⁶ What is the difference between them? — The difference is with regard to [the use of] ordinary dust.⁷

Why do they go to the cemetery? — With regard to this there is a difference of opinion between R. Levi b. Hama and R. Hanina. One says: [To signify thereby], We are as the dead before Thee; and the other says: In order that the dead should intercede for mercy on our behalf. What is the difference between them? — The difference is with regard to going to the cemetery of Gentiles.⁸ What is [the meaning of] 'Mount Moriah'?⁹ — With regard to this there is a difference of opinion between R. Levi b. Hama and R. Hanina.¹⁰ [One says] because from this mountain instruction went forth unto Israel;¹¹ and the other says: Because it is the mountain whence fear¹² came upon the heathens.

THE ELDER AMONG THEM ADDRESSES THEM WITH WORDS OF ADMONITION. Our Rabbis have taught: If there is an elder present he addresses them; if not, then a scholar addresses them; and if there is no scholar present then a distinguished looking man addresses them. Does the term ‘elder’ here used denote one who is not a scholar? — Abaye replied: This is what is meant: If there is present an elder who is also a scholar then he addresses them, and if not, then a [younger] scholar addresses them, and if not, a distinguished looking man addresses them. [And this is what he says], ‘Our brethren, neither sackcloth nor fastings are effective but only penitence and good deeds, for we find that of the men of Nineveh Scripture does not say, And God saw their sackcloth and their fasting, but, God saw their works that they turned from their evil way.’

But let them be covered with sackcloth, both man and beast.¹³ How did they act? — They separated the animals from their young and they said, Master of the Universe, if Thou wilt not have mercy upon us we will not show mercy to these.

And let them cry mightily unto God.¹⁴ What did they say? — They said, Master of the Universe, If one is submissive and the other is not, if one is righteous and the other is not, who of them should yield?¹⁵

Let them turn everyone from his evil way and from the violence that is in their hands.¹⁶ What is the meaning of, ‘From the violence that is in their hands’? — Samuel said: Even if one had stolen a beam and built it into his castle he should raze the entire castle to the ground and return the beam to its owner.

R. Adda b. Ahaba said: One who has sinned and confesses his sin but does not repent may be compared to a man holding a dead reptile in his hand, for although he may immerse himself in all the waters of the world his immersion is of no avail unto him; but if he throws it away from his hand then as soon as he immerses himself in forty se'ahs of water,¹⁷ immediately his immersion becomes effective, as it is said, But whoso confesseth and forsaketh them shall obtain mercy.¹⁸ And it is further said, Let us lift up our heart with our hands unto God in the heavens.¹⁹

WHEN THEY STAND UP TO PRAY THEY PLACE BEFORE THE ARK [AS READER] AN OLD MAN etc. Our Rabbis have taught: When they stand up to pray, although there may be present an elder and a scholar, they place before the Ark [as Reader] only a man conversant with the prayers. (Who is considered conversant with prayers)?²⁰ — R. Judah says: One having a large family²¹ and has no means of support, and who draws his subsistence from [the produce of] the field,²² and whose house is empty, whose youth was unblemished, who is meek and is acceptable to the people; who is skilled in chanting, who has a pleasant voice, and possesses a thorough knowledge of the Torah, the Prophets and the Hagiographa, of the Midrash, Halachoth and Aggadot and of all the Benedictions. Thereupon the Rabbis gazed on R. Isaac b. Ammi.²³

(1) Isa. LXI, 3. The Gemara takes the word פאר, garland, to refer to the phylacteries. So Ber. 11a in interpreting Ezek. XXIV, 17.

(2) This would constitute an ‘exile’ but not a humiliation.

(3) Because sackcloth is woven of the hair of animals (Rashi).

(4) Ps. XCI, 15.

(5) Isa. LXIII, 9. The thought implied is that though God punishes people He yet does not fail to have sympathy with them.

(6) This refers to the sacrifice of Isaac. Cf. Gen. XXII.

(7) For humiliation ordinary dust or earth could be used, but for recalling the sacrifice of Isaac only ashes would do.

(8) In the former case any cemetery would be used but in the latter case only a Jewish cemetery.

(9) The mount on which the Temple was built.

(10) The difference of opinion between R. Levi and R. Hama b. Hanina also in the matter accounts for the inclusion here of this passage.

(11) Taking מוריה from ירה ‘to teach’. [The Sanhedrin from which proceeded all legislation governing the life of the people had its seat in the Temple Mount.]

Talmud - Mas. Ta'anith 16b

Is not one having a large family with no means of support the same as one whose house is empty? — R. Hisda replied: The latter refers to a man whose house is free from sin.¹

Whose youth was unblemished. Abaye said: This is one against whom no evil reputation had gone forth in his youth.

My heritage is become unto to Me as a lion in the forest; she hath uttered her voice against Me; therefore have I hated her.² What is the meaning of, 'She hath uttered her voice against Me'? — Mar Zutra b. Tobiah said in the name of Rab, some say R. Hama said in the name of R. Eleazar: This refers to an unfit person who steps down before the Ark [to act] as Reader.

AND HE RECITES BEFORE THEM TWENTY-FOUR BENEDICTIONS, THE EIGHTEEN RECITED DAILY TO WHICH HE ADDS SIX MORE. Are there only six? Are they not actually seven, as we have learnt: THE SEVENTH [BENEDICTION] HE CONCLUDES WITH BLESSED BE HE WHO HAS MERCY UPON THE EARTH! — R. Nahman b. Isaac replied: [Do you know] which is THE SEVENTH? it is the seventh of the longer benedictions.³ As it has been taught: [The benediction], 'Who redeemest Israel,' is prolonged and at its conclusion [the Reader] adds, He who answered Abraham on Mt. Moriah, He shall answer you and hearken this day unto the voice of your cry. Blessed art Thou who redeemest Israel, and the congregation respond, Amen. The synagogue attendant⁴ calls out unto them, 'Blow a Teru'ah, ye children of Aaron, blow a Teru'ah, and [the Reader] resumes with, 'He who answered our fathers at the Red Sea, He shall answer you and hearken this day to the cry of your voice. Blessed art Thou O Lord who rememberest forgotten things'; and the congregation responds, Amen. The synagogue attendant calls out, Sound a Teru'ah, O ye children of Aaron, sound a Teru'ah. And likewise [he does] with the other benedictions, at one he calls out, sound a Teki'ah, and another, sound a Teru'ah. The order of service⁵ [in which the congregation responds, Amen] holds good for the country generally but not for the Temple, because the response, Amen' is not made use of in the Temple.⁶ And whence can it be adduced that the response, Amen, was not made use of in the Temple? — For it is said, Stand up and bless the Lord your God from everlasting to everlasting; and let them say: Blessed be Thy glorious Name, that is exalted above all blessing and praise.⁷ You might have thought that there shall be only one form, of praise after all Benedictions, therefore the text adds, 'Exalted above all blessing and praise'; that is to say, Give him 'praise' after every blessing. 'What then was said in the Temple? Blessed be the Lord God, the God of Israel, from everlasting to everlasting. Blessed art Thou who redeemest Israel; and the congregation respond, Blessed be the name of his glorious kingdom for ever and ever.⁸ The synagogue attendant calls out unto them, Blow a Teki'ah, O Priests, sons of Aaron, blow a Teki'ah, and [the Reader] resumes with, he who answered Abraham on Mt. Moriah, He will answer you and hearken to the voice of your cry. Blessed art Thou, O Lord God of Israel, who remembers forgotten things; and the congregation respond, Blessed be the name of His glorious kingdom for ever and ever. The synagogue attendant calls out, Sound a Teru'ah, O Priests, children of Aaron, sound a Teru'ah etc. And likewise [he does] with the other benedictions; at one he calls out, Blow a Teki'ah, and at another, Sound a Teru'ah, until he completes them all. R. Halafta made this order of procedure the custom of Sepphoris and R. Hananya b. Tradyon made it the custom of Siknin. When however the matter came to the notice of the Sages they declared that this custom was observed only at the eastern gates and on the Temple mount.

Some report [the passage just cited] in the form taught in the following Baraitha: [The Reader] recites before them twenty-four benedictions; the eighteen recited daily, to which he adds six more. 'Where are those six included? Between the benedictions for redemption and Healing the Sick,⁹ the latter benediction being prolonged and the congregation respond, 'Amen', after every benediction. This was the custom in the country generally, but in the Temple they said, Blessed be the Lord, God of Israel from everlasting to everlasting. Blessed art Thou O Lord who redeemest Israel and there was no response, 'Amen', after it. And why all this [long response]? Because it was not customary to respond 'Amen', in the Temple. And whence can it be adduced that they did not respond, 'Amen', in the Temple? For it is said, 'Stand up and bless the Lord your God from everlasting to everlasting, and let them say: Blessed be Thy glorious name that is exalted above all blessing and praise'; that is to say, Give Him praise after every benediction.

Our Rabbis have taught: When concluding the first benediction he says: Blessed be the Lord, God of Israel from everlasting to everlasting. Blessed art Thou who redeemest Israel. And the congregation respond, Blessed be the name of His glorious kingdom for ever and ever. The synagogue attendant calls out, Sound a Teki'ah, Priests, Sound a Teki'ah, and [the Reader] then resumes, He who answered Abraham on Mt. Moriah, He will answer you and hearken this day to the voice of your cry. And they blow a Teki'uh and sound a Teru'ah, and blow a Teki'ah [again]. When concluding the second benediction he says: Blessed be the Lord God, the God of Israel from everlasting to everlasting. Blessed art Thou who rememberest forgotten things; and the congregation respond, Blessed be the name of His glorious kingdom for ever and ever. The synagogue attendant then calls out, Sound a Teru'ah, children of Aaron, sound a Teru'ah, and the reader resumes, He who answered our fathers at the Red Sea, He will answer you and hearken this day to the voice of your cry. They then sound a Teru'ah and blow a Teki'ah and sound a Teru'ah [again]; and likewise he [does] after every benediction, at one he calls out, Blow a Teki'ah, and at another, Sound a Teru'ah, until all the benedictions are concluded. R. Halafta made this order of procedure the custom of Sepphoris and R. Hananya b. Tradyon made it the custom of Siknin. When, however, the matter was brought to the notice of the Sages, they declared that this custom was observed only at the eastern gate and on the Temple mount.

R. JUDAH SAYS: HE NEED NOT RECITE THE ZIKRONOTH AND SHOFAROTH etc.: Said R. Adda of Joppa; what may be R. Judah's reason? Because Zikronoth and Shofaroth are recited only on New Year

(1) He has no stolen goods or any property acquired by dishonest means (Rashi).

(2) Jer. XII, 8.

(3) [לארובות] (so R. Hananel, R. Gershom and MS. M.). The seventh benediction of the daily Tefillah ending in, 'Who redeemest Israel' (גואל ישראל) was on rain fasts increased by the addition of the formula, 'He who answered etc.' inserted before its conclusion. After this followed the six additional special benedictions as described in the Mishnah thus making a total of seven long benedictions. On the reading לארובה of cur. edd. render the seventh from the seventh lengthened benediction (of the daily Tefillah)] .

(5) Lit., 'in what are these said'.

(6) [No satisfactory reason has so far been given for this regulation. Graetz, MGWJ 1872 pp. 492ff suggests that this does not mean that the response, Amen, was not allowed in the Temple, but that the solemnity of the service, heightened by the pronounciation of the Tetragrammaton as written, demanded a more extensive and impressive formula. V. also Blau, REJ. XXXIX, p. 188.]

(7) Neh. IX, 5.

Talmud - Mas. Ta'anith 17a

and on the [Day of Atonement of] the Jubilee year and in the time of war.¹ THE FIRST HE CONCLUDES WITH, HE WHO ANSWERED ABRAHAM etc.: A Tanna taught: Some reverse the order of the words and attribute 'crying' to Elijah and 'praying' to Samuel. True, of Samuel Scripture uses the words 'praying' and 'crying'.² but of Elijah Scripture uses only [the word] 'praying' but never 'crying'. [When Elijah says], Hear me, O Lord, hear me;³ that is an expression of 'crying'.

THE SIXTH HE CONCLUDES WITH, HE WHO ANSWERED JONAH etc.; THE SEVENTH HE CONCLUDES WITH, HE WHO ANSWERED DAVID etc. Let us see, Did not Jonah live after David and Solomon, why then is he placed first? — Because it was desired to conclude [the prayers] with, Blessed art Thou, O Lord who hast mercy upon the earth.⁴ A Tanna taught: It was reported in the name of Symmachos, [that the prayers were concluded] with, Blessed art Thou who humblest the proud.

ON THE FIRST THREE [RAIN] FASTS THE MEN OF THE MISHNAH FAST BUT DO NOT COMPLETE THEIR FAST etc. Our Rabbis have taught: Why have the Sages ruled that the Men of the Mishmar are permitted to drink wine by night and not by day, lest the work weigh too heavily on the men of the Beth-ab and then they will be called upon to help them; why have the Sages ruled that the men of the Beth-ab are forbidden [to drink] both by day and by night because they are continuously at work [in the Temple]. Hence the Sages have declared that any priest who can identify his Mishmar and his particular Beth-ab and who also knows definitely that the members of his Beth-ab were participating in the service of the Temple⁵ is forbidden to drink wine on the whole of that day.⁶ If, however, he can identify only his Mishmar but not his particular Beth-ab and yet he knows definitely that the members of his Beth-ab were participating in the service of the Temple, he is forbidden to drink wine the whole of that week.⁷ If he cannot identify his Mishmar nor his particular Beth-ab, but he knows definitely that the members of his Beth-ab were participating in the service of the Temple, he is forbidden to drink wine all the year round. Rabbi says: I declare [priests] should not at any time drink wine, but what can I do seeing that his misfortune turned out to be an advantage to him.⁸ Abaye said: According to whose opinion do priests drink wine? According to that of Rabbi.

BOTH THE MEN OF THE MISHMAR AND THE MEN OF THE MA'AMAD MAY NOT CUT THEIR HAIR NOR WASH THEIR CLOTHES, BUT ON A THURSDAY THEY MAY OUT OF RESPECT FOR THE SABBATH. What is the reason? — Rabbah b. Bar Hana said in the name of R. Johanan: In order that they should not enter on their week of duty in an unkempt state.

Our Rabbis have taught: A king cuts his hair every day, a high priest on the eve of every Sabbath, all ordinary priest once in thirty days. Why has a king to cut his hair every day? — R. Abba b. Zabda said: Scripture says, Thine eyes shall see the king in his beauty.⁹ Why has a high priest [to cut his hair] on the eve of every Sabbath? — R. Samuel b. Isaac said: Because the Mishmar changes every week. Whence can it be adduced that an ordinary priest [must cut his hair] once in thirty days? — It is to be adduced from the analogous use of the word pera in connection with the Nazirite [and the priests]. Of the priests [it is written], Neither shall they shave their heads, 'nor suffer their locks [pera] to grow long;¹⁰ and of the Nazirite it is written, He shall be holy. he shall let the locks of the hair of his head grow long [pera];¹¹ as in the case of the Nazirite the period of growing his hair is thirty days so too must it be in the case of the ordinary priest. But whence do we know this to be the requirement of the Nazirite himself? R. Mattena said: A Nazirite's unspecified [term of] vow is thirty days. Whence is this to be adduced? — Scripture uses the word yihyeh the numerical value of which is thirty.¹² R. Papa said to Abaye: Perhaps Scripture means [that the priests] should not let their hair grow at all? — The latter replied: Had Scripture written, 'nor suffer to grow long their locks', it might be as you suggest, but since Scripture has written, 'Nor suffer their locks to grow long,' this implies, they may grow their hair but they may not suffer their locks to grow long. If that is so, this restriction should be valid even at the present time! — [This restriction is] on the same lines as that of the drinking of wine; just as the restriction of drinking wine applied only to the time when they might enter [the Temple]¹³ to do service, so too with regard to the restriction of letting the locks grow long. But has it not been taught: Rabbi says, I declare that [a priest] should not at any time drink wine, but what can I do, seeing that his misfortune turned out to be an advantage to him. And on this Abaye commented: At the present time according to whom do priests drink wine? According to Rabbi.

From this may be inferred that the Rabbis forbid [priests to drink wine], why? Perhaps the Temple may speedily be rebuilt and the need will arise for priests to do service therein and there will be none available; and so here too [in the case of letting the hair grow long] the Temple may speedily be rebuilt and the need will arise for priests fit for service and there will be none available? — [This difficulty cannot arise] here [in this latter case] since it is always possible for a priest to cut his hair and then enter [the Temple]. If that is so, then priests who are intoxicated could first sleep a little and then enter [the Temple], in accordance with the statement of Rami b. Abba who said: A mile walk or a little sleep drives away the effects of drink? — Has it not been stated in connection with this [statement]: This only holds good where a man has drunk a quarter of a log, but where he has drunk more than a quarter of a log walking renders him all the more tired, and sleep all the more drunk. R. Ashi replied: The Rabbis have decreed against those who are drunk because they profane [thereby] the service, but against those who perform the service with their hair long they did not decree because they do not [thereby] profane the service.

An objection was raised against this: The following [priests] incur the penalty of death, those who are intoxicated with wine and those whose hair has grown long. With regard to those who are intoxicated with wine, it is expressly stated, Drink no wine nor strong drink,¹ but whence do we adduce that this also applies to those who grow their hair long? For it is written, Neither shall they shave their heads, nor suffer their locks to grow long,² and the next verse states, Neither shall any priest drink wine when they enter into the inner court; thus, those who grow their hair long are likened to those who are drunk with wine, just as those who are drunk with wine incur the penalty of death so too those who grow their locks long. Now can we not carry the comparison even further [and say] that just as those who are drunk with wine profane the service, so too should those who grow their hair long profane the service?³ — (No; [the two] are likened only with regard to the penalty of death but not with regard to the rendering of the service profane).⁴

Rabina asked R. Ashi:⁵ Who taught it⁶ before Ezekiel's time? — He replied: And according to your reasoning how will you explain the statement of R. Hisda, who said: The rule forbidding an uncircumcised priest⁷ to do service we have learnt not from the Law of Moses but from the prophets [where it is written], No alien uncircumcised in heart and uncircumcised in flesh, shall enter My sanctuary.⁸ But who stated it? It must therefore [be assumed] that it was a tradition and then Ezekiel came and gave it a Scriptural basis. Here too [of long hair profaning the service] there was a tradition and then Ezekiel came and gave it a Scriptural basis. (The tradition was with regard to the death penalty only but not with regard to the profaning of the service).⁹

THE RESTRICTION AGAINST MOURNING ON THE DAYS ENUMERATED IN THE SCROLL OF FASTS APPLIES TO THE PRECEDING DAY BUT NOT TO THE DAY FOLLOWING. Our Rabbis have taught:¹⁰ These are the days on which fasting is not permissible, and on some of them mourning also is forbidden. From the New Moon of Nisan until the eighth of the month mourning is not permissible because the Daily offering was established;¹¹ from the eighth day of the same month until the end of the festival [of Passover] mourning is not permissible since the date of the observance of the Feast of Weeks was then definitely fixed.¹²

The Master said: From the New Moon of Nisan until the eighth of the month mourning is not permissible because the Daily offering was established. Why does it state, 'from the New Moon'? Let it state from the second of Nisan and as New Moon itself is a festive day mourning is in any case forbidden thereon! — Rab replied: This is necessary in order to extend the restriction to the preceding day. But should not the restriction in any case apply to it seeing that it is the day before New Moon? — New Moon is a biblical ordinance, and a biblical ordinance needs no [additional] strengthening. For it has been taught: Mourning is forbidden before and after the days enumerated in the Megillath Ta'anith; as for Sabbaths and Festivals mourning is forbidden on the day before their incidence but not after their incidence. Why this differentiation between the two? The latter are biblical ordinances and need no [additional] strengthening, but the former are ordinances of the Soferim and ordinances of the Soferim need [additional] strengthening.

The Master said: 'From the eighth of the same month until the end of the festival [Passover] mourning is not permissible since the date of the observance of the Feast of Weeks was then definitely fixed.' Why does it state, 'until the end of the festival'? Let it state 'until the festival' and the festival itself being a holiday will ipso facto be a forbidden period for mourning? — R. Papa replied: [The answer is] as Rab who said: This was necessary

Accepting, however, the reading of MS.M. cited supra p. 83, n. 5, these words conclude R. Ashi's argument which runs thus: Since Ezekiel merely provides here a basis for laws that are essentially based on tradition, there is no warrant for the suggested analogy between intoxicated priests and those with long hair. While the former do profane the service, there is no tradition for this to apply to the latter.]

(10) V. Megillath Ta'anith.

(11) A dispute lasting from the first to the eighth day of Nisan took place between the Pharisees and the Sadducees with regard to the Daily offering (Num. XXVIII, 3). The Pharisees were of the opinion that it could be brought only out of public funds (i.e., from the Temple treasury) and the Sadducees maintained it might also be defrayed by private funds. The Pharisees gained the day. V. Megillath Ta'anith, ch. 1; Men. 65a.

(12) There was also a dispute between the Pharisees and Sadducees with regard to the fixing of the date of Pentecost. The dispute turned on the interpretation of the words ממחרת השבת (Lev. XXIII, 15). The Pharisees took the view that the 'Omer had to be brought on the second day of Passover, while the Sadducees maintained that these words meant the morrow of the first Sabbath of the Passover week and from that day forty-nine days had to be counted to Pentecost. V. Megillath Ta'anith, ch. 1; Men. 65a.

in order to extend the restriction to the preceding day, so here also it was necessary in order to extend the restriction to the following day. With whose view will this agree? Is it with that of R. Jose,¹ who declared that the restriction applies equally to the day before and the day after it? If so, with regard to the twenty-ninth Adar, why need you base your restriction on the ground that it is the day before the Daily offering was established;² deduce it rather from the fact that it is the day after the twenty-eighth concerning which it has been taught: On the twenty-eighth of the month [Adar] the good news reached the Jews that they were no longer to be kept back from the study of the Torah.³ For once it was decreed that the Jews should not occupy themselves with the study of the Torah nor circumcise their children and that they should desecrate the Sabbath. What did Judah b. Shammua' and his colleagues do? They went and took counsel with a Roman Matron with whom all the prominent Romans were wont to associate. She advised them, 'Arise and raise an alarm by night'. They went and raised the alarm by night thus, 'O ye heavens, are we not your brethren? Are we not the children of one Father? Are we not the children of one mother? Wherein are we different from every other nation and tongue that ye make harsh decrees against us?' Thereupon the decrees were annulled and that day was declared a festive day!⁴ -Abaye replied: It was necessary to state the restriction in this way in order to cover the case of a full month [where Adar has thirty days].⁵ R. Ashi said: The same would be the case even when the month [of Adar] is deficient,⁶ because on a day following on a festive day fasting alone is forbidden but mourning is permissible; but as for this day [the twenty-ninth Adar] seeing that it is placed between two festive days it was considered as if it were a festive day itself, and therefore mourning too was forbidden thereon.

The Master said: 'From the eighth day of the month until the end of the festival mourning is forbidden since then the date of the observance of the Feast of Weeks was definitely fixed.' Why does he say, 'from the eighth of the same month'? Let him say, 'from the ninth of the same month' and the eighth day would ipso facto be forbidden because it is the day on which the Daily offering was established?⁷ — The reason why it is stated 'the eighth day' is this, should it ever come to pass that the seven festive days be abolished,⁸ even then on the eighth day it would still be forbidden to mourn, because it is the first day on which the date of the Feast of Weeks was definitely fixed. Now that you have arrived at this conclusion the same will apply also to the twenty-ninth Adar because should it ever come to pass that the twenty-eighth Adar be abolished as a festive day, even then the twenty-ninth would be forbidden seeing that it is the day before the Daily offering was established.

It has been taught: R. Hiyya b. Asi said in the name of Rab, the halachah is in accordance with the view of R. Jose.⁹ Samuel said, The halachah is in accordance with the view of R. Meir.¹⁰ But did Samuel actually say so? Has it not been taught: R. Simeon b. Gamaliel said: Why does the text [in the Scroll of Fasts] repeat the word 'behon' [on them] twice?¹¹ This is to teach you that the restriction applies to these days but not to the days immediately preceding or following the days enumerated in the Scroll of Fasts. On which Samuel's comment was that the halachah is in accordance with the view of R. Simeon b. Gamaliel! — At first he thought that as there was no other authority who took a lenient view as R. Meir did he decided that the halachah was according to R. Meir, but when he heard that Rabbi Simeon took an even more lenient view he decided that the halachah was according to R. Simeon b. Gamaliel. And so too said Bali in the name of R. Hiyya b. Abba, in the name of R. Johanan: The halachah is according to R. Jose. Thereupon R. Hiyya said to Bali: I will explain to you that when R. Johanan said that the halachah was in accordance with R. Jose, he meant only with regard to the prohibition of fasting.¹² But did R. Johanan actually say so? Did not R. Johanan say that the halachah is in accordance with the anonymous opinion of a Mishnah,¹³ and it has been learnt: Although the Rabbis said that [the Megillah of Esther] could be read earlier¹⁴ but not later, yet

(1) In our Mishnah.

(2) I.e., the first of Nisan, v. supra.

(3) R.H. 19a; cf. Megillath Ta'anith, ch. 12.

(4) For notes v. R.H., Sonc. ed. 19a. Why then state that the restriction on the twenty-ninth Adar was due to the matter of the Tamid.

(5) In that case the thirtieth Adar would be the last day of the month and it could only be included in the restriction on the ground that it precedes the first Nisan and not that it follows the twenty-ninth Adar, seeing that a day (the twenty-eighth) intervenes.

(6) I.e., it has twenty-nine days.

(7) I.e., one of the eight festive days.

(8) Because of some misfortune that befalls Israel and it would be necessary to fast on these days.

(9) Who holds that the restriction applies both to the day before and the day after the festive days.

(10) Who holds that the restriction applies only to the day following the festive day but not to the day before it. This view is anonymously stated in the Mishnah and in accordance with the accepted tradition that every anonymous statement in the Mishnah goes back to R. Meir. Hence the statement in our Mishnah is taken, to be the view of R. Meir.

(11) In the introductory sentence cited supra p. 84.

(12) But not mourning.

(13) I.e., R. Meir.

Talmud - Mas. Ta'anith 18b

mourning and fasting are permitted.¹ Now to what does this apply? Shall we say that it applies to those [who should read the Megillah] on the fifteenth [Adar] and they read it on the fourteenth? Is then mourning permissible [for them on that day]?² Is it not written in the Scroll of Fasts, 'The fourteenth day and the fifteenth day [of Adar] are the days of Purim and no mourning is permissible thereon,' and Raba's comment on this was: It was necessary [to mention both these dates] in order to make it clear that what was forbidden on the one day was equally forbidden on the other! Again, should it refer to [those who should read the Megillah] on the fourteenth and they read it on the thirteenth [Adar];³ [the question arises] that is Nicanor's Day.⁴ Or again, if it refers to those [who should read it] on the fourteenth and read it on the twelfth? But then that is Trajan's Day!⁵ Hence it can only have reference [to those who should read it on] the fourteenth and they read it on the eleventh, and yet it is stated that mourning and fasting are permitted thereon!⁶ — No; it has reference to those who should read it on the fourteenth and they read it on the twelfth, and as to your objection that it is Trajan's Day, this [festive] day was subsequently abolished because Shemaiah and his brother Ahijah⁷ were killed thereon. Thus R. Nahman once ordained a public fast for the twelfth of Adar and the Rabbis objected to this because it was Trajan's Day. Thereupon R. Nahman replied: This [festive] day has been abolished because Shemaiah and his brother Ahijah were killed thereon. Let, however, the restrictions [aforementioned] remain valid for the day seeing that it is the day before Nicanor's Day? — R. Ashi replied: If the festive character of the day had been once abolished [is it then feasible] that fasting should be forbidden thereon because it is the day before Nicanor's

Day?

What is Nicanor's Day? And what is Trajan's Day? It has been taught: Nicanor was one of the Greek generals; every day he waved his hand against Judah and Jerusalem and exclaimed, 'When shall it fall into my hands that I may trample upon it?' But when the Hasmonean Rulers proved victorious and triumphed over him they cut off his thumbs and his great toes and suspended them from, the gates of Jerusalem, as if to say of the mouth that spake arrogantly, of the hands that were waved against Jerusalem, May vengeance be exacted.

What is Trajan's [Day]?⁸ It was said: When Trajan⁹ was about to execute Lulianus and his brother Pappus in Laodicea [Lydia] he said to them, 'If you are of the people of Hananiah, Mishael and Azariah, let your God come and deliver you from my hands, in the same way as he delivered Hananiah, Mishael and Azariah from the hands of Nebuchadnezzar; and to this they replied: 'Hananiah, Mishael and Azariah were perfectly righteous men and they merited that a miracle should be wrought for them, and Nebuchadnezzar also was a king worthy for a miracle to be wrought through him, but as for you, you are a common and wicked man and are not worthy that a miracle be wrought through you; and as for us, we have deserved of the Omnipresent that we should die, and if you will not kill us, the Omnipresent has many other agents of death. The Omnipresent has in His world many bears and lions who can attack us and kill us; the only reason why the Holy One, blessed be He, has handed us over into your hand is that at some future time He may exact punishment of you for our blood'. Despite this he killed them. It is reported that hardly had they moved from there when two officials¹⁰ arrived from Rome and split his skull with clubs.

WE DO NOT ORDAIN UPON THE COMMUNITY FASTS TO COMMENCE ON A THURSDAY etc.; WE DO NOT ORDAIN UPON THE COMMUNITY A FAST ON NEW MOON etc. What constitutes a beginning?¹¹ — R. Aha said: Three fasts. R. Assi said: One. Rab Judah said in the name of Rab: The view [that one should not complete the fast] is in accordance with R. Meir who reported it in the name of R. Simeon b. Gamaliel, but the Sages say: He should complete the fast. Mar Zutra expounded in the name of R. Huna: The halachah is, one should complete the fast.

CHAPTER III

MISHNAH. THE ORDER OF PUBLIC FASTS AFOREMENTIONED IS OBSERVED ONLY IN CONNECTION WITH [THE WITHHOLDING OF] THE FIRST RAIN,¹² BUT IF THE CROPS HAVE UNDERGONE [AN UNUSUAL] CHANGE THE ALARM IS SOUNDED AT ONCE. THE SAME TOO IS DONE IF FORTY DAYS ELAPSED BETWEEN THE FIRST AND THE SECOND RAINFALL¹³ BECAUSE IT IS THEN A PLAGUE DUE TO DROUGHT. IF [RAIN] FALLS FOR CROPS BUT NOT FOR THE TREES, FOR THE TREES BUT NOT FOR CROPS, FOR BOTH OF THESE BUT NOT FOR CISTERNS, DITCHES AND CAVES THE ALARM IS SOUNDED AT ONCE. AND SO TOO IF NO RAIN FALLS UPON A PARTICULAR CITY, AS IT IS WRITTEN, AND I CAUSED IT TO RAIN UPON ONE CITY, AND CAUSED IT NOT TO RAIN UPON ANOTHER CITY; ONE PIECE WAS RAINED UPON ETC.¹⁴

Talmud - Mas. Ta'anith 19a

IN SUCH A CASE THAT CITY FASTS AND SOUNDS THE ALARM, BUT THOSE [IN THE PLACES] AROUND IT FAST BUT DO NOT SOUND THE ALARM. R. AKIBA SAYS: THEY SOUND THE ALARM BUT DO NOT FAST. AND SO TOO IF A PLAGUE RAGES IN A CITY OR [ITS BUILDINGS] COLLAPSE¹ THEN THAT CITY FASTS AND SOUNDS THE ALARM, BUT THE PEOPLE [IN THE PLACES] AROUND IT FAST BUT DO NOT SOUND THE ALARM. R. AKIBA SAYS: THEY SOUND THE ALARM BUT DO NOT FAST. WHAT CONSTITUTES A PLAGUE? IF IN A CITY THAT CAN SUPPLY FIVE HUNDRED FOOT-SOLDIERS THREE DEATHS TAKE PLACE ON THREE CONSECUTIVE DAYS, THIS CONSTITUTES A PLAGUE; LESS THAN THIS IS NO PLAGUE.

THE ALARM IS SOUNDED EVERYWHERE ON ACCOUNT OF THE FOLLOWING [VISITATIONS]: BLAST, MILDEW, LOCUST, CRICKET, WILD BEASTS AND THE SWORD, AS THEY ARE ALL PLAGUES LIKELY TO SPREAD. IT HAPPENED THAT ELDERS WENT DOWN FROM JERUSALEM TO THEIR OWN CITIES AND ORDERED A FAST BECAUSE THERE WAS OBSERVED IN ASKELON BLAST WHICH AFFECTED AS MUCH GRAIN AS WOULD FILL AN OVEN [WITH LOAVES MADE THEREOF]. THEY ALSO ORDAINED A FAST BECAUSE WOLVES DEVOURED TWO CHILDREN ON THE OTHER SIDE OF THE JORDAN; R. JOSE SAID: NOT BECAUSE THEY DEVOURED [THE CHILDREN] BUT [MERELY] BECAUSE THEY WERE SEEN.

THE ALARM IS SOUNDED ON THE SABBATH ON ACCOUNT OF THE FOLLOWING MISHAPS: IF A CITY IS BESIEGED BY HOSTILE TROOPS OR [INUNDATED BY] THE RIVER, OR IF A SHIP IS FOUNDERING ON THE SEA, R. JOSE SAYS: [THE ALARM IS SOUNDED] FOR HELP BUT NOT FOR A CALL TO PRAYERS. SIMEON THE TEMANITE SAYS: [THE ALARM IS SOUNDED] ON ACCOUNT OF PLAGUE, BUT THE SAGES DID NOT AGREE WITH HIM.

THE ALARM IS SOUNDED ON ACCOUNT OF ANY VISITATION, THAT COMES UPON THE COMMUNITY² EXCEPT ON ACCOUNT OF AN OVER-ABUNDANCE OF RAIN. IT HAPPENED THAT THE PEOPLE SAID TO HONI THE CIRCLE DRAWER, PRAY FOR RAIN TO FALL. HE REPLIED: GO AND BRING IN THE OVENS [ON WHICH YOU HAVE ROASTED] THE PASCHAL OFFERINGS SO THAT THEY DO NOT DISSOLVE.³ HE PRAYED AND NO RAIN FELL...WHAT DID HE DO? HE DREW A CIRCLE AND STOOD WITHIN IT AND EXCLAIMED, MASTER OF THE UNIVERSE, THY CHILDREN HAVE TURNED TO ME BECAUSE THEY BELIEVE ME TO BE AS A MEMBER OF THY HOUSEHOLD; I SWEAR BY THY GREAT NAME THAT I WILL NOT MOVE FROM HERE UNTIL THOU HAST MERCY UPON THY CHILDREN. RAIN THEN BEGAN TO DRIP, AND THEREUPON HE EXCLAIMED: IT IS NOT FOR THIS THAT I HAVE PRAYED BUT FOR RAIN [TO FILL]

CISTERNS, DITCHES AND CAVES. THE RAIN THEN BEGAN TO COME DOWN WITH GREAT FORCE, AND THEREUPON HE EXCLAIMED; IT IS NOT FOR THIS THAT I HAVE PRAYED BUT FOR RAIN OF BENEVOLENCE, BLESSING AND BOUNTY. RAIN THEN FELL IN THE NORMAL WAY UNTIL THE ISRAELITES IN JERUSALEM WERE COMPELLED TO GO UP [FOR SHELTER] TO THE TEMPLE MOUNT BECAUSE OF THE RAIN. THEY CAME AND SAID TO HIM: IN THE SAME WAY AS YOU HAVE PRAYED FOR [THE RAIN] TO FALL PRAY [NOW] FOR THE RAIN TO CEASE. HE REPLIED: GO AND SEE IF THE STONE OF CLAIMANTS⁴ HAS BEEN WASHED AWAY. THEREUPON SIMEON B. SHETAH SENT TO HIM [THIS MESSAGE]: WERE IT NOT THAT YOU ARE HONI I WOULD HAVE PLACED YOU UNDER THE BAN, BUT WHAT CAN I DO UNTO YOU WHO IMPORTUNE GOD AND HE ACCEDES TO YOUR REQUEST AS A SON THAT IMPORTUNES HIS FATHER AND HE ACCEDES TO HIS REQUEST; OF YOU SCRIPTURE SAYS, LET THY FATHER AND THY MOTHER BE GLAD, AND LET HER THAT BORE THEE REJOICE.⁵

IF WHILST THEY ARE FASTING RAIN FALLS, IF IT IS BEFORE SUNRISE THEY DO NOT COMPLETE THE FAST,⁶ IF AFTER SUNRISE, THEY DO COMPLETE THE FAST. R. ELIEZER SAYS: IF BEFORE NOON THEY DO NOT COMPLETE THE FAST, AFTER NOON THEY DO COMPLETE IT. IT HAPPENED THAT THE RABBIS ORDAINED A FAST IN LYDIA AND RAIN FELL BEFORE NOON. THEREUPON R. TARFON SAID TO THEM: GO, EAT AND DRINK AND OBSERVE THE DAY AS A HOLIDAY. THEY WENT AND ATE AND DRANK AND OBSERVED THE DAY AS A HOLIDAY AND AT EVENING TIME THEY CAME AND RECITED THE GREAT HALLEL.⁷

GEMARA. THE ORDER OF PUBLIC FASTS AFOREMENTIONED IS OBSERVED ONLY IN CONNECTION WITH [THE WITHHOLDING] OF THE FIRST RAIN. A contradiction was raised against this Mishnah: [If rain is withheld at the time of] the first and second rainfalls prayers are offered; if at the third rainfall, fasts are observed!⁸ Rab Judah replied: The Mishnah means this: The order of fasts aforementioned is observed only when the time for the first, second and third fructification rainfalls has passed and no rain fell, but if rain fell at the time for the first fructification rainfall and they sowed but nothing sprouted forth, or if the [plants] did sprout forth but they had undergone an unusual change the alarm is sounded at once.⁹

R. Nahman said: Only when they had undergone an unusual change, but not if they merely withered away. Is not this self-evident? We clearly learned, HAVE UNDERGONE A CHANGE[R. Nahman's statement] is needed to cover the case of seeds that have already shot up into stalks. You might have thought that this is a sign of recovery, he therefore informs us [that it is not].

THE SAME TOO IS DONE IF FORTY DAYS ELAPSED BETWEEN THE FIRST AND THE SECOND RAINFALLS AND NO RAIN FELL etc. What is the nature of the plague of drought? Rab Judah said in the name of Rab: A plague which leads to scarcity. R. Nahman said: When [grain] has to be transported by river

(1) If the collapse is caused by an earth-quake or by some other extraordinary natural phenomena.

(2) [Aliter: 'that may not come etc.' a euphemism for 'that may come etc.']

(3) These ovens were usually made of clay and were portable.

(4) Lit., 'a stone of the losers'. A stone in Jerusalem from which announcements of property lost and found were made. (Cf. B.M. 28b where the reading is אבן הטוען 'stone of claims or claimants'). [The meaning of Honi's statement becomes clear from the parallel passage in Tosef. Ta'an. III, We are confident that God will not bring a flood upon the world according to Gen. IX, 15. It was this assurance which made it impossible for the rain to be so strong as to dissolve the stones and which should allay the fear of the anxious people.]

(5) Prov. XXIII, 25. [With this story cf. Josephus, Ant. XVI, 2,1 and v. Buchler, Types, 198ff for a fine analysis of

Honi's prayer.]

(6) Because strictly speaking the fast had not yet begun.

(7) Ps. CXXXVI. Cf. Ber. 4b.

(8) Here it is stated that fasts are ordained after these three rainfalls had failed, whereas the Mishnah says that the fasts are observed immediately after the first expected rainfalls had failed.

(9) The phrase רביעה ראשונה does not denote, as it was assumed, the first fructification rain but the whole of the former rain season (יורה) which comprises three fructification rains as stated supra 6a.

Talmud - Mas. Ta'anith 19b

[from one city to another] it is drought, but when it has to be brought [overland] from one province to another it is famine. R. Hanina said: If a se'ah of grain costs one sela' and is obtainable it is drought; but if four se'ahs cost a sela' but are not easily obtainable, then it is a famine. R. Johanan added: This holds good only when money is cheap and food dear, but if money is dear and food cheap then the alarm is sounded at once. For R. Johanan said: I remember well [the time] when four se'ahs cost one sela' and yet there were many in Tiberias swollen from hunger because there was not a coin to be had.

IF RAIN FALLS FOR CROPS BUT NOT FOR THE TREES. It is of course possible [for rainfall to be beneficial] for crops and not for the trees when [the rain] falls gently and not heavily; similarly, It can be beneficial for trees and not for crops when it falls heavily and not gently; similarly, it can be beneficial for both of them and yet not for cisterns, ditches and caves if it falls heavily and gently but yet not in great enough volume. But is it possible for rain to fall for cisterns, ditches and caves and yet not be beneficial for both of these [crops and trees] as has been taught in the Baraitha? — When the rain is torrential.

Our Rabbis have taught: The alarm [for rain] for the trees is sounded during the middle of the Passover [season],¹ and for the cisterns, ditches and caves even during² the middle of the Tabernacles [season]; and at any time should there be no water to drink the alarm is sounded at once. What is meant by 'at once'? — On the [following] Monday, Thursday and Monday. The alarm is sounded for all the aforementioned only in the particular province affected. In the case of croup the alarm is sounded only when deaths result from it, but if no deaths result the alarm is not sounded. In the case of locust the alarm is sounded no matter how small in number. R. Simeon b. Eleazar says: [The alarm is sounded] also in the case of grasshoppers.

Our Rabbis have taught: The alarm is sounded for the trees during the working years of the Sabbatical Cycle,³ but for the cisterns, ditches and caves even on the Sabbatical year. R. Simeon b. Gamaliel says: [The alarm is sounded] also for the trees during the Sabbatical year because the poor derive their livelihood from them.⁴

Another Baraitha taught: The alarm is sounded for trees during the six working years of the Sabbatical Cycle, but for the cisterns, ditches and caves even on the Sabbatical year. R. Simeon b. Gamaliel says: [The alarm is sounded] also for the trees. For what grows of itself the alarm is sounded even on the Sabbatical year because the poor derive their livelihood from them.

It has been taught: R. Eleazar b. Perata said: Ever since the day the Temple was destroyed the rains have become irregular;⁵ there are years in which rains are abundant, and there are other years when they are scanty; there are some years when the rains come in season, and there are other years when they do not. To what may be compared the years when the rains come in season? To a servant to whom his master gave his week's food allowance [in advance] on the first day of the week, with the result that the dough is baked well and eatable.⁶ To what may be compared the years when the rains do not come in season? To a servant to whom his master gave his week's food allowance on the eve of the Sabbath with the result that his dough is not well baked⁷ and uneatable. To what may be compared the years when the rains are abundant? To a servant to whom his master gave his [year's] food allowance in one lot so that the [waste of] the mill in grinding a kor⁸ is no more than [the waste] in grinding a kab⁹ and likewise the waste in kneading a kor is no more than in kneading a kab. To what may be compared the years when the rains are scanty? To a servant to whom his master gave his [year's] food allowance little by little, so that the waste in grinding a kab is no less than in grinding a kor, and likewise the waste in kneading a kab is no less than in kneading a kor. Another explanation: When the rains are plentiful they may be compared to a man kneading clay; if he has a plentiful supply of water then the clay is well kneaded without all the water being used up, but if the supply is scanty the water will give out and the clay is not well kneaded.

Our Rabbis have taught: Once it happened when all Israel came up on pilgrimage to Jerusalem that there was no water available for drinking. Thereupon Nakdimon b. Gurion approached a certain [heathen] lord and said to him: Loan me twelve wells of water for the Pilgrims and I will repay you twelve wells of water; and if I do not, I will give you instead twelve talents of silver, and he fixed a time limit [for repayment]. When the time came [for repayment] and no rain had yet fallen the lord sent a message to him in the morning: Return to me either the water or the money that you owe me. Nakdimon replied: I have still time, the whole day is mine. At midday he [again] sent to him a message, Return to me either the water or the money that you owe me. Nakdimon replied: I still have time to-day. In the afternoon he [again] sent to him a message, Return to me either the water or the money that you owe me. Nakdimon replied, I still have time to-day. Thereupon the lord sneeringly said to him, Seeing that no rain has fallen throughout the whole year

(1) פרום 'half'. This is explained by J. T. (Shek. III, 47b) to mean half of the thirty days before the feast, i.e., within fifteen days before the feast.

(2) Though it is still summer season (Rashi). MS.M. omits 'even'.

(3) At any time within the six years of the seven years' cycle (Shemittah).

(4) The poor had equal rights with the owners to the produce of the seventh year. Cf. Ex. XXIII, 11 and Lev. XXV, 6.

(5) צימוקין Rashi explains the word to mean 'with difficulty'. Jastrow thinks the word to be a corruption of xenium, 'a host or king's gift, donation indefinite as to time and amount', hence, irregular.

will it then rain now? Thereupon he repaired in a happy mood to the baths. Meanwhile, whilst the lord had gone gleefully to the baths, Nakdimon entered the Temple depressed. He wrapped himself in his cloak and stood up to pray. He said, 'Master of the Universe! It is revealed and known before Thee that I have not done this for my honour nor for the honour of my father's house, but for Thine honour have I done this in order that water be available for the Pilgrims'. Immediately the sky became covered with clouds and rain fell until the twelve wells were filled with water and there was much over. As the lord came out of the baths Nakdimon b. Gurion came out from the Temple and the two met, and Nakdimon said to the lord, Give me the money for the extra water that you have received. The latter replied, I know that¹ the Holy One, blessed be He, disturbed the world but for your sake, yet my claim against you for the money still holds good, for the sun had already set and consequently the rain fell in my possession. Nakdimon thereupon again entered the Temple and wrapped himself in his cloak and stood up to pray and said, 'Master of the Universe! Make it known that Thou hast beloved ones In Thy world'. Immediately the clouds dispersed and the sun broke through. Thereupon the lord said to him, Had not the sun broken through I would still have had a claim against you entitling me to exact my money from you. It has been taught: His name was not Nakdimon but Boni and he was called Nakdimon because the sun had broken through [nikdera] on his behalf.

The Rabbis have taught: For the sake of three the sun broke through, Moses, Joshua and Nakdimon b. Gurion. Now of Nakdimon we know from the above tradition; of Joshua too we know from Scripture where it is written, And the sun stood still, and the moon stayed,² etc.; but of Moses whence do we know this?

R. Eleazar said: We deduce it from an inference from the analagous use of the word ahel.³ Here it is written, I will begin [ahel] to put the dread of thee,⁴ and elsewhere it is written, I will begin [ahel] to magnify thee.⁵ R. Samuel b. Nahmani said: From an analogous use of the word teth.⁶ Here it is written, I will begin to put [teth] the the dread of thee, and elsewhere it is written, In the day when the lord delivered [teth] up the Amorites etc.⁷ R. Johanan said: It can be derived from the verse itself, Who, when they hear the report of thee, shall tremble and be in anguish because of thee.⁸ When did they tremble and were in anguish before Moses? When the sun broke⁹ through for Moses.

AN SO TOO IF NO RAIN FALLS UPON A PARTICULAR CITY etc. Rab Judah said in the name of Rab: Both [cities cited in the verse are under] divine displeasure.¹⁰ Jerusalem is among them as one unclean.¹¹ Rab Judah said in the name of Rab: [The verse implies] blessing; as an unclean [menstruous] woman becomes permissible [to her husband],¹² so too will Jerusalem be reinstated.

She is become as a widow;¹³ Rab Judah said: [The verse implies] blessing; 'as a widow'; not a real widow, but a woman whose husband has gone to a country beyond the sea [fully] intending to return to her.

Therefore have I also made you contemptable and base before all the people:¹⁴ Rab Judah said: [The verse implies] blessing; of you no overseers of rivers¹⁵ nor officers¹⁶ shall be appointed.

For the Lord will smite Israel as a reed is shaken in the water:¹⁷ Rab Judah said in the name of Rab: [The verse implies] blessing. For R. Samuel b. Nahmani said in the name of R. Johanan: What is the meaning of the verse, Faithful are the wounds of a friend; but the kisses of an enemy are importunate?¹⁸ Better is the curse which Ahijah the Shilonite pronounced on Israel than the blessings with which Balaam the wicked blessed them. Ahijah the Shilonite cursed them by comparing them with the 'reed'; he said to Israel, For the Lord will smite Israel as a reed is shaken in water. [Israel are as the reed], as the reed grows by the water and its stock grows new shoots¹⁹ and its roots are many, and even though all the winds of the universe come and blow at it they cannot move it from its place for it sways with the winds and as soon as they have dropped the reed resumes its upright position. But Balaam the wicked blessed them by comparing them with the 'cedar', as it is said, As cedars beside the waters;²⁰ the cedar does not grow by the waterside and its stock does not grow new shoots and its roots are not many, and even though all the winds of the universe blow at it they cannot move it from its place;²¹ if however the south wind blows at it, it uproots it and turns it upside down. Moreover, [because of its yielding nature] the reed merited that of it should be made a pen for the writing of the Law, the Prophets and Hagiographa.

Our Rabbis have taught: A man should always be gentle as the reed and never unyielding as the cedar. Once R. Eleazar son of R. Simeon was coming from Migdal Gedor,²² from the house of his teacher, and he was riding leisurely on his ass by the riverside and was feeling happy and elated because he had studied much Torah

. There chanced to meet him an exceedingly ugly man who greeted him, 'Peace be upon you, Sir'. He, however, did not return his salutation but instead said to him, 'Raca,¹ how ugly you are. Are all your fellow citizens as ugly as you are?' The man replied: 'I do not know, but go and tell the craftsman who made me, "How Ugly is the vessel which you have made".' When R. Eleazar realized that he had done wrong he dismounted from the ass and prostrated himself before the man and said to him, 'I submit myself to you, forgive me'. The man replied: 'I will not forgive you until you go to the craftsman who made me and say to him, "How ugly is the vessel which you have made".' He [R. Eleazar] walked behind him until he reached his native city. When his fellow citizens came out to meet him greeting him with the words, 'Peace be upon you O Teacher, O Master,' the man asked them, 'Whom are you addressing thus'? They replied, 'The man who is walking behind you.' Thereupon he exclaimed: 'If this man is a teacher, may there not be any more like him in Israel'! The people then asked him: 'Why'? He replied: 'Such and such a thing has he done to me. They said to him: 'Nevertheless, forgive him, for he is a man greatly learned in the Torah.' The man replied: 'For your sakes I will forgive him, but only on the condition that he does not act in the same manner in the future.' Soon after this R. Eleazar son of R. Simeon entered [the Beth Hamidrash] and expounded thus, A man should always be gentle as the reed and let him never be unyielding as the cedar. And for this reason the reed merited that of it should be made a pen for the writing of the Law, Phylacteries and Mezuzoth.²

AND SO TOO, IF A PLAGUE RAGES IN A CITY OR [ITS BUILDINGS] COLLAPSE etc. Our Rabbis have taught: The 'COLLAPSE spoken of refers only to sound buildings but not to those already dilapidated; only to those which are not likely to fall in but not to those that are likely to fall in. Are not 'sound buildings' the same as 'those that are not likely to fall in'? And are not those already dilapidated' the same as 'those likely to fall in'? — It is necessary [to distinguish between them] when for instance they collapsed because of their excessive height, or, when they stood on the bank of a river.³ In Nehardea there was a dilapidated wall and neither Rab nor Samuel would go past it although it had remained standing in the same position for thirteen years. One day R. Adda b. Ahaba happened to come there and Samuel said to Rab: 'Come, Sir, let us walk around it', and the latter replied, 'This precaution is not necessary now because R. Adda b. Ahaba is with us; his merit is great and therefore I do not fear'.

R. Huna had wine [stored] in a certain dilapidated house and he desired to remove it. He took R. Adda b. Ahaba into that house and kept him occupied with traditional teaching until he had removed it. As soon as he had left the house it fell in. R. Adda b. Ahaba noticed this and was offended, because he agreed with the statement of R. Jannai who said: A man should never stand in a place of danger and declare, 'A miracle will befall me'; perhaps a miracle will not befall him. And if a miracle does befall him he suffers thereby a reduction from his merits. R. Hanan said: This can be inferred from the verse where it is written, I am not worthy of all the mercies, and of all the truth.⁴ What were the merits of R. Adda b. Ahaba?—Thus it has been stated: The disciples of⁵ R. Adda b. Ahaba asked him: To what do you attribute your longevity? — He replied: I have never displayed any impatience in my house, and I have never walked in front of any man greater than myself, nor have I ever meditated [over the words of the Torah] in any dirty alleys, nor have I ever walked four cubits without [musing over] the Torah or without [wearing] phylacteries, nor have I ever fallen asleep in the Beth Hamidrash for any length of time or even momentarily, nor have I rejoiced at the disgrace of my friends, nor have I ever called my neighbour by a nickname given to him by myself, or, some say by the nickname given to him by others.⁶

Raba said to Rafram b. Papa: Tell me some of the good deeds which R. Huna had done. He replied: Of his childhood I do not recollect anything, but of his old age I do. On cloudy [stormy] days they used to drive him about in a golden carriage and he would survey every part of the city and he would order the demolition of any wall that was unsafe; if the owner was in a position to do so he had to rebuild it himself, but if not, then [R. Huna] would have it rebuilt at his own expense. On the eve of every Sabbath [Friday] he would send a messenger to the market and any vegetables that the [market] gardeners had left over he bought up and had then, thrown into the river. Should he not rather have had these distributed among the poor? — [He was afraid] lest they would then at times be led to rely upon him and would not trouble to buy any for themselves. Why did he not give the vegetables to the domestic animals? — He was of the opinion that food fit for human consumption may not be given to animals⁷ Then why did he purchase them at all? — This would lead [the gardeners] to do wrong in the future [by not providing an adequate supply].⁸ Whenever he discovered some [new] medicine he would fill a water jug with it and suspend it above the doorstep and proclaim, Whosoever desires it let him come and take of it. Some say, he knew from tradition a medicine for that disease, Sibetha⁹ and he would suspend a jugful of water and proclaim, Whosoever needs it let him come [and wash his hands] so that he may save his life from danger. When he had a meal¹⁰ he would open the door wide and declare, Whosoever is in need let him come and eat. Raba said: All these things I could myself carry out except the last one because there are so many in Mahuza.¹

Ilfa and R. Johanan studied together the Torah and they found themselves in great want and they said one to another, Let us go and engage in commerce so that of us may be fulfilled the verse, Howbeit there shall be no need among you.² They went and sat down under a ruinous wall and while they were having their meal two ministering angels came and R. Johanan overheard one saying to the other, Let us throw this wall upon these [people] and kill them, because they forsake life eternal and occupy themselves with life temporal. The other [angel] replied: Leave them alone because one of them has still much to achieve.³ R. Johanan heard this but Ilfa did not. Whereupon R. Johanan said to Ilfa, Master, have you heard anything? He replied: No. Thereupon R. Johanan said to himself: Seeing that I heard this and Ilfa has not, it is evident that I am the one who still has much to achieve. R. Johanan then said to Ilfa: I will go back, that of me may be fulfilled, For the poor shall never cease out of the land.⁴ Thereupon R. Johanan went back but Ilfa did not. When [at last] Ilfa returned, R. Johanan was already presiding over the school, and the scholars said to him: Had you remained here and studied the Torah you might have been presiding.⁵ Ilfa then suspended himself from the mast of a ship and exclaimed, If there is any one who will ask me a question from the Baraitas of R. Hiyya and R. Hoshaiah and I fail to elucidate it from the Mishnah then I will throw myself down and be drowned [in the sea]. And an old man came forward and cited the following Baraita: If a man [in his last will and testament] declares, Give a shekel weekly to my sons, but actually they needed a sela'⁶ then they should be given a sela'; but if he declared, Give them a shekel only, then they should be given a shekel. If, however, he declared, On their death others should inherit [their allowance] in their stead, then whether he has declared 'give' or 'give only' they are given a shekel only.⁷ He replied: This is in accordance with the view of R. Meir who said: It is a duty to carry out the will of a dying man.⁸

It is related of Nahum of Gamzu⁹ that he was blind in both his eyes, his two hands and legs were amputated — and his whole body was covered with boils and he was lying in a dilapidated house on a bed the feet of which were standing in bowls of water in order to prevent the ants from crawling on to him. On one occasion his disciples desired to remove the bed and then clear the things out of the house, but he said to them, My children, first clear out the things [from the house] and then remove my bed for I am confident that so long as I am in the house it will not collapse. They first cleared out the things and then they removed his bed and the house [immediately] collapsed. Thereupon his disciples said to him, Master, since you are wholly righteous, why has all this befallen you? and he replied, I have brought it all upon myself. Once I was journeying on the road and was making for the house of my father-in-law and I had with me three asses, one laden with food, one with drink and one with all kinds of dainties, when a poor man met me and stopped me on the road and said to me, Master, give me something to eat. I replied to him, Wait until I have unloaded something from the ass; I had hardly managed to unload something from the ass when the man died [from hunger]. I then went and laid myself on him and exclaimed, May my eyes which had no pity upon your eyes become blind, may my hands which had no pity upon your hands be cut off, may my legs which had no pity upon your legs be amputated, and my mind was not at rest until I added, may my whole body be covered with boils. Thereupon his pupils exclaimed, 'Alas! that we see you in such a sore plight'. To this he replied, 'Woe would it be to me did you not see me in such a sore plight'. Why was he called Nahum of Gamzu? — Because whatever befell him he would declare, This also is for the best. Once the Jews desired to send to the Emperor a gift and after discussing who should go they decided that Nahum of Gamzu should go because he had experienced many miracles. They sent with him a bag full of precious stones and pearls. He went and spent the night in a certain inn and during the night the people in the inn arose and emptied the bag and filled it up with earth. When he discovered this next morning he exclaimed, This also is for the best. When he arrived at his destination and they undid his bag they found that it was full of earth. The king thereupon desired to put them¹⁰ all to death saying, The Jews are mocking me. Nahum then exclaimed, This also is for the best. Whereupon Elijah appeared in the guise of one of them¹¹ and remarked, Perhaps this is some of the earth of their father Abraham,¹² for when he threw earth [against the enemy] it turned into swords and when [he threw] stubble it changed into arrows, for it is written, His sword maketh them as dust, his bow as the driven stubble.¹³ Now there was one province which [the emperor had hitherto] not been able to conquer but when they tried some of this earth [against it] they were able to conquer it. Then they took him [Nahum] to the royal treasury and filled his bag with precious stones and pearls and sent him back with great honour. When on his return journey he again spent the night in the same inn he was asked, What did you take [to the king] that they showed you such great honour? He replied, I brought thither what I had taken from here. [The innkeepers] thereupon razed the inn to the ground and took of the earth to the king and they said to him, The earth that was brought to you belonged to us. They tested it and it was not found to be [effective] and the innkeepers were thereupon put to death.

WHAT CONSTITUTES PLAGUE? IF IN A CITY THAT CAN SUPPLY FIVE HUNDRED FOOT-SOLDIERS etc. Our Rabbis have taught: If in a city that can supply fifteen hundred foot-soldiers, as for example Kefar Acco,¹⁴ nine deaths take place in three consecutive days, this constitutes plague; if, however, these deaths take place in one day or in four days it is not plague. And if in a city that can supply five hundred foot-soldiers, as for example, Kefar-Amiko,¹⁵ three deaths take place in three consecutive days this constitutes plague; if, however, they take place in one day or in four days it is not plague.

In Derokereth,¹ a city that supplied five hundred foot-soldiers three deaths took place in one day, whereupon R. Nahman b. Hisda ordained a [public] fast. R. Nahman b. Isaac said, This must be in accordance with the authority of R. Meir who declared, If for going at long intervals [during three days] there is [full] liability, how much more so for going at short intervals [in one day].² Said R. Nahman b. Hisda to R. Nahman b. Isaac: Pray, take a seat nearer us.³ The latter replied: We have taught, R. Jose says: It is not the place that honours the man but it is the man who honours the place. We find it thus In connection with Mt. Sinai, as long as the Shechinah dwelt thereon the Torah declared, Neither let the flocks nor herds feed before that mount;⁴ but once the Shechinah had departed thence the Torah said, When the ram's horn soundeth long, they shall come up to the mount.⁵ The same too we find in connection with the Tent of Meeting in the wilderness; so long as it remained pitched the Torah commanded, That they put out of the camp every leper;⁶ but once the curtains were rolled up⁷ both those with a running issue and the lepers were permitted to enter therein. Thereupon R. Hisda retorted: If so I will come nearer to you; whereupon the latter replied: It is more fitting that a scholar, the son of an ordinary man, should go to one who is a scholar and is the son of a scholar, than the latter should go towards the former.⁸

Once a plague broke out in Sura but it did not affect the locality in which Rab resided. People thought that this was on account of Rab's great merit but in a dream it was made clear to them that this was far too small a matter to need Rab's great merit, but that it was on account of the merit of a certain man who made it a practice to lend shovel and spade for burials.

Once a fire broke out in Derokereth but it did not spread to the locality where R. Huna resided. People thought that it was on account of the great merit of R. Huna, but in a dream it was made clear to them that this was far too small a matter to need R. Huna's great merit, but that it was on account of a certain woman who [on the eve of Sabbaths] would heat her oven and permit her neighbours to make use of it.

Once Rab Judah was informed that locusts had come and he ordained a fast. He was then told that no damage had been done, whereupon he exclaimed: Have they then brought provision with them?⁹

Once Rab Judah was informed that pestilence was raging among the swine and he ordained a fast. Can it then be concluded from this that Rab Judah is of the opinion that a plague scourging one species of animals is likely to attack also other species? No, the case of the swine is exceptional, because their intestines are like unto those of human beings.

Once Samuel was informed that pestilence was raging amongst the inhabitants of Be Hozae,¹⁰ and he ordained a fast. The people said to him: surely [Be Hozae] is a long distance away from here.¹¹ He replied: Would then a crossing prevent it from spreading?¹²

Once R. Nahman was informed that there was pestilence in Palestine and he ordained a fast, for he said, If the 'Mistress' is stricken how much more so the 'Maidservant'.¹³ [Are we then to assume] that the reason for his ordaining the fast was because it was a case of 'mistress' and 'maidservant', but if both were maidservants', he would not have ordained the fast? But did not Samuel ordain a fast [in Nehardea] when he was informed that there was pestilence amongst the inhabitants of Be Hozae?¹⁴ The case there was exceptional since there are caravans which it accompanies and with which it comes along.

Abba was a cupper and daily he would receive greetings from the Heavenly Academy. Abaye received greetings on every Sabbath eve, Raba on the eve of every Day of Atonement. Abaye felt dejected because of [the signal honour shown to] Abba the Cupper. People said to him: This distinction is made because you cannot do what Abba does. What was the special merit of Abba the Cupper? When he performed his operations he would separate men from women, and in addition he had a cloak which held a cup [for receiving the blood]¹⁵ and which was slit at the shoulder¹⁶ and whenever a woman patient came to him he would put the garment on her shoulder¹⁷ in order not to see her [exposed body].¹⁸ He also had a place¹⁹ out of public gaze²⁰ where the patients deposited their fees which he would charge; those that could afford it put their fees there, and thus those who could not pay were not put to shame.²¹ Whenever a young scholar happened to consult him not only would he accept no fee from him but on taking leave of him he also would give him some money at the same time adding, Go and regain strength therewith. One day Abaye sent to him two scholars in order to test him. He received them and gave them food and drink and in the evening he prepared woollen mattresses for them [to sleep on].

Nahman refers to himself as מנה בן פרם (מנה == GR. ,mina and פרם, half of a mina). Lit., 'a mina the son of half a mina', while R. In the morning the scholars rolled these together and took them to the market [for sale]. There they met Abba and they said to him, Sir, value these, how much they are worth, and he replied, So-and-so much. They said to him, Perhaps they are worth more? He replied, This is what I paid for them. They then said to him, They are yours, we took them away from you; tell us, pray, of what did you suspect us. He replied: I said to myself, perhaps the Rabbis needed money to redeem captives and they were ashamed to tell me. They replied, Sir, take them back. He answered: From the moment I missed them I dismissed them from my mind and [I devoted them] to charity.

Raba was dejected because of the special honour shown to Abaye and he was therefore told, Be content that [through your merit] the whole city is protected.

R. Beroka Hoza'ah¹ used to frequent the market at Be Lapat² where Elijah often appeared to him. Once he asked [the prophet], is there any one in this market who has a share in the world to come? He replied, No. Meanwhile he caught sight of a man wearing black shoes and who had no thread of blue on the corners of his garment³ and he exclaimed, This man has a share in the world to come. He [R. Beroka] ran after him and asked him, What is your occupation? And the man replied: Go away and come back tomorrow. Next day he asked him again, What is your occupation? And he replied: I am a jailer and I keep the men and women separate and I place my bed between them so that they may not come to sin; when I see a Jewish girl upon whom the Gentiles cast their eyes I risk my life and save her. Once there was amongst us a betrothed girl upon whom the Gentiles cast their eyes. I therefore took lees of [red] wine and put them in her skirt and I told them that she was unclean.⁴ [R. Beroka further] asked the man, Why have you no fringes and why do you wear black shoes?⁵ He replied: That the Gentiles amongst whom I constantly move may not know that I am a Jew, so that when a harsh decree is made [against Jews] I inform the rabbis and they pray [to God] and the decree is annulled. He further asked him, When I asked you, What is your occupation, why did you say to me, Go away now and come back to-morrow? He answered, They had just issued a harsh decree and I said I would first go and acquaint the rabbis of it so that they might pray to God.

Whilst [they were thus conversing] two [men]⁶ passed by and [Elijah] remarked, These two have a share in the world to come. R. Beroka then approached and asked them, What is your occupation? They replied, We are jesters, when we see men depressed we cheer them up; furthermore when we see two people quarrelling we strive hard to make peace between them.

THE ALARM IS SOUNDED EVERYWHERE ON ACCOUNT OF THE FOLLOWING [VISITATIONS] etc. Our Rabbis have taught: The alarm is sounded everywhere on account of the following visitations, blast, mildew, locust, crickets and wild beasts. R. Akiba says: For the slightest attack of blast and mildew; and In the case of locust and crickets even if only one winged creature is seen the alarm is sounded [immediately].

FOR WILD BEASTS etc. Our Rabbis have taught: The Alarm is sounded for wild beasts only when they are a [divine] visitation but not otherwise. What constitutes a [divine] visitation and what does not? When they make their appearance in the city that is a [divine] visitation, in the field it is not; by day it is a [divine] visitation, by night it is not; if a beast sees two persons and pursues them it is a [divine] visitation, but if it hides itself on seeing them it is not; if it killed two persons and devoured only one of them that is a [divine] visitation, but if it devoured both of them it is not;⁷ if it mounted the roof and carried off an infant out of the cradle that is a divine visitation. Is not this [Baraitha] self-contradictory? [First] you say, 'If it makes its appearance in the city it is a visitation' and no distinction is made whether this happens by day or by night, and then you add 'it is a visitation', but by night it is not! — There is no contradiction. This is what is meant. If it makes its appearance in the city by day it is a visitation, but in the city by night it is not. Or, in the field even by day it is not a visitation.⁸

[First you say,] 'If the beast sees two persons and pursues them it is a visitation' which implies that if it remains still it is no visitation and then you add 'if it hides itself on seeing then it is not a visitation'; this would imply that if it remains still it is a visitation! — This is no contradiction. In the one case it speaks of [a beast] in a field near reedland,⁹ in the other in a field not near reedland.

[You say,] 'If it kills two men and devours one of them, that is a visitation but if it devours both of them it is not.' But did you not say that even if it only pursues [two people] that is a visitation? — R. Papa replied: That speaks of a case [where the beast is standing] in reedland.

The [above] text [states] 'If it mounted the roof and carried off an infant out of the cradle it is a visitation'. Is not this self-evident? R. Papa replied: This statement is meant to refer to [the case of a beast carrying off an infant out of a cradle in] a hunter's cave.¹⁰

AND THE SWORD etc. Our Rabbis have taught: By 'SWORD' is meant not only a hostile attack by an invading army but also the passing en route of a friendly army.¹¹ For there could be no more friendly army than that of Pharaoh-Necho, and yet through it king Josiah met his fate, as it is said

(9) When the animal stands near reedland and it feels itself secure because it has a place of escape and it therefore is not likely to attack a person

(10) Although it is a low building and the animal need not climb up high for its prey, the attack is yet taken as a divine visitation.

Talmud - Mas. Ta'anith 22b

But he sent ambassadors to him, saying¹ : What have I to do with thee, thou king of Judah? I come not against thee this day, but against the house wherewith I have war: and God hath given command to speed me; forbear thee from meddling¹ with God, who is with me, that He destroyeth thee not.¹

What is meant by 'God who is with me'? — Rab Judah said in the name of Rab: Idols. Josiah said [to himself], Since he [Pharaoh-Necho] puts his trust in his idols I will prevail over him.

And the archers shot at king Josiah; and the king said to his servants: Have me away, for I am sore wounded.² What is meant by, 'For I am sore wounded'? Rab Judah said in the name of Rab: This teaches that his whole body was perforated like a sieve.³ R. Samuel b. Nahmani said in the name of R. Jonathan: Josiah was punished because he should have consulted Jeremiah and he did not. On what did Josiah rely? — On the divine promise contained in the words, Neither shall the sword go through your land.⁴ What sword? Is it the warring sword? It is already stated [in the same verse], And I will give peace in the land.⁴ It must surely refer to the peaceful sword. Josiah, however, did not know that his generation found but little favour [in the eyes of God]. When he was dying Jeremiah observed that his lips were moving and he feared that perhaps, Heaven forbid,[Josiah] was saying something improper because of his great pain; he thereupon bent down and he overheard him justifying [God's] decree against himself saying, The Lord is righteous; for I have rebelled against His word.⁵ He [Jeremiah] then cited of him, The breath of our nostrils, the anointed of the Lord.⁶

IT HAPPENED THAT THE ELDERS RETURNED FROM JERUSALEM TO THEIR OWN CITIES etc. The question was asked, [Does the Mishnah mean] as an oven full of grain, or as an oven full of bread?⁷ — Come and hear: As much as would fill the opening of an oven. The following question however still remains, Does it mean [as much bread] as would close the opening of an oven, or a row of loaves extending to the opening of the oven? This is left undecided.

THEY ALSO ORDAINED A FAST BECAUSE WOLVES DEVOURED etc. 'Ulla said in the name of R. Simeon b. Jehozadak: It happened that wolves devoured two children and they passed them out through their secretory canal and the question came up before the Sages and they declared that the flesh [of the children] was clean but that their bones were unclean.⁸

THE ALARM IS SOUNDED ON THE SABBATH etc. Our Rabbis have taught: When a city is surrounded by hostile Gentiles, or threatened with inundation by the river, or when a ship is foundering in the sea, or when an individual is being pursued by Gentiles or robbers or by an evil spirit,⁹ the alarm is sounded [even] on the Sabbath; and on account of all these an individual may afflict himself by fasting. R. Jose says: An individual may not afflict himself by fasting lest thereby he come to need the help of his fellow men and it may be that they will not have mercy upon him. Rab Judah said in the name of Rab: R. Jose's reason is because It is written, And became a living soul;¹⁰ Scripture thereby implies, [God says], Keep alive the soul which I gave you.

SIMEON THE TEMANITE SAYS [THE ALARM IS SOUNDED] ALSO EVEN ON ACCOUNT OF PLAGUE etc. The question was asked: Did the Rabbis disagree with him only when it was a question of sounding the alarm on the Sabbath, but on weekdays they agreed with him; or, perhaps they did not agree with him in any circumstances? — Come and hear: The alarm is sounded on account of plague on the Sabbath, and, it goes without saying, on weekdays. R. Hanan b. Pitom,¹¹ a disciple of R. Akiba, said in the name of R. Akiba: We may not under any circumstances sound the alarm on account of plague.

THE ALARM IS SOUNDED ON ACCOUNT OF ANY VISITATION, THAT COMES UPON THE COMMUNITY! Our Rabbis have taught: The alarm is sounded on account of any visitation that comes upon the community! except on account of an overabundance of rain. Why?— R. Johanan said: Because we may not pray on account of an excess of good. R. Johanan further said: Whence do we derive that we may not pray on account of an excess of good? For it is said, Bring ye the whole tithe into the storehouse . . . that there shall be more than sufficiency.¹² What is the meaning of, 'More than sufficiency'? — Rami son of R. Yud interpreted: Until your lips grow weary with saying, Sufficient. Rami son of R. Yud said: In the Diaspora the alarm is sounded on account of this.¹³ It has been taught likewise: In a year of excessive rain the Men of the Mishmar send [a message] to the Men of the Ma'amad:¹⁴ Think of your brethren in the Diaspora that their houses may not become their graves.¹⁵

R. Eliezer was asked, How excessive must the rainfall be to warrant prayer for it to cease? He replied: When a man standing on Keren Ofel¹⁶ is able to dabble his feet in water. But has it not been taught 'his hands'? — I mean, his feet [at the same time] as his hands.¹⁷ Rabah bar b. Hana related: Once as I was standing on Keren Ofel I saw [below] an Arab with a spear in his hand riding on a camel and to me he looked as small as a flax-worm.

The Rabbis have taught: And I will give you rains in their season.¹⁸ [This means that the soil shall be] neither soaked nor parched, but moderately rained upon. For whenever the rain is excessive it scours away the soil so that it yields no fruit.

Talmud - Mas. Ta'anith 23a

Another explanation. 'In their season': [This means that rain would fall only] on the eve of Wednesdays¹ and Sabbaths. For so it happened in the days of Simeon b. Shetah. [At that time] rain fell on the eve of Wednesdays and Sabbaths so that the grains of wheat came up as large as kidneys and the grains of barley like the stones of olives, and of the lentils like the golden denarii and they stored specimens of them for future generations in order to make known unto them the in effects of sin, as it is said. Your iniquities have turned away these things and your sins have withholden good from you.² Likewise we find happened in the days of Herod when the people were occupied with the rebuilding of the Temple. [At that time] rain fell during the night but in the morning the wind blew and the clouds dispersed and the sun shone so that the people were able to go out to their work, and then they knew that they were engaged in sacred work.

IT HAPPENED THAT THE PEOPLE SAID TO HONI, THE CIRCLE DRAWER etc. Once it happened that the greater part of the month of Adar had gone and yet no rain had fallen. The people sent a message to Honi the Circle Drawer, Pray that rain may fall. He prayed and no rain fell. He thereupon drew a circle and stood within it in the same way as the prophet Habakuk had done, as it is said, I will stand upon my watch, and set me upon the tower etc.³ He exclaimed [before God], Master of the Universe, Thy children have turned to me because [they believe] me to be a member of Thy house. I swear by Thy great name that I will not move from here until Thou hast mercy Upon Thy children! Rain began to drip and his disciples said to him, We look to you to save us from death;⁴ we believe that this rain came down merely to release you from your oath. Thereupon he exclaimed: It is not for this that I have prayed, but for rain [to fill] cisterns, ditches and caves. The rain then began to come down with great force, every drop being as big as the opening of a barrel and the Sages estimated that no one drop was less than a log. His disciples then said to him: Master, we look to you to save us from death; we believe that the rain came down to destroy the world. Thereupon he exclaimed before [God], It is not for this that I have prayed, but for rain of benevolence, blessing and bounty. Then rain fell normally until the Israelites [in Jerusalem] were compelled to go up [for shelter] to the Temple Mount because of the rain. [His disciples] then said to him, Master, in the same way as you have prayed for the rain to fall pray for the rain to cease. He replied: I have it as a tradition that we may not pray on account of an excess of good. Despite this bring unto me a bullock for a thanks-giving-offering.] They brought unto him a bullock for a thanks-giving-offering and he laid his two hands upon it and said, Master of the Universe, Thy people Israel whom Thou hast brought out from Egypt cannot endure an excess of good nor an excess of punishment; when Thou wast angry with them, they could not endure it; when Thou didst shower upon them an excess of good they could not endure it; may it be Thy will that the rain may cease and that there be relief for the world. Immediately the wind began to blow and the clouds were dispersed and the sun shone and the people went out into the fields and gathered for themselves mushrooms and truffles. Thereupon Simeon b. Shetah sent this message to him, Were it not that you are Honi I would have placed you under the ban; for were the years like the years [of famine in the time] of Elijah⁵ (in whose hands were the keys of Rain) would not the name of Heaven be profaned through you?⁶ But what shall I do unto you who actest petulantly before the Omnipresent and He grants your desire, as a son who acts petulantly before his father and he grants his desires; thus he says to him, Father, take me to bathe in warm water, wash me in cold water, give me nuts, almonds, peaches, and pomegranates and he gives them unto him. Of you Scripture says, Let thy father and thy mother be glad, and let her that bore thee rejoice.⁷

Our Rabbis have taught: What was the message that the Sanhedrin⁸ sent to Honi the Circle-Drawer? [It was an interpretation of the verse], Thou, shalt also decree a thing, and it shall be established unto thee, and light shall shine upon thy ways etc.⁹ ‘Thou shalt also decree a thing:’ You have decreed [on earth] below and the Holy One, Blessed be He, fulfills your word [in heaven] above. ‘And light shall shine upon thy ways:’ You have illumined with your prayer a generation in darkness. ‘When they cast thee down, thou shalt say: There is lifting up:’ You have raised with your prayer a generation that has sunk low. ‘For the humble person He saveth:’ You have saved by your prayer a generation that is humiliated with sin. ‘He delivereth him that is not innocent:’ You have delivered by your prayer a generation that is not innocent. ‘Yea, He shall be delivered through the cleanliness of thy hands:’ You have delivered it¹⁰ through the work of your clean hands.

R. Johanan said: This righteous man [Honi] was throughout the whole of his life troubled about the meaning of the verse, A Song of Ascents, When the Lord brought back those that returned to Zion, we were like unto them that dream.¹¹ Is it possible for a man to dream continuously for seventy years?¹² One day he was journeying on the road and he saw a man planting a carob tree; he asked him, How long does it take [for this tree] to bear fruit? The man replied: Seventy years. He then further asked him: Are you certain that you will live another seventy years? The man replied: I found [ready grown] carob trees in the world; as my forefathers planted these for me so I too plant these for my children.

Honi sat down to have a meal and sleep overcame him. As he slept a rocky formation enclosed upon him which hid him from sight and he continued to sleep for seventy years. When he awoke he saw a man gathering the fruit of the carob tree and he asked him, Are you the man who planted the tree? The man replied: I am his grandson. Thereupon he exclaimed: It is clear that I slept for seventy years. He then caught sight of his ass who had given birth to several generations of mules;¹³ and he returned home. He there enquired, Is the son of Honi the Circle-Drawer still alive? The people answered him, His son is no more, but his grandson is still living. Thereupon he said to them: I am Honi the Circle-Drawer, but no one would believe him. He then repaired to the Beth Hamidrash and there he overheard the scholars say, The law is as clear to us as in the days of Honi the Circle-Drawer, for whenever he came to the Beth Hamidrash he would settle for the scholars any difficulty that they had. Whereupon he called out, I am he; but the scholars would not believe him nor did they give him the honour due to him. This hurt him greatly and he prayed [for death] and he died. Raba said: Hence the saying, Either companionship or death.

Abba Hilkiah was a grandson of Honi the Circle-Drawer, and whenever the world was In need of rain the Rabbis sent a message to him and he prayed and rain fell. Once there was an urgent need for rain and the Rabbis sent to him a couple of scholars [to ask him] to pray for rain. They came to his house but they did not find him there. They then proceeded to the fields and they found him there hoeing. They greeted him but he took no notice of them. Towards evening he gathered some wood and placed the wood and the rake on one shoulder and his cloak on the other shoulder. Throughout the journey he walked barefoot but when he reached a stream he put his shoes on; when he lighted upon thorns and thistles he lifted up his garments; when he reached the city his wife well bedecked came out to meet him; when he arrived home his wife entered first [the house] and then he and then the scholars. He sat down to eat but he did not say to the scholars, 'Join me'. He then shared the meal among his children, giving the older son one portion and the younger two. He said to his wife, I know the scholars have come on account of rain, let us go up to the roof and pray, perhaps the Holy One, Blessed be He, will have mercy and rain will fall, without having credit given to us. They went up to the roof; he stood in one corner and she in another; at first the clouds appeared over the corner where his wife stood. When he came down he said to the scholars. Why have you scholars come here? They replied: The Rabbis have sent us to you, Sir, [to ask you] to pray for rain. Thereupon he exclaimed, Blessed be God, who has made you no longer dependent on Abba Hilkiah. They replied: We know that the rain has come on your account, but tell us, Sir, the meaning of these mysterious acts of yours, which are bewildering to us? Why did you not take notice of us when we greeted you? He answered: I was a labourer hired by the day and I said I must not relax [from my work]. And why did you, Sir, carry the wood on one shoulder and the cloak on the other shoulder? He replied: It was a borrowed cloak; I borrowed it for one purpose [to wear] and not for any other Purpose. Why did you, Sir, go barefoot throughout the whole journey but when you came to a stream you put your shoes on? He replied: What was on the road I could see but not what was in the water. Why did you, Sir, lift up your garments whenever you lighted upon thorns and thistles? He replied¹ : This [the body] heals itself, but the other [the clothes] does not. Why did your wife come out well bedecked to meet you, Sir, when you entered the city? He replied: In order that I might not set my eyes on any other woman. Why, Sir, did she enter [the house] first and you after her and then we? He replied: Because I did not know your character.² Why, Sir, did you not ask us to join you in the meal? [He replied]: Because there was not sufficient food [for all]. Why did you give, Sir, one portion to the older son and two portions to the younger? He replied: Because the one stays at home and the other is away in the Synagogue³ [the whole day]. Why, Sir, did the clouds appear first in the corner where your wife stood and then in your corner? [He replied]: Because a wife stays at home and gives bread to the poor which they can at once enjoy whilst I give them money which they cannot at once enjoy.⁴ Or perhaps it may have to do with certain robbers In our neighbourhood; I prayed that they might die, but she prayed that they might repent [and they did repent].

Hanan ha-Nehba was the son of the daughter of Honi the Circle-Drawer. When the world was in need of rain the Rabbis would send to him school children and they would take hold of the hem of his garment and say to him, Father, Father, give us rain. Thereupon he would plead with the Holy One, Blessed be He, [thus], Master of the Universe, do it for the sake of these who are unable to distinguish between the Father who gives rain and the father who does not. And why was he called, Hanan ha-Nehba? — Because he was wont to lock [mihabbah] himself in the privy⁵ [out of modesty].

R. Zerika said to R. Safra: Come and see the difference between the [so called] hard men of Palestine and the pious men of Babylonia. When the world was in need of rain the pious men of Babylonia, R. Huna and R. Hisda said: Let us assemble and pray, Perhaps the Holy One, Blessed be He, may be reconciled and send rain. But the great men of Palestine, as for example, R. Jonah the father of R. Mani, would go into his house when the world was in need of rain and say to his [family]: Get my haversack and I shall go and buy grain for a zuz. When he left his house he would go and stand in some low-lying spot, and then standing in this hidden spot, as it is written, Out of the depths have I called thee O Lord,⁶ dressed in sackcloth he prayed and rain came. When he returned home [his family] asked him, Have you brought the grain? He replied: Now that rain has come the world will feel relieved.

Again his son, R. Mani, was annoyed by the members of the household of the Patriarch, he went and prostrated himself on the grave of his father and exclaimed: Father, father, these people persecute me. Once as they were passing [the grave] the knees of their horses became stiff [and remained so] until they undertook not to persecute him any longer.

Again, R. Mani used often to attend [the discourses] of R. Isaac b. Eliashab and he complained: The rich members of the family of my father-in-law are annoying me. The latter exclaimed: May they become poor! And they became poor. Later on he [R. Mani] complained: They press me [for support] and R. Isaac exclaimed: Let them become rich! And they became rich. [On another occasion] he complained: My wife is no longer acceptable to me. R. Isaac thereupon asked: What is her name? He replied: Hannah. Whereupon R. Isaac exclaimed: May Hannah become beautiful! And she became beautiful. He then complained: She is too domineering over me. Whereupon R. Isaac exclaimed: If that is so, let Hannah revert to her [former] ugliness! And she became once again ugly.

Two disciples used to attend [the discourses of] R. Isaac b. Eliashab and they said to him, Master, pray that we may become very wise. He replied: Once I had the power to do this, but now I no longer possess this power.⁷

R. Jose b. Abin used to attend [the discourses of] R. Jose of Yokereth.⁸ Later he left him and went to those of R. Ashi.

Talmud - Mas. Ta'anith 24a

One day he heard him reciting a tradition that Samuel had said: He that takes out of the sea a fish on the Sabbath, as soon as there is on it a dry spot as large as a sela', he has committed a breach of the Sabbath laws.¹ Thereupon R. Jose b. Abin asked him: Why does not the Master add, 'and between the fins'? He replied: Are you not aware that R. Jose b. Abin had [already] stated this? [The former] retorted: I am R. Jose b. Abin. Thereupon R. Ashi enquired: Did you not frequent the discourses of R. Jose of Yokereth? He replied: Yes. R. Ashi then asked him: Why did you leave him, Sir, and come here? He replied: How could the man who showed no mercy to his son and daughter show mercy to me?

What happened to his son? Once R. Jose had day-labourers [working] in the field; night set in and no food was brought to them and they said to his son, 'We are hungry'. Now they were resting under a fig tree and he exclaimed: Fig tree, fig tree, bring forth thy fruit that my father's labourers may eat. It brought forth fruit and they ate. Meanwhile the father came and said to them, Do not bear a grievance against me; the reason for my delay is because I have been occupied up till now on an errand of charity. The labourers replied, May God satisfy you even as your son has satisfied us. Whereupon he asked: Whence? And they told him what had happened. Thereupon he said to his son: My son, you have troubled your Creator to cause the fig tree to bring forth its fruits before its time, may you too be taken hence before your time!

What happened to his daughter? He had a beautiful daughter. One day he saw a man boring a hole in the fence so that he might catch a glimpse of her. He said to the man, What is [the meaning of] this? And the man answered: Master, if I am not worthy enough to marry her, may I not at least be worthy to catch a glimpse of her? Thereupon he exclaimed: My daughter, you are a source of trouble to mankind; return to the dust so that men may not sin because of you. He also had an ass. When it was hired out for the day [the people who hired it] would place, in the evening, the hire on its back and the ass would make its way home to its master. If, however, the money was too much or too little, it would not go. One day a pair of sandals were left on its back and the ass would not move until they were removed and only then did it proceed.

Whenever the collectors of charity caught sight of R. Eleazar b. Birtal² they would hide themselves from him, because he was in the habit of giving away to them all that he had. One day he was going to the market to buy a trousseau for his daughter. When the collectors of charity caught sight of him they hid themselves from him. He ran after them and said to them: I adjure you, [tell me] on what mission are you engaged? And they replied: [The marriage of] an orphaned pair. He said to them: I swear, they must take precedence over my daughter. And he took all that he had and gave to them. He was left with one zuz and with this he bought wheat which he deposited in the granary. When his wife returned home she asked her daughter, What did your father bring home? She replied, He has put in the granary all that he had bought. She thereupon went to open the door of the granary and she found that it was so full of wheat that the wheat protruded through the hinges of the door-socket and the door would not open on account of this. The daughter then went to the Beth-Hamidrash and said to him [her father], Come and see what your Friend has done for you. Whereupon he said to her, I swear,³ they shall be to you as devoted property, and you shall have no more right to share in them than any poor person in Israel.⁴

R. Judah the Prince⁵ ordained a fast and he prayed but no rain fell. He thereupon exclaimed: What a great difference there is between, Samuel the Ramathite⁶ and Judah the son of Gamaliel! Woe to the generation that finds itself in such plight! Woe to him in whose days this has happened. He felt very grieved and rain fell. Once the House of the Patriarch ordained a fast and did not inform either R. Johanan or Resh Lakish. In the morning, however, they did notify them. Resh Lakish then said to R. Johanan, But we have not undertaken the fast on the previous evening.⁷ The latter replied: We are subject to their ordinances.

Once the House of the Patriarch ordained a fast and no rain fell. Thereupon Oshaiah, the youngest of the college scholars,⁸ expounded the verse, Then it shall be, if it be done in error by the congregation.⁹ This can be compared to a bride who lives in the house of her father. So long as her eyes¹⁰ are beautiful her body needs no examination; should, however, her eyes be bleared then her body needs examination. Thereupon the servants of the Patriarch came and put a scarf around his neck and tortured him. Whereupon the people of the city cried out, Leave him alone; us also he insults but since we see that whatever he does is for the sake of Heaven, we say nothing to him and we leave him alone, so you too leave him alone.

Once Rabbi ordained a fast and no rain fell. Thereupon 'Ilfa (some say, R. Ilfi),[stepped down before the ark and] recited [the prayer], 'He causeth the wind to blow', and the wind blew. [He continued], 'He causeth the rain to fall', and rain fell. Rabbi then asked him, What is your special merit? He replied: I live in a poverty-stricken remote place where wine for Kiddush and Habdalah¹¹ is unobtainable but I take the trouble to procure for myself wine for Kiddush and Habdalah and thus help also others to fulfil their duty.

Once Rab came to a certain place and decreed a fast but no rain fell. The Reader then stepped down at his request before the ark and recited, 'He causeth the wind to blow', and the wind blew; [he continued], 'He causeth the rain to fall', and rain fell. Rab thereupon asked him, What is your special merit? The latter replied: I am a teacher of young children and I teach the children of the poor as well as those of the rich; I take no fees from any who cannot afford to pay; further, I have a fishpond and any boy who is reluctant [to learn] I bribe with some of the fishes from it¹² and thereby appease him so that he becomes eager to learn.

Once R. Nahman ordained a fast and he prayed but no rain fell. He thereupon said, 'Take Nahman and throw him down from the wall to the ground'.¹³ He felt greatly dejected and then rain came. Rabbah once decreed a fast. He prayed but no rain came. Thereupon the people remarked to him: When Rab Judah ordained a fast rain did fall. He replied: What can I do? Is it because of studies? We are superior to him, because in the time of R. Judah all studies were concentrated on Nezikin,¹ whereas we study all the six sections. When R. Judah reached the passage in [the Mishnah],² 'If a woman was preserving vegetables in a pot etc. or as some say the passage, 'If olives are preserved together with their leaves then the leaves are not susceptible to uncleanness',³ he exclaimed: I see here disputations of Rab and Samuel,⁴ and yet we to-day teach 'Ukkazin in thirteen different sessions.⁵ And yet when Rab Judah removed one shoe [as a sign of humiliation]⁶ rain fell but when we cry out the whole day no one pays need to us. Is it because of some failing? If so, let any one who knows of it declare it. What, however, can the great men⁷ of a generation do when their generation does not [appear good enough to favour in the eyes of God].

Once Rab Judah saw two men using bread wastefully and he exclaimed: It seems that there is plenty in the world. He gave an angry look and a famine arose. Thereupon the Rabbis said to R. Kahana the son of R. Nehunia, his attendant, You who are so constantly with him, endeavour to persuade him to go out by the door near the market place.⁸ He prevailed upon him and he went out to the market place and seeing there a large crowd he asked. What is the matter? He was told, They stand around a mass of ground dates which is on sale. Whereupon he exclaimed: It seems that there is famine in the world. He then said to his disciple: Take off my shoes. As soon as he had taken off one shoe rain fell. As he was about to take off the other Elijah appeared and said to him: The Holy One, Blessed be He, said, if you will take off the other shoe I will lay waste the world.⁹

R. Mari the son of the daughter of Samuel related: Once I was standing on the bank of the river Papa¹⁰ and I saw angels in the guise of sailors who brought sand and loaded ships with it and it turned into fine flour. When the people came to purchase [it] I called out to them: Do not buy this because it resulted from a miracle. Next day boatloads of wheat came from Perezina.¹¹

Once Raba came to Hagraunia¹² and ordained a fast but no rain fell. Thereupon he said to the people: Continue with your fasting overnight. Next morning he said to them: If there is any one of you who had a dream let him tell it. Thereupon R. Eleazar from Hagraunia replied: To me in my dream the following was said: Good greetings to the good teacher from the good Lord who from His bounty dispenseth good to His people. Raba then exclaimed: It seems that this is a favourable time to pray. He prayed and rain fell.

Once a certain man was sentenced by the Court of Raba to receive corporal punishment because he had intercourse with a Gentile woman. Raba had the man punished and he died. The matter reached the ears of King Shapur and he sought to punish Raba. Whereupon Ifra Hormuz, the mother of King Shapur,¹³ said to her son, Do not interfere with the Jews because whatever they ask of their God He grants them. The king asked her, For example? They pray and rain falls [she replied]. He retorted: This must have been because it is the season for rain; let them pray now, in the Tammuz cycle¹⁴ for rain. She sent a message to Raba: Concentrate now your mind and pray for rain. He prayed but no rain fell. He then exclaimed: Master of the Universe, 'O God, we have heard with our ears, our fathers have told us; a work Thou didst in their days, in the days of old.'¹⁵ But as for us we have not seen [it] with our eyes. Whereupon there followed such a heavy fall of rain that the gutters of Mahuza¹⁶ emptied their waters into the Tigris. Raba's father then appeared unto him in a dream and said to him: Is there anyone who troubles Heaven so much? Change thy [sleeping] place.¹⁷ He changed his place and next morning he discovered that his bed had been cut with knives.

R. Papa ordained a fast and no rain fell. As he felt faint he sipped a plateful of grits and he again prayed, but still no rain fell. Thereupon R. Nahman b. Ushpazarti¹⁸ said to him: If you, Sir, will sip another plateful of grits rain would fall. Raba felt humiliated and faint, and rain fell.

R. Hanina b. Dosa was journeying on the road when it began to rain. He exclaimed: Master of the Universe, the whole world is at ease, but Hanina is in distress; the rain then ceased. When he reached home he exclaimed: Master of the Universe, the whole world is in distress and Hanina is at ease; whereupon rain fell. [With reference to this incident] R. Joseph remarked: Of what avail was the prayer of the High Priest [on the Day of Atonement] against that of R. Hanina b. Dosa? For we have learnt:¹⁹ [The High Priest on the Day of Atonement] prayed a short prayer in the outer room [of the Temple]. What did he pray? Raba son of R. Adda and Rabin son of R. Adda both said in the name of Rab Judah: 'May it be Thy will, O Lord our God, that this year may be one of rain and of heat'. Is then heat beneficial? Is it not rather something harmful? — Rather [the prayer reads thus], 'If the year is to be a year of heat, let it also be a year of rain and of dew, and let the prayer of those journeying on the roads gain admission before Thee.

R. Aha the son of Raba in the name of Rab Judah completed the prayer as follows: 'May a ruler never cease from the house of Judah and may Israel never be in need of sustenance one from another, nor from another people'. Rab Judah said in the name of Rab: Every day a Heavenly Voice is heard declaring, The whole world draws its sustenance because [of the merit] of Hanina my son, and Hanina my son suffices himself with a kab of carobs from one Sabbath eve to another. Every Friday his wife would light the oven and throw twigs²⁰ into it so as not to be put to shame. She had a bad neighbour who said, I know that these people have nothing, what then is the meaning of all this [smoke]? She went and knocked at the door. [The wife of R. Hanina] feeling humiliated [at this] retired into a room. A miracle happened and [her neighbour] saw the oven filled with loaves of bread and the kneading trough full of dough; she called out to her: You, you, bring your shovel, for your bread is getting charred; and she replied, I just went to fetch it. A Tanna taught: She actually had gone to fetch the shovel because she was accustomed to miracles.

Once his wife said to him: How long shall we go on suffering so much: He replied: What shall we do?—Pray that something may be given to you, [she replied]. He prayed, and there emerged the figure of a hand reaching out to him a leg of a golden table. Thereupon he saw in a dream that the pious would one day eat at a three-legged golden table but he would eat at a two-legged table. Her husband said to her:¹ Are you content that everybody shall eat at a perfect table and we at an imperfect table? She replied: What then shall we do? — Pray that the leg should be taken away from you, [she replied]. He prayed and it was taken away. A Tanna taught: The latter miracle was greater than the former; for there is a tradition that a thing may be given but once; it is never taken away again.

Once on a Friday eve he noticed that his daughter was sad and he said to her, My daughter, why are you sad? She replied: My oilcan got mixed up with my vinegar can and I kindled of it the Sabbath light. He said to her: My daughter, Why should this trouble you? He who had commanded the oil to burn will also command the vinegar to burn. A Tanna taught: The light continued to burn the whole day until they took of it light for the Habdalah.²

R. Hanina b. Dosa had goats. On being told that they were doing damage he exclaimed, If they indeed do damage may bears devour them, but if not may they each of them at evening time bring home a bear on their horns. In the evening each of them brought home a bear on their horns.

Once a woman neighbour of R. Hanina was building a house but the beams would not reach the walls. She thereupon came to him and said: I have built a house but the beams will not reach the walls. He asked her: What is your name? She replied: Aiku. He thereupon exclaimed: Aiku,³ may your beams reach [the walls]. A Tanna taught: They projected one cubit on either side. Some say, New pieces joined themselves [miraculously] to the beams.⁴ It has been taught: Polemo says: I saw that house and its beams projected one cubit on either side, and people told me: This is the house which R. Hanina b. Dosa covered with beams, through his prayer.

Whence did R. Hanina b. Dosa have goats seeing that he was poor? And furthermore, did not the Sages say: We may not rear small cattle in Palestine?⁵ — R. Phinehas said: Once it happened that a man passed by his house and left there hens and the wife of R. Hanina b. Dosa found them. Her husband, however, forbade her to eat of their eggs. As the eggs and the chickens increased in number he was very troubled by them and he therefore sold them and with the proceeds he purchased goats. One day the man who lost the hens passed by [the house] again and said to his companions, Here I left my hens. R. Hanina overhearing this asked him: Have you any sign [by which to identify them]? He replied: Yes. He gave him the sign and took away the goats. These were the goats that brought bears on their horns.

R. Eleazar b. Pedath found himself in very great want. Once after being bled he had nothing to eat. He took the skin of garlic and put it into his mouth; he became faint and he fell asleep. The Rabbis coming to see him noticed that he was crying and laughing, and that a ray of light was radiating from his forehead. When he awoke they asked him: Why did you cry and laugh? He replied: Because the Holy One, Blessed be He, was sitting by my side and I asked Him, How long will I suffer in this world? And He replied: Eleazar, my son, would you rather that I should turn back the world to its very beginnings? Perhaps you might then be born at a happier hour?⁶ I replied: All this, and then only perhaps?⁷ I then asked Him, Which is the greater life, the one that I had already lived, or the one I am still to live. He replied: The one that I have already lived. I then said to Him: If so, I do not want it. He replied: As a reward for refusing it I will grant you in the next world thirteen rivers of balsam oil as clear as the Euphrates and the Tigris, which you will be able to enjoy. I asked, And nothing more? He replied: And what shall I then give to your fellow men? I said: Do I then ask the share of one who has nothing? He thereupon snapped at my forehead and exclaimed: Eleazar, my son, I have shot you with my arrows.⁸ R. Hama b. Hanina ordained a fast but no rain fell. People said to him: When R. Joshua b. Levi ordained a fast rain did fall. He replied: I am I, and he is the son of Levi.⁹ Go and ask him that he may come [and pray for us] and let us concentrate on our prayer, perhaps the whole community will be contrite in heart and rain will fall.¹⁰ They prayed and no rain fell. He¹¹ then asked them: Are you content that rain should fall on our account? They replied: Yes. He then exclaimed: heaven, heaven, cover thy face.¹² But it did not cover [its face]. He then added: How brazen is the face of heaven! It then became covered and rain fell.

Levi ordained a fast but no rain fell. He thereupon exclaimed: Master of the Universe, Thou didst go up and take Thy Seat on high and hast no mercy upon Thy children. Rain fell but he became lame. R. Eleazar said: Let a man never address himself in a reproachful manner towards God, seeing that one great man did so and he became lame, and he is Levi. But was this actually the cause [of his lameness]? Was it not rather because he demonstrated to Rabbi a particular form of prostration?¹³ — Both were the cause of his lameness.

R. Hiyya b. Luliani overhearing the clouds saying to one another, Come, let us take water to Ammon and Moab, exclaimed: Master of the Universe! When Thou wast about to give the Law to Thy people Israel Thou didst offer it around amongst all the nations of the world but they would not accept it, and now Thou wouldst give them rain; let them [the clouds] empty their waters here; and they emptied their waters on the spot.

R. Hiyya b. Luliani expounded: What is the meaning of the verse, The righteous shall flourish like the palm tree; he shall glow like a cedar in Lebanon?¹⁴ If it is said, 'Palm-tree' why is also said 'Cedar'? And if 'Cedar' why also 'Palm-tree'? Had it been said, 'Palm-tree' and not 'Cedar' I might have argued that just in the same way [ as the stem of the Palm-tree does not renew itself¹ so too the stem of the righteous, Heaven forbid, does not renew itself; therefore it is said 'Cedar'. Had it been said 'Cedar' and not 'Palmtree', I might have argued that just in the same way as the Cedar does not yield fruit, so too the righteous do not yield fruit; therefore it is said, 'Palm-tree' and 'Cedar'. But does the stem of the cedar renew itself. Surely it has been taught: If one buys a tree from his neighbour for felling he must leave of the trunk one handbreadth from the ground;² of the trunk of the sycamore tree two handbreadths; of the virgin sycamore tree three handbreadths; of reeds and of vines from the knot above it;³ in the case, however, of date palms and cedars he may dig into the ground and uproot them because their stock does not renew itself.⁴ Here it speaks of other types of cedar trees in accordance with a statement of Rabbah b. Huna, who said:⁵ There are ten types of cedar trees, as it is said, I will plant in the wilderness the cedar, the acacia tree and the myrtle tree etc.⁶

Our Rabbis have taught: It is related of R. Eliezer that he ordained thirteen fasts upon the community and no rain fell. In the end, as the people began to depart [from the synagogue], he exclaimed: Have you prepared graves for yourselves? Thereupon the people sobbed loudly and rain fell.

It is further related of R. Eliezer that once he stepped down before the Ark and recited the twenty-four benedictions⁷ [for fast days] and his prayer was not answered. R. Akiba stepped down after him and exclaimed: Our Father, our King, we have no King but Thee; our Father, our King, for Thy sake have mercy upon us; and rain fell. The Rabbis present suspected [R. Eliezer], whereupon a Heavenly Voice was heard proclaiming.[The prayer of] this man [R. Akiba] was answered not because he is greater than the other man, but because he is ever forbearing and the other is not. Our Rabbis have taught: How long should it continue to rain to warrant the community breaking their fast? [Until the rain has penetrated] as far as the knee of the plough enters the soil; this is the opinion of R. Meir. The Sages, however, say: In the case of arid soil one handbreadth, in the case of moderately soft soil two handbreadths, and in the case of cultivated soil three handbreadths.

It has been taught: R. Simeon b. Eliezer says: Not a handbreadth of rain coming down from above but that the deep with three handbreadths comes up from below to meet it.⁸ But has it not been taught: Two handbreadths? — There is no contradiction. In the one case it is cultivated soil, and in the other it is not.⁹

R. Eliezer said: When on the Feast of Tabernacles the water libations are carried out, Deep says to Deep, 'Let thy waters spring forth, I hear the voice of two friends',¹⁰ as it is said, Deep calleth unto Deep at the voice of Thy cataracts etc.¹¹ Rabbah said: I myself have seen Ridya.¹² who resembles a three years' old heifer, with its lips parted; he stands between the lower deep and the upper deep; to the upper deep he says, 'Distil thy waters', and to the lower deep he says, 'Let thy waters spring forth', as it is said, The flowers appear on the earth etc.¹³

IF WHILST THEY ARE FASTING RAIN FALLS, IF IT IS BEFORE SUNRISE etc. Our Rabbis have taught: If whilst they are fasting rain falls, if it is before sunrise they need not complete the fast; if it is after sunrise they must complete it; this is the opinion of R. Meir. R. Judah says: If before midday they need not complete the fast, if after midday they must complete it. R. Jose says: If before the ninth hour they need not complete the fast, if after the ninth hour they must complete it — For thus we find it in the case of Ahab, King of Israel, that he fasted from the ninth hour onwards, as it is said, Seest thou how Ahab humbleth himself before Me etc.¹⁴

R. Judah the Prince¹⁵ ordained a fast and rain fell after sunrise. He was of the opinion that the people should complete the fast. Said R. Ammi to him: We have learnt: [There is a difference] between before midday and after midday.

Samuel the Little ordained a fast and rain fell before sunrise. The people thought that it was due to the merit of the community, whereupon he said to them: I will quote you a parable. This can be compared to a servant who asked his master for a gratuity and the master exclaimed, Give it to him, and let me not hear his voice.

Another time Samuel the Little ordained a fast and rain fell after sunset. The people thought that it was due to the merit of the community. whereupon Samuel exclaimed: I will quote you a parable. This can be compared to a servant who asked his master for a gratuity and the master exclaimed, Keep him waiting until he is made submissive and is distressed, and then give him his gratuity. According to Samuel the Little, what would be an instance of rain falling on account of the merit of the community? — If they recited [the prayer]. 'He causeth the wind to blow', and the wind blew, and if they recited, 'He causeth the rain to fail, and rain fell.

IT HAPPENED THAT THE RABBIS ORDAINED A FAST IN LYDIA etc. Should they not have recited the Hallel first? — Abaye and Raba explained this to be because the Hallel is recited

This would prove that the last moment resolution to fast, provided a man had not partaken of any food before that time, is counted as a valid fast. V. 12a, the statement of R. Hisda.

CHAPTER IV

MISHNAH. ON THREE OCCASIONS OF THE YEAR, ON FAST-DAYS, ON MA'AMADOTH,³ AND ON THE DAY OF ATONEMENT DO THE PRIESTS LIFT UP THEIR HANDS TO BLESS [THE PEOPLE] FOUR TIMES DURING THE DAY, NAMELY AT THE SHAHARITH⁴ [SERVICE], AT MUSAF,⁵ AT MINHAH⁶ AND AT THE CLOSING OF THE GATES [NE'ILAH].⁷

THE FOLLOWING ARE [THE DETAILS CONCERNING] THE MA'AMADOTH. BECAUSE⁸ IT IS SAID, COMMAND THE CHILDREN OF ISRAEL [AND SAY UNTO THEM]: MY FOOD WHICH IS PRESENTED UNTO ME.⁹ NOW HOW CAN A MAN'S OFFERING BE BROUGHT [ON THE ALTAR] AND HE IS NOT PRESENT? [THEREFORE] THE EARLIER PROPHETS¹⁰ INSTITUTED TWENTY-FOUR MISHMAROTH,¹¹ AND EACH MISHMAR WAS REPRESENTED [AT THE TEMPLE] IN JERUSALEM BY ITS OWN MA'AMAD OF PRIESTS, LEVITES AND ISRAELITES. WHEN THE TIME CAME FOR THE MISHMAR TO GO UP [TO JERUSALEM] THE PRIESTS AND LEVITES WENT UP TO JERUSALEM AND THE ISRAELITES OF THAT MISHMAR ASSEMBLED IN THEIR CITIES AND READ [FROM THE LAW] THE STORY OF CREATION.¹² THE MEN OF THE [ISRAELITE] MA'AMAD FASTED ON FOUR DAYS OF THAT WEEK, FROM MONDAY TO THURSDAY; THEY DID NOT FAST ON FRIDAY OUT OF RESPECT FOR THE SABBATH NOR ON SUNDAY IN ORDER NOT TO CHANGE OVER [WITHOUT A BREAK] FROM THE REST AND DELIGHT [OF THE SABBATH] TO WEARINESS AND FASTING AND SO [PERHAPS] DIE.

ON SUNDAY [THEY READ],¹³ IN THE BEGINNING, AND, LET THERE BE A FIRMAMENT; ON MONDAY,¹⁴ LET THERE BE A FIRMAMENT, AND, LET THE WATERS BE GATHERED TOGETHER; ON TUESDAY,¹⁵ LET THE WATERS BE GATHERED TOGETHER, AND, LET THERE BE LIGHTS; ON WEDNESDAY,¹⁶ LET THERE BE LIGHTS, AND, LET THE WATERS SWARM; ON THURSDAY,¹⁷ LET THE WATERS SWARM, AND, LET THE EARTH BRING FORTH; ON FRIDAY,¹⁸ LET THE EARTH BRING FORTH, AND, AND THE HEAVENS [AND THE EARTH] WERE FINISHED.

TWO PERSONS READ BETWEEN THEM A LONG SECTION¹⁹ AND ONE A SHORT SECTION. AT SHAHARITH, MUSAF, AND MINHAH THEY ASSEMBLED AND READ [THE REQUISITE] SECTION BY HEART, IN THE SAME WAY AS PEOPLE RECITE THE SHEMA'. THEY DID NOT ASSEMBLE AT MINHAH ON FRIDAY OUT OF RESPECT FOR THE SABBATH.

ON ANY DAY WHEN HALLEL²⁰ WAS RECITED THERE WAS NO MA'AMAD [SERVICE]²¹ AT SHAHARITH;²² [ON THE DAY WHEN] A MUSAF-OFFERING [WAS BROUGHT] THERE WAS NONE. AT NE'ILAH, [ON THE DAY OBSERVED AS] THE WOOD-FESTIVAL²³ THERE WAS NONE AT MINHAH;²⁴ THIS IS THE OPINION OF R. AKIBA. BEN 'AZZAI SAID TO HIM: THUS DID R. JOSHUA LEARN: [ON THE DAY WHEN] A MUSAF-OFFERING [WAS BROUGHT] THERE WAS NONE AT MINHAH; [ON THE DAY OBSERVED AS] THE WOOD-FESTIVAL THERE WAS NONE AT THE CLOSING OF THE GATES. THEREUPON R. AKIBA RETRACTED AND LEARNT LIKE BEN 'AZZAI.

NINE TIMES IN THE YEAR [WAS OBSERVED] THE WOOD-FESTIVAL OF THE PRIESTS AND THE PEOPLE; ON THE FIRST OF NISAN THE FAMILY OF ARAH²⁵ OF THE TRIBE OF JUDAH BROUGHT THE OFFERING OF WOOD; ON THE TWENTIETH OF TAMMUZ THE FAMILY OF DAVID OF THE TRIBE OF JUDAH;²⁶ ON THE FIFTH OF AB THE FAMILY OF PAROSH²⁷ OF THE TRIBE OF JUDAH; ON THE SEVENTH OF THE SAME MONTH, THE FAMILY OF JONADAB OF THE RECHABITES;²⁸ ON THE TENTH OF THE SAME MONTH THE FAMILY OF SENAAB OF THE TRIBE OF BENJAMIN;²⁹ ON THE FIFTEENTH OF THE SAME MONTH THE FAMILY OF ZATTU³⁰ OF THE TRIBE OF JUDAH, AND WITH THEM WERE THE PRIESTS AND LEVITES AND ALL THOSE WHO WERE NOT CERTAIN OF THEIR TRIBE AND THE BENE GONBE 'ALI AND THE BENE KOZE KEZI'OTH;³¹ ON THE TWENTIETH OF THE SAME MONTH THE FAMILY OF PAHATH MOAB³² OF THE TRIBE OF JUDAH; ON THE TWENTIETH OF ELUL THE FAMILY OF ADIN³³ OF THE TRIBE OF JUDAH; ON THE FIRST OF TEBETH THE FAMILY OF PAROSH A SECOND TIME; ON THE FIRST OF TEBETH THERE WAS NO MA'AMAD FOR THEREON THERE WAS HALLEL, MUSAF-OFFERING³⁴ AND THE WOOD-FESTIVAL.

Even then on some days (e.g., Sunday and Monday) a verse had to be repeated because the two sections did not have the minimum number of nine verses.

Talmud - Mas. Ta'anith 26b

THE TABLES [OF THE LAW] WERE SHATTERED, THE DAILY OFFERING WAS DISCONTINUED, A BREACH WAS MADE IN THE CITY AND APOSTOMOS¹ BURNED THE SCROLL OF THE LAW AND PLACED AN IDOL IN THE TEMPLE. ON THE NINTH OF AB IT WAS DECREED THAT OUR FATHERS SHOULD NOT ENTER THE [PROMISED] LAND, THE TEMPLE WAS DESTROYED THE FIRST AND SECOND TIME, BETHAR WAS CAPTURED AND THE CITY [JERUSALEM] WAS PLOUGHED UP.

WITH THE BEGINNING OF AB REJOICINGS ARE CURTAILED. DURING THE WEEK IN WHICH THE NINTH OF AB FALLS IT IS FORBIDDEN TO CUT THE HAIR AND TO WASH CLOTHES BUT ON THE THURSDAY IT IS PERMISSIBLE IN HONOUR OF THE SABBATH. ON THE EVE OF THE NINTH OF AB ONE MAY NOT PARTAKE OF A MEAL OF TWO COURSES NOR EAT MEAT NOR DRINK WINE. RABBAN SIMEON B. GAMALIEL SAID: ONE SHOULD MAKE A DIFFERENCE IN HIS DIET. R. JUDAH MAKES IT OBLIGATORY TO TURN THE BED OVER;² THE SAGES, HOWEVER, DID NOT AGREE WITH HIM IN THIS.

R. SIMEON B. GAMALIEL SAID: THERE NEVER WERE IN ISRAEL GREATER DAYS OF JOY THAN THE FIFTEENTH OF AB AND THE DAY OF ATONEMENT. ON THESE DAYS THE DAUGHTERS OF JERUSALEM³ USED TO WALK OUT IN WHITE GARMENTS WHICH THEY BORROWED IN ORDER NOT TO PUT TO SHAME ANY ONE WHO HAD NONE. ALL THESE GARMENTS REQUIRED RITUAL DIPPING.⁴ THE DAUGHTERS OF JERUSALEM CAME OUT AND DANCED IN THE VINEYARDS EXCLAIMING AT THE SAME TIME, YOUNG MAN, LIFT UP THINE EYES AND SEE WHAT THOU CHOOSEST FOR THYSELF. DO NOT SET THINE EYES ON BEAUTY BUT SET THINE EYES ON [GOOD] FAMILY. GRACE IS DECEITFUL, AND BEAUTY IS VAIN; BUT A WOMAN THAT FEARETH THE LORD, SHE SHALL BE PRAISED.⁵ AND IT FURTHER SAYS,⁶ GIVE HER OF THE FRUIT OF HER HANDS; AND LET HER WORKS PRAISE HER IN THE GATES.

LIKEWISE IT SAYS, GO FORTH, O YE DAUGHTERS OF ZION, AND GAZE UPON KING SOLOMON, EVEN UPON THE CROWN WHEREWITH HIS MOTHER HATH CROWNED HIM IN THE DAY OF HIS ESPOUSALS, AND IN THE DAY OF THE GLADNESS OF HIS HEART.⁷ 'ON THE DAY OF HIS ESPOUSALS:' THIS REFERS TO THE DAY OF THE GIVING OF THE LAW. 'AND IN THE DAY OF THE GLADNESS OF HIS HEART:' THIS REFERS TO THE BUILDING OF THE TEMPLE; MAY IT BE REBUILT SPEEDILY IN OUR DAYS.

GEMARA. ON THREE OCCASIONS OF THE YEAR DO THE PRIESTS LIFT UP THEIR HANDS [TO BLESS THE PEOPLE]. Is there then MUSAF ON FAST-DAYS and ON MA'AMADOTH? — There is a clause wanting [in our Mishnah]. It should read thus: 'on three occasions do the priests lift up their hands [to bless the people] at all services, and on one of these⁸ occasions four times during the day, at the Shaharith [service], at Musaf, at Minhah and at the closing of the Gates. The following are the three occasions, Fast-days, Ma'amadoth and the Day of Atonement'. R. Nahman said in the name of Rabbah b. Abbuha: This is the opinion of R. Meir. The Sages, however, say: At Shaharith and at Musaf there is 'lifting up of hands' but at Minhah or at Ne'ilah there is no 'lifting up of hands'. Who are meant by 'the Sages'? — It is R. Judah. For it has been taught: At all [services, namely] at Shaharith, at Musaf, at Minhah and at Ne'ilah there is 'lifting up of hands'; this is the opinion of R. Meir. R. Judah says: At Shaharith and at Musaf there is 'lifting up of hands' but at Minhah or Ne'ilah there is no 'lifting up of hands'. R. Jose says: At Ne'ilah there is 'lifting up of hands' but at Minhah there is no 'lifting up of hands'. Wherein do they differ? R. Meir holds the view that the reason why on ordinary days the priests do not 'lift up their hands' at Minhah is because of the likelihood of intoxication,⁹ but on the days [cited above] the question of Intoxication does not arise.¹⁰ R. Judah takes the view that as drunkenness during [the time of] Shaharith and Musaf on ordinary days is not usual the Rabbis did not prohibit the lifting up of hands [at these services on fast-days also], whereas at [the time of] Minhah and Ne'ilah since on ordinary days drunkenness is quite a likely occurrence the Rabbis prohibited the 'lifting up of hands' [at these services even on fast-days]. R. Jose holds the view that the Rabbis confined their restriction to the Minhah only seeing that it is read every day, but they did not to the Ne'ilah which is not read every day.¹¹

R. Judah said in the name of Rab: The halachah is in accordance with the view of R. Meir. R. Johanan said: The people followed the view of R. Meir. And Raba said: The established custom is in accordance with the view of R. Meir. On the view that the halachah is according to R. Meir we teach it [explicitly] in the school sessions; but if we say that the established custom is according to R. Meir, then we should not teach it explicitly in the school sessions but we may give our decisions in accordance with it; if, however, we say that the people followed the view of R. Meir then we do not definitely give a decision in accordance with it, but should one have acted on it we do not declare his action null. But R. Nahman said: The halachah is according to R. Jose. And the halachah is [indeed] according to R. Jose. But nowadays why do the priests 'lift up their hands' [to bless the people] on fast-days at Minhah? — As they lift up their hands [in blessing] very near sunset¹² it is as if this was the Ne'ilah [service].

It is, however, generally agreed that an intoxicated [priest] may not lift up his hands [in benediction]. Whence is this view adduced? — R. Joshua b. Levi said in the name of Bar Kappara: Why does the section dealing with [the blessing by] the priest follow immediately after the portion of the Nazirite?¹³ In order to teach you that, just as the Nazirite is forbidden to drink wine, so too is the priest about to recite the priestly benediction. The father of R. Zera, and some say Oshaiah b. Zabbda, demurred to this: [If that is so], then just as the Nazirite is forbidden to eat the shells¹⁴ [of grapes], so too should the priest about to recite the priestly benediction be forbidden [to eat] the 'shells of grapes'. -R. Isaac replied: Scripture says, To minister unto Him and to bless in His name;¹⁵ [from this is to be inferred] that just as the officiating priest may eat the shells [of grapes]¹⁶ so too may the priest about to recite the priestly benediction.

Talmud - Mas. Ta'anith 27a

[If so, why not also argue]: Just as an officiating priest may not be blemished so too may a priest reciting the benediction not be blemished. — Surely he is compared to the Nazirite.¹ Why do you choose to make your analogies more lenient [for the priest]? Why not make your analogies more strict [for him]?² — These analogies are but supports for a Rabbinical law and they must therefore incline towards the side of leniency.

THE FOLLOWING ARE [THE DETAILS CONCERNING] THE MA'AMADOT. BECAUSE IT IS SAID, COMMAND THE CHILDREN OF ISRAEL etc. What does [this Mishnah] mean to say? — This is what it means to say: THE FOLLOWING ARE [THE DETAILS CONCERNING] THE MA'AMADOT. AND WHY WERE THE MA'AMADOT INSTITUTED? BECAUSE IT IS SAID, COMMAND THE CHILDREN OF ISRAEL AND SAY UNTO THEM: MY FOOD WHICH IS PRESENTED UNTO ME. HOW CAN A MAN'S OFFERING BE BROUGHT [ON THE ALTAR] AND HE IS NOT PRESENT? [THEREFORE] THE EARLIER PROPHETS INSTITUTED TWENTY-FOUR MISHMAROT; EACH MISHMAR WAS REPRESENTED [AT THE TEMPLE] IN JERUSALEM BY ITS OWN MA'AMAD OF PRIESTS, LEVITES AND ISRAELITES. WHEN THE TIME CAME FOR THE MISHMAR TO GO UP, THE PRIESTS AND LEVITES WENT UP TO JERUSALEM.

Our Rabbis have taught: 'There were twenty-four Mishmarot in Palestine and twelve in Jericho'. [You say] there were [also] twelve in Jericho, then there were actually far more [than twenty-four]! — It must therefore be understood to mean that twelve of them [of the twenty-four] were in Jericho. When the time came for the Mishmar to go up [to Jerusalem] one half of the Mishmar went up from [their homes] in Palestine to Jerusalem and the other half went up to Jericho in order to provide their brethren in Jerusalem with water and food.

Rab Judah said in the name of Samuel: The absence of the Priests, Levites and Israelites is a bar to [the offering of] the sacrifices. A Tanna taught: R. Simeon b. Eleazar said: The absence of Priests, Levites and musical instruments is a bar to [the offering of] the sacrifices. On what question does their dispute turn? — The one [Rab Judah] holds the view that the principal music of the Temple was vocal,³ and the other that it was with an instrument.

R. Hama b. Guria said in the name of Rab: Moses instituted for Israel eight Mishmaroth, four from [the family of] Eleazar and four from [the family of] Ithamar; Samuel came and increased them to sixteen; David came and increased them to twenty-four, as it is said, In the fortieth year of the reign of David they were sought for, and there were found among them mighty men of valour at Jazer of Gilead.⁴

An objection was raised against this: Moses instituted for Israel eight Mishmaroth, four from [the family of] Eleazar and four [from the family of] Ithamar; David and Samuel came and increased them to twenty-four, as it is said, Whom David and Samuel the seer did ordain in their set office!⁵ — This is what the passage means: From their institution by David and Samuel the Ramathite they were increased to twenty-four. Another [Baraitha] taught: Moses instituted for Israel sixteen Mishmaroth, eight from [the family of] Eleazar and eight from [the family of] Ithamar; but when the descendants of Eleazar increased in number above those of Ithamar, [the Mishmaroth] were again divided and they were increased to twenty-four, as it is said, And there were more chief men found of the sons of Eleazar than of the sons of Ithamar; and thus were they divided: of the sons of Eleazar there were sixteen, heads of fathers' houses, and of the sons of Ithamar, according to their fathers' houses, eight.⁶ And it says further, One father's house being taken for Eleazar, and proportionately for Ithamar.⁷ What is the force of the additional verse cited? Should you say, that just as the descendants of Eleazar increased in number, so also those of Ithamar increased from their original four into eight. Then come and hear: 'One father's house being taken for Eleazar, and proportionately [we-ahuz ahuz] for Ithamar.' This [Baraitha] will then refute the opinion of R. Hama b. Guria⁸ — R. Hama b. Guria will answer by saying: Tannaim are divided on the question and I accept the opinion of the Tanna [who says that Moses instituted only] eight Mishmaroth.

Our Rabbis have taught: Four Mishmaroth returned from the [Babylonian] exile, and they were: Jedaiah, Harim, Pashhur and Immer.⁹ The prophets amongst them

(1) And a blemished person may be a Nazirite.

(2) [By comparing the priest reciting the blessing to a Nazirite in respect of the eating of the shells and to an officiating priest in respect of a blemish.]

(3) Hence so long as there were Levites present to sing, the absence of musical instruments does not invalidate the sacrifices.

arose and divided them and increased them to twenty-four. [Lots were prepared] and mixed and placed in an urn. First came Jedaiah and took his portion and the portions of his colleagues,¹ six [in all]; then came Harim and took his portion and the portions of his colleagues six [in all]; and likewise Pashhur; and likewise Immer. And the prophets amongst them stipulated that even if Jehoiarib, who was the chief of the Mishmaroth should go up to [Jerusalem]² Jedaiah should not be ousted from his place, but Jedaiah³ should have precedence and Jehoiarib should be subordinate [to him].⁴

AND THE ISRAELITES OF THE MISHMAR ASSEMBLED IN THEIR CITIES AND READ [FROM THE LAW] THE STORY OF CREATION, On what is this based? — R. Jacob b. Aha said in the name of R. Assi: Were it not for the Ma'amadoth heaven and earth could not endure, as it is said, And he said: O Lord God, whereby shall I know that I shall inherit it?⁵ Abraham said: Master of the Universe, should Israel sin before Thee wilt Thou do unto them [as Thou hast done] to the generation of the Flood⁶ and to the generation of the Dispersion?⁷ [God] replied to him: No. He then said to him: Master of the Universe, 'Let me know whereby I shall inherit it'. [God] answered: Take Me a heifer of three years old, and a she-goat of three years old etc.⁸ Abraham then continued: Master of the Universe! This holds good whilst the Temple remains in being, but when the Temple will no longer be what will become of them? [God] replied: I have already long ago provided for them in the Torah the order of sacrifices and whenever they read it I will deem it as if they had offered them before me and I will grant them pardon for all their iniquities.

Our Rabbis have taught: The men of the Mishmar⁹ prayed over the sacrifice of their brethren that it may be favourably accepted, whilst the men of the Ma'amad assembled in their synagogues and observed four fasts, on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of that week. On Monday [they fasted] for those that go down to the sea; on Tuesday for those who travel in the deserts; on Wednesday that croup may not attack children; on Thursday for pregnant women and nursing mothers, that pregnant women should not suffer a miscarriage, and that nursing mothers may be able to nurse their infants; on Friday they did not fast out of respect for the Sabbath; and certainly not on the Sabbath. Why did they not fast on Sunday? — R. Johanan said: Because of the Nazareans.¹⁰ R. Samuel b. Nahmani said: Because it is the third day after the creation of Man.¹¹ Resh Lakish said: Because of the additional soul. For Resh Lakish said: Man is given an additional soul on Friday, but at the termination of the Sabbath it is taken away from him, as it is said, He ceased from work and rested¹² [shabat wa-yinafash] that is to say, Once the rest had ceased, woe! that soul is gone.

ON SUNDAY [THEY READ], 'IN THE BEGINNING', AND, 'LET THERE BE A FIRMAMENT'. It has been taught: Two persons read [the section] 'In the beginning', and one 'Let there be a firmament'. I can understand one person reading, 'Let there be a firmament', as it contains three verses, but how can two persons read, 'In the beginning', seeing that it contains only five verses? Has it not been taught: He who reads the Law should not read less than three verses? — Rab answered: [The third verse] is repeated. Samuel said: It is divided into two. Rab who says that the third verse is repeated why does he not agree that it is divided? — He is of the opinion that any verse which Moses did not divide, we may not divide. And as for Samuel who says that it is divided, may it then be divided? Did not R. Hanina, the Bible teacher, declare, I endeavoured hard to get permission from R. Hanina the elder to divide a verse into two and he would permit me only in the case of teaching children, because it is merely for teaching practice! — To this Samuel can reply: There [in the case of school children] the reason why [R. Hanina permitted the verse to be divided] was because it is not possible [for them to read the whole verse at one stretch], here too it is not possible. And as for Samuel who said, 'It is divided', why should he not agree that it be repeated? — In order to prevent any misunderstanding on the part of those who may enter or leave [the synagogue].¹³

An objection was raised: [A section of] six verses is read by two, but [a section of] five verses by one; should, however, the first person have read three verses then the second person reads the [remaining] two and one verse from the following section; some say, he reads three verses [from the following section] because we do not read from a [new] section less than three verses. Now in accordance with the view of him who says that it should be repeated, let then [the third verse of the first section] be repeated; and in accordance with the view of him who says that it should be divided, let the verse be divided? — There the position is different because he has plenty of verses at his disposal.¹

TWO PERSONS READ A LONG SECTION . . . AT SHAHARITH, MUSAF AND MINHAH THEY READ [THE REQUISITE] SECTION BY HEART etc. The question was raised: How is this Mishnah to be understood? [Does it mean] that at Shaharith and Musaf [the section] is read from a Scroll of the Law and at Minhah by heart in the same manner as people recite the Shema'? Or, it means this: At Shaharith it is read from a Scroll of the Law and at Musaf and Minhah by heart in the same manner as people recite the Shema'? — Come and hear: At Shaharith and Musaf they assemble in the synagogue and read [from the Scroll of the Law] in the same way as all the year round, but at Minhah an individual reads it by heart. — R. Jose asked: May then an individual read by heart in public words of the Law? It must surely be that all assemble [in the synagogue] and read it by heart in the same way as the Shema' is recited.

ON ANY DAY WHEN HALLEL WAS RECITED THERE WAS NO MA'AMAD etc. What is the difference between the one and the other?² — The one [Minhah] is a Biblical injunction and the other [Ne'ilah] is a rabbinic institution.³

THE WOOD-FESTIVAL OF THE PRIESTS AND OF THE PEOPLE etc. Our Rabbis have taught: Why was it necessary [to fix special days for] the Wood-Festival of the Priests and of the People? It is reported that when the exiles returned [to Palestine] they found no wood in the [Temple wood] chamber and the families here mentioned came forward and offered wood of their own. The prophets amongst them thereupon made it a condition that even should at any time the chamber be full of wood they should still continue their offerings, as it is said, And we cast lots the priests, the Levites and the people, for the wood-offering, to bring it into the house of our God, according to our fathers' houses at times appointed, year by year, to burn upon the altar of the Lord our God, as it is written in the Law.⁴

AND WITH THEM WERE THE PRIESTS AND THE LEVITES AND ALL THOSE WHO etc. Our Rabbis have taught: What is the incident connected with the Bene Gonbe 'Ali and the Bene

Koze Kezi'oth? It is reported that once the ruling power made a decree that Israel should not bring wood to the altar, nor bring their first-fruit to Jerusalem, and placed guards on the roads as Jeroboam the son of Nebat had done to prevent Israel from going on pilgrimage. What did the pious and sin-fearing men of that generation do? They took the baskets of the first-fruit and covered them with dried figs and carried them with a pestle on their shoulders, and when they reached the guards they were asked: Whither are you going? They replied: With the pestle on our shoulders we are going to make two cakes of pressed figs in the mortar we have yonder. When they had gone away from the guard they decorated the baskets and brought them to Jerusalem.⁵ It has been taught: The family of Salami Netofah acted in a similar way.

Our Rabbis have taught: What is the incident connected with the family of Salami Netofah? It is reported that once the ruling power decreed that Israel should not bring wood to the altar and they placed guards on the roads as Jeroboam the son of Nebat had done to prevent Israel from going on pilgrimage. What did the God-fearing men of that generation do? They took the logs of wood and made them into ladders which they carried on their shoulders and proceeded on their journey; when they reached the guards they were asked: Whither are you going? They replied: [We are going] with the ladders on our shoulders to take down young pigeons from the dovecot at a place further on. When they had gone away from the guards they dismantled [the ladders] and brought them to Jerusalem.⁶ And it is of them and of men like them that Scripture says, The memory of the righteous shall be for a blessing;⁷ and of Jeroboam and his companions the verse adds, But the name of the wicked shall rot.

ON THE TWENTIETH OF THE SAME MONTH THE FAMILY OF PAHATH MOAB: A Tanna taught: The sons of Pahath Moab b. Judah are identical with the sons of David the son of Judah; this is the opinion of R. Meir. R. Judah says: They are identical with the sons of Joab b. Zeraiah.

ON THE TWENTIETH OF ELUL THE FAMILY OF ADIN THE SON OF JUDAH: Our Rabbis have taught: The sons of Adin the son of Judah are the same as the sons of David the son of Judah; this is the opinion of R. Judah. R. Jose says: They are the same as the sons of Joab the son of Zeraiah.

ON THE FIRST OF TEBETH THE FAMILY OF PAROSH A SECOND TIME etc. With whose view does the Mishnah agree? It is neither with the view of R. Meir nor with that of R. Judah, nor with that of R. Jose. If it were in agreement with the view of R. Meir then [the Mishnah] would read, 'the sons of David b. Judah a second time'; should it be with that of R. Judah then it should read 'the sons of David b. Judah a second time'; if with that of R. Jose then it should read 'the sons of Joab b. Zeraiah a second time'! — [The Mishnah actually] agrees with the view of R. Jose, but there are two Tannaim in dispute as to what R. Jose's view was.⁸

ON THE FIRST OF TEBETH THERE WAS NO MA'AMAD etc. Mar Kashisha the son of R. Hisda asked R. Ashi

(1) But here in the case of the Ma'amadoth the Scriptural verses are limited in number. For further notes on this passage v. Meg., Sonc. ed. p. 133f.

(2) Why on the day of the Wood-Festival is no Ma'amad held at Ne'ilah but takes place as usual at Minhah?

(3) Minhah is of Biblical origin its institution being attributed to the Patriarch Isaac (cf. Ber. 26b), hence the Wood-Festival cannot supersede the Ma'amad in connection with it, whereas Ne'ilah is a rabbinic institution and therefore the festive day can supersede it. (So Rashi). V. however, Tosaf. ad loc. for an alternative interpretation of the passage.

(8) On one view (represented under Mishnah) R. Jose identifies the family of Adin with that of David; on the other (in the Baraitha) with that of Joab.

Talmud - Mas. Ta'anith 28b

: Why is Hallel different that it suspends its own Ma'amad¹ while Musaf does not supersede its own Ma'amad?² — R. Ashi replied: If [Musaf] suspends the Ma'amad of a service of which it is not part, [i.e., Minhah] all the more should it suspend its own Ma'amad? — R. Kashisha then said: This is what I mean to say: Let it [Musaf] suspend its own Ma'amad only!³ — R. Ashi replied: There is R. Jose who holds the same view as you. For it has been taught: R. Jose says: Any day on which there is Musaf there is also a Ma'amad. Now which Ma'amad [is here referred to]? Shall I say the Ma'amad of the Shaharith? [Surely] the first Tanna [of our Mishnah] also says likewise! Is it the Ma'amad of the Musaf? Does not Musaf suspend even its own Ma'amad! Is it the Ma'amad of Minhah? But this is already suspended because of the Wood-Festival!⁴ It must then surely be the Ma'amad of Ne'ilah. Hence the conclusion therefrom that Musaf suspends its own Ma'amad but it does not suspend the Ma'amad of any other service. Hence it is proved.

Let [the Mishnah] also state that there was no Ma'amad on the first of Nisan, because there was Hallel,⁵ and Musaf offering and the wood-offering? — Raba replied: This proves that the recital of Hallel on New Moon is not a Biblical injunction.⁶ For R. Johanan said in the name of R. Simeon b. Jehozadak, On eighteen days in the year the individual [worshiper] completes the Hallel⁷ and they are, the eight days of the Feast of Tabernacles, the eight days of Hanukkah, the first day of Passover,⁸ and the Festival of Pentecost; but in the Diaspora⁹ [the Hallel is completed] on twenty-one days, and they are, the nine days of the Feast of Tabernacles, the eight days of Hanukkah, the first two days of Passover and the two days of Pentecost.

Rab once came to Babylonia¹⁰ and he noticed that they recited the Hallel¹¹ on New Moon; at first he thought of stopping them but when he saw that they omitted parts of it he remarked: It is clearly evident that it is an old ancestral custom with them. A Tanna taught: The individual should not deliberately begin to recite [the Hallel]¹² but once he has begun he should complete it.

FIVE MISFORTUNES BEFELL OUR FATHERS ON THE SEVENTEENTH OF TAMMUZ etc. Whence is it known that the Tables [of the Law] were shattered [on the seventeenth of Tammuz]? For it has been taught:¹³ On the sixth of the month [of Sivan] the Ten Commandments were given to Israel; R. Jose says: On the seventh of the month. He who says that they were given on the sixth takes the view that on the sixth they were given and on the seventh Moses ascended the mount. And he who says that they were given on the seventh holds that they were given on the seventh and on the seventh Moses ascended the mount. For it is written, And the seventh day he called unto Moses,¹⁴ and it is further written, And Moses entered into the midst of the cloud, and went up into the mount; and Moses was in the mount forty days and forty nights.¹⁵ The [remaining] twenty-four days of Sivan and the sixteen days of Tammuz make altogether forty. On the seventeenth of Tammuz he came down [from the mountain] and shattered the Tables, as it is written, And it came to pass as soon as he came nigh unto the camp, that he saw the calf . . . and he cast the tables out of his hands, and broke them beneath the mount.¹⁶

[THE DAILY OFFERING] WAS DISCONTINUED. This is a tradition.

A BREACH WAS MADE IN THE CITY. Did this then happen on the seventeenth? Is it not written, In the fourth month, in the ninth day of the month, the famine was sore in the city etc.,¹⁷ and in the following verse it is written, Then a breach was made in the city etc.! — Raba said: This is no contradiction. The one refers to the First Temple and the other to the Second Temple. For it has been taught: In the First Temple the breach was made in the city on the ninth of Tammuz, but in the Second Temple on the seventeenth of Tammuz.

APOSTOMOS BURNED THE SCROLL OF THE LAW. This is a tradition.

AND PLACED AN IDOL IN THE TEMPLE. Whence do we know this? — For it is written, And from the time that the continual burnt-offering shall be taken away and the detestable thing that causeth appalment set up.¹⁸ Was there then only one detestable thing? Is it not written, And upon the wing of detestable things shall be that which causeth appalment?¹⁹ — Raba replied: There were two [idols] and one fell upon the other and broke its hand and upon it was found inscribed

- (1) On the day when Hallel is recited is the corresponding Ma'amad prayer of the Shaharith eliminated.
- (2) On the day when there is Musaf the Ma'amad of the Minhah is eliminated and not the one attached to the Musaf.
- (3) And not also that of Minhah, having a similar effect as Hallel.
- (4) [This is difficult to explain. Wilna Gaon omits the last two sentences and reads: Hence it must then surely be the Ma'amad of Minhah and Ne'ilah.]
- (5) Being New Moon.
- (6) As the Mishnah does not state this, it is to be inferred that in spite of the fact that the Hallel was recited on the first of Nisan the Ma'amad prayers were read as usual at the Shaharith. This proves that the recital of the Hallel on New Moon is but a custom that had sprung up and is not a Biblical institution, otherwise the Hallel would eliminate the Ma'amad.
- (7) The complete Hallel consisted of Psalms CXIII-CXVIII; on the days when Hallel was not to be completed verses I-XI of Psalms CXV and CXVI were omitted.
- (8) The Hallel was also completed on the Eve of Passover at the Passover sacrifices. Cf. Pes. V, 7.
- (9) The next day was also observed as a festival.

Talmud - Mas. Ta'anith 29a

: You desired to destroy the Temple, but I have handed over your hand to Him.¹

ON THE NINTH OF AB IT WAS DECREED THAT OUR FATHERS SHOULD NOT ENTER THE [PROMISED] LAND. Whence do we know this? For it is written, And it came to pass in the first month in the second year, on the first day of the month, that the tabernacle was reared up.² And [regarding this verse] a Master said: In the first year Moses built the Tabernacle, in the second year Moses erected the Tabernacle and sent out spies. Further it is written. And it came to pass in the second year, in the second month, on the twentieth day of the month, that the cloud was taken up from over the tabernacle of testimony.³ And it is further written, And they set forward from the mount of the Lord three days' journey,⁴ and R. Hama b. Hanina explained this means that on that day they turned aside from after the Lord. And it is further written, And the mixed multitude that was among them fell a-lusting; and the children of Israel also wept on their part etc.⁵ And it is further written, But a whole month etc.⁶ That brings us up to the twenty-second of Sivan. And it is further written, And Miriam was shut up [without the camp] seven days.⁷ That brings us up to the twenty-ninth of Sivan. And it is further written, Send thou men.⁸ And it has been taught: Moses sent out spies on the twenty-ninth of Sivan. And it is further written, Add they returned from spying out the land at the end of forty days.⁹ But is not this forty days less one?¹⁰ — Abaye replied: Tammuz of that year was a full month [of thirty days],¹¹ for it is written, He hath called a solemn assembly against me to crush my young men.¹² And it is further written, And all the congregation lifted up their voice, and cried; and the people wept that night.¹³ Rabbah said in the name of R. Johanan: That night was the night of the ninth of Ab. The Holy One, blessed be He, said to them: You have wept without cause, therefore I will set [this day] aside for a weeping throughout the generations to come.

[ON THE NINTH OF AB] THE TEMPLE WAS DESTROYED THE FIRST TIME. For it is written, Now in the fifth month, on the seventh day of the month, which was the nineteenth year of King Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, came Nebuzaradan the captain of the guard, a servant of the King of Babylon, unto Jerusalem. And he burnt the house of the Lord etc.¹⁴ And it is further written, Now in the fifth month, in the tenth day of the month, which was the nineteenth year of King Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, came Nebuzaradan the captain of the guard, who stood before the king of Babylon into Jerusalem etc.¹⁵ With reference to this it has been taught: We cannot say that this happened on the seventh, for it has already been stated that it was ‘in the tenth’; and we cannot say that this happened on the tenth, for it has already been stated that it was ‘on the seventh’. How then are these dates to be reconciled? On the seventh the heathens entered the Temple and ate therein and desecrated it throughout the seventh and eighth [of Ab] and towards dusk of the ninth they set fire to it and it continued to burn the whole of that day, as it is said, Woe unto us! for the day declineth, for the shadows of the evening are stretched out.¹⁶ And this is what R. Johanan meant when he said: Had I been alive in that generation I should have fixed [the mourning] for the tenth, because the greater part of the Temple was burnt thereon. How will the Rabbis then [explain the contradiction]? — The beginning of any misfortune is of greater moment.

AND [THE TEMPLE WAS DESTROYED] THE SECOND TIME. Whence do we know this? For it has been taught: Good things come to pass on an auspicious day, and bad things on an unlucky day. It is reported that the day on which the First Temple was destroyed was the eve of the ninth of Ab, a Sunday, and in a year following the Sabbatical year, and the Mishmar of the family of Jehoiarib¹⁷ were on duty and the Levites were chanting the Psalms standing on the Duchan.¹⁸ And what Psalm did they recite? — [The Psalm] containing the verse, And He hath brought upon them their own iniquity; and will cut them off in their own evil.¹⁹ And hardly had they time to say, ‘The Lord our God will cut them off’,¹⁹ when the heathens came and captured them. The same thing too happened in the Second Temple.

BETHAR WAS CAPTURED. This is a tradition.

AND THE CITY WAS PLOUGHED UP. It has been taught: When Turnus Rufus the wicked destroyed²⁰ the Temple, R. Gamaliel was condemned to death. A high officer came and stood up in the Beth-Hamidrash and called out, ‘The Nose-man²¹ is wanted, the Nose-man is wanted’. When R. Gamaliel heard this he hid himself. Thereupon the officer went up secretly to him and said, ‘If I save you will you bring me into the world to come?’ He replied: Yes. He then asked him, ‘Will you swear it unto me?’ And the latter took an oath. The officer then mounted the roof and threw himself down and died. Now there was a tradition [amongst the Romans] that when a decree is made and one of their own [leaders] dies, then that decree is annulled.²² Thereupon a Voice from Heaven was heard declaring, This high officer is destined to enter into the world to come.

Our Rabbis have taught: When the First Temple was about to be destroyed bands upon bands of young priests with the keys of the Temple in their hands assembled and mounted the roof of the Temple and exclaimed, ‘Master of the Universe, as we did not have the merit to be faithful treasurers these keys are handed back into Thy keeping'. They then threw the keys up towards heaven. And there emerged the figure of a hand and received the keys from them. Whereupon they jumped and fell into the fire. It is in allusion to them that the prophet Isaiah laments: The burden concerning the Valley of Vision. What aileth thee now, that thou art wholly gone up to the house tops, thou that art full of uproar, a tumultuous city, a joyous town? Thy slain are not slain with the sword, nor dead in battle.²³ Of the Holy One, blessed be He, also it is said, Kir shouting, and crying at the mount.²⁴

WITH THE BEGINNING OF AB REJOICINGS ARE CURTAILED. Rab Judah the son of R. Samuel b. Shilath said in the name of Rab: Just as with the beginning of Ab rejoicings are curtailed, so with the beginning of Adar rejoicings are increased.

R. Papa said: Therefore a Jew who has any litigation with Gentiles should avoid him in Ab because his luck is bad and should make himself available in Adar when his luck is good.

To give you a future and a hope:¹ Rab Judah the son of R. Samuel b. Shilath said in the name of Rab: By this is meant [an abundance of] palm trees and flaxen garments.²

And he said: See, the smell of my son is as the smell of a field which the Lord hath blessed.³ Rab Judah the son of R. Samuel b. Shilath said in the name of Rab: As the smell of an apple orchard.

DURING THE WEEK IN WHICH THE NINTH OF AB FALLS IT IS FORBIDDEN TO CUT THE HAIR AND TO WASH CLOTHES. R. Nahman said: This restriction only applies to the washing of clothes for immediate wear but the washing of clothes for storing is permissible. R.

Shesheth said: It is forbidden to wash clothes even for storing. R. Shesheth said: A proof for this is that the fullers in the house of Rab⁴ are then idle.

R. Hamnuna raised an objection: ON THURSDAY IT IS PERMISSIBLE IN HONOUR OF THE SABBATH.⁵ What is permissible? Shall I say it is to wash clothes for immediate wear?⁶ Where does the honour of the Sabbath enter into it? It must surely mean, washing clothes for storing [till Sabbath], and this is permissible only on Thursday but not during other days of the week! — In reality [the Mishnah refers] to the washing of clothes for immediate wear and it speaks of a case where a man has only one shirt. For R. Assi said in the name of R. Johanan: When a man has one shirt only he may wash it in the middle days of the Festival.⁷ So too it has been stated: R. Benjamin said in the name of R. Eleazar: The restriction applies only to washing clothes for immediate wear but washing clothes for storing is permissible. An objection was raised against this: It is forbidden to wash clothes before the ninth of Ab even for storing them until after the ninth of Ab. And our [Babylonian] laundry work is like their [Palestinian] plain washing, [in respect of this prohibition],⁸ but flaxen garments are not included in this prohibition against laundry work. This is indeed a refutation.

R. Isaac b. Giyuri sent a message in the name of R. Johanan: Although the Rabbis declared that flaxen garments are not included in the prohibition against laundry work, yet it is forbidden to wear them [newly laundered] in the week in which the Ninth of Ab falls. Rab said: This applies to the days before the Ninth of Ab but on the days after it it is permissible to wear them. Samuel said: Even on the days after the Ninth of Ab it is forbidden to wear them. An objection was raised against this: The week in which the Ninth of Ab falls it is not permissible to cut the hair or to wash clothes, but on Thursday it is permissible in honour of the Sabbath. How is this to be understood? Should it fall on Sunday it is permissible to wash clothes the whole of the week, [but should it fall] on Monday or Tuesday or Wednesday or Thursday, before it it is not permissible, but after it, it is permissible; [should it fall] on Friday it is permissible to wash clothes on Thursday in honour of the Sabbath; if however he has not washed them on the Thursday it is permissible to wash them on the Friday from the hour of Minhah onwards. (Abaye, and some say, R. Aha b. Jacob expressed his strongest disapproval⁹ of any one who acted so.) Should [the Ninth of Ab] fall on Monday or on Thursday three people read the Law, and [of these the last] one also reads the prophetic lesson; but [should it fall] on Tuesday or Wednesday one reads the Law and he also reads the prophetic lesson. R. Jose says: Invariably three persons read the Law and the last one of these also reads the prophetic lesson. [Will not this Baraitha be] a refutation of Samuel [who holds that it is not permissible to wash clothes, even on the days after the Ninth of Ab]? — Samuel will reply: Tannaim are divided on this point. For it has been taught: Should the Ninth of Ab fall on the Sabbath, and likewise if the eve of the Ninth of Ab falls on the Sabbath, one may eat and drink as much as he needs and he may load his table with as many viands as Solomon in his time did, but it is forbidden to cut the hair and to wash clothes, from the beginning of the month until after the fast; this is the opinion of R. Meir. R. Judah says: It is forbidden the whole month. R. Simeon b. Gamaliel says: It is forbidden only on that particular week. And elsewhere it has been taught: And mourning is observed from the beginning of the month until the fast; this is the opinion of R. Meir. R. Judah says: It is forbidden the whole month. R. Simeon b. Gamaliel says: It is forbidden only on that particular week.¹⁰

Said R. Johanan: All three authorities adduced their ruling from the same scriptural verse. For it is written, I will also cause all her mirth to cease, her feasts, her new moons, and her sabbaths.¹¹ The one who says, from the beginning of the month until the fast adduces his opinion from 'her feasts';¹ the one who says, it is forbidden the whole month, from 'her new moons';² and the one who says, it is forbidden the whole week, from 'her sabbaths'.³ Raba said: The halachah is according to R. Simeon b. Gamaliel. And Raba further said: The halachah is according to R. Meir. And both decisions are in favour of the more lenient practice, and both are needed [to be stated]. For had it only been stated that the halachah is according to R. Meir, I might have said that the restriction is in force from the beginning of the month, therefore it is also clearly stated that the halachah is according to R. Simeon b. Gamaliel; and had it only been stated that the halachah is according to R. Simeon b. Gamaliel, I would have said that the restriction continues even on the days after [the Ninth of Ab], therefore it is clearly stated that the halachah is according to R. Meir.⁴

ON THE EVE OF THE NINTH OF AB ONE MAY NOT PARTAKE OF A MEAL OF TWO COURSES etc. Rab Judah said: This restriction applies to any time after midday⁵ but not to any time before midday. Rab Judah further said: It applies only to the concluding meal [before the fast] but not to any other meal. And both decisions are in favour of the more lenient practice, and both are needed to be stated. For had it [only] mentioned the concluding meal, I would have said that the restriction held good of a meal partaken even at any time before midday, therefore it is clearly stated, from midday onwards. And had it only mentioned from midday onwards I would have said, that the restriction held good of a meal even though it be not the concluding meal, therefore it is clearly stated that it must be the concluding meal. It has been taught according to the first statement and it has also been taught according to the second statement. It has been taught according to the second statement: One who has a meal on the eve of the Ninth of Ab if it is his intention to have another meal [later] he may eat meat and drink wine; but if not, he may not eat meat nor drink wine. It has also been taught according to the first statement: On the eve of the Ninth of Ab one may not partake of a meal of two courses, nor may he eat meat nor drink wine. R. Simeon b. Gamaliel says: He should make a difference [in his diet]. What constitutes a difference in diet? If one is in the habit of having two courses he should have one only; and if he usually dines in the company of ten persons, he should dine with five; if it is his usual practice to drink ten cups [of wine] he should drink five only.⁶ These restrictions apply only to meals partaken from midday onwards, but not to meals partaken at any time before midday.

Another [Baraitha] taught: On the eve of the Ninth of Ab a man may not partake of a meal of two courses, he should not eat meat, nor drink wine; this is the opinion of R. Meir. But the Sages say: He should make a difference [in his diet] and restrict his consumption of meat and wine. How should one restrict? If he was in the habit of eating one pound of meat he should eat one half only, if it is his usual practice to drink one log of wine he should drink one half log only; but if he is not in the habit of partaking any of these things he may not have these at all. R. Simeon b. Gamaliel said: If it was his habit to eat radish or savoury after his meal he may do so if he wishes. Another [Baraitha] taught: At the meal intended to be the concluding one [prior to the fast of] the Ninth of Ab it is forbidden to eat meat or to drink wine or to bathe after the meal; at the meal which is not intended to be a concluding meal prior to the Ninth of Ab⁷ it is permissible to eat meat and to drink wine but not to bathe. R. Ishmael b. Jose said in the name of his father: So long as it is permissible to eat⁸ meat it is also permissible to bathe.

Our Rabbis have taught: All the restrictions that apply to the mourner hold equally good of the Ninth of Ab. Eating, drinking, bathing, anointing, the wearing of shoes and marital relations are forbidden thereon. It is also forbidden [thereon] to read the Law, the Prophets, and the Hagiographa or to study Mishnah, Talmud, Midrash, Halachoth, or Aggadoth;⁹ he may, however, read such parts of Scripture which he does not usually read and study such parts of Mishnah which he usually does not study;¹⁰ and he may also read Lamentations, Job and the sad parts of Jeremiah; and the school children are free from school for it is said, 'The precepts of the Lord are right, rejoicing the heart.'¹¹ R. Judah said: Even such parts of Scripture which he does not usually read he may not read, nor study parts of the Mishnah which he does not usually study, but he may read Job, Lamentations and the sad parts of Jeremiah; and the school children are free [from school] for it is said, 'The precepts of the Lord are right, rejoicing the heart'.

NOR EAT MEAT NOR DRINK WINE. A Tanna taught: But he may eat salted meat¹² and he may drink [new] wine from his vat.¹³ For how long must meat remain in salt so as to render it permissible? For the length of time that peace-offering may be eaten.¹⁴ How long is wine considered new? As long as it remains in its first stage of fermentation. A Tanna taught: The law forbidding the use of liquids left uncovered does not apply to new wine in the first stage of fermentation.¹⁵ And how long does it take to ferment? — Three days.

Rab Judah said in the name of Rab: The following was the practice of R. Judah b. Il'ai. On the eve of the Ninth of Ab there was brought to him dry bread with salt and he would take his seat between the [baking] oven and the [cooking] stove¹ and eat and he would drink with it a pitcher full of water and he would appear as if a near relation were lying dead before him.

Elsewhere we have learnt: Where it is the custom to do work on the Ninth of Ab we may do work, but where it is not the custom we may not; and everywhere the Scholars refrain from work. R.

Simeon b. Gamaliel says: [In this respect] a man should always consider himself a scholar. It has been taught likewise: R. Simeon b. Gamaliel says: [In this respect] let a man always consider himself a scholar that he may feel more strongly the fast.

A [Baraita] taught: R. Simeon b. Gamaliel says: Any one who eats or drinks on the Ninth of Ab is as if he ate and drank on the Day of Atonement. R. Akiba says: Any one who does work on the Ninth of Ab will never see in his work any sign of blessing. And the Sages say: Any one who does work on the Ninth of Ab and does not mourn for Jerusalem will not share in her joy, as it is said, Rejoice ye with Jerusalem, and be glad with her, all ye that love her; rejoice for joy with her, all ye that mourn for her.² From this originates what they [the Rabbis] have said: Everyone who mourns for Jerusalem merits to share in her joy, and any one who does not mourn for her will not share in her joy. It has also been taught likewise: Of him who eats meat and drinks wine on the Ninth of Ab Scripture says: And their iniquities are upon their bones.³

R. JUDAH MAKES IT OBLIGATORY TO TURN THE BED OVER, BUT THE WISE DID NOT AGREE WITH HIM IN THIS. It has been taught: [The Sages] said to R. Judah: If your view is followed what will happen to pregnant women and nursing mothers?⁴ — He replied to them: I too meant my statement to apply only where it is possible. It has also been taught likewise: R. Judah agrees with the Sages where it is not possible [to overturn the beds]; and the Sages agree with R. Judah where it is possible. What is the real difference between them? The difference between them arises in the case of other beds [not used for sleeping]. As it has been taught: When the Rabbis said that a man should turn over the bed, they meant not only his own bed but also all the beds [in the house]. Raba said: The halachah is according to our Tanna, but the Sages would not accept his [R. Judah's] view at all.

R. SIMEON B. GAMALIEL SAID: THERE NEVER WERE IN ISRAEL GREATER DAYS OF JOY THAN THE FIFTEENTH OF AB AND THE DAY OF ATONEMENT. I can understand the Day of Atonement, because it is a day of forgiveness and pardon and on it the second Tables of the Law were given,⁵ but what happened on the fifteenth of Ab? — Rab Judah said in the name of Samuel: It is the day on which permission was granted to the tribes to inter-marry.⁶ Whence may this be adduced? — Scripture says, This is the thing which the Lord hath commanded concerning the daughters of Zelophehad etc.,⁷ [meaning] 'this thing' shall hold good for this generation only. R. Joseph said in the name of R. Nahman: It is the day on which the tribe of Benjamin was permitted to re-enter the congregation [of Israel], as it is said, Now the men of Israel had sworn in Mizpah, saying: There shall not any of us give his daughter unto Benjamin to wife.⁸ From what was their exposition?⁹ — Rab said: From the phrase 'any of us' which was interpreted to mean, 'but not from any of our children'.

Rabbah b. Bar Hanah said in the name of R. Johanan: It is the day on which the generation of the wilderness ceased to die out. For a Master said: So long as the generation of the wilderness¹⁰ continued to die out there was no divine communication to Moses,¹¹ as it is said, So it came to pass, when all the men of war were consumed and dead . . . that the Lord spake unto me.¹² [Only then] came the divine communication 'unto me'.

Talmud - Mas. Ta'anith 31a

, Let them go up to whichever shrine they desire. R. Mattenah said: It is the day when permission was granted for those killed at Bethar to be buried. R. Mattenah further said: On the day when permission was granted for those killed at Bethar¹ to be buried [the Rabbis] at Jabneh instituted [the recitation of] the benediction,² 'Who art kind and dealest kindly etc.'; 'Who art kind': Because their dead bodies did not become putrid;³ 'And dealest kindly': Because permission was granted for their burial. Rabbah and R. Joseph both said: It is the day on which [every year] they discontinued to fell trees for the altar.⁴ It has been taught: R. Eliezer the elder says: From the fifteenth of Ab onwards the strength of the sun grows less and they no longer felled trees for the altar, because they would not dry [sufficiently]. R. Menashya said: And they called it the Day of the Breaking of the Axe.⁵ From this day onwards,⁶ he who increases [his knowledge through study] will have his life prolonged, but he who does not increase [his knowledge] will have his life taken away.⁷ What is meant by 'taken away'? — R. Joseph learnt: Him his mother will bury.⁸

ON THESE DAYS THE DAUGHTERS OF JERUSALEM etc. Our Rabbis have taught: The daughter of the king borrows [the garments] from the daughter of the High Priest, the daughter of the High Priest from the daughter of the deputy High Priest,⁹ and the daughter of the deputy High Priest from the daughter of the Anointed for Battle,¹⁰ and the daughter of the Anointed for Battle from the daughter of an ordinary priest, and all Israel borrow from one another, so as not to put to shame any one who may not possess [white garments].

ALL THE GARMENTS REQUIRE RITUAL DIPPING: R. Eleazar said: Even though they lay folded in a box.¹¹

THE DAUGHTERS OF ISRAEL CAME OUT AND DANCED IN THE VINEYARDS. A Tanna taught: Whoever was unmarried repaired thither.

THOSE OF THEM WHO CAME OF NOBLE FAMILIES EXCLAIMED, 'YOUNG MAN etc.' Our Rabbis have taught: The beautiful amongst them called out, Set your eyes on beauty for the quality most to be prized in woman is beauty; those of them who came of noble families called out, Look for [a good] family for woman has been created to bring up a family; the ugly ones amongst them called out, Carry off your purchase in the name of Heaven, only on one condition that you adorn us with jewels of gold.

Ulla Bira'ah said in the name of R. Eleazar: In the days to come the Holy One, blessed be He, will hold a chorus for the righteous and He will sit in their midst in the Garden of Eden and every one of them will point with his finger towards Him, as it is said, And it shall be said in that day: Lo, this is our God, for whom we waited, that He might save us; this is the Lord for whom we waited, we will be glad and rejoice in His salvation.¹²

- (2) The fourth benediction of the Grace after Meals.
- (3) [During the long period in which the slain were left lying in the open field owing to Hadrian's decree forbidding their interment.]
- (4) Undried wood harbours woodworms and this makes the wood unfit for the altar. After the fifteenth of Ab the rays of the sun are not sufficiently strong to dry the fresh-cut logs and therefore the felling of trees for the altar was discontinued as from this date. Cf. Mid. II, 5.
- (5) The name signified that there was no longer any need for the woodcutter's axe.

Mishna - Mas. Taharoth Chapter 1

MISHNAH 1. THIRTEEN RULINGS GOVERN THE CARRION OF A CLEAN BIRD: THERE MUST BE¹ INTENTION² BUT³ IT NEED NOT BE RENDERED SUSCEPTIBLE;⁴ IT CONVEYS FOOD UNCLEANNESS⁵ IF ITS MINIMUM BULK IS THAT OF AN EGG; AND IT CONVEYS UNCLEANNESS⁶ WHEN IN ONE'S GULLET⁷ IF ITS MINIMUM BULK IS THAT OF AN OLIVE; HE THAT EATS OF IT MUST WAIT⁸ UNTIL SUNSET;⁹ GUILT IS INCURRED ON ACCOUNT OF IT FOR ENTERING THE SANCTUARY;¹⁰ TERUMAH IS BURNT ON ACCOUNT OF IT;¹¹ HE WHO EATS A MEMBER OF IT WHILE IT IS ALIVE MUST SUFFER THE PENALTY OF FORTY STRIPES;¹² SLAUGHTERING IT¹³ OR WRINGING ITS NECK¹⁴ FREES IT FROM UNCLEANNESS EVEN WHEN IT IS TREFA.¹⁵ SO R. MEIR.¹⁶ R. JUDAH RULED: THEY DO NOT FREE IT FROM UNCLEANNESS. R. JOSE RULED: THE SLAUGHTERING¹³ DOES FREE IT FROM THE UNCLEANNESS BUT THE WRINGING OF ITS NECK¹⁴ DOES NOT.

MISHNAH 2. THE LARGE FEATHER¹⁷ AND THE DOWN¹⁸ CONTRACT UNCLEANNESS,¹⁹ AND²⁰ CONVEY UNCLEANNESS²¹ BUT DO NOT COMBINE [WITH THE FLESH TO CONSTITUTE THE PRESCRIBED MINIMUM].²² R. ISHMAEL RULED: THE DOWN DOES COMBINE [WITH THE FLESH]. THE BEAK²³ AND THE CLAWS²⁴ CONTRACT UNCLEANNESS¹⁹ AND²⁰ CONVEY UNCLEANNESS AND ALSO COMBINE [WITH THE FLESH TO CONSTITUTE THE PRESCRIBED MINIMUM].²² R. JOSE RULED: ALSO THE ENDS²⁵ OF THE WINGS AND THE END²⁵ OF THE TAIL COMBINE [WITH THE FLESH TO CONSTITUTE THE MINIMUM].²² SINCE THEY ARE LEFT UNPLUCKED ON FATTENED BIRDS.²⁶

MISHNAH 3. THE CARRION OF AN UNCLEAR BIRD NECESSITATES²⁷ INTENTION²⁸ AND²⁷ IT MUST BE RENDERED SUSCEPTIBLE;²⁹ IT CONVEYS FOOD UNCLEANNESS³⁰ IF ITS MINIMUM BULK³¹ IS THAT OF AN EGG; THE CONSUMPTION OF A HALF OF HALF A LOAF'S BULK³² OF IT³³ RENDERS ONE'S PERSON UNFIT TO EAT TERUMAH;³⁴ AN OLIVE'S BULK OF IT IN ONE'S GULLET CONVEYS NO UNCLEANNESS; HE WHO EATS OF IT NEED NOT WAIT FOR SUNSET;³⁵ NO GUILT IS INCURRED ON ACCOUNT OF IT³⁶ FOR ENTERING THE SANCTUARY;³⁷ BUT ON ACCOUNT OF IT³⁶ TERUMAH³⁸ MUST BE BURNT; HE WHO EATS A MEMBER OF IT WHILE IT IS ALIVE IS NOT SUBJECT TO THE PENALTY OF FORTY STRIPES,³⁹ BUT SLAUGHTERING IT DOES NOT IMMEDIATELY⁴⁰ RENDER IT FIT.⁴¹ THE LARGE FEATHERS AND THE DOWN CONTRACT UNCLEANNESS AND CONVEY UNCLEANNESS AND COMBINE WITH THE FLESH TO CONSTITUTE THE PRESCRIBED MINIMUM. THE BEAK AND THE CLAWS CONTRACT UNCLEANNESS AND CONVEY UNCLEANNESS AND COMBINE [WITH THE FLESH TO MAKE UP THE PRESCRIBED MINIMUM].

MISHNAH 4. IN THE CASE OF CATTLE, THE HIDE, GREASE, SEDIMENT, FLAYED-OFF FLESH, BONES, SINEWS, HORNS AND HOOFS COMBINE⁴² [WITH THE FLESH] TO CONVEY FOOD UNCLEANNESS⁴³ BUT NOT TO CONVEY CARRION UNCLEANNESS.⁴⁴ SIMILARLY, IF A MAN⁴⁵ SLAUGHTERED AN UNCLEAR BEAST FOR AN IDOLATER AND IT WAS STILL JERKING ITS LIMBS,⁴⁶ IT CONVEYS FOOD UNCLEANNESS;⁴⁷ BUT IT CONVEYS NO CARRION UNCLEANNESS UNTIL IT IS DEAD OR ITS HEAD IS CHOPPED OFF.⁴⁸ [SCRIPTURE THUS] LAID DOWN MORE RESTRICTIONS IN REGARD TO THE CONVEYANCE OF FOOD UNCLEANNESS THAN IN REGARD TO THE CONVEYANCE OF CARRION UNCLEANNESS.

MISHNAH 5. A FOODSTUFF THAT CONTRACTED UNCLEANNESS FROM A 'FATHER OF UNCLEANNESS' AND ONE THAT CONTRACTED UNCLEANNESS FROM A DERIVED

UNCLEANNES⁴⁹ MAY BE COMBINED TOGETHER⁵⁰ TO CONVEY UNCLEANNES ACCORDING TO THE LIGHTER GRADE OF THE TWO. HOW SO? IF THE BULK OF HALF AN EGG OF FOOD OF A FIRST GRADE OF UNCLEANNES AND THE BULK OF HALF AN EGG OF FOOD OF A SECOND GRADE OF UNCLEANNES WERE MIXED TOGETHER, THE TWO⁵¹ ARE REGARDED AS SUFFERING ONLY SECOND GRADE UNCLEANNES;⁵² AND IF THE BULK OF HALF AN EGG OF FOOD OF A SECOND GRADE OF UNCLEANNES AND THE BULK OF HALF AN EGG OF FOOD OF A THIRD GRADE OF UNCLEANNES WERE MIXED TOGETHER, THE TWO⁵¹ ARE REGARDED AS SUFFERING ONLY THIRD GRADE OF UNCLEANNES.⁵³ IF THE BULK OF AN EGG OF FOOD OF A FIRST GRADE OF UNCLEANNES AND THE BULK OF AN EGG OF FOOD OF A SECOND GRADE OF UNCLEANNES WERE MIXED TOGETHER, BOTH⁵¹ ARE REGARDED⁵⁴ AS SUFFERING FIRST GRADE UNCLEANNES;⁵⁵ BUT IF THEY WERE THEN DIVIDED, EACH PART⁵⁶ IS REGARDED AS SUFFERING ONLY A SECOND GRADE OF UNCLEANNES.⁵⁷ IF EACH PART⁵⁸ SEPARATELY FELL ON A LOAF OF TERUMAH, THEY CAUSE IT TO BECOME UNFIT,⁵⁹ BUT IF THE TWO FELL TOGETHER THEY CAUSE IT TO SUFFER SECOND GRADE OF UNCLEANNES.

MISHNAH 6. THE BULK OF AN EGG OF FOOD OF A SECOND GRADE OF UNCLEANNES AND THE BULK OF AN EGG OF FOOD OF A THIRD GRADE OF UNCLEANNES THAT WERE MIXED TOGETHER ARE⁵¹ REGARDED AS SUFFERING SECOND GRADE OF UNCLEANNES.⁶⁰ IF THEY WERE THEN DIVIDED, EACH PART⁶¹ IS REGARDED AS SUFFERING ONLY THIRD GRADE OF UNCLEANNES.⁶² IF EACH PART SEPARATELY FELL ON A LOAF OF TERUMAH THEY DO NOT RENDER IT INVALID,⁶³ BUT IF THE TWO FELL TOGETHER THEY CAUSE IT TO SUFFER THIRD GRADE OF UNCLEANNES. THE BULK OF AN EGG OF FOOD OF A FIRST GRADE OF UNCLEANNES AND THE BULK OF AN EGG OF FOOD OF A THIRD GRADE OF UNCLEANNES THAT WERE MIXED TOGETHER ARE⁶⁴ REGARDED AS SUFFERING FIRST GRADE OF UNCLEANNES,⁶⁵ BUT IF THEY WERE THEN DIVIDED, EACH PART IS REGARDED AS SUFFERING ONLY SECOND GRADE UNCLEANNES,⁶⁰ FOR EVEN THE THIRD GRADE THAT TOUCHED THE FIRST HAS BECOME ONLY A SECOND GRADE. IF THE BULK OF TWO EGGS OF FOOD OF THE FIRST GRADE OF UNCLEANNES AND THE BULK OF TWO EGGS OF FOOD OF THE SECOND GRADE OF UNCLEANNES WERE MIXED TOGETHER THEY ARE REGARDED AS SUFFERING FIRST GRADE OF UNCLEANNES. IF THEY WERE THEN DIVIDED, EACH PART IS STILL REGARDED AS SUFFERING FIRST GRADE OF UNCLEANNES. BUT IF THEY WERE DIVIDED INTO THREE OR FOUR PARTS, EACH IS REGARDED AS SUFFERING FROM SECOND GRADE. IF THE BULK OF TWO EGGS OF FOOD OF THE SECOND GRADE OF UNCLEANNES AND THE BULK OF TWO EGGS OF FOOD OF THE THIRD GRADE OF UNCLEANNES WERE MIXED TOGETHER, THEY ARE REGARDED AS SUFFERING SECOND GRADE OF UNCLEANNES. IF THEY WERE THEN DIVIDED, EACH PART IS STILL REGARDED AS SUFFERING SECOND GRADE OF UNCLEANNES. BUT IF THEY WERE DIVIDED INTO THREE OR FOUR PARTS, EACH IS REGARDED AS SUFFERING ONLY THIRD GRADE OF UNCLEANNES.

MISHNAH 7. IF PIECES OF DOUGH⁶⁶ CLUNG TO EACH OTHER⁶⁷ OR IF LOAVES ADHERED TO EACH OTHER,⁶⁸ AND ONE OF THEM CONTRACTED UNCLEANNES FROM A [DEAD] CREEPING THING,⁶⁹ THEY ALL BECOME UNCLEAN IN THE FIRST GRADE;⁷⁰ AND IF THEY WERE THEN SEPARATED THEY ARE STILL REGARDED AS SUFFERING FIRST GRADE OF UNCLEANNES. IF ONE OF THEM CONTRACTED UNCLEANNES FROM A LIQUID⁷¹ THEY ALL SUFFER SECOND GRADE OF UNCLEANNES;⁷⁰ AND IF THEY WERE THEN SEPARATED THEY ARE STILL REGARDED AS SUFFERING SECOND GRADE OF UNCLEANNES. IF ONE OF THEM CONTRACTED

UNCLEANNES FROM THE HANDS,⁷² THEY ALL BECOME UNCLEAR IN THE THIRD GRADE; AND IF THEY WERE THEN SEPARATED THEY ARE STILL REGARDED AS SUFFERING THIRD GRADE OF UNCLEANNES.

MISHNAH 8. IF TO A PIECE OF DOUGH⁷³ THAT WAS SUFFERING FIRST GRADE OF UNCLEANNES OTHERS WERE MADE TO ADHERE,⁶⁷ THEY ALL BECOME UNCLEAR IN THE FIRST GRADE;⁷⁰ AND IF IT WAS SEPARATED, IT STILL REMAINS UNCLEAR IN THE FIRST GRADE BUT ALL THE OTHERS ARE REGARDED AS SUFFERING ONLY SECOND GRADE OF UNCLEANNES.⁷⁴ IF TO A PIECE OF DOUGH⁷³ THAT WAS SUFFERING SECOND GRADE OF UNCLEANNES OTHERS WERE MADE TO ADHERE,⁶⁷ THEY ALL BECOME UNCLEAR IN THE SECOND GRADE;⁷⁰ AND IF IT WAS SEPARATED, IT STILL REMAINS UNCLEAR IN THE SECOND GRADE BUT ALL THE OTHERS ARE ONLY UNCLEAR IN THE THIRD GRADE OF UNCLEANNES. IF TO A PIECE⁷³ THAT WAS UNCLEAR IN THE THIRD GRADE OTHERS WERE MADE TO ADHERE,⁶⁷ IT REMAINS UNCLEAR IN THE THIRD GRADE BUT ALL THE OTHERS REMAIN CLEAR,⁷⁵ IRRESPECTIVE OF WHETHER THEY WERE SUBSEQUENTLY SEPARATED FROM IT OR WHETHER THEY WERE NOT SEPARATED.

MISHNAH 9. IF OF HOLY LOAVES⁷⁶ IN WHOSE HOLLOWS THERE WAS HOLY WATER⁷⁷ ONE CONTRACTED UNCLEANNES FROM A [DEAD]CREEPING THING, THEY ALL BECOME UNCLEAR.⁷⁸ IN THE CASE OF LOAVES OF TERUMAH,⁷⁹ UNCLEANNES IS CONVEYED TO TWO LOAVES⁸⁰ AND INVALIDITY TO ONE.⁸¹ IF THERE WAS DRIPPING LIQUID BETWEEN THEM,⁸² EVEN IN THE CASE OF TERUMAH ALL⁸² BECOME UNCLEAR.⁸³

- (1) If it is to convey uncleanness.
 - (2) To use it as human food.
 - (3) Unlike other dry permitted foodstuffs.
 - (4) To uncleanness, by purposely bringing it in contact with a liquid.
 - (5) Sc. renders clean foodstuffs, which it touches, unclear in the second grade.
 - (6) To the man who eats it who becomes a 'father of uncleanness' and in turn conveys an uncleanness of the first grade to clothes or vessels with which he is then in contact.
 - (7) Even before it had been swallowed.
 - (8) Before he can attain cleanness.
 - (9) Immersion alone being insufficient.
 - (10) After eating of it.
 - (11) If it or the man who ate it came in contact with the terumah.
 - (12) A round figure for the prescribed thirty-nine.
 - (13) Outside the Temple.
 - (14) In the Temple, as a sacrifice (cf. Lev. I, 15).
 - (15) And forbidden as food.
 - (16) Whose nine (out of the thirteen) rulings have so far been enumerated. The other four follow in the next Mishnah anonymously and are likewise the rulings of R. Meir.
 - (17) Aliter: The small feathers.
 - (18) Of a clean bird
 - (19) In case the bird was not carrion and a dead creeping thing touched it.
 - (20) If the bird was carrion.
 - (21) To foodstuffs that touched them.
 - (22) Of an egg or an olive (cf. supra I, I ab init.) to convey uncleanness. These do not act as 'protection' to the flesh to serve as correctives, v. 'Uk. I, I.
 - (23) So much of it as is covered with flesh.
 - (24) Cf. prev. n.

- (25) Nearest the body.
- (26) Thus constituting a union with the flesh.
- (27) If it is to contract and convey uncleanness.
- (28) To use it as food.
- (29) To uncleanness, by purposely bringing it in contact with a liquid.
- (30) Renders foodstuffs that it touches unclean.
- (31) That touched a dead creeping thing.
- (32) The bulk of two eggs (Rashi) or one and a half eggs (Maim.).
- (33) When it was unclean.
- (34) Before performing immersion, though there is no need to wait for sunset.
- (35) But may eat terumah even before.
- (36) If a man ate the prescribed minimum after it had become unclean.
- (37) Since the uncleanness conveyed to the man is only Rabbinical.
- (38) That the man touched.
- (39) Because the relevant prohibition does not apply to forbidden creatures (v. Hul. 102a).
- (40) While it is still struggling and subject to the prohibition of a 'member from the living'.
- (41) For a Noachite who is permitted carrion but not a 'member from the living'.
- (42) To make up the prescribed minimum of the bulk of an egg.
- (43) If the flesh had contracted uncleanness from a dead creeping thing for instance.
- (44) To make up the bulk of an olive, for eating. touching or carrying, which is the prescribed minimum in the case of carrion.
- (45) An Israelite.
- (46) When to a Noachite it is still forbidden as a 'member of a living animal'.
- (47) Because the slaughtering performed by the Israelite, which renders a clean beast fit for consumption, also causes an unclean beast to be regarded as food both in respect of contracting uncleanness and of conveying it.
- (48) This is derived in Hul. 117b from Lev. XI, 39.
- (49) So that the former is subject to a first grade, and the latter only to a second grade of uncleanness.
- (50) To make up the prescribed minimum of the bulk of an egg.
- (51) While they are together.
- (52) Which causes no uncleanness to unconsecrated foodstuffs and only invalidity to terumah.
- (53) That causes no invalidity even to terumah.
- (54) Since the mixture contains the full prescribed minimum of this grade of uncleanness.
- (55) Which consequently causes unconsecrated food to be unclean.
- (56) Which contains only a half of the prescribed minimum of each grade.
- (57) As supra.
- (58) Which is suffering second grade of uncleanness.
- (59) Since terumah is rendered invalid by a second grade of uncleanness. The term 'unfit' in connection with uncleanness denotes that the uncleanness contracted is not capable of being conveyed a grade further.
- (60) V. p. 364, n. 4.
- (61) V. p. 364, n. 8.
- (62) V. p. 364, n. 9.
- (63) A third grade of uncleanness (unlike a second grade) cannot cause terumah to be invalid.
- (64) V. p. 364, n. 3.
- (65) V. p. 364, n. 7.
- (66) Of terumah.
- (67) To such an extent that it is impossible to separate one from the other without tearing away some dough from the one or the other.
- (68) Cf. prev. n.
- (69) Which is a 'father of uncleanness' and imparts a first grade of uncleanness.
- (70) Their adhesion causing them to be regarded as one.
- (71) Which is invariably subject to the first grade of uncleanness.
- (72) Which, unless especially taken care of, are always regarded as suffering second grade of uncleanness and impart third grade of uncleanness.

(73) Of terumah.

(74) Imparted to them by the piece that is first grade of uncleanness.

(75) Since there is no fourth grade of uncleanness in terumah.

(76) E.g., Shewbread; and the loaves were touching each other.

(77) I.e., water that was prepared in purity under conditions of holiness.

(78) Since the first loaf that was touched by the creeping thing contracted a first grade of uncleanness; the second loaf contracted from the first one a second grade of uncleanness; the third loaf contracts from the second a third grade of uncleanness and (since in the case of holy things a third grade may cause a fourth grade of uncleanness) it also imparts uncleanness to the water on it which (in accordance with the uncleanness of liquids) becomes unclean in the first grade and causes the loaf to contract second grade of uncleanness and so impart to the next loaf third grade of uncleanness. The next loaf, for the same reason, imparts second grade of uncleanness to the one next to it, and so on ad infinitum. Var. lec.: If consecrated loaves lay in their hollows (i.e., the loaves were each lying in separate hollows of a board), and similarly holy water (in the hollows of a stone).

(79) Which, unlike holy things, never suffers fourth grade of uncleanness.

(80) First grade uncleanness is conveyed by the creeping thing to the first loaf which it touched, and second grade uncleanness is conveyed by the first loaf to the second one that touched it.

(81) The third loaf that was touched by the second. Since in terumah a third cannot make a fourth it becomes only invalid but not unclean. As the loaf in the third grade cannot convey uncleanness, the water on it remains clean so that neither it nor the water can convey uncleanness to the next loaf that touched it, which (like the next loaf that touched it and the one that touched the next, and so on) consequently remains clean.

(82) The loaves.

(83) The liquid between the first loaf and a second becomes, in accordance with the law of unclean liquids, unclean in the first grade and consequently conveys uncleanness of the second grade to the second loaf that touched it. Similarly the water between the second and the third loaves becomes unclean in the first grade and causes the third loaf to be unclean in the second grade, and so on ad infinitum.

Mishna - Mas. Taharoth Chapter 2

MISHNAH 1. IF A WOMAN WHO¹ WAS PRESERVING VEGETABLES² IN A POT TOUCHED³ A PROJECTING LEAF OUTSIDE THE POT ON A DRY SPOT,⁴ EVEN THOUGH THERE WAS AN EGG'S BULK⁵ IN THE LEAF,⁶ IT ALONE BECOMES UNCLEAR⁷ WHILE ALL THE REST⁸ REMAINS CLEAN.⁹ IF SHE TOUCHED IT¹⁰ AT A WET SPOT¹¹ AND THERE WAS AN EGG'S BULK⁵ IN THE LEAF,⁶ ALL¹² BECOMES UNCLEAR.¹³ IF THERE WAS NOT AN EGG'S BULK⁵ IN IT,¹⁴ IT ALONE BECOMES UNCLEAR BUT ALL THE REST REMAINS CLEAN. IF IT IS RETURNED INTO THE POT, ALL¹⁵ BECOMES UNCLEAR.¹⁶ IF THE WOMAN WAS UNCLEAR¹⁷ OWING TO CONTACT WITH ONE WHO CONTRACTED CORPSE UNCLEARNESS,¹⁸ AND SHE TOUCHED THE LEAF EITHER AT A WET SPOT OR AT A DRY SPOT, ALL¹⁹ BECOMES UNCLEAR IF THERE WAS AN EGG'S BULK IN THE LEAF;²⁰ BUT IF THERE WAS NOT AN EGG'S BULK²¹ IN IT, IT ALONE BECOMES UNCLEAR AND ALL THE REST REMAINS CLEAN. IF A WOMAN WHO WAS A TEBULATH YOM²² EMPTIED OUT THE POT WITH UNWASHED²³ HANDS,²⁴ AND SHE OBSERVED SOME LIQUID ON HER HANDS, AND IT IS UNCERTAIN WHETHER IT WAS SPLASHED FROM THE POT OR WHETHER A STALK²⁵ HAD TOUCHED HER HANDS, THE VEGETABLES ARE INVALID²⁶ BUT THE POT REMAINS CLEAN.²⁷

MISHNAH 2. R. ELIEZER RULED: HE WHO EATS FOOD OF FIRST[GRADE UNCLEARNESS²⁸ CONTRACTS] FIRST [GRADE UNCLEARNESS];[HE WHO EATS FOOD OF] SECOND [GRADE UNCLEARNESS²⁸ CONTRACTS] SECOND [GRADE UNCLEARNESS]; [IF IT WAS] THIRD[GRADE UNCLEARNESS HE CONTRACTS] THIRD [GRADE UNCLEARNESS]. R. JOSHUA RULED: HE WHO EATS FOOD OF FIRST[GRADE] OR OF SECOND [GRADE UNCLEARNESS CONTRACTS]SECOND [GRADE

UNCLEANNES]; [IF IT WAS] THIRD [GRADE UNCLEANNES, HE CONTRACTS] SECOND [GRADE UNCLEANNES] IN REGARD TO HOLY THINGS²⁹ BUT NOT IN REGARD TO TERUMAH.³⁰ ALL THIS APPLIES TO COMMON FOODSTUFFS THAT WERE PREPARED IN CONDITION OF CLEANNESS THAT ARE APPROPRIATE FOR TERUMAH.³¹

MISHNAH 3. FIRST [GRADE UNCLEANNES] IN COMMON FOOD IS UNCLEAN AND CONVEYS UNCLEANNES;³² SECOND [GRADE UNCLEANNES³³] CONVEYS INVALIDITY³⁴ BUT DOES NOT CONVEY UNCLEANNES;³⁵ AND THIRD [GRADE UNCLEANNES]³⁶ MAY BE EATEN IN A DISH MIXED WITH TERUMAH.³⁷

MISHNAH 4. FIRST [GRADE] AND SECOND [GRADE UNCLEANNES] IN TERUMAH ARE UNCLEAN AND CONVEY UNCLEANNES;³⁸ THIRD [GRADE UNCLEANNES]³⁹ CAUSES INVALIDITY⁴⁰ BUT CONVEYS NO UNCLEANNES; AND THE FOURTH [GRADE UNCLEANNES]⁴¹ MAY BE EATEN IN A DISH CONTAINING HOLY FOOD.⁴²

MISHNAH 5. FIRST, SECOND AND THIRD [GRADES OF UNCLEANNES] IN HOLY FOODSTUFFS ARE UNCLEAN AND CONVEY UNCLEANNES;⁴⁰ THE FOURTH [GRADE OF UNCLEANNES] IS INVALID⁴³ AND CAUSES NO UNCLEANNES; AND THE FIFTH [GRADE OF UNCLEANNES]⁴⁴ MAY BE EATEN IN A DISH CONTAINING CONSECRATED FOOD.

MISHNAH 6. SECOND [GRADE UNCLEANNES] IN COMMON FOOD CONVEYS UNCLEANNES TO UNCONSECRATED LIQUIDS⁴⁵ AND CAUSES INVALIDITY TO FOODSTUFFS OF TERUMAH. THIRD [GRADE OF UNCLEANNES] IN TERUMAH CONVEYS UNCLEANNES TO CONSECRATED LIQUIDS⁴⁵ AND CAUSES INVALIDITY TO HOLY FOODSTUFFS IF IT⁴⁶ WAS PREPARED IN CONDITIONS OF CLEANNESS APPROPRIATE TO HOLY FOOD; BUT IF IT WAS ONLY PREPARED UNDER CONDITIONS OF CLEANNESS APPROPRIATE TO TERUMAH, IT CONVEYS UNCLEANNES AT A FIRST AND AT A SECOND REMOVE, AND CAUSES INVALIDITY TO HOLY FOOD AT ONE ADDITIONAL REMOVE.⁴⁷

MISHNAH 7. R. ELIEZER OBSERVED: THE THREE OF THEM⁴⁸ ARE ON A PAR IN THE FOLLOWING CASES. THE FIRST GRADE OF UNCLEANNES IN HOLY FOOD, IN TERUMAH OR IN COMMON FOOD CONVEYS UNCLEANNES AT TWO REMOVES⁴⁹ AND CAUSES INVALIDITY AT ONE ADDITIONAL REMOVES IN THE CASE OF HOLY FOOD; IT CONVEYS UNCLEANNES AT ONE REMOVE⁵⁰ AND CAUSES INVALIDITY AT ONE ADDITIONAL REMOVE⁴⁷ IN THE CASE OF TERUMAH; AND IN COMMON FOOD IT ONLY CAUSES INVALIDITY. THE SECOND [GRADE OF UNCLEANNES] IN THE CASE OF ALL OF THEM⁴⁸ CONVEYS UNCLEANNES AT ONE REMOVE⁴⁷ AND CAUSES INVALIDITY AT ONE ADDITIONAL REMOVE⁵¹ AS REGARDS HOLY FOOD; IT CONVEYS UNCLEANNES TO COMMON LIQUIDS⁴⁵ AND CAUSES THE INVALIDITY OF FOODSTUFFS OF TERUMAH. THE THIRD GRADE [OF UNCLEANNES] IN THE CASE OF ALL THESE⁵² CONVEYS UNCLEANNES TO HOLY LIQUIDS⁵³ AND CAUSES INVALIDITY TO HOLY FOODSTUFFS.

MISHNAH 8. IF A MAN EATS FOOD OF A SECOND [GRADE OF UNCLEANNES]⁵² HE MUST NOT WORK IN AN OLIVE-PRESS.⁵⁴ COMMON FOODSTUFFS THAT WERE PREPARED UNDER CONDITIONS PROPER TO THE CLEANNESS OF CONSECRATED FOOD ARE STILL REGARDED AS COMMON FOOD.⁵⁵ R. ELIEZER SON OF R. ZADOK RULED: THEY ARE REGARDED AS TERUMAH TO CONVEY UNCLEANNES AT TWO REMOVES⁵⁶ AND TO RENDER TERUMAH INVALID AT ONE ADDITIONAL REMOVE.⁵⁷

- (1) When in a condition of cleanness.
- (2) Of terumah.
- (3) With her hands which, having been unwashed, are regarded as being in a state of second grade uncleanness.
- (4) Which, unlike the wet part of the leaf within the pot, had never come in contact with liquids and, therefore, has never been rendered susceptible to uncleanness.
- (5) The prescribed minimum for capability to convey uncleanness to others.
- (6) As a whole.
- (7) Strictly speaking, 'invalid'; i.e. in the third grade of uncleanness, having contracted it from the woman's hands (cf. supra n. 3).
- (8) Whose uncleanness could be derived only from contact with this leaf.
- (9) Because a third grade of uncleanness in terumah cannot convey uncleanness to others.
- (10) The leaf under discussion.
- (11) So that her hands (in accordance with the laws of uncleanness governing liquids) conveyed to the liquid a first grade of uncleanness.
- (12) The pot itself as well as its contents.
- (13) Because the water (cf. prev. n. but one) imparts to the leaf a second grade of uncleanness which in turn conveys to the water in the pot a first grade of uncleanness which conveys to the pot and its contents a second grade of uncleanness.
- (14) From 'ALL BECOMES UNCLEAN' to 'IT' is omitted from some edd.
- (15) The wet part of the leaf touched.
- (16) Even if the bulk of the leaf was less than that of an egg, because the smallest quantity of liquid on the leaf conveys uncleanness.
- (17) In the first grade.
- (18) The corpse being a 'father of the fathers of uncleanness'. the man who came in contact with it is a 'father of uncleanness', and imparts to the woman first grade uncleanness.
- (19) The pot as well as its contents.
- (20) Since the leaf which, owing to the moisture on it was susceptible to uncleanness, conveys an uncleanness of the first grade to the liquid in the pot and this in turn causes the pot and its contents to contract second grade uncleanness.
- (21) The prescribed minimum for capability to convey uncleanness to others.
- (22) Fem. of tebul yom; a tebul yom continues until sunset unclean in the second degree.
- (23) Lit., 'soiled'.
- (24) Which are regarded as suffering second grade uncleanness.
- (25) Of the wet vegetable.
- (26) As the uncleanness of a tebul yom is Pentateuchal any condition of doubt must be decided restrictively as certain uncleanness.
- (27) Since a tebul yom does not render liquids unclean in the first grade (cf. Parah VIII, 7) and the hands (whose uncleanness is but Rabbinical) are in this matter of doubt regarded as clean, there is nothing that could impart uncleanness to the pot.
- (28) A minimum of the bulk of two eggs (Rashi) or of one and a half eggs (Maim.).
- (29) Which may contract from it third grade uncleanness and convey to other consecrated things fourth grade of uncleanness.
- (30) Which he may consequently touch, though he must not eat it.
- (31) Otherwise common food cannot give rise to a third grade uncleanness; nor can it apply to actual terumah or to holy food which, if unclean, must not be eaten at all.
- (32) To terumah, which in turn can render other terumah 'invalid'. If it touched common food it only renders it 'invalid', but the latter can convey no uncleanness or even invalidity to other common food.
- (33) In common food.
- (34) To terumah.
- (35) Sc. the terumah it touched conveys neither uncleanness nor 'invalidity' to other terumah and much less so to common food.
- (36) Applicable to unconsecrated food that was kept under conditions of terumah cleanness.
- (37) If the mixing was accidental. Aliter: It may under certain conditions be intentionally mixed with it.
- (38) The first grade conveys uncleanness to terumah and the second grade conveys uncleanness to holy things only.

- (39) In terumah.
- (40) To holy food.
- (41) Applicable to terumah that was kept under conditions of cleanness appropriate to holy food.
- (42) Since in respect of terumah it is altogether clean.
- (43) Var. lec., 'causes invalidity'.
- (44) In the case of holy foodstuffs that were kept under conditions of cleanness proper to the ashes of the red heifer.
- (45) Rendering them unclean in the first grade.
- (46) The terumah.
- (47) A third.
- (48) Holy food, terumah and common food.
- (49) Second and third.
- (50) A second.
- (51) A fourth.
- (52) V. p. 371, n. 6.
- (53) V. p. 371 n. 3.
- (54) Where any oil of terumah would become invalid through contact with it.
- (55) Which cannot contract a third grade of uncleanness. The one particular man's fancy in treating them as consecrated food is disregarded in view of the common practice to treat them as common food.
- (56) First and second.

Mishna - Mas. Taharoth Chapter 3

MISHNAH 1. GREASE, BEAN-MASH AND MILK,¹ WHEN IN A CONDITION OF FLUIDITY,² ARE³ UNCLEAN IN THE FIRST GRADE. IF⁴ THEY TURNED SOLID THEY⁵ BECOME UNCLEAN IN THE SECOND GRADE. IF THEY AGAIN TURNED INTO FLUIDITY THEY ARE CLEAN IF THEIR BULK WAS EXACTLY THAT OF AN EGG;⁶ BUT IF IT WAS MORE THAN THE BULK OF AN EGG THEY REMAIN UNCLEAN, FOR AS SOON AS THE FIRST DROP ISSUED FORTH IT BECAME UNCLEAN BY CONTACT WITH AN EGG'S BULK.⁷

MISHNAH 2. R. MEIR RULED: OIL¹ ALWAYS⁸ REMAINS UNCLEAN IN THE FIRST GRADE;⁹ AND THE SAGES RULED: HONEY ALSO.⁹ R. SIMEON OF SHEZUR RULED: ALSO WINE.⁹ IF A MASS OF OLIVES¹ FELL INTO AN OVEN THAT WAS HEATED¹⁰ THE LATTER REMAINS CLEAN IF THE BULK OF THE OLIVES WAS EXACTLY THAT OF AN EGG;¹¹ BUT IF IT WAS MORE THAN THAT OF AN EGG THE OVEN BECOMES UNCLEAN,¹² FOR SO SOON AS THE FIRST DROP ISSUED FORTH IT BECAME UNCLEAN BY CONTACT WITH AN EGG'S BULK. IF THE OLIVES WERE SEPARATED THE OVEN REMAINS CLEAN EVEN IF THERE WAS A SE'AH OF THEM.¹³

MISHNAH 3. IF A MAN WHO CONTRACTED CORPSE UNCLEANNESS PRESSED OUT¹⁴ THE JUICE OF OLIVES OR GRAPES¹⁵ WHOSE BULK WAS EXACTLY THAT OF AN EGG, THE JUICE REMAINS CLEAN¹⁶ PROVIDED HE DOES NOT TOUCH THE PLACE ON WHICH THE LIQUID IS; BUT [IF THE BULK WAS] MORE THAN THAT OF AN EGG, THE JUICE BECOMES UNCLEAN,¹⁷ FOR SO SOON AS THE FIRST DROP ISSUED FORTH IT BECAME UNCLEAN BY CONTACT WITH AN EGG'S BULK. IF THE PERSON¹⁸ WAS A ZAB OR A ZABAH [THE JUICE] BECOMES UNCLEAN EVEN IF ONLY ONE BERRY [WAS PRESSED OUT]. FOR SO SOON AS THE FIRST DROP ISSUED FORTH IT¹⁹ BECAME UNCLEAN²⁰ BY CARRYING.²¹ IF A ZAB MILKED A GOAT, THE MILK BECOMES UNCLEAN, FOR SO SOON AS THE FIRST DROP COMES FORTH IT¹⁹ BECOMES UNCLEAN²⁰ BY CARRYING.²¹

MISHNAH 4. IF AN EGG'S BULK²² OF FOODSTUFFS²³, WAS LEFT IN THE SUN AND IT

SHRANK,²⁴ AND SO ALSO IN THE CASE OF AN OLIVE'S BULK OF CORPSE,²⁵ AN OLIVE'S²² BULK OF CARRION,²⁵ A LENTIL'S BULK²² OF A DEAD CREEPING THING,²⁵ AN OLIVE'S²² BULK OF PIGGUL,²⁶ AN OLIVE'S BULK²² OF NOTHAR,²⁶ OR AN OLIVE'S BULK²² OF FORBIDDEN FAT²⁵ THEY BECOME CLEAN; NOR DOES ONE INCUR GUILT ON ACCOUNT OF THESE FOR TRANSGRESSING THE LAW OF PIGGUL, NOTHAR OR UNCLEANNESS.²⁷ IF THEY WERE THEN LEFT OUT IN THE RAIN AND THEY SWELLED, THEY²⁸ BECOME UNCLEAN AND GUILT IS INCURRED ON ACCOUNT OF THEM FOR TRANSGRESSING THE LAW OF PIGGUL, NOTHAR OR UNCLEANNESS.

MISHNAH 5. ALL DOUBTFUL CASES OF UNCLEANNESS ARE DETERMINED ACCORDING TO THEIR APPEARANCE AT THE TIME THEY ARE FOUND: IF THEY WERE THEN²⁹ UNCLEAN THEY ARE ASSUMED TO HAVE BEEN UNCLEAN [ALL THE TIME]³⁰ AND IF CLEAN²⁹ THEY ARE ASSUMED TO HAVE BEEN CLEAN [ALL THE TIME]; IF THEY WERE THEN²⁹ COVERED³¹ THEY ARE ASSUMED TO HAVE BEEN COVERED [ALL THE TIME] AND IF UNCOVERED²⁹ THEY ARE ASSUMED TO HAVE BEEN UNCOVERED [ALL THE TIME]; IF A NEEDLE WAS FOUND FULL OF RUST³² OR BROKEN,³² IT IS CLEAN,³³ FOR ALL DOUBTFUL CASES OF UNCLEANNESS ARE DETERMINED ACCORDING TO THEIR APPEARANCE AT THE TIME THEY ARE FOUND.

MISHNAH 6. IF A DEAF-MUTE, AN IMBECILE OR A MINOR WAS FOUND IN AN ALLEY WAY³⁴ THAT CONTAINED AN UNCLEANNESS, HE IS PRESUMED TO BE CLEAN;³⁵ BUT ANY ONE OF SOUND SENSES³⁶ IS PRESUMED TO BE UNCLEAN.³⁷ FURTHER MORE, WHATSOEVER LACKS UNDERSTANDING³⁸ TO BE INQUIRED OF IS IN A CASE OF DOUBTFUL UNCLEANNESS PRESUMED TO BE CLEAN.

MISHNAH 7. IF A CHILD³⁹ WAS FOUND AT THE SIDE OF A GRAVEYARD WITH LILIES IN HIS HAND, AND THE LILIES GREW ONLY IN A PLACE OF UNCLEANNESS, HE IS NEVERTHELESS CLEAN, FOR IT MAY BE ASSUMED THAT AN OTHER PERSON GATHERED THEM AND GAVE THEM TO HIM.⁴⁰ SO ALSO WHERE AN ASS WAS AMONG THE GRAVES⁴¹ HIS HARNESS REMAINS CLEAN.⁴²

MISHNAH 8. IF A CHILD⁴³ WAS FOUND⁴⁴ BESIDE DOUGH⁴⁵ WITH A PIECE OF DOUGH IN HIS HAND, R. MEIR RULES THAT THE DOUGH⁴⁶ IS CLEAN;⁴⁷ BUT THE SAGES RULE THAT IT IS UNCLEAN, SINCE IT IS THE NATURE OF A CHILD TO SLAP DOUGH.⁴⁸ IF A DOUGH⁴⁹ BORE TRACES OF HENS' PICKINGS AND THERE WAS UNCLEAN LIQUID IN THE SAME HOUSE, THE LOAVES⁵⁰ ARE DEEMED TO BE CLEAN IF THERE WAS DISTANCE ENOUGH BETWEEN THE LIQUID AND THE LOAVES FOR THE HENS TO DRY THEIR MOUTHS ON THE GROUND;⁵¹ AND, IN THE CASE OF A COW OR A DOG, IF THERE WAS DISTANCE ENOUGH⁵² FOR IT TO LICK ITS TONGUE;⁵³ AND, IN THE CASE OF ALL OTHER BEASTS, IF THERE WAS DISTANCE ENOUGH⁵² FOR THEIR TONGUE TO DRY. R. ELIEZER B. JACOB HOLDS THE DOUGH TO BE CLEAN IN THE CASE OF A DOG WHO IS SAGACIOUS; FOR IT IS NOT ITS HABIT TO LEAVE FOOD⁵⁴ AND GO AFTER THE WATER.⁵⁵

(1) That contracted any uncleanness.

(2) Capable also of moistening other foodstuffs.

(3) As is the rule of unclean liquids.

(4) After contracting uncleanness.

(5) Having been in contact, so to speak, with a liquid (their former shape) of the first grade of uncleanness.

(6) Because, when the first drop was formed, the solid part was thereby reduced to less than an egg's bulk and, therefore, became incapable of conveying any uncleanness to that drop (and much less to any subsequent drop) which, having assumed a new form of existence, has also passed into a state of cleanness.

- (7) Of the remaining solid. The rest of the liquified matter then contracts uncleanness from that drop since any quantity of liquid is capable of conveying uncleanness.
- (8) Even when congealed.
- (9) Like liquids, since it never changes into a proper solid.
- (10) The heat causing some liquid to flow out from the solid olives.
- (11) V. supra n. 6.
- (12) From contact with the liquid.
- (13) Since each olive is less than an egg's bulk.
- (14) In a container that was insusceptible to uncleanness.
- (15) Which he had touched before he pressed them.
- (16) V. p. 373, n. 6.
- (17) From contact with the unclean olives or grapes.
- (18) Who pressed out the juice.
- (19) Whatever its quantity.
- (20) In the first grade.
- (21) Or 'shaking' (hesset) on the part of the zab, even if there was no direct contact.
- (22) The minimum that can convey uncleanness.
- (23) That contracted uncleanness.
- (24) So that less than the prescribed minimum (cf. prev. n. but one) remained.
- (25) That shrank (cf. prev. n.).
- (26) V. Glos.
- (27) Var. lec. 'and forbidden fat'.
- (28) Consisting now of the prescribed minimum.
- (29) When found.
- (30) If, for instance, a body was touched in the dark, and it is unknown whether it was that of a live or of a dead person, but later in the daylight it was found to be a corpse, it is assumed that death had occurred by the time it was touched, and the man that touched it is, therefore, unclean.
- (31) In cases where such covering affords protection against uncleanness.
- (32) A condition in which uncleanness ceases.
- (33) Even after the rust is removed or the needle is repaired, it being assumed that it was already in a rusty or broken condition at the time contact with the unclean object had taken place.
- (34) Which has the status of a private domain where doubtful cases of uncleanness are deemed to be unclean.
- (35) Because, as stated infra, one who is incapable of giving sensible information in reply to an enquiry is, in cases of doubtful uncleanness, deemed to be clean even in a private domain.
- (36) About whom there is doubt whether he did or did not touch an uncleanness.
- (37) In a private domain. In a public domain doubtful cases of uncleanness are always presumed to be clean.
- (38) Not only the categories of person mentioned but also cattle and utensils.
- (39) Who 'lacks understanding to be inquired of' (cf. prev. Mishnah); v. Sot. 28aff.
- (40) Since the child accordingly was not in the graveyard, and since the lilies which suffered first grade uncleanness only cannot convey uncleanness to a human being, the child remains clean.
- (41) So that it is doubtful whether he did or did not overshadow a grave.
- (42) It being presumed that there was no overshadowing.
- (43) Who was unclean.
- (44) In a private domain.
- (45) That was clean.
- (46) At the side of which he was found.
- (47) Since some children (a minority) have not the habit of slapping dough and since the dough was in a presumptive state of cleanness the child in question (on the principle of minority plus presumption) may be assumed to belong to the class of children who do not slap dough, and the piece of dough in his hand may be presumed to have been given to him by some clean person.
- (48) As the majority of children do slap dough, the child in question must be presumed to be one of that class, and the dough that has presumably been touched by him must, therefore, be regarded as unclean.

(49) Made into loaves.

(50) Cf. prev. n.

(51) After drinking of the unclean liquid, as is their nature after a drink.

(52) Between the liquid and the dough.

(53) Cf. p. 376, n. 14.

(54) The dough, which is not easily procurable.

(55) Which he can get much more easily. Hence it may well be presumed that before drinking the water he had well finished with the dough.

Mishna - Mas. Taharoth Chapter 4

MISHNAH 1. IF AN UNCLEAN¹ OBJECT WAS THROWN FROM ONE PLACE TO ANOTHER:² A LOAF³ AMONG KEYS⁴ OR A KEY⁵ AMONG LOAVES,⁶ [THAT WHICH WAS CLEAN REMAINS] CLEAN.⁷ R. JUDAH⁸ RULED: IF A LOAF³ WAS THROWN AMONG KEYS⁴ THE FORMER BECOMES UNCLEAR, BUT IF A KEY⁵ WAS THROWN AMONG LOAVES⁶ THE LATTER REMAIN CLEAN.

MISHNAH 2. IF A DEAD CREEPING THING WAS HELD IN THE MOUTH OF A WEASEL THAT WAS PASSING OVER LOAVES OF TERUMAH AND IT IS DOUBTFUL WHETHER THE CREEPING THING DID OR DID NOT TOUCH THEM, SUCH CONDITION OF DOUBT IS DEEMED CLEAN.⁹

MISHNAH 3. IF A WEASEL HELD IN ITS MOUTH A [DEAD] CREEPING THING OR IF A DOG HAD CARRION IN ITS MOUTH AND THEY PASSED BETWEEN CLEAN [PERSONS] OR IF CLEAN PERSONS PASSED BETWEEN THEM,¹⁰ THEIR CONDITION OF DOUBT IS DEEMED CLEAN, SINCE THE UNCLEANNESS¹¹, HAD NO RESTING PLACE.¹² IF THEY¹³ WERE PICKING AT THEM¹⁴ WHILE THESE¹⁵ LAY ON THE GROUND,¹⁶ AND A PERSON STATED, 'I WENT TO THAT PLACE BUT I DO NOT KNOW WHETHER I DID OR DID NOT TOUCH IT',¹⁵ HIS CONDITION OF DOUBT IS DEEMED UNCLEAR, SINCE THE UNCLEANNESS HAD A RESTING PLACE.

MISHNAH 4. IF AN OLIVE'S BULK OF CORPSE WAS HELD IN A RAVEN'S MOUTH AND IT IS DOUBTFUL WHETHER IT OVERSHADOWED A MAN OR VESSELS IN A PRIVATE DOMAIN, THE MAN'S CONDITION OF DOUBT IS DEEMED TO BE UNCLEAR¹⁷ BUT THE VESSELS' CONDITION OF DOUBT IS DEEMED CLEAN.¹⁸ IF A MAN DREW WATER IN TEN BUCKETS¹⁹ AND A DEAD CREEPING THING WAS FOUND IN ONE OF THEM,²⁰ IT ALONE IS DEEMED UNCLEAR BUT ALL THE OTHERS REMAIN CLEAN.²¹ IF ONE POURED OUT FROM ONE VESSEL INTO ANOTHER AND A DEAD CREEPING THING WAS FOUND IN THE LOWER VESSEL, THE UPPER ONE REMAINS CLEAN.²²

MISHNAH 5. ON ACCOUNT OF SIX DOUBTFUL CASES OF UNCLEANNESS IS TERUMAH BURNT:²³ ON ACCOUNT OF THE DOUBT OF A BETH HA-PERAS [GRAVE AREA],²⁴ ON ACCOUNT OF EARTH²⁵ ABOUT WHICH THERE IS DOUBT WHETHER IT CAME FROM THE LAND OF THE GENTILES,²⁶ ON ACCOUNT OF A DOUBT ABOUT THE GARMENTS OF AN 'AM HA-AREZ,²⁷ ON ACCOUNT OF A DOUBT ABOUT VESSELS FOUND BY CHANCE,²⁸ ON ACCOUNT OF SPITTLE ENCOUNTERED BY CHANCE,²⁹ ON ACCOUNT OF A DOUBT ABOUT HUMAN URINE²⁹ THAT WAS NEAR THE URINE OF A BEAST.³⁰ ON ACCOUNT OF A CERTAINTY OF HAVING TOUCHED THESE, WHICH GIVES RISE TO THE DOUBTFUL UNCLEANNESS,³¹ TERUMAH IS BURNT. R. JOSE RULED: ALSO ON ACCOUNT OF THEIR DOUBTFUL CONTACT³² IN A PRIVATE DOMAIN;³³ BUT THE SAGES RULED: IN A PRIVATE DOMAIN THE TERUMAH IS ONLY HELD IN SUSPENSE³⁴ AND IN A PUBLIC DOMAIN IT IS DEEMED CLEAN.³⁵

MISHNAH 6. IN THE CASE OF TWO KINDS OF SPITTLE, ONE OF WHICH WAS [POSSIBLY] UNCLEAR³⁶ AND THE OTHER WAS DECIDEDLY CLEAN, [ANY TERUMAH] IS TO BE HELD IN SUSPENSE IF [TOUCHED BY ONE WHO] TOUCHED OR CARRIED OR SHIFTED [ONE OF THE TWO KINDS OF SPITTLE] WHILE THEY WERE IN A PRIVATE DOMAIN, OR, WHO TOUCHED ONE OF THEM IN A PUBLIC DOMAIN WHILE IT WAS STILL MOIST, OR WHO CARRIED IT IRRESPECTIVE OF WHETHER IT WAS MOIST OR DRY. IF THERE WAS BUT ONE [KIND OF POSSIBLY] UNCLEAR Spittle AND A MAN TOUCHED, CARRIED OR SHIFTED IT IN A PUBLIC DOMAIN, TERUMAH³⁷ IS BURNT ON ACCOUNT OF IT; AND IT IS STILL MORE EVIDENT THAT THIS IS THE CASE IF IT WAS³⁸ IN A PRIVATE DOMAIN.

MISHNAH 7. THE FOLLOWING CASES OF DOUBTFUL UNCLEANNESS THE SAGES DECLARED TO BE CLEAN:³⁹ A CONDITION OF DOUBT CONCERNING DRAWN WATER IN RESPECT OF A RITUAL BATH,⁴⁰ AND A CONDITION OF DOUBT CONCERNING AN OBJECT OF UNCLEANNESS THAT FLOATED UPON THE WATER.⁴¹ IN THE CASE OF A CONDITION OF DOUBT CONCERNING LIQUIDS AS TO WHETHER THEY HAVE CONTRACTED UNCLEANNESS IT IS DEEMED UNCLEAR, BUT IF IT WAS WHETHER UNCLEANNESS HAS BEEN CONVEYED IT IS DEEMED CLEAN. IF THERE IS DOUBT CONCERNING THE HANDS AS TO WHETHER THEY HAVE CONTRACTED UNCLEANNESS, HAVE CONVEYED UNCLEANNESS OR⁴² HAVE ATTAINED CLEANNESS, THEY ARE DEEMED CLEAN. [THE SAGES, MOREOVER, DECLARED AS CLEAN] A CONDITION OF DOUBT THAT AROSE IN A PUBLIC DOMAIN;⁴³ A CONDITION OF DOUBT CONCERNING AN ORDINANCE OF THE SCRIBES; A CONDITION OF DOUBT CONCERNING COMMON FOODSTUFFS;⁴⁴ A CONDITION OF DOUBT CONCERNING CREEPING THINGS; A CONDITION OF DOUBT CONCERNING LEPROSY SIGNS; A CONDITION OF DOUBT CONCERNING A NAZIRITE VOW; A CONDITION OF DOUBT CONCERNING FIRSTLINGS; AND A CONDITION OF DOUBT CONCERNING SACRIFICES.

MISHNAH 8. 'A CONDITION OF DOUBT CONCERNING AN OBJECT OF UNCLEANNESS THAT FLOATED UPON THE WATER'⁴⁴ [IS DEEMED CLEAN] WHETHER⁴⁵ THE WATER WAS IN VESSELS OR IN THE GROUND. R. SIMEON RULED: IF IN VESSELS IT IS DEEMED UNCLEAR⁴⁶ BUT IF IN THE GROUND IT IS DEEMED CLEAN.⁴⁷ R. JUDAH RULED: IF THE DOUBT⁴⁸ AROSE WHEN THE MAN WENT DOWN INTO THE WATER HE IS DEEMED UNCLEAR,⁴⁹ BUT IF WHEN HE CAME UP⁵⁰ HE IS DEEMED CLEAN. R. JOSE RULED: EVEN IF THE ROOM AVAILABLE⁵¹ WAS NO MORE THAN WHAT SUFFICED FOR THE MAN AND THE UNCLEANNESS THE FORMER REMAINS CLEAN.

MISHNAH 9. 'IN THE CASE OF A CONDITION OF DOUBT CONCERNING LIQUIDS AS TO WHETHER THEY HAVE CONTRACTED UNCLEANNESS IT IS DEEMED UNCLEAR'.⁵² IN WHAT CIRCUMSTANCES? IF AN UNCLEAR PERSON STRETCHED HIS FOOT BETWEEN CLEAN LIQUIDS AND THERE IS DOUBT WHETHER HE TOUCHED THEM OR NOT, SUCH A CONDITION OF DOUBT IS DEEMED TO BE UNCLEAR. IF A MAN HAD AN UNCLEAR LOAF IN HIS HAND AND HE STRETCHED IT OUT⁵³ BETWEEN CLEAN LIQUIDS, AND THERE IS DOUBT WHETHER IT TOUCHED THEM OR NOT, SUCH A CONDITION OF DOUBT IS DEEMED TO BE UNCLEAR. 'BUT IF IT WAS WHETHER UNCLEANNESS HAS BEEN CONVEYED, IT IS DEEMED CLEAN'.⁵² IN WHAT CIRCUMSTANCE? IF A MAN HAD IN HIS HAND A STICK ON THE END OF WHICH THERE WAS AN UNCLEAR LIQUID AND HE THREW IT AMONG CLEAN LOAVES AND THERE IS DOUBT WHETHER IT TOUCHED THEM⁵⁴ OR NOT, SUCH A CONDITION OF DOUBT IS DEEMED CLEAN.

MISHNAH 10. R. JOSE RULED: A CONDITION OF DOUBT⁵⁵ IN THE CASE OF LIQUIDS IS DEEMED UNCLEAR IN RESPECT OF FOODSTUFFS⁵⁶ AND CLEAN IN RESPECT OF VESSELS.⁵⁷ HOW SO? IF THERE WERE TWO JARS,⁵⁸ THE ONE UNCLEAR AND THE OTHER CLEAN, AND A DOUGH WAS PREPARED WITH THE CONTENTS OF ONE OF THEM AND A DOUBT AROSE AS TO WHETHER IT WAS PREPARED WITH THE CONTENTS OF THE UNCLEAR, OR OF THE CLEAN ONE, SUCH IS 'A CONDITION OF DOUBT IN THE CASE OF LIQUIDS [WHICH] IS DEEMED UNCLEAR IN RESPECT OF FOODSTUFFS AND CLEAN IN RESPECT OF VESSELS'.

MISHNAH 11. 'IF THERE IS DOUBT CONCERNING THE HANDS AS TO WHETHER THEY HAVE CONTRACTED UNCLEANNESS,⁵⁹ HAVE CONVEYED UNCLEANNESS⁶⁰ OR HAVE ATTAINED CLEANNESS, THEY ARE DEEMED CLEAN'.⁶¹ 'ANY CONDITION OF DOUBT⁶² THAT AROSE IN A PUBLIC DOMAIN'⁶¹ IS DEEMED CLEAN' 'A CONDITION OF DOUBT CONCERNING AN ORDINANCE OF THE SCRIBES'⁶¹ [NAMELY, IF A MAN IS UNCERTAIN WHETHER] HE ATE UNCLEAR FOODSTUFFS OR DRANK UNCLEAR LIQUIDS, WHETHER HE IMMERSED HIS HEAD AND THE GREATER PART OF HIS BODY IN DRAWN WATER,⁶³ OR WHETHER THERE FELL ON HIS HEAD AND THE GREATER PART OF HIS BODY THREE LOG OF DRAWN WATER,⁶⁴ SUCH A CONDITION OF DOUBT⁶⁵ IS DEEMED CLEAN. IF, HOWEVER, A CONDITION OF DOUBT AROSE CONCERNING A FATHER OF UNCLEANNESS EVEN THOUGH IT WAS ONLY RABBINICAL, IT IS DEEMED UNCLEAR.

MISHNAH 12. 'A CONDITION OF DOUBT CONCERNING COMMON FOODSTUFFS'⁶¹ REFERS TO THE CLEANNESS PRACTICED BY PHARISEES.⁶⁶ 'A CONDITION OF DOUBT CONCERNING CREEPING THING'⁶⁷ — [THIS IS DETERMINED] ACCORDING [TO THEIR CONDITION AT] THE TIME THEY ARE FOUND.⁶⁸ 'A CONDITION OF DOUBT CONCERNING LEPROSY SIGNS'⁶⁷ — [A LEPROSY SIGN]⁶⁹ IS DEEMED CLEAN IN THE BEGINNING BEFORE IT HAD BEEN DETERMINED TO BE UNCLEAR, BUT AFTER IT HAD BEEN DETERMINED TO BE UNCLEAR, A CONDITION OF DOUBT⁷⁰ IS DEEMED UNCLEAR. 'A CONDITION OF DOUBT CONCERNING A NAZIRITE VOW'⁶⁷ — [IN SUCH A CONDITION OF DOUBT⁷¹ THE MAN] IS PERMITTED [ALL THAT IS FORBIDDEN TO A NAZIRITE].⁷² 'A CONDITION OF DOUBT CONCERNING FIRSTLINGS'⁶⁹ — [IN SUCH A CASE ONE IS EXEMPT FROM GIVING THE FIRSTLINGS TO THE PRIEST] IRRESPECTIVE OF WHETHER THEY ARE FIRSTBORN OF MEN⁷³ OR FIRSTLINGS OF CATTLE,⁷⁴ WHETHER THE FIRSTLINGS OF AN UNCLEAR BEAST⁷⁵ OR A CLEAN ONE, FOR IT IS THE MAN WHO ADVANCES THE CLAIM⁷⁶ AGAINST HIS FELLOW THAT MUST PRODUCE THE PROOF.⁷⁷

MISHNAH 13. 'AND A CONDITION OF DOUBT CONCERNING SACRIFICES'⁶⁷ — IF A WOMAN HAS EXPERIENCED FIVE DOUBTFUL CASES OF MISCARRIAGE OR FIVE DISCHARGES OF DOUBTFUL ZIBAH SHE BRINGS ONLY ONE SACRIFICE⁷⁸ AND MAY THEN EAT OF THE SLAIN SACRIFICES, SHE BEING UNDER NO OBLIGATION TO BRING THE REMAINDER.⁷⁹

(1) Or clean (cf. foll. n.).

(2) So that a doubt arose whether it touched anything clean or whether the clean object (cf. prev. n.) touched anything unclear.

(3) That was clean (cf. prev. n. but one).

(4) That were unclear.

(5) That was unclear.

(6) That were clean.

(7) The assumption being that there was no contact after the haphazard throw between the clean and the unclear objects, and furthermore because the clean object under consideration lacks understanding, v. supra III, 6.

(8) Drawing a distinction between an uncleanness at rest and one on the move.

(9) Because the uncleanness was on the move, and because the bread lacks understanding, v. Shek. II, 7.

(10) It being doubtful whether there was contact between the clean and the unclean.

(11) Which was on the move.

(12) This principle applying even to persons, though these do not lack understanding.

(13) Sc. the weasel or the dog.

(14) The creeping thing or the carrion.

(15) V. p. 378, n. 14.

(16) In a private domain.

(17) For overshadowing, which reaches to the ground, is on a par with a resting uncleanness, and the man affected is capable of answering an enquiry (cf. supra III, 6).

(18) Since vessels are not capable of answering an enquiry (cf. prev. n.).

(19) One after the other.

(20) A doubt thus arising whether the creeping thing was in the well and thus conveyed uncleanness to all the buckets.

(21) It being assumed that where the uncleanness was found there it was all the time; and, though it came in contact with the water in the well, it conveyed no uncleanness to it, since the latter is regarded as attached to the ground which is not susceptible to uncleanness.

(22) It is not assumed that the creeping thing was first in the upper vessel from which it subsequently dropped into the lower one.

(23) In all other cases of doubtful uncleanness terumah may not be burnt.

(24) Into which terumah was carried; on Beth ha-Peras, v. Glos.

(25) Which came in contact with terumah.

(26) In which case it would be unclean.

(27) It being uncertain whether he did or did not touch them. If he did, uncleanness would have been conveyed to them.

(28) Which might possibly be unclean ones.

(29) Which might be that of a zab or a menstruant and which would, therefore, convey uncleanness.

(30) And thus distinguishable from it. If one kind alone is encountered a double doubt arises: Whether (a) it is that of a man or a beast and, if it is that of a man, whether (b) that man was unclean or clean.

(31) Owing, as stated supra, to the doubtful nature of their uncleanness.

(32) With terumah; though in such a case a double doubt arises.

(33) Is terumah burnt.

(34) Owing to the double doubt involved (cf. prev. n. but one).

(35) For further notes on this Mishnah v. Shab. (Sonc. ed.) p. 156 notes.

(36) In the case of certain uncleanness the terumah, touched in a private domain by one who came in contact with the spittle, would have had to be definitely burnt.

(37) That the man subsequently touched.

(38) Lit., 'and there is no need to say' that the terumah is to be burnt.

(39) Irrespective of whether they occurred in a private or in a public domain.

(40) It being doubtful whether the drawn water had fallen into the ritual bath that contained less than the prescribed minimum of valid water or, if it was certain that it fell into it, whether its quantity was as much as three logs which constitute the minimum for invalidating a ritual bath.

(41) This and the following cases are explained infra.

(42) Having been unclean.

(43) Even concerning a Pentateuchally ordained uncleanness.

(44) Cf. prev. Mishnah.

(45) It being uncertain whether a man had touched the uncleanness.

(46) Sc. the man concerning whom a doubt arose as to whether he touched the unclean object is deemed unclean.

(47) Cf. p. 381, n. 8 mut. mut.

(48) Whether the man has touched the unclean object.

(49) Since it is in the nature of a floating object to be drawn towards one descending into the water.

(50) When the floating object naturally recedes from him.

- (51) In the water.
- (52) Supra IV, 7.
- (53) Var. lec. 'threw it' (cf. foll. n.).
- (54) After it had come to a rest.
- (55) As to their uncleanness.
- (56) Because, in his opinion, liquids convey uncleanness to foodstuffs according to a Pentateuchal law.
- (57) Whose contraction of uncleanness from liquids is but a Rabbinical ordinance.
- (58) Containing water.
- (59) From unclean foodstuffs or liquids.
- (60) To foodstuffs.
- (61) Supra IV, 7.
- (62) Of uncleanness.
- (63) Which renders the immersion invalid.
- (64) Which cause a clean person to become unclean.
- (65) As to whether he subsequently performed immersion and much more so if there is doubt as to whether uncleanness had at all been contracted.
- (66) Lit., 'the cleanness of separation'. To keep away from the clothes of those who are not so meticulous as oneself in the observance of the laws of cleanness and uncleanness. If a Pharisee is in doubt whether he came in contact with such cloths he may regard himself as clean and continue to eat his usual food that he keeps under conditions of cleanness.
- (67) Supra IV, 7.
- (68) Sc. if a creeping thing was thrown among clean foodstuffs but was not found touching any of them, they are deemed to be clean. It is not assumed that before it came to rest it touched them.
- (69) Concerning which there is doubt whether it increased in size.
- (70) Sc. whether it had diminished in size.
- (71) Where, for instance, a man made his vow dependent on an assertion that a heap of wheat contained a certain number of measures, and the heap was lost before the assertion could be checked.
- (72) The drinking of wine and shaving for instance.
- (73) Who are redeemed with five shekels which are given to the priest.
- (74) Which are the priest's due.
- (75) An ass.
- (76) The priest who claims the firstling or the redemption of the firstborn.
- (77) As there is doubt no proof is possible, and the father of the firstborn and the owner of the firstling are exempt.
- (78) A sin-offering of a bird, brought as doubtful offering.
- (79) V. Ker. 8a.

Mishna - Mas. Taharoth Chapter 5

MISHNAH 1. IF IN A PUBLIC DOMAIN THERE WAS A [DEAD] CREEPING THING¹ AND A FROG,² AND SO ALSO [IF THERE WAS THERE] AN OLIVE'S BULK OF A CORPSE³ AND AN OLIVE'S BULK OF CARRION,⁴ A BONE OF A CORPSE⁵ AND A BONE OF CARRION,² A CLOD OF CLEAN EARTH² AND A CLOD FROM A GRAVE AREA⁶ OR A CLOD OF CLEAN EARTH² AND A CLOD FROM THE LAND OF THE GENTILES,⁴ OR IF THERE WERE TWO PATHS, THE ONE UNCLEAR⁷ AND THE OTHER CLEAN, AND A MAN WALKED THROUGH ONE OF THEM BUT IT IS NOT KNOWN WHICH,⁸ OR OVERSHADOWED ONE OF THEM BUT IT IS NOT KNOWN WHICH,⁹ OR HE SHIFTED¹⁰ ONE OF THEM BUT IT IS NOT KNOWN WHICH,¹¹ R. MISHNAH 3. IF THERE WERE TWO PATHS,²³ THE ONE UNCLEAN²⁴ AND THE OTHER CLEAN,²⁵ AND A MAN WALKED BY ONE OF THEM AND THEN PREPARED CLEAN FOODSTUFFS²⁶ WHICH WERE SUBSEQUENTLY CONSUMED AND, HAVING BEEN SPRINKLED UPON ONCE AND A SECOND TIME²⁷ AND HAVING PERFORMED IMMERSION AND ATTAINED CLEANNESSE, HE WALKED BY THE SECOND PATH AND THEN PREPARED CLEAN FOODSTUFFS,²⁸ THE LATTER ARE DEEMED CLEAN.²⁹ IF THE FIRST FOODSTUFFS WERE STILL IN EXISTENCE BOTH MUST BE HELD IN SUSPENSE.²⁹ IF HE HAD NOT ATTAINED CLEANNESSE IN THE MEANTIME,³⁰ THE FIRST ARE HELD IN SUSPENSE³¹ AND THE SECOND MUST BE BURNT.³²

MISHNAH 4. IF THERE WAS A DEAD CREEPING THING AND A FROG IN A PUBLIC DOMAIN AND A MAN TOUCHED ONE OF THEM³³ AND THEN PREPARED CLEAN FOODSTUFFS³⁴ WHICH WERE SUBSEQUENTLY CONSUMED; AND THEN HE PERFORMED IMMERSION, TOUCHED THE OTHER AND THEN PREPARED CLEAN FOODSTUFFS,³⁴ THE LATTER ARE DEEMED CLEAN.³⁵ IF THE FIRST FOODSTUFFS WERE STILL IN EXISTENCE BOTH MUST BE HELD IN SUSPENSE.³⁶ IF HE DID NOT PERFORM IMMERSION IN THE MEANTIME,³⁷ THE FIRST ARE HELD IN SUSPENSE³⁸ AND THE SECOND MUST BE BURNT³⁹.

MISHNAH 5. MISHNAH 7. IF A MAN SAT IN A PUBLIC DOMAIN AND SOMEONE⁴² CAME AND TROD ON HIS CLOTHES, OR SPAT AND THE FORMER TOUCHED THE SPITTLE, ON ACCOUNT OF THE SPITTLE TERUMAH⁴³ MUST BE BURNT,⁴⁴ BUT ON ACCOUNT OF THE CLOTHES THE MAJORITY PRINCIPLE IS FOLLOWED.⁴⁵ IF A MAN SLEPT IN THE PUBLIC DOMAIN, WHEN HE RISES HIS GARMENTS SUFFER MIDRAS UNCLEANNESSE;⁴⁶ SO R. MEIR. BUT THE SAGES⁴⁷ RULE THAT THEY ARE CLEAN. IF A MAN TOUCHED SOMEONE IN THE NIGHT AND IT IS NOT KNOWN WHETHER IT WAS ONE WHO WAS ALIVE OR DEAD, BUT IN THE MORNING WHEN HE GOT UP HE FOUND HIM TO BE DEAD, R. MEIR RULES THAT HE⁴⁸ IS CLEAN, BUT THE SAGES RULE THAT HE IS UNCLEAN,⁴⁹ SINCE ALL DOUBTFUL CONDITIONS OF UNCLEANNESSE ARE [DETERMINED] IN ACCORDANCE WITH [THEIR APPEARANCE AT] THE TIME THEY ARE DISCOVERED.

MISHNAH 8. IF THERE WAS IN THE TOWN AN IMBECILE, A HEATHEN, OR A SAMARITAN WOMAN, ALL SPITTLE ENCOUNTERED IN THE TOWN IS DEEMED UNCLEAN.⁵⁰ IF A WOMAN TROD ON A MANS CLOTHES OR SAT WITH HIM IN A BOAT,⁵¹ HIS CLOTHES REMAIN CLEAN IF SHE KNEW HIM TO BE EATING TERUMAH,⁵² BUT IF NOT, HE MUST ASK HER.

MISHNAH 9. IF A WITNESS SAYS,⁵³ 'YOU HAVE CONTRACTED UNCLEANNESS', BUT HE SAYS, 'I HAVE NOT CONTRACTED ANY UNCLEANNESS', HE IS REGARDED AS CLEAN. IF TWO WITNESSES SAY,⁵³ 'YOU HAVE CONTRACTED UNCLEANNESS', AND HE SAYS, 'I HAVE NOT CONTRACTED ANY UNCLEANNESS', R. MEIR RULES THAT HE IS UNCLEAN,⁵⁴ BUT THE SAGES RULE: HE MAY BE BELIEVED ON HIS OWN EVIDENCE.⁵⁵ IF A WITNESS SAYS,⁵³ 'YOU HAVE CONTRACTED UNCLEANNESS', BUT TWO WITNESSES SAY, HE HAS NOT CONTRACTED ANY UNCLEANNESS, WHETHER IN A PRIVATE DOMAIN OR IN A PUBLIC DOMAIN, HE IS REGARDED AS CLEAN. IF TWO WITNESSES SAY, 'HE HAS CONTRACTED UNCLEANNESS', AND ONE WITNESS SAYS, 'HE HAS NOT CONTRACTED ANY UNCLEANNESS', WHETHER IN A PRIVATE DOMAIN OR IN A PUBLIC DOMAIN, HE IS REGARDED AS UNCLEAN. IF ONE WITNESS SAYS, 'HE HAS CONTRACTED UNCLEANNESS', AND ANOTHER SAYS, 'HE HAS NOT CONTRACTED ANY UNCLEANNESS', OR IF ONE WOMAN SAYS, 'HE HAS CONTRACTED UNCLEANNESS', AND ANOTHER WOMAN SAYS, 'HE HAS NOT CONTRACTED ANY UNCLEANNESS', HE IS REGARDED AS UNCLEAN IF THE EVIDENCE RELATES TO A PRIVATE DOMAIN,⁵⁶ BUT IF IT RELATED TO A PUBLIC DOMAIN HE IS REGARDED AS CLEAN.⁵⁷

(1) One of the eight enumerated in Lev. XI, 29, which are 'fathers of uncleanness' and convey uncleanness by contact.

(2) Which conveys no uncleanness whatsoever.

(3) Which conveys uncleanness (cf. prev. n. but one) by overshadowing also.

(4) That conveys uncleanness by contact and carrying only.

(5) Which conveys uncleanness by hesset (v. Glos.).

(6) Beth ha- Peras (v. Glos.). This conveys uncleanness by contact and carrying only.

(7) There having been a grave across its breadth which any one going through the path must pass over and thus overshadow it and contract uncleanness.

(8) Of the two paths.

(9) Whether the olive's bulk of corpse or that of the carrion.

(10) Or carried.

(11) Whether it was the bone of the corpse or that of the carrion.

(12) Because, in his opinion, only food which, if once unclean, cannot any more be rendered clean, is deemed to be clean in a case of doubt in a public domain, but not men and vessels which may attain cleanness through immersion and sprinkling. Aliter: A doubtful case of uncleanness is deemed clean, according to R. Akiba, in a public domain only when a number of people are involved but not, as in this case, where only an individual is concerned (Wilna Gaon).

(13) Cf. prev. n. mut. mut.

(14) This is a continuation of the previous rulings.

(15) In the case where there was in the public domain a creeping thing and a frog.

(16) Owing to the similarity of the frog and the creeping thing.

(17) V. p. 385, n. 12.

(18) V. p. 385, n. 13.

(19) Enumerated in this and in the preceding Mishnah.

(20) Supra V, 1.

(21) And the imposition of uncleanness in such a case would involve undue hardship. Hence the relaxation of the restriction.

(22) As uncleanness could, therefore, be avoided the restriction could well be maintained.

(23) In a public domain.

- (24) V. supra p. 385, n. 7.
- (25) But it was not known which was which.
- (26) Of terumah which must be kept in conditions of cleanness.
- (27) On the third and the seventh day respectively.
- (28) Because the doubt occurred in a public domain.
- (29) Since both have to be considered simultaneously and one at least is obviously unclean.
- (30) Between the preparation of the first and the second foodstuffs.
- (31) Neither eaten nor burnt. Var. lec., 'are clean'.
- (32) Since they are unclean in any case.
- (33) But did not know whether it was the clean or the unclean.
- (34) Of terumah which must be kept in conditions of cleanness.
- (35) Because the doubt occurred in a public domain.
- (36) Since both have to be considered simultaneously and one at least is obviously unclean.
- (37) Between the preparation of the first and the second foodstuffs.
- (38) Neither eaten nor burnt. Var. lec., 'are clean'.
- (39) Being unclean in any case.
- (40) Since neither can be declared unclean when his uncleanness is only a matter of doubt in a public domain.
- (41) When it is impossible to declare them both clean since one at least must be unclean.
- (42) Who could possibly be suspected of uncleanness.
- (43) Which the first man touched.
- (44) As a preventive measure against contact with spittle that was known to be unclean.
- (45) Sc. only if the greater number of people in the place were zabs is midras uncleanness (v. Glos.) imposed.
- (46) Since it is possible that most of the people have trodden on them and that among these was a zab.
- (47) Holding that even in a case like this a condition of doubt in a public domain is deemed clean.
- (48) The live man.
- (49) Provided the dead man was not seen alive in the previous evening.
- (50) Since the class of women mentioned do not exercise the necessary care when they are in their menstruation periods.
- (51) Where, if she was a menstruant, she would convey to him midras uncleanness (cf. Zab. III, 1).
- (52) Since in that case she would keep away from his clothes and would not enter the same boat when in her menstruation.
- (53) To any man.
- (54) Since two witnesses on whose evidence a man may be sent to death may well be relied upon in subjecting one to uncleanness which involves no greater liability than that of a sacrifice for entering the Sanctuary in an unclean state.
- (55) Because he could well claim, even if the witnesses' evidence is accepted, that he has subsequently attained cleanness through immersion.
- (56) As is the rule with any condition of doubtful uncleanness in such a domain.
- (57) Cf. prev. n. mut. mut.

Mishna - Mas. Taharoth Chapter 6

MISHNAH 1. IF A PLACE THAT WAS A PRIVATE DOMAIN HAS BECOME A PUBLIC DOMAIN¹ AND THEN WAS TURNED AGAIN INTO A PRIVATE DOMAIN, WHILE IT IS A PRIVATE DOMAIN ANY CONDITION OF DOUBT ARISING IN IT IS DEEMED UNCLEAN BUT WHILE IT IS A PUBLIC DOMAIN ANY CONDITION OF DOUBT ARISING IN IT IS DEEMED CLEAN. IF A MAN WHO WAS DANGEROUSLY ILL IN A PRIVATE DOMAIN WAS TAKEN OUT INTO A PUBLIC DOMAIN AND THEN BROUGHT BACK INTO A PRIVATE DOMAIN,² WHILE HE IS IN THE PRIVATE DOMAIN ANY CONDITION OF DOUBT ARISING THROUGH HIM³ IS DEEMED UNCLEAN⁴ BUT WHILE HE IS IN THE PUBLIC DOMAIN ANY CONDITION OF DOUBT ARISING THROUGH HIM³ IS DEEMED CLEAN.⁵ R. SIMEON RULED: THE PUBLIC DOMAIN CAUSES A BREAK.⁶

MISHNAH 2. FOUR CASES OF DOUBT, R. JOSHUA RULED, ARE DEEMED UNCLEAN

AND THE SAGES RULE THAT THEY ARE DEEMED CLEAN. FOR INSTANCE? IF AN UNCLEAR MAN⁷ STOOD⁸ AND A CLEAN MAN PASSED BY⁹ OR THE CLEAN MAN STOOD AND THE UNCLEAR ONE PASSED BY;⁹ OR IF AN UNCLEAR OBJECT WAS IN A PRIVATE DOMAIN AND A CLEAN ONE IN THE PUBLIC DOMAIN OR THE CLEAN OBJECT WAS IN THE PRIVATE DOMAIN AND THE UNCLEAR ONE IN THE PUBLIC DOMAIN, AND THERE IS DOUBT WHETHER THERE WAS CONTACT¹⁰ OR NOT, OR WHETHER THERE WAS OVERSHADOWING¹⁰ OR NOT, OR WHETHER THERE WAS SHIFTING¹¹ OR NOT, R. JOSHUA RULES THAT THE CLEAN BECOMES UNCLEAR,¹² BUT THE SAGES RULE THAT THE CLEAN REMAINS CLEAN.

MISHNAH 3. IF A TREE STANDING IN A PUBLIC DOMAIN HAD WITHIN IT AN OBJECT OF UNCLEANNESS AND A MAN CLIMBED TO THE TOP OF IT, AND THE DOUBT AROSE AS TO WHETHER HE DID OR DID NOT TOUCH THE OBJECT OF UNCLEANNESS. SUCH A CONDITION OF DOUBT IS DEEMED UNCLEAR.¹³ IF A MAN¹⁴ PUT HIS HAND INTO A HOLE IN WHICH THERE WAS AN OBJECT OF UNCLEANNESS AND THERE IS DOUBT WHETHER HE DID OR DID NOT TOUCH IT, SUCH A CONDITION OF DOUBT IS DEEMED UNCLEAR.¹³ IF A SHOP THAT WAS UNCLEAR WAS OPEN TOWARD A PUBLIC DOMAIN AND THERE IS DOUBT WHETHER A MAN DID OR DID NOT ENTER IT, SUCH A CONDITION OF DOUBT IS DEEMED CLEAN.¹⁵ IF THERE IS DOUBT WHETHER HE DID OR DID NOT TOUCH ANYTHING, SUCH A CONDITION OF DOUBT IS DEEMED CLEAN.¹⁶ IF THERE WERE TWO SHOPS, THE ONE UNCLEAR AND THE OTHER CLEAN, AND A MAN ENTERED INTO ONE OF THEM, AND A DOUBT AROSE AS TO WHETHER HE ENTERED THE UNCLEAR, OR THE CLEAN ONE, SUCH A CONDITION OF DOUBT IS DEEMED UNCLEAR.¹⁷

MISHNAH 4. HOWEVER MANY THE DOUBTS AND THE DOUBTS ABOUT DOUBTS THAT ONE CAN MULTIPLY, A CONDITION OF DOUBT IN A PRIVATE DOMAIN IS DEEMED UNCLEAR, AND IN A PUBLIC DOMAIN IT IS DEEMED CLEAN. FOR INSTANCE? IF A MAN ENTERED AN ALLEY¹⁸ AND AN UNCLEAR OBJECT WAS IN THE COURTYARD, AND A DOUBT AROSE AS TO WHETHER THE MAN DID OR DID NOT ENTER IT;¹⁹ OR IF AN OBJECT OF UNCLEANNESS WAS IN A HOUSE AND THERE IS DOUBT WHETHER A MAN ENTERED OR NOT; OR EVEN WHERE HE ENTERED, THERE IS DOUBT WHETHER THE UNCLEANNESS WAS THERE OR NOT; OR EVEN WHERE IT WAS THERE THERE IS DOUBT WHETHER IT CONSISTED OF THE PRESCRIBED MINIMUM OR NOT; OR EVEN WHERE IT CONSISTED OF THE PRESCRIBED MINIMUM, THERE IS DOUBT WHETHER IT WAS UNCLEAR OR CLEAN; OR, EVEN WHERE IT WAS UNCLEAR, THERE IS DOUBT WHETHER THE MAN HAD TOUCHED IT OR NOT, ANY SUCH CONDITION OF DOUBT IS DEEMED UNCLEAR. R. ELIEZER²⁰ RULED: ANY CONDITION OF DOUBT IN REGARD TO ENTERING IS DEEMED CLEAN, BUT ANY CONDITION OF DOUBT IN REGARD TO CONTACT WITH THE UNCLEANNESS IS DEEMED UNCLEAR.²¹

MISHNAH 5. IF A MAN ENTERED A VALLEY²² IN THE RAINY SEASON²³ AND THERE WAS AN UNCLEANNESS IN A CERTAIN FIELD, AND HE STATED, 'I WENT INTO THAT PLACE²⁴ BUT I DO NOT KNOW WHETHER I ENTERED THAT FIELD²⁵ OR NOT', R. ELIEZER RULES THAT HE IS CLEAN,²⁶ BUT THE SAGES RULE THAT HE IS UNCLEAR.²⁷

MISHNAH 6. A CONDITION OF DOUBT OCCURRING IN A PRIVATE DOMAIN IS DEEMED UNCLEAR UNLESS THE MAN CONCERNED CAN SAY, 'I DID NOT TOUCH THE UNCLEAR THING'. A CONDITION OF DOUBT IN A PUBLIC DOMAIN IS DEEMED CLEAN UNLESS THE MAN CONCERNED CAN SAY, 'I DID TOUCH THE UNCLEAR THING'. WHAT IS REGARDED AS A PUBLIC DOMAIN? THE PATHS OF BETH GILGUL²⁸ AND SIMILAR PLACES ARE REGARDED AS A PRIVATE DOMAIN²⁹ IN RESPECT OF THE LAWS OF THE SABBATH, AND A PUBLIC DOMAIN IN RESPECT OF THOSE OF UNCLEANNESS.³⁰ R. ELIEZER³¹ STATED: THE PATHS OF BETH GILGUL WERE MENTIONED ONLY BECAUSE THEY ARE REGARDED AS A PRIVATE DOMAIN IN BOTH RESPECTS.³² PATHS THAT OPEN OUT TOWARDS CISTERNS, PITS, CAVERNS OR WINE-PRESSES ARE REGARDED AS A PRIVATE DOMAIN IN RESPECT OF THE LAWS OF THE SABBATH AND AS A PUBLIC DOMAIN IN RESPECT OF THOSE OF UNCLEANNESS.

MISHNAH 7. A VALLEY IN SUMMER TIME³³ IS REGARDED AS A PRIVATE DOMAIN IN RESPECT OF THE LAWS OF THE SABBATH, BUT AS A PUBLIC DOMAIN IN RESPECT OF THOSE OF UNCLEANNESS; AND IN THE RAINY SEASON³⁴ IT IS REGARDED AS A PRIVATE DOMAIN IN BOTH RESPECTS.³⁵

MISHNAH 8. A BASILICA³⁶ IS REGARDED AS A PRIVATE DOMAIN IN RESPECT OF THE LAWS OF THE SABBATH BUT AS A PUBLIC DOMAIN IN RESPECT OF THOSE OF UNCLEANNESS. R. JUDAH RULED: IF A MAN STANDING AT ONE DOOR CAN SEE THOSE THAT ENTER AND LEAVE AT THE OTHER DOOR, IT IS REGARDED AS A PRIVATE DOMAIN IN BOTH RESPECTS; OTHERWISE IT IS REGARDED AS A PRIVATE DOMAIN IN RESPECT OF THE SABBATH AND AS A PUBLIC DOMAIN IN RESPECT OF UNCLEANNESS.

MISHNAH 9. A FORUM³⁷ IS REGARDED AS A PRIVATE DOMAIN IN RESPECT OF THE SABBATH LAWS AND AS A PUBLIC DOMAIN IN RESPECT OF THE LAWS OF UNCLEANNESS; AND THE SAME APPLIES TO ITS SIDES.³⁸ R. MEIR RULED: THE SIDES ARE REGARDED AS A PRIVATE DOMAIN IN BOTH RESPECTS.³⁹

MISHNAH 10. COLONNADES⁴⁰ ARE REGARDED AS A PRIVATE DOMAIN IN RESPECT OF THE SABBATH LAWS AND AS A PUBLIC DOMAIN IN RESPECT OF THE LAWS OF UNCLEANNESS. A COURTYARD INTO WHICH MANY PEOPLE ENTER BY ONE DOOR AND LEAVE BY ANOTHER,⁴¹ IS REGARDED AS A PRIVATE DOMAIN IN RESPECT OF THE SABBATH LAWS AND AS A PUBLIC DOMAIN IN RESPECT OF THE LAWS OF CLEANNESS.

(1) A valley, for instance, is a private domain in the winter when on account of the growing crops people are kept out of it, and a public domain in the summer when many labourers carry on in it the various activities associated with the harvest.

(2) Where he was found to be dead.

(3) Sc. if there is doubt whether a person had touched him while he was still alive or when he was already dead.

(4) It being assumed that he was dead in the private domain before he was taken out into the public domain. Hence the man who touched him in the private domain, whether before or after he had been taken into the public domain, is deemed unclean.

(5) And any one who touched him in the public domain before he was brought back into the private domain remains clean.

(6) Between the first and the second presence in the private domain; sc. since the dead man is deemed to have been alive while he was in the public domain he cannot possibly have been dead prior to that. Hence any condition of doubt during his first presence in the private domain must be deemed clean.

(7) A leper.

(8) Under any form of roof.

(9) The doubt arising whether (a) there was contact between the two or (b) the man that walked remained stationary for a moment while under the roof (cf. prev. n.) and the clean man thus contracted uncleanness by overshadowing.

(10) Cf. prev. n.

(11) Of the unclean by the clean.

- (12) In his opinion a doubt involving both a private and a public domain is to be regarded as involving the former alone.
- (13) Because though, in respect of the Sabbath laws, a tree or a hole in a public domain is regarded as a public domain, in respect of uncleanness it is treated as a private domain.
- (14) While standing in the public domain.
- (15) The unclean shop in the public domain is on a par with a dead creeping thing lying in a public domain, and the doubt concerning entry into it is on a par with the doubt concerning the touching of the creeping thing; the former, therefore, like the latter are deemed clean (cf. supra V, If).
- (16) Cf. prev. n.
- (17) Since there is no doubt that he entered one private domain at least.
- (18) Which in this respect is like a private domain.
- (19) The courtyard.
- (20) Var. lec. Eleazar.
- (21) This is derived by analogy from the conditions governing a sotah, (v. Glos).
- (22) Comprising many fields.
- (23) When the fields are sown and, therefore, regarded as a private domain.
- (24) The valley.
- (25) Which contained the uncleanness.
- (26) Since the fields are separated from each other the condition of doubt is one relating to entry which is deemed clean.
- (27) Because the valley unites all the fields into one unit.
- (28) Which are not frequented by many people. On Beth Gilgul v. MGWJ 1921, p. 88 and 320.
- (29) Sc. not a public domain. They are in fact a karmelith (v. Glos).
- (30) Even if less than three men were present when the doubt arose. Where three men are present even a private domain proper is treated as a public domain in respect of the laws of uncleanness.
- (31) Var. lec. Eleazar.
- (32) The laws of the Sabbath and the laws of uncleanness.
- (33) When it is frequented by the labourers engaged in it in various harvesting activities.
- (34) When it is deserted.
- (35) V. p. 393, n. 9.
- (36) A large hall with doors opening in all directions, used as a public meeting place but not as a thoroughfare.
- (37) Faron, a building in the style of a basilica whose doors are directly opposite one another. Aliter: A house in the heart of a public domain.
- (38) On either side of the passage from one door to the other.
- (39) The laws of the Sabbath and the laws of uncleanness.
- (40) In front of shops, having behind them raised benches on which the traders sit or display their wares.
- (41) Though the doors are not directly opposite one another.

Mishna - Mas. Taharoth Chapter 7

MISHNAH 1. IF A POTTER¹ LEFT HIS POTS² AND WENT DOWN TO DRINK,³ THE INNERMOST POTS REMAIN CLEAN⁴ BUT THE OUTER ONES ARE DEEMED UNCLEAR.⁵ R. JOSE RULED: THIS APPLIES ONLY WHERE THEY ARE NOT TIED TOGETHER, BUT WHERE THEY ARE TIED TOGETHER, ALL THE POTS⁶ ARE DEEMED CLEAN.⁷ IF A MAN ENTRUSTED HIS KEY TO AN 'AM HA-AREZ THE HOUSE REMAINS CLEAN, SINCE HE ENTRUSTED HIM ONLY WITH THE GUARDING OF THE KEY.⁸

MISHNAH 2. IF A MAN LEFT AN 'AM HA-AREZ IN HIS HOUSE AWAKE AND⁹ FOUND HIM AWAKE, OR ASLEEP AND⁹ FOUND HIM ASLEEP, OR AWAKE AND⁹ FOUND HIM ASLEEP, THE HOUSE REMAINS CLEAN.¹⁰ IF HE LEFT HIM ASLEEP AND FOUND HIM AWAKE, THE HOUSE IS DEEMED UNCLEAR;¹¹ SO R. MEIR. BUT THE SAGES RULED: ONLY THAT PART IS UNCLEAR TO WHICH HE CAN STRETCH OUT HIS HAND AND TOUCH IT.¹²

MISHNAH 3. IF ONE LEFT CRAFTSMEN IN HIS HOUSE, THE HOUSE IS DEEMED UNCLEAN; SO R. MEIR. BUT THE SAGES RULED: ONLY THAT PART IS UNCLEAN TO WHICH THEY CAN STRETCH OUT THEIR HANDS AND TOUCH IT.¹³

MISHNAH 4. IF THE WIFE OF A HABER¹⁴ LEFT THE WIFE OF AN 'AM HA-AREZ GRINDING CORN IN HER HOUSE, THE HOUSE IS DEEMED UNCLEAN IF SHE CEASED FROM TURNING THE HANDMILL,¹⁵ BUT IF SHE DID NOT CEASE FROM TURNING THE HANDMILL, ONLY THAT PART OF THE HOUSE IS DEEMED UNCLEAN TO WHICH SHE CAN STRETCH OUT HER HAND AND TOUCH IT. IF THERE WERE TWO WOMEN,¹⁶ THE HOUSE IS UNCLEAN IN EITHER CASE,¹⁷ SINCE, WHILE THE ONE IS GRINDING, THE OTHER CAN GO ABOUT TOUCHING; SO R. MEIR. BUT THE SAGES RULED: ONLY THAT PART OF THE HOUSE IS UNCLEAN TO WHICH THEY CAN STRETCH OUT THEIR HANDS AND TOUCH IT.

MISHNAH 5. IF A MAN LEFT AN 'AM HA-AREZ IN HIS HOUSE TO GUARD IT, WHENEVER HE¹⁸ CAN SEE THOSE THAT ENTER AND LEAVE,¹⁹ ONLY FOODSTUFFS AND LIQUIDS AND UNCOVERED EARTHENWARE ARE DEEMED UNCLEAN,²⁰ BUT COUCHES AND SEATS AND EARTHENWARE THAT HAVE TIGHTLY FITTING COVERS REMAIN CLEAN; AND WHENEVER HE¹⁸ CANNOT SEE EITHER THOSE WHO ENTER OR THOSE WHO LEAVE,¹⁹ EVEN THOUGH THE 'AM HA-AREZ²¹ HAS TO BE LED AND EVEN THOUGH HE WAS BOUND, ALL IS DEEMED UNCLEAN.²²

MISHNAH 6. IF TAX COLLECTORS²³ ENTERED A HOUSE,²⁴ THE HOUSE²⁵ IS DEEMED UNCLEAN.²⁶ EVEN THOUGH AN IDOLATER WAS WITH THEM²⁷ THEY ARE BELIEVED IF THEY SAY,²⁸ 'WE HAVE ENTERED BUT TOUCHED NOTHING'.²⁹ IF³⁰ THIEVES ENTERED A HOUSE, ONLY THAT PART IN WHICH THE FEET OF THE THIEVES HAVE TRODDEN IS DEEMED UNCLEAN.²⁹ AND WHAT DO THEY CAUSE TO BE UNCLEAN? FOODSTUFFS AND LIQUIDS AND OPEN EARTHENWARE ONLY, BUT COUCHES AND SEATS AND EARTHENWARE THAT HAVE TIGHTLY FITTING COVERS REMAIN CLEAN. IF AN IDOLATER³¹ OR A WOMAN³², WAS WITH THEM, ALL IS DEEMED UNCLEAN.³³

MISHNAH 7. IF A MAN LEFT HIS CLOTHES IN A WALL-NICHE OF A BATH-HOUSE,³⁴ R. ELEAZAR B. AZARIAH RULES THAT THEY ARE DEEMED CLEAN,³⁵ BUT THE SAGES RULED: THEY CANNOT BE REGARDED AS CLEAN UNLESS HE GIVES HIM³⁶ THE KEY³⁷ OR THE SEAL³⁷ OR UNLESS HE LEFT SOME SIGN ON THEM. IF A MAN³⁸ LEFT³⁹ HIS CLOTHES⁴⁰ FROM ONE VINTAGE TO THE NEXT, HIS⁴¹ CLOTHES REMAIN CLEAN;⁴² BUT IF HE LEFT THEM WITH AN ISRAELITE⁴³ THE CLOTHES ARE DEEMED UNCLEAN UNLESS HE⁴⁴ DECLARES, 'I HAVE TAKEN GOOD CARE⁴⁵ TO GUARD THEM'.

MISHNAH 8. IF ONE⁴⁶ WHO WAS CLEAN HAD GIVEN UP THE THOUGHT OF EATING [HIS TERUMAH]. R. JUDAH RULES THAT IT⁴⁷ STILL⁴⁸ REMAINS CLEAN, SINCE IT IS USUAL FOR UNCLEAN PERSONS TO KEEP AWAY FROM IT.⁴⁹ BUT THE SAGES RULE THAT IT⁵⁰ IS DEEMED UNCLEAN.⁵¹ IF HIS HANDS WERE CLEAN AND HE HAD GIVEN UP THE THOUGHT OF EATING TERUMAH, EVEN⁵² THOUGH HE SAYS, 'I KNEW THAT MY HANDS HAVE CONTRACTED NO UNCLEANNESS', HIS HANDS ARE DEEMED UNCLEAN, SINCE THE HANDS ARE ALWAYS BUSY.⁵³

MISHNAH 9. IF A WOMAN WHO ENTERED HER HOUSE TO BRING OUT SOME BREAD FOR A POOR MAN AND, WHEN SHE CAME OUT, FOUND HIM STANDING AT THE SIDE OF LOAVES OF TERUMAH, AND SIMILARLY IF A WOMAN WHO WENT OUT FOUND HER NEIGHBOUR RAKING OUT COALS UNDER A COOKING POT OF TERUMAH, R. AKIBA RULES THAT THEY⁵⁴ ARE UNCLEAN, BUT THE SAGES RULE THAT THEY ARE

CLEAN. SAID R. ELIEZER B. PILA:⁵⁵ IS BUT WHY DOES R. AKIBA RULE THAT THEY ARE UNCLEAN AND THE SAGES RULE THAT THEY ARE CLEAN? ONLY FOR THIS REASON: THAT WOMEN ARE GLUTTONOUS AND EACH MAY BE SUSPECTED OF UNCOVERING HER NEIGHBOUR'S COOKING POT TO GET TO KNOW WHAT SHE IS COOKING.⁵⁶

- (1) Who was a haber (v. Glos).
 - (2) In a public domain, and thereby caused obstruction on the road.
 - (3) Thus losing sight of his wares which, in his absence, might be rendered unclean, v. n. 5.
 - (4) V. next note.
 - (5) Because the skirts of an 'am ha-arez might have been caught in the interior (air-space) of the pots. This is, however, not likely to happen with the inner pots, v. Keth. 24b.
 - (6) Even the inner ones (cf. foll. n.).
 - (7) Even the outer ones are clean, because when they are tied to the others the mouths of the pots are not sufficiently exposed upwards to catch in their interior the skirts of passers-by. Maim. reads: Unclean, because by moving the outer ones the 'am ha-arez might indirectly have moved the inner ones also to which they are tied.
 - (8) The 'am ha-arez would not, therefore, venture to enter the house which was not placed under his care.
 - (9) On returning.
 - (10) For, having been left awake the 'am ha-arez would not dare to touch anything for fear that the master would return any moment. When he is left asleep and found asleep there is no need to suspect that he awoke in the meantime.
 - (11) Since the 'am ha-arez is not afraid to move about the house touching its contents because he assumes that the owner who left him asleep would be in no hurry to return.
 - (12) From where he lay, that is where the master found him on that same spot.
 - (13) Without having to ascend or descend.
 - (14) Who is trusted as much as the haber himself.
 - (15) Before the haber's wife returned; since this would give her time to walk about the house and touch things.
 - (16) Grinding the corn, each being the wife of an 'am ha-arez.
 - (17) Whether grinding did or did not cease before the haber's wife returned.
 - (18) The householder.
 - (19) The house.
 - (20) Since the 'am ha-arez might have touched them.
 - (21) Being incapable of walking.
 - (22) Since another person, capable of conveying uncleanness to these objects, may have visited the house and touched them.
 - (23) Of the 'am ha-arez class.
 - (24) To seize a pledge for unpaid taxes.
 - (25) Sc. all the articles in it.
 - (26) Because, when searching the house for a pledge, they may have touched the various objects in it.
 - (27) In which case it might have been assumed that out of fear of him they would make a thorough search and, therefore, touch every article in the house.
 - (28) Var. lec. inserts, 'we did not enter; but they are not believed if they say'.
 - (29) V. Hag. 26a.
 - (30) Var. lec., 'and so if'.
 - (31) Who is considered as a zab.
 - (32) Who might well have been a menstruant.
 - (33) Since he or she may have touched all the objects in the house.
 - (34) Odiarin; Aliter: A bath-attendant, Heb. Odiarin. (Var. lec., oriarin), cf. Lat. olearius.
 - (35) Since no one would put his hands on them for fear of being suspected of stealing.
 - (36) The bath- attendant or the bath, keeper (cf. prev. n. but one) to the owner of the clothes. Aliter: The owner of the clothes to the bath-attendant or bath-keeper.
 - (37) Of the locker in which the clothes are kept.
 - (38) An Israelite who was engaged in the vintage of an idolater's vineyard to prepare wine under conditions of purity.

- (39) With the idolater
 (40) That were clean.
 (41) Some edd. read, 'with an idolater, his'.
 (42) Since the idolater would not dare to touch them for fear of spoiling his vintage.
 (43) Who was an 'am ha-arez and who is not so conscientious in this respect.
 (44) The 'am ha-arez.
 (45) Lit., 'there was in my heart'.
 (46) A priest.
 (47) The terumah. Aliter: He (the priest).
 (48) Despite the priest's lack of interest in it. Aliter: Despite his decision not to eat terumah.
 (49) The terumah. Aliter: Him (the priest).
 (50) Aliter. he.
 (51) Cf. prev. n. but one mut. mut.
 (52) Var. lec. 'R. Judah rules even'.
 (53) And consequently might have touched an unclean object without the man's awareness of it.
 (54) The loaves and the contents of the pot.
 (55) I.e., Philo. Var. lec. Piabi.
 (56) In the case of the poor man, however, R. Akiba agrees with the Sages.

Mishna - Mas. Taharoth Chapter 8

MISHNAH 1. IF A MAN WHO DWELT IN THE SAME COURTYARD WITH AN 'AM HA-AREZ FORGOT SOME VESSELS IN THE COURTYARD, EVEN THOUGH THEY WERE JARS WITH TIGHTLY FITTING COVERS, OR AN OVEN WITH A TIGHTLY FITTING COVER, THEY ARE DEEMED UNCLEAN.¹ R. JUDAH RULES THAT AN OVEN² IS CLEAN WHENEVER IT HAS A TIGHTLY FITTING COVER. R. JOSE RULED: AN OVEN ALSO IS DEEMED UNCLEAN UNLESS IT WAS PROVIDED WITH A SCREEN TEN HANDBREADTHS HIGH.³

MISHNAH 2. IF A MAN DEPOSITED VESSELS WITH AN 'AM HA-AREZ THEY ARE DEEMED TO BE UNCLEAN WITH CORPSE UNCLEANNESS⁴ AND WITH MIDRAS UNCLEANNESS.⁵ IF THE LATTER KNEW HIM⁶ TO BE A CONSUMER OF TERUMAH,⁷ THEY ARE FREE FROM CORPSE UNCLEANNESS⁸ BUT⁹ ARE UNCLEAN WITH MIDRAS UNCLEANNESS.¹⁰ R. JOSE RULED: IF THE MAN⁶ ENTRUSTED HIM¹, WITH A CHEST FULL OF CLOTHES, THEY ARE DEEMED TO BE UNCLEAN WITH MIDRAS WHEN THEY ARE TIGHTLY PACKED,¹¹ BUT IF THEY ARE NOT TIGHTLY PACKED THEY ARE ONLY DEEMED TO BE UNCLEAN WITH MIDDAF,¹² EVEN THOUGH THE KEY IS IN THE POSSESSION OF THE OWNER.¹³

MISHNAH 3. IF AN ARTICLE WAS LOST DURING THE DAY AND WAS FOUND ON THE SAME DAY IT REMAINS CLEAN.¹⁴ IF IT WAS LOST DURING DAYTIME AND FOUND IN THE NIGHT, OR IF IT WAS LOST IN THE NIGHT AND FOUND DURING THE DAY¹⁵ OR IF IT WAS LOST ON ONE DAY AND FOUND ON THE NEXT DAY, IT IS DEEMED TO BE UNCLEAN.¹⁶ THIS IS THE GENERAL RULE: PROVIDED A NIGHT OR PART OF A NIGHT HAS PASSED OVER IT IT IS DEEMED UNCLEAN. IF CLOTHES HAVE BEEN SPREAD OUT¹⁷ IN A PUBLIC DOMAIN, THEY REMAIN CLEAN;¹⁸ BUT IF IN A PRIVATE DOMAIN THEY ARE DEEMED UNCLEAN.¹⁹ IF, HOWEVER, ONE KEPT WATCH OVER THEM, THEY REMAIN CLEAN.²⁰ IF THEY FELL DOWN AND HE²¹ WENT TO BRING THEM, THEY ARE DEEMED UNCLEAN.²² IF A MAN'S BUCKET FELL INTO THE CISTERN OF AN 'AM HA-AREZ AND HE WENT TO BRING SOMETHING WHEREWITH TO DRAW IT UP, IT IS DEEMED UNCLEAN, SINCE IT WAS LEFT FOR A TIME IN THE DOMAIN OF AN 'AM HA-AREZ.

MISHNAH 4. IF A MAN LEFT HIS HOUSE OPEN AND FOUND IT OPEN,²³ OR CLOSED AND FOUND IT CLOSED,²⁴ OR OPEN²³ AND FOUND IT CLOSED, IT REMAINS CLEAN;²⁵ BUT IF HE LEFT IT CLOSED AND FOUND IT OPEN, R. MEIR RULES THAT IT IS DEEMED UNCLEAN,²⁶ AND THE SAGES RULE THAT IT REMAINS CLEAN,²⁷ SINCE, THOUGH THIEVES HAD BEEN THERE, THEY MAY HAVE CHANGED THEIR MIND²⁸ AND GONE AWAY.

MISHNAH 5. IF THE WIFE OF AN 'AM HA-AREZ ENTERED A HABER'S HOUSE²⁹ TO TAKE OUT HIS SON OR HIS DAUGHTER OR HIS CATTLE, THE HOUSE REMAINS CLEAN, SINCE SHE HAD ENTERED IT WITHOUT PERMISSION.³⁰

MISHNAH 6. A GENERAL RULE HAS BEEN LAID DOWN CONCERNING CLEAN FOODSTUFFS: WHATEVER IS DESIGNATED AS FOOD FOR HUMAN CONSUMPTION IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS UNLESS IT IS RENDERED UNFIT TO BE FOOD FOR A DOG; AND WHATEVER IS NOT DESIGNATED AS FOOD FOR HUMAN CONSUMPTION IS NOT SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS UNLESS IT IS DESIGNATED FOR HUMAN CONSUMPTION. FOR INSTANCE? IF³¹ A PIGEON FELL INTO A WINE-PRESS³² AND ONE INTENDED TO PICK IT OUT FOR AN IDOLATER,³³ IT BECOMES SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS; BUT IF HE INTENDED IT FOR A DOG IT IS NOT SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS. R. JOHANAN B. NURI RULES THAT IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS. IF A DEAF MUTE, AN IMBECILE OR A MINOR INTENDED IT AS FOOD,³⁴ IT REMAINS INSUSCEPTIBLE; BUT IF THEY PICKED IT UP³⁴ IT BECOMES SUSCEPTIBLE; SINCE ONLY AN ACT OF THEIRS³⁵ IS EFFECTIVE WHILE THEIR INTENTION IS OF NO CONSEQUENCE.

MISHNAH 7. THE OUTER PARTS OF VESSELS THAT HAVE CONTRACTED UNCLEANNESS FROM LIQUIDS, R. ELIEZER RULED, CONVEY UNCLEANNESS TO LIQUIDS³⁶ BUT³⁷ DO NOT RENDER FOODSTUFFS UNFIT.³⁸ R. JOSHUA RULED: THEY CONVEY UNCLEANNESS TO LIQUIDS³⁶ AND ALSO RENDER FOODSTUFFS³⁹ UNFIT. SIMEON THE BROTHER OF AZARIAH⁴⁰ RULED: THEY DO NEITHER THE ONE NOT THE OTHER,⁴¹ BUT LIQUIDS THAT CONTRACTED UNCLEANNESS FROM THE OUTER PARTS OF VESSELS CONVEY UNCLEANNESS⁴² AT ONE REMOVE AND CAUSE UNFITNESS AT A SECOND REMOVE.⁴³ IT⁴⁴ MAY THUS SAY,⁴⁵ 'THEY⁴⁶ THAT RENDERED YOU UNCLEAR DID NOT RENDER ME UNCLEAR BUT YOU HAVE RENDERED ME UNCLEAR'.

MISHNAH 8. IF A KNEADING TROUGH WAS SLOPING DOWNWARDS AND THERE WAS DOUGH⁴⁷ IN THE HIGHER PART AND DRIPPING MOISTURE IN THE LOWER PART, THEN THREE PIECES⁴⁸ THAT JOINTLY MAKE UP THE BULK OF AN EGG⁴⁹ CANNOT⁵⁰ BE COMBINED TOGETHER,⁵¹ BUT TWO⁵² ARE COMBINED.⁵³ R. JOSE RULED: THE TWO ALSO CANNOT BE COMBINED UNLESS THEY COMPRESS LIQUID BETWEEN THEM.⁵⁴ IF THE LIQUID, HOWEVER, WAS LEVEL,⁵⁵ EVEN THOUGH THE PIECE RESEMBLED MUSTARD SEED⁵⁶ THEY⁵⁷ ARE COMBINED TOGETHER.⁵³ R. DOSA RULED: CRUMBLLED FOOD CANNOT BE COMBINED TOGETHER.⁵³

MISHNAH 9. IF A STICK IS COMPLETELY COVERED WITH UNCLEAR LIQUID⁵⁸ IT BECOMES CLEAN AS SOON AS IT⁵⁹ HAS TOUCHED THE [WATER IN THE] RITUAL BATH;⁶⁰ SO R. JOSHUA. BUT THE SAGES RULED: ONLY WHEN THE WHOLE OF IT⁶¹ IS IMMERSSED.⁶² A JET,⁶³ A SLOPE⁶⁴ OR DRIPPING MOISTURE⁶⁵ DOES NOT SERVE AS A CONNECTIVE⁶⁶ EITHER FOR UNCLEANNESS⁶⁷ OR FOR CLEANNESS.⁶⁸ A POOL OF WATER,⁶⁹ HOWEVER, SERVES AS A CONNECTIVE IN RESPECT BOTH OF UNCLEANNESS AND CLEANNES.

- (1) Since the jars may have been shifted by his menstruant wife (v. Glos. s. v. hesset). The oven, even if attached to the ground, is deemed unclean as a preventive measure against confusing what is detached from the ground (which is unclean) with what is attached.
- (2) Which is attached to the ground (cf. prev. n.) and is consequently immovable.
- (3) Which could serve as a reminder to the household of the 'am ha-arez to keep away from it.
- (4) Requiring sprinkling with the ashes of the red heifer on the third and the seventh day.
- (5) So that any man that carried them or was carried on them becomes unclean.
- (6) The depositor.
- (7) I.e., a priest.
- (8) It is assumed that the 'am ha-arez will keep away from the terumah if he suffers from corpse uncleanness.
- (9) If the vessels are suitable for midras.
- (10) For, though the man might take care to keep them in a condition of cleanness in respect of corpse uncleanness, he cannot be sure that his wife did not sit on them during her menstruation uncleanness. (11) The 'am ha-arez.
- (11) Since one sitting on the lid would exercise pressure on all the clothes.
- (12) A minor grade of uncleanness that can be conveyed to foodstuffs and liquids only.
- (13) Since shifting (hesset) is possible in a closed chest also.
- (14) Had any man touched it he would also have picked it up.
- (15) Sc. on the next day.
- (16) With midras. In the darkness of the night a menstruant or an idolater may have trodden on the lost article without being aware of it.
- (17) To dry.
- (18) As any other condition of doubt in a public domain which is deemed clean. There is no need to provide, as is the case with a lost article, against the possibility of midras, since people as a rule do not tread on clothes that are spread out to dry.
- (19) As is the rule with a condition of doubt in such a domain.
- (20) Even in a private domain. There is no need to consider the possibility of an occasional lapse.
- (21) Having lost sight of them.
- (22) They might have contracted an uncleanness while they were out of sight.
- (23) Finding it open, a thief would be afraid to enter, knowing as he does that the owner might at any moment return.
- (24) In which case it is unlikely that a thief has dared and managed to open it, to touch the objects within, and also to close it.
- (25) Cf. prev. two notes.
- (26) A thief having apparently been there.
- (27) If nothing had been stolen.
- (28) Before they touched anything in the house.
- (29) Without his permission.
- (30) Though it was for the owner's benefit, she is afraid to remain in it long enough to touch its contents.
- (31) With reference to the last clause.
- (32) Where it died and deteriorated and thus became unfit for human consumption.
- (33) Who does not mind eating the bird even in its deteriorated condition.
- (34) For an idolater's consumption.
- (35) In this case the picking out.
- (36) Even if the latter are unconsecrated.
- (37) Since their uncleanness is only Rabbinical.
- (38) Even if they were terumah.
- (39) Of terumah.
- (40) V. Zeb. 2a.
- (41) Sc. they neither convey uncleanness to unconsecrated liquids nor to foodstuffs or terumah.
- (42) To terumah.
- (43) If the terumah they have rendered unclean touched other terumah.

- (44) The terumah.
- (45) To the liquids from which it contracted the uncleanness.
- (46) The outer parts of the vessels.
- (47) That was unclean.
- (48) Two of which are on the dry part of the trough and one within the liquid, the middle one touching the upper piece and the lower piece while separating them from each other.
- (49) The prescribed minimum for conveying uncleanness.
- (50) On account of the two pieces that do not directly touch each other (cf. prev. n. but one).
- (51) To convey uncleanness to the liquid which in turn would have conveyed uncleanness to the trough.
- (52) Sc. the middle one and the one below it in the liquid, if together they make up the bulk of an egg.
- (53) To constitute the prescribed minimum.
- (54) Sc. they are so close to each other that the liquid between them seems to be compressed.
- (55) Lit., 'standing', the trough lying level and the pieces of unclean dough floating in the liquid.
- (56) Small and numerous but together making up the bulk of an egg.
- (57) On account of the liquid that forms a connecting link.
- (58) Water. The ruling does not apply to any other liquids.
- (59) Sc. only one end of it.
- (60) Though the remainder of the stick was outside the water. The water on the stick, which forms a slope, serves as a connective.
- (61) The stick.
- (62) Only then does the water on the stick become clean.
- (63) Of water.
- (64) Water running down an incline.
- (65) With which one touching it could not moisten another object.
- (66) Between the clean vessel from which it comes and the unclean one into which it descends.
- (67) If the jet of water, for instance, came from a clean vessel, that vessel remains clean though the jet descended into an unclean vessel.
- (68) As, for instance, in the case of the stick, if the lower end alone touched the ritual bath the stick remains unclean.
- (69) Lit., 'a marsh', a collection of standing water.

Mishna - Mas. Taharoth Chapter 9

MISHNAH 1. AT WHAT STAGE DO OLIVES¹ BECOME SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS?² WHEN THEY EXUDE THE MOISTURE [PRODUCED] BY [THEIR LYING IN] THE VAT³ BUT NOT THE ONE [PRODUCED WHILE THEY ARE STILL] IN THE BASKET.⁴ THIS IS ACCORDING TO THE VIEW OF BETH SHAMMAI. R. SIMEON RULED: THE MINIMUM TIME PRESCRIBED FOR PROPER EXUDATION⁵ IS THREE DAYS.⁶ BETH HILLEL RULED: AS SOON AS THREE OLIVES STICK TOGETHER.⁷ R. GAMALIEL RULED: AS SOON AS THEIR PREPARATION⁸ IS FINISHED;⁹ AND THE SAGES AGREE WITH HIS VIEW.

MISHNAH 2. IF A MAN HAD FINISHED THE GATHERING¹⁰ BUT INTENDED TO BUY SOME MORE,¹¹ OR IF HE HAD FINISHED BUYING BUT INTENDED TO BORROW¹² SOME MORE, OR IF¹³ A TIME OF MOURNING, A WEDDING FEAST OR SOME OTHER HINDRANCE BEFELL HIM¹⁴ THEN EVEN IF ZABS AND ZABAHS WALKED OVER THEM¹⁵ THEY¹⁵ REMAIN CLEAN.¹⁶ IF ANY UNCLEAR LIQUIDS FELL UPON THEM,¹⁵ ONLY THE PLACE WHERE IT TOUCHED THEM BECOMES UNCLEAR,¹⁷ AND ANY SAP THAT ISSUES FORTH FROM THEM¹⁸ IS¹⁹ CLEAN.²⁰

MISHNAH 3. WHEN THEIR PREPARATION IS FINISHED THE¹⁵ BECOME SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS. IF AN UNCLEAR LIQUID FELL UPON THEM THEY²¹ BECOME UNCLEAR.²² THE SAP THAT ISSUES FROM THEM²³ R. ELIEZER RULES IS

CLEAN,²⁰ BUT THE SAGES²⁴ RULE THAT IT IS UNCLEAN. R. SIMEON STATED: THEY DID NOT DISPUTE THE RULING THAT SAP THAT ISSUES FROM OLIVES IS CLEAN; BUT ABOUT WHAT DID THEY DIFFER? ABOUT THAT WHICH COMES FROM THE VAT,²⁵ WHICH R. ELIEZER REGARDS AS CLEAN AND THE SAGES REGARD AS UNCLEAN.²⁶

MISHNAH 4. IF A MAN²⁷ HAD FINISHED [THE GATHERING OF HIS OLIVES] AND²⁸ PUT²⁹ ASIDE³⁰ ONE BASKETFUL, LET³¹ HIM GIVE IT TO A POOR³² PRIEST;³³ SO R. MEIR. R. JUDAH RULED: HE³⁴ MUST HAND HIM³⁵ OVER THE KEY FORTHWITH.³⁶ R. SIMEON RULED:³⁷ WITHIN TWENTY-FOUR HOURS.

MISHNAH 5. IF A MAN PUT HIS OLIVES IN A BASKET³⁸ , THAT THEY MIGHT BE SOFTENED SO THAT THEY BE EASY TO PRESS, THEY BECOME SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS;³⁹ BUT IF TO BE SOFTENED SO THAT THEY MAY BE SALTED⁴⁰ BETH SHAMMAI RULED: THEY BECOME SUSCEPTIBLE. BETH HILLEL RULED: THEY DO NOT BECOME SUSCEPTIBLE.⁴¹ IF A MAN CRUSHED OLIVES⁴² WITH UNWASHED⁴³ HANDS⁴⁴ HE CAUSES THEM TO BE UNCLEAN.⁴⁵

MISHNAH 6. IF A MAN PUT HIS OLIVES ON A ROOF TO DRY, EVEN THOUGH THEY ARE PILED UP TO THE HEIGHT OF A CUBIT,⁴⁶ THEY DO NOT BECOME⁴⁷ SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS.⁴⁸ IF HE PUT THEM IN THE HOUSE TO PUTRIFY, THOUGH HE INTENDS TO TAKE THEM UP ON THE ROOF,⁴⁹ OR IF HE PUT THEM ON THE ROOF THAT THEY MIGHT OPEN SO THAT THEY COULD BE SALTED,⁵⁰ THEY BECOME SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS. IF HE PUT THEM IN THE HOUSE WHILE HE SECURED⁵¹ HIS ROOF⁵² OR UNTIL HE COULD TAKE THEM ELSEWHERE,⁵³ THEY DO NOT BECOME SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS.⁴⁸

MISHNAH 7. IF THE MAN DESIRED TO TAKE FROM THEM⁵⁴ [A QUANTITY SUFFICIENT FOR] ONE PRESSING OR FOR TWO PRESSINGS,⁵⁵ BETH SHAMMAI RULED: HE MAY TAKE OFF [WHAT HE REQUIRES] IN A CONDITION OF UNCLEANNESS⁵⁶ , BUT MUST COVER UP [WHAT HE TAKES] IN A CONDITION OF CLEANNESS.⁵⁷ BETH HILLEL RULED: HE MAY ALSO COVER IT UP IN A CONDITION OF UNCLEANNESS.⁵⁸ R. JOSE RULED: HE MAY⁵⁹ DIG OUT [WHAT HE REQUIRES] WITH METAL AXES⁶⁰ AND CARRY IT TO THE PRESS IN A CONDITION OF UNCLEANNESS.⁶¹

MISHNAH 8. IF A [DEAD] CREEPING THING WAS FOUND IN THE MILLING STONES,⁶² ONLY THE PLACE THAT IT HAS TOUCHED BECOMES UNCLEAN; BUT IF THE MOISTURE WAS RUNNING,⁶³ ALL BECOMES UNCLEAN.⁶⁴ IF IT⁶⁵ WAS FOUND ON THE LEAVES,⁶⁶ THE OLIVE-PRESS MEN⁶⁷ SHALL BE ASKED⁶⁸ WHETHER THEY CAN SAY, 'WE DID NOT TOUCH IT'. IF IT⁶⁵ TOUCHED THE MASS [OF OLIVES], EVEN BY AS LITTLE AS THE BULK OF A BARLEY GRAIN, [THE MASS BECOMES] UNCLEAN.

MISHNAH 9. IF IT⁶⁵ WAS FOUND ON BROKEN OFF PIECES⁶⁹ BUT IT TOUCHED AS MUCH AS AN EGGS BULK,⁷⁰ [THE ENTIRE MASS] BECOMES UNCLEAN.⁷¹ IF IT WAS FOUND ON SEVERED PIECES THAT LAY UPON OTHER SEVERED PIECES,⁷² EVEN THOUGH IT TOUCHED⁷³ AS MUCH AS AN EGG'S BULK⁷⁰ ONLY THE PLACE⁷³ IT TOUCHED BECOMES UNCLEAN.⁷⁴ IF IT⁶⁵ WAS FOUND BETWEEN THE WALL AND THE OLIVES, THE LATTER REMAIN CLEAN.⁷⁵ IF IT WAS FOUND [ON OLIVES⁷⁶ THAT WERE LYING] ON THE ROOF [OF THE VAT],⁷⁷ [THE OLIVES IN] THE VAT REMAIN CLEAN.⁷⁵ IF IT⁶⁵ WAS FOUND IN THE VAT, [THE OLIVES ON] THE ROOF⁷⁶ ARE [ALSO] REGARDED AS UNCLEAN.⁷⁸ IF IT⁶⁵ WAS FOUND BURNT⁷⁹ UPON THE OLIVES, AND SO ALSO IN THE CASE OF A RAG⁸⁰ THAT WAS SCORCHED,⁸¹ [THE OLIVES REMAIN] CLEAN, BECAUSE ALL CASES OF UNCLEANNESS ARE DETERMINED IN ACCORDANCE WITH THEIR

APPEARANCE AT THE TIME THEY ARE FOUND.⁸²

- (1) That are intended for the manufacture of oil.
- (2) On account of the moisture they exude.
- (3) This liquid being desired and welcomed by the owner is, like all liquids that are deliberately put on foodstuffs or whose presence on the food is desired, capable of rendering the olives susceptible to uncleanness, v. Maksh. I, 1.
- (4) In which the olives are gathered and the moisture in which runs to waste through its holes. Such moisture is useless to the owner and, therefore, undesired by him (cf. prev. n.).
- (5) Before which time the moisture cannot be regarded as valid oil.
- (6) Only after the third day can the moisture be regarded as oil and thus render the olives susceptible to uncleanness. Seven kinds of liquids, of which oil is one, are capable of imparting such susceptibility to foodstuffs.
- (7) In the vat, owing to the moisture exuded.
- (8) Lit., 'their work'.
- (9) Sc. when no more olives are to be added to the batch of olives finally harvested and ready to be placed in the vat. It is then that exudation is desired and it is, therefore, then that the liquid is capable of rendering the olives susceptible to uncleanness.
- (10) Of his olives, from the tree.
- (11) To add to those in the vat; in consequence of which the exudation of the first batch is unwelcome, since by the time the second batch would begin to exude the first would be too soft and spoilt.
- (12) Var. lec. 'to gather'. Cf. prev. n.
- (13) Before he completed the packing of the vat.
- (14) So that he is compelled to complete the packing later, and the exudation of the first batch is consequently unwelcome to him (cf. prev. n. but two).
- (15) The olives.
- (16) Since the liquid, as stated supra, was undesired and, therefore, incapable of rendering the olives susceptible.
- (17) Because only that place that has been touched by the liquid has been rendered by it susceptible to uncleanness as well as unclean simultaneously.
- (18) Before the packing has been completed.
- (19) Since it is unwelcome.
- (20) Sc. it neither causes the olives to be susceptible to uncleanness nor does it itself contract any uncleanness.
- (21) Even the olives that have not been directly touched by the liquid.
- (22) Since the unclean liquid is mixed up with their sap.
- (23) Which, according to R. Eliezer, is no proper oil and cannot, therefore, be classed among the seven liquids that render foodstuffs susceptible to uncleanness.
- (24) Regarding the sap as one of the liquids that may cause susceptibility to the uncleanness of foodstuffs.
- (25) After the good oil had been removed.
- (26) Since some particles of good oil must remain in it.
- (27) Who was an 'am ha-arez and who, after the season of gathering, is not trusted to keep his olives in conditions of cleanness.
- (28) In order that it may not become susceptible to uncleanness like the others.
- (29) Var. lec. 'let him put'.
- (30) To keep it in conditions of cleanness so that terumah for the priest may be taken from it.
- (31) Var. lec., 'and let'.
- (32) Var. lec., 'in the presence of a'. The reading 'poor' does not exclude a wealthy priest; but the scanty terumah given after the season is usually allotted to a poor priest.
- (33) Who must himself press out the oil and take off the terumah under conditions of certain cleanness.
- (34) Who was an 'am ha-arez and who, after the season of gathering, is not trusted to keep his olives in conditions of cleanness.
- (35) The priest.
- (36) Sc. the same day on which the gathering of his olives had been finished; thus making sure that no uncleanness whatsoever could be conveyed to them.
- (37) With reference to the time within which the key must be given to the priest.

- (38) Var. lec., 'press'.
- (39) Owing to the exuding moisture which was welcomed by him.
- (40) And eaten in that condition.
- (41) Since the exuding moisture is not welcomed, the owner preferring it to remain in the olives.
- (42) Of terumah.
- (43) Lit., 'unclean'.
- (44) Which, unless washed, are always deemed to be unclean in the second grade and to convey invalidity to terumah and first grade uncleanness to liquids.
- (45) As the exuding moisture is welcomed by him it renders the olives susceptible to uncleanness and also unclean in the second grade, since the moisture that becomes unclean in the first grade conveys to the olives an uncleanness of the second grade.
- (46) So that the weight of the upper olives inevitably presses down on the lower ones and causes exudation.
- (47) Var. lec., 'behold they are'.
- (48) Since the exuding moisture is not welcomed, the owner preferring it to remain in the olives.
- (49) To dry.
- (50) Var. lec., 'that they might putrify or open'.
- (51) Aliter: While he prepares a watchman's hut on.
- (52) Where they are subsequently to be taken to dry.
- (53) Cf. prev. n.
- (54) The mass of olives that are not yet susceptible to uncleanness.
- (55) Sc. he is not taking the entire batch to which he intends to add some more olives.
- (56) And it nevertheless remains clean, since the olives are still insusceptible to uncleanness.
- (57) Since its separation from the mass constitutes the completion of its preparation for the olive-press and the exuding moisture renders it susceptible to uncleanness.
- (58) So long as the greater part of the mass remains in the basket incomplete.
- (59) Even when moving the entire mass.
- (60) Though such axes are subject to many restrictions of uncleanness.
- (61) In his opinion the olives remain insusceptible to uncleanness until the actual pressing had begun.
- (62) Of olives.
- (63) Thus connecting the creeping thing with the mass of olives.
- (64) From contact with the moisture that contracted uncleanness from the creeping thing.
- (65) The creeping thing.
- (66) That cover up the olives, and that are insusceptible to uncleanness.
- (67) Though they belong to the class of the 'am ha-arez.
- (68) Since in this matter even the word of an 'am ha-arez may be relied upon.
- (69) Of the main mass of olives, each piece being less than egg's bulk and lying on the main mass.
- (70) Made up of the broken off pieces.
- (71) On account of its contact with the egg's bulk of the small pieces that contracted uncleanness from the creeping thing.
- (72) The former being separated from the main mass by the latter.
- (73) Of the upper pieces.
- (74) The lower pieces remain clean since each in turn only touched an unclean piece above it that was smaller than the prescribed minimum. The pieces are not combined to constitute the required bulk.
- (75) It being assumed that it had never touched them.
- (76) Taken from the vat.
- (77) To dry.
- (78) As these olives were once in the vat it is assumed that the creeping thing was there with them before they were taken up to the roof.
- (79) When it no longer conveys any uncleanness.
- (80) Of a zab.
- (81) V. p. 408, n. 18.
- (82) Hence it is assumed that the creeping thing or the scorched rag was in that condition during all the time that it lay on the olives.

Mishna - Mas. Taharoth Chapter 10

MISHNAH 1. IF A MAN LOCKED IN THE LABOURERS¹ IN THE OLIVE-PRESS² AND THERE WERE OBJECTS THEREIN SUFFERING MIDRAS UNCLEANNESS, R. MEIR RULED: THE OLIVE-PRESS IS DEEMED TO BE UNCLEAR.³ R. JUDAH RULED: THE OLIVE-PRESS REMAINS CLEAN.⁴ R. SIMEON RULED: IF THEY⁵ REGARD THEM⁶ AS CLEAN, THE OLIVE-PRESS IS DEEMED UNCLEAR;⁷ BUT IF THEY REGARD THEM AS UNCLEAR,⁸ THE OLIVE-PRESS REMAINS CLEAN. SAID R. JOSE: WHY INDEED IS UNCLEANNESS IMPOSED?⁹ ONLY BECAUSE THE 'AM HA-AREZ CLASS¹⁰ ARE NOT VERSED IN THE LAWS OF HESSET.¹¹

MISHNAH 2. IF THE LABOURERS IN AN OLIVE-PRESS¹² WENT IN AND OUT,¹³ AND IN THE OLIVE-PRESS¹⁴ THERE WAS UNCLEAR LIQUID, THE LABOURERS REMAIN CLEAN IF THERE IS SPACE ENOUGH BETWEEN THE LIQUID AND THE OLIVES FOR THEIR FEET TO BE DRIED¹⁵ ON THE GROUND.¹⁶ IF AN UNCLEANNESS WAS FOUND IN A FRONT OF LABOURERS¹⁷ IN THE OLIVE-PRESS OR GRAPE HARVESTERS,¹⁷ THEY ARE BELIEVED IF THEY DECLARE, 'WE HAVE NOT TOUCHED IT'; AND THE SAME LAW APPLIES ALSO TO THE YOUNG CHILDREN¹⁸ AMONG THEM.¹⁹ THEY²⁰ MAY, FURTHERMORE, GO OUTSIDE THE DOOR OF THE OLIVE-PRESS AND RELIEVE THEMSELVES BEHIND THE WALL, AND STILL BE DEEMED CLEAN. HOW FAR MAY THEY GO AND STILL BE DEEMED CLEAN? AS FAR AS THEY CAN BE SEEN.²¹

MISHNAH 3. IF THE LABOURERS IN THE OLIVE-PRESS OR THE GRAPE HARVESTERS WERE ONLY BROUGHT WITHIN THE PRECINCTS OF THE CAVERN²² IT SUFFICES;²³ SO R. MEIR. R. JOSE RULED: IT IS NECESSARY THAT ONE²⁴ SHOULD STAND OVER THEM UNTIL IMMERSION IS PERFORMED.²⁵ R. SIMEON RULED: IF THEY REGARD THE VESSELS AS CLEAN, ONE MUST STAND OVER THEM UNTIL THEIR IMMERSION IS PERFORMED; BUT IF THEY REGARD THEM AS UNCLEAR, IT IS NOT NECESSARY FOR ONE TO STAND OVER THEM UNTIL IMMERSION IS PERFORMED.

MISHNAH 4. IF A MAN DESIRES TO PUT GRAPES [INTO THE WINE-PRESS] FROM THE BASKETS OR FROM WHAT WAS SPREAD OUT ON THE GROUND, BETH SHAMMAI RULED: HE MUST PUT THEM IN WITH CLEAN HANDS, FOR IF HE PUTS THEM IN WITH UNCLEAR HANDS HE RENDERS THEM UNCLEAR.²⁶ BETH HILLEL RULED: HE MAY PUT THEM IN WITH UNCLEAR HANDS AND YET HE MAY SET ASIDE HIS TERUMAH IN A CONDITION OF CLEANNESS.²⁷ [IF THEY ARE TAKEN] FROM THE GRAPE-BASKET²⁸ OR FROM WHAT WAS SPREAD OUT ON LEAVES,²⁹ ALL AGREE THAT THEY MUST BE PUT IN WITH CLEAN HANDS, FOR IF THEY ARE PUT IN WITH UNCLEAR HANDS THEY BECOME UNCLEAR.

MISHNAH 5. IF A MAN EATS GRAPES OUT OF THE BASKETS OR FROM WHAT IS SPREAD OUT ON THE GROUND, EVEN THOUGH THEY WERE BURST AND DRIPPED INTO THE WINE-PRESS, THE WINE-PRESS REMAINS CLEAN.²⁷ IF HE EATS THE GRAPES OUT OF THE GRAPE-BASKET²⁸ OR FROM WHAT WAS SPREAD OUT ON LEAVES, AND A SINGLE BERRY DROPPED INTO THE VAT, IF IT HAS A SEAL³⁰ ALL IN THE VAT REMAINS CLEAN;³¹ BUT IF IT HAS NO SEAL, ALL IN THE VAT BECOMES UNCLEAR.³² IF HE DROPPED³³ SOME OF THE GRAPES³⁴ AND TROD THEM³⁵ IN AN EMPTY PART OF THE WINE-PRESS,³⁶ THE CONTENTS OF THE LATTER REMAIN CLEAN IF THE BULK OF THE GRAPES WAS EXACTLY THAT OF AN EGG;³⁷ BUT IF IT WAS MORE THAN THE BULK OF AN EGG, THE CONTENTS BECOME UNCLEAR, FOR SO SOON AS THE FIRST DROP ISSUED IT CONTRACTED UNCLEANNESS FROM THE REMAINDER WHOSE BULK IS THAT OF AN EGG.

MISHNAH 6. IF A MAN³⁸ WAS STANDING AND SPEAKING BY THE EDGE OF THE CISTERN³⁹ AND SOME SPITTLE⁴⁰ SPIRTED FROM HIS MOUTH, AND THERE ARISES THE DOUBT WHETHER IT REACHED THE CISTERN OR NOT, THE CONDITION OF DOUBT IS REGARDED AS CLEAN.⁴¹

MISHNAH 7. IF THE CISTERN³⁹ IS EMPTIED OUT⁴² AND A [DEAD] CREEPING THING WAS FOUND IN THE FIRST JAR, ALL THE OTHER JARS ARE DEEMED UNCLEAR;⁴³ BUT IF IT WAS FOUND IN THE LAST, ONLY THAT ONE IS UNCLEAR BUT ALL THE OTHERS⁴⁴ REMAIN CLEAN.⁴⁵ WHEN DOES THIS APPLY? ONLY WHEN THE WINE IS DRAWN DIRECTLY WITH EACH JAR, BUT IF IT WAS DRAWN WITH A LADLING- JAR⁴⁶ AND A [DEAD] CREEPING THING WAS FOUND IN ONE OF THE JARS, IT ALONE⁴⁴ IS UNCLEAR.⁴⁵ WHEN DOES THIS APPLY? ONLY WHEN THE MAN EXAMINED [THE JAR AND THE LADLING-JAR]⁴⁷ BUT DID NOT⁴⁸ COVER UP [THE CISTERN AND THE JAR],⁴⁹ OR COVERED THEM UP BUT DID NOT EXAMINE THEM;⁵⁰ BUT IF HE BOTH EXAMINED THEM AND COVERED THEM UP AND A [DEAD] CREEPING THING WAS FOUND IN ONE JAR, ALL THE CONTENTS OF THE CISTERN⁵¹ ARE DEEMED UNCLEAR; IF IT WAS FOUND IN THE CISTERN, ALL ITS CONTENTS ARE DEEMED UNCLEAR AND IF IT WAS FOUND IN THE LADLING-JAR AL THE CONTENTS OF THE CISTERN⁵¹ ARE DEEMED UNCLEAR.

MISHNAH 8. [THE SPACE] BETWEEN THE ROLLERS⁵² AND [THE PILE OF] GRAPE SKINS IS REGARDED⁵³ AS A PUBLIC DOMAIN.⁵⁴ A VINEYARD IN FRONT OF THE GRAPE HARVESTERS⁵⁵ IS DEEMED⁵³ TO BE A PRIVATE DOMAIN⁵⁶ AND THAT WHICH IS BEHIND THE HARVESTERS⁵⁷ IS DEEMED⁵³ TO BE A PUBLIC DOMAIN.⁵⁸ WHEN DOES THIS LAW⁵⁹ APPLY? ONLY WHEN THE PUBLIC ENTER AT ONE END AND GO OUT AT THE OTHER.⁶⁰ THE IMPLEMENTS OF THE OLIVE-PRESS, THE WINE-PRESS AND THE BASKET-PRESS,⁶¹ IF THEY ARE OF WOOD, NEED ONLY BE DRIED⁶² WHEN⁶³ THEY BECOME CLEAN; BUT IF THEY ARE OF REED GRASS⁶⁴ THEY MUST BE LEFT UNUSED⁶⁵ FOR TWELVE MONTHS, OR THEY MUST BE SCALDED IN HOT WATER.⁶⁶ R. JOSE RULED: IT SUFFICES IF THEY ARE IMMERSUED⁶⁷ IN THE CURRENT OF THE RIVER.⁶⁸

(1) Who belonged to the 'am ha-arez class and who are usually careless in the observance of the laws of cleanness and uncleanness but for whose cleansing he had especially arranged.

(2) Thus making sure that they would not come out and contract any uncleanness from without and that no unclear person would get in and convey uncleanness.

(3) The 'am ha-arez, in his opinion, cannot be trusted to keep away from the unclear objects even in such circumstances.

(4) Having been made clean for the purpose the labourers may be relied upon to keep away from all possible uncleanness.

(5) The labourers.

(6) The unclear objects in the olive-press.

(7) Since they would not mind handling those objects and thus contract and convey uncleanness.

(8) In which case they would avoid them.

(9) In the case under discussion.

(10) Who, contrary to the view of R. Meir, are not suspected of being so careless as actually to touch an unclear object.

(11) V. Glos. And, shifting one of the objects even without directly touching it, would unknowingly contract and convey uncleanness.

(12) Who were free from uncleanness.

(13) Walking with their bare feet on the ground.

(14) On the floor.

- (15) Before they reached the olives.
- (16) In such a case the liquid which, having dried up, does not come in contact with the olives, cannot possibly convey any uncleanness to them, while the labourers themselves are not affected by the liquid which conveys no uncleanness to men.
- (17) V. p. 410, n. 12.
- (18) Who are presumed to be unclean on account of their contact with menstruants who do not refrain from embracing them.
- (19) Sc. they are believed if they declare that they have not touched the children.
- (20) Who belonged to the 'am ha-arez class and who are usually careless in the observance of the laws of uncleanness and cleanness but for whose cleansing one had especially arranged.
- (21) By the owner, from his position at the press.
- (22) Containing the ritual bath for their immersion or that of the vessels which they are going to use.
- (23) To regard them as clean, even if the owner did not witness the actual immersion.
- (24) Who is versed in the laws of immersion.
- (25) Since they themselves are not familiar with these laws.
- (26) Since unclean hands convey uncleanness to exuding liquid and the liquid in turn conveys uncleanness to the grapes.
- (27) The exuding liquid, in their opinion, does not render the grapes susceptible to uncleanness since in a basket or on the ground it runs to waste and is, therefore, undesired and unwelcomed.
- (28) Lined with pitch to prevent the waste of any liquid.
- (29) In which cases the liquid is not wasted and, therefore, welcomed.
- (30) Sc. its stalk was still on it sealing it up, so that no liquid would come forth.
- (31) For, though the berry became susceptible to uncleanness when it was cut with the intention of putting it in the wine-press and, in consequence, contracted uncleanness from the man's hands, it nevertheless cannot convey uncleanness to the contents of the vat since (a) a foodstuff cannot convey uncleanness to another foodstuff and (b) it is smaller than the prescribed minimum.
- (32) Since the liquid in the berry contracted uncleanness from the man's hands and, there being no prescribed minimum for liquids, it conveys uncleanness to the contents of the wine-press.
- (33) Into the wine-press.
- (34) Of those whose stalks were still on them, that were cut with the intention of being put into the wine-press, and that in consequence became susceptible to uncleanness and then contracted uncleanness from the hands.
- (35) To press the wine out.
- (36) Sc. one on which there was no liquid.
- (37) For, as soon as the first drop exudes, there remains less than the minimum prescribed for the conveyance of uncleanness.
- (38) An 'am ha-arez.
- (39) In which the wine is gathered.
- (40) Which is deemed unclean and, in accordance with a Rabbinical law, conveys uncleanness to foodstuffs and liquids.
- (41) As is the case with any other unclean object that is thrown through space.
- (42) With a number of jars in succession.

CHAPTER I

MISHNAH .¹ IN THREE PLACES THE PRIESTS KEEP WATCH IN THE TEMPLE,² IN THE CHAMBER OF ABTINAS,³ IN THE CHAMBER OF THE SPARK,⁴ AND IN THE FIRE CHAMBER.⁵ IN THE CHAMBER OF ABTINAS AND IN THE CHAMBER OF THE SPARK THERE WERE UPPER CHAMBERS WHERE THE YOUTHS⁶ KEPT WATCH. THE FIRE CHAMBER WAS VAULTED.⁷ IT WAS A LARGE ROOM SURROUNDED WITH STONE PROJECTIONS,⁸ AND THE ELDERS OF THE BETH AB⁹ USED TO SLEEP THERE,¹⁰ HAVING WITH THEM THE KEYS OF THE AZARAH. THE PRIESTLY NOVITIATES¹¹ USED TO PLACE EACH ONE HIS PILLOW¹² ON THE GROUND.¹³ THEY DID NOT SLEEP IN THEIR SACRED GARMENTS, BUT THEY USED TO TAKE THEM OFF [AND FOLD THEM]¹⁴ AND PLACE THEM UNDER THEIR HEADS AND COVER THEMSELVES WITH THEIR OWN ORDINARY CLOTHES. IF AN ACCIDENT¹⁵ HAPPENED TO ONE OF THEM, HE USED TO GO OUT AND TAKE HIS WAY

(1) In current editions the pagination of the Tractate begins with 25b in continuation of Kinnim which follows on the Tractate Me'ilah.

(2) Not that the Temple or its contents needing guarding, according to the belief of the Sages. but as a mark of honour.

(3) Abtinah (== E*) is mentioned elsewhere (Yoma, 38a) as the head of the family which had the secret of making the incense, and apparently it was made in this chamber, which was on the south-east of the Azarah, or altar court.

(4) The reason of this name is not known for certain. Asheri suggests that it was so called because it was open to the rays of the sun. Another suggestion is, because a glimpse of the altar fire could be caught from it.

(5) So called because a fire was kept burning in it for the benefit of the priests who had to minister barefooted on the stone floor and wearing only one linen garment. These two rooms were on the north-west of the Azarah.

(6) Who were not yet quite old enough to minister. They were, however, allowed to keep watch.

(7) For this reason it had no upper chamber over it.

(8) Which could serve as steps to mount the wall,

DOWN THE WINDING STAIR¹ WHICH WENT UNDER THE BIRAH,² AND WHICH WAS LIT BY LIGHTS ON EACH SIDE UNTIL HE REACHED THE BATHING PLACE. THERE WAS A FIRE CLOSE BY AND A SUPERIOR PRIVY. ITS SUPERIORITY LAY IN THIS: IF HE FOUND IT LOCKED, HE KNEW THERE WAS SOMEONE THERE; IF IT WAS OPEN, HE KNEW THERE WAS NO ONE THERE. HE WOULD GO DOWN AND BATHE AND THEN COME UP AND DRY HIMSELF AND WARM HIMSELF IN FRONT OF THE FIRE, AND THEN GO AND TAKE HIS SEAT NEXT TO HIS BROTHER PRIESTS UNTIL THE GATES WERE OPENED, WHEN HE WOULD TAKE HIS DEPARTURE.³ ANYONE WHO DESIRED TO REMOVE THE ASHES FROM THE ALTAR USED TO RISE EARLY AND BATHE BEFORE THE SUPERINTENDENT⁴ CAME. AT WHAT TIME DID THE SUPERINTENDENT COME? HE DID NOT ALWAYS COME AT THE SAME TIME; SOMETIMES HE CAME JUST AT COCK-CROW, SOMETIMES A LITTLE BEFORE OR A LITTLE AFTER. THE

SUPERINTENDENT WOULD COME AND KNOCK AND THEY WOULD OPEN FOR HIM, AND HE WOULD SAY TO THEM, LET ALL WHO HAVE BATHED COME AND DRAW LOTS. SO THEY DREW LOTS, AND ONE OR OTHER WAS SUCCESSFUL.⁵

GEMARA. Whence [in the Scripture] is this rule derived?⁶ — Abaye replied: Scripture says, And those that were to pitch before the tabernacle eastward, before the tent of meeting toward the sunrising, were Moses and Aaron and his sons, keeping the charge of the sanctuary, even the charge for the children of Israel.⁷ We say, Yes; we have found a basis for the rule of watching, and that it requires priests and Levites. But the Mishnah states:⁸ The priests keep watch in three places and the Levites in twenty-one; [furthermore] whereas Scripture places priests and Levites⁹ together the Mishnah places them separately. — We reply: What it means is this: ‘Those that were to pitch before the tabernacle eastward, before the tent of meeting toward the sunrising, were Moses’; and then, ‘Aaron and his sons keeping the charge of the sanctuary — Aaron in one place and his sons in two places.’¹⁰ Whence do you learn [that priests and Levites are separate]? — Because it is written ‘those that were to pitch’ and it is written ‘keeping’ which implies, that those who pitched and those who kept were separate. But I may still say that all [of those who kept] were in one place? — Do not imagine such a thing. Just as Moses was in one place by himself, so Aaron and his sons were each in one place by themselves. R. Ashi said: This can be learnt from the latter part of the verse, [from the words] keeping the charge . . . even the charge.¹¹

(1) Heb. mesibbah, something winding. Perhaps only a gangway is meant, not a stair.

(2) Lit., ‘palace’ or ‘fortress’, some part of the Temple buildings, the exact nature of which is not known. The word is sometimes used to designate the whole of the Temple, but it does not seem to have that meaning here. V. Yoma 2a.

(3) Because although he had bathed he did not become really clean and consequently not allowed to enter the Azarah, until sunset.

(4) Memunneh, lit., ‘the appointed one’, v. Sanh. (Sonc. ed.) p. 91, n. 11.

(5) Only one was required to remove the ashes.

(6) That the priests should keep watch.

(7) Num. III, 38. Moses here represents the Levites and Aaron the priests.

(8) Mid. ad init.

(9) Moses representing the Levites.

(10) This is a second lesson to be derived from the text.

(11) The repetition of the word ‘charge’ shows that the watching was to be in several places.

Talmud - Mas. Tamid 26b

In regard to the Chamber of Abtinas and the Chamber of the Spark, the question was asked in the Academy. Were they actually upper chambers¹ or were they perhaps simply raised like upper chambers?² — Come and hear; for we have learnt:³ In the north was the Chamber of the Spark, built like a veranda,⁴ and there was an upper chamber on top of it, and the priests kept watch above and the Levites below,⁵ and it had a doorway to the non-sacred part. Whence is this rule⁶ derived? — Because our Rabbis have taught: That they [the Levites] may be joined unto thee [Aaron] and minister unto thee.⁷ The text speaks of thy [Aaron's] service.⁸ You say, The text speaks of thy service. May it not perhaps be of their service?⁹ When it says, And they shall bejoined unto thee and keep the charge of the tent of meeting,¹⁰ this disposes of their service. What then do I make of That they may be joined unto thee and minister unto thee? The text must speak of thy service. How is this to be carried out? The priests watch above and the Levites below. THE FIRE CHAMBER WAS VAULTED AND IT WAS A LARGE ROOM. But was there only one watch kept in the Fire Chamber? This is opposed to [the following statement]: There were two gates in the Fire Chamber, one opening on to the Hel and one opening on to the Azarah. R. Judah said: In the doorway opening on to the Azarah there was a small wicket through which they used to go in to inspect the Azarah?¹¹ Abaye said: Since the gates were close to one another,¹² one watchman was sufficient, as he could glance from one to the other. [IT WAS] SURROUNDED WITH STONE PROJECTIONS. What were these projections? — They were the hewn slabs of the projections by which they used to climb up to the projections.¹³ But were there any hewn stones there, seeing that it is written, For the house when it was in building was built of stone made ready etc.?¹⁴ — Abaye replied: They were brought ready prepared. smaller stones and larger stones, as it says, Stones of ten cubits and stones of eight cubits.¹⁵ THE ELDERS OF THE BETH AB SLEPT THERE. Why so? Why could they not take in beds? — Abaye replied: It would not be respectful to take beds into the Temple. THE PRIESTLY NOVITIATES PUT EACH HIS PILLOW¹⁶ ON THE GROUND. Why are they first called ‘youths’ and then

(1) This seems to show that the proper reading in the Mishnah is not, In the Chamber of Abtinah . . . were upper stories, but The Chamber . . . were upper stories; v. Sh. Mek. on the Mishnah.

(2) The meaning of the question is, Did they have actual chambers below them, or were they simply raised some way above the ground, like upper chambers?

(3) Mid. ad init.

(4) Open on one or more sides.

(5) This shows that it was actually an upper chamber.

(6) That the priests watch above and the Levites below.

(12) Being both near the junction of the Azarah and the Hel in the eastern wall. Or perhaps he means that they exactly faced one another in opposite walls.

(13) The elders used to sleep on projections let into the wall, to which they climbed up by means of the slabs.

novitiates’? — They replied: That is quite right. In the first passage, which speaks of those who have not yet become qualified to minister,¹ they are called ‘youths’; in the second clause which speaks of those who have become qualified to minister, they are called ‘novitiates’. We have learnt elsewhere:² In three places the priests keep watch in the Temple — in the Chamber of Abtinah, in the Chamber of the Spark, and in the Fire Chamber, and the Levites in twenty one places — five at the five gates of the Temple Mount, four at its four corners, on the inside, five at the five gates of the Azarah and four at its four corners on the outside, one in the Offering Chamber, one in the Chamber of the Veil, and one behind the place of the Mercy Seat. On what Scriptural text was this practice based? — Rab Judah from Sura replied — according to others, it is taught in a Baraitha: Because it is written: Eastward were six Levites, northward four a day, southward four a day, and for the Storehouse [asuppim] two and two. For the Precinct [Parbar] westward four at the causeway and two at the Precinct.³ But, it was observed, that makes twenty-four? — Abaye replied: We must understand thus: For the two asuppim⁴ there were two. That still leaves twenty-two? — At the parbar there was properly only one watchman, and the other merely went and sat by him for company, because he was far outside.⁵ What is the meaning of parbar? — Rabbah, son of R. Shilah replied: It is as if one said, Towards the outside [clape bar]. If you like I can say that there were really twenty-four places, as stated in the text, three of them for priests and twenty-one for Levites. But the text says here ‘Levites’? This is explained by R. Joshua b. Levi; for R. Joshua b. Levi said: In twenty-four places

‘priests’ are called Levites, and this is one of them,⁶ viz., But the priests the Levites, the sons of Zadok.⁷ ‘Five at the five gates of the Temple Mount and four at its four corners on the inside, five at the five gates of the Azarah and four at its four corners on the outside’. Why in the case of the Temple Mount are they placed on the inside and in the case of the Azarah on the outside? — They replied: On the Temple Mount,⁸ if the watchman feels tired and wants to sit down, he may sit, and therefore he is placed on the inside, but in the Azarah, if he feels tired and wants to sit down he may not sit, since a Master has said that sitting is not allowed in the Azarah save only to kings of the House of David; therefore they are Placed on the outside. The Master said: ‘Five at the five gates of the Azarah’. Were there then only five gates in the Azarah? This seems to contradict the following:⁹ There were seven gates in the Azarah, three on the north, three on the south, and one on the east! — Abaye said: Two of them did not require to be watched.¹⁰ Raba said: There is a difference of Tannaim on this point, as it has been taught:¹¹ There must not be less than thirteen treasurers [attached to the Azarah] and seven supervisors. R. Nathan said: There must be not less than thirteen treasurers corresponding to the thirteen gates. Subtract five for the Temple Mount, and eight are left for the Azarah. We see therefore that there is a Tanna who says there were eight, and one who says there were seven, and one who says there were five. THEY DID NOT SLEEP IN THEIR SACRED GARMENTS etc. It was sleeping which was forbidden, but they used to walk about in them. You may infer from this that the priestly garments could be made general¹² use of! — It was replied: In fact walking about in them was also forbidden, and the reason why the Mishnah says simply that they did not sleep in them was because it was going to say subsequently, BUT THEY TAKE THEM OFF AND FOLD THEM AND PLACE THEM UNDER THEIR HEADS. Therefore it says in the first clause also THEY DID NOT SLEEP IN THEM. But your explanation itself involves a difficulty. THEY PLACE THEM UNDER THEIR HEADS: this shows that general use may be made of the priestly garments? — Read, Opposite their heads. R. Papa said: We may infer from this that it is allowed to place tefillin at one's side [when sleeping] and we are not afraid that perhaps one will roll over and fall on them. It is reasonable to suppose that what is meant is opposite the head. For if you say ‘under the head’ even granting that they may be made general use of, it should still be forbidden on the ground of mixed kinds.¹³

. This argument is valid for one who says that the girdle of the high priest was not the same as the girdle of the ordinary priest.¹ But if one holds that the girdle of the ordinary priest is the same as that of the high priest, what is there to say? And should you allege that mixed kinds are forbidden only for putting over and putting on, but there is no objection to folding them under one, has it not been taught: Neither shall there come upon thee [a garment of two kinds of stuff];² you may, however, spread it under you. The Sages, however, said that it is forbidden to do this, for fear that a thread may wind itself round his body. And should you argue that there is something separating, behold, R.

Simeon has said in the name of Joshua b. Levi who had it from R. Jose b. Saul in the name of the holy congregation in Jerusalem, that even if there are ten coverings one on top of another and mixed kinds under them, it is forbidden to sleep on them. We must then conclude that what is meant is opposite the head. Alternatively, I may say that the Mishnah speaks of those garments in which there are no mixed kinds. R. Ashi said: The priestly garments were hard;³ since R. Huna the son of R. Joshua said: This hard fabric made in Naresh⁴ is permitted.⁵ (Come and hear: It is forbidden to go out into the town in priestly garments, but it is permissible to walk about in them in the Temple whether at the time of service or otherwise, since the priestly garments may be made general use of. This is conclusive. But not in the town? Has it not been taught: 'On the twenty-first of this month is the day of Mount Gerizim on which it is forbidden to mourn, as we find in Yoma⁶ in the section 'The High priest used to come' etc. up to 'If you like I can say they are fit for the priestly garments'.⁶ Or if you like I can say 'When it is a time to act for the Lord they break Thy Law').⁷ IF AN ACCIDENT HAPPENED TO ONE OF THEM etc. This supports the view of R. Johanan who said that the subterranean passage possessed no sanctity, and that a baal keri⁸ is sent out of two camps.⁹ WITH LIGHTS BURNING ON EACH SIDE etc. R. Safra was once sitting in a privy when R. Abba came and gave a cough,¹⁰ whereupon R. Safra said, pray, enter, Sir. When he came out, R. Abba said to him: Though you have not got as far as a he-goat¹¹ you have learnt the manners of a he-goat. Have we not learnt as follows: IF HE FOUND IT LOCKED, HE KNEW THAT THERE WAS SOMEONE INSIDE? This was to signify that he ought not to have gone in.¹² R. Safra, however, thought that perhaps it would be dangerous for him to wait, as it has been taught: R. Simeon b. Gamaliel says: To hold back faeces brings on dropsy; to hold back urine brings on jaundice. Rab said to his son Hiyya — and so also said R. Huna to his son Raba — attend to your needs at nightfall and before daybreak,¹³ so that you shall not need to go a long way.¹⁴ Sit first and then Uncover, and cover first and then rise. Wipe [the cup] before drinking and wipe again before putting it down; and when you drink water, pour out some before giving [the cup] to your disciple,¹⁵ as it has been taught: A man should not drink water and hand [the cup] to his disciple unless he first pours some out. It happened once that a man drank some water and without pouring any out gave [the cup] to his disciple. The disciple was squeamish and did not like to drink, and he died of thirst. There and then they laid down a rule that a man should not drink and give [the cup] to his disciple without pouring some out. R. Ashi said: Consequently if a disciple pours out in front of his teacher, this shows no disrespect. Do not spit anything out in front of your teacher except pumpkin and leek, for they are like molten lead.¹⁶ We have learnt elsewhere:¹⁷ The officer of the Temple Mount used to go round to every watch with torches burning before him, and if any watchman did not rise and say, Officer,

I greet you, it was a proof that he was asleep,¹ and he would beat him with his stick. He was also permitted to burn his clothes. The others would say, What noise is that in the Azarah? It is the cry of a Levite who is being beaten and whose garments are being burnt because he was asleep at his post. R. Eliezer b. Jacob said: Once they found my mother's brother asleep and they burnt his clothes. R. Hiyya b. Abba said: When R. Johanan came to this Mishnah he used to say: Happy were the former generations who punished even for being overpowered by sleep; how much more then when there was no overpowering as of sleep!² It has been taught: Rabbi says: Which is a right way that a man should choose? Let him love reproof, since as long as there is reproof in the world ease of mind comes to the world, good and blessing come to the world, and evil departs from the world, as it says, But to them that are reproved shall come delight; and a good blessing shall come upon them.³ Some say: Let him have scrupulous honesty,⁴ as it says, Mine eyes are upon the faithful of the land that they may dwell with me,⁵ etc. R. Samuel b. Nahmani said in the name of R. Jonathan: Whoever reproves his neighbour for a purely religious motive⁶ is deemed worthy to be in the portion of the Holy One, blessed be He,⁷ as it says, He that rebuketh a man is after Me.⁸ Not only so, but a thread of favour shall twine about him, as it says, He shall find more favour than he that flattereth with the tongue.⁹ IF HE FOUND IT LOCKED HE KNEW etc. . . . WHOEVER WANTED TO REMOVE THE ASHES FROM THE ALTAR etc. This statement contains a contradiction. You say first: WHOEVER WANTS TO REMOVE THE ASHES FROM THE ALTAR RISES EARLY AND BATHES BEFORE THE SUPERINTENDENT COMES, which would show that the matter does not depend on drawing of lots, and then it states, LET HIM COME AND DRAW LOTS, which shows that it does depend on the casting of lots?—Abaye replied: There is no contradiction. The first statement refers to the period before the regulation, the second to the period after the regulation, as we have learnt:¹⁰ At first whoever desired to remove the ashes from the altar used to do so. When there were several of them they used to run and go up the Ascent¹¹ and whoever was first in the last four cubits had the privilege. If two were level, the superintendent said to them, put your fingers out. They put out the one or two fingers, but they did not put out the thumb in the Temple. It happened once that two were running level up the Ascent and one of them pushed the other and he broke his leg, and when the Beth din saw that they were endangering themselves, they ordained that the task of removing the ashes should be assigned only by lot. Raba said: Both statements refer to the period after the regulation, and what it means is this: Whoever wanted to come and draw lots used to rise early and bathe before the superintendent came. MISHNAH. HE TOOK THE KEY¹² AND OPENED THE SMALL DOOR AND WENT FROM THE FIRE CHAMBER INTO THE AZARAH, AND THE PRIESTS WENT IN AFTER HIM CARRYING TWO LIGHTED TORCHES. THEY DIVIDED INTO TWO GROUPS, ONE OF WHICH WENT ALONG THE PORTICO¹³ TO THE EAST, WHILE THE OTHER WENT ALONG IT TO THE WEST. THEY WENT ALONG INSPECTING¹⁴ UNTIL THEY CAME TO THE PLACE WHERE THE GRIDDLE-CAKES¹⁵ WERE MADE.¹⁶ THERE THE TWO GROUPS MET AND SAID, IS IT WELL? ALL IS WELL.¹⁷ THEY THEN APPOINTED HIM THAT MADE THE GRIDDLE-CAKES TO MAKE GRIDDLE-CAKES. THE ONE ON WHOM THE LOT HAD FALLEN TO CLEAR THE ASHES FROM THE ALTAR MADE READY TO DO SO. THEY SAID TO HIM: 'BE CAREFUL NOT TO TOUCH ANY VESSEL UNTIL YOU HAVE WASHED YOUR HANDS AND FEET FROM THE LAVER. SEE, THE FIREPAN IS IN THE CORNER BETWEEN THE ASCENT AND THE ALTAR ON THE WEST OF THE ASCENT'. NO ONE ENTERED WITH HIM,¹⁸ NOR DID HE CARRY ANY LIGHT¹⁹ BUT HE WALKED BY THE LIGHT OF THE ALTAR FIRE. OR HEARD A SOUND FROM HIM UNTIL THEY HEARD THE NOISE OF THE WOODEN MACHINE WHICH BEN KATIN MADE FOR HAULING UP THE LAVER,¹ WHEN THEY SAID, THE TIME HAS COME. HE WASHED HIS HANDS AND FEET FROM THE LAVER, THEN TOOK THE SILVER FIREPAN AND WENT UP TO THE TOP OF THE ALTAR AND CLEARED AWAY THE CINDERS² ON EITHER SIDE AND SCOOPED UP THE ASHES³ IN THE CENTRE. HE THEN DESCENDED AND WHEN HE REACHED THE PAVEMENT⁴ HE TURNED HIS FACE TO THE NORTH⁵ AND WENT ALONG THE EAST SIDE OF THE ASCENT FOR ABOUT TEN CUBITS, AND HE THEN MADE A HEAP OF THE CINDERS ON THE PAVEMENT THREE HANDBREADTHS AWAY FROM THE ASCENT, IN THE PLACE WHERE THEY USED TO PUT THE CROP OF THE BIRDS⁶ AND THE ASHES FROM THE INNER ALTAR⁷ AND THE ASH FROM THE CANDLESTICK. GEMARA. But were there porticoes in the Azarah? Has it not been taught: R. Eliezer b. Jacob says: Whence do we learn that porticoes [of wood] are not made in the Azarah? Because it says: Thou shalt not plant thee an Asherah or any kind of tree beside the altar of the Lord thy God,⁸ the meaning of which is this: Thou shalt not plant thee an Asherah; nor shalt thou plant thee any kind of tree beside the altar of the Lord thy God?-R. Hisda replied: [It is permitted] with porticoes of stone.⁹ THEY WENT ALONG INSPECTING. . . . TO MAKE GRIDDLE CAKES. This would imply that the griddle cakes were the first thing offered. But it has been taught: Whence do we know that nothing preceded the regular morning offering? It says: And he shall lay the burnt-offering in order upon it,¹⁰ and Rabbah said, 'the burnt-offering' [implies that] it goes up first?¹¹ Rab Judah replied: He is appointed to prepare hot water for the soaking.¹²

THE PRIEST WAS NEGLECTFUL¹ IN TAKING OUT THE ASHES.² THEY THEN BEGAN TO TAKE UP THE LOGS³ TO LAY THE FIRE. WERE ALL KINDS OF WOOD SUITABLE FOR THE FIRE? ALL KINDS OF WOOD WERE SUITABLE FOR THE FIRE EXCEPT VINE AND OLIVE WOOD. O WHAT THEY MOSTLY USED, HOWEVER, WERE BOUGHS OF FIG TREES AND OF NUT TREES AND OF OIL TREES: HE⁴ THEN ARRANGED THE GREAT PILE⁵ ON THE EAST SIDE OF THE ALTAR WITH ITS OPEN SIDE⁶ ON THE EAST,⁷ WHILE THE INNER ENDS OF THE [SELECTED] LOGS TOUCHED THE CENTRAL HEAP. SPACES WERE LEFT BETWEEN THE LOGS IN WHICH THEY KINDLED THE BRUSHWOOD.⁸ THEY PICKED OUT FROM THERE SOME SPECIALLY GOOD FIG-TREE BRANCHES AND WITH THESE HE LAID A SECOND FIRE FOR THE INCENSE⁹ NEAR THE SOUTH-WESTERN CORNER SOME FOUR CUBITS TO THE NORTH OF IT,¹⁰ USING AS MUCH WOOD AS HE JUDGED SUFFICIENT TO FORM FIVE SE'AHs OF CINDERS, AND ON SABBATH AS MUCH AS HE THOUGHT WOULD MAKE EIGHT SE'AHs OF CINDERS, BECAUSE FROM THERE THEY USED TO TAKE FIRE FOR THE TWO DISHES OF FRANKINCENSE FOR THE SHEW-BREAD. THE LIMBS AND THE PIECES OF FAT WHICH HAD NOT BEEN CONSUMED OVER NIGHT WERE PUT BACK ON THE WOOD WHICH HAD BEEN LAID.¹¹ THEY THEN KINDLED THE TWO FIRES AND DESCENDED AND WENT TO THE CHAMBER OF HEWN STONE.¹² GEMARA. Said Raba: This¹³ is an exaggeration. [Similarly with regard to the statement]. 'They made the beast for the daily offering drink from a gold cup'.¹⁴ Raba said: This is an exaggeration. R. Ammi said: The Torah used hyperbole, the prophets used hyperbole, the Sages used hyperbole. The Torah used hyperbole, as where it is written, The cities are great and fortified up to heaven.¹⁵ Up to heaven, think you? No; but it is an exaggeration. ‘The Sages Used hyperbole’, in the cases we have just mentioned — the heap and the giving the sacrifice beast to drink from a gold cup. ‘The prophets used hyperbole’, as it is written, And the people piped with pipes. . . . so that the earth rent with the sound of them.¹⁶ R. Jannai b. Nahmani said in the name of Samuel; In three places the Sages used the language of hyperbole, namely, in connection with the heap, the vine and the veil.¹⁷ This excludes the case cited by Raba, where we have learnt, ‘They made the beast for the daily sacrifice drink from a gold cup’, and Raba said, This is an exaggeration. This teaches us that this is true of the other cases, but not of this one, because in the abode of wealth no sign of poverty is allowed.¹⁸ [The exaggeration in the case of] the heap is as stated. In the case of the wine it is as has been taught:¹⁹ A gold vine used to stand at the door of the inner temple, trailed on poles, and anyone who offered a leaf

(1) I.e., if the ashes were left, it was not through neglect.

(2) Outside the camp, when there was a large quantity on the altar.

(3) Special large blocks of wood, well smoothed. (10) The reason is explained in the Gemara.

(4) The one who was chosen to clear away the ashes.

(5) So called by contrast with the other mentioned later.

(6) Lit., ‘transparency’. The open side from which it was touched, the other side was blocked by the central heap.

(7) So that there should be a draught from the door of the Azarah.

(8) To start the fire.

(9) I.e., to obtain coals for kindling the incense. For this it was reckoned a mark of respect to have a special fire.

(10) These five cubits of the altar faced the doorway of the Hekal, and could therefore be described as being ‘before the Lord’, and it was considered meritorious to obtain the coals for the incense from this space. The fifth cubit had to be used because four were taken up by the projections of the altar.

(11) It is not clear if this was before or after the daily offering was kindled.

(12) To cast further lots, half of this chamber being in unconsecrated ground. The Chamber of Hewn Stone was the Hall wherein the Great Sanhedrin used to sit. Schurer II, p. 264 identifies it with the Chamber ‘close to the Xystus’ on the western border of the Temple Mount, v. J. E. XII, 576.

(13) The statement that there were three hundred kor of ashes on the altar.

or a single grape or a cluster used to bring it and hang it thereon. Said R. Eleazar son of R. Zadok: On one occasion three hundred priests were commissioned to clear it. The case of the veil as has been taught:¹ We have learnt: R. Simeon b. Gamaliel says: The thickness of the veil² was a handbreadth. It was formed of seventy-two strands, and each was made up of twenty-four threads.³ Its length was forty cubits and its breadth was twenty cubits, and it was made by eighty-two young girls,⁴ and two were made every year,⁵ and it took three hundred priests to immerse it.⁶ THEY BEGAN TO TAKE UP THE LOGS TO LAY THE FIRE. . . . EXCEPT VINE AND OLIVE WOOD. Why were these excepted? — R. Papa said: Because they have knots.⁷ R. Aha b. Jacob said: Because of the amenities of the Land of Israel.⁸ The following was cited in objection [to R. papa]: upon the wood that is on the fire which is upon the altar;⁹ this implies wood which rapidly becomes fire.¹⁰ Which kind is that? Thin boughs like spits which do not form knots, that is, that do not become knotted inwardly.¹¹ Are all kinds of wood suitable for the altar fire? All kinds are suitable excepts olive and vine, but what were mostly used were boughs of fig trees and nut trees and oil trees. R. Eleazar adds [as not suitable]: also wood from the matish¹² and the oak and the date tree and the carob and sycamore. There is no difficulty here for the one who says that it is because they are knotted. The difference according to him is that one authority holds that although they are not knotted on the inside, yet since they are knotted on the outside we do not use them,¹³ while the other holds that since they are not knotted on the inside, although they are knotted on the outside we still bring them. But to the one who says, it is because of the amenities of the Land of Israel, we can object, does not the date tree contribute to the amenities of the Land of Israel? — He can reply to you: By the same reasoning does not the fig tree contribute to the amenities of the Land of Israel? But what do you answer to this? That we speak of a fig tree which does not produce fruit. Similarly we speak of a date tree which does not produce fruit. But are there fig trees which do not produce fruit? Yes, as stated by Rahabah. For Rahabah said: They bring white fig trees and scrape them with a rope of date tree bark on which seed is smeared,¹ and they are then planted in alluvial soil, and they produce trunks but no fruit, and three branches of one will break down a bridge. HE THEN ARRANGED THE GREAT PILE etc. What is the reason [for the opening]? R. Huna and R. Hisda [gave different reasons]. One said, it was in order that a draught might blow on it, the other said it was in order that they might kindle the brushwood from there. The following was cited in objection [to the latter opinion]: SPACES WERE LEFT BETWEEN THE LOGS IN WHICH THEY KINDLED THE BRUSHWOOD. He can reply: [Brushwood] was put in several places.²

MISHNAH. THE SUPERINTENDENT THEN SAID TO THEM: COME AND CAST LOTS, TO SEE WHO IS TO SLAUGHTER THE ANIMAL,³ AND WHO IS TO SPRINKLE THE BLOOD, AND WHO IS TO CLEAR THE ASHES FROM THE INNER ALTAR,⁴ AND WHO IS TO CLEAR THE ASH FROM THE CANDLESTICK, AND WHO IS TO LIFT THE LIMBS ON TO THE ASCENT, [NAMELY] THE HEAD, THE RIGHT LEG, THE BREAST AND THE NECK AND THE TWO FLANKS WITH THE ENTRAILS, ALSO THE FINE FLOUR⁵ AND THE GRIDDLE CAKES⁶ AND THE WINE.⁷ THEY CAST LOTS AND ONE OR OTHER WAS SUCCESSFUL. HE THEN SAID TO THEM: GO OUT AND SEE IF IT IS YET TIME FOR THE SLAUGHTER. IF IT ACTUALLY WAS TIME, THE OBSERVER⁸ SAID, THERE ARE FLASHES.⁹ MATTITHIA B. SAMUEL SAYS: [HE USED TO SAY]¹⁰ THE WHOLE OF THE EAST [OF THE SKY] HAS LIT UP. [THEY WOULD ASK] AS FAR AS HEBRON? AND HE [THE OBSERVER] WOULD ANSWER YES. HE SAID TO THEM, GO OUT AND BRING A LAMB FROM THE LAMBS CHAMBER. NOW THE LAMBS CHAMBER WAS IN THE

NORTH-WESTERN CORNER.¹¹ THERE WERE FOUR CHAMBERS THERE¹² — THE LAMBS' CHAMBER, THE CHAMBER OF THE SEALS,¹³ THE CHAMBER OF THE FIRE-ROOM¹⁴ AND THE CHAMBER WHERE THE SHEWBREAD WAS PREPARED. THEY WENT INTO THE CHAMBER OF THE VESSELS AND BROUGHT OUT FROM THERE NINETY-THREE VESSELS OF SILVER AND GOLD. THEY GAVE THE ANIMAL FOR THE DAILY SACRIFICE A DRINK FROM A CUP

OF GOLD.¹ ALTHOUGH IT HAD BEEN EXAMINED ON THE PREVIOUS EVENING IT WAS NOW EXAMINED AGAIN BY TORCHLIGHT. THOSE ON WHOM THE LOT HAD FALLEN TO CLEAR THE ASH FROM THE INNER ALTAR AND FROM THE CANDLESTICK WENT ON IN FRONT WITH FOUR VESSELS IN THEIR HANDS — THE TENI² AND THE KUZ³ AND TWO KEYS. THE TENI RESEMBLED A TIRKAB⁴ OF GOLD AND HELD TWO KABS AND A HALF. THE KUZ RESEMBLED A LARGE GOLD PITCHER. WITH ONE OF THE TWO KEYS HE HAD TO REACH DOWN AS FAR AS HIS ARMPIT⁵ AND WITH THE OTHER HE OPENED IN FRONT OF HIM.⁶ HE THEN CAME TO THE SMALL DOOR ON THE NORTH. THE GREAT GATE HAD TWO SMALL WICKETS LET IN, ONE ON THE NORTH AND ONE ON THE SOUTH. NO ONE EVER WENT IN BY THE DOOR ON THE SOUTH, IN ACCORDANCE WITH THE DISTINCT STATEMENT IN EZEKIEL, NAMELY, AND THE LORD SAID UNTO ME, THIS GATE SHALL BE CLOSED, IT SHALL NOT BE OPENED, AND NO MAN SHALL ENTER BY IT, FOR THE LORD GOD OF ISRAEL HAS ENTERED BY IT.⁷ HE TOOK THE KEY AND OPENED THE SMALL DOOR AND WENT IN TO THE APARTMENT⁸ AND FROM THE APARTMENT TO THE HEKAL, [WHICH HE TRAVERSED] UNTIL HE REACHED THE GREAT GATE. WHEN HE REACHED THE GREAT GATE HE DREW BACK THE BOLT AND THE LATCHES⁹ AND OPENED IT. THE SLAUGHTERER DID NOT KILL TILL HE HEARD THE SOUND OF THE GREAT GATE BEING OPENED. FROM JERICHO¹⁰ THEY HEARD THE SOUND OF THE GREAT GATE BEING OPENED. FROM JERICHO THEY HEARD THE SOUND OF THE 'SHOVEL'.¹¹ FROM JERICHO THEY HEARD THE SOUND OF THE SINGING [OF THE LEVITES].¹² FROM JERICHO THEY USED TO HEAR THE SOUND OF BEN ARZA CLASHING THE CYMBALS. FROM JERICHO THEY USED TO HEAR THE SOUND OF THE PIPES. FROM JERICHO THEY COULD HEAR THE VOICE OF GABIN THE HERALD.¹³ FROM JERICHO THEY HEARD THE NOISE OF THE WOODEN PULLEY WHICH BEN KATIN MADE FOR THE LAVER.¹⁴ FROM JERICHO THEY HEARD THE SOUND OF THE SINGING [OF THE LEVITES]. FROM JERICHO THEY HEARD THE SOUND OF THE SHOFAR;¹⁵ SOME SAY ALSO OF THE HIGH PRIEST WHEN HE PRONOUNCED THE DIVINE NAME ON THE DAY OF ATONEMENT. FROM JERICHO THEY COULD SMELL THE ODOUR OF THE COMPOUNDING OF INCENSE. R. ELEAZAR B. DIGLAI SAID: MY FATHER HAD SOME GOATS IN THE TOWNS OF MICHVAR,¹⁶ AND THEY USED TO SNEEZE FROM THE SMELL OF THE INCENSE. THE PRIEST WHO HAD BEEN CHOSEN TO KILL THE DAILY OFFERING TOOK IT ALONG WITH HIM TO THE SLAUGHTER HOUSE, ACCOMPANIED BY THOSE WHO HAD BEEN CHOSEN TO HAND UP THE LIMBS. THE SLAUGHTER HOUSE WAS TO THE NORTH OF THE ALTAR.¹⁷ BY IT WERE EIGHT DWARF PILLARS ON TOP OF WHICH WERE BLOCKS OF CEDAR WOOD, IN WHICH WERE FIXED HOOKS OF IRON, THREE ROWS IN EACH.¹⁸ THE ANIMALS WERE HUNG ON THESE AND FLAYED OVER TABLES OF MARBLE BETWEEN THE PILLARS. THE ONE WHO HAD BEEN CHOSEN FOR CLEARING THE INNER ALTAR WENT IN CARRYING THE TENI WHICH HE SET DOWN IN FRONT OF IT, AND HE SCOOPED UP THE ASH IN HIS FISTS AND PUT IT INSIDE, AND IN THE END HE SWEEPED UP WHAT WAS LEFT INTO IT, AND THEN HE LEFT IT THERE AND WENT OUT. THE ONE WHO HAD BEEN CHOSEN TO CLEAR THE CANDLESTICK WENT IN, AND IF HE FOUND THE TWO WESTERN LIGHTS BURNING,¹⁹ HE CLEARED THE ASH FROM THE REST AND LEFT THESE TWO BURNING. IF HE²⁰ FOUND THAT THESE TWO HAD GONE OUT, HE CLEARED AWAY THEIR ASH AND KINDLED THEM FROM THOSE WHICH WERE STILL ALIGHT AND THEN HE CLEARED THE ASH FROM THE REST. THERE WAS A STONE IN FRONT OF THE CANDLESTICK²¹ WITH THREE STEPS ON WHICH THE PRIEST STOOD IN ORDER TO TRIM THE LIGHTS. HE LEFT THE KUZ ON THE SECOND STEP AND WENT OUT.

CHAPTER IV

MISHNAH. THEY DID NOT USE TO TIE UP²² THE LAMB BUT THEY STRUNG ITS LEGS TOGETHER.²³ THOSE ON WHOM THE LOT FELL FOR THE LIMBS TOOK HOLD OF IT. IT WAS STRUNG UP IN SUCH A WAY THAT ITS HEAD WAS TO THE SOUTH WHILE ITS FACE WAS TURNED TO THE WEST,²⁴ AND THE SLAUGHTERER STOOD TO THE EAST OF IT WITH HIS FACE TURNED TO THE WEST. THE MORNING SACRIFICE WAS KILLED BY THE NORTH-WESTERN CORNER OF THE ALTAR AT THE SECOND RING,²⁵ WHILE THE EVENING SACRIFICE WAS KILLED BY THE NORTH-EASTERN CORNER AT THE SECOND RING. WHILE ONE SLAUGHTERED ANOTHER RECEIVED THE BLOOD. THE LATTER PROCEEDED TO THE NORTH-EASTERN CORNER²⁶ AND CAST THE BLOOD ON THE EASTERN AND NORTHERN SIDES; HE THEN PROCEEDED TO THE SOUTHWESTERN CORNER AND CAST THE BLOOD ON THE WESTERN AND SOUTHERN SIDES. THE REMNANT OF THE BLOOD HE POURED OUT AT THE SOUTHERN BASE OF THE ALTAR.

. HE DID NOT USE TO BREAK THE LEG,¹ BUT HE MADE A HOLE IN IT² AT THE JOINT AND SUSPENDED IT FROM THERE. HE THEN BEGAN TO FLAY IT AND WENT ON UNTIL HE CAME TO THE BREAST.³ WHEN HE CAME TO THE BREAST HE CUT OFF THE HEAD AND GAVE IT TO THE ONE TO WHOSE LOT IT HAD FALLEN. HE THEN CUT OFF THE LEGS AND GAVE THEM TO THE ONE TO WHOSE LOT THEY HAD FALLEN. ON COMPLETING THE Flaying HE TORE OUT THE HEART AND SQUEEZED OUT THE BLOOD IN IT.⁴ HE THEN CUT OFF THE FORE LEGS AND GAVE THEM TO THE ONE TO WHOSE LOT THEY HAD FALLEN. HE THEN WENT BACK TO THE RIGHT LEG AND CUT IT OFF AND GAVE IT TO THE ONE TO WHOSE LOT IT HAD FALLEN, AND THE TWO TESTICLES WITH IT. HE THEN TORE OPEN THE CARCASS SO THAT IT WAS ALL EXPOSED BEFORE HIM. HE TOOK THE FAT AND PUT IT ON TOP OF THE PLACE WHERE THE HEAD HAD BEEN SEVERED. HE TOOK THE INNARDS AND GAVE THEM TO THE ONE TO WHOSE LOT THEY HAD FALLEN TO WASH THEM. THE STOMACH WAS WASHED VERY THOROUGHLY IN THE WASHING CHAMBER, WHILE THE ENTRAILS WERE WASHED AT LEAST⁵ THREE TIMES ON MARBLE TABLES WHICH STOOD BETWEEN THE PILLARS.⁶ HE THEN TOOK A KNIFE AND SEPARATED THE LUNG FROM THE LIVER⁷ AND THE FINGER OF THE LIVER⁸ FROM THE LIVER,⁹ BUT WITHOUT REMOVING IT FROM ITS PLACE. HE HOLLOWED OUT THE BREAST¹⁰ AND GAVE IT TO THE ONE TO WHOSE LOT IT HAD FALLEN. HE CAME TO THE RIGHT FLANK AND CUT INTO IT AS FAR AS THE SPINE, WITHOUT HOWEVER TOUCHING THE SPINE, UNTIL HE CAME TO THE PLACE BETWEEN TWO SMALL RIBS. HE CUT IT OFF AND GAVE IT TO THE ONE TO WHOSE LOT IT HAD FALLEN, WITH THE LIVER ATTACHED TO IT. HE THEN CAME TO THE NECK, AND LEAVING TWO RIBS ON EACH SIDE OF IT¹¹ HE CUT IT OFF AND GAVE IT TO THE ONE TO WHOSE LOT IT HAD FALLEN, WITH THE WINDPIPE AND THE HEART AND THE LUNG ATTACHED TO IT. HE THEN CAME TO THE LEFT FLANK IN WHICH HE LEFT TWO THIN RIBS ABOVE AND TWO THIN RIBS BELOW;¹² AND HE HAD DONE SIMILARLY WITH THE OTHER FLANK. THUS HE LEFT TWO ON EACH SIDE ABOVE AND TWO ON EACH SIDE BELOW. HE CUT IT OFF AND GAVE IT TO THE ONE TO WHOSE LOT IT HAD FALLEN, AND THE SPINE WITH IT AND THE MILT ATTACHED TO IT. THIS WAS REALLY THE LARGEST PIECE, BUT THE RIGHT FLANK WAS CALLED THE LARGEST, BECAUSE THE LIVER WAS ATTACHED TO IT. HE THEN CAME TO THE

. THE FIRST HAD THE HEAD AND THE [RIGHT] HIND LEG. THE HEAD WAS IN HIS RIGHT HAND WITH ITS NOSE TOWARDS HIS ARM, ITS HORNS BETWEEN HIS FINGERS, AND THE PLACE WHERE IT WAS SEVERED TURNED UPWARDS WITH THE FAT COVERING IT. THE RIGHT LEG WAS IN HIS LEFT HAND WITH THE PLACE WHERE THE FLAYING COMMENCED AWAY FROM HIM.¹ THE SECOND HAD THE TWO FORE LEGS, THE RIGHT LEG IN HIS RIGHT HAND AND THE LEFT LEG IN HIS LEFT HAND, THE PLACE WHERE THE FLAYING COMMENCED BEING TURNED AWAY FROM HIM. THE THIRD HAD THE TAIL BONE AND THE OTHER HIND LEG, THE TAIL BONE IN HIS RIGHT HAND WITH THE TAIL HANGING BETWEEN HIS FINGERS AND THE FINGER OF THE LIVER AND THE TWO KIDNEYS WITH IT, AND THE LEFT HIND LEG IN HIS LEFT HAND WITH THE PLACE WHERE THE FLAYING COMMENCED AWAY FROM HIM. THE FOURTH HAD THE BREAST AND THE NECK, THE BREAST IN HIS RIGHT HAND AND THE NECK IN HIS LEFT HAND, ITS RIBS BEING BETWEEN TWO OF HIS FINGERS. THE FIFTH HAD THE TWO FLANKS, THE RIGHT ONE IN HIS RIGHT HAND, AND THE LEFT ONE IN HIS LEFT HAND, WITH THE PLACE WHERE THE FLAYING COMMENCED AWAY FROM HIM. THE SIXTH HAD THE INNARDS ON A PLATTER² WITH THE KNEES ON TOP OF THEM. THE SEVENTH HAD THE FINE FLOUR,³ THE EIGHTH THE GRIDDLE CAKES,⁴ THE NINTH THE WINE.⁵ THEY WENT AND PLACED THEM ON THE LOWER HALF OF THE ASCENT⁶ ON ITS WESTERN SIDE, AND SALTED THEM⁷ AND CAME DOWN AND WENT TO THE CHAMBER OF HEWN STONE TO RECITE THE SHEMA'.⁸ GEMARA. One taught: The fore leg and the hind leg [tied together] like the binding of Isaac the son of Abraham. THEY DID NOT TIE UP THE LAMB. What was the reason? — R. Huna and R. Hisda gave different answers. One said it was to avoid showing disrespect to holy things. while the other said it was to avoid walking in the statutes of the other peoples.⁹ What practical difference is there between them?¹⁰ — In the case where it was tied with silk or with gold thread.¹¹ We have learnt elsewhere:¹² There were thirteen tables in the Temple.¹³ There were eight of marble in the slaughter house on which they used to wash the innards; two to the west of the ascent, one of marble and one of silver — on the marble one they used to put the limbs and on the silver one vessels of service,¹⁴ two in the Porch on the inner side by the door of the Sanctuary, one of silver and one of gold — on the silver one they used to place the Shewbread when it was first brought in,¹⁵ and on the gold one when it was taken out, because with holy things we always go a step higher and not a step lower; and one of gold in the inner place on which the Shewbread always rested. Now let us see. There must be no sign of poverty in the abode of wealth.¹⁶ Why then was the table¹⁷ made of marble? It should have been made of silver or even of gold! R. Hinnena answered in the name of R. Assi, and R. Assi in the name of R. Samuel b. R. Isaac: Because [the metal] would heat the flesh.¹⁸ THE MORNING SACRIFICE WAS KILLED BY THE NORTHWESTERN CORNER [etc.]. Whence is derived this rule? — R. Hisda replied: Because Scriptures says. Two to the day,¹⁹ implying [that they should be killed] towards the day[light].²⁰ It has been taught to the same effect: Two to the day: this means, towards the day [light]. You say it means, towards the day[light]. Or perhaps it is not so, but it means, the obligation of each day? When the text says. The one lamb shalt thou offer in the morning and the other lamb shalt thou offer at dusk,²¹ this states the obligation of the day. What then do I make of the words Two to the day? This must mean, towards the day [light]. How is this effected? The morning daily sacrifice was killed by the north-western corner by the second ring, and the evening daily sacrifice by the north-eastern corner by the second ring.²² Alexander of Macedon put ten questions to the elders of the south country.²³ He asked:

- (1) I.e., exposed to the public, while the place where it was severed was in his hand.
 - (2) Being loose they could not be held in the hand.
 - (3) For the meal-offering.
 - (4) The daily offering of the High Priest, which was brought at the same time as the daily burnt-offering.
 - (5) For the drink-offering.
 - (6) The reason was apparently to make rather more ceremonious the actual bringing to the altar which took place later.
 - (7) In accordance with the injunction in Lev. II, 13.
 - (8) And pray for the acceptance of the sacrifice.
 - (9) Who used to bind their sacrifices in this way.
 - (10) Since each reason is in itself sufficient, why did not the later authority accept that given by the earlier?
 - (11) In this case there is no disrespect to holy things.
 - (12) Shek. 15b.

 - (22) V. supra at the beginning of the chapter and notes.
 - (23) This passage is inserted here because Alexander's first question had reference to the sun.

Talmud - Mas. Tamid 32a

Which is further, from heaven to earth or from east to west? They replied: From east to west. The proof is that when the sun is in the east all can look at it, and when it is in the west all can look at it, but when the sun is in the middle of the sky no — one can look at it.¹ The Sages, however, say: The distance in both cases is the same, as it says, For as the heaven is high above the earth [so great is His mercy towards them that fear Him]; as far as the east is from the west, [so far hath He removed our transgressions from us].² Now if one of these distances is greater, the text should not write both but only the one which is the greater. What then is the reason why no — one can look at the sun when it is in the middle of the sky? Because it is absolutely clear and nothing obstructs the view.³ He said to them: Were heavens created first or the earth? They replied: The heavens were created first, as it says. In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth.⁴ He said to them: Was light created first, or darkness? They replied: This question cannot be solved. Why did they not reply that darkness was created first, since it is written, Now the earth was unformed and void and darkness,⁵ and after that, And God said, Let there be light, and there was light?⁶ — They thought to themselves: perhaps he will go on to ask what is above and what is below, what is before and what is after.⁷ If that is the case, they should not have answered his question about the heaven either? — At first they thought that he just happened to ask that question, but when they saw that he pursued the same subject, they bethought themselves not to answer him lest he should go on to ask what was above and what was below what was before and what was after. He said to them: Who is called wise? They replied: Who is wise? He who discerns what is about to come to pass.⁸ He said to them: Who is called a mighty man? They replied: Who is a mighty man? He who subdues his evil passions. He said to them: Who is called a rich man? They replied: Who is rich? He who rejoices in his lot. He said to them: What shall a man do to live? They replied: Let him mortify himself.⁹ What should a man do to kill himself? They replied: Let him keep himself alive.¹⁰ He said to them: What should a man do to make himself popular? They replied: Let him hate sovereignty and authority. He said to them: I have a better answer than yours: let him love sovereignty and authority and confer favours on mankind. He said to them: Is it better to dwell on sea or on dry land? They replied, It is better to dwell on dry land, because those who set out to sea are never free from anxiety till they reach dry land again. He said to them: Which among you is the wisest? They replied: We are all equal, because we have all concurred in the same answers to your questions. He said to them: Why do you resist me?¹¹ They replied: The Satan is too powerful.¹² He said to them: Behold I will slay you by royal decree. They replied: power is in the hands of the king, but it beseems not a king to be false.¹³ Forthwith he clothed them with garments of purple and put chains of gold on their necks. He said to them: I want to go to the country of Africa. They said to him: You cannot get there, because the Mountains of Darkness are in the Way. He said to them: That will not stop me from going. Was it for that I asked you? But tell me what I am to do.¹⁴ They said to him: Take Libyan asses that can travel in the dark and take coils of rope and fix them at the side [of the road] so that when you return you can guide yourself by them and reach your destination. He did so and set forth. He came to a place where there were only women. He wanted to make war with them, but they said to him, If you slay us, people will say that he killed women, and if we slay you they will call you the king who was killed by women. He said to them: Bring me bread. They brought him gold bread on a gold table.

. He said to them: Do people here eat gold bread? They replied: If you wanted bread, had you no bread in your own place to eat that you should have journeyed here? When he left the place he wrote on the gate of the city: 'I, Alexander of Macedon, was a fool until I came to the city of women in Africa and I learnt counsel from the women'. As he was journeying he sat by a well and began to eat. He had with him some salted fish, and as they were being washed they gave off a sweet odour. He said: This shows that this well comes from the Garden of Eden. Some say that he took some of the water and washed his face with it; others say that he went alongside of it until he came to the door of the Garden of Eden. He cried out, Open the door for me. They replied, This is the gate of the Lord, [the righteous shall enter into it].¹ He replied: I too am a king; I am also of some account, give me something. They gave him an eyeball. He went and weighed all his silver and gold against it, and it was not equal to it. He said to the Rabbis: How is this? They replied: It is the eyeball of a human being, which is never satisfied. He said to them: How can you prove that this is so? They took a little dust and covered it, and immediately it was weighed down; and so it is written, The nether world and Destruction are never satiated; [so the eyes of man are never satiated].² The Tanna de-be Eliyahu taught: Gehinnom is above the firmament; some, however, say that is behind the Mountains of Darkness. R. Hiyya taught: If one studies the Torah at night, the Divine presence faces him, as it says, Arise, cry out in the night, at the beginning of the watches; pour out thy heart like water before the face of the Lord.³ R. Eliezer b. Azariah said: The disciples of the wise increase peace in the world, as it says, And all thy children shall be taught of the Lord, and great shall be the peace of thy children.⁴ Read not banayik, [thy children], but bonayik [thy builders].

CHAPTER V

MISHNAH. THE SUPERINTENDENT SAID TO THEM, PRONOUNCE ONE BLESSING,⁵ AND THEY DID SO: THEY THEN RECITED THE TEN COMMANDMENTS,⁶ AND THE FIRST, SECOND AND THIRD SECTIONS OF THE SHEMA', AND THEY BLESSED THE PEOPLE WITH THREE BENEDICTIONS,⁷ NAMELY, TRUE AND FIRM,⁸ AND ABODAH,⁹ AND THE PRIESTLY BENEDICTION.¹⁰ ON SABBATH THEY ADDED A BENEDICTION TO BE SAID BY THE WATCH WHICH WAS LEAVING.¹¹

MISHNAH . HE SAID TO THEM, THOSE WHO ARE FRESH TO THE INCENSE COME AND DRAW LOTS,¹² AND ONE OR OTHER WAS SUCCESSFUL. HE THEN SAID, NEW AND OLD, COME AND DRAW LOTS TO SEE WHO SHALL TAKE UP THE LIMBS FROM THE ASCENT TO THE ALTAR.¹³ R. ELIEZER B. JACOB SAYS, THE ONE WHO LIFTS THE LIMBS ON TO THE ASCENT ALSO TAKES THEM UP TO THE ALTAR.¹⁴

HEAPED UP WITH INCENSE;¹ THIS HAD A COVERING, OVER WHICH WAS SPREAD A KIND OF JACKET.²

MISHNAH . THE ONE WHO HAD BEEN ASSIGNED THE SHOVELLING,³ TOOK THE SILVER FIREPAN AND ASCENDED TO THE TOP OF THE ALTAR AND CLEARED AWAY THE LIVE COALS TO THIS SIDE AND THAT [AND SWEEPED AWAY SOME OF THE ASH AT THE BOTTOM]⁴ AND THEN WENT DOWN AND EMPTIED THEM INTO A GOLD [FIREPAN]. ABOUT A KAB OF THE COALS WAS SPILT,⁵ AND THESE HE SWEEPED INTO THE SEWER⁶ , ON SABBATH⁷ HE USED TO PUT AN OVERTURNED POT⁸ ON THEM. THIS POT WAS A LARGE VESSEL HOLDING A LETHEK.⁹ IT HAD TWO CHAINS; WITH ONE HE USED TO DRAW IT DOWN,¹⁰ AND WITH THE OTHER HE USED TO HOLD IT ABOVE SO THAT IT SHOULD NOT ROLL OVER.¹¹ IT WAS USED FOR THREE PURPOSES — FOR PLACING OVER LIVE COALS, AND OVER A [DEAD] CREEPING THING ON SABBATH,¹² AND FOR DRAWING DOWN THE ASHES FROM THE TOP OF THE ALTAR.

MISHNAH . WHEN THEY¹³ CAME BETWEEN THE PORCH AND THE ALTAR, ONE TOOK THE 'SHOVEL'¹⁴ AND THREW IT BETWEEN THE PORCH AND THE ALTAR. PEOPLE COULD NOT HEAR ONE ANOTHER SPEAK IN JERUSALEM FROM THE NOISE OF THE SHOVEL. IT SERVED THREE PURPOSES. WHEN A PRIEST HEARD THE SOUND OF IT HE KNEW THAT HIS BROTHER PRIESTS WERE GOING IN TO PROSTRATE THEMSELVES,¹⁵ AND HE WOULD RUN TO JOIN THEM. WHEN A LEVITE HEARD THE NOISE OF IT HE KNEW THAT HIS BROTHER LEVITES WERE GOING IN TO CHANT,¹⁶ AND HE WOULD RUN TO JOIN THEM. AND THE HEAD OF THE MA'AMAD¹⁷ USED TO MAKE THE UNCLEAN STAND IN THE EAST GATE.¹⁸

MISHNAH . THEY¹⁹ COMMENCED TO ASCEND THE STEPS OF THE PORCH.²⁰ THOSE WHO HAD BEEN CHOSEN TO CLEAR THE ASHES FROM THE INNER ALTAR²¹ AND FROM THE CANDLESTICK LED THE WAY.²² THE ONE WHO HAD BEEN CHOSEN TO CLEAR THE INNER ALTAR WENT IN AND TOOK THE TENI AND PROSTRATED HIMSELF AND WENT OUT AGAIN. THE ONE WHO HAD BEEN CHOSEN TO CLEAR THE CANDLESTICK WENT IN, AND IF HE FOUND THE TWO WESTERN LIGHTS²³ STILL BURNING HE CLEARED OUT THE EASTERN ONE²⁴ AND LEFT THE WESTERN ONE

BURNING,²⁵ SINCE FROM IT HE LIT THE CANDLESTICK FOR THE EVENING. IF HE FOUND THAT THIS ONE HAD GONE OUT, HE CLEARED THE ASH AWAY AND LIT IT FROM THE ALTAR OF BURNT-OFFERING. HE THEN TOOK THE KUZ FROM THE SECOND STEP²⁶ AND PROSTRATED HIMSELF AND WENT OUT.

MISHNAH . THE ONE WHO HAD BEEN CHOSEN FOR THE FIREPAN MADE A HEAP OF THE CINDERS ON THE TOP OF THE ALTAR AND THEN SPREAD THEM ABOUT WITH THE END OF THE FIREPAN²⁷ AND PROSTRATED HIMSELF AND WENT OUT. MISHNAH. THE ONE WHO HAD BEEN CHOSEN FOR THE INCENSE TO OK THE DISH FROM THE MIDDLE OF THE SPOON AND GAVE IT²⁸ TO HIS FRIEND OR HIS RELATIVE. IF SOME OF IT WAS SPILT INTO THE SPOON, HE WOULD PUT IT INTO HIS HANDS. THEY USED TO INSTRUCT HIM²⁹ SAYING, BE CAREFUL NOT TO BEGIN IMMEDIATELY IN FRONT OF YOU OR ELSE YOU MAY BURN YOURSELF.³⁰ HE THEN COMMENCED TO SCATTER THE INCENSE AND [AFTER FINISHING] WENT OUT. THE ONE WHO BURNT THE INCENSE DID NOT DO SO UNTIL THE SUPERINTENDENT SAID TO HIM, BURN THE INCENSE. IF IT WAS THE HIGH PRIEST WHO BURNT, HE WOULD SAY TO HIM, SIR,³¹ PRAY BURN THE INCENSE. THE PEOPLE³² LEFT AND HE BURNT THE CENSE AND PROSTRATED HIMSELF AND WENT OUT.

WHEN THE HIGH PRIEST WENT IN¹ TO PROSTRATE HIMSELF,² THREE PRIESTS SUPPORTED HIM, ONE BY HIS RIGHT AND ONE BY HIS LEFT AND ONE BY THE PRECIOUS STONES.³ WHEN THE SUPERINTENDENT HEARD THE SOUND OF THE FOOTSTEPS OF THE HIGH PRIEST AS HE WAS ABOUT TO ISSUE [FROM THE HEKAL], HE RAISED THE CURTAIN FOR HIM. HE WENT IN, PROSTRATED HIMSELF AND WENT OUT, AND THEN HIS BROTHER PRIESTS WENT IN AND PROSTRATED THEMSELVES AND WENT OUT.

MISHNAH . THEY⁴ WENT AND STOOD ON THE STEPS OF THE PORCH. THE FIRST SET⁵ STOOD AT THE SOUTH SIDE OF THEIR BROTHER PRIESTS HOLDING FIVE VESSELS; ONE HELD THE TENI, A SECOND THE KUZ, A THIRD THE FIREPAN, A FOURTH THE DISH, AND THE FIFTH THE SPOON AND ITS COVERING. THEY BLESSED THE PEOPLE WITH A SINGLE BENEDICTION;⁶ IN THE COUNTRY THEY RECITED IT AS THREE BLESSINGS,⁷ IN THE SANCTUARY AS ONE.⁸ IN THE TEMPLE THEY PRONOUNCED THE DIVINE NAME AS IT IS WRITTEN,⁹ BUT IN THE COUNTRY BY ITS SUBSTITUTE.¹⁰ IN THE COUNTRY THE PRIESTS RAISED THEIR HANDS AS HIGH AS THEIR SHOULDERS, BUT IN THE TEMPLE RIGHT ABOVE THEIR HEADS, ALL EXCEPT THE HIGH PRIEST, WHO DID NOT RAISE HIS HANDS ABOVE THE PLATE.¹¹ R. JUDAH SAYS THAT THE HIGH PRIEST ALSO RAISED HIS HANDS ABOVE THE PLATE, SINCE IT SAYS, AND AARON LIFTED UP HIS HANDS TOWARD THE PEOPLE AND BLESSED THEM.¹²

MISHNAH . WHEN THE HIGH PRIEST DESIRED TO BURN THE OFFERINGS,¹³ HE USED TO GO UP THE ASCENT WITH THE DEPUTY HIGH PRIEST¹⁴ AT HIS RIGHT HAND, AND WHEN HE REACHED THE MIDDLE OF THE ASCENT THE DEPUTY TOOK HOLD OF HIS RIGHT HAND AND HELPED HIM UP. THE FIRST [OF THE OFFICIATING PRIESTS] THEN HANDED TO HIM THE HEAD AND THE FOOT OF THE SACRIFICE AND HE LAID HIS HANDS ON THEM¹⁵ AND THREW THEM [ON THE ALTAR FIRE]. THE SECOND THEN HANDED TO THE FIRST THE TWO FORE LEGS. AND HE HANDED THEM TO THE HIGH PRIEST WHO LAID HIS HANDS ON THEM AND THREW THEM [ON TO THE ALTAR]. THE SECOND THEN SLIPPED AWAY. IN THE SAME WAY ALL THE OTHER LIMBS WERE HANDED TO HIM AND HE LAID HANDS ON THEM AND THREW THEM [ON TO THE ALTAR FIRE]. IF HE PREFERRED, HE COULD LAY ON HANDS AND LET OTHERS THROW ON THE FIRE. WHEN HE CAME TO GO ROUND THE ALTAR¹⁶ FROM WHERE DID HE COMMENCE? FROM THE SOUTH-EASTERN CORNER; FROM THERE HE WENT TO THE NORTH-EASTERN, THEN TO THE NORTH-WESTERN AND THEN TO THE SOUTH-WESTERN. THEY THERE HANDED TO HIM WINE FOR LIBATION. THE DEPUTY HIGH PRIEST STOOD ON THE HORN OF THE ALTAR¹⁷ WITH THE FLAGS IN HIS HAND, AND TWO PRIESTS ON THE TABLE OF THE FAT¹⁸ WITH TWO TRUMPETS IN THEIR HANDS. THEY BLEW A TEKIAH, A TERUAH AND A TEKIAH,¹⁹ AND THEN WENT AND STOOD BY BEN ARZA,²⁰ ONE ON HIS RIGHT HAND AND ONE ON HIS LEFT. WHEN HE

BENT DOWN TO MAKE THE LIBATION THE DEPUTY HIGH PRIEST WAVED THE FLAGS AND BEN ARZA STRUCK THE CYMBALS AND THE LEVITES CHANTED THE PSALM. WHEN THEY CAME TO A PAUSE²¹ A TERIAH WAS BLOWN, AND THE PUBLIC PROSTRATED THEMSELVES; AT EVERY PAUSE THERE WAS A TEKIAH AND AT EVERY TEKIAH A PROSTRATION. THIS WAS THE ORDER OF THE REGULAR DAILY SACRIFICE FOR THE SERVICE OF THE HOUSE OF OUR GOD. MAY IT BE GOD'S WILL THAT IT BE BUILT SPEEDILY IN OUR DAYS, AMEN.

MISHNAH . THE FOLLOWING ARE THE PSALMS THAT WERE CHANTED IN THE TEMPLE. ON THE FIRST DAY THEY USED TO SAY, THE EARTH IS THE LORD'S AND THE FULNESS THEREOF, THE WORLD AND THEY THAT DWELL THEREIN.²² ON THE SECOND DAY THEY USED TO SAY, GREAT IS THE LORD AND HIGHLY TO BE PRAISED, IN THE CITY OF OUR GOD. HIS HOLY MOUNTAIN.²³ ON THE THIRD DAY THEY USED TO SAY, GOD STANDETH IN THE CONGREGATION OF GOD, IN THE MIDST OF THE JUDGES HE JUDGETH.²⁴ ON THE FOURTH DAY THEY USED TO SAY, O LORD, THOU GOD TO WHOM VENGEANCE BELONGETH, THOU GOD TO WHOM VENGEANCE BELONGETH, SHINE FORTH.²⁵ ON THE FIFTH DAY THEY USED TO SAY, SING ALOUD UNTO GOD OUR STRENGTH, SHOUT UNTO THE GOD OF JACOB.²⁶ ON THE SIXTH DAY THEY USED TO SAY, THE LORD REIGNETH, HE IS CLOTHED IN MAJESTY, THE LORD IS CLOTHED, HE HATH GIRDED HIMSELF WITH STRENGTH.²⁷ ON SABBATH THEY USED TO SAY, A PSALM, A SONG FOR THE SABBATH DAY:²⁸ A PSALM, A SONG FOR THE TIME TO COME, FOR THE DAY THAT WILL BE ALL SABBATH AND REST FOR EVERLASTING LIFE.

Mishna - Mas. Terumoth Chapter 1

MISHNAH 1. FIVE MAY NOT GIVE TERUMAH, AND IF THEY DO SO, THEIR TERUMAH IS NOT CONSIDERED VALID:¹ THE HERESH [DEAF MUTE], THE IMBECILE,² THE MINOR,³ AND THE ONE WHO GIVES TERUMAH FROM THAT WHICH IS NOT HIS OWN. IF A GENTILE GAVE TERUMAH FROM THAT WHICH BELONGS TO AN ISRAELITE, EVEN IF IT WAS WITH HIS FULL CONSENT, HIS TERUMAH IS NOT VALID.

MISHNAH 2. A HERESH, WHO SPEAKS BUT CANNOT HEAR, MAY NOT GIVE TERUMAH,⁴ BUT IF HE DOES SO, HIS TERUMAH IS VALID.⁵ THE HERESH OF WHOM THE SAGES GENERALLY SPEAK IS ONE WHO NEITHER HEARS NOR SPEAKS.

MISHNAH 3. IF A MINOR HAS NOT YET PRODUCED TWO HAIRS [OF PUBERTY] R. JUDAH SAYS: HIS TERUMAH IS VALID. R. JOSE SAYS: IF HE HAS NOT ARRIVED AT THE AGE WHEN HIS VOWS ARE VALID, HIS TERUMAH IS NOT VALID, BUT AS SOON AS HIS VOWS BECOME VALID, HIS TERUMAH BECOMES VALID.⁶

MISHNAH 4. TERUMAH SHOULD NOT BE TAKEN FROM OLIVES FOR OIL, OR FROM GRAPES FOR WINE.⁷ IF THIS IS DONE, BETH SHAMMAI SAY: THERE IS THEN TERUMAH OF [THE OLIVES OR GRAPES] THEMSELVES,⁸ BUT BETH HILLEL SAY: THE [WHOLE] TERUMAH IS NOT VALID.⁹

MISHNAH 5. TERUMAH IS NOT TAKEN FROM 'GLEANINGS', FROM 'THE FORGOTTEN SHEAF', FROM PE'AH¹⁰ OR FROM OWNERLESS PRODUCE.¹¹ [NEITHER IS IT TAKEN] FROM FIRST TITHE FROM WHICH ITS TERUMAH HAD ALREADY BEEN TAKEN,¹² NOR FROM SECOND TITHE AND DEDICATED PRODUCE THAT HAD NOT BEEN REDEEMED.¹³ [NOR MAY IT BE TAKEN] FROM WHAT IS SUBJECT [TO TERUMAH] FOR THAT WHICH IS EXEMPT;¹⁴ OR FROM THAT WHICH IS EXEMPT FOR THAT WHICH IS SUBJECT. ALSO, NOT FROM PRODUCE ALREADY PLUCKED [FROM THE SOIL] FOR THAT STILL ROOTED TO IT,¹⁵ OR FROM THAT ROOTED [TO THE SOIL] FOR THAT ALREADY PLUCKED; ALSO, NOT FROM NEW PRODUCE¹⁶ FOR OLD,¹⁷ OR FROM OLD FOR NEW. ALSO NOT FROM FRUIT OF THE LAND¹⁸ FOR FRUIT GROWN OUTSIDE THE LAND,¹⁹ OR FROM THOSE GROWN WITH OUT THE LAND FOR THOSE GROWN IN THE LAND. [IN ALL THESE CASES] SHOULD THIS HAVE BEEN DONE, THE TERUMAH IS NOT VALID.

MISHNAH 6. FIVE MAY NOT GIVE TERUMAH, BUT IF THEY DO, THEIR TERUMAH IS VALID. HE THAT IS MUTE,²⁰ OR DRUNKEN,²¹ OR NAKED,²² OR BLIND,²¹ OR HAS SUFFERED POLLUTION BY SEMEN;²³ THESE MAY NOT GIVE TERUMAH,²⁴ BUT IF THEY DO, THEIR TERUMAH IS VALID.²⁵

MISHNAH 7. TERUMAH MAY NOT BE GIVEN ACCORDING TO MEASURE,²⁶ OR WEIGHT, OR NUMBER, THOUGH ONE MAY GIVE IT FROM THAT WHICH HAS ALREADY BEEN MEASURED,²⁷ WEIGHED OR COUNTED. TERUMAH MAY NOT BE GIVEN IN A BASKET OR A HAMPER OF A MEASURED CAPACITY,²⁸ BUT IF THEY BE ONLY [ABOUT A] HALF OR A THIRD FILLED, ONE MAY GIVE TERUMAH IN THEM. TERUMAH MAY NOT BE GIVEN IN [A VESSEL] CONTAINING A SE'AH, THOUGH IT BE ONLY A HALF FULL, FOR THIS HALF CONSTITUTES A KNOWN MEASURE.²⁹

MISHNAH 8. OIL MAY NOT BE GIVEN AS TERUMAH FOR OLIVES DUE TO BE CRUSHED,³⁰ NOR MAY WINE FOR GRAPES DUE TO BE TRODDEN; IF, HOWEVER, ONE HAS DONE SO, HIS TERUMAH IS VALID,³¹ BUT HE MUST GIVE TERUMAH ANEW.³² THE

FIRST TERUMAH RENDERS [PRODUCE INTO WHICH IT HAD FALLEN] MEDUMMA³³ AND IS SUBJECT TO THE ADDED FIFTH,³⁴ BUT NOT THE SECOND.³⁵

MISHNAH 9. TERUMAH MAY BE GIVEN FROM OIL FOR OLIVES DUE FOR PICKLING³⁶, OR FROM WINE FOR GRAPES ABOUT TO BE MADE INTO RAISINS.³⁷ HE WHO GIVES TERUMAH FROM OIL FOR OLIVES INTENDED FOR EATING,³⁸ OR FROM [OTHER] OLIVES FOR OLIVES INTENDED FOR EATING, OR FOR WINE FOR GRAPES INTENDED FOR EATING, OR FROM [OTHER] GRAPES FOR GRAPES INTENDED FOR EATING, AND DECIDES AFTERWARDS TO PRESS THEM,³⁹ NEED NOT GIVE TERUMAH ANEW.⁴⁰

MISHNAH 10. TERUMAH MAY NOT BE TAKEN FROM PRODUCE IN A FINISHED STATE⁴¹ FOR PRODUCE IN AN UNFINISHED STATE,⁴² OR FROM PRODUCE IN AN UNFINISHED STATE FOR PRODUCE IN A FINISHED STATE. NOR CAN IT BE TAKEN FROM PRODUCE IN AN UNFINISHED STATE FOR OTHER PRODUCE IN AN UNFINISHED STATE. IF, HOWEVER, TERUMAH HAD BEEN TAKEN, IT IS CONSIDERED VALID.⁴³

(1) And the produce remains forbidden to be eaten as tebel (v. Glos.)

(2) V. Hag. 3b for some signs of idiocy, to which Maim. adds other instances.

(3) A boy prior to the age of thirteen years and one day, and a girl of twelve years and one day.

(4) As he cannot hear the blessing to be made when giving the terumah; v. Ber. II, 3; Meg. II, 4.

(5) The omission of the blessing does not de facto affect the validity of the terumah, since he knows in whose honour the terumah is being given.

(6) The age for vows is twelve years and a day for a boy, and eleven years and a day for a girl, when they already know to whom the vow is made. Terumah and vows all belong to the same category, since they all depend on the spoken word.

(7) One who has olives and oil or grapes and wine subject to terumah, cannot take terumah from the olives or grapes to cover the amount of terumah due from both. From Num. XVIII, 27, it is inferred that terumah cannot be taken from produce still in the process of completion to cover also the terumah due from produce in a completed state. Hence olives or grapes cannot be classed together with oil or wine for purposes of terumah. Cf. infra I, 8.

(8) And separate terumah must again be given for the oil and the wine.

(9) Accordingly, he must give the whole terumah anew, for the olives or grapes separately, and the oil and wine separately.

(10) V. Pe'ah IV, 10 — 11, V. 7. Since they are dues belonging to the poor, they are exempt from terumah which can only be taken from produce of which one is the owner; but even the poor themselves cannot take terumah from these gifts for any other produce he may have, since these are originally exempt, v. infra.

(11) By renouncing all ownership before the process of completion of the produce had ended, the owner renders it exempt from terumah.

(12) I.e., the terumah of the tithe, even though the terumah gedolah had not been given. (If the Levite had obtained tithe from ears of corn, when fully grown, the produce is exempt from terumah gedolah).

(13) Since not having been redeemed, these are not his property but the property of the Sanctuary.

(14) E.g., not having yet reached a third of their full growth; cf. R.H. 13.

(15) Terumah could only be given from detached produce.

(16) Grown that year; Deut. XIV, 22.

(17) That grown last year; cf. ibid. XIV, 22.

(18) Palestine. Syria is here included.

(19) The general name for the lands of the Diaspora, where fruits are exempt from terumah, as they do not possess the desired Sanctity.

(20) He can hear, but cannot speak, and his disqualification is due to his inability to recite the blessing when taking the terumah.

(21) Being drunk or blind, he might take terumah from inferior produce and Num. XVIII, 29 explicitly tells us that it must be of the very best (מִכֵּל חֲלָבִי). The term DRUNKEN is applied to one who could not appear in the presence of a king (Bert.): but if the state of inebriation resembled that of Lot, his action was invalid even 'de facto'.

(22) Derived from Deut. XXIII, 15; no blessing may be recited before any nakedness.

- (23) Before ritual ablution, he was debarred from reciting any blessing. Lest it be asked: Why does not the Mishnah include these five classes under the one category of all those unable to recite the requisite blessing? The answer is, that if even one man combined within himself all these five disqualifications, his action would be valid.
- (24) The repetition to emphasize that on no account may they give terumah at the outset, relying on its validity after the act (Maim.).
- (25) Important as the blessing over the terumah is, the non-recital thereof does not invalidate the terumah. The same is true of having taken terumah from inferior produce (infra II, 6).
- (26) From Num. XVIII, 27 it was derived that terumah could only be given approximately. Since even 'the giving of one wheat exempts the whole pile', the amount given varied with the disposition of the giver and mattered not from the legal standpoint. The heave-offering of tithe had to be measured. The order followed in the Mishnah corresponds to that which was more usual. Only a minority gave it by counting.
- (27) Prior to the giving of terumah, the untithed produce would often be measured or weighed.
- (28) Though he had not measured the whole pile nor intended the basket to serve as a measure. This was to avoid the very semblance of wrong-doing. 'A thing forbidden for appearance sake, is forbidden even in the strictest privacy' (Bez. 9a).
- (29) Unlike a basket nor hamper, it was usual to have in a se'ah measure indications marking the proportional capacity of measurement at different heights in the measure; hence it was forbidden even in a se'ah which has no such indications.
- (30) For the oil to come. Terumah cannot be given from produce in a finished state, as oil, for oil that is still awaiting the final process — in these cases, the olives and the grapes.
- (31) Having fulfilled the command of the Torah, if not according to Rabbinic interpretation.
- (32) In order to lend strength to the ruling of the Rabbis, fresh terumah had to be taken after the olives and grapes had been turned into oil and wine respectively. It is not clear from our Mishnah whether even the second terumah (really a fine) must be given to the priest free, as his right due; or in view of his having fulfilled the Biblical command the first time, he may sell the second terumah to the priest; cf. infra V, 1.
- (33) מדומע Lit., 'that which becomes demai', (the priest's share of the produce, v. Ex. XXII, 28). If the hullin into which the terumah had fallen is less than 100 times the quantity of the amount that had fallen in, the whole produce becomes forbidden to non-priests and must be sold to priests with the exception of the value of the terumah therein, for which no money may be taken; (v. Glos.).
- (34) V. Lev. V. 16.
- (35) Since this second terumah was only imposed as a fine, it does not have the same sanctity as the first terumah, which fulfilled the injunction of the Torah. The reason why the same alternative is not given in supra I, 4 is because it would involve loss to the priest if terumah were allowed to be taken 'de facto' from olives for oil. In our Mishnah, no such loss is entailed, hence this second giving of terumah makes even the first valid.
- (36) To preserve them, they were placed in salt or vinegar. Though the olives were still awaiting this final process, the Rabbis regarded them as finished products and terumah could, accordingly, be taken from oil on their behalf.
- (37) When they would no longer be deemed grapes at all. The amount of terumah to be given from the oil and wine must be according to the quantity yielded after the olives had been preserved and the grapes converted into raisins.
- (38) The best olives or grapes were eaten in their natural state.
- (39) Instead of his original intention of eating them; cf. Demai III, 2.
- (40) Having fulfilled his duty with the first giving of terumah, since both the grapes and olives were fit for food and were in a finished state.
- (41) Lit., 'a thing, the work of which is finished'. After e.g., corn had been winnowed and shaped into a pile and taken into the house for food.
- (42) E.g., not yet winnowed or stacked up. The priest had to be spared unnecessary trouble. From Num. XVIII, 29 it was inferred that both the produce from which terumah is taken and that for which it is taken must be in their finished stages; cf. Ma'as. I, 2.
- (43) This cannot refer to olives and grapes, concerning which supra I, 4 declared the terumah invalid even 'de facto'; it must, therefore, refer to other kinds of fruit.

Mishna - Mas. Terumoth Chapter 2

MISHNAH 1. TERUMAH MAY NOT BE GIVEN FROM THE CLEAN FOR THE UNCLEAN,¹

BUT IF IT IS GIVEN, THE TERUMAH IS VALID.² IN TRUTH THEY HAVE SAID:³ IF A CAKE OF PRESSED FIGS⁴ HAD BECOME PARTLY DEFILED, TERUMAH MAY BE TAKEN FROM THE CLEAN PART FOR THAT PART WHICH HAD BECOME DEFILED. THE SAME APPLIES TO A BUNCH OF VEGETABLES,⁵ OR A STACK OF GRAIN.⁶ IF THERE WERE TWO CAKES [OF FIGS], TWO BUNCHES, TWO STACKS OF GRAIN, AND ONE OF THEM WAS DEFILED AND THE OTHER CLEAN, TERUMAH CANNOT BE GIVEN FROM ONE FOR THE OTHER. R. ELIEZER SAYS THAT ONE CAN GIVE TERUMAH FROM THAT WHICH IS CLEAN FOR THAT WHICH IS DEFILED.⁷

MISHNAH 2. TERUMAH MAY NOT BE GIVEN FROM UNCLEAR [PRODUCE] FOR THAT WHICH IS CLEAN;⁸ AND IF IT IS GIVEN UNWITTINGLY,⁹ THE TERUMAH IS VALID; IF INTENTIONALLY THE ACT IS VOID.¹⁰ SO TOO, IF A LEVITE HAD [UNCLEAR] TITHE [FROM WHICH TERUMAH] HAD NOT BEEN GIVEN,¹¹ AND HE GAVE TERUMAH FROM THIS,¹² IF PERFORMED IN ERROR HIS ACTION IS VALID;¹³ BUT IF INTENTIONALLY HIS ACT IS OF NO EFFECT.¹⁴ R. JUDAH SAYS: IF HE KNEW OF IT AT THE OUTSET,¹⁵ EVEN IF DONE IN ERROR, HIS ACTION IS OF NO EFFECT.

MISHNAH 3. HE WHO IMMERSES [UNCLEAR] VESSELS ON THE SABBATH¹⁶ IN ERROR MAY USE THEM,¹⁷ BUT IF DONE DELIBERATELY HE MAY NOT USE THEM.¹⁸ HE WHO SEPARATES TITHES,¹⁹ OR COOKS ON THE SABBATH, UNWITTINGLY, MAY EAT OF IT,²⁰ BUT IF INTENTIONALLY, HE MAY NOT EAT OF IT. HE WHO PLANTS ANYTHING ON THE SABBATH²¹ IN ERROR CAN ALLOW IT TO REMAIN, BUT IF DELIBERATELY MUST UPROOT IT. BUT DURING THE SABBATICAL YEAR, WHETHER [IT WAS PLANTED] UNWITTINGLY OR DELIBERATELY²² HE MUST UPROOT IT.

MISHNAH 4. TERUMAH MAY NOT BE GIVEN FROM ONE KIND FOR ANOTHER KIND,²³ AND IF ONE DOES SO, THE TERUMAH IS NOT VALID. ALL KINDS OF WHEAT²⁴ COUNT AS ONE,²⁵ ALL KINDS OF FRESH FIGS, DRIED FIGS AND FIG CAKES COUNT AS ONE,²⁶ AND TERUMAH CAN BE TAKEN FROM ONE FOR THE OTHER.²⁷ WHEREVER THERE IS A PRIEST, ONE MUST GIVE TERUMAH OF THE VERY BEST,²⁸ AND WHERE THERE BE NO PRIEST, TERUMAH MUST BE GIVEN OF THAT KIND WHICH KEEPS LONGEST.²⁹ R. JUDAH SAYS: AT ALL TIMES MUST IT BE GIVEN ONLY FROM THE VERY BEST.³⁰

MISHNAH 5. A WHOLE ONION, THOUGH SMALL, SHOULD BE GIVEN AS TERUMAH RATHER THAN HALF OF A LARGE ONION.³¹ R. JUDAH SAYS: NOT SO, BUT HALF OF A LARGE ONION.³² SO TOO, R. JUDAH SAID: TERUMAH SHOULD BE GIVEN FROM TOWN ONIONS FOR THOSE OF THE VILLAGE,³³ BUT NOT FROM VILLAGE ONIONS FOR THOSE OF THE TOWN, SINCE THESE³⁴ ARE THE FOOD OF ITS PRINCIPAL CITIZENS.³⁵

MISHNAH 6. TERUMAH MAY BE GIVEN FROM OLIVES [TO BE USED] FOR OIL FOR THOSE DUE TO BE PRESERVED,³⁶ BUT NOT FROM OLIVES DUE TO BE PRESERVED FOR OLIVES [TO BE USED] FOR OIL. [IT MAY BE GIVEN] FROM UNBOILED WINE FOR BOILED WINE, BUT NOT FROM BOILED WINE FOR UNBOILED WINE. THIS IS THE GENERAL RULE: ANY TWO THINGS WHICH TOGETHER INFRINGE THE LAW OF DIVERSE KINDS³⁷ CANNOT BE USED FOR TERUMAH FROM ONE FOR THE OTHER, EVEN IF THE KIND FROM WHICH IT IS GIVEN BE SUPERIOR TO THE ONE FOR WHICH IT IS GIVEN;³⁸ BUT IF THEY DO NOT CONSTITUTE DIVERSE KINDS, THEN ONE MAY GIVE TERUMAH FROM THE SUPERIOR KIND FOR THAT WHICH IS INFERIOR, BUT NOT FROM THE INFERIOR KIND FOR THAT WHICH IS SUPERIOR. IF ONE DOES GIVE TERUMAH FROM THE INFERIOR KIND FOR THAT WHICH IS SUPERIOR, HIS TERUMAH IS VALID,³⁹ EXCEPTING WHEN TARES⁴⁰ ARE GIVEN FOR WHEAT, SINCE THESE ARE NOT FOOD. CUCUMBERS AND SWEET MELONS⁴¹ COUNT AS ONE KIND.⁴² R. JUDAH SAYS: TWO KINDS.

- (1) Being afraid that the unclean fruit defiles by contact the clean, he might take the terumah from produce that is not lying near by, contrary to the regulation; v. Hal. I, 9.
- (2) Being only a precautionary measure, the fear was expressed at the outset only.
- (3) באמת ; v. Kil. II, 2.
- (4) Though all the figs are closely pressed together, the presence of one that is unclean does not contaminate the others, because of the absence of any of the seven liquids (dew, water, wine, oil, blood, milk, and bees' honey) that render edibles susceptible to levitical uncleanness (Maksh. VI; 4; Tebul Yom II, 3). The figs are connected only by their own juice, and fruit-juice does not render food susceptible to defilement; cf. Lev. XI, 34.
- (5) Not so tightly compressed into one mass as a cake of pressed figs.
- (6) Not even tied together as the vegetables. Since each of these three instances is not similar, all the three are quoted.
- (7) He does not fear lest he will contravene the rule mentioned in n. 1; cf. Hal. II, 8.
- (8) Since defiled terumah had to be burnt, he would thus be robbing the priest of his due.
- (9) Provided that it was at one time clean and subject to tithe, otherwise it could not be deemed terumah.
- (10) A fresh terumah is necessary, as in supra I, 8. According to some, even the second terumah is of no effect if done with intention.
- (11) The terumah of the tithe he had to give to the priest.
- (12) To serve as terumah for other untithed produce in his possession; cf. Hal. IV, 6. The expression היה מפריש עליו והולך means that from the very first he had set aside this tithe for this purpose, discovering only later that it had been defiled.
- (13) After his action, he discovered that it had been unclean.
- (14) Since it could not be considered terumah when he separated it.
- (15) He maintains that forgetfulness cannot be considered 'in error'.
- (16) When it is forbidden, being considered the equivalent of repairing and thus constituting work.
- (17) Even on the Sabbath day itself.
- (18) He must wait till the termination of the Sabbath.
- (19) An act considered as work since it qualifies the tebel to be eaten.
- (20) When Sabbath terminates. The reason why the cases of tithe and cooking are cited together is because the words 'he may eat' can be applied to them both; otherwise, the instance of tithe would have been better bracketed with the case of vessel immersion.
- (21) Planting is forbidden on the Sabbath.
- (22) Though the average Israelite would not lightly break the Sabbath, he was suspected of treating the Seventh year lightly; hence no distinction is drawn here between the unwitting and deliberate transgression.
- (23) E.g., from wheat for barley.
- (24) Either reddish or white in hue; B.B. V, 6.
- (25) For the purpose of terumah.
- (26) The black and the white species are regarded of one kind.
- (27) E.g., from fig cakes for fresh figs.
- (28) The kind best to eat, i.e., fresh figs.
- (29) Dried figs keep longer than fresh figs.
- (30) Cf. Num. XVIII, 30.
- (31) Whole onions keep longest, and where there is no priest, these are to be given preference.
- (32) Since it is the best; v. supra 4.
- (33) Those from the town are better and healthier to eat, though wild onions of the villages keep longest; cf. Ned. 66a.
- (34) Those of the town.
- (35) Bert. renders: of royal courtiers. Village onions have a more pungent flavour and, being inferior, cannot be given as terumah for that of a superior kind.
- (36) Being from a superior kind for an inferior kind. (Olives which were pickled in vinegar had not oil.) The same reason applies to the case of wine.
- (37) V. Kil. I, 1 — 2.

- (38) Even 'de facto', the terumah would not be valid.
 (39) Since they are not of two kinds.
 (40) Field-seed or vetch similar to wheat used as animal fodder and unfit for human food.
 (41) An apple-shaped melon, probably the fruit-squash (Jast); v. Kil. I, 2.
 (42) For terumah purposes.

Mishna - Mas. Terumoth Chapter 3

MISHNAH 1. IF ONE GAVE A CUCUMBER AS TERUMAH AND IT WAS FOUND TO BE BITTER, OR A MELON AND IT WAS FOUND TO BE ROTTEN, IT MAY BE CONSIDERED TERUMAH,¹ BUT HE MUST AGAIN GIVE TERUMAH.² IF ONE GAVE A JAR OF WINE AS TERUMAH AND IT WAS FOUND TO BE OF VINEGAR, IF PRIOR TO HIS ACT HE KNEW THAT IT WAS VINEGAR,³ THE TERUMAH IS NOT VALID; BUT IF IT HAD TURNED SOUR AFTER HE HAD GIVEN IT AS TERUMAH, HIS ACTION IS VALID.⁴ IN CASE OF DOUBT,⁵ IT IS TERUMAH BUT HE MUST AGAIN GIVE TERUMAH.⁶ THE FIRST DOES NOT OF ITSELF MAKE ANY OTHER PRODUCE⁷ MEDUMMA', NOR IS IT SUBJECT TO THE LAW OF THE FIFTH.⁸ THE SAME APPLIES TO THE SECOND [TERUMAH].⁹

MISHNAH 2. IF ONE OF THEM¹⁰ FALLS INTO COMMON PRODUCE,¹¹ IT DOES NOT MAKE [THE MIXTURE] MEDUMMA'.¹² IF THE SECOND [PORTION OF TERUMAH] FALLS [THEN] INTO ANOTHER PLACE,¹³ IT ALSO DOES NOT MAKE IT MEDUMMA'; BUT IF BOTH FALL INTO ONE PLACE,¹⁴ THEY DO MAKE IT MEDUMMA', ACCORDING TO THE SIZE OF THE SMALLER OF THE TWO.¹⁵

MISHNAH 3. IF [TWO] PARTNERS TOOK TERUMAH, THE ONE AFTER THE OTHER,¹⁶ R. AKIBA SAYS: THE TERUMAH OF THEM BOTH IS VALID;¹⁷ BUT THE SAGES SAY: ONLY THE TERUMAH OF THE FIRST IS VALID.¹⁸ R. JOSE SAYS:¹⁹ IF THE FIRST GAVE THE PRESCRIBED AMOUNT,²⁰ THE TERUMAH OF THE SECOND IS NOT VALID, BUT HAD HE NOT GIVEN THE PRESCRIBED AMOUNT,²¹ THE TERUMAH OF THE SECOND IS VALID.

MISHNAH 4. WHEN DO THESE WORDS APPLY?²² ONLY IF THE ONE DID NOT CONFER WITH THE OTHER;²³ BUT IF A MAN SANCTIONS A MEMBER OF HIS HOUSEHOLD,²⁴ OR HIS SLAVE OR BOND-MAID TO GIVE TERUMAH FOR HIM, THIS TERUMAH IS VALID.²⁵ IF HE ANNULLED [THIS SANCTION],²⁶ THE TERUMAH IS RENDERED INVALID IF HE ANNULLED IT BEFORE THE TAKING OF THE TERUMAH, BUT IF HE ANNULLED IT AFTER THE TERUMAH HAD BEEN TAKEN, THE TERUMAH IS VALID. LABOURERS HAVE NO AUTHORITY TO GIVE TERUMAH,²⁷ SAVE THOSE WHO TREAD [GRAPES]. FOR THEY²⁸ DEFILE THE WINEPRESS IMMEDIATELY.²⁹

MISHNAH 5. IF ONE SAYS: '[LET] THE TERUMAH OF THIS PILE BE WITHIN IT', OR, 'LET ITS TITHES BE WITHIN IT', OR, 'LET THE HEAVE-OFFERING OF TITHE BE WITHIN IT', R. SIMEON SAYS: HE HAS THEREBY DESIGNATED IT;³⁰ BUT THE SAGES SAY: NOT UNLESS HE SAID, LET IT BE TO THE NORTH OR SOUTH OF IT.³¹ R. ELEAZAR HISMA SAYS: HE WHO SAYS, LET TERUMAH BE GIVEN FROM THIS FOR THIS SAME PILE', HAS THEREBY DESIGNATED IT.³² R. ELIEZAR B. JACOB SAYS: IF HE SAYS, 'LET THE TENTH PART OF THIS TITHE BE THE HEAVE-OFFERING OF TITHE FOR THAT PILE', HE HAS THEREBY DESIGNATED IT.³³

MISHNAH 6. HE WHO GIVES TERUMAH BEFORE FIRST-FRUITS,³⁴ OR FIRST TITHE BEFORE TERUMAH, OR SECOND TITHE BEFORE FIRST TITHE, ALTHOUGH HE TRANSGRESSES A NEGATIVE COMMAND,³⁵ HIS ACTION IS VALID, FOR IT IS SAID:

THOU SHALT NOT DELAY TO OFFER OF THE FULNESS OF THY HARVEST AND OF THE OUTFLOW OF THY PRESSES.³⁶

MISHNAH 7. WHENCE DO WE DERIVE THAT FIRST-FRUITS MUST PRECEDE TERUMAH, SEEING THAT THE ONE IS CALLED 'TERUMAH' AND 'THE FIRST' ?³⁷ FIRST-FRUITS TAKE PRECEDENCE SINCE THEY ARE THE FIRST FRUITS OF ALL PRODUCE,³⁸ AND TERUMAH COMES BEFORE THE FIRST TITHE ALSO, BECAUSE IT IS [CALLED] 'FIRST'. AND FIRST TITHE PRECEDES SECOND TITHE, BECAUSE IT INCLUDES THAT WHICH IS CALLED 'FIRST'.³⁹

MISHNAH 8. HE WHO INTENDS SAYING 'TERUMAH' AND SAYS 'TITHE', OR 'TITHE' AND HE SAYS 'TERUMAH'; OR 'BURNT-OFFERING' AND HE SAYS 'PEACE-OFFERING', OR 'PEACE-OFFERING' AND HE SAYS 'BURNT-OFFERING'; OR '[I VOW] THAT I WILL NOT ENTER THIS HOUSE' AND SAYS INSTEAD 'THAT HOUSE', OR, 'THAT I WILL NOT DERIVE ANY BENEFIT FROM THIS [MAN]' ,⁴⁰ AND SAYS INSTEAD 'FROM THAT [MAN]', HE HAS SAID NOTHING UNTIL HIS HEART AND MIND ARE AT ONE.

MISHNAH 9. TERUMAH GIVEN BY A HEATHEN OR A SAMARITAN IS VALID; THEIR TITHES AND THEIR DEDICATIONS ARE ALSO VALID ACTS.⁴¹ R. JUDAH SAYS: THE LAW OF THE VINEYARD IN THE FOURTH YEAR⁴² IS NOT APPLICABLE TO A HEATHEN;⁴³ BUT THE SAGES SAY: IT IS. THE TERUMAH OF THE HEATHEN RENDERS [PRODUCE INTO WHICH IT FALLS] MEDUMMA' AND IS SUBJECT TO THE LAW OF THE FIFTH,⁴⁴ BUT R. SIMEON EXEMPTS IT.⁴⁵

(1) Since it was given unintentionally; besides even a bad cucumber is used for human food in emergency.

(2) A penalty for not tasting thereof prior to giving it away. Being only a Rabbinical prohibition, tasting thereof was first allowed.

(3) Wine and vinegar were regarded as of two different kinds.

(4) He cannot be held responsible after having discharged his obligation.

(5) Whether it had turned sour before or after his act.

(6) Both are given to the priest. Being a doubt concerning a Biblical prohibition, we adopt stringency and pronounce even the first portion as terumah. The priest, however, can have definite claim only to the second portion, which is smaller than the first, having been taken from a diminished pile, and consequently he can be asked to return the value of the first portion, on the principle that in case of doubt the claimant must bring proof of his claim.

(7) Should the first portion of terumah fall into common produce of less than a hundred times its quantity, it does not make the whole subject to terumah.

(8) A non-priest eating any of the two portions of terumah is not required to return its value, plus the requisite Fifth, as in the case of having eaten that which was unquestionably terumah; cf. Lev. V, 16.

(9) For of each it can be said that the other is the real terumah, and this only common produce.

(10) This Mishnah elaborates the one previous.

(11) Heb. hullin, produce from which terumah has been taken, as opposed to untithed produce (tebel)

(12) Since neither of them can definitely be said to be terumah.

(13) Also common produce.

(14) That is into hullin less than a hundred times the amount of both.

(15) If there be a hundred times the amount of the second terumah, which is smaller, the hullin may be eaten after he had given to the priest the amount of the two portions that had fallen in.

(16) If from a pile of fifty se'ahs held in joint ownership, each took one se'ah as terumah, (1/50th being the amount usually given).

(17) Each of the two se'ahs can only be considered half terumah and half hullin, as each partner gave terumah without permission of the other. They then must give the two se'ahs to the priest, and the priest returns them the value of the price of one.

(18) They hold that the whole se'ah of the first is terumah, and that of the second hullin.

- (19) Explaining the view of the sages.
- (20) 1/50th of the whole produce.
- (21) Giving either 1/40th or 1/60th.
- (22) Referring to words of R. Akiba in the Mishnah preceding.
- (23) The partners acting independently.
- (24) Who has no proprietary rights in the pile. The slave here is 'a son of the Covenant' and, therefore, can act as a messenger.
- (25) And even if the owner himself later gives terumah anew, his action is void, though he gives a larger amount than the messenger; cf. infra IV.
- (26) After the departure of the messenger to perform his charge, he publicly renounces his first charge.
- (27) Though they are responsible for its growth, it is not theirs to give away.
- (28) The owners who are 'amme ha-arez; v. next note.
- (29) The Mishnah refers to owners who are 'amme ha-arez (v. Glos.) who defile terumah with their touch, and to labourers who are haberim (associates) who, unlike their employers, were most scrupulous in observing the laws of purity and in setting apart tithes from produce. It was therefore the duty of 'associate' labourers to take terumah immediately they began treading, lest the owners, thinking that terumah had already been taken, might touch the grapes or olives and thus defile them. This is, therefore, a case where the owners tacitly give the labourers sanction to give terumah on their behalf in purity. Moreover, it was even allowed here to take terumah before the entire process was finished, contrary to the ruling of supra I, 8, in order to safeguard terumah being taken in purity, Tif. Yis.
- (30) And cannot set aside terumah from any other pile.
- (31) The designation must be more definite. Just to say 'within it' is not enough, as not sufficient distinction is made between that which is taken and that left. V. 'Er. 37b.
- (32) Agreeing with R. Simeon that it is not necessary to have a discernible distinction between the portion given as terumah and the remainder.
- (33) Differing from R. Simeon in that he insists that the tithe must be separated before the heave-offering of tithe can be taken or designated as such.
- (34) Declaring: 'Let these fruits be terumah as soon as they are plucked'. The fruit is not yet fully ripe.
- (35) V. n. 3.
- (36) Ex. XXII, 28. 'Fulness' and 'harvest' are respectively interpreted as referring to first fruits and to terumah and First Tithe. The words 'thou shalt not delay' are also taken to enjoin against a variation of this order. Cf. Bez. 13b.
- (37) Deut. XII, 6 refers to first-fruits as 'the terumah of your hands' (cf. Deut. XXVI, 4) and in Ex. XXIII, 19, we read 'the first of the first fruits of thy ground'; of terumah, too, both terms are used (Num. XVIII, 8; Deut. XVIII, 4).
- (38) The word 'bikkurim' actually implies what is brought first.
- (39) Since it contains the heave-offering of tithe to which applies as terumah the term, 'The first'.
- (40) Since he wrongly specifies the man or thing intended for his ban.
- (41) Only if the things tithed and dedicated are their very own.
- (42) Lev. XIX, 23 — 25.
- (43) In the fourth year of planting Jews could eat fruits from the vineyard of a gentile without redemption, R. Judah being of the opinion that the gentile can take 'possession' of land in Eretz Israel to exempt him from the law of the vineyard.
- (44) If there be not in the produce a hundred times the quantity of the terumah that fell in.
- (45) From the added Fifth, since it is not definitely terumah; R. Simeon, however, agrees that it does make other produce medumma'.

Mishna - Mas. Terumoth Chapter 4

MISHNAH 1. HE WHO SETS ASIDE ONLY PART OF TERUMAH AND TITHES,¹ MAY EXTRACT FROM THAT [HEAP] THE OTHER TERUMAH DUE,² BUT HE MAY NOT EXTRACT THEREFROM FOR PRODUCE ELSEWHERE.³ R. MEIR SAYS: HE CAN ALSO TAKE THEREFROM TERUMAH AND TITHES⁴ FOR PRODUCE ELSEWHERE.

MISHNAH 2. IF ONE HAD HIS FRUIT IN THE STOREHOUSE,⁵ AND GAVE A SE'AH TO A

LEVITE,⁶ AND A SE'AH TO A POOR MAN,⁷ HE MAY SET ASIDE FROM THE STORE AS MANY AS EIGHT SE'AHs AND EAT THEM;⁸ THIS IS THE OPINION OF R. MEIR. BUT THE SAGES SAY: HE MAY ONLY SET ASIDE ACCORDING TO PROPORTION.⁹

MISHNAH 3. [THIS IS] THE AMOUNT OF TERUMAH: THE BENEVOLENT¹⁰ [GIVES] A FORTIETH; BETH SHAMMAI SAY, ONE THIRTIETH. THE AVERAGE MAN ONE FIFTIETH¹¹ AND THE NIGGARDLY MAN ONE SIXTIETH.¹² IF HE GAVE TERUMAH¹³ AND DISCOVERED THAT IT WAS ONLY ONE SIXTIETH, HIS TERUMAH IS VALID AND HE NEED NOT GIVE IT ANEW. IF HE ADDS TO IT,¹⁴ THEN IT IS LIABLE TO TITHES.¹⁵ IF HE FOUND THAT IT WAS ONLY ONE SIXTY-FIRST IT IS VALID, BUT HE MUST GIVE TERUMAH ANEW ACCORDING TO HIS ESTABLISHED PRACTICE,¹⁶ IN MEASURE, WEIGHT OR NUMBER.¹⁷ R. JUDAH SAYS: EVEN IF IT BE NOT FROM PRODUCE CLOSE BY.¹⁸

MISHNAH 4. HE WHO SAYS TO HIS MESSENGER: 'GO AND GIVE TERUMAH [FOR ME]'. THEN [THE LATTER] MUST DO SO IN ACCORDANCE WITH THE MIND OF THE OWNER.¹⁹ , IF HE DOES NOT KNOW THE MIND OF THE OWNER, HE GIVES ACCORDING TO THE AMOUNT OF THE AVERAGE MAN — ONE FIFTIETH. IF HE GAVE TEN PARTS LESS OR MORE,²⁰ THE TERUMAH IS VALID.²¹ IF, HOWEVER, HIS INTENTION WAS TO ADD EVEN ONE PART MORE, HIS TERUMAH IS NOT VALID.²²

MISHNAH 5. IF ONE WISHES TO GIVE MORE TERUMAH,²³ R. ELIEZER SAYS HE MAY GIVE UP TO A TENTH PART, AS IN THE CASE OF HEAVE-OFFERING OF TITHE.²⁴ [IF HE GAVE] MORE THAN THIS [MEASURE] HE MUST MAKE IT TERUMAH OF TITHE FOR OTHER PRODUCE.²⁵ R. ISHMAEL SAYS: TILL HALF BE SECULAR AND HALF TERUMAH.²⁶ R. TARFON AND R. AKIBA SAY: AS LONG AS HE RETAINS A PART AS HULLIN.²⁷

MISHNAH 6. ON THREE OCCASIONS²⁸ DOES ONE MEASURE THE CONTENTS OF THE BASKET:²⁹ AT THE FULL TIME OF THE FIRST RIPE FRUITS,³⁰ AND OF THE LATE SUMMER FRUITS,³¹ AND IN THE MIDDLE OF THE SUMMER.³² HE WHO COUNTS [THE FRUITS] DESERVES PRAISE,³³ , HE WHO MEASURES THEM EVEN MORE PRAISE, BUT HE WHO WEIGHS THEM IS MOST MERITORIOUS.

MISHNAH 7. R. ELIEZER SAYS: TERUMAH IS NEUTRALIZED IN A HUNDRED AND ONE PARTS;³⁴ R. JOSHUA SAYS: IN JUST A LITTLE OVER A HUNDRED,³⁵ AND THIS 'LITTLE OVER' HAS NO DEFINITE MEASURE.³⁶ R. JOSE B. MESHULLAM SAYS: THIS 'LITTLE OVER' MUST BE A KAB TO A HUNDRED SE'AHs,³⁷ NAMELY A SIXTH [OF THE SE'AH]³⁸ WHICH RENDERS THE WHOLE AS MEDUMMA'.

MISHNAH 8. R. JOSHUA SAYS: BLACK FIGS SERVE TO NEUTRALIZE WHITE ONES, AND WHITE ONES SERVE TO NEUTRALIZE BLACK ONES.³⁹ IN THE CASE OF CAKES OF FIGS, THE LARGE SERVE TO NEUTRALIZE THE SMALL, AND THE SMALL SERVE TO NEUTRALIZE THE LARGE.⁴⁰ ROUND CAKES OF FIGS SERVE TO NEUTRALIZE THOSE PRESSED IN SQUARE MOULDS,⁴¹ AND THOSE PRESSED IN SQUARE MOULDS SERVE TO NEUTRALIZE THE ROUND ONES. R. ELIEZER PROHIBITS THIS. R. AKIBA SAYS: IF THE KIND WHICH FELL IN BE KNOWN,⁴² THEN THE ONE KIND CANNOT NEUTRALIZE THE OTHER;⁴³ BUT IF THE KIND BE NOT KNOWN, THEN THE ONE KIND SERVES TO NEUTRALIZE THE OTHER.⁴⁴

MISHNAH 9. FOR EXAMPLE:⁴⁵ IF THERE WERE FIFTY BLACK FIGS AND FIFTY WHITE ONES,⁴⁶ AND A BLACK ONE⁴⁷ FELL AMONG THEM, THE BLACK ONES ARE FORBIDDEN, BUT THE WHITE FIGS ARE PERMITTED; AND IF A WHITE FIG⁴⁷ FELL AMONG THEM, THE WHITE ONES ARE FORBIDDEN AND THE BLACK FIGS ARE PERMITTED. IF IT BE NOT KNOWN WHICH KIND FELL IN, THEN EACH KIND HELPS TO NEUTRALIZE THE OTHER. IN THIS CASE, R. ELIEZER IS MORE STRINGENT AND R. JOSHUA MORE LENIENT.

MISHNAH 10. BUT IN THIS INSTANCE [THAT FOLLOWS].⁴⁸ R. ELIEZER IS THE MORE LENIENT AND R. JOSHUA THE MORE STRINGENT. IF A LITRA⁴⁹ OF DRIED FIGS⁴⁷ WAS PRESSED INTO A JAR⁵⁰ AND IT IS NOT KNOWN INTO WHICH,⁵¹ R. ELIEZER SAYS: THEY⁵² ARE TO BE REGARDED AS IF THEY WERE SEPARATED,⁵³ SO THAT THOSE BELOW NEUTRALIZE THOSE ABOVE. R. JOSHUA MAINTAINS THAT NO NEUTRALIZATION CAN TAKE PLACE UNTIL THERE BE A HUNDRED JARS.⁵⁴

MISHNAH 11. IF A SE'AH OF TERUMAH FELL ON TOP OF A PILE⁵⁵ AND HE SKIMMED IT OFF,⁵⁶ R. ELIEZER SAYS, IF THERE BE IN WHAT HE SKIMMED OFF⁵⁷ A HUNDRED SE'AHs, IT BECOMES NEUTRALIZED IN ONE HUNDRED AND ONE; BUT R. JOSHUA SAYS THAT IT DOES NOT BECOME NEUTRALIZED.⁵⁸ [BUT WHAT SHOULD HE DO?] IF A SE'AH OF TERUMAH FELL ON TOP OF A PILE OF GRAIN, IT MUST BE SKIMMED OFF WITH THE WHOLE OF THE TOP LAYER.⁵⁹ IF THIS BE SO, WHEREFORE THEN HAVE THEY SAID THAT TERUMAH BECOMES NEUTRALIZED IN ONE HUNDRED AND ONE PARTS?⁶⁰ [ONLY] WHEN IT BE NOT KNOWN WHETHER IT HAS BECOME MIXED UP OR WHERE IT HAS FALLEN.⁶¹

MISHNAH 13. R. JOSE SAID: A CASE ONCE CAME BEFORE R. AKIBA CONCERNING FIFTY BUNDLES OF VEGETABLES INTO WHICH A LIKE BUNDLE HAD FALLEN,⁶⁴ HALF OF WHICH WAS TERUMAH, AND I RULED IN HIS PRESENCE THAT IT BECAME NEUTRALIZED, NOT BECAUSE TERUMAH CAN BE NEUTRALIZED IN FIFTY AND ONE, BUT SIMPLY BECAUSE THERE WERE ONE HUNDRED AND TWO HALVES THERE.⁶⁵

(1) Only one se'ah instead of the usual two from a pile containing a hundred se'ahs, with the result that a part is 'tithed' and a part still untithed.

(2) The other se'ah must be taken from that pile and we do not fear lest it be taken just from that part which is 'tithed' and thus have a case of terumah being taken from that which is methukan (v. Glos.) for that which is not.

(3) If he has another pile of a hundred se'ahs, he may not take two se'ahs from the pile already partly tithed. In the case of two piles the fear is expressed lest he take terumah from that which is tithed for that untithed.

(4) R. Meir follows his principle of bererah (v. Glos.) 'retrospective designation'; that is, the legal effect resulting from an actual selection or disposal of things previously undefined as to their purpose; here, since part of the pile is partly untithed, we assume that it is from that part that the terumah for the second pile is taken.

(5) Cf. Hag. II, 19.

(6) As first tithe.

(7) What in other years would be set apart as second tithe was, in the third and sixth years of the Sabbatical Cycle, given to the poor; v. Deut. XIV, 29. In reality, only 9/10ths of a se'ah is due to the poor man, as the pile had been diminished by a tenth after the Levite had received his due.

(8) The case dealt with is that of an 'am ha-arez who gives a se'ah each to a Levite and a poor man; should his workmen be 'associates' they may eat, on the strength of the two se'ahs thus set aside, eight se'ahs, on the assumption that the terumah gedolah had been set aside. For even an 'am ha-arez was not suspected of not taking terumah gedolah.

(9) I. e., the workman may eat only as much as he requires for one meal, since it is to be assumed that the owner gave tithe only in proportion of what his workman would need for one meal, and whatever he gave in excess to the Levite and poor man was to be considered a free gift. This is the interpretation of this obscure Mishnah according to the first version in Bert.

(10) Lit., 'a good eye'; cf. Ex. XXV, 2.

(11) Cf. Num. XXXI, 30.

(12) Cf. Ezek. XLV, 13.

(13) Namely, the generous or average man. Since terumah had to be given approximately, it was only natural to err in the amount.

(14) Till it becomes his usual gift.

(15) The amount added is not considered terumah and is subject to tithes.

(16) As much as he usually gives.

(17) This second terumah may be given by measure etc. Cf supra I, 7.

(18) The condition governing the first taking of terumah.

(19) Finding out first what amount he usually gave.

(20) Mistaking in each case the usual practice of the owner.

(21) On the plea of the messenger that since some people do give these amounts, he had judged his sender in that light.

(22) The sine qua non of a messenger is that he must fulfil the wishes of the one who sent him to the most minute particular, and since he knows how much his sender gave, he had no right to add to it; cf. Me'il. VI, 4.

(23) Even more than 1/40th, the most generous measure.

(24) Which is also known by the name of terumah.

(25) The surplus cannot be deemed as terumah, but as produce from which terumah has been taken but not the tithe with which terumah is mixed up. It can consequently be sold to a Levite who can use it only as terumah of tithe for other produce.

(26) One may even declare half his pile terumah, leaving only half as hullin.

(27) He may separate most of his pile as terumah; v. Hal. I, 9.

(28) When the fruits vary in size.

(29) In which the tithes are usually taken. Terumah gedolah was given approximately, yet consideration must be taken as to the size of the fruits.

(30) Being large, the basket will not contain so many.

(31) Of these, since they are parched and shrivelled, there will be more in the basket.

(32) When the fruits are midway in quality between the first-ripe and late summer fruits.

(33) With reference to tithes only. Terumah gedolah is to be given approximately, since the amount fixed is only a Rabbinical injunction, the Torah requiring only one grain. Tithes had to be properly measured; cf. Aboth. I. 16.

(34) If into a hundred se'ahs of hullin there falls one of terumah, making a hundred and one se'ahs in all, one se'ah is taken out and given to the priest and the rest is permissible to the Israelite, though the se'ah of terumah may still be in the pile.

(35) Even if the se'ah of terumah falls into a pile of hullin of just over ninety-nine se'ahs, a little more than a hundred se'ahs in all, the terumah is neutralized.

(36) Even if it be the most trifling over a hundred, then terumah is negated.

(37) A kab equals 1/6th of a se'ah. The whole mixture including the se'ah of terumah must then be at least a hundred se'ahs plus one kab.

(38) I.e., of terumah that fell into ninety-nine se'ahs and a kab of hullin.

(39) If a white or black fig of terumah falls into a basket containing fifty of each kind so that it is impossible to discern which is terumah and which is hullin, the two kinds combine to neutralize the fig of terumah. He must, however, first give to the priest a fig of the same kind that fell in before all the figs of hullin are permitted to him.

(40) Similarly, a large or small cake of figs of terumah falling into a pile containing fifty of each kind, is neutralized, and all the figs may be eaten after having given to the priest a cake of figs similar to the kind that fell in.

(41) Cf. Pe'ah III, 1, where the word is used of a garden-bed three handbreadths in width.

(42) What its colour, size or shape was.

(43) Since he can only eat those figs of hullin that are of a different kind to that of the terumah which fell in.

(44) The whole pile being in a state of doubt, one kind serves to neutralize the other. The ruling adopted is that of R. Akiba.

- (45) Elucidating the opinion of R. Akiba in the Mishnah preceding.
- (46) Of hullin.
- (47) Of terumah.
- (48) V. Infra n. 8.
- (49) Latin libra. The figs used to be pressed into round shapes of a pound in weight.
- (50) Near a lot of others each containing a hundred litras of figs of hullin.
- (51) There is definitely a litra of terumah on top of one of the vessels, but of which one it is unknown.
- (52) The litra of dried figs that fell in.
- (53) And not as pressed together into one solid mass; accordingly a doubt rests on each fig of the vessel, even on those at the bottom, if it be of the litra that fell in. Hence all help to neutralize the terumah. But R. Eliezer will admit that this only applies when the figs in the vessel are of the same kind that fell in, but in the case of white figs that fell into black ones, or those of a different shape into those of another, no neutralization can take place, since the terumah is easily discernible.
- (54) In order to neutralize the top layer of figs in the jars. Should there be less than this number, the top layers in all the jars are prohibited, and subject to the law of terumah.
- (55) In a barn stacked with grain.
- (56) Together with much other grain of hullin.
- (57) By skimming the entire top layer, it is clear that he does not intend including the bottom layer at all for the purpose of neutralization, for though the grain can be said to have become mixed with the whole stack, yet it is apparently only the top layer which is his concern.
- (58) On the ground that it is suspiciously like an attempt to nullify terumah deliberately. (V. however, Bert.)
- (59) This agrees with R. Joshua that no neutralization can take place, but the whole top layer must be removed.
- (60) Since the remedy lies in the removal of the top layer, then in which case is the principle of one hundred and one applied?
- (61) Either when the terumah is not definitely present or if he had forgotten or was unaware from the outset where it had fallen.
- (62) In each basket being at least fifty se'ahs of hullin.
- (63) I.e., they combine with each other to effect neutralization. This is achieved by extracting one se'ah from any of the two baskets, or even half a se'ah from each.
- (64) Similar in all respects to the others, but consisting half of terumah and half of hullin. It is immaterial whether he knew which half was terumah or whether he had originally just declared half of the bundle terumah, without precisely specifying which that half was.
- (65) For together with the half of the bundle that fell in, there are one hundred and one parts of hullin, and one part of terumah; hence the half bundle of terumah cannot render the whole a mixture of terumah.

Mishna - Mas. Terumoth Chapter 5

MISHNAH 1. IF A SE'AH OF UNCLEAR TERUMAH FELL INTO LESS THAN A HUNDRED OF HULLIN,¹ OR FIRST TITHE, OR SECOND TITHE, OR DEDICATED PROPERTY,² WHETHER THESE WERE UNCLEAR OR CLEAR, THEY MUST ALL BE LEFT TO ROT.³ IF, HOWEVER, THAT SE AH WAS CLEAR,⁴ [THE ADMIXTURE] MUST BE SOLD TO PRIESTS AT THE PRICE OF TERUMAH,⁵ EXCLUDING THE VALUE OF THAT SE'AH ITSELF.⁶ IF IT FELL INTO FIRST TITHE,⁷ THE WHOLE IS PRONOUNCED AS HEAVE-OFFERING OF TITHE;⁸ AND IF IT FELL INTO SECOND TITHE OR DEDICATED PROPERTY, THEY MUST BE REDEEMED.⁹ IF THE HULLIN¹⁰ WAS UNCLEAR, IT MAY BE EATEN IN THE FORM OF DRIED CRUSTS,¹¹ OR PARCHED CORN,¹² OR KNEADED WITH FRUIT JUICE,¹³ OR DIVIDED INTO PIECES OF DOUGH SO THAT THE CONTENTS OF ONE EGG BE NOT IN ANY ONE PLACE.¹⁴

MISHNAH 2. IF A SE'AH OF UNCLEAR TERUMAH FELL INTO A HUNDRED OF CLEAR HULLIN,¹⁵ R. ELIEZER SAYS: A SE'AH MUST BE TAKEN OUT AND BURNT,¹⁶ ON THE ASSUMPTION THAT THE SE'AH TAKEN OUT IS THE ONE THAT FELL IN. BUT THE

SAGES SAY: IT IS NEUTRALIZED AND EATEN¹⁷ AS DRIED CRUSTS, PARCHED CORN, OR WHEN KNEADED WITH FRUIT-JUICE, OR DIVIDED INTO PIECES OF DOUGH SO THAT THE CONTENTS OF ONE EGG BE NOT FOUND IN ANY ONE PLACE.¹⁸

MISHNAH 3. IF A SE'AH OF CLEAN TERUMAH FELL INTO A HUNDRED OF UNCLEAR HULLIN, IT BECOMES NEUTRALIZED¹⁹ AND MAY BE EATEN IN THE FORM OF DRY CRUSTS, OR PARCHED CORN, OR KNEADED WITH FRUIT-JUICE, OR DIVIDED INTO PIECES OF DOUGH SO THAT THE CONTENTS OF ONE EGG BE NOT FOUND IN ANY ONE PLACE.

MISHNAH 4. IF A SE'AH OF UNCLEAR TERUMAH FELL INTO ONE HUNDRED SE'AHs OF CLEAN TERUMAH, BETH SHAMMAI PROHIBIT²⁰ [THE WHOLE], BUT BETH HILLEL PERMIT IT. SAID BETH HILLEL TO BETH SHAMMAI: SEEING THAT CLEAN [TERUMAH] IS FORBIDDEN TO NON-PRIESTS AND UNCLEAR [TERUMAH IS FORBIDDEN] TO PRIESTS, THEN JUST AS CLEAN [TERUMAH] BECOMES NEUTRALIZED,²¹ SO SHOULD UNCLEAR [TERUMAH] BE NEUTRALIZED.²² BETH SHAMMAI ANSWERED THEM: CERTAINLY NOT; JUST BECAUSE HULLIN WHICH IS TREATED MORE LENIENTLY [IN THAT IT IS PERMITTED TO NON-PRIESTS], NEUTRALIZES CLEAN [TERUMAH], [SHALL] TERUMAH [WHICH IS FAR MORE STRINGENT IN THAT IT IS FORBIDDEN TO NON-PRIESTS] ALSO NEUTRALIZE THAT WHICH IS UNCLEAR? AFTER THEY HAD AGREED,²³ R. ELIEZER SAID: IT SHOULD BE TAKEN OUT AND BURNT, BUT THE SAGES SAID: IT IS REGARDED, ON ACCOUNT OF ITS PAUCITY, AS NON-EXISTENT.²⁴

MISHNAH 5. IF A SE'AH OF TERUMAH FELL INTO A HUNDRED [OF HULLIN] AND WAS LIFTED OUT AND FELL INTO [HULLIN] ELSEWHERE, R. ELIEZER SAYS: THE WHOLE IS RENDERED MEDUMMA'²⁵ AS THOUGH UNDOUBTED TERUMAH [HAD FALLEN IN].²⁶ BUT THE SAGES SAY: IT IS RENDERED MEDUMMA' ONLY ACCORDING TO PROPORTION.²⁷

MISHNAH 6. IF A SE'AH OF TERUMAH FELL INTO LESS THAN A HUNDRED [OF HULLIN], RENDERING THE WHOLE MEDUMMA, AND PART OF THIS ADMIXTURE FELL AFTERWARDS INTO ANOTHER PLACE,²⁸ R. ELIEZER SAYS: IT RENDERS THIS AGAIN MEDUMMA. AS THOUGH UNDOUBTED TERUMAH [HAD FALLEN IN]²⁹ ; BUT THE SAGES SAY THAT THE [FIRST] MIXTURE CAN AFFECT THE [SECOND] MIXTURE ONLY ACCORDING TO THE PROPORTION.³⁰ [SIMILARLY], THAT WHICH IS LEAVENED [WITH TERUMAH] CAN RENDER OTHER DOUGH LEAVENED [AS WITH TERUMAH], ONLY ACCORDING TO THE PROPORTION;³¹ AND DRAWN WATER CAN DISQUALIFY THE RITUAL BATH ALSO ONLY ACCORDING TO THE PROPORTION.³²

MISHNAH 7. IF A SE'AH OF TERUMAH FELL INTO A HUNDRED [OF HULLIN] AND [A SE'AH] IS LIFTED OUT,³³ AND THERE FELL IN ANOTHER AND IS LIFTED OUT AND ANOTHER FELL IN,³⁴ THE HULLIN IS PERMISSIBLE AS LONG AS THE AMOUNT OF TERUMAH DOES NOT EXCEED THAT OF THE HULLIN.³⁵

MISHNAH 8. IF A SE'AH OF TERUMAH FELL INTO A HUNDRED [OF HULLIN], AND BEFORE HE COULD TAKE IT OUT, ANOTHER FELL IN, THE WHOLE BECOMES FORBIDDEN.³⁶ R. SIMEON PERMITS IT.³⁷

MISHNAH 9. IF A SE'AH OF TERUMAH FELL INTO A HUNDRED [OF HULLIN], AND THEY WERE GROUND TOGETHER AND REDUCED IN BULK, [IT IS ASSUMED THAT] JUST AS THE HULLIN BECAME LESS SO THE TERUMAH BECAME LESS, AND THE WHOLE IS PERMISSIBLE.³⁸ IF A SE'AH OF TERUMAH FELL INTO LESS THAN A

HUNDRED [OF HULLIN] AND THEY WERE GROUND TOGETHER AND INCREASED IN BULK, [IT IS ASSUMED THAT] JUST AS THE HULLIN BECAME MORE, SO DID THE TERUMAH BECOME MORE,³⁹ AND IT IS FORBIDDEN. IF IT IS KNOWN THAT THE WHEAT OF HULLIN WAS BETTER THAN THE TERUMAH, IT IS PERMITTED.⁴⁰ IF A SE'AH OF TERUMAH FELL INTO LESS THAN A HUNDRED [OF HULLIN], AND MORE HULLIN FELL THEREIN LATER,⁴¹ IF [THE OCCURRENCE WAS] ACCIDENTAL IT IS PERMISSIBLE,⁴² BUT IF INTENTIONAL IT IS FORBIDDEN.⁴³

- (1) Had there been the prescribed hundred se'ahs, even unclean terumah, though forbidden to priests, would have been neutralized.
- (2) For sacred Temple use, either for sacrifice purchase or for Temple repair.
- (3) Since even a priest cannot eat it. It must not be burnt, like other terumah, lest he come to eat thereof.
- (4) And, of course, also the hullin into which it had fallen.
- (5) Which is less than that of hullin since only priests can be the purchasers, and since it cannot be eaten by them when they are unclean.
- (6) Which must be given free to the priest, its rightful owner.
- (7) From which the Levite had to give heave-offering of tithe to the priest.
- (8) And must be sold to the priest, with the exception of the value of the terumah and the heave-offering of tithe therein, which already belong to the priest.
- (9) The redemption money to be enjoyed in Jerusalem.
- (10) Into which it had fallen.
- (11) It can only be enjoyed in these forms. Each crust must be less than half an egg in size and must be eaten without any liquid, so it be not susceptible to uncleanness.
- (12) If roasted in fire in its dry state, it will not be susceptible to defilement.
- (13) Which is not of those seven liquids that render food susceptible to uncleanness (v. Maksh. VI, 4). Once the terumah becomes susceptible, it can no longer be eaten by the priest.
- (14) The amount fixed in Toh. III, 4 for foods to be susceptible to uncleanness. Unclean terumah cannot be eaten even in these forms.
- (15) Thus becoming neutralized. The reference is to hullin that had not been rendered susceptible by means of liquids to uncleanness.
- (16) As is the law regarding all terumah that had become defiled. Since prior to burning it had become neutralized, there is no fear lest he may eat thereof. No benefit, however, must be derived from the actual burning.
- (17) I.e., the whole mixture, v. Rashi Bek. 22b.
- (18) V notes to preceding Mishnah. One se'ah, however, must actually be burnt or given to a priest, since its very retention would give the appearance of 'robbing the tribe'. For other interpretations v. Tif. Yis.
- (19) Even R. Eliezer, who maintained above that the se'ah taken out as terumah must be burnt, will here admit that it may be eaten, for, when taken out, it resumes its status of clean terumah. Yet, despite this admission, he insists that it can be enjoyed only in the manner here prescribed, arguing that when he ruled that 'the se'ah which is taken out may be the one that fell in', it was meant as a stringent measure and not as a tendency to leniency.
- (20) Maintaining that terumah falling into other terumah is not neutralized even in one hundred and one parts.
- (21) By falling into a hundred parts of clean hullin.
- (22) The instance cited in our Mishnah.
- (23) Beth Shammai agreed to the view of Beth Hillel — said to be the only admission of such a kind. The counter-argument of Beth Hillel, omitted from the Mishnah, must have been this: If clean terumah (which non-priests must not eat on penalty of death) is neutralized, then surely unclean terumah, which the priest is debarred from eating only by a positive command, ought certainly to be neutralized!
- (24) The admixture pronounced clean and there is no need for even one se'ah to be taken out and burnt, since the whole has been neutralized.
- (25) V. Glos.
- (26) In accordance with his principle (supra V, 2) that the se'ah taken out is assumed to be the very one that fell in; hence though neutralized the first time, it is treated as terumah once again and requires a hundred se'ahs of hullin to neutralize it.

- (27) After it had been neutralized, only one 1/100th part thereof is actually terumah, and accordingly it becomes nullified in one se'ah of hullin the second time, and only that proportion need be separated as terumah to make the second admixture permissible.
- (28) Into other hullin.
- (29) True to his principle of supra V, 2.
- (30) Of terumah in the mixture that fell in. An illustration: If a se'ah of terumah fell into fifty of hullin, rendering the whole medumma', and a se'ah of the medumma' afterwards fell into other hullin, it only requires two se'ahs, to counteract the terumah in the se'ah which fell in a second time, to neutralize it.
- (31) Dough leavened with terumah is forbidden to non-priests ('Orlah II, 4).
- (32) A mikweh has to contain forty se'ahs of undrawn water, and if the slightest amount be lacking of this quantity and three logs of drawn water from a vessel were poured therein, it becomes ritually disqualified. If some water of this disqualified mikweh afterwards fell into another mikweh, likewise defective in the prescribed quantity, it only disqualifies according to the proportion of drawn water in the quantity now poured in.
- (33) In order to make the hullin by which it was neutralized permissible.
- (34) Into the same hullin, a se'ah of terumah keeps falling in and a se'ah is taken out.
- (35) As long as over fifty se'ahs of terumah have not fallen in one after another.
- (36) To a non-priest; it is as if the two had fallen in together, with no hundred to neutralize it.
- (37) On this principle that since it was about to be removed, we deem it as already removed.
- (38) And there is still the prescribed quantity in the hullin to neutralize the terumah. (The wheat becomes less in grinding if worms had got in and had taken out the flour).
- (39) Since both are ground together.
- (40) It being now obvious that the hullin had become more, and therefore possesses now the amount to neutralize the terumah.
- (41) Making the hullin one hundred and one se'ahs.
- (42) He must remove, however, the se'ah that fell in.
- (43) An intentional act implies a disregard of an injunction. The admixture is then treated as medumma'.

Mishna - Mas. Terumoth Chapter 6

MISHNAH 1. ONE WHO EATS TERUMAH UNWITTINGLY MUST REPAY ITS VALUE PLUS A FIFTH,¹ WHETHER HE EATS OR DRINKS IT, OR ANOINTS HIMSELF WITH IT,² OR WHETHER THE TERUMAH IS CLEAN OR UNCLEAR; HE MUST PAY ITS FIFTH, AND A FIFTH OF THAT FIFTH.³ THE REPAYMENT MUST NOT BE IN TERUMAH BUT IN HULLIN,⁴ DULY TITHED, WHICH BECOMES TERUMAH, AND WHATEVER MAY BE REPAID IN ITS PLACE ALSO BECOMES TERUMAH.⁵ IF THE PRIEST WISHES TO FOREGO [THE FINE], HE CANNOT DO SO.⁶

MISHNAH 2. IF THE DAUGHTER OF AN ISRAELITE ATE TERUMAH,⁷ AND AFTERWARDS MARRIED A PRIEST,⁸ IF THE TERUMAH SHE HAD EATEN HAD NOT YET BEEN ACQUIRED BY ANOTHER PRIEST SHE CAN REPAY TO HERSELF THE VALUE AND THE FIFTH;⁹ BUT IF A PRIEST HAD ALREADY ACQUIRED THE TERUMAH SHE HAD EATEN, SHE MUST REPAY THE VALUE TO THE OWNERS,¹⁰ BUT THE FIFTH TO HERSELF; BECAUSE IT HAD BEEN SAID THAT HE WHO EATS TERUMAH UNWITTINGLY, MUST PAY THE VALUE TO THE OWNERS AND THE FIFTH TO WHOMSOEVER¹¹ HE DESIRES.

MISHNAH 3. IF ONE GIVES HIS WORKMEN OR HIS GUESTS TERUMAH TO EAT HE MUST REPAY THE VALUE THEREOF,¹² WHILST THEY MUST PAY THE FIFTH;¹³ SO R. MEIR. BUT THE SAGES SAY: THEY MUST PAY BOTH THE VALUE AND THE FIFTH, WHILST HE MUST PAY THEM FOR THE PRICE OF THEIR MEAL.¹⁴

MISHNAH 4. IF ONE STEALS TERUMAH BUT DID NOT EAT IT, HE MUST RETURN

TWOFOLD AT THE PRICE OF THE TERUMAH.¹⁵ IF HE HAD EATEN IT, HE MUST PAY TWICE THE VALUE PLUS A FIFTH: ONE VALUE AND A FIFTH FROM HULLIN,¹⁶ AND THE OTHER VALUE AT THE PRICE OF TERUMAH.¹⁷ IF ONE STEALS THE TERUMAH OF DEDICATED PROPERTY¹⁸ AND ATE IT, HE MUST REPAY TWO FIFTHS,¹⁹ IN ADDITION TO THE VALUE, FOR TO DEDICATED THINGS [THE LAW OF] TWOFOLD RESTITUTION DOES NOT APPLY.²⁰

MISHNAH 5. THIS REPAYMENT²¹ CANNOT BE MADE FROM GLEANINGS, AND THE FORGOTTEN SHEAF, FROM PE'AH OR OWNERLESS PROPERTY;²² NOR FROM FIRST TITHE FROM WHICH TERUMAH HAS BEEN TAKEN, OR FROM SECOND TITHE²³ OR DEDICATED PRODUCE²⁴ WHICH HAVE BEEN REDEEMED, FOR ONE DEDICATED THING CANNOT REDEEM ANOTHER WHICH HAS BEEN DEDICATED. SO R. MEIR; BUT THE SAGES PERMIT [PAYMENT] WITH THESE.²⁵

MISHNAH 6. R. ELIEZER SAYS: REPAYMENT MAY BE MADE FROM ONE KIND FOR THAT OF ANOTHER,²⁶ PROVIDED THAT IT IS FROM A SUPERIOR FOR THAT OF AN INFERIOR KIND.²⁷ R. AKIBA SAYS: REPAYMENT CAN BE MADE ONLY FROM THE SAME KIND. HENCE IF A MAN ATE CUCUMBERS GROWN A YEAR BEFORE THE SEVENTH YEAR, HE MUST WAIT FOR THOSE GROWN AFTER THE TERMINATION OF THE SEVENTH YEAR AND REPAY WITH THEM.²⁸ THE SAME SOURCE WHICH CAUSES R. ELIEZER TO BE LENIENT CAUSES R. AKIBA TO ADOPT A STRINGENT RULING; FOR IT IS WRITTEN: AND HE SHALL GIVE UNTO THE PRIEST THE HOLY THING,²⁹ [IMPLYING,] WHATEVER IS LIABLE TO BECOME 'HOLY'. SO. R. ELIEZER. BUT R. AKIBA SAYS: 'AND HE SHALL GIVE UNTO THE PRIEST THE HOLY THING', [MEANING] THE SAME KIND OF HOLY THING WHICH HE HAD EATEN.

- (1) V. Lev. XXII, 14. This Fifth amounts to a quarter of the value of the terumah he ate. Thus if the terumah was valued at one denar, he must pay a denar and a quarter. All fifths mentioned in the Torah are computed thus.
- (2) Drinking wine of terumah is like eating terumah, and anointing oneself with oil of terumah like drinking it; cf. Shab. IX, 4.
- (3) If he further unwittingly eats of the Fifth he had brought, he must bring yet another fifth of this Fifth.
- (4) Since a debt must be repaid from one's own possessions, he cannot do so from terumah, which belongs to the priest. Even terumah which he inherits and may sell cannot be brought as compensation.
- (5) If he ate the hullin which he had repaid for eating terumah, the second repayment, too, becomes terumah.
- (6) The priest has no power to renounce a due ordained by the Torah.
- (7) Before giving it to the priest, she ate of it in error. The term 'Israelite' in this connection denotes one who is not a priest.
- (8) Prior to bringing the required compensation of the value plus a Fifth. Being now the wife of a priest, she could eat terumah herself (Lev. XXII, 11).
- (9) For she is now like any other priest.
- (10) Here, to the priest who had already acquired the terumah.
- (11) Any priest.
- (12) Lit., 'the principal'.
- (13) As an atonement for having eaten terumah unwittingly, but he must pay the whole value for having 'robbed the tribe' The case is of one who is unaware that he is giving them terumah to eat. The Fifth is only paid by him who actually derives benefit from the terumah (supra VI, 1). and not by him who causes it to be eaten. This is derived from Lev. XXII, 14, 'and if a man eat of the holy thing', which excludes one who causes damage to it.
- (14) He intended to give them. According to R. Meir, he has to pay them the value of the terumah they ate in their meal, which is cheaper in price; but according to the Sages, the full value of what they had eaten, as though it was hullin. For though they had eaten the meal, their enjoyment of it had been impaired when they learnt that they had eaten terumah.
- (15) V. Ex. XXII, 3.
- (16) Which becomes terumah automatically.

- (17) As the twofold restitution.
- (18) Which the priest had dedicated for Temple repairs.
- (19) One fifth for the terumah he ate, and the other because he had enjoyed consecrated property; Lev. V, 16.
- (20) Ex. XXII, 8; the word 'to his neighbour' excludes property which has been 'dedicated'.
- (21) To the priest for eating terumah unwittingly.
- (22) These, being once exempt from all tithes and dues (supra I, 5), cannot become terumah even when now acquired by him. Cf. Pe'ah IV passim.
- (23) Being of the opinion that Second Tithe is also 'dedicated' produce.
- (24) Also exempt from terumah (supra I, 5), hence even after their redemption, no repayment can be made with them.
- (25) With tithes and dedicated produce that have been redeemed.
- (26) If he had eaten figs of terumah, he can repay with dates, but those offered must be of a superior kind to those eaten.
- (27) Must be of the same amount as those eaten, but of better value and more sought after by purchasers.
- (28) Those now left of the sixth year are no longer fit to be eaten, owing to having become hard, whilst from those grown in the Sabbatical year no benefit whatsoever may be derived (Sheb. VII, 3). Repayment, which must be of the same kind can, therefore, only be made with those grown after the Seventh year.
- (29) Lev. XXII, 14.

Mishna - Mas. Terumoth Chapter 7

MISHNAH 1. HE WHO EATS TERUMAH OF SET PURPOSE¹ MUST REPAY ITS VALUE,² BUT NOT THE FIFTH,³ AND THE REPAYMENT REMAINS HULLIN.⁴ [ACCORDINGLY,] IF THE PRIEST WISHES TO REMIT THIS, HE CAN.

MISHNAH 2. IF THE DAUGHTER OF A PRIEST MARRIED AN ISRAELITE⁵ AND AFTERWARDS ATE TERUMAH, SHE MUST REPAY THE VALUE BUT NOT THE FIFTH;⁶ AND HER DEATH-PENALTY [FOR ADULTERY] IS BY BURNING.⁷ IF SHE MARRIED ANY OF THOSE DISQUALIFIED,⁸ SHE MUST PAY BACK BOTH THE VALUE AND THE FIFTH, AND HER DEATH-PENALTY [FOR ADULTERY] IS BY STRANGLING; SO SAYS R. MEIR. BUT THE SAGES SAY: IN EITHER CASE, SHE REPAYS THE VALUE BUT NOT THE FIFTH, AND THE DEATH PENALTY IS BY BURNING.

MISHNAH 3. [AN ISRAELITE] WHO FEEDS [WITH TERUMAH] HIS SMALL SONS, OR HIS SLAVES WHETHER THEY ARE OF AGE OR MINORS,⁹ OR WHO EATS TERUMAH FROM OUTSIDE THE LAND,¹⁰ OR LESS THAN AN OLIVE'S BULK OF TERUMAH,¹¹ MUST REPAY THE VALUE THEREOF, BUT NOT THE FIFTH; AND THE REPAYMENT REMAINS HULLIN. [HENCE] IF THE PRIEST DESIRES TO FOREGO [THE RESTITUTION], HE MAY DO SO.

MISHNAH 4. THIS IS THE GENERAL PRINCIPLE: WHENSOEVER ONE HAS TO REPAY BOTH THE VALUE AND THE FIFTH, THE REPAYMENT BECOMES TERUMAH, AND IF THE PRIEST DESIRES TO REMIT, HE CANNOT REMIT REPAYMENT; BUT WHENSOEVER ONE HAS TO REPAY THE VALUE ONLY AND NOT THE FIFTH, THE REPAYMENT REMAINS HULLIN, AND IF THE PRIEST WISHES TO REMIT HE CAN REMIT.

MISHNAH 5. IF THERE WERE TWO BASKETS, ONE OF TERUMAH AND ONE OF HULLIN, AND A SE'AH OF TERUMAH FELL INTO ONE OF THEM, BUT IT IS NOT KNOWN INTO WHICH, I ASSUME THAT IT HAD FALLEN INTO THAT OF THE TERUMAH.¹² IF IT IS NOT KNOWN WHICH WAS OF TERUMAH AND WHICH OF HULLIN,¹³ AND HE EATS FROM ONE OF THEM, HE IS EXEMPT,¹⁴ AND THE SECOND BASKET IS TREATED AS TERUMAH AND SUBJECT TO THE LAW OF 'DOUGH-OFFERING', SO R. MEIR;¹⁵ BUT R. JOSE EXEMPTS IT.¹⁶ IF ANOTHER MAN EATS OF THE SECOND BASKET HE IS EXEMPT,¹⁷ BUT IF ONE MAN ATE OF BOTH, HE MUST REPAY THE VALUE OF THE

SMALLER OF THE TWO.¹⁸

MISHNAH 6. IF ONE OF THESE [BASKETS] FELL INTO HULLIN, IT DOES NOT RENDER IT MEDUMMA',¹⁹ BUT THE SECOND IS TREATED AS TERUMAH AND SUBJECT TO THE LAW OF HALLAH, SO R. MEIR. R. JOSE EXEMPTS IT.²⁰ IF THE SECOND FALLS ELSEWHERE [INTO HULLIN]. IT DOES NOT RENDER IT MEDUMMA'. IF BOTH OF THEM FALL INTO ONE PLACE, THEY RENDER IT MEDUMMA' ACCORDING TO [THE PROPORTION] OF THE SMALLER OF THE TWO.²¹

MISHNAH 7. IF HE USED ONE OF THESE [BASKETS] AS SEED, HE IS EXEMPT,²² AND THE SECOND IS TREATED AS IF IT WERE TERUMAH AND SUBJECT TO THE LAW OF HALLAH: SO R. MEIR; BUT R. JOSE EXEMPTS IT. IF ANOTHER PERSON USES THE SECOND AS SEED, THEN HE IS EXEMPT. IF ONE MAN SOWS BOTH AS SEED, IF IT IS OF A KIND WHOSE SEED ROTS [IN THE GROUND]²³ IT IS PERMISSIBLE, BUT IF IT IS OF THE KIND WHOSE SEED DOES NOT ROT,²⁴ IT IS PROHIBITED.

(1) But did not receive legal warning by witnesses (התראה); for had he been so warned prior to committing the offence, he would have received flogging (מלקות) and be exempt from the monetary fine, the lesser penalty being merged in the greater offence. The wilful offender without such warning, incurred the penalty of death (heavenly) which did not, however, exempt him from repayment.

(2) Having robbed a priest.

(3) Which was brought as atonement only in the case of him who ate terumah unwittingly.

(4) The repayment becomes terumah only when this restitution was made for an unintentional act; v. supra VI, 1.

(5) Thus forfeiting her right to terumah; Lev. XXII, 12.

(6) Which was only paid by one totally alien to priesthood. Besides she may qualify again to eat terumah on her return to her father's household after her husband's death (Lev. XXII, 13). Since sanctity of priestly stock clings to her, she is not deemed totally a stranger to terumah.

(7) Like all daughters of a priest, v. Lev. XXI, 9. Though irrelevant to our main issue, it is cited here en passant.

(8) From marrying into the priesthood, e.g., a חלל one who is profane (Lev. XXI, 7), or a Nethin, a descendant of the Gibeonites, or a במזר, a bastard. By marrying any of these, she severs all connection with the priesthood and is deemed the daughter of an Israelite.

(9) Not having property of their own, the owner must pay the value for them, but not the Fifth, which is only paid by him who actually eats of the terumah. The case here is of one who feeds them on terumah unintentionally.

(10) Regarded as terumah only by an injunction of the Rabbis; cf. Yad. IV, 3.

(11) The minimum standard for culpability.

(12) And the basket of hullin is absolutely permissible, even if there be not therein a hundred to neutralize it. This leniency is due to the fact that terumah these days is only a Rabbinical injunction.

(13) In this case, the above hypothetical argument cannot be applied.

(14) From the value of the terumah and its Fifth, since he can claim that he had eaten of the hullin.

(15) Doubt cannot exempt it from obligations that fall upon hullin; cf. Hal. 1, 3.

(16) From hallah, since it may contain an admixture of terumah.

(17) The proviso here is that they must come independently to enquire about their own position, for we can then argue that each one had eaten of the pile of hullin, an argument hardly tenable if both come together. The exemptions refer only to the Fifth; cf. Toh. V, 5.

(18) In all cases of doubt we inflict the smaller penalty on the plea that it is upon him who claims to bring proof.

(19) On the plea that it might have been the hullin which fell in.

(20) Each of the two instances are necessary; the first to emphasize the view of R. Jose, though the terumah is still actually there; and the present to emphasize the view of R. Meir who subjects the admixture to the law of hallah.

(21) And if there be a hundred to neutralize this smaller of the two, the admixture is permitted.

(22) I.e., what will grow therefrom will be hullin and he must not plough up the seed, as is the case where one sows undoubted terumah; cf. infra IX, 1. But where there is the slightest doubt, leniency is advised.

(23) Like seed of wheat and barley. In this case it is regarded as what grows from medumma' and hence permissible; cf.

infra IX, 6.

(24) Like seed of garlic and onion. It is regarded as the growth of terumah, and hence prohibited.

Mishna - Mas. Terumoth Chapter 8

MISHNAH 1. IF A WOMAN WAS EATING TERUMAH,¹ AND THEY CAME AND SAID TO HER: 'THY HUSBAND IS DEAD', OR 'HE HAS DIVORCED THEE';² OR, IF A SLAVE WAS EATING TERUMAH,³ AND THEY CAME AND SAID TO HIM: 'THY MASTER IS DEAD',⁴ OR 'HE HAS SOLD THEE TO AN ISRAELITE', OR 'HE HAS GIVEN THEE AWAY AS GIFT', OR 'HE HAS EMANCIPATED THEE'; SO, TOO, IF A PRIEST WAS EATING TERUMAH AND IT BECAME KNOWN THAT HE WAS THE SON OF A DIVORCED WOMAN⁵ OR OF ONE THAT HAD GIVEN HALIZAH,⁶ R. ELIEZER SAYS: THEY MUST REPAY BOTH THE VALUE AND THE FIFTH;⁷ BUT R. JOSHUA EXEMPTS THEM.⁸ IF [A PRIEST] WAS STANDING AND SACRIFICING ON THE ALTAR AND IT BECAME KNOWN THAT HE WAS THE SON OF A DIVORCED WOMAN OR OF ONE WHO HAD GIVEN HALIZAH, R. ELIEZER SAYS: ALL THE SACRIFICES HE HAD OFFERED ON THE ALTAR ARE RITUALLY DISQUALIFIED; BUT R. JOSHUA PRONOUNCES THEM VALID.⁹ IF IT, HOWEVER, BECAME KNOWN THAT HE POSSESSED A BLEMISH, HIS MINISTRATION IS INVALID.¹⁰

MISHNAH 2. IN ALL THE ABOVE CASES,¹¹ IF TERUMAH WAS STILL IN THEIR MOUTH,¹² R. ELIEZER SAYS: THEY MAY SWALLOW IT;¹³ BUT R. JOSHUA SAYS: THEY MUST SPIT IT OUT. [IF IT WAS SAID TO HIM]. 'THOU ART BECOME UNCLEAR',¹⁴ OR THAT 'THE TERUMAH IS DEFILED', R. ELIEZER SAYS: HE MAY SWALLOW IT; BUT R. JOSHUA SAYS: HE MUST SPIT IT OUT. [IF IT WAS SAID TO HIM], 'THOU HAST BEEN UNCLEAR'¹⁵ OR THAT THE TERUMAH WAS DEFILED', OR IT HAD BECOME KNOWN THAT IT WAS UNTITHED, OR THAT IT WAS FIRST TITHE FROM WHICH TERUMAH HAD NOT YET BEEN TAKEN, OR SECOND TITHE OR DEDICATED PRODUCE THAT HAD NOT BEEN REDEEMED, OR IF HE TASTED THE TASTE OF A BUG IN HIS MOUTH,¹⁶ HE MUST SPIT IT OUT.

MISHNAH 3. IF HE WAS EATING A BUNCH OF GRAPES,¹⁷ AND HE ENTERED FROM THE GARDEN INTO THE COURTYARD,¹⁸ R. ELIEZER SAYS: HE MAY FINISH EATING;¹⁹ BUT R. JOSHUA SAYS: HE MAY NOT FINISH.²⁰ IF DUSK SET IN AT THE EVE OF SABBATH,²¹ R. ELIEZER SAYS: HE MAY FINISH EATING;²² BUT R. JOSHUA SAYS: HE MAY NOT FINISH.²³

MISHNAH 4. IF WINE OF TERUMAH HAD REMAINED UNCOVERED,²⁴ IT MUST BE POURED OUT;²⁵ AND THERE IS LESS NEED TO SAY THIS IN THE CASE OF HULLIN.²⁶ THREE KINDS OF LIQUIDS ARE FORBIDDEN ON ACCOUNT OF BEING UNCOVERED: WATER, WINE AND MILK, BUT ALL OTHER DRINKS ARE PERMITTED. HOW LONG SHOULD THEY REMAIN UNCOVERED FOR THEM TO BECOME PROHIBITED? THE TIME IT TAKES THE SERPENT²⁷ TO CREEP OUT FROM A PLACE NEAR BY AND DRINK.²⁸

MISHNAH 5. THE AMOUNT OF WATER THAT MAY REMAIN UNCOVERED²⁹ MUST BE SUFFICIENT TO NEGATIVE THE POISON THEREIN. R. JOSHUA SAYS: IN VESSELS [IT IS FORBIDDEN] WHATEVER BE THE QUANTITY, BUT FOR WATER ON THE GROUND, IT MUST BE FORTY SE'AH.³⁰

MISHNAH 6. FIGS, GRAPES, CUCUMBERS, PUMPKINS, WATER-MELONS OR SWEET MELONS THAT HAVE BEEN BITTEN,³¹ EVEN IF THERE IS AS MUCH AS A TALENT,³² WHETHER THEY BE LARGE OR SMALL,³³ PLUCKED OR STILL ATTACHED TO THE SOIL, THEY ARE FORBIDDEN AS LONG AS THERE IS JUICE IN THEM.³⁴ [A BEAST]

BITTEN BY A SERPENT³⁵ IS FORBIDDEN ON ACCOUNT OF THE DANGER TO LIFE.³⁶

MISHNAH 7. A WINE-FILTER, USED AS A COVER, RENDERS [THE WINE BENEATH ALSO] FORBIDDEN THROUGH BEING UNCOVERED;³⁷ BUT R. NEHEMIAH PERMITS IT.³⁸

MISHNAH 8. IF A DOUBT OF IMPURITY ARISES CONCERNING A JAR OF TERUMAH,³⁹ R. ELIEZER SAYS: IF IT HAD BEEN HITHERTO DEPOSITED IN AN EXPOSED PLACE,⁴⁰ HE MUST NOW PLACE IT IN A HIDDEN PLACE;⁴¹ AND IF IT HAD FORMERLY BEEN UNCOVERED, IT MUST NOW BE COVERED.⁴² BUT R. JOSHUA MAINTAINS THAT IF IT HAD BEEN IN A HIDDEN PLACE, HE MUST⁴³ NOW DEPOSIT IT IN AN EXPOSED PLACE; AND IF IT HAD FORMERLY BEEN COVERED UP, HE MUST⁴³ NOW UNCOVER IT.⁴⁴ R. GAMALIEL SAYS: LET HIM NOT DO ANYTHING NEW TO IT.⁴⁵

MISHNAH 9. IF A JAR [OF TERUMAH] WAS BROKEN IN THE UPPER PART OF THE WINE-PRESS,⁴⁶ AND THE LOWER PART WAS UNCLEAN,⁴⁷ BOTH R. ELIEZER AND R. JOSHUA AGREE THAT IF ONE CAN SAVE AT LEAST A REBI'ITH⁴⁸ THEREOF IN CLEANNESS HE SHOULD SAVE IT;⁴⁹ BUT IF NOT,⁵⁰ R. ELIEZER SAYS: LET IT FLOW DOWN AND BECOME UNCLEAN OF ITS OWN ACCORD,⁵¹ AND LET HIM NOT MAKE IT UNCLEAN WITH HIS OWN HANDS.⁵²

MISHNAH 10. SIMILARLY, IF A JAR OF OIL [OF TERUMAH] WAS UPSET, BOTH R. ELIEZER AND R. JOSHUA AGREE THAT IF HE CAN SAVE THEREOF AT LEAST A REBI'ITH IN CLEANNESS HE SHOULD SAVE IT; BUT IF NOT, R. ELIEZER SAYS: LET IT FLOW AWAY AND BE ABSORBED [IN THE GROUND] AND LET HIM NOT GATHER IT UP WITH HIS OWN HANDS.⁵³

MISHNAH 11. CONCERNING BOTH CASES,⁵⁴ R. JOSHUA SAID: 'THIS IS NOT THE KIND OF TERUMAH OVER WHICH I AM CAUTIONED LEST I DEFILE IT, BUT LEST I EAT OF IT.' OF WHICH [WAS IT CAUTIONED] 'THAT THOU MUST NOT DEFILE IT'? IF ONE WAS PASSING FROM PLACE TO PLACE WITH LOAVES OF TERUMAH IN HIS HAND AND A GENTILE SAID TO HIM: 'GIVE ME ONE OF THESE AND I WILL MAKE IT UNCLEAN; FOR IF NOT, I WILL DEFILE THEM ALL', LET HIM DEFILE THEM ALL, AND NOT GIVE HIM DELIBERATELY ONE TO DEFILE. BUT R. JOSHUA SAYS: HE SHOULD PLACE ONE OF THEM ON A ROCK.⁵⁵

MISHNAH 12. SIMILARLY,⁵⁶ IF GENTILES SAY TO WOMEN: 'GIVE US ONE OF YOU THAT WE MAY DEFILE HER,⁵⁷ AND IF NOT, WE WILL DEFILE YOU ALL', THEN LET THEM ALL BE DEFILED RATHER THAN HAND OVER TO THEM ONE SOUL FROM ISRAEL.⁵⁸

(1) The daughter of an Israelite married to a priest, unless she is divorced or widowed, may eat terumah. The mother of a priest's son may also eat terumah, v. supra VII, 2.

(2) I.e., he had delivered the bill of divorce to your messenger at the place appointed for him to receive it (T.J.).

(3) Lev. XXII, 11 permits non-Hebrew slaves of priests to eat terumah; Hebrew slaves, not being the 'possession' of their masters, cannot eat terumah.

(4) 'And a non-priestly relative of his has now inherited thee', such as his daughter or the son of his daughter who married an Israelite.

(5) And, therefore, deprived of all the rights and privileges of the priesthood: Lev. XXI, 7 and cf. supra VII, I.

(6) The ceremony of taking off the levir's shoe by his childless sister-in-law on his refusing to contract with her the levitical marriage; Deut. XXV, 7 — 9.

(7) As in all cases of an Israelite eating terumah unwittingly, and as if these never had connection with the priesthood.

(8) On the grounds that these are cases not of mere unwitting transgression (שוגג) but of pure accident. V. Yeb 34a.

- (9) He holds that even the work of one unfit for priesthood, owing to illegitimacy, is acceptable to God.
- (10) Even R. Joshua agrees to this.
- (11) Enumerated in the previous Mishnah; v. however, n. 4.
- (12) When word came that their right of eating terumah had ceased.
- (13) In the case of the son of a divorced woman or one who had performed halizah, since he never had the right to eat terumah, R. Eliezer will admit that the terumah must be spewed out (Bert.).
- (14) The defilement coming after he had begun to eat the terumah legally.
- (15) Before eating the terumah, similar to the son of a divorced woman or haluzah, who never possessed the privilege of eating terumah.
- (16) In such cases, he need have no qualms for wasting terumah by spitting it out. In these cases, R. Eliezer agrees with R. Joshua.
- (17) It was permissible to take a casual snack from the produce prior to tithing.
- (18) Once produce enters the owner's domain, it becomes subject to tithes and even a casual meal is now disallowed; Ma'as. I, 5.
- (19) I.e., he returns to the garden where he may finish that which he had begun to eat legally; should he want more to eat, he must take tithe first.
- (20) Before he has taken tithe; even in the garden. without first tithing what he had begun to eat.
- (21) When it is forbidden to tithe (Shab. II, 7) and he had not yet finished his casual meal in the garden. The Sabbath converts even the casual meal into a fixed one.
- (22) After its termination (Bert.).
- (23) Even on the termination of the Sabbath, without first tithing it.
- (24) The danger being lest a serpent had drunk of it and deposited therein some of its venom, a fear more real than imaginary in Talmudic times.
- (25) Without the slightest qualms of wasting terumah; the saving of one's life being more important than a prohibition. The wine may not be given to cattle to drink, lest the poison which may not affect them may affect those who will afterwards eat of their flesh.
- (26) In which case no qualms exist about waste.
- (27) Lit., 'the creeping thing'.
- (28) That place may even be the vessel containing the liquid itself; namely, as long as it takes the serpent to crawl out from the crevice in the handle of the vessel, sip of its contents and creep back.
- (29) And be used for drinking.
- (30) The coldness of the ground helps to neutralize poison.
- (31) Lit., 'hollowed', probably by snakes.
- (32) Cf. R. H. 15. I.e., even though the fruit on the trees are many so that a serpent cannot be supposed to have gnawed them all, Tif. Yis. The phrase is obscure.
- (33) This probably refers to the holes.
- (34) The juice in the fruit helps to circulate the venom; if the fruit is, however, very dry, the affected part can be cut out and thrown away and the rest eaten.
- (35) An animal bitten by a serpent and afterwards slaughtered must not be eaten, not because it is trefah, but because of danger to life.
- (36) Cf. Hul. 49a.
- (37) The poison can easily percolate into the wine through the tiny holes of the strainer.
- (38) Maintaining that since it is the nature of poison to swim on the surface, it would be easily discernible were it in the strainer.
- (39) The instance is of two jars, each containing terumah and left in private grounds one of which had come into contact with a dead serpent, but which it was is uncertain. Being in private territory, all doubts of impurity are unclean; whereas in public grounds it would have been deemed pure; cf. Nazir 57a.
- (40) Lit., 'filth', 'dirt'. A place to which all and sundry can have access, for being an open place, uncleanness can easily come.
- (41) Since it is terumah and only a doubt has arisen as to its uncleanness, it must be further protected from uncleanness, and cannot be laid open to contamination deliberately. Even terumah suspected of uncleanness must be protected.
- (42) So that no serpent may now have access to it.

(43) Or 'may' v. Rashi; Pes. 15a.

(44) Once a doubt has arisen, it no longer requires the protection due to the sacred nature of terumah. When it has definitely become unclean, the wine of terumah may be used for aromatic sprinkling, but not when only a doubt exists concerning its nature. R. Joshua's intention is not leniency, but in order to make the wine forbidden definitely.

(45) But allow it to remain in the position it was before doubt arose, not being required to guard it any more closely, or deliberately to allow it to become defiled.

(46) The vat consisted of two parts, one above the other, so that when the grapes were trodden above, the wine flowed down below.

(47) Containing wine of hullin that had become unclean and less than a hundred to neutralize the clean wine of terumah now about to fall in.

(48) A quarter of a log.

(49) In clean vessels; for it is more important to save the terumah from becoming unclean than to save the hullin below from becoming through an admixture of terumah forbidden both to priest and to Israelite. If it be not possible to save terumah in clean vessels then he must save the hullin.

(50) No clean vessels being at hand.

(51) With the hullin becoming forbidden as a result.

(52) By saving the terumah in unclean vessels in order to save the hullin.

(53) Lit., 'absorb it with his hands'. Had the jar been merely broken, as in the case of the wine, R. Joshua would agree with R. Eliezer that he may not save it in unclean vessels, since there would not be much loss in allowing the oil to flow down in the lower part of the vat, for the hullin oil even when containing an admixture of terumah that has become unclean may still be used for burning purposes.

(54) In the case of terumah whose defilement is in doubt (supra 8) and in the case of the two previous Mishnahs where the terumah is in danger of being lost.

(55) And on no account defile the loaves with his own hands and also not give it from hand to hand.

(56) Irrelevant to our main theme, but indirectly connected with the preceding Mishnah.

(57) By forcibly cohabiting with her.

(58) The general principle is that no person may be sacrificed for the saving of others. If, however, they specify one woman in particular, then she may be given over in order to prevent the others from impurity; but if they specify any one man for slaughter, he must not be handed over unless he had been legally condemned to death as a result of some crime. But some maintain that even if he had not been condemned to death owing to some crime, he may be handed over to them if specified by name, in order to save the others (Tif. Yis.).

Mishna - Mas. Terumoth Chapter 9

MISHNAH 1. HE WHO PLANTS TERUMAH, IF UNWITTINGLY, MAY UPROOT IT;¹ IF OF SET PURPOSE, HE MUST ALLOW IT TO REMAIN.² IF IT HAD ALREADY GROWN A THIRD OF ITS FULL SIZE, WHETHER HE HAD PLANTED IT UNWITTINGLY OR INTENTIONALLY, HE MUST ALLOW IT TO REMAIN;³ BUT IN THE CASE OF FLAX, EVEN WHEN PLANTED INTENTIONALLY⁴ HE MUST UPROOT IT.

MISHNAH 2. AND IT⁵ IS SUBJECT TO GLEANINGS, THE FORGOTTEN SHEAF AND PE'AH.⁶ POOR ISRAELITES AND POOR PRIESTS MAY GLEAN THEM, BUT THE POOR ISRAELITES MUST SELL THEIRS TO PRIESTS FOR THE PRICE OF TERUMAH⁷ AND THE MONEY BECOMES THEIRS. R. TARFON SAYS: ONLY POOR PRIESTS MAY GLEAN THEM, LEST [THE OTHERS] FORGET AND PUT IT INTO THEIR MOUTHS.⁸ WHEREUPON R. AKIBA SAID TO HIM: IF THAT BE SO, THEN ONLY THOSE WHO ARE CLEAN SHOULD BE ALLOWED TO GLEAN.⁹

MISHNAH 3. AND IT¹⁰ IS ALSO SUBJECT TO TITHES¹¹ AND POOR MAN'S TITHE. BOTH ISRAELITES AND PRIESTS THAT ARE POOR MAY ACCEPT THEM, BUT THE POOR ISRAELITES MUST SELL THAT WHICH IS THEIRS TO THE PRIEST FOR THE PRICE OF TERUMAH AND THE MONEY BELONGS TO THEM.¹² HE WHO THRESHES THE GRAIN¹³

IS TO BE PRAISED;¹⁴ BUT HE WHO TREADS IT,¹⁵ WHAT SHOULD HE DO?¹⁶ HE MUST SUSPEND BAGS¹⁷ FROM THE NECK OF THE ANIMAL AND PLACE THEREIN FODDER OF THE SAME KIND, WITH THE RESULT THAT HE WILL NEITHER MUZZLE¹⁸ THE ANIMAL NOR CAUSE IT TO EAT TERUMAH.¹⁹

MISHNAH 4. WHAT GROWS FROM TERUMAH IS TERUMAH,²⁰ BUT THAT WHICH [FIRST] GREW OUT FROM IT IS HULLIN. AS FOR UNTITHED PRODUCE,²¹ FIRST TITHE,²² THE AFTER-GROWTH OF THE SABBATICAL YEAR,²³ TERUMAH GROWN OUTSIDE THE LAND,²⁴ THE ADMIXTURE OF HULLIN WITH TERUMAH,²⁵ THE FIRST-FRUIT²⁶ — WHAT GROWS FROM THEM IS REGARDED AS HULLIN. WHAT GROWS FROM DEDICATED PRODUCE AND SECOND TITHE IS HULLIN AND IS TO BE REDEEMED [AT ITS VALUE]²⁷ AT THE TIME WHEN IT WAS SOWN.

MISHNAH 5. IF A HUNDRED ROWS WERE PLANTED WITH TERUMAH SEEDS AND ONE WITH HULLIN,²⁸ THEY ALL ARE PERMITTED, IF THEY ARE OF A KIND WHOSE SEED PERISHES IN THE SOIL;²⁹ BUT IF THEY ARE OF A KIND WHOSE SEED DOES NOT PERISH IN THE SOIL, THEN EVEN IF THERE BE A HUNDRED [ROWS] OF HULLIN AND ONE OF TERUMAH, THEY ALL ARE PROHIBITED.

MISHNAH 6. AS FOR UNTITHED PRODUCE,³⁰ WHAT GROWS FROM IT IS PERMISSIBLE IF OF A KIND WHOSE SEED PERISHES [IN THE SOIL]; BUT IF OF A KIND WHOSE SEED DOES NOT PERISH, THEN EVEN WHAT GROWS FROM WHAT [LATER] GREW OUT OF IT IS FORBIDDEN. WHICH IS THE KIND WHOSE SEED DOES NOT PERISH?³¹ ANYTHING LIKE ARUM,³² GARLIC AND ONIONS. R. JUDAH SAYS: ONIONS [IN THIS RESPECT] ARE LIKE BARLEY.³³

MISHNAH 7. HE WHO WEEDS³⁴ LEEK-PLANTS³⁵ FOR A GENTILE,³⁶ THOUGH THE PRODUCE STILL BE UNTITHED,³⁷ MAY SNATCH THEREFROM A CASUAL MEAL.³⁸ PLANTINGS OF TERUMAH³⁹ WHICH HAD BECOME UNCLEAN AND WERE RE-PLANTED, BECOME CLEAN INSOFAR THAT THEY DO NOT CAUSE DEFILEMENT,⁴⁰ BUT THEY MUST NOT BE EATEN⁴¹ UNTIL THE EDIBLE PART [OF THE STALK] HAS BEEN LOPPED OFF.⁴² R. JUDAH SAYS: HE MUST [BEFORE EATING] LOP OFF A SECOND TIME THAT WHICH GREW ON THE EDIBLE PART.⁴³

(1) By ploughing the soil and tearing out the roots, so that the produce does not grow and be forbidden as terumah.

(2) As a penalty, the produce will be forbidden to him. He must not plough it up, as it would appear as if he is wilfully destroying terumah.

(3) For having attained this size, it is already fit for food and it would appear as if he is destroying terumah deliberately.

(4) And even after it had reached a third of its full size. The reason for this additional stringency in the case of flax is lest he derive benefit from the stalks on the plea that only the seeds are forbidden as terumah, but not the stalks; whereas the main part about flax is just the stalks and not the seed.

(5) What grows from the terumah seeds.

(6) Cf. supra VI, 5 and Pe'ah IV, 10. These Poor Man's dues are imposed since the terumah here is only a Rabbinic ordinance.

(7) Though what grows from terumah is forbidden to strangers, the sanctity of the terumah does not descend upon the money value thereof.

(8) Arguing that since they are allowed to glean the terumah, they may unwittingly eat of it.

(9) Since a priest who had become unclean must not eat terumah. To this challenge, R. Tarfon's rejoinder no doubt was that a priest who is unclean is very careful not to eat terumah Cf. Pes. 33a, 40a.

(10) What grows from terumah seeds.

(11) Including terumah, in the third and sixth year of the Sabbatical cycle.

(12) The fear expressed by R. Tarfon in the previous Mishnah does not apply here, since not being preoccupied as at the time of gleaning, the poor Israelites will be careful not to eat the terumah.

(13) Smiting the ears of corn with flails.

(14) Because he need not muzzle the oxen in order to prevent them from eating of terumah, forbidden to animals not belonging to priests.

(15) Employing oxen to do the threshing for him.

(16) To avoid them eating terumah. Muzzling during threshing is forbidden in Deut. XXV, 4.

(17) Containing fodder of hullin of the same kind which he is treading.

(18) For it still eats of the same kind which it is threshing.

(19) The fodder in the bags containing hullin.

(20) Being one of the eighteen decrees of the Rabbis to prevent priests in possession of terumah that had become unclean, from keeping it till seedtime and then sowing it in order to eat the products Shab. 17a.

(21) Since most of the grain is hullin, only when the seed is entirely terumah is what grows from it also deemed terumah.

(22) Only a tenth being terumah, the rest being hullin.

(23) That which falls from ears of corn at harvest time and grows again of its own accord in the Sabbatical year. This after-growth is dated from the sixth year. Being an infrequent occurrence, occurring once in seven years, it was not held necessary to impose this added stricture regarding what grows from it.

(24) Eretz Israel. Since it was not so usual to import terumah from places outside Palestine, no additional stricture was imposed.

(25) Since most of it is hullin, as in the case of untithed produce and First Tithe.

(26) Brought only of the seven kinds mentioned in Deut. VIII, 8: (wheat, barley, grapes, figs, pomegranates, olives and honey dates) and they are not of such frequent occurrence to warrant the restriction upon what grows from terumah.

(27) I.e., the value of the seeds actually sown.

(28) And it be not known which this is.

(29) leniency was always followed in cases in connection with what grows from terumah, and thus one row of hullin makes all that grows from the hundred rows of terumah permitted, though no neutralization takes place in anything still attached to the soil.

(30) V. supra Mishnah 4, which our Mishnah explains. One may partake a casual meal of what grows from tebel, as long as it does not reach the stage when it is liable to tithes.

(31) So that what grows of it, even in the second grade, is forbidden.

(32) V. Pe'ah VI, 10.

(33) Whose seed perishes. Barley is cited because its seeds perish very quickly. Bert. explains R. Judah's statement thus: 'Only seeds of onions as large as barley do not perish, but those smaller than barley do perish'.

(34) Removing weeds interfering with growth.

(35) Species of onions whose seeds do not rot.

(36) In a field belonging to a non-Jew.

(37) A non-Jew cannot acquire land in Eretz Israel in order to exempt its produce from tithes.

(38) During his labours.

(39) שתילין . Seedlings ready for planting.

(40) Because rooted to the soil, they do not receive defilement and are not yet regarded as food.

(41) Being products of terumah, supra IX, 4.

(42) Leaving only the root. That which grows afterwards is permitted; v. Pes. 34a.

(43) Only that which grows a third time on the spot twice lopped off is permitted.

Mishna - Mas. Terumoth Chapter 10

MISHNAH 1. IF AN ONION [OF TERUMAH] WAS PLACED INTO LENTILS¹ AND THE ONION WAS WHOLE, [THE LENTILS] ARE PERMISSIBLE;² BUT IF [THE ONION] HAD BEEN CUT UP, [IT IS FORBIDDEN³ IF THE ONION] IMPARTS A FLAVOUR. IN THE CASE OF OTHER DISHES,⁴ WHETHER THE ONION IS WHOLE OR CUT UP [IT IS FORBIDDEN] IF IT IMPARTS A FLAVOUR. R. JUDAH PERMITS⁵ IT IN THE CASE OF PICKLED FISH,⁶ BECAUSE THERE IT IS USED ONLY TO REMOVE THE UNPLEASANT FLAVOUR.

MISHNAH 2. IF AN APPLE [OF TERUMAH] WAS CHOPPED AND PLACED INTO DOUGH [OF HULLIN] SO THAT IT LEAVENED IT,⁷ [THE DOUGH] IS FORBIDDEN.⁸ IF BARLEY [OF TERUMAH] FELL INTO A CISTERN OF WATER, THOUGH [THE BARLEY] DETERIORATE IT, THE WATERS ARE PERMISSIBLE.⁹

MISHNAH 3. IF ONE TAKES OFF WARM BREAD¹⁰ FROM THE OVEN¹¹ AND PLACES IT OVER AN OPEN BARREL OF WINE OF TERUMAH,¹² R. MEIR SAYS: IT IS FORBIDDEN;¹³ BUT R. JUDAH¹⁴ PERMITS IT. R. JOSE PERMITS THE BREAD IF IT IS OF WHEAT BUT NOT OF BARLEY, BECAUSE BARLEY ABSORBS.¹⁵

MISHNAH 4. IF AN OVEN WAS HEATED WITH CUMMIN¹⁶ OF TERUMAH AND BREAD WAS BAKED THEREIN, THE BREAD IS PERMITTED, BECAUSE IT IS THE SMELL BUT NOT THE FLAVOUR OF THE CUMMIN [THAT IS CONVEYED THEREIN].¹⁷

MISHNAH 5. IF FENUGREEK¹⁸ FELL INTO A WINE-VAT AND IT WAS TERUMAH OR SECOND TITHE, AND IF THERE IS IN THE SEED ALONE WITHOUT THE STALK SUFFICIENT TO IMPART A FLAVOUR¹⁹ [IT IS FORBIDDEN].²⁰ BUT IN THE CASE OF SEVENTH YEAR²¹ PRODUCE, OR MIXED SEEDS IN VINEYARDS,²² OR DEDICATED PRODUCE, [IT IS FORBIDDEN] IF IN BOTH SEED AND STALK THERE IS SUFFICIENT TO IMPART A FLAVOUR.

MISHNAH 6. IF ONE HAD BUNCHES OF FENUGREEK OF MIXED SEEDS OF THE VINEYARD, THEY MUST BE BURNT.²³ IF HE HAD BUNCHES OF FENUGREEK OF UNTITHED PRODUCE, HE MUST BEAT THEM AND CALCULATE²⁴ THE AMOUNT OF SEED WITHIN THEM AND SET ASIDE [TERUMAH] FROM THE SEED, BUT NOT FROM THE STALKS.²⁵ BUT IF HE DID SET ASIDE [THE TERUMAH ALSO FROM THE STALKS]²⁶ HE MUST NOT SAY: 'I WILL BEAT OUT [THE SEED] AND TAKE THE STALKS AND GIVE ONLY THE SEED', BUT HE MUST GIVE THE STALKS TOGETHER WITH THE SEED.²⁷

MISHNAH 7. IF OLIVES OF HULLIN WERE PICKLED TOGETHER²⁸ WITH OLIVES OF TERUMAH, WHETHER IT WAS A CASE WHERE CRUSHED [OLIVES] OF HULLIN [WERE PICKLED TOGETHER] WITH CRUSHED [OLIVES] OF TERUMAH, OR CRUSHED [OLIVES] OF HULLIN WITH WHOLE [OLIVES] OF TERUMAH,²⁹ OR WITH JUICE OF TERUMAH,³⁰ THEY ARE FORBIDDEN. BUT IF WHOLE [OLIVES] OF HULLIN WERE PICKLED WITH CRUSHED [OLIVES] OF TERUMAH, THEY ARE PERMITTED.³¹

MISHNAH 8. IF UNCLEAN FISH WAS PICKLED WITH CLEAN FISH THE BRINE THEREOF IS FORBIDDEN IF IN A BARREL OF TWO SE'AH'S THE UNCLEAN FISH WEIGHS TEN ZUZ³² IN JUDEAN MEASURE, WHICH IS FIVE SELA'S IN GALILEAN MEASURE.³³ R. JUDAH SAYS: IT NEEDS BE A QUARTER [OF A LOG] IN TWO SE'AH'S;³⁴ R. JOSE SAYS: ONE-SIXTEENTH THEREOF.³⁵

MISHNAH 9. IF UNCLEAN LOCUSTS WERE PICKLED TOGETHER WITH CLEAN ONES, THEY DO NOT MAKE THE BRINE FORBIDDEN.³⁶ R. ZADOK TESTIFIED THAT THE BRINE OF UNCLEAN LOCUSTS³⁷ IS CLEAN.³⁸

MISHNAH 10. WHATSOEVER [VEGETABLES] ARE PICKLED TOGETHER³⁹ ARE PERMITTED, SAVE [WHEN PICKLED] WITH LEEKS.⁴⁰ LEEKS OF HULLIN [PICKLED] WITH THOSE OF TERUMAH, OR OTHER VEGETABLES OF HULLIN WITH LEEKS OF TERUMAH ARE FORBIDDEN,⁴¹ BUT LEEKS OF HULLIN WITH VEGETABLES OF TERUMAH ARE PERMITTED.

MISHNAH 11. R. JOSE SAYS: WHATSOEVER IS STEWED WITH BEET⁴² BECOMES FORBIDDEN, BECAUSE THE LATTER IMPARTS A FLAVOUR. R. SIMEON SAYS: CABBAGE FROM A FIELD ARTIFICIALLY IRRIGATED [THAT IS STEWED] WITH CABBAGE⁴³ FROM A FIELD WATERED BY RAIN, IS FORBIDDEN BECAUSE IT ABSORBS.⁴⁴ R. AKIBA SAYS:⁴⁵ ALL THINGS COOKED TOGETHER⁴⁶ ARE PERMITTED, EXCEPT THOSE WITH MEAT.⁴⁷ R. JOHANAN B. NURI SAYS: LIVER RENDERS OTHER THINGS FORBIDDEN,⁴⁸ BUT DOES NOT ITSELF BECOME FORBIDDEN,⁴⁹ BECAUSE IT EXUDES AND DOES NOT ABSORB.⁵⁰

- (1) Of hullin, cooked but dry. Lit., 'it is permissible'. T.J., basing itself on the word in the sing., says that the case here is of an onion of hullin placed into lentils of terumah, and that the onion is permissible though mixed with terumah.
- (2) Even to non-priests; for a whole onion does not impart to the entire dish the pungency imparted by an onion sliced up; and similarly, if the lentils had been of terumah and the onion of hullin, the onion does not absorb from them or their juice any of their taste, unless they have been cooked together.
- (3) To non-priests.
- (4) Not of lentils, like garlic or leeks of hullin into which an onion of terumah has been placed.
- (5) The use of terumah in a dish of hullin.
- (6) Small fish pickled in brine, of unsavoury flavour. When the onion, whose sole purpose here was to absorb the unpleasant flavour of the fish, has been removed, the fish may be eaten. R. Judah will admit that if the onion had been sliced up or crushed with the fish, the dish would be forbidden.
- (7) With its pungent flavour; 'Orlah II, 4.
- (8) To all non-priests, because the dough had been flavoured with terumah.
- (9) According to the principle that any flavour which has a deteriorating effect is permissible.
- (10) Of hullin.
- (11) In ancient ovens, bread was stuck to the sides of the oven during baking and it required great skill to remove the bread.
- (12) Warm bread quickly absorbs the flavour of wine in the barrel below.
- (13) Because the flavour is as forbidden as the substance itself.
- (14) Being of the opinion that smell is of no consequence; v. Pes. 76b.
- (15) Its tendency is to absorb moisture of the wine.
- (16) An umbelliferous plant like fennel.
- (17) Agreeing with the opinion of R. Judah in the preceding Mishnah.
- (18) A leguminous plant with seeds, used in farriery. Its fruit and stalk taste alike: Kil. II, 5.
- (19) The flavour of terumah itself making the wine forbidden. Only the seed is forbidden in the case of terumah and second tithe and though stalks have the same taste as seed, yet they were not considered holy enough to be counted as terumah.
- (20) If it flavours the second tithe, it must not be eaten outside Jerusalem without redemption, and in Jerusalem it must be eaten with the sanctity due to tithes.
- (21) When even the stalks of fenugreek are forbidden, because they have the same taste as the fruit.
- (22) Lev. XIX, 19; Deut. XXII, 9 — 11. The prohibition applies to stalks as well as to the seed.
- (23) Like all other products of kil'ayim, since even the stalks are forbidden; v. Deut. XXII, 9.
- (24) For all terumah had to be given approximately.
- (25) Though the taste of both stalk and seed is similar the stalks are not subject to terumah.
- (26) I.e., he set aside terumah from seed and stalk before beating them out.
- (27) Once terumah had been pronounced in regard to the stalks, they belong to the priest, and especially since they have the same taste as the seeds.
- (28) In salt water.
- (29) Once the olives of hullin are crushed they absorb the taste of those of terumah that are whole.

- (30) Water in which terumah olives had been pickled.
- (31) Because whole olives only emit flavour, but do not absorb that of the olives of terumah.
- (32) Or 1/960th of the whole contents of the barrel. A se'ah == 24 logs == 48 litras == 4,800 zuzim. If the unclean fish is less than this prescribed amount the brine is permitted. Brine, on account of its pungency, requires a greater amount than 60 to neutralize it.
- (33) Judean measures being double those of Galilee.
- (34) The brine of the unclean fish must be 1/192nd of the contents of the barrel before we declare it forbidden. (The se'ah == 6 kabs == 24 logs; 2 se'ahs == 48 logs, and a quarter of a log is, therefore, 1/192nd of two se'ahs). Though R. Judah is of opinion that the admixture of a prohibited matter in another of a like kind is not neutralized even in a thousand, he is more lenient in the case of brine, since it is only the perspiration of the fish and is only forbidden on Rabbinical authority.
- (35) Only when the brine of the unclean fish is 1/16th part of the contents of the barrel is all the brine forbidden.
- (36) This leniency is due to the fact that they have no blood, but only perspiration.
- (37) Forbidden in Lev. XI, 20.
- (38) I.e., it may be eaten; v. 'Ed. VII, 2.
- (39) Those of terumah with hullin.
- (40) A species of onions like leek, garlic and onions, that are very sharp in taste and pungent in smell.
- (41) On account of their pungency, which pervades everything.
- (42) Of terumah or kil'ayim. Beet, unlike other vegetables (which, in the opinion of R. Jose, as distinct from the Tanna of the preceding Mishnah, are permitted when stewed together) impart a sharp flavour.
- (43) Of terumah or kil'ayim.
- (44) The former being by nature dry and always ready for moisture, will easily absorb flavour of cabbage of terumah.
- (45) Var. lec.: R. Judah.
- (46) Even when one is permitted and the other is not; for one does not absorb from the other to the extent of rendering it prohibited; Tif. Yis.
- (47) That is when forbidden meat is cooked together with permissible meat. It is the nature of meat to exude and to absorb.
- (48) If it be the liver of an animal declared to be trefah.
- (49) Permissible liver does not become forbidden if cooked with things forbidden; v. Hul. 110a.
- (50) While it is engaged in exuding its own juice, it does not absorb the juices of other flesh.
- (51) Var. lec.: 'that had been spiced'.
- (52) Of 'orlah, terumah or kil'ayim.
- (53) The shell of the egg being thin, the yolk absorbs the spices. The white of the egg, being outside, certainly becomes forbidden.

Mishna - Mas. Terumoth Chapter 11

MISHNAH 1. ONE MUST NOT PUT INTO FISH-BRINE¹ A CAKE OF PRESSED FIGS OR DRIED FIGS,² SINCE IT SPOILS THEM;³ BUT ONE MAY PLACE WINE OF TERUMAH] INTO FISH BRINE.⁴ ONE MUST NOT PERFUME THE OIL,⁵ BUT IT MAY BE MADE INTO HONIED WINE.⁶ WINE OF TERUMAH MUST NOT BE BOILED, BECAUSE THAT MAKES IT DECREASE.⁷ R. JUDAH PERMITS THIS, BECAUSE IT IMPROVES IT.⁸

MISHNAH 2. [IF A NON- PRIEST DRANK] HONEY OF DATES, WINE OF APPLES,⁹ VINEGAR FROM WINTER GRAPES,¹⁰ AND ALL OTHER KINDS OF FRUIT JUICE OF TERUMAH,¹¹ R. ELIEZER DECLARES HIM LIABLE TO REPAY THEIR VALUE AND THE FIFTH;¹² BUT R. JOSHUA EXEMPTS FROM THE FIFTH.¹³ R. ELIEZER DECLARES [THESE] SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS AS LIQUIDS.¹⁴ R. JOSHUA, HOWEVER, SAYS: THE SAGES HAVE NOT ENUMERATED SEVEN LIQUIDS¹⁵ AS THOSE THAT COUNT SPICES,¹⁶ BUT HAVE EXPRESSLY STATED: SEVEN LIQUIDS MAKE THINGS SUSCEPTIBLE TO DEFILEMENT, WHEREAS ALL OTHER LIQUIDS ARE NOT SUSCEPTIBLE.¹⁷

MISHNAH 3. ONE MUST NOT MAKE DATES INTO HONEY,¹⁸ APPLES INTO WINE, WINTER-GRAPES INTO VINEGAR, OR CHANGE ANY OTHER KIND OF FRUIT THAT IS TERUMAH OR SECOND TITHE FROM THEIR NATURAL STATE, WITH THE SOLE EXCEPTION OF OLIVES AND GRAPES.¹⁹ ONE DOES NOT ADMINISTER THE FORTY LASHES²⁰ ON ACCOUNT OF 'ORLAH EXCEPT WITH THE PRODUCT OF OLIVES AND GRAPES.²¹ LIQUIDS CANNOT BE BROUGHT AS FIRST FRUITS, EXCEPT THE PRODUCT OF OLIVES AND GRAPES, AND NO FRUIT JUICE IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS AS LIQUIDS EXCEPT THE PRODUCT OF OLIVES AND GRAPES. NO FRUIT JUICE IS BROUGHT ON THE ALTAR, EXCEPT THAT WHICH PROCEEDS FROM OLIVES AND GRAPES.²²

MISHNAH 4. THE STALK²³ OF FRESH FIGS AND DRIED FIGS, ACORNS²⁴ AND CAROBS OF TERUMAH ARE FORBIDDEN TO NON-PRIESTS.²⁵

MISHNAH 5. KERNELS OF TERUMAH²⁶ ARE FORBIDDEN²⁷ WHEN IN THE POSSESSION OF A PRIEST, BUT PERMITTED WHEN HE CASTS THEM AWAY. SIMILARLY, THE BONES OF HOLY OFFERINGS²⁸ ARE FORBIDDEN WHEN [THE PRIEST HAS THEM] IN HIS POSSESSION, BUT PERMITTED WHEN HE CASTS THEM AWAY.²⁹ COARSE BRAN IS PERMITTED,³⁰ BUT FINE BRAN IS FORBIDDEN IF IT IS OF NEW WHEAT, AND PERMITTED IF IT IS OF OLD WHEAT.³¹ ONE MAY ADOPT IN TERUMAH THE PRACTICE FOLLOWED IN HULLIN.³² HE WHO SIFTS³³ A KAB OR TWO [OF FINE FLOUR] FROM A SE'AH OF WHEAT, MUST NOT ABANDON THE REST, BUT DEPOSIT IT IN SOME HIDDEN PLACE.³⁴

MISHNAH 6. IF A STORE-CHAMBER WAS CLEARED OF WHEAT OF TERUMAH, ONE NEED NOT SIT DOWN AND COLLECT EACH GRAIN, BUT SWEEP IT ALL UP IN HIS USUAL MANNER³⁵ AND THEN DEPOSIT HULLIN THEREIN.

MISHNAH 7. SIMILARLY, IF A JAR OF OIL³⁶ IS UPSET, HE NEED NOT SIT DOWN AND SCOOP IT UP [WITH HIS FINGERS],³⁷ BUT DEAL WITH IT AS HE WOULD IN A CASE OF HULLIN.

MISHNAH 8. HE WHO POURS OUT³⁸ FROM JAR TO JAR AND ALLOWS THREE DROPS TO DRIP,³⁹ MAY PLACE HULLIN THEREIN.⁴⁰ BUT IF HE INCLINES THE JAR [ON ITS SIDE] IN ORDER TO DRAIN IT,⁴¹ IT IS TERUMAH. HOW MUCH TERUMAH OF TITHE OF

DEM'AI⁴² MUST THERE BE FOR HIM TO TAKE IT TO THE PRIEST?⁴³ ONE EIGHTH OF AN EIGHTH.⁴⁴

MISHNAH 9. VETCHES⁴⁵ OF TERUMAH MAY BE GIVEN⁴⁶ TO CATTLE, BEASTS OR FOWLS.⁴⁷ IF AN ISRAELITE HIRED A COW FROM A PRIEST, HE MAY GIVE IT VETCHES OF TERUMAH⁴⁸ TO EAT, BUT IF A PRIEST HIRED A COW FROM AN ISRAELITE, THOUGH THE RESPONSIBILITY OF FEEDING IT IS HIS,⁴⁹ HE MUST NOT FEED IT WITH VETCHES OF TERUMAH. IF AN ISRAELITE UNDERTAKES THE CARE OF A COW FROM A PRIEST,⁵⁰ HE MUST NOT FEED IT WITH VETCHES OF TERUMAH⁵¹ BUT IF A PRIEST UNDERTAKES THE CARE OF A COW FROM AN ISRAELITE, HE MAY FEED IT ON VETCHES OF TERUMAH.⁵²

MISHNAH 10. ONE MAY KINDLE OIL THAT HAS TO BE BURNT⁵³ IN SYNAGOGUES, HOUSES OF STUDY, DARK ALLEYS, AND FOR SICK PEOPLE WHEN A PRIEST IS NEAR.⁵⁴ IF THE DAUGHTER OF AN ISRAELITE MARRIED TO A PRIEST REGULARLY GOES TO HER FATHER'S HOUSE, HER FATHER MAY KINDLE [SUCH OIL] IN HER PRESENCE. IT MAY ALSO BE KINDLED AT A BANQUETING HOUSE⁵⁵ BUT NOT IN A HOUSE OF MOURNING;⁵⁶ SO R. JUDAH. R. JOSE SAYS: [IT MAY BE KINDLED] IN THE HOUSE OF MOURNING, BUT NOT IN THE BANQUETING HOUSE.⁵⁷ R. MEIR FORBIDS IT IN BOTH PLACES⁵⁸ BUT R. SIMEON PERMITS IT IN EITHER CASE.⁵⁹

(1) Latin muria or muries, a kind of salted pickle, containing fish hash and occasionally wine; also salt water in which chopped fish or locusts have been pickled.

(2) Of terumah.

(3) After the brine they had absorbed is squeezed out, the figs were thrown away.

(4) Wine was often put into the brine in order to deodorize it.

(5) Of terumah with spices of hullin, since the oil of terumah is thus absorbed by the spices and later wasted by being thrown away. Moreover, the oil is rendered unfit for food, and used only for anointing purposes, thus causing damage to terumah.

(6) I.e., wine of terumah may be mixed with water, honey and spices to make it into a sweet-honied wine; 'A.Z. 30a.

(7) And terumah must not suffer damage either by reduction in quantity, or by making it fit for less people to drink, boiled wine not being agreeable to many.

(8) Unboiled wine may taste better, but turns sour more quickly than boiled wine.

(9) Cider.

(10) Being very sour, they were usually converted into vinegar.

(11) Except wine and oil.

(12) As in all cases of a non-priest eating terumah.

(13) He does not consider these as liquid of terumah, but simply as exudation of the fruit.

(14) Lev. XI, 34, 38.

(15) Water, dew, wine, oil, honey, milk, blood (Maksh. VI, 4). These become unclean themselves and make other foods susceptible to defilement. R. Joshua, therefore, debars those mentioned in our Mishnah, which R. Eliezer includes.

(16) That are not at all precise in the enumeration of their wares.

(17) Even they themselves contract no defilement.

(18) Once the fruit is converted from its original state into a liquid, some loss is incurred to the terumah by reducing it in quantity or value.

(19) Which are more usually made into oil and wine than eaten as olives and grapes; hence, it cannot be said that fruits of terumah have in any way been altered from their natural state.

(20) In reality thirty-nine, forty being a round number.

(21) The juice of any other fruit of 'orlah not being considered as a liquid for which the penalty is administered.

(22) Oil for meal-offerings and wine for libations.

(23) By which the fruit is attached to the tree.

(24) כַּלִּים 'Word of dubious meaning. According to Maim.: a species of fig; Hash; a kind of pea or bean. Others think it is the fruit of the carob-tree.

(25) Being considered as part of the actual fruit.

(26) Those that are soft and left with some sap.

(27) To be eaten by a non-priest.

(28) That contain marrow and can yet be enjoyed.

(29) Thus showing that he has no further use for them. If the kernels and the bones cannot be enjoyed at all any more, they are permitted to non-priests even whilst still in possession of the priest.

(30) Being almost useless as food.

(31) When the bran is new (within thirty days of being cut), much of the flour clings to the bran even after being ground, but old wheat is dry and grinds so well that little flour is left in the bran.

(32) That is, he may extract from terumah also the fine flour and cast away the coarse bran without scruples of wasting terumah.

(33) A se'ah has six kabs, and after extracting the kab or two of fine flour, the rest was thrown away as refuse.

(34) Since some of it is still edible in cases of emergency, non-priests may not eat thereof, for the name of terumah still adheres to it. (In other cases, food only used in cases of emergency is not deemed food at all, but being terumah added strictures have been imposed.)

(35) That is with a broom, and even if a few grains of terumah are left, it matters not, since he has no intention of wilfully destroying the terumah.

(36) Of terumah.

(37) Cf. Shab. 143b.

(38) Wine and oil of terumah.

(39) After emptying a bottle.

(40) Regardless of some drops that may still be in the first jar.

(41) After the dripping of the three drops.

(42) V. Glos.

(43) A question somewhat irrelevant here, but cited in consequence of the reference to small grains and drops of terumah about which one need not bother. Note that the question only concerns doubtful terumah, for in a case of definite and clean terumah, even smallest particles must not be wasted.

(44) Of a log, that is 1/64th of a log. Less than that may be wasted.

(45) A species of bean rarely used as human food, serving mostly as fodder for animals, but since man eats of it in cases of emergency, terumah must be taken therefrom.

(46) By the priest.

(47) If these are his own. Of terumah, only that which man could not eat, was given to animals.

(48) Since the cow belongs to a priest, he might just as well give the vetches to her as to any other priest.

(49) Hiring not constituting a sale, the cow is still the property of the Israelite.

(50) Lit., 'values'; he undertakes to tend it and to share in its increased value after he had fattened it. Thus, if the cow was now worth 20 dollars and he improved it to be worth 30 dollars, he would share half of the 10 dollars with the priest.

(51) By this arrangement, the cow actually becomes the property of the Israelite and not of the priest; v. Lev, XXII, 11.

(52) Since it becomes his own possession.

(53) Oil of terumah which becomes unclean must be burnt.

(54) Since a priest himself may enter these places and derive benefit from the kindled oil. Only in the case of the sick should the priest be near; he is sure to enter the other places sooner or later (T.J.).

(55) Since a priest may enter there; nor need one fear lest the guests will carry the lamp into a chamber where the priest is not present, for they will not risk soiling the festive garments in which they are attired.

(56) In the house of mourning, where no festive garments are worn, the fear referred to in the preceding note is entertained.

(57) On the contrary, argues R. Jose. In a house of mourning, all sit quietly and will not think of removing the lamp to a room where the priest is not there, but the merriment of the banqueting chamber may prompt them to do so, regardless of soiling their clothes.

(58) Applying the arguments of both R. Judah and R. Jose, and adopting the stringent ruling of each.

(59) Adopting the lenient ruling of both and having no fear that the lamp will be shifted to a place in which no priest is present.

Mishna - Mas. Tevul Yom Chapter 1

MISHNAH 1. IF ONE¹ HAD COLLECTED DOUGH-OFFERING² [PORTIONS] WITH THE INTENTION OF SEGREGATING THEM AFTERWARDS AGAIN, BUT IN THE MEANTIME THEY HAD BECOME STUCK TOGETHER,³ BETH SHAMMAI SAY: THEY SERVE AS CONNECTIVES⁴ IN THE CASE OF A TEBUL YOM. BUT BETH HILLEL SAY: THEY DO NOT SERVE AS CONNECTIVES. PIECES OF DOUGH⁵ THAT HAD BECOME STUCK TOGETHER, OR LOAVES⁵ THAT HAD BECOME JOINED, OR A BATTER-CAKE THAT HAD BEEN BAKED ON TOP OF ANOTHER BATTER-CAKE BEFORE IT COULD FORM A CRUST IN THE OVEN, OR IF THERE WAS FROTH⁶ ON THE WATER THAT WAS BUBBLING, OR THE FIRST SCUM⁷ THAT RISES WHEN BOILING GROATS OF BEANS, OR THE SCUM OF NEW WINE (R. JUDAH SAYS: ALSO THAT OF RICE) BETH SHAMMAI SAY: ALL SERVE AS CONNECTIVES IN THE CASE OF THE TEBUL YOM. BUT BETH HILLEL SAY: THEY DO NOT SERVE AS CONNECTIVES.⁸ THEY⁹ CONCUR, HOWEVER, [THAT THEY SERVE AS CONNECTIVES] IF THEY COME INTO CONTACT WITH OTHER KINDS OF UNCLEANNESS, WHETHER THEY BE OF MINOR¹⁰ OR MAJOR GRADES.¹¹

MISHNAH 2. IF ONE HAD COLLECTED PIECES OF DOUGH-OFFERING NOT WITH THE INTENTION OF SEGREGATING THEM AFTERWARDS, OR A BATTER-CAKE THAT HAD BEEN BAKED ON ANOTHER AFTER A CRUST HAD FORMED IN THE OVEN,¹² OR A FROTH HAD APPEARED IN THE WATER PRIOR TO ITS BUBBLING UP, OR THE SECOND SCUM THAT APPEARED IN THE BOILING OF GROATS OF BEANS, OR THE SCUM OF OLD WINE, OR THAT OF OIL OF ALL KINDS,¹³ OR OF LENTILS (R. JUDAH SAYS: ALSO THAT OF BEANS¹⁴) — ALL THESE ARE RENDERED UNCLEAR¹⁵ WHEN TOUCHED BY A TEBUL YOM. AND NEEDLESS TO SAY, [THIS IS THE CASE IF TOUCHED] BY OTHER SOURCES OF UNCLEANNESS.

MISHNAH 3. THE KNOB¹⁶ ON THE BACK OF THE LOAF, OR THE SMALL GLOBULE OF SALT,¹⁷ OR THE BURNT CRUST LESS THAN A FINGER'S BREADTH — R. JOSE SAYS: WHATSOEVER IS EATEN WITH THE LOAF BECOMES UNCLEAR [WHEN TOUCHED BY THE TEBUL YOM].¹⁸ AND NEEDLESS TO SAY, THIS IS SO [WHEN TOUCHED] BY OTHER UNCLEAR THINGS.

MISHNAH 4. A PEBBLE IN A LOAF OR A LARGE GLOBULE OF SALT, OR A LUPINE,¹⁹ OR A BURNT CRUST LARGER THAN A FINGER'S BREADTH,²⁰ [DO NOT SERVE AS CONNECTIVES]. BUT R. JOSE SAYS: [ONLY] WHATSOEVER THAT IS NOT EATEN WITH THE LOAF REMAINS CLEAR EVEN WHEN TOUCHED BY A FATHER OF UNCLEANNESS';²¹ AND NEED LESS TO SAY [IS THIS SO WHEN TOUCHED] BY A TEBUL YOM.

MISHNAH 5. UNSHELLED²² BARLEY OR SPELT, ROOT OF CROWFOOT,²³ ASAFOETIDA,²⁴ SILRHUM²⁵ (R. JUDAH SAYS: BLACK BEANS)²⁶ REMAIN CLEAR²⁷ EVEN [WHEN COMING INTO CONTACT] WITH A 'FATHER OF UNCLEANNESS', LET ALONE [IF TOUCHED] BY A TEBUL YOM. SO R. MEIR: BUT THE SAGES SAY: THEY ARE CLEAR IF TOUCHED BY A TEBUL YOM, BUT UNCLEAR [WHEN TOUCHED] BY OTHER SOURCES OF DEFILEMENT. IN THE CASE OF SHELLLED BARLEY OR SPELT, OR WHEAT EITHER WITH THE HUSK ON OR WITHOUT IT, OR BLACK CUMMIN, OR SESAME OR PEPPER (R. JUDAH SAYS: ALSO WHITE BEANS), THEY BECOME UNCLEAR EVEN WHEN TOUCHED BY A TEBUL YOM,²⁸ LET ALONE [WHEN THEY HAVE COME INTO CONTACT] WITH OTHER SOURCES OF UNCLEANNESS.

(1) The priest made a house-to-house collection and piled the pieces of dough on top of each other.

- (2) V. Num. XV, 18-21; v. Glos., s. v. Hallah.
- (3) Lit., and they bit’.
- (4) To hallah is attributed the same sanctity and the same degree of susceptibility to uncleanness as to terumah, and hence it becomes pasul’ (unfit) if touched by the tebul yom. Even if only part were touched the whole becomes unclean; for it is regarded as one inseparable mass.
- (5) Of terumah, and so in all that follows we are concerned with terumah.
- (6) קרולית something hollow or round’; a hollow ball of water, bubble. The water needed for terumah shares it,’ stringencies; hence if a tebul yom touches the froth or first scum, he conveys uncleanness to the whole, according to Beth Shammai.
- (7) The first scum does not yet render the beans into one solid mass, yet Beth Shammai already regard it as a connective.
- (8) The distinction between hallah and terumah is that whereas the former comprises only a Rabbinical injunction in these times, the latter even now enjoys the rank of a Biblical command, hence both cases had to be stated (L.).
- (9) Beth Hillel. They dispute only in the case of a tebul yom, since he lacks only sunset to be wholly clean.
- (10) Derived uncleanness.
- (11) A ‘father of uncleanness’
- (12) For once a crust has formed it is hard to separate them, and the two cakes are considered as one.
- (13) Lit., ‘always’; i.e., both old or new oil.
- (14) Or ‘vetchlings’.
- (15) If of terumah.
- (16) The peg-shaped attachment to a loaf supposed to serve as a trade mark.
- (17) That had become stuck to the loaf and baked with it.
- (18) And since they are occasionally eaten with the loaf, they serve as connectives.
- (19) On account of their extreme hardness lupines had to be cooked at least six times before they were fit to be eaten.
- (20) These things served either as trade marks or marked the grades of the loaf. As such they were ‘never eaten, and hence could not be deemed as connectives for bread, even when touched by a ‘father of uncleanness’ itself.
- (21) Where they are eaten with the loaf even these serve as connectives.
- (22) A state unfit for human consumption, accordingly not susceptible to uncleanness.
- (23) Used as a spice, but considered noxious for beasts.
- (24) An umbelliferous plant used as a resin, or in leaves, for a spice, or for medicinal purposes; cf. Shab. 14a, Hul. 58b.
- (25) A mucilaginous plant; Lat. ‘Alum’, of the same species as asafoetida.
- (26) Which were used specifically for medicinal purposes.
- (27) Since only the smallest portion was placed in the food, they cannot be regarded as food and susceptible to uncleanness.
- (28) Since they are all regular food ingredients.

Mishna - Mas. Tevul Yom Chapter 2

MISHNAH 1. LIQUIDS THAT ISSUE¹ FROM A TEBUL YOM ARE LIKE THOSE² WHICH HE HAS TOUCHED: NEITHER OF THEM HAS POWER TO DEFILE.³ WITH REGARD TO ALL OTHERS THAT ARE UNCLEAR, BE THEY OF MINOR⁴ OR MAJOR⁵ [DEGREE]. THE LIQUIDS ISSUING FROM THEM ARE LIKE THOSE THEY TOUCH; BOTH ARE CONSIDERED OF FIRST GRADE UNCLEANNESS.⁶ THE SOLE EXCEPTION BEING SUCH LIQUID THAT IS IN ITSELF A ‘FATHER OF UNCLEANNESS’.⁷

MISHNAH 2. IF A POT WAS FULL OF LIQUID AND A TEBUL YOM TOUCHED IT, THE LIQUID BECOMES UNFIT IF IT IS TERUMAH, BUT THE POT IS CLEAN.⁸ BUT IF THE LIQUID IS COMMON FOOD [HULLIN] THEN ALL REMAINS CLEAN.⁹ IF HIS HANDS WERE SOILED, ALL BECOMES UNCLEAR.¹⁰ HERE GREATER STRINGENCY IS APPLIED TO SOILED HANDS THAN TO A TEBUL YOM; BUT GREATER STRINGENCY IS APPLIED TO A TEBUL YOM THAN TO SOILED HANDS, SINCE ANY DOUBT RESPECTING THE TEBUL YOM RENDERS TERUMAH UNFIT, BUT ANY DOUBT CONCERNING [SOILED] HANDS IS DEEMED CLEAN.¹¹

MISHNAH 3. IF THE PORRIDGE WAS OF TERUMAH AND THE GARLIC OR OIL [IT CONTAINED] WAS OF HULLIN, AND A TEBUL YOM TOUCHED PART OF THEM, THEN THE WHOLE BECOMES UNFIT;¹² BUT IF THE PORRIDGE WAS OF HULLIN AND THE GARLIC OR OIL IT CONTAINED WAS OF TERUMAH, AND A TEBUL YOM TOUCHED PART OF THEM, HE RENDERS UNFIT ONLY THE PART HE HAS TOUCHED.¹³ IF THE GREATER PART WAS GARLIC THEN THEY GO AFTER THE MAJORITY.¹⁴ WHEN IS IT SO?¹⁵ SAID R. JUDAH: WHEN IT¹⁶ FORMED ONE COHESIVE MASS IN THE POT, BUT IF IT WAS SCATTERED SMALL IN THE MORTAR, THEN IT IS CLEAN, SINCE IT IS HIS WISH THAT IT SHOULD BE SO SCATTERED.¹⁷ [SIMILARLY] WITH ALL OTHER MASHED FOODS WHICH WERE MASHED WITH LIQUIDS;¹⁸ THOSE, HOWEVER, WHICH ARE USUALLY MASHED¹⁹ WITH LIQUIDS AND YET WERE MASHED WITHOUT LIQUIDS, THOUGH²⁰ THEY FORMED ONE COHESIVE MASS IN THE POT, ARE REGARDED AS A CAKE OF PRESERVED FIGS.²¹

MISHNAH 4. IF THE PORRIDGE AND BATTER-CAKE²² WERE OF HULLIN AND THE OIL OF TERUMAH WAS FLOATING ABOVE THEM, AND A TEBUL YOM TOUCHED THE OIL, HE RENDERS UNFIT ONLY THE OIL. IF, HOWEVER, HE STIRRED IT ALTOGETHER, ALL THE PLACES WHITHER THE OIL GOES BECOME UNFIT.²³

MISHNAH 5. IF A FILM OF JELLY²⁴ HAD FORMED OVER THE FLESH OF HALLOWED THINGS, AND A TEBUL YOM HAD TOUCHED THE JELLY, THE SLICES [OF FLESH] ARE CLEAN;²⁵ BUT IF HE TOUCHED ONE OF THE SLICES, THAT SLICE AND ALL [THE JELLY] THAT COMES UP WITH IT²⁶ FORM A CONNECTIVE THE ONE WITH THE OTHER. R. JOHANAN B. NURI SAYS: THE TWO OF THEM SERVE AS CONNECTIVES TO EACH OTHER.²⁷ SIMILARLY, WITH [COOKED] BEANS THAT HAVE FORMED A LAYER OVER PIECES OF BREAD.²⁸ BEANS COOKED IN A POT, AS LONG AS THEY ARE STILL SEPARATE, DO NOT SERVE AS CONNECTIVES; BUT WHEN THEY BECOME A SOLID PULP,²⁹ THEY DO ACT AS CONNECTIVES. IF THEY FORMED SEVERAL SOLID PULPS,³⁰ THEY ARE TO BE COUNTED.³¹ IF OIL FLOATS ON WINE AND A TEBUL YOM TOUCHED THE OIL, ONLY THE OIL IS RENDERED UNFIT; BUT R. JOHANAN B. NURI SAYS: EACH SERVES AS A CONNECTIVE WITH THE OTHER.³²

MISHNAH 6. IF A JAR³³ HAD SUNK INTO A CISTERN CONTAINING WINE,³⁴ AND A TEBUL YOM TOUCHED IT, AND [HE TOUCHED IT] WITHIN THE RIM,³⁵ IT SERVES AS A CONNECTIVE;³⁶ BUT IF OUTSIDE THE RIM,³⁷ IT DOES NOT ACT AS A CONNECTIVE. R. JOHANAN B. NURI, HOWEVER, SAYS: EVEN THOUGH [THE LEVEL OF WINE IN THE CISTERN] IS THE HEIGHT OF A MAN³⁸ [ABOVE THE SUNKEN JAR], AND HE TOUCHED [THE WINE] DIRECTLY ABOVE THE MOUTH OF THE JAR, IT SERVES AS A CONNECTIVE.

MISHNAH 7. IF A JAR³⁹ HAD A HOLE EITHER AT ITS NECK,⁴⁰ BOTTOM OR SIDES, AND A TEBUL YOM TOUCHED IT [AT THE HOLE], IT BECOMES UNCLEAR.⁴¹ R. JUDAH SAYS: ONLY IF THE HOLE IS AT ITS NECK OR BOTTOM IT BECOMES UNCLEAR; BUT IF ON ITS SIDES, ON THIS SIDE OR ON THAT, IT REMAINS CLEAN.⁴² IF ONE POURED [LIQUID] FROM ONE VESSEL INTO ANOTHER, AND A TEBUL YOM TOUCHED THE STREAM, AND THERE WAS SOMETHING WITHIN THE VESSEL, THEN [WHATSOEVER HE TOUCHES] IS NEUTRALIZED IN A HUNDRED AND ONE.⁴³

MISHNAH 8. IF A BUBBLE⁴⁴ OF A JUG WAS PIERCED WITH HOLES ON ITS INNER SIDE AND ON ITS OUTER SIDE, WHETHER ABOVE OR BELOW,⁴⁵ [AND THE HOLES ARE] OPPOSITE ONE ANOTHER, IT BECOMES UNCLEAR [IF TOUCHED] BY A 'FATHER OF

UNCLEANNESST⁴⁶; AND IT [LIKEWISE] BECOMES UNCLEAN IF IT IS IN A TENT WHEREIN LIES A CORPSE.⁴⁷ IF THE INNER HOLE IS BELOW AND THE OUTER ABOVE, IT BECOMES UNCLEAN [IF TOUCHED] BY A 'FATHER OF UNCLEANNESST', AND IT BECOMES UNCLEAN IN A TENT WHEREIN THERE IS A CORPSE; IF THE INNER HOLE IS ABOVE AND THE OUTER BELOW, IT REMAINS CLEAN IF TOUCHED BY A 'FATHER OF UNCLEANNESST',⁴⁸ BUT IT BECOMES UNCLEAN IN A TENT WHEREIN THERE IS A CORPSE.⁴⁹

(1) Such as spittle, urine, tears, blood of a wound and milk from a woman (Bert.).

(2) Of terumah.

(3) Suffering only third grade uncleanness.

(4) When touched by a dead reptile.

(5) When coming into contact with a zab.

(6) Bestowing second and third grade respectively.

(7) As, for instance, the issue of a person with a flux, a zab.

(8) For it is only terumah, on account of its great sanctity that even a tebul yom can invalidate. Terumah that becomes unfit cannot in its turn convey uncleanness.

(9) Since a tebul yom cannot render unclean hullin or tithe-offerings.

(10) Soiled hands defile liquids (v. Parah VIII, 7); when liquids are thus defiled they become first grade uncleanness, making vessels second grade.

(11) Such as a doubt arising as to which of the two loaves of terumah lying before him the tebul yom has touched, when we pronounce both to be unclean. In the case, however, of soiled hands the loaves are clean; cf. Yad. II, 4.

(12) Even if he touched merely the oil and garlic, these as ingredients serve as connectives to the porridge.

(13) The porridge cannot serve as a connective to the garlic and oil.

(14) The porridge in this case can serve as a connective.

(15) That if he touches the garlic the whole porridge is rendered unclean.

(16) The garlic.

(17) To be used in small portions as ingredients; in which case it cannot be regarded as a connective for the other contents in the mortar.

(18) A distinction is made as to whether they are served whole in the pot or whether they are mashed in the mortar.

(19) Var. lec.: But with all other mashed . . . with liquids or that are usually mashed etc.

(20) V. L.

(21) In which case we do not say that if part thereof is touched, all becomes unclean; single figs are not regarded as connectives.

(22) This is the wafer that used to be placed into the jelly or porridge.

(23) Being impossible to separate oil.

(24) This jelly comprises all the pot ingredients which had become congealed.

(25) Not regarding the jelly as a connective.

(26) But the other jelly does not serve as a connective.

(27) Hence, even if he touches the film of the jelly, the slices of flesh become unclean.

(28) Which were usually spread with beans.

(29) The process of cooking first splits them, then forms them into a solid pulp.

(30) And then came into contact with a dead reptile.

(31) If the separate pups touched each other. That touched by a dead reptile becomes first grade unclean; the piece that touches that which is 'first grade' becomes second grade unclean.

(32) So that if the tebul yom touched the oil, the wine also is rendered unfit.

(33) Containing wine of terumah.

(34) Of hullin; and this wine flowing into the jar floats on the surface, forcing the terumah wine to the bottom of the jar.

(35) Touching the hullin wine floating on top.

(36) Though he did not come into contact with the terumah.

(37) I.e., he does not touch the wine inside the jar but only the hullin wine floating round the jar.

(38) Even if the wine in the cistern rises above the sunken jar up to a man's height, and he touches the wine directly above the mouth of the jar, it serves as a connective and the whole jar's contents become unclean.

(39) Containing wine of terumah.

(40) Var. lec. omit.

(41) Since the hole causes the wine to flow into it, the part touched serves as a connective.

(42) His view-point being that only when the hole is at the neck or bottom may all the wine pass through it; but when it is at its sides, only a small portion of the wine will pass through. The portion he touches, which alone is invalidated, becomes neutralized in one hundred and one times the quantity; cf. Ter. V, 4.

(43) I.e., if the wine in the receiving vessel is a hundred times the quantity of that he had touched, maintaining that only the stream of liquid is defiled, and does not act as a connective. It is like a case of unclean terumah getting mixed with clean terumah, where neutralization is 1 : 101. In the case of major sources of uncleanness, the stream of liquid serves as a connective and defiles all the liquid in both vessels.

(44) An imperfection found in a clay jar formed while it was being baked. If pierced on the inner and outer side when the jar is filled the liquid penetrates the bubble through the inner hole and in its attempt to seek exit surges through the outer one.

(45) I.e., on top or at the bottom of the jar.

(46) And if he touched the hole on the outer side, all the wine in the jar becomes unclean.

(47) And even if the mouth of the jar was sealed with 'a tightly stopped-up cover'; cf. Kel. X, 2.

(48) A stream of liquid can serve as a connective only with what is below but not with what is above.

(49) The holes serving as a door for the uncleanness to penetrate into the vessel.

Mishna - Mas. Tevul Yom Chapter 3

MISHNAH 1. ALL [STALKS THAT SERVE AS] HANDLES TO FRUITS, WHICH COUNT AS CONNECTIVES WHEN TOUCHED BY A 'FATHER OF UNCLEANNESS', ALSO COUNT AS CONNECTIVES WHEN TOUCHED BY A TEBUL YOM. IF A FOODSTUFF WAS SEVERED YET A SMALL PART WAS STILL ATTACHED, R. MEIR SAYS: IF ONE TAKES HOLD OF THE LARGER PART AND THE SMALLER PART IS PULLED AWAY WITH IT, THEN THE LATTER IS REGARDED AS THE FORMER.¹ R. JUDAH. HOWEVER, SAYS: IF ONE TAKES HOLD OF THE SMALLER PART FIND THE GREATER IS ALSO PULLED AWAY WITH IT, THEN THE LATTER IS LIKE THE FORMER. R. NEHEMIAH SAYS: [THIS REFERS ONLY] TO THE CASE OF THE CLEAN PORTION,² BUT THE SAGES SAY: [IT REFERS ONLY] TO THE UNCLEAN PORTION.³ IN THE CASE OF ALL OTHER FRUITS,⁴ THOSE USUALLY HELD BY THE LEAF SHOULD BE TAKEN BY THE LEAF, AND THOSE USUALLY HELD BY THE STALK SHOULD BE TAKEN BY THE STALK.⁵

MISHNAH 2. IF A BEATEN EGG WAS ON TOP OF VEGETABLES OF TERUMAH,⁶ AND A TEBUL YOM TOUCHES THE EGG, THEN HE RENDERS UNFIT ONLY THAT STALK [OF THE VEGETABLES] THAT IS OPPOSITE THE PART [OF THE EGG] HE TOUCHED.⁷ R. JOSE, HOWEVER, SAYS: IT AFFECTS THE WHOLE OF THE UPPER LAYER;⁸ AND IF IT WAS ARRANGED LIKE A CAP⁹ IT DOES NOT SERVE AS A CONNECTIVE.

MISHNAH 3. THE STREAK OF AN EGG¹⁰ THAT HAD BECOME CONGEALED ON THE SIDE OF A PAN THAT HAD BEEN TOUCHED BY A TEBUL YOM WITHIN THE RIM [OF THE PAN]. SERVES AS A CONNECTIVE;¹¹ BUT IF OUTSIDE THE RIM, IT DOES NOT SERVE AS A CONNECTIVE. R. JOSE MAINTAINS THAT ONLY THE STREAK AND THE PART THAT CAN BE PEELED AWAY WITH IT [SERVES AS A CONNECTIVE].¹² THE SAME APPLIES TO BEANS THAT HAD FORMED A LAYER OF JELLY ON THE RIM OF THE POT.¹³

MISHNAH 4. DOUGH¹⁴ THAT HAD BEEN MIXED [WITH DOUGH OF TERUMAH]. OR THAT HAD BEEN LEAVENED WITH YEAST OF TERUMAH, IS NOT RENDERED UNFIT BY [THE TOUCH OF] A TEBUL YOM;¹⁵ R. JOSE AND R. SIMEON, HOWEVER,

PRONOUNCE IT UNFIT. DOUGH¹⁶ THAT HAD BECOME SUSCEPTIBLE [TO UNCLEANNESS] BY A LIQUID,¹⁷ AND IT WAS KNEADED WITH FRUIT JUICE,¹⁸ AND LATER TOUCHED BY A TEBUL YOM, R. ELEAZAR B. JUDAH OF BARTHOTHA SAYS IN THE NAME OF R. JOSHUA: IT BECOMES TOTALLY UNFIT.¹⁹ R. AKIBA, HOWEVER, SAYS IN HIS NAME: HE RENDERS UNFIT ONLY THE PART THAT HE TOUCHED.²⁰

MISHNAH 5. IF VEGETABLES OF HULLIN WERE COOKED WITH OIL OF TERUMAH AND A TEBUL YOM TOUCHED IT, R. ELEAZAR B. JUDAH OF BARTHOTHA SAYS IN THE NAME OF R. JOSHUA: IT BECOMES TOTALLY UNFIT.²¹ R. AKIBA, HOWEVER, SAYS IN HIS NAME: HE RENDERS UNFIT ONLY THE PART THAT HE TOUCHED.²²

MISHNAH 6. IF A CLEAN PERSON CHEWED FOOD AND IT FELL ON HIS GARMENTS AND ON A LOAF OF TERUMAH, IT²³ IS NOT RENDERED SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS.²⁴ IF HE ATE CRUSHED OLIVES OR MOIST DATES WITH THE INTENTION OF SUCKING THE STONE THEREOF, AND IT FELL ON HIS GARMENTS AND ON A LOAF OF TERUMAH, [THE LATTER] BECOMES SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS.²⁵ . IF, HOWEVER, HE ATE DRIED OLIVES, OR DRIED FIGS WITHOUT THE INTENTION OF SUCKING THE STONE THEREOF, AND THEY FELL ON HIS GARMENTS AND ON A LOAF OF TERUMAH, THE LATTER IS NOT RENDERED SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS.²⁶ THIS IS THE CASE IRRESPECTIVE OF THE FACT WHETHER IT WAS A CLEAN MAN OR A TEBUL YOM [WHO WAS EATING]. R. MEIR SAYS: IN EITHER CASE IT BECOMES SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS IN THE CASE OF A TEBUL YOM, SINCE LIQUIDS ISSUING FROM UNCLEAR PERSONS RENDER ANYTHING SUSCEPTIBLE REGARDLESS OF THE ACCEPTABILITY OF THEIR PRESENCE OR NOT. BUT THE SAGES SAY: A TEBUL YOM IS NOT REGARDED AS AN UNCLEAR PERSON.²⁷

(1) Serving as a connective, so that if the tebul yom touches one portion, the other, too, is affected.

(2) I.e., this estimation is only made of the part untouched by the tebul yom, and if it is pulled away with the part touched, whether it be larger or smaller, it becomes unclean; v. Hul. 227b.

(3) According to the Sages this estimation is only made of the part that had become unclean, and if it was pulled away with the clean part it becomes unclean.

(4) Vegetables.

(5) And if the whole becomes severed then each part serves as a connective. It is obvious that if the bigger portion is pulled away together with the smaller, it serves as a connective to the smaller.

(6) Within a pot. Were the egg whole, it would not have served as a connective.

(7) Though the egg is hullin, which cannot be defiled by a tebul yom, yet those vegetables exactly opposite the part of the egg touched are rendered unclean.

(8) Viz., the whole top layer of the stalk on which the egg lies is affected.

(9) In cooking the eggs get blown up, forming a helmet-shape over the vegetables with vacant space between it and the vegetables below. Since the egg does not, therefore, actually touch the vegetables, it cannot be counted among the connectives.

(10) Boiled with terumah that is liable to be invalidated by a tebul yom.

(11) Rendering all the contents unclean.

(12) Even if the streak of the egg is without the pan.

(13) Having the same ruling as eggs.

(14) Of hullin; cf. Hal. 1, 4.

(15) Since the tebul yom cannot defile the hullin in the dough. Though the mixture is forbidden to non-priests it is not deemed in this respect of the rank of terumah because the prohibition of the mixture is only due to Rabbinical injunction; for according to Biblical ruling it is neutralized in the proportion of 1: 2; v. 'Orlah II, 6.

(16) Of terumah.

(17) V. Lev. XI, 38. Edibles coming into contact with liquids become susceptible provided that such liquid was applied purposely, or whose presence on the food was at least acceptable.

(18) Which was not one of the seven liquids enumerated in Maksh. VI, 4 that rendered foods susceptible. If the dough had not received water before, the fruit juice now does not make it susceptible.

(19) Contending that the fruit juice serves the dough as a connective.

(20) Maintaining that since fruit juice does not make the dough susceptible, it is deemed non-existent.

(21) Being of the opinion that oil renders susceptible and acts as a connective.

(22) Being of the opinion that fruit juice, even which renders susceptible, such as oil, does not serve as a connective with the dough to defile it, since the dough is hullin.

(23) The loaf.

(24) Lit., 'is clean'. Since this liquid was not dropped on purpose (Maim.).

(25) Since his intention was to extract juice, he should have known that some would fall on the loaf.

(26) For on no account could the moisture have been said to have been applied on purpose.

(27) Accordingly, he cannot make all liquids, whether acceptable or not, predisposed to uncleanness. Cf. Maksh. l.

Mishna - Mas. Tevul Yom Chapter 4

MISHNAH 1. IF FOOD THAT WAS TITHE-OFFERING HAD BEEN RENDERED SUSCEPTIBLE BY A LIQUID, AND A TEBUL YOM OR UNWASHED HANDS¹ TOUCHED IT, TERUMAH OF TITHE² MAY STILL BE SET APART FROM IT IN PURITY, SINCE IT ONLY SUFFERED THIRD GRADE UNCLEANNESS, AND THIRD GRADE UNCLEANNESS COUNTS AS CLEAN IN HULLIN.

MISHNAH 3. IN A TROUGH WHICH HAD BEEN IMMERSED THAT VERY DAY, ONE MAY KNEAD DOUGH AND CUT OFF THE PORTION FOR HALLAH AND BRING IT NEAR AND EVEN PRO NOUNCE IT BY NAME [AS HALLAH];¹⁰ FOR IT¹¹ SUFFERS ONLY THIRD GRADE UNCLEANNESS AND A THIRD GRADE COUNTS AS CLEAN IN HULLIN.

MISHNAH 4. IF A FLAGON THAT HAD BEEN IMMERSED THE SAME DAY AND HAD BEEN FILLED OUT OF A CASK CONTAINING TITHES FROM WHICH THE HEAVE-OFFERING¹² HAD NOT YET BEEN TAKEN, AND ONE SAID, LET THIS BE HEAVE-OFFERING OF TITHE AFTER NIGHTFALL,¹³ IT BECOMES HEAVE-OFFERING OF TITHE. BUT IF HE SAID: LET THIS BE THE FOOD FOR THE [SABBATH] 'ERUB,¹⁴ HIS REMARKS ARE NOT VALID AT ALL.¹⁵ IF THE CASK WAS BROKEN,¹⁶ THE CONTENTS OF THE FLAGON STILL REMAIN TITHE FROM WHICH HEAVE-OFFERING HAD NOT YET BEEN TAKEN;¹⁷ IF THE FLAGON IS BROKEN,¹⁸ THEN WHAT IS IN THE CASK STILL REMAINS TITHE FROM WHICH HEAVE-OFFERING HAD NOT YET BEEN TAKEN.¹⁹

MISHNAH 5. FORMERLY THEY USED TO SAY: ONE MAY REDEEM²⁰ FOR THE PRODUCE OF AN AM HA-AREZ.²¹ LATER THEY RECONSIDERED AND SAID: ALSO FOR MONEY OF HIS.²² FORMERLY THEY USED TO SAY: IF A MAN IS LED OUT IN CHAINS²³ AND COMMANDS: WRITE A BILL OF DIVORCE FOR MY WIFE', IT HAD TO BE WRITTEN AND DELIVERED;²⁴ BUT AFTER CONSIDERATION THEY ADDED THE CASE OF A MAN UNDERTAKING A SEA VOYAGE, OR SETTING OUT WITH A CARAVAN.²⁵ R. SIMEON OF SHEZUR ADDED THE CASE OF ONE WHO WAS AT THE POINT OF DEATH.²⁶

MISHNAH 6. ASHKELON LEVERS²⁷ THAT HAD BECOME BROKEN, ONLY THEIR HOOKS STILL REMAINING, ARE SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS.²⁸ A PITCH-FORK, WINNOWING-FAN, RAKE²⁹ [SO-TOO, A HAIR COMB]. WHICH HAD LOST ONE OF ITS TEETH, AND ANOTHER OF METAL WAS CONSTRUCTED FOR IT, ARE ALL SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS.³⁰ CONCERNING ALL THESE,³¹ R. JOSHUA SAID: THIS IS A NEW THING WHICH THE SCRIBES HAVE MADE AND I HAVE NOTHING TO REPLY.³²

MISHNAH 7. IF ONE WAS TAKING TERUMAH³³ FROM A CISTERN AND SAID: 'LET THIS BE TERUMAH PROVIDED IT COMES UP SAFELY', [IT IS IMPLIED THAT HE MEANT] SAFELY FROM BEING BROKEN OR SPILLED,³⁴ BUT NOT FROM CONTRACTING UNCLEANNESS;³⁵ BUT R. SIMEON DECLARES: ALSO FROM UNCLEANNESS.³⁶ IF IT WERE BROKEN,³⁷ IT DOES NOT RENDER [THE CONTENTS OF THE CISTERN] SUBJECT TO THE RESTRICTIONS OF TERUMAH. HOW FAR AWAY³⁸ CAN IT BE BROKEN AND STILL NOT MAKE IT SUBJECT TO TERUMAH RESTRICTIONS? ONLY SO FAR THAT IF IT ROLLS BACK, IT CAN REACH THE CISTERN.³⁹ R. JOSE ADDS: EVEN IF ONE HAD THE INTENTION OF MAKING SUCH A STIPULATION, BUT DID NOT DO SO, AND IT GOT BROKEN, IT DOES NOT NEVERTHELESS MAKE IT SUBJECT TO TERUMAH RESTRICTIONS, FOR THIS IS A STIPULATION LAID DOWN BY THE BETH DIN.⁴⁰

- (1) Both possessing second grade impurity only.
 - (2) Given to the priest by the Levite from the tithe received from the Israelites (Num. XVIII, 25ff.); this was regarded as hullin, which a tebul yom could not defile. Accordingly, this additional tithe could be taken therefrom.
 - (3) But without designating it as such; for once this is done it is no longer hullin.
 - (4) Not susceptible to uncleanness. This was stipulated in order that she may no longer touch the dough-offering.
 - (5) Which does not possess distinct receptacles and consequently is not susceptible to uncleanness. Neither of these two vessels is 'susceptible'.
 - (6) To the rest of the dough, of which it is to constitute a portion dedicated as hallah. For this requirement v. Hal I, 9.
 - (7) Hallah.
 - (8) I.e., the dough she had touched.
 - (9) Since the tebul yom possesses only second grade uncleanness.
 - (10) On account of an uncleanness it had contracted. From the tebul yom the Mishnah now turns to a vessel that had been immersed that very day. The point stressed is that we are not afraid lest it be exchanged for anything unclean.
 - (11) I.e., the dough which has touched the kneading-trough.
 - (12) The tithe which the Levite has to give to the priest from the tithe he receives.
 - (13) I.e., when the flagon becomes completely clean.
 - (14) Lit., 'mixture'. According to Sabbath law, the movements of people in a town are restricted on a Sabbath to two thousand cubits from the boundaries of a town. But if enough food for his meals is despatched in an accessible place on the eve of Sabbath, at the prescribed two thousand cubits' distance, this spot counts as a man's temporary abode, thereby allowing him a range of two thousand cubits beyond the common Sabbath limit. Similarly, an 'erub may be arranged as between various domiciles within a courtyard; for if all the occupants have a share in the deposit of food placed in a known place in the courtyard, they are all thereby given unrestricted access to the premises of the other occupants.
 - (15) Because an 'erub can only be made of such food that is ready to be eaten before sunset; but here nightfall is still needed to make it permissible for common use.
 - (16) Before nightfall.
 - (17) For when heave-offering could at last be taken therefrom, it was already non-existent.
 - (18) While yet day.
 - (19) Cf. n. 6.
 - (20) Second-tithe money in Jerusalem; Deut. XIV, 22ff. The owner had to take his money to Jerusalem, there to spend it, or else he had to 'redeem' it by putting aside coins of value (plus one fifth) in order to make that produce free for use as hullin; the coins themselves then count as second-tithe money, to which their sanctity is transferred, or to other coins for which they, in turn, may be exchanged. These coins were taken to Jerusalem, there to be exchanged for food, or peace-offerings, and consumed in purity.

(21) Though one tithe could not be used in exchange for another, we do not suspect the 'am ha-arez of tithing his produce (Bert.).

(22) Without fearing that this money itself may be of second-tithe products (Bert.).

(23) As a prisoner; Git. VI, 5.

(24) Although he did not say 'deliver it', we surmise that his omission is due to the perturbed state of his mind.

(25) These expeditions in olden times used to be fraught with serious danger.

(26) There could be no greater perturbation of mind than this; moreover, in this state, breath is scarce and words must be used economically. (Though the last statement of the Mishnah is somewhat irrelevant to the main issue, yet the Mishnah follows the usual practice of citing other similar statements).

(27) With which pitchers used to be hooked out of the wells. Aliter. 'pitched stands' or water coolers'; Kel. XIII, 7.

(28) Since they can still serve their purpose they are still regarded as vessels.

(29) An agricultural implement with many teeth, forming a sort of sieve whereby to separate the grain from the chaff; Kel. Ibid.

(30) As metal utensils.

(31) Some opine that 'all these' refer to supra IV, 2.

(32) 'To those who would question their ruling'. Perhaps he was inclined himself to agree with the critics.

(33) Of wine or oil.

(34) A common fear; and if the wine or oil is spilled in the cistern, no terumah was taken.

(35) Accordingly, even if it becomes unclean it is still regarded as terumah.

(36) Being assumed that he meant also safe from contamination. The significance of his stipulation is the object of discussion.

(37) And the wine fell back into the cistern.

(38) From the cistern.

(39) For such a short distance is included in his stipulation.

(40) The Beth din took for granted that each person desires to make such stipulations, only is deterred from so doing by forgetfulness.

Mishna - Mas. Uktzin Chapter 1

MISHNAH 1. THAT WHICH SERVES AS A HANDLE,¹ THOUGH NOT ACTUALLY AS A PROTECTION,² BOTH CONTRACTS UNCLEANNESS³ AND CONVEYS UNCLEANNESS;⁴ BUT IT IS NOT INCLUDED.⁵ IF IT SERVES AS A PROTECTION THOUGH NOT AS A HANDLE,⁶ IT CONTRACTS AND CONVEYS UNCLEANNESS AND IS INCLUDED.⁷ IF IT SERVES NEITHER AS A PROTECTION NOR AS A HANDLE,⁸ IT NEITHER CONTRACTS NOR CONVEYS UNCLEANNESS.⁹

MISHNAH 2. ROOTS OF GARLIC, ONIONS OR LEEKS¹⁰ THAT ARE YET MOIST, OR THEIR TOP-PARTS,¹¹ BE THEY MOIST OR DRY, ALSO THE SCAPE THAT IS WITHIN THE EDIBLE PART,¹² THE ROOTS OF THE LETTUCE, THE RADISH AND THE TURNIP,¹³ [ARE INCLUDED]. SO R. MEIR. R. JUDAH SAYS: ONLY THE LARGE ROOTS OF THE RADISH ARE SO INCLUDED, BUT ITS FIBROUS ROOTS ARE NOT INCLUDED. THE ROOTS OF THE MINT, RUE,¹⁴ WILD HERBS AND GARDEN HERBS THAT HAVE BEEN UPROOTED IN ORDER TO BE PLANTED ELSEWHERE,¹⁵ AND THE SPINAL CORD OF AN EAR OF CORN TOGETHER WITH ITS HUSK,¹⁶ (R. ELEAZAR SAYS: ALSO THE COBWEB-LIKE COVERING OF FRUITS)¹⁷ ALL THESE THINGS CONTRACT AND CONVEY UNCLEANNESS¹⁸ AND ARE INCLUDED.¹⁹

MISHNAH 3. THE FOLLOWING BOTH CONTRACT AND IMPART UNCLEANNESS, BUT ARE NOT INCLUDED [TOGETHER WITH THE REST]: ROOTS OF GARLIC,²⁰ ONIONS OR LEEKS WHEN THEY ARE DRY, THE SCAPE THAT IS NOT WITHIN THE EDIBLE PART,²¹ THE TWIG OF A VINE,²² A HANDBREADTH LONG ON EITHER SIDE,²³ THE STEM OF THE CLUSTER, WHATSOEVER BE ITS LENGTH,²⁴ THE TAIL OF THE CLUSTER BEREFT OF GRAPES,²⁵ THE STEM OF THE 'BROOM'²⁶ OF THE PALM-TREE TO A LENGTH OF FOUR HANDBREADTHS,²⁷ THE STALK OF THE EAR [OF CORN] TO A LENGTH OF THREE HANDBREADTHS, AND THE STALK OF ALL THINGS THAT ARE CUT, TO THE LENGTH OF THREE HANDBREADTHS.²⁸ IN THE CASE OF THOSE THINGS NOT USUALLY CUT, THEIR STALKS AND ROOTS OF ANY SIZE WHATSOEVER.²⁹ AS FOR THE OUTER HUSKS OF GRAINS,³⁰ THEY BOTH CONTRACT AND IMPART UNCLEANNESS,³¹ BUT ARE NOT INCLUDED.³²

MISHNAH 4. THE FOLLOWING, HOWEVER, NEITHER CONTRACT NOR IMPART UNCLEANNESS, AND ARE NOT INCLUDED:³² THE ROOTS OF CABBAGE-STALKS,³³ YOUNG SHOOTS OF BEET GROWING OUT OF THE ROOT,³⁴ AND SUCH TURNIP-HEADS THAT ARE ORDINARILY CUT OFF BUT IN THIS CASE WERE PULLED UP [WITH THEIR ROOTS].³⁵ R. JOSE DECLARES THEM ALL SUSCEPTIBLE TO CONTRACT UNCLEANNESS,³⁶ BUT HE DECLARES INSUSCEPTIBLE CABBAGE-STALKS AND TURNIP-HEADS.³⁷

MISHNAH 5. STALKS OF ALL EDIBLES THAT HAVE BEEN THRESHED IN THE THRESHING-FLOOR ARE CLEAN;³⁸ BUT R. JOSE PRONOUNCES THEM UNCLEAR.³⁹ A SPRIG OF A VINE WHEN STRIPPED OF ITS GRAPES IS CLEAN,³⁸ BUT IF ONE GRAPE ALONE IS LEFT THEREON, IT IS UNCLEAR.⁴⁰ A TWIG OF A DATE-TREE STRIPPED OF ITS DATES IS CLEAN,⁴¹ BUT IF ONE DATE REMAINS THEREON, IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE, SIMILARLY, WITH PULSE.⁴² IF THE PODS WERE STRIPPED FROM THE STEM IT IS CLEAN, BUT IF EVEN ONE POD ALONE REMAINS, IT IS UNCLEAR. R. ELEAZAR B. 'AZARIAH DECLARES [THE STALK] OF THE BEAN CLEAN,⁴³ BUT DECLARES UNCLEAR THE STALK OF OTHER PULSE,⁴⁴ SINCE IT IS OF USE⁴⁵ WHEN [THE PULSE] IS HANDLED.⁴⁶

MISHNAH 6. STALKS OF FIGS AND DRIED FIGS, KELUSIM FIGS,⁴⁷ AND CAROBS BOTH CONTRACT AND IMPART UNCLEANNESS, AND ARE INCLUDED.⁴⁸ R. JOSE SAYS: ALSO THE STALKS OF THE GOURD,⁴⁹ OF PEARS AND PIPPINS,⁵⁰ QUINCES,⁵¹ AND CRAB-APPLES.⁵² THE STALKS OF THE GOURD⁵³ AND THE ARTICHOKE [TO THE LENGTH OF] ONE HANDBREADTH (R. ELEAZAR SON OF R. ZADOK SAYS: TWO HANDBREADTHS) — [ALL] THESE CONTRACT AND IMPART UNCLEANNESS; BUT ARE NOT INCLUDED.⁵⁴ AS FOR THE STALKS OF ALL OTHER FRUITS, THEY NEITHER CONTRACT NOR IMPART UNCLEANNESS.⁵⁵

- (1) To fruit or plants, like the stalks of apples, grapes, plums, or a marrowless bone held in the hand in order to enjoy the meat thereon.
- (2) Thus excluding that part of the stalk actually touching the fruit and attached to the kernel.
- (3) For though the handle itself is not edible, but since it serves as a connective to the fruit, it is rendered unclean when the edible part suffers uncleanness.
- (4) If the handle suffers uncleanness the edible part becomes also unclean. Derived from Lev. XI, 37 (v. Bert.).
- (5) With the rest of the food to complete the egg's bulk necessary for the transmission of uncleanness.
- (6) I.e., the husk of plant or fruit protecting it, which men do not grip hold of when eating; accordingly, it is regarded as part of the fruit itself.
- (7) Which includes such things as wheat and barley in their husks used for the purpose of sowing. This is inferred from Lev. XI, 37, for were it to refer merely to the contraction and imparting of uncleanness, it would have been too obvious.
- (8) Like the fibrous substance of fruits or vegetables.
- (9) And, of course, cannot be included.
- (10) With heads to them.
- (11) The protuberance on blossom-end of fruits, having the appearance of a pestle seated in a mortar; hence the upper portion of fruit.
- (12) I.e., the radical stem, bearing fructification, but no leaves. The scape is the central stalk of the onion, as far as it is surrounded by the edible part (v. L.).
- (13) רַבִּידִּים, a kind of radish resembling the carrot as to foliage, and the radish as to taste, cf. Kil. I, 3, 5.
- (14) Cf Kil. I, 8: 'You must not graft rue on white cassia because it would be a combination of a herb with a tree'.
- (15) With the result that he takes good care to see that the roots are plucked up with herbs, to which they serve as a protection.
- (16) Which serves as a protection to the ear of corn.
- (17) The downy growth on the tops of vegetables, resembling almost a spider's web, a view with which the halachah does not concur.
- (18) As protection.
- (19) To make up the required egg's bulk to impart uncleanness.
- (20) Being dried up, they no longer serve as 'protection', but solely as 'handles'.
- (21) V. p. 573 n. 12.
- (22) From which a grape-cluster hangs.
- (23) Were the branch less, it could not be called 'handle', being too slender to support a heavy cluster of grapes, and not of sufficient size of which to take a grip (L.).
- (24) Even if this be very great. So Bert. According to L., however, even if it be smaller than a handbreadth.
- (25) After the grapes had fallen off, the tail of the cluster need not be of the stipulated handbreadth.
- (26) The fanshaped twig of the palm-tree which resembles a broom, with which it is possible to sweep the house; cf. Suk. 40a.
- (27) But not more.
- (28) The three handbreadths are thus explained: one of which the reaper takes hold, one that is left near the ears of corn, and one below, so that his hand does not receive a cut from the sickle.
- (29) I.e., long or short, for once they have been uprooted he does not mind how much is left of the ear of corn.
- (30) The glumes of the ears of corn; Hul. 119b.
- (31) Since all are stalks whereby the fruit is held.
- (32) Together with the rest to constitute the egg's bulk.

- (33) On top of the cabbage are leaves of helmet shape. These are usually thrown away.
- (34) Left in the soil when the beets are cut for others to grow.
- (35) All these serve neither as 'handles' nor as 'protection'.
- (36) Regarding them all as 'handles' to the food.
- (37) Which he agrees are of no purpose whatsoever.
- (38) Viz., not susceptible to defilement. Threshing used to be done with the aid of animals or sticks, thus rendering the stalks too weak to be considered after this as handles; Hul. 118a.
- (39) Namely susceptible to uncleanness; his contention being that they are liable to be upturned with the pitchfork together with the grain, hence they serve as handles; cf. Suk. 14a.
- (40) This one grape causes the sprig to be considered as a handle.
- (41) Not regarding this twig as a handle to the stalk of the broom.
- (42) Others render 'summer-fruits'.
- (43) Being of the large kind, they do not need the protection of the twig.
- (44) Being small, the twig of necessity acts as a kind of protection to them.
- (45) Lit., 'he desires'.
- (46) Accordingly, he wishes them to be attached to the sprig, which thus acts as a handle to them; Hul. 119a.
- (47) A species of dried figs, so Maim.; according to Rashi: a kind of pea or bean. Aliter: the fruit of the Judas tree. These were used for cooking purposes; Ned. 50a. Aliter: acorns.
- (48) To constitute the required egg's bulk, for occasionally they are eaten with the fruit.
- (49) A general name for cucumbers and pumpkins. These gourd-stalks are sometimes cooked together with the edible parts.
- (50) Kerustemilin. According to L., a kind of crab-apple; cf. Ma'as. I, 3 where it refers to the 'crustumenian pear'.
- (51) Perishin (lit., 'set aside, excellent'); they are so called because there is no species of fruit so well adapted for cooking as this (J. Kil. I, 27a); cf. Suk. 31a.
- (52) Medlars, a small and shrunken fruit.
- (53) Bert. stresses that the Mishnah only refers to the Greek species of gourd; for the stalks of others are very tiny.
- (54) With the food to constitute the required amount to convey uncleanness.
- (55) Needless to say, they are not included with the rest to constitute the egg's bulk.

Mishna - Mas. Uktzin Chapter 2

MISHNAH 1. LEAVES OF OLIVES PICKLED¹ TOGETHER WITH THE OLIVES REMAIN CLEAN,² FOR THEIR PICKLING WAS ONLY FOR THE SAKE OF APPEARANCES.³ THE FIBROUS SUBSTANCE⁴ ON A CUCUMBER AND THE FLOWER-LIKE SUBSTANCE THEREIN ARE CLEAN;⁵ BUT R. JUDAH IS OF THE OPINION THAT AS LONG AS IT IS STILL LYING BEFORE THE MERCHANT, IT IS UNCLEAR.⁶

MISHNAH 2. ALL KINDS OF FRUIT-STONES BECOME UNCLEAR AND IMPART UNCLEANNESS BUT ARE NOT INCLUDED;⁷ BUT THE STONES OF FRESH DATES,⁸ EVEN WHEN DETACHED [FROM THE EDIBLE PART], ARE INCLUDED;⁹ BUT THOSE OF DRIED DATES ARE NOT INCLUDED. ACCORDINGLY, THE PERICARP¹⁰ OF DRIED DATES IS INCLUDED,¹¹ BUT THAT OF FRESH DATES IS NOT INCLUDED.¹² IF ONLY PART OF A FRUIT-STONE IS DETACHED, THEN ONLY THAT PART NEAR THE EDIBLE PORTION IS INCLUDED.¹³ [SIMILARLY] WITH A BONE ON WHICH THERE IS FLESH, ONLY THAT PART THAT IS CLOSE TO THE EDIBLE PART IS INCLUDED. [IF THE BONE] HAS FLESH ONLY UPON ONE SIDE THEREOF, R. ISHMAEL SAYS: WE TAKE IT AS THOUGH [THE FLESH] ENCOMPASSES IT LIKE A RING;¹⁴ BUT THE SAGES SAY: [ONLY] THAT PART CLOSE TO THE EDIBLE PART IS INCLUDED [AS IS THE CASE] FOR EXAMPLE WITH SAVORY,¹⁵ HYSSOP AND THYME.¹⁶

MISHNAH 3. IF A POMEGRANATE OR MELON HAS ROTTED IN PART, [WHAT IS ROTTEN] IS NOT INCLUDED;¹⁷ AND IF [THE FRUIT] IS SOUND AT EITHER END BUT

HAS ROTTED IN THE MIDDLE, [WHAT IS ROTTEN] IS NOT INCLUDED.¹⁸ THE NIPPLE OF A POMEGRANATE IS INCLUDED, BUT THE FIBROUS SUBSTANCE THEREOF IS NOT INCLUDED. R. ELEAZAR SAYS: ALSO THE COMB¹⁹ [THEREOF] IS NOT SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS.²⁰

MISHNAH 4. ALL KINDS OF HUSKS CONTRACT AND IMPART UNCLEANNESS, AND ARE INCLUDED.²¹ R. JUDAH SAYS: AN ONION HAS THREE SKINS: THE INNERMOST ONE WHETHER IT IS IN ITS ENTIRE STATE OR WHETHER IT BE PIERCED WITH HOLES²² IS INCLUDED; THE MIDDLE ONE WHEN IT IS IN A WHOLE STATE IS INCLUDED, BUT WHEN IT IS PIERCED WITH HOLES IT IS NOT INCLUDED;²³ THE OUTERMOST SKIN IS IN EITHER CASE REGARDED AS INSUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS.²⁴

MISHNAH 5. IF ONE CHOPS UP [FRUIT] FOR COOKING PURPOSES, EVEN IF [THE CHOPPING HAD] NOT BEEN COMPLETELY FINISHED,²⁵ IT IS NOT REGARDED AS CONNECTED. IF HIS INTENTION, HOWEVER, HAD BEEN TO PICKLE²⁶ OR TO BOIL IT,²⁷ OR TO SET IT ON THE TABLE,²⁸ THEN IT IS REGARDED AS CONNECTED.²⁹ IF HE BEGAN TO TAKE [THE PIECES] APART, [ONLY] THAT PART OF THE FOOD WHICH HE BEGAN TO TAKE APART IS NOT CONSIDERED A CONNECTIVE.³⁰ NUTS THAT HAD BEEN STRUNG TOGETHER,³¹ OR ONIONS THAT HAD BEEN PILED TOGETHER, COUNT AS CONNECTIVES.³² IF HE BEGAN TO TAKE THE NUTS APART,³³ OR TO STRIP THE ONIONS, ONLY THAT [ON WHICH HE BEGAN] IS NOT DEEMED AS CONNECTIVE.³⁴ [SHELLS OF] NUTS AND ALMONDS ARE CONSIDERED AS CONNECTIVES [WITH THE EDIBLE PART] UNTIL THEY ARE CRUSHED.³⁵

MISHNAH 6. [THE SHELL OF] A ROASTED EGG³⁶ [IS CONSIDERED A CONNECTIVE]³⁷ UNTIL IT IS CRACKED;³⁸ THAT OF A HARD-BOILED EGG [IS CONSIDERED A CONNECTIVE] UNTIL IT IS ENTIRELY BROKEN UP.³⁹ A MARROW-BONE SERVES AS A CONNECTIVE⁴⁰ UNTIL IT IS WHOLLY CRUSHED;⁴¹ AND [THE RIND OF] A POMEGRANATE THAT HAS BEEN DIVIDED INTO HALVES SERVES AS CONNECTIVE UNTIL IT HAS BEEN KNOCKED WITH A STICK.⁴² SIMILARLY, LOOSE STITCHES OF LAUNDRYMEN⁴³ OR A GARMENT THAT HAD BEEN STITCHED TOGETHER WITH THREADS OF MIXED STUFF,⁴⁴ SERVE AS CONNECTIVES UNTIL ONE BEGINS TO LOOSEN THEM.⁴⁵

MISHNAH 7. THE [OUTER] LEAVES OF VEGETABLES IF THEY ARE GREEN⁴⁶ ARE INCLUDED,⁴⁷ BUT IF THEY HAVE WHITENED⁴⁸ THEY ARE NOT INCLUDED. R. ELEAZAR B. ZADOK SAYS: THE WHITE LEAVES OF CABBAGE ARE INCLUDED BECAUSE THEY ARE EDIBLE. SO ALSO THOSE OF LETTUCES,⁴⁹ BECAUSE THEY PRESERVE THE EDIBLE PART.

MISHNAH 8. WITH REGARD TO THE LEEK-LIKE SPROUTS OR THE CENTRE SPROUTS OF ONIONS, IF THERE IS SAP IN THEM THEY ARE TO BE MEASURED AS THEY ARE;⁵⁰ IF THERE IS A VACUUM WITHIN THEM, IT MUST BE SQUEEZED TIGHTLY TOGETHER.⁵¹ SPONGY BREAD⁵² IS MEASURED AS IT IS,⁵⁰ BUT IF THERE IS A VACUUM WITHIN IT, IT MUST BE PRESSED FIRMLY. THE FLESH OF A CALF WHICH HAD SWOLLEN,⁵³ OR THE FLESH OF AN OLD [BEAST] THAT HAS SHRUNKEN IN SIZE, ARE MEASURED IN THE CONDITION THEY ARE IN.⁵⁴

MISHNAH 9. A CUCUMBER PLANTED IN A POT⁵⁵ WHICH SO GREW TILL IT REACHED OUT OF THE POT IS NOT DEEMED SUSCEPTIBLE.⁵⁶ R. SIMEON SAID: WHAT IS THEREIN TO MAKE IT CLEAN?⁵⁷ NO;⁵⁸ THAT WHICH HAS ALREADY BECOME UNCLEAN

CONTINUES IN ITS UNCLEANNES, ⁵⁹ AND ONLY THAT WHICH IS INSUSCEPTIBLE ⁶⁰ CAN BE EATEN.

MISHNAH 10. VESSELS MADE OF CATTLE DUNG OR OF EARTH ⁶¹ THROUGH WHICH THE ROOTS CAN PENE TRATE, ⁶² DO NOT RENDER THE SEEDS SUSCEPTIBLE. ⁶³ A PERFORATED PLANT-POT DOES NOT RENDER SEEDS SUSCEPTIBLE; ⁶⁴ BUT IF IT HAS NO HOLE, THE SEEDS DO BECOME SUSCEPTIBLE. ⁶⁵ WHAT SHOULD BE THE HOLE'S DIMENSION? SUCH THAT A SMALL ROOT CAN PUSH ITS WAY THROUGH. IF IT WAS FILLED WITH EARTH TO ITS BRIM, ⁶⁶ IT IS DEEMED AS A BOARD WITHOUT AN EDGE. ⁶⁷

(1) In wine or vinegar, or other preservative liquids.

(2) I.e., they are insusceptible to uncleanness, as they are regarded neither as handle nor protection to the olives.

(3) For when the leaves are still attached, the olives lend the appearance of having just been plucked, and serve as a guarantee for freshness. Thus his intention never was to eat the olive leaves, or to preserve the olives from getting spoiled.

(4) A parasitic growth on shrubs.

(5) Being neither handle nor protection.

(6) While still unsold, this fibrous substance gives the cucumber the appearance of having been just plucked and proves more attractive to the purchaser. Accordingly, they may be regarded as a kind of protection to the fruit. In addition, they prevent the cucumber from being soiled by the fingers of intending purchasers whose custom it is to feel the fruit before buying. In this wise, they differ from the case first cited in our Mishnah concerning the leaves of the olives, with the ruling on which R. Judah agrees.

(7) To constitute the required egg's bulk; these stones being considered as handles but not as protection.

(8) Containing sap, they can be sucked in the mouth.

(9) With the edible part, since their juice is acceptable.

(10) The membranous enclosure separating the stone of the date from the flesh.

(11) With the edible part. In dry dates, the skin is thing and can be eaten with the fruit.

(12) Being bitter, the husk is usually cast aside.

(13) Part of the fresh fig was left with the fruit-stone, and the part near the edible portion was regarded as a protection.

(14) And all that part which could be then encompassed is included.

(15) A plant classified with the hyssop; Ma'as. III, 9; Sheb. VIII, 1.

(16) The stalks close to the edible parts of these plants are included (Asheri).

(17) To form the egg's bulk, since the rotted part must be cast away.

(18) Since the rotted centre can in no wise be included as edible. V. L. for the necessity of adding this statement.

(19) The sprouting hairs on the nipple of the pomegranate bear a striking resemblance to a comb.

(20) For even when they are lopped off from the fruit, the fruit-stones are not revealed; hence, they cannot be regarded as a protection. In the case of the nipple, however, the fruit-stones are laid bare when that is cut off, and the fruit does suffer as a consequence.

(21) To form the required bulk. Bert. excludes from this general statement the moist outward shells of nuts at the time of their gathering, for these also are not a protection; cf. Hul. 119b on the subject.

(22) Though such a state can scarcely be regarded as a protection to the edible part of the onion.

(23) For unlike the innermost skin, it is not eaten.

(24) Regardless of the fact whether it is whole or pierced. This skin is very thin and peels off when only touched by the hand; accordingly it can be regarded neither as handle nor as protection.

(25) I.e., some of the pieces are still attached. Since in the process of cooking they will eventually become detached, they are already considered apart.

(26) In vinegar or pungent salt water.

(27) Lit., 'to seethe them'; i.e., to overboil them. For שליקה is a more intensive process than plain cooking, בישול. In the case of pickling and boiling intensively, they become hard again and do not fall apart as in the case of plain cooking.

(28) Without chopping them up, separating them just sufficiently to enable his guests to take up separate portions, being content that they should be attached until such time as required.

(29) Each one serving as a handle to the other, and because they are considered as one pile, since the cutting has not been complete.

(30) And we do not surmise that since he began to separate some of them his intention was to do so to all.

(31) On a thread to dry whilst they are still in a tender state.

(32) Being considered as one pile.

(33) A few nuts began to break, leaving a portion still attached.

(34) For the others will soon follow suit.

(35) For the shells, even when cracked, still serve as a protection to the nuts.

(36) Or, 'lightly-boiled'.

(37) For the smallest hole therein enables one to sip the contents of the egg still in a liquid state.

(38) Cf. Hul. 92b. Once a crack has occurred, the liquid will find a way out through the hole, and the shell will no longer act as a protection.

(39) For the egg will still remain within the shell, even if the latter suffers a severe crack. It is, therefore, a protection until completely broken.

(40) With the marrow.

(41) When it cannot serve as protection to the marrow.

(42) To extract its edible seeds.

(43) It was their custom loosely to sew the garments together so that they should not get lost, and then to separate them.

(44) Cf. Par. XII, 9. His avowed intention was to unloose them later, for kil'ayim is forbidden in the Torah, but as long as they are sewn together they are counted as connectives.

(45) Hence should one of the garments contract uncleanness, the other also is affected. Once he begins to loosen the stitches which bind them together, they can no longer be deemed as one garment.

(46) When they are eaten.

(47) With the edible parts.

(48) I.e., when they have withered, a condition which renders them inedible.

(49) Which though not eaten still serve as a protection.

(50) Viz., without squeezing the core as in the case of the vacuum.

(51) In order to include the sap so as to obtain the egg's bulk necessary to impart uncleanness.

(52) I.e., bread blown up like a sponge.

(53) In the process of cooking, the flesh of the calf swells in dimension, whereas that of an old beast shrinks.

(54) Though the calf's flesh may have been less than the size of an egg prior to the cooking, or the flesh of an old beast more, still we estimate them in their present condition; cf. Toh. V, 7.

(55) Which has no hole beneath, with the result that the cucumber has not the legal ruling applied to things growing directly out of the soil (v. next Mishnah). Our Mishnah deals with a case where the cucumber had already received contact with liquid.

(56) Since the cucumber now reaches outside the pot, and only air separates it from the soil, even if that part of the cucumber within the pot had come into contact with defilement prior to its replanting, it now becomes clean, as is the law of all unclean seedlings that have been planted; v. Ter. IX, 7 (Bert.).

(57) Why should that part within the pot which had become unclean now be declared clean? Is it not enough to pronounce just that part outside the pot clean, but that within as unclean, since the pot has no hole beneath?

(58) R. Simeon is continuing his argument.

(59) Viz., that part within the pot.

(60) The part without the pot.

(61) Unbaked clay. There are three utensils which do not contract uncleanness neither according to Biblical nor Rabbinical injunction: vessels of stone, cattle-dung or unbaked clay.

(62) Though the vessels themselves are not actually perforated, yet their sides are so thin that their roots within can force their way out. Hence does the Mishnah omit stone vessels, the sides of which can obviously resist the drive of the roots outwards.

(63) For such vessels are accounted as if they had been part of the soil; hence the objects within are insusceptible to uncleanness.

(64) Being considered as if growing directly out of the soil. Having a hole, which connects the plant directly with the soil beneath, the pot loses the status of a vessel.

(65) For then it is regarded as a vessel, and the plants therein have the same ruling as those that have already been plucked from the soil.

(66) The unperforated plant pot was filled with earth, and thus not accounted at all as a vessel.

(67) I.e., an edge, by which a flat utensil is made into a vessel-like receptacle. Because it has no such receptacle it cannot be considered susceptible, and is regarded as the soil itself from which it is separated on the four sides thereof only by air; cf. Kel. II, 3 where the general principle is laid down that 'those earthenware vessels which have no inner part, no regard is paid to their outward part'.

Mishna - Mas. Uktzin Chapter 3

MISHNAH 1. SOME THINGS NEED TO BE RENDERED SUSCEPTIBLE [TO UNCLEANNESS].¹ BUT THEY DO NOT NEED INTENTION,² [WHILST OTHERS NEED] INTENTION AND TO BE RENDERED SUSCEPTIBLE. [STILL OTHERS THERE ARE THAT] NEED INTENTION, BUT DO NOT NEED TO BE RENDERED SUSCEPTIBLE, [WHILST OTHERS THAT] NEED NEITHER TO BE RENDERED SUSCEPTIBLE NOR INTENTION. SUCH EDIBLES THAT ARE DESIGNATED AS HUMAN FOOD NEED TO BE RENDERED SUSCEPTIBLE, BUT DO NOT NEED INTENTION.³

MISHNAH 2. THAT WHICH HAS BEEN SEVERED FROM A MAN,⁴ BEAST, WILD ANIMAL, BIRD, OR FROM THE CARRION OF AN UNCLEAR BIRD,⁵ AND THE FAT IN VILLAGES,⁶ AND (ALL KINDS OF WILD VEGETABLES,⁷ SAVE TRUFFLES⁸ OR FUNGUS⁹ — R. JUDAH SAYS, SAVE FIELD-LEEKs,¹⁰ PURSLANE¹¹ AND THE ASPHODEL.¹² AND R. SIMEON SAYS, SAVE CARDOON,¹³ AND R. JOSE SAYS, SAVE ACORNS¹⁴ — BEHOLD ALL THESE¹⁵ NEED BOTH INTENTION AND TO BE RENDERED SUSCEPTIBLE [TO UNCLEANNESS].¹⁶

MISHNAH 3. THE CARRION OF AN UNCLEAR BEAST AT ALL PLACES,¹⁷ AND OF A CLEAR BIRD IN VILLAGES, NEED INTENTION¹⁸ BUT DO NOT NEED TO BE RENDERED SUSCEPTIBLE.¹⁹ THE CARRION OF A CLEAR BEAST IN ALL PLACES,²⁰ AND THAT OF A CLEAR BIRD, AND ALSO FAT²¹ IN THE MARKET PLACES, REQUIRE NEITHER INTENTION²² NOR TO BE RENDERED SUSCEPTIBLE.²³ R. SIMEON SAYS, ALSO²⁴ [THE CARRION OF] THE CAMEL, RABBIT, CONEY OR PIG.

MISHNAH 4. THE DILL²⁵ STALK AFTER HAVING GIVEN ITS TASTE TO A DISH IS NO LONGER SUBJECT TO THE LAWS OF TERUMAH,²⁶ AND ALSO NO LONGER IMPARTS FOOD UNCLEANNESS.²⁷ THE YOUNG SPROUTS OF THE SERVICE-TREE,²⁸ OF GARDEN CRESS,²⁹ OR LEAVES OF THE WILD ARUM,³⁰ DO NOT IMPART FOOD UNCLEANNESS UNTIL THEY ARE SWEETENED.³¹ R. SIMEON SAYS: ALSO [THE LEAVES OF] THE COLOCYNTH ARE LIKE THEM.

MISHNAH 5. COSTUS,³² AMOMUM,³³ PRINCIPAL SPICES, [ROOTS OF] CROWFOOT,³⁴ ASAFOETIDA,³⁵ PEPPER AND LOZENGES MADE OF SAFFRON³⁶ MAY BE BOUGHT WITH TITHE MONEY,³⁷ BUT THEY DO NOT CONVEY FOOD UNCLEANNESS.³⁸ SO R. AKIBA. SAID R. JOHANAN B. NURI TO HIM: IF THEY MAY BE BOUGHT WITH [SECOND] TITHE MONEY, THEN WHY SHOULD THEY NOT IMPART FOOD UNCLEANNESS? AND IF THEY DO NOT IMPART FOOD UNCLEANNESS, THEN THEY SHOULD ALSO NOT BE BOUGHT WITH [SECOND] TITHE MONEY.³⁹

MISHNAH 6. UNRIPE FIGS OR GRAPES, R. AKIBA SAYS, CONVEY FOOD UNCLEANNESS; BUT R. JOHANAN B. NURI SAYS: [THIS IS ONLY] WHEN THEY HAVE REACHED THE SEAS ON WHEN THEY ARE LIABLE TO TITHES.⁴⁰ OLIVES AND GRAPES

THAT HAVE HARDENED,⁴¹ BETH SHAMMAI SAY, BECOME SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS,⁴² WHEREAS BETH HILLEL SAY: THEY ARE INSUSCEPTIBLE.⁴³ BLACK CUMMIN, BETH SHAMMAI SAY, IS NOT SUSCEPTIBLE, BUT BETH HILLEL SAY: IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE.⁴⁴ [THEIR DISPUTE ALSO EXTENDS] TO [THEIR LIABILITY TO] TITHES.⁴⁵

MISHNAH 7. THE TERMINAL BUD OF A PALM⁴⁶ IS LIKE WOOD IN EVERY RESPECT,⁴⁷ SAVE THAT IT MAY BE BOUGHT FOR [SECOND] TITHE MONEY.⁴⁸ UNRIPENED DATES⁴⁹ ARE CONSIDERED FOOD,⁵⁰ BUT ARE EXEMPT FROM TITHES.⁵¹

MISHNAH 8. WHEN DO FISH BECOME SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS?⁵² BETH SHAMMAI SAY: AFTER THEY HAVE BEEN CAUGHT.⁵³ BETH HILLEL SAY: ONLY AFTER THEY ARE DEAD.⁵⁴ R. AKIBA SAYS: [IT ALL DEPENDS] IF THEY CAN STILL LIVE.⁵⁵ IF A BRANCH OF A FIG TREE WAS BROKEN OFF, BUT IT WAS STILL ATTACHED BY ITS BARK,⁵⁶ R. JUDAH SAYS: [THE FRUIT THEREON] IS STILL NOT SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS; BUT THE SAGES SAY: [IT ALL DEPENDS] WHETHER THEY COULD STILL LIVE.⁵⁷ GRAIN THAT HAD BEEN UPROOTED, EVEN THOUGH IT BE ATTACHED TO THE SOIL BY THE SMALLEST OF ROOTS, IS NOT SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS.⁵⁸

MISHNAH 9. THE FAT [OF THE CARCASE] OF A CLEAN BEAST IS NOT REGARDED AS UNCLEAR WITH CARRION UNCLEANNESS;⁵⁹ FOR THIS REASON IT MUST FIRST BE MADE SUSCEPTIBLE. THE FAT OF AN UNCLEAR BEAST, HOWEVER, IS REGARDED AS UNCLEAR WITH CARRION UNCLEANNESS;⁶⁰ FOR THIS REASON IT NEED NOT BE MADE AT FIRST SUSCEPTIBLE.⁶¹ AS FOR UNCLEAR FISH AND UNCLEAR LOCUSTS,⁶² INTENTION IS REQUIRED IN VILLAGES.⁶³

MISHNAH 10. A BEE-HIVE⁶⁴ SAYS R. ELIEZER, IS TREATED AS IF IT WERE IMMOVABLE PROPERTY;⁶⁵ HENCE A PROZBUL⁶⁶ MAY BE WRITTEN ON ITS SECURITY; IT IS ALSO NOT SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS AS LONG AS IT REMAINS IN ITS OWN PLACE.⁶⁷ THE ONE WHO SCRAPES HONEY THEREFROM ON A SABBATH DAY BECOMES LIABLE TO A SIN-OFFERING.⁶⁸ BUT THE SAGES SAY: IT IS NOT TO BE TREATED AS IF IT WERE IMMOVABLE PROPERTY, AND HENCE NO PROZBUL MAY BE WRITTEN ON ITS SECURITY; IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE EVEN IF IT REMAINS IN ITS OWN PLACE; AND THE ONE WHO SCRAPES HONEY THEREFROM ON THE SABBATH IS EXEMPT [FROM A SIN-OFFERING].⁶⁹

MISHNAH 11. WHEN DO HONEYCOMBS BECOME SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS ON ACCOUNT OF THEIR BEING REGARDED AS LIQUIDS?⁷⁰ BETH SHAMMAI SAY: FROM THE MOMENT HE BEGINS TO SMOKE⁷¹ THE BEES OUT; BUT BETH HILLEL SAY: FROM THE TIME AFTER [THE HONEYCOMB] HAS BEEN BROKEN.⁷²

MISHNAH 12. R. JOSHUA B. LEVI SAID: IN THE WORLD TO COME⁷³ THE HOLY ONE, BLESSED BE HE, WILL MAKE EACH RIGHTEOUS PERSON TO INHERIT THREE HUNDRED AND TEN WORLDS, FOR IT IS WRITTEN: 'THAT I MAY CAUSE THOSE THAT LOVE ME TO INHERIT YESH;⁷⁴ AND THAT I MAY FILL THEIR TREASURIES'.⁷⁵ R. SIMEON B. HALAFTA SAID: THE HOLY ONE, BLESSED BE HE, FOUND NO VESSEL THAT COULD CONTAIN BLESSING FOR ISRAEL SAVE THAT OF PEACE, AS IT IS WRITTEN: 'THE LORD WILL GIVE STRENGTH UNTO HIS PEOPLE; THE LORD WILL BLESS HIS PEOPLE WITH PEACE'.⁷⁶

(1) By coming in contact with any one of the seven liquids enumerated in Maksh. VI, 4.

(2) To be used as food so as to make them subject to rules of food uncleanness.

- (3) Since they will eventually be used for food, though not set aside for the purpose now. Even if such fruit had not been specifically plucked for human consumption, but had fallen of its own accord, it becomes unclean after having been rendered susceptible.
- (4) Only the entire limb from a living being makes objects unclean, but not the flesh. Hence both contact with liquid and intention are required. If the flesh had been cut off to throw to a dog to eat, it is deemed sufficient intention; cf. Ker. 21a.
- (5) For though dead, no major defilement attaches to it; Toh. I, 3. Accordingly it requires to be rendered susceptible both in town and village.
- (6) Where it is not usual for fat to be eaten, hence intention is required. In towns, however, where among the large throngs there are sure to be those who also eat fat, no specific intention is required; but in both places it needs to be rendered susceptible. (V. discussion in L.).
- (7) Growing of their own accord without having been sown; hence not specified for human food.
- (8) Heb. shemarka'im, 'a species of very acrid onions' (Maim.).
- (9) Though these two plants likewise grow wild, yet on account of their being occasionally served as human food, require contact with liquids, but no specific intention.
- (10) As also not requiring intention.
- (11) A low succulent herb used in salads.
- (12) A genus of lilaceous plants.
- (13) A composite kitchen garden plant allied to the artichoke; a species of edible thistles.
- (14) Heb. balosin. Jast. emends to bulbus, and renders 'a bulbous root, a delicious kind of onion'.
- (15) I.e., all enumerated things apart from those excepted by the three Rabbis, whose contention was that since they are sometimes eaten, no specific intention is required.
- (16) This intention must precede the contact with the liquid (v. L.).
- (17) For they are not usually eaten, even in towns.
- (18) To convey food uncleanness even where it is less than an olive's bulk, provided it was combined with some foodstuff of less than an egg's bulk, v. Ker. 21a.
- (19) Being already unclean per se; v. infra 9, n. 7. For the purpose of elucidation, this Rabbinic ruling must be cited: carrion, whether of wild animals, clean or unclean cattle, imparts uncleanness by contact and carrying. The carrion of a clean bird has but the one uncleanness — that when there is an olive's bulk thereof in the eater's gullet (v. Toh. I, 1). The carrion of an unclean bird, of fish, clean and unclean, and of locusts, have no uncleanness at all.
- (20) Bing regarded as food.
- (21) Sc. carrion fat of an unclean beast which defiles as the flesh does; v. however Rashi, Ker. 21a.
- (22) Since there are bound to be some people who occasionally eat such food.
- (23) Since it will later be the cause of major defilement (gullet uncleanness), contact with liquids is non-essential.
- (24) As not requiring intention in the towns, since there are bound to be some therein who eat even these things. Specific intention is only required in such cases where the food is not used for human consumption whatsoever. R. Simeon differs from the Tanna of our Mishnah who generalized that: 'the carrion of unclean beasts anywhere requires attention'.
- (25) Of terumah. An umbelliferous annual yellow-flowered herb; cf. Shab. 126b; M. K. 3a.
- (26) And, accordingly, a non-priest eating thereof is not deemed culpable.
- (27) For once it had been cooked all its taste departs and it becomes uneatable.
- (28) The interior of which is eaten as a relish, after they have been pickled.
- (29) Aliter: 'candy-tuft', a plant with white, pink or purple flowers in flat tufts.
- (30) A plant similar to colocasia, with edible leaves and not bearing beans; usually classified with onions and garlic.
- (31) And then they become edible.
- (32) The name of a fragrant root or shrub, forming one of the ingredients of frankincense.
- (33) An Indian spice; cf. Gen. R. XLV, where amomum is prescribed as a medicine for sterility.
- (34) Used as a spice, but considered poisonous for beasts.
- (35) An umbelliferous plant used as a resin, or in leaves for a spice and for medicinal purposes.
- (36) Or 'safflower', a thistlelike plant yielding red dye, used especially for rouge.
- (37) Refers to the second tithe, which the owner had to take to Jerusalem there to consume; or else he must redeem it by putting aside coins equivalent to their value plus one-fifth, after which that produce becomes free for ordinary use. The coins themselves assume the sanctity of the tithe and must also be taken to Jerusalem to buy therewith food or peace-offerings, and there to be consumed in cleanness.

- (38) Since they are not used for food but only for flavouring.
- (39) His argument being that since Deut. XIV, 26 stresses: 'And thou shalt bestow thy money . . . and thou shalt eat', the obvious implication is that only such things that can be eaten in their natural condition may be bought for the money.
- (40) Each fruit has a different season for tithing purposes; Ma'as. I, 1ff.
- (41) Prior to their ripening.
- (42) Still being regarded as food on account of the oil therein.
- (43) Not considered as food, since none will take the trouble of extracting the oil therefrom.
- (44) Cf. Ber. 40a.
- (45) According to Beth Shammai it will not be liable to tithes, since it is not susceptible to uncleanness, not being regarded as food.
- (46) Kor is the marrow or white heart of a palm or cabbage-tree. During the summer months it is soft and edible, but during the winter it hardens exceedingly.
- (47) V. 'Er. 28b; hence it is not susceptible to food uncleanness.
- (48) Being considered as food that had received its growth directly from the soil.
- (49) Kofniyoth is the inflorescence of palms, a date-berry in its early stages; cf. M. Sh. I, 14 where they are considered fruit in every respect.
- (50) For the purpose of imparting uncleanness.
- (51) Because the fruit has not yet ripened.
- (52) For as long as they are still alive they are not susceptible to, and cannot impart, uncleanness.
- (53) When they are already counted as dead, though still struggling in their nets. As fish do not require ritual slaughter, their death is only a matter of course.
- (54) Since nobody eats live fish, they can only be considered susceptible after they are dead.
- (55) I.e., if they can still survive after they have been taken out of the net and cast back into the sea, then they are not susceptible.
- (56) Thus the figs on the branch are still connected with the tree and regarded as rooted to the soil; cf. Hul. 126b. The same applies to other fruits, but the bark of the fig is mentioned on account of its thickness, and even when the bough is broken it still remains attached to the tree.
- (57) I.e., whether the fruit would grow again if fastened to the tree.
- (58) Maintaining that this is sufficient to make the grain sprout afresh.
- (59) This Mishnah is an explanation of supra III, 3. The guiding principle is that if eventually it will become a source of major defilement (so as to convey uncleanness to men and vessels), no preliminary contact with one of the seven liquids is required.
- (60) Provided, of course, it has the required egg's bulk. The Bible declared clean only the fat of the clean beast that afterwards became carrion (v. Lev. VII, 25), but the fat of an unclean beast defiles together with the flesh thereof.
- (61) Before it imparts food uncleanness; but there must be intention since it is not usually eaten; v. Mishnah 3, n. 11.
- (62) That are dead.
- (63) But not in the towns. Contact with liquids they must have everywhere, seeing that they do not carry with them any major defilement.
- (64) Cf. Shebi, X, 7.
- (65) And can, therefore, be acquired with the three legal procedures of money, document and usucaption.
- (66) Cf. Shebi. X, 6; Git. 37a; v. Glos.
- (67) Being then treated as if it were actually attached to the soil.
- (68) As in the case of plucking anything rooted to the soil on the Sabbath.
- (69) Thus regarding the bee-hive in every respect as something entirely detached from the soil. The reference is to a hive which is just lying on the ground, uncemented to the soil with lime.
- (70) For as long as the honey is in the hive it is regarded as food (v. previous Mishnah), and subject to the regulations of food uncleanness. As a liquid, however, it contracts first grade uncleanness if touched by anything unclean, v. Par. VIII, 7.
- (71) He sets twigs on fire to drive out bees from the hive. Maim.: 'He heats the honeycomb in order to make its honey sweeter'. Aliter: 'When he stirs up strife with the bees to drive them out'. Aliter: 'When he contemplates scraping out the honey'.
- (72) When he is about to scrape the honey out of the hive, he cuts it with a knife and extracts therefrom the honeycomb.

This act is described as a breaking of the honeycomb.

(73) Since this Mishnah sets the seal on the entire Talmud, it was thought appropriate to indicate the heavenly blessing to be meted out in the world to come as a reward of its long and arduous study. In some editions this last Mishnah is omitted.

(74) ש"י , (E. V. 'substance') numerically equivalent to 310. This is a recognized Rabbinic exegetic device called Gematria; cf. Aboth III, 19. The pleasure awaiting him who has made the study of the Torah his 'chief delight' and his meditation day and night' will be 310 times greater than any kind of earthly pleasure.

(75) Prov. VIII, 21. The entire chapter is devoted to the importance of a study of the Torah.

(76) Ps. XXIX, 11.

Mishna - Mas. Yadayim Chapter 1

MISHNAH 1. [A MINIMUM OF] A QUARTER [OF A LOG]¹ OF WATER MUST BE POURED² OVER THE HANDS³ [TO BE SUFFICIENT] FOR ONE [PERSON] AND IS EVEN [SUFFICIENT] FOR TWO;⁴ A MINIMUM OF HALF⁵ A LOG MUST BE POURED OVER THE HANDS [TO BE SUFFICIENT] FOR THREE OR FOUR PERSONS;⁶ ONE LOG OR MORE [IS SUFFICIENT] FOR FIVE, TEN, OR ONE HUNDRED PERSONS.⁷ R. JOSE SAYS: BUT PROVIDED ONLY THERE IS NOT LESS THAN A QUARTER OF A LOG LEFT FOR THE LAST PERSON AMONG THEM. MORE [WATER] MAY BE ADDED TO THE SECOND WATER,⁸ BUT MORE MAY NOT BE ADDED TO THE FIRST WATER.⁹

MISHNAH 2. WATER MAY BE POURED OVER THE HANDS OUT OF ANY KIND OF VESSEL, EVEN OUT OF VESSELS MADE OF ANIMAL ORDURE,¹⁰ OUT OF VESSELS MADE OF STONE¹⁰ OR OUT OF VESSELS MADE OF CLAY.¹⁰ WATER MAY NOT BE POURED FROM THE SIDES OF [BROKEN] VESSELS¹¹ OR FROM THE BOTTOM OF A LADLE¹¹ OR FROM THE BUNG OF A BARREL.¹² NOR MAY ANYONE POUR [WATER] OVER THE HANDS OF HIS FELLOW OUT OF HIS CUPPED HANDS BECAUSE ONE MAY NOT DRAW, NOR SANCTIFY,¹³ NOR SPRINKLE¹⁴ THE WATER OF PURIFICATION,¹⁵ NOR POUR WATER OVER THE HANDS EXCEPT IN A VESSEL. AND ONLY VESSELS CLOSELY COVERED WITH A LID PROTECT [THEIR CONTENTS FROM UNCLEANNES]¹⁶ AND¹⁷ ONLY VESSELS PROTECT [THEIR CONTENTS FROM UNCLEANNES] FROM EARTHENWARE VESSELS.¹⁸

MISHNAH 3. IF WATER HAS BECOME SO UNFIT¹⁹ THAT IT CANNOT BE DRUNK BY CATTLE, IF IT WAS IN A VESSEL IT IS INVALID,²⁰ BUT IF IT WAS IN THE GROUND²¹ IT IS VALID. IF THERE FELL INTO IT INK, RESIN,²² OR VITRIOL²³ AND ITS COLOUR CHANGED, IT IS INVALID.²⁴ IF A PERSON DID ANY WORK WITH IT²⁵ OR SOAKED HIS BREAD THEREIN, IT IS INVALID.²⁴ SIMEON OF TEMAN SAYS: EVEN IF HE INTENDED TO SOAK HIS BREAD IN ONE WATER AND IT FELL IN ANOTHER WATER [DO YOU STILL CONSIDER THE OTHER WATER TO BE INVALID? IN SUCH A CASE I CONSIDER THAT THE OTHER WATER] IS VALID.²⁶

MISHNAH 4. IF HE CLEANSED VESSELS THEREIN OR SCRUBBED²⁷ MEASURES THEREIN, [THE WATER] IS INVALID; IF HE RINSED THEREIN VESSELS WHICH HAD ALREADY BEEN RINSED OR NEW VESSELS, IT IS VALID. R. JOSE DECLARES IT TO BE INVALID IF THEY WERE NEW VESSELS.²⁸

MISHNAH 5. WATER IN WHICH THE BAKER DIPS GELUSK²⁰ N²⁹ IS INVALID;³⁰ BUT IF HE [MERELY] MOISTENED HIS HANDS THEREIN³¹ IT IS VALID. ALL ARE FIT TO POUR WATER OVER THE HANDS, EVEN A DEAF-MUTE, AN IMBECILE, OR A MINOR. A PERSON MAY PLACE THE BARREL BETWEEN HIS KNEES AND POUR OUT THE WATER³² OR HE MAY TURN THE BARREL ON ITS SIDE AND POUR IT OUT.³³ AN APE³⁴ MAY POUR WATER OVER THE HANDS. R. JOSE DECLARES THESE [LATTER] TWO CASES INVALID.³⁵

(1) A log is a liquid measure equal in quantity to the liquid contents of six eggs. Cf. B.B. 90a.

(2) Lit., 'they put (water) upon the hands'.

(3) I.e., in order to cleanse them.

(4) Even though there may not be as much as a quarter of a log of water remaining to be poured over the hands of the second person, it is nevertheless valid, as it originally formed part of the requisite quantity necessary to produce a condition of cleanness. Cf. Hul. 107a.

(5) Var. lec.: 'a half log or more'.

- (6) According to calculation, the minimum for three should be 3/8, nevertheless half a log was required for fear that each person in concern for those that follow him would economize in the use of water and not wash his hands properly (Bert.).
- (7) Not to be taken literally but meaning that a minimum of a log of water will suffice for any number as long as there is enough water remaining to be poured over the hands of the last person in the manner prescribed. Cf. Asheri ad loc. Maim. is of the opinion that this Mishnah refers to the water poured over the hands the second time and that a minimum of a quarter of a log must be poured over the hands of each person the first time. Cf. next note and infra II, 1.
- (8) Water must be poured over the hands twice to ensure that they become absolutely clean. Maim. explains that after water has been poured over the hands the first time the water becomes unclean through the hands, hence a second cleansing is necessary. The first pouring is designated the first water, the second, the second water.
- (9) The water must cover the hands as far as the wrist both times, hence if at the first pouring out the amount of water is insufficient to cover the hands as far as the wrist, they still remain unclean, and therefore the water may not be added to, but a fresh quantity of water must be used after first drying the hands.
- (10) Though vessels made of these materials are not susceptible to uncleanness (cf. Par. V, 5), they are nevertheless considered 'vessels' for the purpose of washing the hands.
- (11) Because they are not whole vessels but broken parts of a vessel.
- (12) A bung cannot itself be used as a vessel. But if it were shaped into a vessel it could be used to pour water over the hands. Cf. Tosef. ad loc. and Hul. 107a.
- (13) By mixing the ashes of the Red Heifer with the water.
- (14) By dipping hyssop into the water containing the ashes and sprinkling it over the unclean object. Cf. Num. XIX, 18.
- (15) The reference here is to the Red Heifer the ashes of which were mixed with running water in a vessel and sprinkled over the person or vessel which had become unclean through contact with a dead body or through being present in the tent where the dead body lay; cf. Num. XIX, 17.
- (16) In the tent where the dead body lay. Every open vessel which hath no covering close-bound upon it is unclean (Num. XIX, 15). Thus only whole vessels and not broken parts of a vessel protect their contents from contracting uncleanness in the Tent, when closely covered with a lid.
- (17) שאיין equivalent to ואיין. Cf. parallel passage in Par. V, 5.
- (18) For notes v. Par. (Sonc. ed.) V, 5.
- (19) I.e., unfit by reason of stench and putridity; cf. Zeb. 22a.
- (20) I.e., invalid to be used for pouring over the hands.
- (21) The water in the ground forms a ritual bath and is valid for the purpose of immersing the hands therein; cf. Tosef. ad loc. and Hul. 106a.
- (22) קומום, gum, resin, especially ink prepared with gum.
- (23) קלקנתום sometimes קנקנתום, vitriol, used as an ingredient of shoe-black and of ink.
- (24) Since the water is no longer in its natural state.
- (25) E.g., if he cooled wine in it (Asheri).
- (26) So Bert. Aliter: If he intended to soak his bread in one water and it fell in another it is invalid. Aliter: 'Even if he intended to soak his bread in one water and it fell in another it is valid', and needless to say, where there was no intention at all to soak the bread.
- (27) To remove the traces of anything which had adhered to the measure.
- (28) Because although they are clean it is customary to rinse them first before using them.
- (29) Round bread of fine meal. The reference here is to the dough before it is baked.
- (30) As he had done work with it. Cf. supra I, 3.
- (31) And then moistened the bread with his wet hands, it is valid because no work has been done with the actual water in the vessel.
- (32) The water must be poured out through human action, כה גברא (cf. Hul. 107a). By placing the barrel between his knees this requirement is considered fulfilled.
- (33) Once he has turned the barrel on to its side and the water is flowing he may even leave it and it is still considered valid as satisfying the above requirement.
- (34) This Tanna considers כה גברא to mean that the water must be poured out through someone's effort but not necessarily through human action.
- (35) R. Jose is of the opinion that 'human action' is essential and therefore an ape may not pour out the water.

Furthermore he considers that no human action comes into force on the actual washing of the hands if he merely turns the barrel on its side.

Mishna - Mas. Yadayim Chapter 2

MISHNAH 1. IF A PERSON POURS¹ WATER OVER ONE OF HIS HANDS WITH A SINGLE RINSING HIS HAND BECOMES CLEAN.² IF OVER BOTH HIS HANDS WITH A SINGLE RINSING, R. MEIR DECLARES THEM TO BE UNCLEAR UNTIL HE POURS A MINIMUM OF A QUARTER OF A LOG OF WATER OVER THEM.³ IF A LOAF OF TERUMAH⁴ FELL ON THE WATER THE LOAF IS CLEAN.⁵ R. JOSE DECLARES IT TO BE UNCLEAR.⁶

MISHNAH 2. IF HE POURED THE FIRST WATER⁷ OVER HIS HANDS [WHILST STANDING] IN ONE PLACE, AND THE SECOND WATER OVER HIS HANDS [WHILST STANDING] IN ANOTHER PLACE, AND A LOAF OF TERUMAH FELL ON THE FIRST WATER,⁸ THE LOAF BECOMES UNCLEAR. BUT IF IT FELL ON THE SECOND WATER IT REMAINS CLEAR.⁹ IF HE POURED THE FIRST AND THE SECOND WATER [WHILST STANDING] IN ONE PLACE, AND A LOAF OF TERUMAH FELL THEREON, THE LOAF BECOMES UNCLEAR.¹⁰ IF HE POURED THE FIRST WATER OVER HIS HANDS AND A SPLINTER OR A PIECE OF GRAVEL IS FOUND ON HIS HANDS, THEY REMAIN UNCLEAR,¹¹ BECAUSE THE LATTER WATER ONLY MAKES THE FIRST WATER ON THE HANDS CLEAR. R. SIMEON B. GAMALIEL. SAYS: IF ANY WATER-CREATURE [FALLS ON THE HANDS WHILST THEY ARE BEING CLEANED] THEY NEVERTHELESS BECOME CLEAR.¹²

MISHNAH 3. HANDS BECOME UNCLEAR AND ARE MADE CLEAR AS FAR AS THE WRIST. HOW SO? IF HE POURED THE FIRST WATER OVER THE HANDS AS FAR AS THE WRIST AND POURED THE SECOND WATER OVER THE HANDS BEYOND THE WRIST AND THE LATTER FLOWED BACK TO THE HANDS, THE HANDS NEVERTHELESS BECOME CLEAR.¹³ IF HE POURED THE FIRST AND THE SECOND WATER OVER THE HANDS BEYOND THE WRIST AND THEY FLOWED BACK TO THE HANDS, THE HANDS REMAIN UNCLEAR.¹⁴ IF HE POURED THE FIRST WATER OVER ONE OF HIS HANDS AND THEN CHANGED HIS MIND AND POURED THE SECOND WATER OVER BOTH HIS HANDS, THEY REMAIN UNCLEAR.¹⁵ IF HE POURED THE FIRST WATER OVER BOTH HIS HANDS AND THEN CHANGED HIS MIND AND POURED THE SECOND WATER OVER ONE OF HIS HANDS, HIS ONE HAND BECOMES CLEAR. IF HE POURED WATER OVER ONE OF HIS HANDS AND RUBBED IT ON THE OTHER HAND IT REMAINS UNCLEAR.¹⁶ IF HE RUBBED IT ON HIS HEAD OR ON THE WALL¹⁷ IT BECOMES CLEAR. WATER MAY BE POURED OVER THE HANDS OF FOUR OR FIVE PERSONS, EACH HAND BEING BY THE SIDE OF THE OTHER, OR BEING ONE ABOVE THE OTHER, PROVIDED THAT THE HANDS ARE HELD LOOSELY SO THAT THE WATER FLOWS BETWEEN THEM.

MISHNAH 4. IF THERE WAS A DOUBT WHETHER ANY WORK HAS BEEN DONE WITH THE WATER OR NOT,¹⁸ OR WHETHER THE WATER CONTAINS THE REQUISITE QUANTITY OR NOT, OR WHETHER IT IS UNCLEAR¹⁹ OR CLEAR, THEN WHERE THERE IS SUCH A DOUBT THE WATER IS CONSIDERED TO BE CLEAR. BECAUSE THEY²⁰ HAVE SAID IN A CASE OF DOUBT CONCERNING HANDS AS TO WHETHER THEY HAVE BECOME UNCLEAR OR HAVE CONVEYED UNCLEANNESS OR HAVE BECOME CLEAR, THEY ARE CONSIDERED TO BE CLEAR. R. JOSE SAYS: IN A CASE [OF DOUBT AS TO] WHETHER THEY HAVE BECOME CLEAR THEY ARE CONSIDERED TO BE UNCLEAR. HOW SO? IF HIS HANDS WERE CLEAR AND THERE WERE TWO UNCLEAR LOAVES BEFORE HIM AND THERE WAS A DOUBT WHETHER HE TOUCHED THEM OR NOT;²¹ OR IF HIS HANDS WERE UNCLEAR AND THERE WERE TWO CLEAR LOAVES²² BEFORE HIM AND THERE WAS A DOUBT WHETHER HE TOUCHED THEM OR NOT; OR IF ONE OF HIS HANDS WAS UNCLEAN AND THE OTHER CLEAN AND THERE WERE TWO CLEAN LOAVES²² BEFORE HIM AND HE TOUCHED ONE OF THEM AND THERE WAS A DOUBT WHETHER HE TOUCHED IT WITH THE UNCLEAN HAND OR WITH THE CLEAN HAND; OR IF HIS HANDS WERE CLEAN AND THERE WERE TWO LOAVES BEFORE HIM ONE OF WHICH WAS UNCLEAN AND THE OTHER CLEAN AND HE TOUCHED ONE OF THEM AND THERE WAS A DOUBT WHETHER HE TOUCHED THE UNCLEAN ONE OR THE CLEAN ONE; OR IF ONE OF HIS HANDS WAS UNCLEAN AND THE OTHER CLEAN AND THERE WERE TWO LOAVES BEFORE HIM ONE OF WHICH WAS UNCLEAN AND THE OTHER CLEAN, AND HE TOUCHED BOTH OF THEM, AND THERE IS A DOUBT WHETHER THE UNCLEAN HAND TOUCHED THE UNCLEAN LOAF OR WHETHER THE CLEAN HAND TOUCHED THE CLEAN LOAF OR WHETHER THE CLEAN HAND TOUCHED THE UNCLEAN LOAF OR WHETHER THE UNCLEAN HAND TOUCHED THE CLEAN LOAF, THE HANDS REMAIN IN THE SAME STATE AS THEY WERE BEFORE AND THE LOAVES REMAIN IN THE SAME STATE AS THEY WERE BEFORE.

(1) נטל an elliptical expression for נטל מים על ידי cf. Levy op. cit. According to Strack, Einleitung in Talmud und Midrash, elliptic for נטילת כלי לטבול על הידים i.e., lifting the vessel in order to pour water over the hands. Some derive it from נטלא, the name for the vessel used for pouring out the water. Cf. Frankel, Aramaische Fremdwörter in Arabischen, p. 65. The root נטל however, occurs in Biblical Hebrew. Cf. B.D.B. p. 642, with the meaning, to lift; and cf. note to supra I, I נוטלין לידיים .

(2) Even if there be less than a quarter of a log of water in the vessel. This is the case when he is not the first person to wash his hands from the water but washes them from the 'residue of the requisite quantity' necessary. Cf. supra I, 1. The one hand nevertheless becomes clean with a single rinsing and a second pouring out is unnecessary. But if he pours out the water over both his hands with a single rinsing, even though the water be the residue of the requisite quantity it is not sufficient and he must pour the water over his hands a second time as far as the wrist.

(3) R. Meir is of the opinion that a second pouring of water over the hands is only necessary if there was less than a quarter of a log of water poured out on the first occasion. Cf. Asheri ad loc.

(4) V. Glos.

(5) I.e., if he has poured out a quarter of a log over his hands the first time and the loaf of terumah fell in the water as it lay on the ground, or if he touched it whilst his hands were still wet, or before he poured the second water over his hands, the loaf is nevertheless clean since his hands have been cleansed by the first water which was a quarter of a log in quantity.

(6) Since the water itself is unclean.

(7) Being less than a quarter of a log in quantity. This is the case when the water is the residue of the 'requisite quantity'. v. supra I, 2. If it were more than a quarter of a log in quantity, the loaf of terumah would remain clean if it touched the first water. Cf supra II, 1.

(8) I.e., it fell on the spot where the first water had fallen.

(9) Because the second water is clean.

(10) Because the second water only makes the first water on the hands clean but not the water on the ground. V. infra.

(11) They are unclean even if he pours the second water over them, because the water on the splinter or on the piece of gravel becomes unclean by being in contact with the hands, and the second water only makes the first water clean and not the water on the splinter or on the piece of gravel, which consequently makes his hands unclean. Maim: The splinter or gravel forms an interposition and consequently the second water does not cleanse his hands.

(12) Water-creatures such as, for example, water-gnats are treated as water.

(13) All the regulations relating to the uncleanness of hands apply up to the wrist. Consequently in this case the second water makes the first water on the hands clean as far as the wrist only, and as the first water did not flow beyond the wrist the part of the second water beyond the wrist does not come into contact with it, nor does it become unclean by coming into contact with that part of the hand beyond the wrist, and therefore the hands become clean.

(14) Beyond the wrist the second water cannot cleanse the first water, and since the second water comes there into contact with the first water, the hands remain unclean; cf. Sot. 4b.

(15) I.e., if he poured the first water over each hand separately and then poured the second water over both hands held together. The first water on each hand becomes unclean on coming into contact with the unclean water on the other hand, and so conveys uncleanness to each hand. The second water therefore does not cleanse them since each hand is still unclean. Maim. ad loc. explains that he poured the first water on one hand only and poured the second water over both hands held together. The second water becomes unclean on being poured over the other unclean hand, and therefore does not cleanse the hands.

(16) Since the other hand is unclean and therefore conveys uncleanness to the water on the hand when he touches it.

(17) In order to dry the hands.

(18) Cf. supra 1, 3.

(19) I.e., unclean for the purpose of pouring the water over the hands.

(20) I.e., the Sages; cf. Toh. IV. 7.

(21) Unclean food conveys uncleanness to the hands. Cf. infra III, 2.

(22) I.e., loaves of terumah which are rendered unfit if touched by the hands. Cf. infra III, 1.

Mishna - Mas. Yadayim Chapter 3

MISHNAH 1. IF A PERSON PUTS HIS HANDS INSIDE A HOUSE SMITTEN WITH LEPROSY,¹ HIS HANDS BECOME UNCLEAR IN THE FIRST DEGREE.² [THESE ARE] THE WORDS OF R. AKIBA. BUT THE SAGES SAY: HIS HANDS BECOME UNCLEAR IN THE SECOND DEGREE. WHOEVER CONVEYS UNCLEANNESS TO THE GARMENTS AT THE TIME WHEN HE TOUCHES [THE UNCLEANNESS]³ CONVEYS A FIRST DEGREE OF UNCLEANNESS TO THE HANDS.⁴ [THESE] ARE THE WORDS OF R. AKIBA. BUT THE SAGES SAY: IN SUCH A CASE HE CONVEYS A SECOND DEGREE OF UNCLEANNESS. THEY SAID TO R. AKIBA: WHERE DO WE FIND ANYWHERE THAT THE HANDS BECOME UNCLEAR IN THE FIRST DEGREE? HE SAID TO THEM: BUT HOW IS IT POSSIBLE FOR THEM TO BECOME UNCLEAR IN THE FIRST DEGREE WITHOUT HIS WHOLE BODY BECOMING UNCLEAR,⁵ SAVE ONLY IN THESE CASES?⁶ FOODSTUFFS AND VESSELS WHICH HAVE BEEN RENDERED UNCLEAR BY LIQUIDS CONVEY A SECOND DEGREE OF UNCLEANNESS TO THE HANDS. [THESE ARE] THE WORDS OF R. JOSHUA. BUT THE SAGES SAY: THAT WHICH HAS BEEN RENDERED UNCLEAR BY A FATHER OF UNCLEANNESS CONVEYS UNCLEANNESS TO THE HANDS, BUT THAT WHICH HAS BEEN RENDERED UNCLEAR BY AN OFFSPRING OF UNCLEANNESS⁷ DOES NOT CONVEY UNCLEANNESS TO THE HANDS. R. SIMEON B. GAMALIEL SAID: A PRACTICAL INSTANCE OCCURRED WHEN A CERTAIN WOMAN CAME BEFORE MY FATHER AND SAID TO HIM, MY HANDS PROTRUDED INTO THE AIR-SPACE INSIDE AN EARTHENWARE VESSEL.⁸ HE SAID TO HER: MY DAUGHTER, WHAT WAS THE CAUSE OF ITS UNCLEANNESS?⁹ BUT I DID NOT HEAR WHAT SHE SAID TO HIM. THE SAGES SAID: THE MATTER IS CLEAR. THAT WHICH HAS BEEN RENDERED UNCLEAR BY A 'FATHER OF UNCLEANNESS' CONVEYS UNCLEANNESS TO THE HANDS, BUT IF BY AN OFFSPRING OF UNCLEANNESS' IT DOES NOT CONVEY UNCLEANNESS TO THE HANDS.

MISHNAH 2. EVERYTHING WHICH RENDERS TERUMAH UNFIT¹⁰ CONVEYS A SECOND DEGREE OF UNCLEANNESS TO THE HANDS.¹¹ ONE [UNWASHED] HAND CAN CONVEY UNCLEANNESS TO THE OTHER HAND. [THESE¹¹ ARE] THE WORDS OF R. JOSHUA.¹¹ BUT THE SAGES SAY: THAT WHICH IS IN THE SECOND DEGREE OF UNCLEANNESS CANNOT CONVEY A SECOND DEGREE OF UNCLEANNESS. HE SAID TO THEM: BUT DO NOT THE HOLY SCRIPTURES WHICH ARE IN THE SECOND DEGREE OF UNCLEANNESS¹² RENDER UNCLEAR THE HANDS?¹³ THEY SAID TO HIM: THE LAWS OF THE TORAH MAY NOT BE ARGUED FROM THE LAWS OF THE SCRIBES, NOR MAY THE LAWS OF THE SCRIBES BE ARGUED FROM THE LAWS OF THE TORAH, NOR MAY THE LAWS OF THE SCRIBES BE ARGUED FROM [OTHER] LAWS OF THE SCRIBES.¹⁴

MISHNAH 3. THE STRAPS OF THE TEFILLIN¹⁵ [WHEN CONNECTED] WITH THE TEFILLIN RENDER UNCLEAR THE HANDS.¹⁶ R. SIMEON SAYS: THE STRAPS OF THE TEFILLIN DO NOT RENDER UNCLEAR THE HANDS.

MISHNAH 4. THE MARGIN ON A SCROLL¹⁷ WHICH IS ABOVE¹⁸ OR BELOW OR AT THE BEGINNING¹⁹ OR AT THE END RENDERS UNCLEAR THE HANDS. R. JUDAH SAYS: THE MARGIN AT THE END DOES NOT RENDER UNCLEAR [THE HANDS] UNTIL A HANDLE IS FASTENED TO IT.²⁰

MISHNAH 5. A SCROLL²¹ ON WHICH THE WRITING HAS BECOME ERASED AND EIGHTY-FIVE LETTERS REMAIN THEREON, AS MANY AS ARE IN THE SECTION BEGINNING, 'AND IT CAME TO PASS WHEN THE ARK SET FORWARD', ETC.²² RENDERS UNCLEAR THE HANDS. A SINGLE SHEET²³ ON WHICH THERE ARE WRITTEN EIGHTY-FIVE LETTERS, AS MANY AS ARE IN THE SECTION BEGINNING, 'AND IT CAME TO PASS WHEN THE ARK SET FORWARD', RENDERS UNCLEAR THE HANDS. ALL THE HOLY WRITINGS²⁴ RENDER UNCLEAR THE HANDS. THE SONG OF SONGS AND ECCLESIASTES RENDER UNCLEAR THE HANDS.²⁵ R. JUDAH SAYS: THE SONG OF SONGS RENDERS UNCLEAR THE HANDS, BUT THERE IS A DISPUTE ABOUT ECCLESIASTES.²⁶ R. JOSE SAYS: ECCLESIASTES DOES NOT RENDER UNCLEAR THE HANDS, BUT THERE IS A DISPUTE ABOUT THE SONG OF SONGS. R. SIMEON SAYS: [THE RULING ABOUT] ECCLESIASTES IS ONE OF THE LENIENCIES OF BETH SHAMMAI AND ONE OF THE STRINGENCIES OF BETH HILLEL.²⁶ R. SIMEON B. AZZAI SAID: I RECEIVED A TRADITION FROM THE SEVENTY-TWO²⁷ ELDERS ON THE DAY WHEN THEY APPOINTED R. ELEAZAR B. AZARIAH HEAD OF THE ACADEMY²⁸ THAT THE SONG OF SONGS AND ECCLESIASTES RENDER UNCLEAR THE HANDS. R. AKIBA SAID: FAR BE IT! NO MAN IN ISRAEL DISPUTED ABOUT THE SONG OF SONGS [BY SAYING] THAT IT DOES NOT RENDER UNCLEAR THE HANDS. FOR THE WHOLE WORLD IS NOT AS WORTHY AS THE DAY ON WHICH THE SONG OF SONGS WAS GIVEN TO ISRAEL; FOR ALL THE WRITINGS ARE HOLY BUT THE SONG OF SONGS IS THE HOLY OF HOLIES. SO THAT IF THEY HAD A DISPUTE, THEY HAD A DISPUTE ONLY ABOUT ECCLESIASTES. A. JOHANAN B. JOSHUA THE SON OF THE FATHER-IN-LAW OF R. AKIBA SAID: IN ACCORDANCE WITH THE WORDS OF BEN AZZAI SO THEY DISPUTED,²⁹ AND SO THEY REACHED A DECISION.³⁰

(1) V. Neg. XII-XIII.

(2) The house smitten with leprosy is a 'father of uncleanness' and therefore according to R. Akiba conveys uncleanness of the first degree to the hands.

(3) I.e., where one touches any of the uncleannesses specified in Zab. V. 7: e.g., the spittle of a zab.

(4) Although he who had come into contact with such uncleanness does not convey further uncleannesses to a man.

(5) For to suffer firstgrade uncleanness one must have contracted it from a 'father of uncleanness'; but if the hands had come into contact with such a grade of uncleanness the whole body becomes unclean.

(6) Which are exceptions.

(7) Liquids are 'offsprings of uncleanness'.

(8) Which had been rendered unclean.

(9) Was it rendered unclean by a 'father of uncleanness' or by an 'offspring of uncleanness', such as a liquid?

(10) Terumah is rendered unfit by anything which is in the second degree of uncleanness. Cf. Zab. V, 12 and supra III, 1, n. 2. They are enumerated in the eighteen decrees of Beth Shammai. Cf. Shab. 14a.

(11) Both statements are by R. Joshua.

(12) Among the eighteen decrees enacted by Beth Shammai was that the Holy Scriptures rendered terumah unfit on coming into contact with it; the reason being that the priests stored the terumah side by side with the Scrolls of the Holy Scriptures with the result that the mice which gnawed the terumah nibbled also at the Scrolls. The object of this decree was to prevent this desecration. Cf. Shab. 14a and Rashi loc. cit. Holy Scriptures were thus declared to be in the second degree of uncleanness so as to render terumah unfit.

(13) In order to ensure that the Holy Scriptures would not be touched by the bare hands, it was further enacted that hands which touched a Scroll of the Scriptures became unclean in the second degree and therefore rendered terumah unfit. Cf. Shab. 14a and Tosaf. s. v. האזנה.

(14) The Scribes, i.e., Solomon, enacted that hands must be cleansed since they convey uncleanness, v. Introduction. The Scribes, i.e. the Rabbis, enacted that the Holy Scriptures convey uncleanness. Hence one cannot deduce that just as in the case of the Holy Scriptures a second degree of uncleanness conveys a second degree of uncleanness, so in the case of other defilements, a second degree of uncleanness conveys a second degree.

(15) V. Glos.

(16) The tefillin contain four sections of the Pentateuch. The Sages thus extend the principle that hands which have touched the Holy Scriptures render terumah unfit.

(17) I.e., a scroll of a Book of the Holy Scriptures.

(18) I.e., above the writing on the scroll. The width of the margin above must be three fingerbreadths and the width of that below must be one span. Cf. Men. 30a.

(19) At the beginning of the scroll there must be a margin sufficient in width for winding round the cylinder, and at the end there must be a margin sufficient for winding round the whole circumference of the scroll when it is rolled up; cf. B. B. 13a.

(20) R. Judah is of the opinion that until a handle is fastened to the scroll the margin at the end has no holiness attached to it, as it can be cut away if desired.

(21) Sc. of the Pentateuch.

(22) Num. X, 35-36. These two verses were considered to constitute a separate Book, of Shab. 116a.

(23) One of the sheets of a Pentateuch scroll. Lit., 'a scroll'.

(24) I.e., not only the Books of the Pentateuch but also the Prophetical Books and the Hagiographa.

(25) Since they are part of the Holy Scriptures.

(26) The earliest discussion as to whether Ecclesiastes should be regarded as a sacred book took place between Beth Shammai and Beth Hillel. According to the former, Ecclesiastes did not convey uncleanness to the hands, i.e., was not to be regarded as a sacred work and therefore not to be included in the Canon, but according to Beth Hillel it did convey uncleanness to the hands and therefore was to be included in the Canon; cf. 'Ed. V, 3. The basis of Beth Shammai's contention was evidently that recorded in Shab. 30b where it is stated that the Sages did not intend to include Ecclesiastes in the Canon of the Bible, because its statements seemed to contradict one another. They finally decided to include it because It begins and ends with words which indicate its sacred character. A further reason which supports the view of Beth Shammai is given by R. Simeon b. Menasyah who expressed the view that the Song of Songs conveyed uncleanness to the hands because it was inspired by the Holy Spirit, whereas Ecclesiastes was inspired solely by the Wisdom of Solomon himself. Cf. Tosef. ad loc. and Meg. 7a.

(27) The Greater Sanhedrin consisted of seventy-one members; of. Sanh. I, 6. Various suggestions have been made to account for the additional one member referred to in this Mishnah. According to Tosaf. Sanh. 16b s. v. היה there was an additional member of the Sanhedrin known as the Mufla, i.e., the distinguished member of the Sanhedrin who was first in authority. Lauterbach suggests that the number seventy-two included both Rabban Gamaliel and K. Eleazar b. 'Azariah. Cf. J. E. s. v. Sanhedrin and Ber. 28a.

(28) V. Ber. 27b.

(29) About both the Song of Songs and Ecclesiastes.

(30) That both render unclean the hands.

Mishna - Mas. Yadayim Chapter 4

MISHNAH 1. ON THAT DAY¹ THE VOTES WERE COUNTED AND THEY DECIDED THAT A FOOTBATH HOLDING FROM TWO LOGS TO NINE KABS² WHICH WAS CRACKED COULD CONTRACT MIDRAS³ UNCLEANNESS. BECAUSE R. AKIBA SAID A FOOTBATH [MUST BE CONSIDERED] ACCORDING TO ITS DESIGNATION.⁴

MISHNAH 2. ON THAT DAY THEY SAID: ALL ANIMAL SACRIFICES⁵ WHICH HAVE BEEN SACRIFICED UNDER THE NAME OF SOME OTHER OFFERING⁶ ARE [NEVERTHELESS] VALID,⁷ BUT THEY ARE NOT ACCOUNTED TO THEIR OWNERS AS A FULFILMENT OF THEIR OBLIGATIONS,⁸ WITH THE EXCEPTION OF THE PASCHAL-OFFERING⁹ AND THE SIN-OFFERING.⁹ [THIS APPLIES TO] THE PASCHAL-OFFERING IN ITS DUE TIME¹⁰ AND TO THE SIN-OFFERING AT ANY TIME. R. ELIEZER SAYS: [WITH THE EXCEPTION] ALSO OF THE GUILT-OFFERING.¹¹ [SO THAT THIS APPLIES TO] THE PASCHAL-OFFERING IN ITS DUE TIME AND TO THE SIN- AND GUILT-OFFERINGS AT ANY TIME. R. SIMEON B. AZZAI SAID: I RECEIVED A TRADITION FROM THE SEVENTY-TWO ELDERS ON THE DAY WHEN THEY APPOINTED R. ELEAZAR B. AZARIAH HEAD OF THE COLLEGE THAT ALL ANIMAL SACRIFICES WHICH ARE EATEN AND WHICH HAVE NOT BEEN SACRIFICED UNDER THEIR OWN NAME ARE NEVERTHELESS VALID, BUT THEY ARE NOT ACCOUNTED TO THEIR OWNERS AS A FULFILMENT OF THEIR OBLIGATIONS, WITH THE EXCEPTION OF THE PASCHAL-OFFERING AND THE SIN-OFFERING. BEN AZZAI ONLY ADDED [TO THESE EXCEPTIONS] THE BURNT-OFFERING, BUT THE SAGES DID NOT AGREE WITH HIM.

MISHNAH 3. ON THAT DAY THEY SAID: WHAT IS THE LAW APPLYING TO AMMON AND MOAB IN THE SEVENTH YEAR?¹² R. TARFON DECREED TITHE FOR THE POOR,¹³ AND R. ELEAZAR B. AZARIAH DECREED SECOND TITHE.¹⁴ R. ISHMAEL SAID: ELEAZAR B. 'AZARIAH, THE ONUS IS UPON YOU TO PRODUCE YOUR PROOF BECAUSE YOU ARE EXPRESSING THE STRICTER VIEW;¹⁵ FOR THE ONUS IS UPON THE PERSON WHO EXPRESSES A STRICTER VIEW TO PRODUCE THE PROOF. R. ELEAZAR B. AZARIAH SAID TO HIM: ISHMAEL, MY BROTHER, I HAVE NOT DEVIATED FROM THE SEQUENCE OF YEARS,¹⁶ TARFON, MY BROTHER, HAS DEVIATED THEREFROM AND THE ONUS IS UPON HIM TO PRODUCE THE PROOF. R. TARFON ANSWERED: EGYPT IS OUTSIDE THE LAND OF ISRAEL, AMMON AND MOAB ARE OUTSIDE THE LAND OF ISRAEL: JUST AS EGYPT MUST GIVE TITHE FOR THE POOR IN THE SEVENTH YEAR,¹⁷ SO MUST AMMON AND MOAB GIVE TITHE FOR THE POOR IN THE SEVENTH YEAR. R. ELEAZAR B. 'AZARIAH ANSWERED: BABYLON IS OUTSIDE THE LAND OF ISRAEL, AMMON AND MOAB ARE OUTSIDE THE LAND OF ISRAEL: JUST AS BABYLON MUST GIVE SECOND TITHE IN THE SEVENTH YEAR,¹⁸ SO MUST AMMON AND MOAB GIVE SECOND TITHE IN THE SEVENTH YEAR. R. TARFON SAID: ON EGYPT WHICH IS NEAR, THEY IMPOSED TITHE FOR THE POOR SO THAT THE POOR OF ISRAEL MIGHT BE SUPPORTED THEREBY DURING THE SEVENTH YEAR; SO ON AMMON AND MOAB WHICH ARE NEAR, WE SHOULD IMPOSE TITHE FOR THE POOR SO THAT THE POOR OF ISRAEL MAY BE SUPPORTED THEREBY DURING THE SEVENTH YEAR. R. ELEAZAR B. 'AZARIAH SAID TO HIM: BEHOLD, THOU ART LIKE A PERSON WHO WOULD BENEFIT THEM WITH GAIN, YET THOU ART REALLY AS ONE WHO CAUSES SOULS TO PERISH. WOULDST THOU ROB THE HEAVENS SO THAT DEW OR RAIN SHOULD NOT DESCEND?¹⁹ AS IT IS SAID, WILL A MAN ROB GOD? YET YE ROB ME. BUT YE SAY WHEREIN HAVE WE ROBBED THEE? IN TITHES AND HEAVE-OFFERINGS.²⁰ R. JOSHUA SAID: BEHOLD, I SHALL BE AS ONE WHO REPLIES ON BEHALF OF TARFON, MY BROTHER, BUT NOT IN ACCORDANCE WITH THE SUBJECT MATTER OF HIS ARGUMENTS. THE LAW REGARDING EGYPT IS A NEW ACT AND THE LAW REGARDING BABYLON IS AN OLD ACT, AND THE LAW WHICH IS BEING ARGUED BEFORE US IS A NEW ACT. A NEW ACT SHOULD BE ARGUED FROM [ANOTHER] NEW ACT, BUT A NEW ACT SHOULD NOT BE ARGUED FROM AN OLD ACT. THE LAW REGARDING EGYPT IS THE ACT OF THE ELDERS AND THE LAW REGARDING BABYLON IS THE ACT OF THE PROPHETS, AND THE LAW WHICH IS BEING ARGUED BEFORE US²¹ IS THE ACT OF THE ELDERS. LET ONE ACT OF THE ELDERS BE ARGUED FROM [ANOTHER] ACT OF THE ELDERS, BUT LET NOT AN ACT OF THE ELDERS BE ARGUED FROM AN ACT OF THE PROPHETS. THE VOTES WERE COUNTED AND THEY DECIDED THAT AMMON AND MOAB SHOULD GIVE TITHE FOR THE POOR IN THE SEVENTH YEAR. AND WHEN R. JOSE B. DURMASKITH²² VISITED R. ELIEZER²³ IN LYDDA HE SAID TO HIM: WHAT NEW THING DID YOU HAVE IN THE HOUSE OF STUDY TO-DAY? HE SAID TO HIM: THEIR VOTES WERE COUNTED AND THEY DECIDED THAT AMMON AND MOAB MUST GIVE TITHE FOR THE POOR IN THE SEVENTH YEAR. R. ELIEZER WEPT AND SAID: THE COUNSEL OF THE LORD IS WITH THEM THAT FEAR HIM: AND HIS COVENANT, TO MAKE THEM KNOW IT.²⁴ GO AND TELL THEM: DO NOT HAVE ANY APPREHENSION ON ACCOUNT OF YOUR VOTING. I RECEIVED A TRADITION FROM R. JOHANAN B. ZAKKAI WHO HEARD IT FROM HIS TEACHER, AND HIS TEACHER FROM HIS TEACHER, AND SO BACK TO AN HALACHAH GIVEN TO MOSES FROM SINAI,²⁵ THAT AMMON AND MOAB MUST GIVE TITHE FOR THE POOR IN THE SEVENTH YEAR.

MISHNAH 4. ON THAT DAY JUDAH, AN AMMONITE PROSELYTE, CAME AND STOOD BEFORE THEM IN THE HOUSE OF STUDY. HE SAID TO THEM: HAVE I THE RIGHT TO ENTER INTO THE ASSEMBLY?²⁶ RABBAN GAMALIEL SAID TO HIM: THOU ART FORBIDDEN. R. JOSHUA SAID TO HIM: THOU ART PERMITTED. RABBAN GAMALIEL SAID TO HIM: THE SCRIPTURAL VERSE SAYS, AN AMMONITE OR A MOABITE SHALL NOT ENTER INTO THE ASSEMBLY OF THE LORD: EVEN TO THE TENTH GENERATION, ETC.²⁷ R. JOSHUA SAID TO HIM: BUT ARE THE AMMONITES AND MOABITES STILL IN THEIR OWN TERRITORY? SENNACHERIB, THE KING OF ASSYRIA, HAS LONG SINCE COME UP AND MINGLED ALL THE NATIONS, AS IT IS SAID: IN THAT I HAVE REMOVED THE BOUNDS OF THE PEOPLES, AND HAVE ROBBED THEIR TREASURES, AND HAVE BROUGHT DOWN AS ONE MIGHTY THE INHABITANTS.²⁸ RABBAN GAMALIEL SAID TO HIM: THE SCRIPTURAL VERSE SAYS, BUT AFTERWARD I WILL BRING BACK THE CAPTIVITY OF THE CHILDREN OF AMMON,²⁹ SO THAT THEY HAVE ALREADY RETURNED. R. JOSHUA SAID TO HIM: THE SCRIPTURAL VERSE SAYS, I WILL TURN THE CAPTIVITY OF MY PEOPLE ISRAEL AND JUDAH.³⁰ YET THEY HAVE NOT ALREADY RETURNED. SO THEY PERMITTED HIM TO ENTER THE ASSEMBLY.

MISHNAH 5. THE ARAMAIC SECTIONS IN EZRA AND DANIEL RENDER UNCLEAN THE HANDS.³¹ IF AN ARAMAIC SECTION WAS WRITTEN³² IN HEBREW, OR A HEBREW SECTION WAS WRITTEN³² IN ARAMAIC, OR HEBREW SCRIPT,³³ IT³⁴ DOES NOT RENDER UNCLEAN THE HANDS. IT NEVER RENDERS UNCLEAN THE HANDS UNTIL IT IS WRITTEN IN THE ASSYRIAN SCRIPT,³⁵ ON HIDE, AND IN INK.

MISHNAH 6. THE SADDUCEES SAY: WE COMPLAIN AGAINST YOU, O YE PHARISEES, BECAUSE YOU SAY THAT THE HOLY SCRIPTURES RENDER UNCLEAN THE HANDS,³⁶ BUT THE BOOKS OF HAMIRAM³⁷ DO NOT CONVEY UNCLEANNESS TO THE HANDS. R. JOHANAN B. ZAKKAI SAID: HAVE WE NOTHING AGAINST THE PHARISEES EXCEPTING THIS?³⁸ BEHOLD THEY SAY THAT THE BONES OF AN ASS ARE CLEAN, YET THE BONES OF JOHANAN³⁹ THE HIGH PRIEST ARE UNCLEAN.⁴⁰ THEY SAID TO HIM: PROPORTIONATE TO THE LOVE FOR THEM, SO IS THEIR UNCLEANNESS, SO THAT NOBODY SHOULD MAKE SPOONS OUT OF THE BONES OF HIS FATHER OR MOTHER. HE SAID TO THEM: SO ALSO THE HOLY SCRIPTURES; PROPORTIONATE TO THE LOVE FOR THEM, SO IS THEIR UNCLEANNESS. THE BOOKS OF HAMIRAM WHICH ARE NOT PRECIOUS DO NOT CONVEY UNCLEANNESS TO THE HANDS.⁴¹

MISHNAH 7. THE SADDUCEES SAY: WE COMPLAIN AGAINST YOU, O YE PHARISEES, THAT YOU DECLARE AN UNINTERRUPTED FLOW OF A LIQUID TO BE CLEAN.⁴² THE PHARISEES SAY: [DO] WE COMPLAIN AGAINST YOU, O YE SADDUCEES, THAT YOU DECLARE A STREAM OF WATER WHICH FLOWS FROM THE BURIAL-GROUND TO BE CLEAN?⁴³ THE SADDUCEES SAY: WE COMPLAIN AGAINST YOU, O YE PHARISEES, IN

THAT YOU SAY, MY OX OR ASS WHICH HAS DONE INJURY IS LIABLE,⁴⁴ YET MY MANSERVANT OR MAIDSERVANT WHO HAS DONE INJURY IS NOT LIABLE'.⁴⁵ NOW IF IN THE CASE OF MY OX OR MY ASS' FOR WHICH I AM NOT RESPONSIBLE IF THEY DO NOT FULFIL RELIGIOUS DUTIES,⁴⁶ YET I AM RESPONSIBLE FOR THEIR DAMAGE, IN THE CASE OF MY MANSERVANT OR MAIDSERVANT FOR WHOM I AM RESPONSIBLE TO SEE THAT THEY FULFIL RELIGIOUS DUTIES,⁴⁷ HOW MUCH MORE SO THAT I SHOULD BE RESPONSIBLE FOR THEIR DAMAGE? THEY SAID TO THEM: NO, IF YOU ARGUE ABOUT MY OX OR MY ASS' WHICH HAVE NO UNDERSTANDING, CAN YOU DEDUCE ANYTHING THEREFROM CONCERNING MY MANSERVANT OR MAIDSERVANT WHO HAVE UNDERSTANDING? SO THAT IF I WERE TO ANGER EITHER OF THEM THEY WOULD GO AND BURN ANOTHER PERSON'S STACK AND I SHOULD BE LIABLE TO MAKE RESTITUTION?⁴⁸

MISHNAH 8. A GALILEAN SADDUCEE⁴⁹ SAID: I COMPLAIN AGAINST YOU, O YE PHARISEES, THAT YOU WRITE THE NAME OF THE RULER AND THE NAME OF MOSES TOGETHER ON A BILL OF DIVORCEMENT.⁵⁰ THE PHARISEES SAID: [DO] WE COMPLAIN AGAINST YOU, O GALILEAN SADDUCEE, THAT YOU WRITE THE NAME OF THE RULER TOGETHER WITH THE DIVINE NAME ON A SINGLE PAGE? AND FURTHERMORE THAT YOU WRITE THE NAME OF THE RULER ABOVE AND THE DIVINE NAME BELOW? AS IT IS SAID, AND PHAROAH SAID, WHO IS THE LORD THAT I SHOULD HEARKEN UNTO HIS VOICE TO LET ISRAEL GO?⁵¹ BUT WHEN HE WAS SMITTEN WHAT DID HE SAY? THE LORD IS RIGHTEOUS.⁵²

(1) I.e., on the day when they appointed R. Eleazar b. 'Azariah head of the Academy after Rabban Gamaliel had been deposed. V. supra III, 4. Wherever the words בּוּ בְיוֹם occur, this day is meant. V. Ed. (Sonc. ed.) Introduction.

(2) A kab is a measure of capacity equal in quantity to four logs.

(3) V. Glos. A footbath which was cracked and therefore could no longer hold any water was used for sitting on. Cf. Maim. on Kel. XX, 5. It therefore comes within the category of a 'utensil' and is thus liable to contract midras uncleanness. Cf. Lev. XV, 4.

(4) I.e. as a footbath only and does not come within the category of a 'utensil', and thus does not contract midras uncleanness.

(5) Cf. Zeb. I. 1.

(6) E.g., if an animal brought as a burnt-offering is offered as a peace-offering.

(7) I.e. the blood must nevertheless be sprinkled on the altar and the relevant portions burnt on the altar or eaten.

(8) He must still bring the offering which he vowed to offer; cf. Deut. XXIII, 24, That which is gone out of thy lips thou shalt observe and do. V. Zeb. 2a.

(9) Which if sacrificed under the name of another offering are invalid; v. Zeb. 7b.

(10) I.e., if the Paschal-offering is sacrificed on the eve of Passover under the name of another offering it is invalid; but if it be offered up before mid-day of the fourteenth of Nisan or after the eve of Passover it is considered a peace-offering and all the laws appertaining to peace-offerings apply. Cf. Zeb. 8a.

(11) Cf. Lev. VII, 1.

(12) I.e., which tithe must Israelites living in these countries give in the Sabbatical year? Tithe is payable from harvest reaped in the seventh year in countries outside the Land of Israel. Cf. Sheb. VI, 1. In the Land of Israel itself no harvest was permitted to be reaped in the seventh year (cf. Lev. XXV, 4ff.) and therefore no tithe was payable.

(13) Tithe given to the poor every third and sixth year of a cycle of seven years. Cf. Deut. XIV, 28ff.

(14) Tithe given every first, second, fourth and fifth year of a cycle of seven years. Second tithe had to be consumed in Jerusalem, (Deut. XIV, 22ff.) or redeemed by its equivalent in money plus one-fifth of its value (Lev. XXVII, 30f). The latter sum had to be spent on food and drink in Jerusalem (Deut. XIV, 26).

(15) Since second tithe is consecrated, being eaten only in Jerusalem, but tithe for the poor is unconsecrated. Cf. Maim. ad loc.'

(16) Second tithe is ordinarily given in the year following that in which tithe for the poor is given. Since tithe for the poor is given in the sixth year of the seven years' cycle, it follows that in countries outside the Land of Israel second tithe should be given in the seventh year.

(31) Since they are part of the Holy Scriptures.

(32) I.e., translated.

(33) כתב עברי Hebrew Script. This is the name given to the older form of the Hebrew alphabet which was used by the Hebrews, Moabites, and Phoenicians. It was angular in shape, and can be seen on the Moabite stone and on various Hebrew inscriptions discovered in Samaria, Gezer and Siloam. The 'Hebrew Script' was replaced by the 'Assyrian Script' i.e., the square alphabet now in use. This was introduced by Ezra, and was so called because (a) it was brought back from Assyria, or (b) because its characters are straight in form, שמואל בכתב. Cf. Sanh. 21b and 22a and notes in Sonc. ed. a. l.

(34) I.e., a book of the Holy Scriptures.

(35) I.e., the square characters.

(36) Cf. supra II, 2.

(37) The meaning of this word is obscure. The Mishnah is evidently referring to a well known example of secular writings. Aruch offers three explanations s. v. מור viz., (a) heretical books, from מור to change: (b) the books of מור the name of a heretic (so also Maim. and Rosh reading מיר): (c) books of Greek wisdom called in Greek, Homeros. Many scholars have suggested that it refers to the works of Homer. Kohut in the J. Q. R. Vol. III 546-548, who collects all the various conjectures, himself suggests pleasure, entertainment, i.e., books of entertainment.

(38) Speaking ironically.

(39) Evidently the Johanan referred to in Ber. 29a as having become a Sadducee after eighty years' service as High Priest.

(40) The Sadducees accepted the principle that the bones of an ass are clean whereas those of the human being are unclean.

(41) R. Johanan answered the Sadducees by using the principle which they themselves accepted.

(42) Cf. Maksh. V, 9. If a liquid is poured from a clean vessel into an unclean vessel, the liquid remaining in the former vessel remains clean, as the uninterrupted flow does not form a connective.

(43) Cf. Mik. I. 4. The Sadducees agreed that this was the case. On this controversy v. Finkelstein, The Pharisees II, p. 638.

(44) I.e., I am responsible for the damage they do. Cf. Ex. XXI, 35. The Sadducees did not dispute this, as it is expressly stated in the Torah.

(45) Cf. B.K. VIII, 4. Not being expressly 'stated in the Torah, the Sadducees did not accept this.

(46) Since the Torah does not enjoin religious duties on animals.

(47) E.g., to see that they do not work on the Sabbath.

(48) Hence the law provides that I should not be liable for the damage they do. On this controversy v. Finkelstein L. op. cit. II, p. 684.

(49) Var. lec. a Galilean min (v. Glos.). Finkelstein (op. cit. p. 645) holds the heretic involved to have been a Galilean Nationalist who opposed the recognition of the non-Davidic and of the Roman rulers in Jewish ceremonial.

(50) The bill of divorcement began with the date which stated the year of the rule of the reigning king. It ended with the words, 'in accordance with the religion of Moses and of Israel'. According to this Sadducee, the mention of both names on the one document was derogatory to Moses.

(51) Ex. V, 2. I.e., it is not in the least derogatory since in the Scriptures the name of the ruler is mentioned even before the Divine name.

(52) Ex. IX, 27. This is added so as to avoid ending the Tractate with the Previous verse which expresses defiance of God.

CHAPTER I

MISHNAH. FIFTEEN [CATEGORIES OF] WOMEN EXEMPT THEIR RIVALS¹ AND THE RIVALS OF THEIR RIVALS² AND SO ON, AD INFINITUM,³ FROM THE HALIZAH⁴ AND FROM THE LEVIRATE MARRIAGE;⁵ AND THESE ARE THEY: HIS DAUGHTER,⁶ THE DAUGHTER OF HIS DAUGHTER⁷ AND THE DAUGHTER OF HIS SON;⁷ THE DAUGHTER OF HIS WIFE,⁸ THE DAUGHTER OF HER SON AND THE DAUGHTER OF HER DAUGHTER; HIS MOTHER-IN-LAW,⁹ HIS MOTHER-IN-LAW'S MOTHER,¹⁰ AND HIS FATHER-IN-LAW'S MOTHER;¹⁰ HIS MATERNAL SISTER,¹¹ HIS MOTHER'S SISTER,¹¹ HIS WIFE'S SISTER AND HIS MATERNAL BROTHER'S WIFE;¹²

(1) Heb., zarah, צרה 'rival'. Where a husband has more than one wife, each woman is a zarah in relation to the other. The term is derived from צרר which signifies oppression, hence 'rival', 'adversary', as in I Sam. I, 6 (cf. Kimhi a.l.) or 'to tie up', 'to bind', hence 'associate', 'co-wife'.

(2) The co-wives of a rival through a second marriage.

(3) עד סוף העולם lit., 'to the end of the world'.

(4) הלצה (rt. חלץ, 'to take off' or 'to loosen'), the ceremony of drawing off the shoe of the brother of her husband who died without issue. According to Biblical law (v. Deut. XXV, 5-9) the brother-in-law must either marry the widow (v. following note) or be subjected to halizah.

(5) יבום, rt. יבם 'to marry the levir'. Any woman coming under the fifteen categories enumerated below is not only herself exempt from halizah and yibbum but exempts also her own rivals as well as the rivals of her rivals, ad infinitum, as explained anon.

(6) Who had been married to his brother who subsequently died childless. Since he is forbidden to marry his daughter he is thereby also forbidden to marry any of her rivals, the widows of his deceased childless brother. 'HIS DAUGHTER' includes even one born to him as a result of outrage, v. infra.

(7) Cf. previous note. All the fifteen categories enumerated are among the near relatives whom a man is forbidden to marry in accordance with the explicit and implicit prohibitions in Lev. XVIII, 6ff.

(8) From a former husband.

(9) Who, after the death of her husband, had married his brother who subsequently died childless.

(10) The prohibition to marry in this case is derived in Sanhedrin 75a from Lev. XVIII, 17.

(11) Who was married to his paternal brother. The laws of the levirate marriage and halizah are applicable to a paternal, but not to a maternal brother.

(12) Who, after the death of her husband, had married his paternal brother.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 2b

THE WIFE OF HIS BROTHER WHO WAS NOT HIS CONTEMPORARY,¹ AND HIS DAUGHTER-IN-LAW.² ALL THESE EXEMPT THEIR RIVALS AND THE RIVALS OF THEIR RIVALS, AND SO ON, AD INFINITUM, FROM THE HALIZAH AND FROM THE LEVIRATE MARRIAGE. IF, HOWEVER, ANY AMONG THESE³ DIED,⁴ OR MADE A DECLARATION OF REFUSAL,⁵ OR WERE DIVORCED, OR WERE FOUND INCAPABLE OF PROCREATION, THEIR RIVALS ARE PERMITTED;⁶ THOUGH, OF COURSE, ONE CANNOT SAY OF A MAN'S MOTHER-IN-LAW, OF THE MOTHER OF HIS MOTHER-IN-LAW AND OF THE MOTHER OF HIS FATHER-IN-LAW THAT THEY WERE FOUND INCAPABLE OF PROCREATION OR THAT THEY MADE A DECLARATION OF REFUSAL.⁷

HOW IS THE EXEMPTION OF THEIR RIVALS [BY THE WOMEN MENTIONED], TO BE UNDERSTOOD? IF A MAN'S DAUGHTER OR ANY OTHER OF THESE FORBIDDEN RELATIVES WAS MARRIED TO HIS BROTHER WHO HAD ALSO ANOTHER WIFE [AT THE TIME] WHEN HE DIED, THEN AS HIS DAUGHTER IS EXEMPT SO IS HER RIVAL

EXEMPT. IF HIS DAUGHTER'S RIVAL WENT AND MARRIED A SECOND BROTHER OF HIS,⁸ WHO ALSO HAD YET ANOTHER WIFE WHEN HE DIED, THEN AS THE RIVAL OF HIS DAUGHTER IS EXEMPT SO IS ALSO HIS DAUGHTER'S RIVAL'S RIVAL EXEMPT, EVEN IF THERE WERE A HUNDRED [BROTHERS].⁹

HOW [IS ONE TO UNDERSTAND THE STATEMENT THAT] IF THEY HAD DIED, THEIR RIVALS ARE PERMITTED?¹⁰ IF A MAN'S DAUGHTER OR ANY OTHER OF THESE FORBIDDEN RELATIVES WAS MARRIED TO HIS BROTHER WHO HAD ALSO ANOTHER WIFE, THEN, IF HIS DAUGHTER DIED OR WAS DIVORCED, AND HIS BROTHER DIED SUBSEQUENTLY, HER RIVAL IS PERMITTED.¹⁰

THE RIVAL OF ANY ONE WHO IS ENTITLED TO MAKE A DECLARATION OF REFUSAL¹¹ BUT DID NOT EXERCISE HER RIGHT, MUST PERFORM HALIZAH [IF HER HUSBAND DIED CHILDLESS], AND MAY NOT CONTRACT LEVIRATE MARRIAGE.¹²

GEMARA. Consider: All these¹³ are deduced from the [exemption of] a wife's sister.¹⁴ Why then was not HIS WIFE'S SISTER mentioned¹⁵ first?¹⁶ And if it be replied that the Tanna enumerated¹⁷ [the forbidden relatives] in the order of the degrees of their respective severity,¹⁸ and that it [our Mishnah] represents the view of R. Simeon who regards burning¹⁹ as the severest,²⁰ [it may be retorted that], if that is the case,²¹ HIS MOTHER-IN-LAW should have been mentioned¹⁶ first, since [Scripture] enunciated the principle of burning in the case of a mother-in-law.²² And, furthermore, HIS DAUGHTER-IN-LAW should have come¹⁵ immediately after HIS MOTHER-IN-LAW, since, next to burning, stoning²³ is the severest penalty! — But [this in fact is the proper reply]: Since [the prohibition of intercourse with] 'HIS DAUGHTER'²⁴ has been arrived at by exposition²⁵ it is given preference.²⁶

(1) Lit., 'in his world', i.e., who died before he was born. Such a brother's widow and her rivals etc. are exempt. If, for instance, C was born after his brother A had died childless, so that his widow, N married (in accordance with the laws of the levirate marriage) a contemporary brother of his, B, who had another wife, or wives, and B also died childless, all B's widows are exempt from halizah and yibbum as far as C is concerned on account of N who is forbidden to him.

(2) Who married his brother after the death of his son. The marriage of a daughter-in-law is forbidden for ever, even after the death of one's son.

(3) Lit., '(in the case of) all of them'.

(4) Prior to the death of her husband who subsequently died childless.

(5) Such a declaration, mi'un מִיּוֹן, may be made against her husband (without any further necessity for a divorce) by a wife, while she is a minor, or as soon as she becomes of age, prior to cohabitation, in cases where she was betrothed either (a) as an orphan, by her mother or brothers or (b) even in the lifetime of her father (v. infra 109a) if she was once divorced (after her father had contracted for her a betrothal) and was betrothed again while still a minor.

(6) I.e., levirate marriage may be contracted, or halizah must be performed.

(7) For, having given birth they must be of age.

(8) Whenever one of the surviving brothers is not related to either of the widows, but another brother is, it is his duty to perform the levirate marriage or to submit to halizah.

(9) Everyone of whom had also another wife or wives and the rival's rival married them in turn, ad infinitum.

(10) V. p. 2, n. 7.

(11) A minor (V. supra, p. 2, n. 6).

(12) V. Gemara infra.

(13) Exemptions enumerated in our Mishnah.

(14) V. infra.

(15) Lit., 'let him teach'.

(16) In the list.

(17) Lit., 'took'.

(18) The degree of the severity of the penalty incurred by sexual intercourse with one of these relatives.

- (19) The death penalty incurred for sexual intercourse with one of the first eight categories enumerated in our Mishnah. V. Sanh. 75a.
- (20) Of the four death penalties. V. Sanh. 49b.
- (21) Lit., 'if so'.
- (22) Lev. XX, 14.
- (23) The penalty for intercourse with one's daughter-in-law. V. Sanh. 53a.
- (24) I.e., born as a result of outrage. V. supra p. 1, n. 6.
- (25) V. infra.
- (26) Lit., 'beloved to him'.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 3a

[The law, surely,] concerning all the others also was arrived at¹ by exposition!² — Granted that in respect of [exemption from] the levirate marriage [the law in relation to them] was arrived at by exposition, the principle of prohibition [of sexual intercourse] with them has been explicitly enunciated in Scripture, [while as regards] his daughter³ the very principle underlying the prohibition [of intercourse with her] has been arrived at by exposition; for Raba⁴ stated: R. Isaac b. Abdimi told me, 'Hennah⁵ is derived from hennah⁶ and zimmah⁷ is derived from zimmah'.⁸

Now that it has been stated that preference is given to whatever is arrived at by exposition, the Tanna should have placed⁹ HIS WIFE'S SISTER last!¹⁰ — As he was dealing with a prohibition due to sisterhood¹¹ he mentioned also HIS WIFE'S SISTER. Then let him relegate⁹ the entire passage¹² to the end!¹³ — But [this is really the explanation]: The Tanna follows the order of the respective degrees of kinship. He, therefore, mentions [first] HIS DAUGHTER, THE DAUGHTER OF HIS DAUGHTER AND THE DAUGHTER OF HIS SON because they are his own next of kin; and since he enumerated three generations of his relatives in descending order he enumerated also three generations of her¹⁴ relatives in descending order. Having enumerated three generations of her¹⁴ relatives in descending order he proceeded to enumerate also three generations of her relatives in ascending order. He then mentions HIS SISTER and HIS MOTHER'S SISTER who are his blood¹⁵ relatives;¹⁶ and while dealing with prohibitions due to brotherhood he also mentions HIS WIFE'S SISTER. And it would indeed have been proper that HIS DAUGHTER-IN-LAW should be placed before THE WIFE OF HIS BROTHER WHO WAS NOT HIS CONTEMPORARY, since it is not on account of kinship¹⁷ that the latter is forbidden, but as he was dealing with a prohibition due to brotherhood he mentioned also THE WIFE OF HIS BROTHER WHO WAS NOT HIS CONTEMPORARY and then mentioned HIS DAUGHTER-IN-LAW.

What argument can be advanced for using¹⁸ the expression EXEMPT¹⁹ and not that of²⁰ 'prohibit'?²¹ — If 'prohibit' had been used it might have been assumed that the levirate marriage only was forbidden but that halizah²² must nevertheless be performed,²³ hence it was taught²⁴ [that halizah also need not be performed]. Let it then be stated,²⁵ 'She is forbidden to perform halizah!²⁶ — No harm, surely, is thereby done.²⁷ But why indeed should not [the expression of prohibition be applicable to halizah]? If you were to say that halizah is permissible, [one might say that] levirate marriage is also permitted!²⁸ — As a rival²⁹ is forbidden only where the commandment [of the levirate marriage] is applicable but is permitted where the commandment is not applicable,³⁰ it was therefore necessary to use the expression, EXEMPT.³¹

What justification is there for stating, FROM THE HALIZAH AND FROM THE LEVIRATE MARRIAGE when it would have been sufficient to state³² FROM THE LEVIRATE MARRIAGE only?³³ — If FROM THE LEVIRATE MARRIAGE only had been stated it might have been assumed that she must perform halizah³⁴ though she is exempt from the levirate marriage, hence it was taught³⁵ that whoever is subject³⁶ to the obligation of levirate marriage is also subject to halizah and whosoever is not subject to the obligation of the levirate marriage is not subject to halizah.

Let it [first] be stated,³⁷ FROM THE LEVIRATE MARRIAGE [and then] FROM THE HALIZAH,³⁸ or else only FROM THE HALIZAH?³⁹ — This Mishnah represents the view of Abba Saul who maintains that the commandment of halizah takes precedence over that of levirate marriage.⁴⁰

What [was intended] to be excluded [by the] numeral at the beginning⁴¹ and what [again was intended] to be excluded [by the] numeral at the end?⁴²

- (1) In respect to their exemption from the levirate marriage.
 - (2) By deduction from the law of a wife's sister.
 - (3) V. n. 2.
 - (4) Others, 'Rab', who was a disciple of R. Isaac b. Abdimi, v. Tosaf. s.v. דאמר a.l.
 - (5) הנה ('they' or 'theirs') in Lev. XVIII, 10 which deals according to Talmudic interpretation with the daughter of his son, or of his daughter that was born from an outraged woman, but not with the daughter herself.
 - (6) Ibid. v. 17 which places a daughter on the same footing as a son's and a daughter's daughter. By this analogy the inference is arrived at that intercourse even with a daughter from an outraged woman is forbidden.
 - (7) זמה ('lewdness' or 'wickedness'), ibid. where the penalty of burning is not mentioned.
 - (8) Ibid. XX, 14 where the penalty of burning with fire is explicitly stated. Thus it is shown that the very foundation of the prohibition of sexual intercourse with a daughter from an outraged woman, as well as the death penalty of burning which the crime involves, are entirely dependent on inferences arrived at by exposition, v. Sanh. 51a.
 - (9) Lit., 'let him teach'.
 - (10) In the list in our Mishnah; since, as will be shewn infra, the exemption from levirate marriage in respect of all the others is derived by exposition from 'his wife's sister'.
 - (11) 'His mother's sister', v. our Mishnah.
 - (12) Which deals with the prohibitions through sisterhood.
 - (13) Of the list.
 - (14) His wife's.
 - (15) Lit., 'his own'.
 - (16) While a daughter-in-law is not consanguineous.
 - (17) A daughter-in-law should, consequently, receive priority.
 - (18) In our Mishnah.
 - (19) Which might imply that the levirate marriage in these cases is not obligatory but optional.
 - (20) v. supra p. 4, n. 13.
 - (21) Since, in fact, no marriage with a deceased brother's widow is permitted whenever the obligation of the levirate marriage does not exist.
 - (22) V. Glos.
 - (23) Since a prohibition could not very well apply to halizah which is a harmless act, the expression of 'prohibit' in respect of halizah would have been interpreted as a 'prohibition to be married to anyone before halizah had been performed'.
 - (24) By the use of the expression, 'exempt'.
 - (25) In our Mishnah.
 - (26) And, consequently, the expression 'prohibit' which is preferable to that of 'exempt' (v. supra notes 6 and 8) could well be used for the levirate marriage.
 - (27) Lit., 'what does he do', i.e., there is no reason why halizah should be forbidden. Hence the expression of 'prohibit' could not properly be used.
 - (28) The expression of 'prohibit' in relation to halizah could, consequently, properly have been used. Why then was 'exempt' preferred to 'prohibit'?
 - (29) Of one's daughter, for instance.
 - (30) If his daughter, e.g., had married one who was not his near of kin, her rival, on the death of her husband, is not forbidden to marry the father; v. infra 13a.
 - (31) 'Prohibit' might have implied that a daughter, e.g., always causes her rival to be prohibited to her father whether the precept of the levirate marriage is applicable or not.

(32) Lit., 'let him teach'.

(33) It is obvious that if one is exempt from the levirate marriage there could be no question of being subject to halizah which is only the result of a refusal to contract the prescribed marriage.

(34) In order that the law of the levirate marriage be not entirely abrogated.

(35) By the use of the expression, exempt'.

(36) Lit., 'goes up' sc. to the gate, i.e., the court (cf. Deut. XXV, 7.)

(37) In our Mishnah.

(38) The marriage surely is of greater importance than the halizah, the latter being only an alternative of the former. V. Deut. XXV. 7.

(39) The exemption from the marriage being then self-evident.

(40) Infra 39b, 109a. And if only FROM THE HALIZAH had been stated, there would be no basis for this inference.

(41) Of our Mishnah, 'FIFTEEN'.

(42) Of the list; 'ALL THESE', implying the 'FIFTEEN' mentioned. If nothing were to be excluded, there would be no need for the addition of a cardinal at the beginning, or of a reference to it at the end of a list which presumably enumerated all possible cases.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 3b

— [They were intended] to exclude the respective rulings of Rab and R. Assi.¹ What, [however, do the numerals] exclude according to Rab and R. Assi? — If they share each other's views, one numeral would serve to exclude the rival of one who made a declaration of refusal,² and the other to exclude the rival of a wife whom [her husband] remarried after having divorced her.³ If they do not share the views of each other, [each would regard] one [numeral as serving] to exclude the ruling of his colleague,⁴ and the other numeral, as serving to exclude either the rival of one who made a declaration of refusal² or the rival of a wife whom [her husband] remarried after having divorced her.³

According to Rab and R. Assi these⁵ should have been enumerated in our Mishnah! — [This could not be done] because the law of the rival's rival⁶ is not applicable [to these cases].⁷

Whence is this law⁸ derived?⁹ — [From] what our Rabbis taught: And thou shalt not take a woman to her sister, to be a rival to her, to uncover her nakedness, 'aleha [beside her] in her lifetime,¹⁰ what need was there for the expression 'aleha'?¹¹ Because it was stated, Her husband's brother shall go in 'aleha [unto her],¹² it might have been imagined¹³ that Scripture¹⁴ speaks even of any of all the forbidden relatives enumerated in the Torah. Hence it was here¹⁰ stated, 'aleha',¹⁵ and elsewhere¹² it was also stated 'aleha'.¹⁶ Just as elsewhere it is in the case of a precept¹⁷ so here also it is in the case of a precept;¹⁷ and yet did not the All Merciful say, Thou shalt not take.¹⁸ We are thus in a position to know the law concerning herself;¹⁹ whence do we derive the law concerning her rival? — From the Scriptural expression, To be a rival to her.¹⁰ We have so far deduced the law concerning her rival only. Whence do we arrive at the law concerning her rival's rival? — From the fact that Scripture uses the expression li-zeror²⁰ and not that of la-zor.²¹ Thus we have deduced the law concerning a wife's sister, whence is the law concerning the other forbidden relatives to be inferred? — It can be answered: As a wife's sister is singled out in that she is a forbidden relative, the penalty for presumptuous intercourse with her is kareth²² and for unwitting intercourse a sin-offering, and she is forbidden to the levir, so also any woman who is a forbidden relative, and the penalty for presumptuous intercourse with whom is kareth²² and for unwitting intercourse a sin-offering, is forbidden to the levir. Now we know the law concerning themselves only;²³ whence is the law concerning their rivals deduced? — It may be answered: As a wife's sister is singled out in that she is a forbidden relative, kareth is incurred by presumptuous intercourse with her and a sin-offering for unwitting intercourse, and she is forbidden to the levir, and her rival is forbidden, so also in the case of any woman who is a forbidden relative, and for presumptuous intercourse with whom is incurred the penalty of kareth and for unwitting intercourse a sin-offering, and who is forbidden to the levir, her rival is forbidden. Hence have the Sages said: FIFTEEN [CATEGORIES OF] WOMEN EXEMPT THEIR RIVALS AND THEIR RIVALS' RIVALS, AND SO ON, AD INFINITUM, FROM THE HALIZAH AND FROM THE LEVIRATE MARRIAGE. One might assume that the six more rigidly forbidden relatives²⁴ are also included in the ruling,²⁵ so that their rivals also²⁶ are forbidden,²⁷ hence it must be stated:²⁸ As a wife's sister is singled out in that she is a forbidden relative, kareth is incurred for presumptuous intercourse with her and a sin-offering for unwitting intercourse, she may be married to the other brothers, but is forbidden to the levir, and her rival is forbidden, so also in the case of any woman who is a forbidden relative, for presumptuous intercourse with whom is incurred the penalty of kareth and for unwitting intercourse a sin-offering, who may marry one of the other brothers, but is forbidden to the levir, her rival also is forbidden; excluded, however, are the six more rigidly forbidden relatives. Since they may not be married to the other brothers, their rivals are permitted; for [the law of] 'rival'²⁹ is applicable only [to widows] of a brother.³⁰

Thus we have deduced the prohibition. Whence, however, is the penalty inferred? — Scripture said, For whosoever shall do any of these abominations etc. [shall be cut off from among their people.]³¹

The reason,³² then, is because the All Merciful has written, 'aleha',³³ otherwise it would have been said that levirate marriage may be contracted with the wife's sister; what is the reason? Is it because we assume that a positive precept,³⁴ supersedes a negative precept?³⁵ Surely, it is possible that³⁶ the rule that a positive precept supersedes a negative precept applies only where the latter is a mere prohibition; does it, however, supersede a prohibition involving the penalty of kareth?³⁵ Furthermore, whence is it derived that it may supersede even a mere prohibition?

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 4a

— Because¹ it is written, Thou shalt not wear a mingled stuff . . .² Thou shalt make thee twisted cords,³ and R. Eleazar said,⁴ 'Whence is the rule of proximity [of texts] derived from the Torah?'⁵ As it is said, They are established⁶ for ever and ever, they are done in truth and uprightness.⁷ Furthermore, R. Shesheth stated⁸ in the name of R. Eleazar who stated it in the name of R. Eleazar b. Azariah: Whence is it proved that a sister-in-law, who falls to the lot of a levir who is afflicted with boils, is not muzzled?⁹ From the Biblical text, Thou shalt not muzzle the ox when he treadeth out the corn,¹⁰ and in close proximity to it is written If brethren dwell together.¹¹ Furthermore R. Joseph said: Even he who does not base interpretations on the proximity [of Biblical texts] anywhere else does base them [on the texts] in Deuteronomy,¹² for R. Judah who does not elsewhere base any interpretations [on textual proximity], bases such interpretations on the Deuteronomic text.¹³ And whence is it proved that elsewhere he¹⁴ does not advance such interpretation?¹⁵ — From what has been taught: Ben 'Azzai said, It was stated, Thou shalt not suffer a sorceress to live,¹⁶ and it is also stated, Whosoever lieth with a beast shall surely be put to death;¹⁷ one subject was placed near the other to indicate that as the man who lies with a beast is to suffer the death penalty of stoning so also is a sorceress to suffer the death penalty of stoning. Said R. Judah to him: Shall we, because one subject was placed in close proximity to the other, lead out a person¹⁸ to be stoned? In truth¹⁹ [the penalty of the sorceress is derived from the following]: The necromancer and the charmer were included among the sorcerers; why then were they mentioned separately?²⁰ In order that the others may be compared to them, and to tell you that as the necromancer and the charmer are subject to the death penalty of stoning,²⁰ so is a sorceress also subject to the penalty of stoning.

And whence is it proved that in Deuteronomy he²¹ does advance such interpretation?¹⁵ — From what we learned: A man may marry a woman who has been outraged or seduced by his father or his son. R. Judah prohibits in the case of a woman outraged or seduced by one's father.²² And in connection with this, R. Giddal said in the name of Rab: What is R. Judah's reason? Because it is written, A man shall not take his father's wife, and shall not uncover his father's skirt,²³ the 'skirt' which his father saw he shall not uncover. And whence is it inferred that this is written with reference to an outraged woman? — From the preceding section of the text where it is written, Then the man that lay with her shall give unto the damsel's father fifty shekels of silver²⁴ near which it is stated, A man shall not take etc.²⁵ And the Rabbis?²⁶ — If one text had occurred in close proximity to the other the exposition would have been justified;²⁷ now, however, that it does not occur in close proximity²⁸ [it must be concluded that] the context speaks of a woman who is awaiting the decision of the levir²⁹ and that, [in marrying such a woman, a son]³⁰ transgresses two negative precepts.³¹

And what is the reason why [R. Judah] derives laws [from the proximity of texts] in Deuteronomy? — If you wish I might say: Because [there the deduction]³² is obvious; and if you prefer I might say: Because [there the text] is superfluous.³³ 'If you prefer I might say: Because [there the deduction] is obvious' , for, otherwise,³⁴ the All Merciful should have written the prohibition in the section of forbidden relatives. 'And if you prefer I might say: Because [there the text] is superfluous', for otherwise³⁵ the All Merciful should have written, A man shall not take his father's wife.²⁵ what need was there for adding,³⁶ And shall not uncover his father's skirt?²⁵

(7) Ps. CXI, 8. The proximity of the two texts (Deut. XXII, 11 and 12) may consequently be taken to indicate that though the wearing of mingled stuff (linen and wool) is forbidden in ordinary cases (Deut. XXII, 11) it is nevertheless permitted in the case of the performance of a positive precept such as that of the making of 'twisted cords' or zizith (v. Glos.) on the four corners of a garment (ibid. v. 12).

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 4b

Hence it must be concluded that the text was meant to provide a superfluous text.¹

Similarly in the case of zizith,² if you wish I might reply:³ Because [there⁴ the deduction] is obvious. And if you prefer I might reply:⁵ Because [there⁶ the text] is superfluous.⁷ 'If you prefer I might say: Because [there the deduction] is obvious', for otherwise,⁸ the All Merciful should have written [the precept] in the section of zizith;⁹ with what other practical rule in view has he written it here?¹⁰ 'And if you prefer, I might reply: Because [there the text] is superfluous', for observe: It is written, Neither shall there come upon thee a garment of two kinds of stuff mingled together.¹¹ What need then was there for stating, Thou shalt not wear a mingled stuff?¹² Hence it must be concluded that the object was to provide a superfluous text.¹³

But [surely] both these texts¹⁴ are required? For if the All Merciful had only written, Neither shall there come upon thee¹⁵ it might have been assumed that all kinds of 'putting on' were forbidden by the All Merciful, even that of clothes dealers,¹⁶ hence the All Merciful, has written, Thou shalt not wear a mingled stuff,¹⁷ [shewing that the 'putting on' must be] of the same nature as that of wearing for personal comfort. And if the All Merciful had only written, Thou shalt not wear¹⁸ it might have been assumed that only wear [is forbidden] because the pleasure derived therefrom is great, but not mere 'putting on', hence the All Merciful has written, Neither shall there come upon thee!¹⁹ — If so,²⁰ the All Merciful should have written, 'Thou shalt not wear a mingled stuff' what need was there for adding, 'Wool and linen'? For²¹ observe: It is written, Neither shall there come upon thee a garment of two kinds of stuff mingled together,¹⁵ and in connection with this a Tanna of the School of R. Ishmael taught: Whereas garments generally²² were mentioned in the Torah, and in one particular case²³ Scripture specified wool and linen,²³ all must consequently be understood as having been made of wool and linen, what need, then, was there for the All Merciful's specific mention of wool and linen? Consequently it must be concluded that its object was to provide a superfluous text.²⁴

But the text²⁵ is still required [for another purpose]! For it might have been assumed [that the limitation²⁶ applies] only to 'putting on', where the benefit is not great, but that in respect of wear, the benefit from which is great, any two kinds were forbidden by the All Merciful, hence has the All Merciful written, 'wool and linen'!²⁷ — If so, Scripture should have omitted it altogether²⁸ and [the law²⁹ would have been] deduced [by analogy between] 'mingled stuff'³⁰ and 'mingled stuff'³¹ [the latter of which occurs in connection with the law] of 'putting on'.³²

As to the Tanna of the School of R. Ishmael, is the reason [why 'mingled stuff' is permitted in zizith] because the All Merciful has written 'wool and linen', but if He had not done so, would it have been assumed that the All Merciful had forbidden two kinds of stuff in the zizith? But, surely. it is written, And they shall make them fringes in the corners of their garments³³ and a Tanna of the School of R. Ishmael [taught]: Wherever 'garment' [is written] such as is made of wool or flax [is meant], and yet the All Merciful said that in them 'purple' shall be inserted, and purple, surely, is wool. And whence is it deduced that purple is wool? Since linen³⁴ is flax, purple must be wool.³⁵ —

[The text] was necessary; for it might have been assumed [that the interpretation is] according to Raba. For Raba pointed out a contradiction: It is written, the corner,³⁶ [which implies that the fringes must be of the same] kind of [material as that of the] corner,³⁷ but then it is also written, wool and linen.³⁸ How then [are these texts to be reconciled?] Wool and linen discharge [the obligation to provide fringes] both for a garment of the same, as well as of a different kind of material, while other kinds [of material]³⁹ discharge [the obligation for a garment made] of the same kind [of material] but not for one made of a different kind [of material].⁴⁰

But the Tanna of the School of R. Ishmael,⁴¹ surely, does not hold the same view as Raba!⁴² — [The text]⁴³ is still necessary; for it might have been assumed that Raba's line of argument⁴⁴ should be followed: 'The corner' [implies that the fringes must be made of the same] kind of [material as the] corner, and that what the All Merciful meant was this: 'Make wool [fringes] for wool [garments] and linen ones for linen; only when you make wool fringes for wool garments you must dye them'; but no wool fringes may be made for linen or linen fringes for wool, hence the All Merciful has written 'wool and linen' [to indicate] that even wool fringes [may be] made for linen garments or linen fringes for woollen garments.⁴⁵

(32) As the latter applies to wool and linen only, so also the former.

(33) Num. XV, 38.

(34) In the description of the materials of the High Priests' garments (Ex. XXXIX, 1ff).

(35) As the garments were either of wool or flax, and linen (flax) was specified in the case of one, all the others must have been wool. Now since it has been shewn that purple is wool, it obviously follows that woollen zizith or fringes are permissible in a garment of flax. What was the need, then, for a specific text to prove the permissibility of mingling wool and flax in zizith?

(36) Num. XV, 38.

(37) I.e., if the material of the corner is wool the fringes must be wool; if of flax the fringes must be of flax.

(38) Cf. Deut. XXII, 11f: Mingled stuff, wool and linen thou shalt make the twisted cords, which shews that the fringes may be made either of wool or of flax whatever the material of the corner might be.

(39) Silk for instance.

(40) So also according to the Tanna of R. Ishmael's school, (as will be explained in the Gemara anon) if Scripture had not specified 'wool and linen' it might have been assumed that in a woollen garment the fringes must be made of wool while in a garment of flax they must be made of flax, hence wool and linen were specified to shew on the basis of semukim that mingled stuffs also are allowed in zizith.

(41) At the moment it is assumed that the suggestion is that he is in agreement with Raba's argument in all respects.

(42) For, according to him, since 'garment' denotes only such as is made of wool and linen, garments made of other materials require no fringes (zizith). What need, then, was there for the expression of wool and linen to differentiate these from other materials?

(43) Wool and linen.

(44) Though not his view, applying his method of reasoning only in regard to a garment made of wool or linen.

(45) I.e., that mingled stuffs are permissible in the performance of the precept of zizith.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 5a

This¹ is satisfactory according to the view of the Tanna of the School of R. Ishmael;² as to the Rabbis,³ however, how do they arrive at the deduction?⁴ — They derive it from his head;⁵ for it was taught: [Scripture stated], 'His head';⁵ what need was there for it?⁶ — Whereas it has been stated, Ye shall not round the corners of your head,⁷ one might infer that [this law⁸ applies to] a leper also, hence it was explicitly stated, his head;⁹ and this Tanna is of the opinion that rounding all the head is also regarded as 'rounding'.¹⁰ This [conclusion, however,] may be refuted: The reason why the prohibition of¹¹ 'rounding' [may be superseded is] because it is not applicable to everybody!¹² — But [the inference] is derived from his beard;¹³ as it was taught: 'His beard';¹³ what need was there for stating it?¹⁴ — Whereas it was said, Neither shall they shave off the corners of their beard,¹⁵ one might infer that this prohibition applies also to a leprous priest,¹⁶ hence it was explicitly stated, 'his beard'.¹⁷ And since there is no object in applying it to a prohibition which is not incumbent upon everybody,¹⁸ let it be applied to a prohibition which is incumbent upon all.¹⁹ But this²⁰ is still required [for its own context]! For since it might have been assumed that as priests are different from [other people]. Scripture having imposed upon them additional commandments, and so even a prohibition which does not apply to everybody is not superseded in their case; [therefore] it was necessary to teach us that it does supersede.²¹ — In truth the inference comes from 'his head' [in the manner deduced by] the following²² Tanna. For It was taught: His head:²³ what need was there for mentioning it?²⁴ Whereas Scripture had stated, There shall no razor come upon his head,²⁵ one might infer that the same prohibition is applicable to a leprous nazirite²⁶ also, hence it was explicitly stated, 'his head'.²⁷ This,²⁸ however, may be refuted: The reason why a [leprous] nazirite [may shave his head] is because he is also in a position to obtain absolution.²⁹ For, were not this the reason,³⁰ what then of the accepted rule,³¹ that no positive precept may supersede a negative and positive precept combined; why not deduce the contrary from the law³² of the [leprous] nazirite?³³ Consequently, [it must be conceded that] the reason why no deduction may be made [from the law of the nazirite is] because it may be refuted [on the grounds] that in his case absolution is possible; so here also the refutation may be advanced, 'Since in his case absolution is possible'!³⁴ — The deduction, in fact, is made

- (1) The deduction from semukim that a positive precept supersedes a negative one.
- (2) Since on the lines of his interpretation the text, 'wool and linen' is superfluous and consequently free for the deduction mentioned.
- (3) Who do not interpret 'garment' as denoting such as is of wool and flax.
- (4) The text, 'wool and linen', being required for the completion of the plain meaning of the text, there remains no superfluous expression for the deduction. V. supra n. 2.
- (5) Lev. XIV, 9, dealing with the purification of the leper.
- (6) It was previously stated, and shave off all his hair (Lev. XIV, 8) which obviously includes that of the head.
- (7) Lev. XIX. 27.
- (8) The prohibition to round the corners of the head.
- (9) Indicating that, despite the general prohibition, it is the leper's duty to round his head.
- (10) Though the text speaks of rounding the corners. Such a rounding then, though generally forbidden, is in the case of a leper, permitted, because Scripture explicitly stated 'shave all the hair of his head' (Lev. XIV, 9). Thus it has been proved that the positive precept of the shaving of the leper supersedes the prohibition of rounding off one's head. Similarly, in the case of the levirate marriage, it might have been assumed that the positive precept of marrying the deceased brother's widow supersedes the prohibition of marrying a wife's sister; hence the necessity for a special text (v. supra 3b end and p. 10, n. 7) to prove that it does not.
- (11) Lit., 'what as to the negative (command)'.
- (12) Lit., 'equal in all'; women being exempt. (V. Kid. 35b). The prohibition of the marriage of a wife's sister, however, is applicable to the man and to the woman, the brother-in-law as well as the sister-in-law.
- (13) Which also occurs in the regulations for the purification of the leper. (V. Lev. XIV, 9).
- (14) Seeing that it was previously mentioned (Lev. XIV, 8) that the leper must 'shave off all his hair', which obviously includes that of his beard.
- (15) Lev. XXI, 5.
- (16) The prohibition of shaving the corners of one's head having been addressed to the priests. V. Lev. XXI, 1ff.
- (17) Indicating that in the case of a leprous priest the precept of shaving supersedes the prohibition of 'shaving'.
- (18) That such a prohibition is superseded by a positive precept having been deduced supra from 'his head'.
- (19) Thus it has been proved that a positive precept supersedes any prohibition even if the latter is generally applicable. Marriage between a levir and his deceased brother's widow who is his wife's sister might, consequently, have been assumed to be permitted had not an explicit text pointed to its prohibition.
- (20) The text, 'his beard'.
- (21) How, then, can the same text which is required for the purpose mentioned also be used for a general deduction.
- (22) Lit., '(manner) of that'.
- (23) Lev. XIV, 9.
- (24) Cf. supra, p. 16, n. 7.
- (25) Num. VI, 5 dealing with the laws of the nazirite.
- (26) So Rashal. Cur. edd. read, 'leper and nazirite'.
- (27) Thus it is proved that a positive precept supersedes a prohibition. Cf. supra, note 7.
- (28) The deduction from the nazirite.
- (29) Heb. she'elah שאלה 'request', i.e., the nazirite may request a qualified person to disallow his vow and thus avoid the prohibition of shaving.
- (30) Lit., 'if you will not say so'.
- (31) Lit., 'that which is established for us'.
- (32) Lit., 'let it be deduced'.
- (33) The shaving of a nazirite's head is forbidden (a) by the precept that he must grow his hair long and (b) by the prohibition of allowing a razor to come upon his head.
- (34) Whence, then, is it proved that a positive precept supersedes a prohibition?

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 5b

from the first cited text:¹ Since² Scripture could have used the expression, Thou shalt make thee fringes,³ what need was there for that of 'twisted cords'? Consequently it must have been intended for the purpose of allowing that text to be used for the deduction.⁴ But this⁵ is required for the determination of the number [of threads, thus]:⁶ ‘Twisted cord’ implies two threads,⁷ [and so] ‘twisted cords’⁸ implies four threads, therefore,⁹ one twisted cord is to be made [of the four] and from the middle of it separate threads¹⁰ are to hang down!¹¹ — If so,¹² Scripture should have stated, Thou shalt not wear a mingled stuff wool and linen:¹³ what need was there to add ‘together’?¹³ Consequently it must have been intended for the purpose of allowing a free text for the deduction.¹⁴ But this text too¹⁵ is required for the deduction that two stitches¹⁶ form a combination¹⁷ and that one stitch does not! — If so, the All Merciful should have written, Thou shalt not wear wool and linen together; what need was there for inserting ‘mingled stuff’? Hence it must be concluded that the purpose was to allow a free text for deduction.¹⁸ But is not this text¹⁹ still required [for the deduction that ‘mingled stuff’²⁰ is not forbidden] unless it was hackled, spun and twisted?²¹ — But [the fact is that] all this is deduced from the expression of ‘mingled stuff’.²²

So far it has been shewn that a positive precept supersedes a mere prohibition,²³ where, however, do we find that it supersedes also a prohibition involving kareth,²⁴ and that in consequence [the explicit expression] ‘aleha’²⁵ should be required to forbid it?²⁶ And if it be replied that this²⁶ might be deduced from circumcision,²⁷ [it may be retorted]: Circumcision stands in a different category,²⁸ for concerning it thirteen covenants²⁹ were made!³⁰ From the paschal lamb?³¹ — The paschal lamb also stands in a different category³² since it too involves kareth!³⁰ From the daily offering?³¹ — The daily offering also stands in a different category³³ since it is also a regular [offering]!³⁰ [Now though] it³⁴ cannot be derived from one³⁵ it might be derived from two. From which shall it be derived? [If the reply is]: Let it be derived from circumcision and the paschal lamb, [it may be retorted]: These also involve kareth.³⁶ From the paschal lamb and the daily offering? — Both are also intended for the Most High.³⁷ From circumcision and the daily offering? — Both were also in force before the giving of the law,³⁸ this being according to the view of him who holds that the burnt-offering which Israel offered in the wilderness was the daily burnt-offering.³⁹ Nor [can the derivation be made] from all of them, since they were all in force before the giving of the law.⁴⁰

But [this is the reason for] the need of a special text.⁴¹ It might have been assumed⁴² that this⁴³ should be derived from the precept of honouring one's father and mother; for it was taught: Since one might have assumed that the honouring of one's father and mother should supersede the Sabbath, it was explicitly stated, Ye shall fear every man his mother and his father, and ye shall keep My Sabbaths,⁴⁴ it is the duty of all of you⁴⁵ to honour Me. Now is not the case in point one where the parent said to him, ‘Slaughter for me’,⁴⁶ or ‘Cook for me’,⁴⁶ and the reason [why the parent must not be obeyed is] because the All Merciful has written, ‘Ye shall keep my Sabbaths’,⁴⁴ but had that not been so⁴⁷ it⁴⁸ would have superseded?⁴⁹ — No;

(1) ‘Mingled stuff’ in the case of zizith. (V. Deut. XXII, 11, 12 and supra p. 15, n. 3).

(2) Lit., ‘if so’, i.e., if according to the Rabbis the expression, ‘wool and linen’, is required for its own context and that text, therefore, is not available for deduction.

(3) The expression used in Num. XV, 38 in the section dealing with the precept of the fringes.

(4) That a positive precept supersedes a prohibition. Cf. supra, p. 10, n. 13.

(5) The expression of ‘twisted cords’, גְּדִילִים, Deut. XXII, 12.

(6) In the fringes.

(7) The twisted cord cannot be made of less than two threads.

(8) The plural, i.e., twice two.

(9) To harmonize this text (Deut. XXII, 12) which implies twisted cords, with that of Num. XV, 38, and that they put with the fringe of each corner a thread of blue, which implies only twisted threads.

(10) The four threads are inserted into the corner of the garment and, having been folded to form a fringe of eight threads, they are joined (by winding one of the threads round the others) into one twisted cord which extends over a section of length and is then separated again into eight separate threads.

(11) Men. 39b. Now, since the expression, ‘twisted cords’, is required for the determination of the number of the threads, how could the Rabbis deduce from it the law of 'mingled stuff' in the fringes?

(12) That the law of 'mingled stuff' in the fringes was not to be deduced from the text cited.

(13) Deut. XXII, 11.

(14) Cf. supra p. 18, n. 10.

(15) Together, in Deut. XXII, II.

(16) Combining a material made of wool with one made of flax.

(17) Of 'mingled stuff' which is forbidden.

(18) Cf. supra p. 18, n. 10.

(19) Mingled stuff, Deut. XXII, 11.

(20) Of wool and flax.

(21) An etymological explanation of, or a play upon, the words 'mingled stuff' שעטנז, in Deut. XXII, 11. שעטנז is assumed to be an abbreviation of שוע טוי ונוז.

(22) The use of the peculiar expression, שעטנז, and not the usual כלאים, implies both (a) the deduction mentioned, (v. previous note) and (b) the deduction that a positive precept supersedes a prohibition (v. supra p. 10, n. 13).

(23) Cf. 3b end and p. 10, n. 7.

(24) V. Glos.

(25) Lev. XVIII, 18.

(26) The marriage by the levir of the widow of his deceased childless brother, when she happens to be a forbidden relative. V. p. 8, n. 9.

(27) Which must be performed on the eighth day of the child's birth even though that day happens to be a Sabbath when manual work is forbidden under the penalty of kareth.

(28) Lit., 'what in respect of circum-cision'.

(29) The expression 'covenant' (in various grammatical forms) occurs thirteen times in Gen. XVII, the section dealing with the precept of circumcision, v. Ned. 31b.

(30) Hence it may also supersede the Sabbath. It supplies, however, no proof that a positive precept which is not so stringent (such as the marriage with the levir) also supersedes a prohibition involving kareth.

(31) The slaughtering of which (a positive precept) supersedes the Sabbath though slaughtering is manual work which is forbidden on the Sabbath under the penalty of kareth.

(32) Lit., 'what in respect of the paschal lamb'.

(33) Lit., 'what in respect of the daily offering'.

(34) V. p. 19, n. 16.

(35) Circumcision, the paschal lamb, or the daily offering alone.

(36) Cf. supra n. 1.

(37) They are offered on the altar. Cf. supra n. 1.

(38) On Mount Sinai. Lit., 'speech' i.e., of the Deity. 'revelation', and as such are deemed of greater stringency.

(39) V. Ex. XXIV, 5 and Hag. 6a. Circumcision was ordained in the time of Abraham. V. Gen. XVII.

(40) V. supra nn. 9 and 10. The law of the paschal lamb also was given in Egypt prior to the date of the Revelation. V. Ex. XII.

(41) Beside her (Lev. XVIII, 18), to indicate that levirate marriage is forbidden when the widow of the deceased brother is the surviving brother's forbidden relative.

(42) Had not that text (in Lev. XVIII, 18; v. previous note) been written.

(43) That a positive precept supersedes a prohibition involving kareth and that consequently a levir may marry his deceased childless brother's widow even if she happens to be a forbidden relative of his.

(44) Lev. XIX, 3.

(45) Parents and children.

(46) I.e., to desecrate the Sabbath by an action the penalty for which is kareth.

(47) Had no such text been available.

(48) A parent's order, (the positive precept of honouring one's parents.)

(49) The prohibition of work on the Sabbath, though it is one involving kareth. Similarly in the case of the levirate marriage. Cf. supra p. 20, n. 14.

this is a case¹ of ass driving.² And [you say that] it does not supersede³ even in such a case?⁴ But then what of the generally accepted rule that a positive precept supersedes a prohibition. Should it not be inferred from this case that it does not supersede!⁵ And if it be replied that the prohibitions of the Sabbath are different⁶ because they are more stringent,⁷ surely the following Tanna, [it may be pointed out,] speaks of prohibitions generally⁸ yet no one advances any objection.⁹ For it was taught: Since it might have been assumed that if his father had said to him,¹⁰ 'Defile yourself',¹¹ or if he said to him, 'Do not restore,'¹² he must obey him, it was explicitly stated, Ye shall fear every man his mother, and his father, and ye shall keep my Sabbaths,¹³ it is the duty of all of you to honour Me!¹⁴ — The real reason¹⁵ is because this objection may be advanced: Those¹⁶ are in a different category¹⁷ since they are also essentials in the execution of the precept.¹⁸

But [the reason¹⁹ is because] it might have been assumed that this²⁰ should be derived from the precept of the building of the Sanctuary. For it was taught: Since it might have been assumed that the building of the Sanctuary should supersede the Sabbath, it was explicitly stated, Ye shall keep My Sabbaths, and reverence My Sanctuary;²¹ it is the duty of all of you to honour Me. Now is not the case in point one of [a father's order to his son to] build or to demolish,²² and yet the reason [why it does not supersede the Sabbath is] because the All Merciful has written, 'Ye shall keep My Sabbaths',²³ but had that not been written it would have superseded?²⁴ — No; the case in point is one of ass driving.²⁵

And [you say] that it²⁶ does not supersede a prohibition even in such a case?²⁷ But what of the generally accepted rule that a positive precept supersedes a prohibition? Should we not infer from this case that it does not supersede! And if it be replied that the prohibitions of the Sabbath are different²⁸ because they are of a more stringent nature,²⁹ surely the following Tanna [it may be pointed out] speaks of prohibitions generally³⁰ yet no one advances any refutation.³¹ For it was taught: Since it might have been assumed that if his father had said to him,³² 'Defile yourself',³³ or if he said to him, 'Do not restore,'³⁴ he must obey him, hence it was explicitly stated, Ye shall fear every man his mother, and his father etc.,³⁵ it is the duty of all of you to honour Me!³⁶ — The true reason³⁷ is because this objection may be advanced: Those³⁸ are in a different category³⁹ since they are also essentials in the execution of the precept.⁴⁰ [But the law relating to] essentials in the execution of a precept could be derived from the previously cited text!⁴¹ — That is so indeed. What need, then, was there for the text, Ye shall keep My Sabbaths, and reverence My Sanctuary?²³ — It is required for the following deduction:⁴² As it might have been imagined that a man should reverence the Sanctuary, it was explicitly stated in the Scriptures, Ye shall keep My Sabbaths, and reverence My Sanctuary;²³ the expression of 'keeping' was used in relation to the Sabbath and [in the same verse] that of 'reverence' in relation to the Sanctuary [in order that the following comparison may be made]: As in the case of 'keeping' used in relation to the Sabbath

(1) Lit., 'negative precept'.

(2) I.e., where a father ordered his son to desecrate the Sabbath by driving an ass; a prohibition which, unlike slaughtering or cooking, does not involve the penalty of kareth. V. Shab. 154a.

(3) Lit., 'and even thus', sc. even the mere prohibition of ass driving.

(4) A mere prohibition not involving the penalty of kareth.

(5) Even a mere prohibition which does not involve the penalty of kareth.

(6) From other prohibitions.

(7) Since the infringement of any one of the laws of the Sabbath is regarded as the sin of idolatry (v. 'Er. 69b), even a mere prohibition which does not involve kareth, cannot be superseded by a positive precept.

(8) Lit., 'stands in the world', i.e., he compares with the prohibitions of the Sabbath others which have no connection with it.

(9) That the prohibitions of the Sabbath being more stringent than others should not be compared with them.

- (10) His son who was a priest.
- (11) For the dead, which is forbidden to a priest. V. Lev. XXI, 1ff.
- (12) A lost animal. V. Deut. XXII, 1.
- (13) Lev. XIX, 3.
- (14) Thus it has been shewn that prohibitions generally may be compared with those of the Sabbath. The suggestion, therefore, that the parents' order supra concerned the performance of the act of ass driving is untenable. If, consequently, the order must have consisted of a request to perform an act involving the penalty of kareth, that case well supplies a satisfactory answer to the question (supra 5b) as to what need was there for the text, 'aleha', in Lev. XVIII, 18.
- (15) Why no satisfactory reply to the question, what need is there for the text 'aleha', may be obtained from the precept of honouring one's parents.
- (16) A father's orders to his son to slaughter or to cook on the Sabbath.
- (17) From such a precept as the levirate marriage.
- (18) Lit., 'it is a preparation of the precept'. The precept of honouring a father cannot possibly be performed by the son unless he actually executes the act of slaughtering or of cooking, which he has been ordered by his father to do, so that the fulfilment of the positive precept (honouring one's parents) is entirely dependent on its superseding the prohibition (that, e.g., of cooking). Hence it was necessary to have an explicit text to indicate that, even in such a case, a positive precept does not supersede a prohibition. In the case of the levirate marriage, however, the infringement of the prohibition is not absolutely essential to the fulfilment of the precept, since, instead of the marriage, halizah may be arranged, and the question remains, what need is there of the verse 'aleha'.
- (19) Why the text, 'aleha' (Lev. XVIII, 18) was needed to indicate that wherever the deceased childless brother's widow was the living brother's forbidden relative no levirate marriage must take place.
- (20) That a positive precept supersedes a prohibition involving kareth and consequently that the levirate marriage may take place even in such a case (v. previous note).
- (21) Lev. XIX, 30.
- (22) Actions which are among the principal classes of labour that are forbidden on the Sabbath under the penalty of kareth.
- (23) Lev. XIX, 30.
- (24) Thus it follows that a positive precept does supersede a prohibition even though the latter involves kareth.
- (25) Which does not involve kareth.
- (26) A positive precept.
- (27) Which does not involve kareth.
- (28) From other prohibitions.
- (29) Cf. supra p. 21, n. 13.
- (30) Cf. supra p. 21, n. 14.
- (31) Cf. supra p. 21, n. 15.
- (32) His son who was a priest.
- (33) Cf. supra p. 21, n. 17.
- (34) Cf. supra p. 21, n. 18.
- (35) Lev. XIX, 3.
- (36) Cf. supra p. 22, n. 2.
- (37) Cf. supra p. 22, n. 3.
- (38) Cf. supra p. 22, n. 4.
- (39) Cf. supra p. 22, n. 5.
- (40) Cf. supra p. 22, n. 6.
- (41) Lit., 'from there', from Lev. XIX, 3, and this superfluous text serves to extend the principle of a positive precept superseding a negative precept involving kareth to a case such as levirate marriage. Hence the need of the text 'aleha'.
- (42) Lit., 'for as it was taught'.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 6b

one does not reverence the Sabbath but Him who ordered the observance of the Sabbath, so in the case of 'reverence' used in relation to the Sanctuary, one is not to reverence the Sanctuary but Him who gave the commandment concerning the Sanctuary. And what is regarded as the ‘reverence of the Sanctuary’? — A man shall not enter the Temple mount¹ with his stick, shoes or money bag² or with dust upon his feet, nor may he use it for making a short cut;³ and spitting [is there forbidden] by inference a minori ad majus.⁴ This, however, might apply⁵ only to the time when the Sanctuary was in existence; whence is it deduced that the same holds good of the time when the Sanctuary no longer exists? It was expressly stated in Scripture, Ye shall keep My Sabbaths, and reverence My Sanctuary;⁶ as the ‘keeping’ that was used in relation to the Sabbath holds good forever, so also the ‘reverence’ used in relation to the Sanctuary must hold good forever.⁷

Really [the reason⁸ is because] it might have been assumed that this⁹ should be derived from the prohibition of kindling a fire [on the Sabbath]. For a Tanna of the School of R. Ishmael taught: Wherefore was it stated, Ye shall kindle no fire throughout your habitations?¹⁰ ‘Wherefore ‘was it stated’!¹¹ Surely if one is to follow R. Jose, it was to intimate that [kindling a fire on the Sabbath is] a prohibition only;¹² and, if one is to follow R. Nathan, it was to intimate that even a single transgression involves one in the prescribed penalties;¹³ for it was taught: ‘The prohibition of kindling a fire [on the Sabbath] was mentioned separately¹⁴ in order to [indicate that its transgression is] a prohibition only;¹⁵ so R. Jose, while R. Nathan maintains that the intention was to intimate that even a single transgression involves the offender in the prescribed penalties’!¹³ And Raba explained that the Tanna¹⁶ found difficult the expression of habitations,¹⁷ [arguing thus]: What need was there for Scripture to state ‘habitations’? [Is not this¹⁸ obvious?] For consider: The observance of the Sabbath is a personal obligation, and any personal obligation is valid both in the Land [of Israel] and outside the land;¹⁹ what need, then, was there for the All Merciful to write it²⁰ in connection with the Sabbath? This was explained by a disciple in the name of R. Ishmael: Whereas it was stated in the Scriptures, And if a man have committed a sin worthy of death, and he be put to death,²¹ one might infer [that the death penalty may be executed] both on week-days and on the Sabbath and, as regards the application of the text, Everyone that profaneth it²² shall surely be put to death,²³ this might be said to refer to the several kinds of labour other than the execution of a judicial death sentence; or again it might be inferred²⁴ that it²⁵ refers even to a judicial execution of a death sentence and, as regards the application of He shall surely be put to death²³ [this might be said to refer] to week-days but not to the Sabbath; or again it might be thought²⁶ to apply also to the Sabbath; hence it was expressly stated, Ye shall kindle no fire throughout your habitations,²⁷ and further on it is stated, And these things shall be for a statute of judgment unto you throughout your generations in all your habitations;²⁸ as the expression of ‘habitations’ mentioned below²⁸ refers to the Beth din, so the expression ‘habitations’ mentioned here²⁷ refers also to the Beth din, and concerning this the All Merciful said, ‘Ye shall kindle no fire’.²⁹ Now, are we not to assume this statement to be in agreement with the view³⁰ of R. Nathan who holds that the object was to intimate that even a single transgression involves the offender in the prescribed penalties,³¹ and the reason³² is because the All Merciful has written, Ye shall kindle no fire,²⁷ but had that not been the case it would have superseded the [Sabbath]!³³ — No; this may be according to R. Jose.³⁴

Granted, however, [that it is according to the view of] R. Jose, might it not be suggested that R. Jose said that ‘kindling a fire [on the Sabbath] is mentioned separately in order to indicate that it is a mere prohibition’ [in the case only of] ordinary burning; the burning by the Beth din,³⁵ [however, is surely a case of] boiling of the metal bar³⁶ concerning which R. Shesheth said that there is no difference between the boiling of a metal bar and the boiling of dyes?³⁷ — R. Shimi b. Ashi replied: This Tanna³⁸ [requires Scriptural texts] not because elsewhere he holds that a positive precept supersedes a prohibition, but because this³⁹ might have been obtained by inference a minori ad majus; and it is this that he meant to say: ‘As regards the application of the text, Every one that profaneth it⁴⁰ shall surely be put to death,⁴¹ it might have been said to apply to the several kinds of labour other than that of the execution of a judicial death sentence, but that a judicial death sentence does supersede the Sabbath, by inference a minori ad majus:

- (13) Lit., 'to divide', i.e., one of the thirty-nine kinds of labour that are forbidden on the Sabbath was singly specified in order to indicate that to incur the prescribed penalties it is not necessary to commit all the thirty-nine transgressions (as the one general, all-embracing prohibition of about might have seemed to imply). The mention of one prohibition (kindling of fire) separately breaks up, so to speak, (divides), all the others into single units, indicating that, as in its own case, so in that of all the others first mentioned together with it, every single transgression involves the penalty of stoning, kareth, or a sin-offering.

- (33) Though the penalties involved include that of kareth. Thus it follows that a positive precept may supersede even such a prohibition. So also in the case of the levirate marriage it might have been assumed that the precept of marrying one's deceased childless brother's widow supersedes the prohibition of marrying a consanguineous relative despite the fact that such a transgression involves elsewhere the penalty of kareth; hence it was necessary for Scripture to add, 'aleha' (Lev. XVIII, 18), to indicate that even a levirate marriage is in such a case forbidden. (V. supra 3b and 5b).

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 7a

If the Temple service which is of high importance and supersedes the Sabbath¹ is itself superseded by [a death sentence for] murder, as it is said, Thou shalt take him from Mine altar, that he may die,² how much more reasonable is it that the Sabbath which is superseded by the Temple service should be superseded by [a death sentence for] murder'. How, then, could it be said, 'Or it might rather [etc.]'?³ — He means this: The burial of a meth mizwah⁴ might prove [the contrary], since it supersedes the Temple service⁵ and does not nevertheless supersede the Sabbath.⁶ Then⁷ he argued: It might be inferred a minori ad majus that the burial of a meth mizwah should supersede the Sabbath, [thus]: If the Temple service which supersedes the Sabbath is superseded by the burial of a meth mizwah, by deduction from Or for his sister,⁸ how much more should the Sabbath which is superseded by the Temple service be superseded by the burial of a meth mizwah; hence it was explicitly stated, Ye shall kindle no fire.⁹ [etc].¹⁰

According to our previous assumption, however, that a positive precept supersedes a prohibition, what is meant by, 'Or it might rather [etc.]'?¹¹ — It is this that was meant: 'As regards the application of the text, Every one that profaneth it¹² shall surely be put to death,¹³ it might have been said to apply to the several kinds of labour other than the execution of a judicial death sentence, but that a judicial death sentence does supersede the Sabbath, for a positive precept¹⁴ supersedes the prohibition. Then¹⁵ he argued: It might be suggested that a positive precept supersedes a prohibition in the case of a mere prohibition only; has it, however, been heard to supersede a prohibition which involves kareth? Then he concluded: 'Even where¹⁶ a positive precept supersedes a prohibition, is not the prohibition of a more serious nature than the precept?'¹⁷ And yet the positive precept comes and supersedes the prohibited; on what grounds, then, should a distinction be made between a minor and a major prohibition?¹⁸ Hence it was explicitly stated, Ye shall kindle no fire⁹ [etc.].¹⁹

But²⁰ [this is the reason why a specific text] was needed:²¹ It might have been assumed that this [case of a] brother's wife should be regarded as a subject which was included in a general proposition²² and was subsequently singled out in order to predicate another law,²³ the predication of which is not intended to apply to itself alone but to the whole of the general proposition. For it was taught: 'A subject which was included in a general proposition and was subsequently singled out, etc. How [is this to be understood]? But the soul that eateth of the flesh of the sacrifice of peace-offerings [that pertain unto the Lord], having his uncleanness upon him;²⁴ were not peace-offerings included among the other holy things?²⁵ Why, then, were they subsequently singled out? In order that [the others] may be compared to them, and in order to tell you that as peace-offerings are distinguished by being consecrated objects of the altar so must also all other things²⁶ be consecrated objects of the altar, the objects consecrated for Temple repair only being excluded.'²⁷ Similarly here it might have been argued:²⁸ Since a brother's wife was included among all the other forbidden relatives, why was she singled out? In order that [the others] may be compared to her, and in order to tell you that as a brother's wife is permitted²⁹ so also are all the other forbidden relatives permitted.³⁰

Are these, however, similar? There³¹ both the general proposition³² and the particular specification²⁴ relate to a prohibition, but here³³ the general proposition relates to a prohibition while the particular specification relates to something which is permitted!³⁴ This, surely, is rather to be compared to an object that was included in a general proposition and was subsequently singled out in order to be made the subject of a fresh statement, which you cannot restore to the restrictions of the general proposition unless Scripture specifically restores it; for it was taught: Anything which was included in a general proposition and was subsequently excluded in order to be made the subject of a fresh statement, cannot be restored to the restrictions of the general proposition unless Scripture has explicitly restored it.³⁵ How³⁶ [may this principle be illustrated]? And he shall kill the he-lamb in the place where they kill the sin-offering and the burnt-offering in the place of the Sanctuary; for as the sin-offering is the priest's so is the guilt-offering.³⁷ Now since there was no need to state, 'As the sin-offering so is the guilt-offering.'³⁸ why did Scripture explicitly state. As the sin-offering so the guilt-offering? Because seeing that the guilt-offering of the leper was singled out³⁹ in order to impart a new law concerning the thumb of the right hand and the great toe of the right foot,⁴⁰ it might have been assumed that it required no application of blood to, and no burning of the prescribed portions of the sacrifice upon the altar;

 - (13) Ex. XXXI, 14.
 - (14) That the man worthy of death be put to death (v. Deut. XXI, 22).
 - (15) By saying again, 'Or it might rather', supra 6b.
 - (16) Cf. Bah, a.l.
 - (17) A transgression of the prohibition involves the serious penalty of flogging, while the non-performance of the precept is no punishable offence.
 - (18) As a positive precept supersedes an ordinary prohibition so it should also supersede one which involves kareth.
 - (19) V. supra note 3.
 - (20) Now that it is concluded that the need of the Scriptural text prohibiting the execution of a death sentence on Sabbath is because otherwise the permissibility thereof might have been argued a minori, and not on the ground of the principle that a positive command supersedes a prohibition, there is no proof available for the assumption that a positive precept supersedes a prohibition which involves kareth, and thus the original question again arises: What need was there for the specific text of Lev. XVIII, 18, 'aleha' (supra p. 8), to indicate the obvious? (i.e., that the positive precept of the levirate marriage does not supersede the prohibition of marrying a consanguineous relative).
 - (21) V. previous note.

 - (30) Cf. previous note. A text was consequently needed to intimate that the law was not so,

(31) The case of consecrated objects.

(32) Lev. XXII, 3.

(33) Levirate marriage and forbidden relatives.

(34) How, then, could the two be compared?

(35) Now, as the case of a brother's wife has not been restored to the general proposition, what need was there for the specific text of Lev. XVIII, 18?

(36) This is the continuation of the quotation.

(37) Lev. XIV, 13, dealing with the leper's guilt-offering.

(38) Since the place of killing was indicated at the beginning of the verse while the other regulations concerning this sacrifice are found in the laws of the guilt-offering in Lev. VII, 1ff.

(39) From the laws relating to other guilt-offerings.

(40) V. Lev. XIV, 14.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 7b

hence it was explicitly stated, 'As the sin-offering so is the guilt-offering': As the sin-offering¹ requires application of the blood to, and burning of the prescribed portions upon the altar, so does the guilt-offering also require application of the blood to, and burning of the prescribed portions upon the altar.² Had Scripture not restored it,³ however, it would have been assumed that it was singled out only in respect of what was explicitly specified but not in any other respect;⁴ so also here,⁵ I would assume, only a brother's wife who was explicitly mentioned [can be said] to be permitted⁶ but not any of the other forbidden relatives!⁷

But⁸ it might have been assumed that the law of a wife's sister⁹ should be deduced from what has been found in the case of a brother's wife; as a levir may marry his brother's wife so he may also marry his wife's sister.¹⁰

Are, however, the two cases¹¹ similar? In the one case¹² there is only one prohibition; in the other¹³ there are two prohibitions!¹⁴ — It might have been assumed that since she¹⁵ was permitted¹⁶ [in respect of one prohibition]¹⁷ she was also permitted [in the case of the other].¹⁸ And whence is it derived that we assume that 'since something was permitted [in one respect] it was also permitted [in the other]'? — From what was taught: In the case of a leper whose eighth day [of purification]¹⁹ fell on the Passover eve,²⁰ and who, having observed a discharge of semen on that day,²¹ had taken a ritual bath, the Sages said: Although no other tebul yom²² may enter [the Temple mount],²³ this one²⁴ may enter, for it is better that the positive precept,²⁵ the non-observance of which involves kareth, shall supersede a positive precept²⁶ the infringement of which involves no kareth.²⁷ And in connection with this R. Johanan said: According to the Torah, not even [the infringement of] a positive precept is involved,²⁸ for it is said, And Jehoshaphat stood in the congregation of Judah . . . before the new court.²⁹ What is meant by the new court? Rabbi³⁰ replied: That they enacted therein new laws, ordaining that a tebul yom³¹ must not enter the camp of the Levites.³² And 'Ulla said: 'What is the reason?'³³ Since he was given permission³⁴ in respect of his leprosy,³⁵ permission was also given to him in respect of his discharge of the semen.³⁶ But is this case³⁷ similar to that of 'Ulla?

(1) Of a leper.

(2) Zeb. 49a.

(3) The leper's guilt-offering and brought it into line with other guilt-offerings.

(4) Lit., 'to what it went out, it went out; and to what it did not go out, it did not go out'.

(5) The case of the levirate marriage.

(6) Lit., 'that was permitted is permitted'.

(7) The question consequently arises again: What need was there for 'aleha' in Lev. XVIII, 18. (Cf. supra p. 30, n. s).

(8) The reason why a superfluous text (v. previous note) was needed.

- (9) For this reading v. Bah.
- (10) Hence it was necessary to have the superfluous text, 'aleha' (v. supra n. 4) to shew that the law was not so.
- (11) Brother's wife and wife's sister.
- (12) Lit., 'there', a brother's wife.
- (13) Lit., 'here', a wife's sister.
- (14) The prohibitions to marry (a) a brother's wife and (b) a wife's sister. How then could the one be deduced from the other?
- (15) A brother's wife who is also one's wife's sister and whose husband died childless.
- (16) By the positive precept of the levirate marriage.
- (17) That of marrying a brother's wife.
- (18) The prohibition of marrying one's wife's sister. Hence etc. V. supra note 7.
- (19) On which he completes the days of his purification and brings the prescribed sacrifices, presenting himself (whither as a leper he was till that day forbidden to enter) on the Temple mount at the entrance to the Nikanor gate of the Sanctuary, from where he extends his thumb and great toe into the Sanctuary (whither he is not yet allowed to enter) for the priest to apply to them some of the sacrificial blood, v. Nazir, Sonc. ed. p. 165ff.
- (20) When the paschal lamb is sacrificed to be eaten in the evening.
- (21) Such a discharge ordinarily disqualifies a man from entering the Temple mount.
- (22) טבול יום one who has had his ritual bath and is awaiting nightfall for the completion of his purification.
- (23) Before nightfall.
- (24) The leper in the circumstances mentioned.
- (25) That of the paschal lamb.
- (26) That a leper like certain other unclean persons must be sent out from the Levitical camp in which the Temple mount is included.
- (27) If he were not allowed to enter the Temple mount his purification from leprosy could not have been completed (cf. supra p. 31, n. 16) and he would in consequence have been prevented from participating in the paschal lamb. By allowing him to enter he is enabled to complete his purification, while nightfall would also terminate the uncleanness due to the discharge, and thus he is in a position to participate in the evening in the paschal lamb which during the day is prepared for him by a deputy.
- (28) In allowing the leper in the conditions mentioned to enter the Temple court.
- (29) II Chron. XX, 5, referring to a day when Israel completed a period of purification.
- (30) This is the reading also in Zeb. 32b. Cur. edd. enclose in parentheses 'R. Johanan'.
- (31) V. Glos.
- (32) Which proves that the prohibition for a tebul yom to enter the Levitical camp was not of Pentateuchal origin, having been first enacted in the days of Jehoshaphat.
- (33) Why was a leper in the circumstances mentioned permitted to extend his hands into the Sanctuary whither an unclean person, according to 'Ulla, may not project even part of his body?
- (34) To project his hands into the Sanctuary.
- (35) Despite the prohibition for an unclean person, though the days of his purification have been duly observed, to enter the Sanctuary even partially, prior to the offering of the prescribed sacrifices.
- (36) Thus it is proved that since something was permitted in one respect the permission remains in force even when another prohibition may be involved in another respect. The same argument might have also applied to a wife's sister or widow of a deceased brother. Hence the need of the text, 'aleha'.
- (37) A brother's wife who is also one's wife's sister.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 8a

[The comparison] might well be justified where the deceased brother married [first]¹ and the surviving brother married [his brother's wife's sister] afterwards,² for, in this case, since the prohibition of brother's wife was removed,³ that of wife's sister⁴ is also removed; but where the surviving brother had married [first] and the deceased brother had married subsequently, the prohibition of wife's sister was Surely in force first!⁵ Furthermore, even where the deceased had married [first], [the comparison] would be justified in the case where the deceased had married and died, and the surviving brother had married afterwards so that [the widow] was eligible in the interval;⁶ where, however, the deceased had married, and before he died his wife's sister was married by his surviving brother, [his widow] was never for a moment eligible for his brother! Does not 'Ulla admit that if the leper observed semen on the night preceding the eighth day⁷ of his purification he must not project his hand into the Sanctuary on account of his thumb⁸ because at the time he was eligible to bring the sacrifice [of the cleansed leper]⁹ he was not free from uncleanness?¹⁰

But [this is really the explanation]: If 'aleha' was at all needed, [it was for such a case as] where the deceased brother had married [first] and died, and the surviving brother married [the widow's sister] subsequently.¹¹

If you prefer I can say [that the reason¹² is because] it¹³ might have been deduced by means of R. Jonah's analogy. For R. Jonah — others say, R. Huna son of R. Joshua — said: 'Scripture stated: For whosoever shall do any of these abominations shall be cut off,¹⁴ all forbidden relatives were compared to a brother's wife';¹⁵ [so in this case also it might have been said], as a brother's wife is permitted¹⁶ so also are all other forbidden relatives permitted; hence the All Merciful has written, 'aleha'.¹⁷

Said R. Aha of Difti¹⁸ to Rabina: Consider! All forbidden relatives¹⁹ might be compared to a brother's wife²⁰ and might equally be compared to a wife's sister,²¹ what reason do you see for comparing them to a wife's sister?²¹ Compare them rather to a brother's wife!²⁰ — If you wish I might say: When a comparison may be made for increasing as well as for decreasing restrictions, that for increasing restrictions must be preferred. If you prefer, however, I might say: In the former cases²² there are two prohibitions in the one as well as in the other,²³ and a double prohibition may justly be inferred from a double prohibition; in the latter case, however,²⁴ only one prohibition is involved,²⁵ and a double prohibition may not be inferred from a single one.

Raba said: [That] a forbidden relative herself²⁶ [may not contract the levirate marriage] requires no Scriptural text to prove it, since no positive precept can supersede a prohibition which involves kareth; if a Scriptural text was at all needed it was for the purpose of forbidding a rival.

And in the case of a forbidden relative is no Scriptural text required [to prohibit her levirate marriage]? Surely it was taught, 'Thus we are in a position to know the law concerning herself'!²⁷ — On account of her rival.²⁸ Was it not taught, however, 'Now we know the law concerning themselves'?²⁹ — On account of their rivals.³⁰

Come and hear: Rabbi said: [Instead of] and take, [Scripture stated], and take her,³¹ [and instead of] and perform the duty of a husband's brother [Scripture stated], and perform the duty of a husband's brother unto her,³¹ in order to prohibit³² [the levirate marriage of] forbidden relatives and their rivals!³³ — Read, 'To forbid [the levirate marriage of] the rivals of the forbidden relatives'. But two texts, surely, were mentioned;³⁴ was not one for the forbidden relative and the other for her rival? — No; both were for the rival, but one indicates prohibition³⁵ of a rival where the precept³⁵ is applicable, and the other indicates permission to marry the rival where the precept³⁵ is not applicable.³⁶ What is the reason? — [Because instead of] 'And perform the duty of a husband's brother' [Scripture stated] And perform the duty of a husband's brother UNTO HER, [which indicates that] only where levirate marriage is applicable is a rival forbidden³⁷ but where levirate marriage is not applicable³⁶ a rival is permitted.³⁷ R. Ashi said: [This³⁸ may] also be inferred from our Mishnah where it was stated, FIFTEEN [CATEGORIES OF] WOMEN EXEMPT THEIR RIVALS, but it was not stated, 'are exempt³⁹ and exempt [their rivals]'. This proves it.

In what respect does the case of a forbidden relative differ⁴⁰ that it should require no text?⁴¹ Obviously because no positive precept may supersede a prohibition which involves kareth. But then the case of a rival also should require no text,⁴¹ since no positive precept may supersede a prohibition which involves kareth!⁴² — Said R. Aha b. Bebai Mar to Rabina, Thus it has been stated in the name of Raba: In the case of a rival also no Scriptural text⁴¹ was needed; if a text was needed at all

- (1) His wife thus becoming a forbidden relative to his brother as 'brother's wife'.
 - (2) Thus adding to the one prohibition (v. previous note) the other of 'wife's sister'.
 - (3) By the precept of the levirate marriage, owing to the childlessness of the deceased.
 - (4) Since it was added subsequently.
 - (5) And could not consequently be removed by the removal of a prohibition which took effect subsequent to it.
 - (6) Between the death of her husband and the marriage of her sister by his surviving brother. This case would be analogous to that of the leper who was eligible to bring his sacrifices on the eighth day of his purification during the interval between the beginning of the day and the hour on that day he contracted a new uncleanness by his discharge.
 - (7) The night is reckoned as the beginning of the day following it.
 - (8) V. supra p. 31, n. 16.
 - (9) The eighth day of his purification.
 - (10) Owing to the discharge of the semen which occurred in the night. As a sacrifice must be brought in the day time only, there was not a single moment during which he was eligible to bring the sacrifices as being clean in all respects. The prohibition consequently remains in force. So also in the case of a wife's sister as regards the levirate marriage. The question, therefore, arises again, what need was there for the superfluous text of Lev. XVIII, 18. V. supra p. 30, n. 2.
 - (11) So that there was an interval during which he was permitted to marry the widow. V. p. 33. n. 11.
 - (12) Why the superfluous 'aleha' in Lev. XVIII, 18 was required.
 - (13) The law that forbidden relatives may be married in the case of a levirate marriage.
 - (14) Lev. XVIII, 29.
 - (15) Having been grouped together in this text.
 - (16) In the case of a levirate marriage.
 - (17) Lev. XVIII, 18; to intimate that they are not permitted.
 - (18) Dibtha, below the Tigris, S.W. of Babylon.
 - (19) That were enumerated in our Mishnah.
 - (20) And levirate marriage with all of them would thus be permitted.
 - (21) With whom the levirate marriage is forbidden by the text 'aleha' (v. supra).
 - (22) Lit., 'here', (a) in that of a wife's sister and (b) all the other forbidden relatives (other than a brother's wife).
 - (23) Lit., 'and here two prohibitions', (a) forbidden relatives and (b) brother's wife.
 - (24) Lit., 'but here,' a brother's wife who is not a consanguineous relative.
 - (25) That of a brother's wife.
 - (26) So Bah.
 - (27) I.e., the forbidden relative, supra 3b.
 - (28) Whose case had to be proved, it was necessary to begin with this introduction.
 - (29) I.e., the forbidden relatives.
 - (30) Cf. supra n. 3.
 - (31) Deut. XXV, 5.
 - (32) By the use of 'her' and 'unto her' which implies 'but no other'.
 - (33) Which shews that a Scriptural text is required, even in the case of forbidden relatives themselves, to prove that levirate marriage is prohibited.
 - (34) Lit., 'he took.'
 - (35) Of the levirate marriage.
 - (36) As, for instance, in the case of a rival of a forbidden relative who married a stranger, v. infra 13a.
 - (37) To be married by the man to whom the relative herself is forbidden.
 - (38) Raba's statement that the prohibition to contract levirate marriage with a forbidden relative is so obvious that no Scriptural text is required to prove it.
 - (39) Which shews that the exemption of the forbidden relatives themselves from the levirate marriage (i.e., the prohibition ever to marry them) was taken in our Mishnah for granted.

(40) From the case of her rival.

(41) To prove its prohibition even in the case of the levirate marriage.

(42) Kareth being the penalty in both cases.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 8b

it was for the purpose of permitting a rival where the precept¹ is not applicable. What is the reason?² — Scripture stated, ‘aleha’,³ to indicate that only in the case of ‘unto her’⁴ is she⁵ forbidden,⁶ where the other, however, may not, she is permitted.

Said Rami b. Hama to Raba: Might it not be suggested⁷ that the forbidden relative⁸ herself is permitted⁹ where the precept¹⁰ is not applicable? — Is not [such an argument contrary to the principle of inference] a minori ad majus? Being forbidden where the precept¹⁰ is applicable, would she be permitted where the precept is not applicable? — [‘The case of a] rival’, the first replied, ‘could prove it, since she is forbidden⁹ where the precept¹⁰ is applicable, and is permitted⁹ where the precept¹⁰ is not applicable’. ‘It is for your sake,’ the other replied, ‘that Scripture states, In her life-time,¹¹ so long as she¹² lives’.¹³ But is not the expression,¹⁴ In her life-time,¹¹ required for the exclusion [of the prohibition of marriage] after her¹² death?¹⁵ — This is deduced from the text, And a woman to her sister.¹¹ If [the deduction were only] from the text. ‘And a woman to her sister’,¹¹ it might have been said that if she¹⁶ was divorced the sister would be permitted, hence it was expressly stated, ‘In her life-time.’¹¹ So long as she¹⁶ is alive, even though she has been divorced, [her sister must] not [be married].¹⁷ — But, said R. Huna b. Tahlifa in the name of Raba, two Scriptural texts are available; it is written, Thou shalt not take a woman to her sister, to be a rival to her¹⁸ [implying two],¹⁹ and it is also written, To uncover her nakedness,²⁰ which implies that only one is forbidden; how then [are the two texts to be reconciled]? Where the precept²¹ is applicable both are forbidden;²² where the precept²¹ is not applicable she²³ is forbidden but her rival is permitted. Might not the deduction be reversed: Where the precept²¹ is applicable she²³ is forbidden but her rival is permitted, but where the precept is not applicable both are forbidden!²² — If so, ‘aleha’ should not have been stated.²⁴

Said R. Ashi to R. Kahana: Whence is it derived that the expression ‘aleha²⁵ indicates prohibition? Is it not possible that it implies permission, and that it is this that the All Merciful meant to imply: Thou shalt not take a woman to her sister, to be a rival to her,²⁵ neither herself nor her rival where ‘unto her’²⁶ is not applicable,²⁷ but where ‘unto her’²⁶ is applicable²⁸ both are permitted!²⁹ — If so, how could the ‘uncovering of the nakedness’ of one³⁰ be possible? If in the case where the precept³¹ is applicable, both are permitted;³² and if where the precept is not applicable both are forbidden!³³

[Reverting to] the [above] text, Rabbi said: Instead of And take, Scripture stated, ‘And take her’ and instead of ‘And perform the duty of a husband's brother’, Scripture stated, ‘And perform the duty of a husband's brother unto her’, in order to prohibit [the levirate marriage of] forbidden relatives and their rivals. Are, then, rivals mentioned here at all? And, furthermore, the law of rivals has been derived from the expression To be her rival!³⁴ — The expression To be her rival is employed by Rabbi for R. Simeon's deduction.³⁵ Where,³⁶ however, is the rival mentioned?³⁷ — What he meant is this: If so,³⁸ Scripture should have stated, And take; why then did it state, ‘And he shall take her’?³⁹ To indicate that wherever there are two to be taken,⁴⁰ he⁴¹ having the choice of marrying whichever he prefers⁴² both are permitted,⁴³ but if not,⁴⁴ both are forbidden; And perform the duty of a husband's brother unto her,⁴⁵ indicates that where levirate marriage is applicable there is the rival forbidden, where, however, levirate marriage is not applicable the rival is permitted.

As to the Rabbis,⁴⁶ to what do they apply the verse ‘And he shall take her’? — They require it for the deduction of R. Jose b. Hanina. For R. Jose b. Hanina said: ‘And he shall take her’⁴⁵ teaches that he⁴⁷ may divorce her with a letter of divorce⁴⁸ and that he may remarry her;⁴⁹ And he shall perform the duty of a husband's brother unto her, even against her will.⁵⁰ And Rabbi?⁵¹ — The law of R. Jose b. Hanina is deduced from To a wife,⁴⁵ and that the marriage may take place against her will is deduced from Her husband's brother shall go in unto her.⁴⁵

What does Rabbi do with [the expression], ‘aleha’? — He requires it [for another deduction], as we learnt: The Beth din⁵² are under no obligation⁵³ unless [they ruled] concerning a prohibition the punishment for which is kareth, if the transgression was wilful, and a sin-offering if the transgression was unwitting; and so it is with the anointed High priest.

- (1) Of the levirate marriage.
 - (2) I.e., how is the permissibility deduced?
 - (3) Lev. XVIII, 18.
 - (4) Lit., ‘in the place of עליה with reference to the verse ‘Her husband's brother shall go in unto her’ (v. supra p. 8, n. 9) i.e., where the command of levirate marriage would otherwise apply.
 - (5) The rival.
 - (6) To be married, cf. supra p. 35, n. 12.
 - (7) On the lines of the argument just advanced.
 - (8) I.e., the wife's sister.
 - (9) To be married.
 - (10) Of the levirate marriage.
 - (11) Lev. XVIII, 18.
 - (12) One's wife.
 - (13) Her sister must not be married. (Other forbidden relatives, as has been shewn supra, are deduced from one's wife's sister).
 - (14) Lit., ‘that’.
 - (15) I.e., that the prohibition of a wife's sister which on the present assumption is limited to cases where the precept of levirate marriage is applicable, applies only during the lifetime of one's wife.
 - (16) The wife.
 - (17) But it can still be maintained that where no levirate marriage is applicable, there is no prohibition of marrying the wife's sister.
 - (18) Lev. XVIII, 18.
 - (19) I.e., that both the wife's sister and her rival are forbidden to be married. (This, as will be shewn infra, is deduced from the expression li-zeror.)
 - (20) Lev. XVIII, 18, emphasis on her (sing.).
 - (21) Of the levirate marriage.
 - (22) To be married.
 - (23) The forbidden relative herself.
 - (24) Since even without this additional phrase the two contradictory texts would have been naturally reconciled by applying the former (prohibition of both) to a case where the precept of the levirate marriage is inapplicable, and the latter (permission of the rival) to a case where it is applicable. The addition of the phrase must consequently have been intended to impart a new law, viz. that a rival is forbidden, like the forbidden relative herself, where the precept of the levirate marriage is applicable.
 - (25) Lev. XVIII, 18.
 - (26) V. supra p. 8, n. 9.

 - (30) V. Lev. XVIII, 18, implying, as explained supra, the prohibition of one only.
 - (31) Of the levirate marriage.
 - (32) So that there are two, not only one.

- (33) And there is none.
- (34) Heb. li-zeror (Lev. XVIII, 18), supra 3b. How then could it be said to be derived from a different text?
- (35) V. infra 28b.
- (36) V. Emden a.l. Cur. edd. read 'here'.
- (37) In Deut. XXV, 5, the text cited by Rabbi. Clearly, it was not mentioned at all; how then could Rabbi derive from the text a law concerning a subject of which no mention was made?
- (38) That the text refers to the forbidden relative only and not to a rival.
- (39) Deut. XXV, 5.
- (40) Lit., 'takings', i.e., when the deceased childless brother is survived by two widows, and the levir has to decide which of them to marry.
- (41) The levir.
- (42) I.e., when neither of the two is a forbidden relative.
- (43) The emphasis on 'her' in And take her implies that there is a choice between two, and the phrase 'and take her' is taken to imply that the levir is in a position to choose whichever he pleases, since either of them must be capable of having the phrase 'and take her' applied to her.
- (44) If one cannot be married by him on account of her being his forbidden relative.
- (45) Deut. XXV, 5.
- (46) Who made the deduction from li-zeror.
- (47) The levir.
- (48) After he married her; and she requires no halizah.
- (49) Though the precept of the levirate marriage has been fulfilled and she might have been assumed to be forbidden to him as a brother's wife. The text is interpreted as follows: And he takes her to him to wife, as soon as he has taken her, she is regarded henceforth in all respects as his wife, i.e., as if she had never been forbidden to him as a brother's wife.
- (50) Emphasis on 'unto her' (v. Tosaf).
- (51) Whence does he derive the law deduced by R. Jose b. Hanina?
- (52) Who are guilty of an erroneous ruling.
- (53) To bring the sacrifice prescribed in Lev. IV, 13ff.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 9a

Nor [are they liable] in respect of idolatry unless [they ruled] concerning a matter the punishment for which is kareth, if it was committed wilfully and a sin-offering if committed unwittingly;¹ and we also learnt: [For the unwitting transgression of any] commandment in the Torah the penalty for which, if committed wilfully, is kareth and, if committed unwittingly a sin-offering, the private individual brings a sin-offering of a lamb or a she-goat; the ruler brings a goat; and the anointed High Priest and the Beth din bring a bullock. In the case of idolatry the individual and the ruler and the anointed High Priest bring a she-goat while the Beth din² bring a bullock and a goat, the bullock for a burnt-offering and the goat for a sin-offering. Whence is this deduced? From the following. For our Rabbis taught: When the sin wherein they have sinned is known:³ Rabbi said, here⁴ we read 'aleha⁵ and further on⁶ we also read 'aleha;⁷ as further on⁶ the prohibition involves the penalty of kareth if the transgression was wilful and that of a sin-offering if it was unwitting, so here⁸ also, [the ruling must be concerning] a prohibition which involves the penalty of kareth if the transgression was wilful and that of a sin-offering if it was unwitting.⁹

Proof has thus been adduced for the case of the congregation; whence for that of the anointed High Priest? — It is written in relation to the High Priest, So as to bring guilt upon the people;¹⁰ this shews that the anointed High Priest is like the congregation. And for an individual and a ruler? — The inference is made by a comparison of Things¹¹ with Things.¹² 'Nor [are they liable] in respect of idolatry unless [their ruling] concerned a matter the punishment for which is kareth if it was committed wilfully, and a sin-offering if committed unwittingly'. As regards the congregation in the matter of idolatry, deduction¹³ is made by comparison between From the eyes¹⁴ and From the eyes.¹⁵ [The law¹⁶ of] a private individual, a ruler and an anointed High Priest [is deduced] from, And if one soul¹⁷ which implies that there is no distinction between a private individual, a ruler and an anointed High Priest, while the waw¹⁸ connects them with the previous subject,¹⁹ and consequently the latter²⁰ may be deduced from the former.²¹

Whence, however, do the Rabbis²² arrive at this inference?²³ — They deduce it from the Biblical interpretation which R. Joshua b. Levi taught to his son: Ye shall have one law for him that doeth aught in error. But the soul that doeth aught with a high hand etc.,²⁴ all the Torah is compared to the prohibition of idolatry;²⁵ as in regard to idolatry [obligation is incurred only where] the offence involves the punishment of kareth²⁶ when it was committed wilfully and a sin-offering²⁷ when committed unwittingly, so also in the case of any other transgression [it must be such] as involves kareth when committed wilfully and a sin-offering when committed unwittingly.

Proof has thus been found for the case of a private individual, a ruler and an anointed High Priest²⁸ both in regard to idolatry and the rest of the commandments; whence, however, [is it proved that the same law applies also to] the congregation in the case of idolatry? — Scripture said, And if one soul,²⁹ and the former³⁰ may be deduced from the latter.³¹ Whence, however, [is it deduced that the same law applies to] the congregation in the case of the other commandments? — Deduction is made by comparison between ‘From the eyes’ and ‘From the eyes’.³²

And what does Rabbi do with the text of One law?³³ — He applies it to the following.³⁴ Whereas we find that Scripture made distinction between individuals and a group,³⁵ individuals being punished by stoning and their money, therefore, being spared, while a group are punished by the sword and their money is consequently destroyed, one might also assume that a distinction should be made in respect of their sacrifices; hence it was explicitly stated, Ye shall have one law.³³

R. Hilkiah of Hagronia³⁶ demurred: Is the reason³⁷ because the All Merciful has written, Ye shall have one law,³³ so that had it not so been written it might have been thought that a distinction should be made [in respect of their sacrifices]? What, however, could they bring! Should they bring a bullock? The congregation,³⁸ surely, brings a bullock for the transgression of any one of all the other commandments!³⁹ [Should they bring] a lamb? An individual, surely, brings a lamb if he transgressed any of the other commandments!⁴⁰ A he-goat? A ruler brings one in the case of transgression of any of the other commandments!⁴⁰ A bullock for a burnt-offering and a goat for a sin-offering? Such, surely, are brought by the congregation in the case of idolatry!⁴⁰ Should they, then, bring a she-goat? This, surely, is also the sin-offering of a private individual!⁴¹ — [The text]⁴² was required, because it might have been suggested that whereas the congregation, in the case of an erroneous ruling, brings a bullock for a burnt-offering and a he-goat for a sin-offering, these⁴³ should also bring the same sacrifices, but] in the reverse order;⁴⁴ or [it might have been assumed to be] necessary⁴⁵ but that there was no remedy;⁴⁶ hence it was necessary to teach us.⁴⁷

Said Levi to Rabbi: What ground is there for stating⁴⁸ FIFTEEN? Sixteen should have been stated! — The other replied: It seems to me that this man has no brains in his head. ‘Do you mean’, he continued, ‘a man's mother who had been outraged by his father?’⁴⁹ The case of a man's mother who has been outraged by his father is a matter in dispute between R. Judah and the Rabbis,⁵⁰ and the author of our Mishnah does not deal with any controversial matter’. But does he not? Surely, the prohibition due to a Rabbinical ordinance and the prohibition due to the levir's sanctity,⁵¹ concerning which R. Akiba and the Rabbis are in dispute,⁵² are mentioned! — We mean, in our chapter. But, surely it was taught,⁵³ ‘Beth Shammai permit rivals to the other brothers and Beth Hillel prohibit them’!⁵⁴ — The view of Beth Shammai where it is in contradiction to that of Beth Hillel is of no consequence.⁵⁵ concerning which R. Simeon and the Rabbis are in dispute,¹ and which is nevertheless mentioned? — R. Simeon does not dispute the case where the birth² was first, and the levirate marriage³ later.⁴ Did not R. Oshaia, however, say¹ that R. Simeon disputed the first case also?⁵ — Surely. R. Oshaia's view was refuted.

Did not, however, Rab Judah state in the name of Rab, and R. Hiyya also taught: In the case of all these⁶ it may happen that she who is forbidden to one brother may be permitted to the other¹ while she who is forbidden to the other brother may be permitted to the one, and that her sister who is her sister-in-law may be subject either to halizah or to the levirate marriage.⁷ And Rab Judah interpreted [it⁸ as referring to those]⁹ from one's MOTHER-IN-LAW onwards but not to the first six categories. What is the reason? Because in the case of a daughter this¹⁰ is possible only [with one born] from a woman who had been outraged but not [with one born] from a legal marriage,¹¹ [and the author of our Mishnah] deals only with cases of legal matrimony and not with those of outraged women.¹² And Abaye interpreted it⁸ [as referring] also to a daughter from a woman who had been outraged, because, since [the application of Rab's statement] is quite possible in her case, it matters not whether she was born from a woman who was legally married or from one that had been outraged; but not to the wife of a brother who was not his contemporary. What is the reason? Because [the application of Rab's statement in this case] is possible only according to the view of R. Simeon and not according to that of the Rabbis, [the author of our Mishnah] does not deal with any matter which is in dispute. And R. Safra interprets it¹³ as referring also to the wife of a brother who was not his contemporary, and [in his opinion] it¹³ is possible in the case of six brothers in accordance with the view of R. Simeon.¹⁴

(4) In such a case, R. Simeon agrees that the third brother must not marry the widow, because at the time when he was born the widow was forbidden to him as 'the wife of his brother who was not his contemporary'. R. Simeon's disagreement with the Rabbis is limited to the case where the first brother, A, died childless and his widow was married to the second brother, B, prior to the birth of the third brother, C. If subsequently B died also childless, R. Simeon, contrary to the opinion of the Rabbis, allows the levirate marriage between the widow and C, because when C was born the widow was already the wife of B, and C's levirate marriage now is not due to A whose widow was a married woman when he was born, but to B whose contemporary he is.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 10a

And your mnemonic is, 'Died, born, and performed the levirate marriage; died, born, and performed the levirate marriage'!¹ — Rabbi² does not accept these rules.³

R. Adda Karhina stated before R. Kahana in the name of Raba: Rabbi, in fact, does accept these rules,⁴ but it was this that he meant to say to [Levi]:⁵ [The application of the statement⁴ to] a woman outraged by one's father is possible only in one [of its parts]; it is impossible, however, to apply it in [both its parts], for if Jacob outraged his two sisters,⁶ it is possible [to apply that part of the statement relating to] 'her sister who is her sister-in-law',⁷ but not that of 'she who is forbidden to one brother may be permitted to the other';⁸ and if he outraged two strangers,⁹ it is possible [to apply the statement], 'she who is forbidden to one brother may be permitted to the other'¹⁰ but not that of 'her sister who is her sister-in-law'.¹¹

R. Ashi said: Rabbi, in fact, does not accept these rules¹² and [our Mishnah] does deal with matters in dispute, and as to the meaning¹³ of 'It seems to me that this man has no brains in his head' which he¹⁴ addressed to him,¹⁵ what he meant was this: 'Why did you not carefully consider our Mishnah? For our Mishnah represents the view of R. Judah who forbids the marriage of a woman that was outraged by one's father,¹⁶ as it was taught: Six forbidden relatives come under greater restrictions,¹⁷ since they are to be married to strangers only,¹⁸ and their rivals are permitted.¹⁹ [These are:] his mother, his father's wife and his father's sister [etc.].²⁰ Now, what is meant by "his mother"? If it be assumed to mean one who was legally married to his father, such a woman surely is "his father's wife".²¹ Must it not consequently mean one who was outraged by his father? And yet it was stated, "since they are to be married to strangers only", implying "to strangers only but not to the brothers". Now, who has been heard to hold such an opinion? Surely it was R. Judah who forbids marriage with a woman who was outraged by one's father.²² Hence²³ it was not included in our Mishnah.'²⁴

Said Rabina to R. Ashi: [Such a levirate relationship]²⁵ is possible even according to R. Judah if and when one had married²⁶ illegally!²⁷ — The author of the Mishnah is not concerned with an 'if'.²⁸ Said R. Ashi to R. Kahana: This²⁹ is also possible without the 'if',³⁰ where Jacob³¹ outraged his daughter-in-law, begat from her a son, and then Reuben³² died without issue, and she thus came into levirate relationship with her son;³³ and since she is forbidden to him,³⁴ her rival also is likewise forbidden!³⁵ — The other replied: [The author of our Mishnah] deals only with lawful brotherhood but not with brotherhood which is due to a forbidden act.

Levi nevertheless³⁶ inserted it³⁷ in his Mishnah. For Levi taught: One's mother sometimes exempts her rival³⁸ and sometimes she does not exempt her. If his mother, for instance,³⁹ was lawfully married to his father, and then she was married⁴⁰ to his paternal brother⁴¹ who subsequently died, such a mother does not exempt her rival.⁴²

- (1) Now, since in the case of 'the wife of a brother who was not his contemporary' the application of Rab's statement is only possible according to the view of R. Simeon but not according to that of the Rabbis, and since the statement is based on our Mishnah, it is obvious that our Mishnah deals also with a case which is in dispute.
- (2) Cf. Bah. Cur. edd. insert, 'but'.
- (3) Of Rab and R. Hiyya. Our Mishnah consequently deals only with that case in which R. Simeon and the Rabbis are in agreement. (V. supra 9b top).
- (4) Of Rab and R. Hiyya, supra 9b.
- (5) Whom he addressed supra 9a.
- (6) And after one of them had given birth to a child, C, and the other to one, D, the first was married by A and the second by B, two of Jacob's sons from another wife.
- (7) For should A and B die childless their wives who are sisters as well as sisters-in-law come under the law of the levirate marriage in relation to C and D the brothers of A and B.
- (8) Both being forbidden to C as well as to D. The mother of C is forbidden to C as mother and to D as mother's sister, and the mother of D is similarly forbidden to D and C.
- (9) Cf. n.8.
- (10) Since the women are strangers and the restrictions mentioned in note 10 do not apply.
- (11) The women being sisters-in-law only but not sisters. Thus it has been shewn that the statement could not be applied in its entirety to the case of an outraged woman. Hence it was excluded from the enumeration in our Mishnah.
- (12) Of Rab and Hiyya.
- (13) Lit., 'and what'.
- (14) Rabbi.
- (15) Levi, supra 9a.
- (16) Hence it is impossible for a mother, whether legally married or outraged, ever to come into levirate relationship with her son. (Cf. supra p. 45, n. 8.)
- (17) Than those relating to the fifteen enumerated in our Mishnah.
- (18) No paternal brother of the person concerned may ever marry them.
- (19) To marry the brother of their deceased husband who had been married to their rival (one of the six relatives) illegally (Maimonides). If the marriage was with a stranger the permissibility of marriage is obvious since the laws of rivals apply only to a brother's widow.
- (20) Infra 13a.
- (21) Who was specifically mentioned.
- (22) So that it is impossible for one ever to be subject to levirate marriage with his brother's wife whose legitimate or illegitimate son he is.

- (24) Lit., 'he did not teach it'.
- (25) Cf. supra p. 46, n. 13.
- (26) The woman his father had outraged and who is also the mother of his brother.
- (27) Infra 78a. In such a case it is surely possible for a mother to come into the levirate relationship with her son.
- (28) Lit., 'when if he does not teach', i.e., he is not concerned with a levirate relationship that may arise out of a possible and unlikely breach of the law.
- (29) Levirate relationship with a mother. Cf. supra p. 46, n. 13.
- (30) I.e., even if the deceased brothers did not transgress the law.
- (31) The father of the deceased.
- (32) Her husband, Jacob's son.
- (33) Lit., 'and she fell before her son', who is the paternal brother of her deceased husband, Reuben.
- (34) As his mother.
- (35) Why then was not this case included in our Mishnah?
- (36) Despite Rabbi's abusive reply, supra 9a.
- (37) בדקתה lit., 'examined it', i.e., revised our Mishnah and added the case under discussion. [Levi drew up a collection of teachings like those of R. Hiyya and R. Oshaia, v. B.B., Sonc. ed. p. 216].
- (38) From halizah and the levirate marriage.

(39) Lit., 'how so?'.

(40) Unlawfully.

(41) Which is a marriage forbidden under the penalty of kareth and is, therefore, illegal and invalid.

(42) The marriage having been invalid, the woman is not regarded as his brother's wife.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 10b

If his mother, however, was a woman that had been outraged by his father and was then married to his paternal brother who subsequently died, such a mother does exempt her rival.¹ And though the Sages taught in our Mishnah FIFTEEN we must add a case like this as a sixteenth.

Resh Lakish said to R. Johanan: According to Levi who maintains that an 'if'² is also included,³ let our Mishnah also include⁴ the case of a levir who gave halizah to his sister-in-law⁵ and later betrothed⁶ her and died without issue, for since [the widow of such a one] is forbidden,⁷ her rival also is forbidden!⁸ — The other replied: Because in this case the law of the rival of the rival⁹ cannot be applied.¹⁰ But could he¹¹ not have answered¹² him¹³ [that the brothers] are only subject to the penalties of a negative precept,¹⁴ and that those who are subject to the penalties of a negative precept are¹⁵ under the obligations of halizah and the levirate marriage?¹⁶ — He¹⁷ answered him¹⁸ in accordance with the view he¹⁸ holds. 'According to my view,' he¹⁹ argued, [the brothers] are only subject to the penalties of a negative precept,²⁰ and those who are subject to the penalties of a negative precept are²¹ under the obligations of halizah and the levirate marriage,²² but even according to your view that they are subject to the penalty of kareth [the case could not have been included in our Mishnah] because the law of the rival's rival cannot be applied'.²³

It has been stated: Where [a levir] had performed the ceremonial of halizah with his sister-in-law, and then betrothed her, Resh Lakish holds that he is not subject to the penalty of kareth for the haluzah,²⁴ but the other brothers are subject to kareth for the haluzah.²⁵ In the case of the rival,²⁶ both he²⁷ and the other brothers are subject to kareth for a rival.²⁸ R. Johanan, however, holds that neither he²⁷ nor the other brothers are subject to kareth either for the haluzah or for her rival.²⁹ What is the reason of Resh Lakish? — Scripture stated, That doth not build,³⁰ since he has not built he must never again build.³¹ He himself is thus placed under the prohibition of building no more,³² but his brothers remain in the same position in which they were before.³³ Furthermore, the prohibition to build no more applies only to herself,³⁴ her rival, however, remains under the same prohibition as before.³³ And R. Johanan?³⁵ — Is it inconceivable³⁶ that at first halizah should be allowed to be performed by any one of the brothers³⁷ and with either of the widows of the deceased brother³⁸ and that now one or other of these persons should³⁹ be involved in kareth!⁴⁰ But [in point of fact] he⁴¹ merely acts as agent for the brothers while she⁴² acts as agent for her rival.⁴³

R. Johanan pointed out to Resh Lakish the following objection: 'If a levir who submitted to halizah from his sister-in-law, later betrothed her and died,⁴⁴ [the widow] requires halizah from the surviving brothers'. Now, according to me who maintains that [the surviving brothers]⁴⁵ are subject to the penalties of a negative precept only, one can well understand why she requires halizah from the other brothers.⁴⁶ According to you, however, why should she require halizah?⁴⁷ — Explain, then, on the lines of your reasoning, the final clause, 'If one of the brothers⁴⁸ actually⁴⁹ betrothed her, she has no claim upon him'!⁵⁰ R. Shesheth replied: The final clause represents the opinion of R. Akiba who holds that a betrothal with those who are subject thereby to the penalties of a negative precept is of no validity.⁵¹ Should it not then have been stated, 'according to the view of R. Akiba she⁵² has no claim upon him'!⁵³

(1) Since her marriage with the deceased brother was not unlawful, her rival (any other wife of her husband) is subject to the same laws as any other rival in the case of the fifteen relatives of our Mishnah.

(2) Cf. p. 47, n. 4, supra.

- (3) By R. Judah who, as has been shewn supra, is the author of our Mishnah. Though he prohibits the marriage of a woman that was outraged by one's father, he nevertheless, according to Levi's recital, included the case in our Mishnah.
- (4) Lit., 'teach'.
- (5) Whom he is in consequence forbidden to marry.
- (6) Since the marriage in such a case is forbidden under a negative precept the transgression of which does not involve the penalty of kareth, the betrothal is legally valid.
- (7) To the brothers of the levir who gave the halizah: this prohibition, according to Resh Lakish infra involving the penalty of kareth.
- (8) To the brothers. Why then was not this case also added to the fifteen?
- (9) V. our Mishnah.
- (10) Her rival (as well as herself), being forbidden to all the other brothers (as brother's wife or as the haluzah of one of the brothers), can never have any of the wives of the brothers as her rival. In the case of the forbidden relatives in our Mishnah, they are forbidden to one of the brothers only, hence they or their rivals are not otherwise precluded from marrying one of the other brothers.
- (11) R. Johanan.
- (12) Lit., 'and he should say'.
- (13) Resh Lakish.
- (14) If they married the haluzah, their deceased brother's widow, with whom halizah had been performed by one of them. According to R. Johanan, infra, contrary to the view of Resh Lakish, no penalty of kareth is involved in such a marriage, whether the transgressor be the brother who performed the halizah or any of the other brothers.
- (15) Unlike those subject to the penalty of kareth who are exempt from halizah and from the levirate marriage.
- (16) I.e., though the marriage with them is forbidden by a negative precept, they remain nevertheless under the obligations of the levirate relationship and must, therefore, undergo the ceremonial of halizah. Why, then, did not R. Johanan give Resh Lakish this reply which would well account for the omission from our Mishnah of the case he mentioned?
- (17) R. Johanan.
- (18) Resh Lakish.
- (19) R. Johanan.
- (20) V. p. 48, n. 13.
- (21) V. p. 48, n. 14.
- (22) Cf. previous note.
- (23) Cf. supra p. 48, n. 9.
- (24) V. Glos. I.e., for having intercourse with her. Consequently the betrothal is valid.
- (25) Consequently should any of the other brothers betroth the haluzah, the betrothal is invalid.
- (26) Of a haluzah (v. previous note). A rival is exempt from halizah and the levirate marriage by the action of the haluzah.
- (27) The levir who participated in the halizah.
- (28) V. infra 53a.
- (29) Infra 40b and l.c.
- (30) Deut. XXV, 9.
- (31) The imperfect יבנה may be rendered as a present as well as a future.
- (32) I.e., under a negative precept only which involves no kareth.
- (33) I.e., under the prohibition to marry a brother's wife, which involves the penalty of kareth.
- (34) The haluzah.
- (35) What reason does he advance for his opinions?
- (36) Lit., 'is there (such) a thing'?
- (37) Lit., 'if he prefers, this one participates in the halizah and if he prefers etc.'
- (38) Lit., 'and if he prefers he performs the halizah with that one and if he prefers etc'.
- (39) In case of a betrothal.
- (40) Though the others are not.
- (41) The brother who participated in the halizah.
- (42) The widow who performed the halizah ceremonial.

(43) Hence all the brothers as well as all the rivals are in this respect in exactly the same position. As the brother and the widow who between them carried out the halizah ceremonial are in a case of subsequent marriage exempt from kareth and are subject only to the penalties of a negative precept, so also are all the others on whose behalf they acted.

(44) Without issue.

(45) In subsequently marrying the haluzah.

(46) Since the negative precept which bars them from the levirate marriage does not supersede halizah.

(47) Marriage with them would involve the penalty of kareth, and whenever such a penalty is involved the parties are not subject to the laws of halizah!

(48) Other than the one who participated in the halizah.

(49) Lit., 'stood'.

(50) I.e., the betrothal is invalid, she receives no kethubah, and no divorce is needed. This obviously proves that the penalty for such an ensuing marriage is kareth, as Resh Lakish maintains; for had it been, as R. Johanan asserts, that of a negative precept only, the betrothal should have been valid.

(51) Keth. 29b, Kid. 64a, 68a, Sot. 18b, infra 52b, 69a.

(52) So Bah, a.l. Cur. edd., 'he'.

(53) Since it is the general opinion that such a betrothal is valid.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 11a

— This is rather a difficulty.

R. Ashi holds the same opinion as Resh Lakish¹ and explains it² in accordance with the ruling of R. Simeon.³ Rabina holds the same opinion as R. Johanan⁴ and explains it⁵ in accordance with the ruling of the Rabbis.⁶ 'R. Ashi holds the same opinion as Resh Lakish and explains it in accordance with the ruling of R. Simeon', thus: If [a levir] who submitted to halizah from his sister-in-law had subsequently betrothed her, she⁷ requires halizah from the brothers. Who are these brothers? Those born [subsequently].⁸ According to whose view? According to that of R. Simeon.⁹ If one of the previously born¹⁰ brothers, however, betrothed her, she has no claim upon him.¹¹ According to whose view? According to that of Resh Lakish.¹¹

'Rabina holds the same opinion as R. Johanan and explains it in accordance with the ruling of the Rabbis', thus: If [a levir] who submitted to halizah from his sister-in-law had subsequently betrothed her, she requires halizah from the brothers. Who are these brothers? Those born [prior to the halizah]. According to whom? According to R. Johanan.¹² If one of the subsequently¹³ born brothers, however, betrothed her, she has no claim upon him. According to whose view? According to that of the Rabbis.¹⁴

It has been stated: In the case where [the levir] had intercourse with his sister-in-law¹⁵ and one of the other brothers had intercourse with her rival, there is a difference of opinion between R. Aha and Rabina. One said: [It involves¹⁶ a transgression subject] to kareth and the other said: [The transgression] of a positive precept.¹⁷ He who said, '[A transgression subject] to kareth' follows Resh Lakish;¹⁸ and he who said, '[The transgression] of a positive precept' follows R. Johanan.¹⁹

Rab Judah said in the name of Rab: The rival of a sotah²⁰ is for bidden.²¹ What is the reason?²² — Because uncleanness is ascribed to her²³ as to the cases of incest.²⁴ R. Hisda raised an objection:²⁵ R. Simeon²⁶ said, the intercourse²⁷ or halizah of the brother of the first husband exempts her rival!²⁸ — Rab can answer you, 'I speak of a sotah that is Biblically forbidden,²⁹ and you talk of a sotah that is only Rabbinically forbidden'.³⁰

But as to him who raised this objection, what did he imagine?³¹ — He thought that Rabbinical provisions were given the same force as Biblical laws.³²

R. Ashi raised an objection: If she³³ entered with the man into a private place and remained with him for a period sufficient for the consummation of defilement, she is forbidden to her house,³⁴ she may not eat of terumah,³⁵ and if he died she must undergo the ceremony of halizah

- (1) That any brother, other than the one who submitted to the halizah, who married the widow after she had performed the halizah is subject to the penalty of kareth (v. supra 10b).
 - (2) The first clause of the statement cited in the discussion between R. Johanan and Resh Lakish, according to which halizah is required.
 - (3) Who maintains that a brother born after the levirate marriage of his elder brother is not subject, in relation to the deceased brother, to the restriction of a 'brother who was not his contemporary'. The first clause then, which requires halizah, may consequently refer to brothers born after both the halizah and the betrothal had taken place. The widow of the levir not being forbidden to them on account of her first deceased husband, is subject to halizah on account of the second. (The final clause which clearly agrees with the view of Resh Lakish requires of course no explanation).
 - (4) Who maintains that the brother who performed the halizah as well as all the other brothers are forbidden to marry the widow subsequent to the halizah, not under the penalty of kareth but under that of a negative precept. Hence the ruling in the first clause that halizah is required.
 - (5) The final clause. (Cf. n. 2 supra).
 - (6) Who hold that even a brother born after the levirate marriage (v. n. 3 supra) is subject to the restrictions of 'a brother who was not his contemporary'. The final clause may accordingly refer to such brothers to whom the widow is forbidden for this reason (not on account of the halizah that had been performed) and the marriage or betrothal with whom is consequently invalid. (The first clause obviously is in agreement with R. Johanan).
 - (7) In the case where the levir who betrothed her also died without issue.
 - (8) After the halizah and the betrothal. Having been born after the halizah they have never been subject to the levirate relationship on account of the first deceased brother and the halizah of the levir had, therefore, imposed no restrictions upon them in relation to the widow.
 - (9) V. supra n. 3. Hence it is the duty of one of these brothers to submit to halizah which is incumbent upon them as brothers of the levir who also died without issue.
 - (10) Prior to the performance of the halizah.
 - (11) Since according to Resh Lakish the performance of the halizah by one of the brothers had caused the prohibition of the widow upon all other contemporary brothers under the penalty of kareth, such a betrothal is invalid.
 - (12) V. supra p. 51, n. 4.
 - (13) After the performance of the halizah.
 - (14) V. supra p. 51, n. 6.
 - (15) The widow of his deceased childless brother.
 - (16) For the other brother.
 - (17) The precept is to perform one levirate marriage but not more than one, a transgression to which no penalty is attached.
 - (18) In whose view (supra 10b) the levir who marries, or participates in halizah with the widow, does not act as the agent of the other brothers. Hence, despite the fact that in the levir's own case the prohibition to marry the rival is regarded as having the force of a positive precept, in that of the other brothers the original prohibition to marry a brother's wife remains in force and marriage with her involves, therefore, the penalty of kareth.
 - (19) Who regards the levir as the agent of the brothers (supra 10b). Hence they are subject to the same prohibition. As in the levir's own case so in that of the other brothers the levirate obligations supersede the prohibition of marrying a brother's wife, and with it the original penalty of kareth.
 - (20) סוטה, a married woman suspected of adultery, who is subject to the ordeal prescribed in Num. V, 12ff. V. Glos.
 - (21) To the levir; in the case where there are witnesses that the sotah had committed the crime and her husband subsequently died childless. The rival and certainly the sotah herself are in such a case exempt from both the levirate marriage and the halizah.
 - (22) So Bah. Cur. edd. omit.
 - (23) She being defiled. Num. V, 13.
 - (24) Defile ye not yourselves. Lev. XVIII, 24. As the rival in the latter case is forbidden, so is she in the former.
 - (25) The following refers to a case where a woman married a second husband on the basis of a report by one witness that her first husband had died in a foreign country. If later it was discovered that her first husband was alive, she must be divorced by both. If both died childless prior to the divorce she requires halizah from a brother of each but may not, according to the Rabbis, marry either of them.

(26) Disagreeing with the Rabbis in one point.

(27) Her second marriage having been entered into through an innocent error, no penalty is incurred by her as far as her relationship with the levir from the first marriage is concerned. Hence, in the opinion of R. Simeon, either marriage or halizah is permitted, v. infra 87a.

(28) From this it follows that the rival of a married woman who had intercourse with another husband is permitted to the levir both according to R. Simeon and according to the Rabbis (the latter having only disputed the case of the married woman herself). Why, then, did Rab state that the rival of a sotah is forbidden?

(29) A woman that was faithless to her husband. (Num. V, 12ff).

(30) The woman who married a second husband under an honest misapprehension. Biblically she is permitted to live again with her husband since her second marriage was entered into on the basis of a report by a witness, on the strength of which she was by Biblical law fully permitted to contract the marriage.

(31) He must surely have known that the one was Biblical and the other only Rabbinical! וְדָקְאָרִי לָהּ מֵאֵי קָאָרִי rt. אָרִי or אָרָא (cf. Gr. ) ‘to speak’, ‘enquire’, ‘argue’.

(32) Lit., ‘all that the Rabbis provided, like that of the Torah they provided’.

(33) A woman suspected by her husband who warned her not to seclude herself with a certain man.

(34) I.e., to her husband.

(35) V. Glos.; in the case where the husband is a priest.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 11b

though she may not marry the levir!¹ — Rab can answer you. ‘I speak of a definite sotah, and you speak of a doubtful one’. But why should a definite sotah be different? Obviously because in relation to her the expression of ‘uncleanness’ is used;² is not, however, the expression of ‘uncleanness’ also used in relation to a doubtful sotah! For it was taught: R. Jose b. Kipper said in the name of R. Eleazar, The remarriage by a husband of his divorced wife is forbidden after marriage³ and permitted after betrothal,⁴ because it is stated in the Scriptures. After that she is defiled.⁵ The Sages, however, say, the one as well as the other⁶ is forbidden,⁷ and the expression⁸ ‘After that she is defiled’ implies the inclusion of a sotah who secluded herself with a man!⁹ — The underlying meaning of ‘secluded herself’ is ‘sexual intercourse’. Why then did he say ‘secluded herself’? — In order to employ a euphemism.¹⁰ But in relation to sexual intercourse, [surely,] uncleanness was actually mentioned in the Scriptures. She being defiled secretly!¹¹ — To subject the offence¹² to a negative precept.¹³ And R. Jose b. Kipper?¹⁴ — He does not hold the view that a negative precept is applicable to a sotah, even in the case where she had actually committed adultery. What is the reason? — [Because in reference to the remarriage of a divorced wife] Scripture uses the expression of¹⁵ becoming¹⁶ as well as that of matrimony.¹⁷

Rab Judah inquired of R. Shesheth: What is the law in regard to the rival of a woman whom her former husband remarried after her second marriage and died?¹⁸ According to the view of R. Jose b. Kipper the question does not arise. For R. Jose b. Kipper having stated that ‘uncleanness’ is mentioned in the case of him who remarried his divorced wife, it follows that her rival is subject to the very same restrictions. And if [objection be raised] from the Scriptural text, She is an abomination,¹⁹ [it may be replied that the implication is] that she is an abomination and not her children,²⁰ her rival, however, being an abomination. The question, however, arises on the view of the Rabbis: Does the Scriptural text,²¹ despite the fact that the Rabbis had applied the expression ‘uncleanness’ to the sotah, also bear its ordinary meaning,²² or since it²³ was once torn away [from its ordinary meaning] it must in all respects so remain?²⁴ Others say: According to the Rabbis no question arises, for since the text has once been torn away [from its ordinary meaning] it must in all respects so remain. The question, however, arises according to the view of R. Jose b. Kipper: What is the law? [Is it assumed that] although R. Jose b. Kipper stated that the expression of ‘uncleanness’ refers to the remarriage of a divorced wife, the All Merciful has written 'She is an abomination' to indicate that 'she' is an abomination but not her rival,²⁵ or is the implication, perhaps, that 'she' is an abomination, but her children are not; a rival, however, being an abomination?²⁶ — The other replied: You have learnt it, 'If one of them²⁷ was a permitted wife and the other a forbidden one; if he²⁸ submit to halizah he must submit to that of the forbidden one;²⁹ and if he marries he marries the permitted one.'²⁹ Now what is meant by 'permitted' and 'forbidden'? If it be suggested that 'permitted' means permitted for all the world,³⁰ and 'forbidden' means forbidden for all the world,³¹ what practical difference, in view of the fact that she is in either case suitable for him,³² could this make to him? Consequently 'permitted' must mean permitted to him, and 'forbidden', forbidden to him; and this may happen where³³ he³⁴ remarried his divorced wife;³⁵ and yet it was taught, 'and if he marries he marries the permitted one'!³⁶ — No; 'permitted' may still mean permitted to all the world³⁰ and 'forbidden', forbidden for all the world;³¹ and as to your question, 'what practical difference, in view of the fact that she is in either case suitable for him, could this make', one must take into account the moral lesson³⁷ of R. Joseph. For R. Joseph stated: Here³⁸ Rabbi taught that a man shall not pour the water out of his cistern so long as others may require it.³⁹

Come and hear: 'Where a man remarried his divorced wife after she had been married,⁴⁰ she and her rival are to perform the halizah.' Is it possible to say 'she and her rival'?⁴¹ Consequently it must mean, 'Either she or her rival.'⁴² Did you not, however, have recourse to an interpretation?⁴³ [You might as well] interpret thus: She is to perform halizah, while her rival may either perform halizah or be married by the levir.

R. Hiyya b. Abba said: R. Johanan inquired as to what is the law⁴⁴ in regard to a rival of a divorced woman whom her former husband remarried after her second marriage. Said R. Ammi to him: Enquire rather regarding herself!⁴⁵ — Concerning herself I have no question since her case may be inferred a minori ad majus: If she is forbidden to him⁴⁶ to whom she was originally⁴⁷ permitted, how much more so to the man⁴⁸ to whom she was originally⁴⁷ forbidden!⁴⁹ The question, however, remains concerning her rival: Is the inference a minori ad majus strong enough to exclude a rival⁵⁰ or not?

R. Nahman b. Isaac taught as follows: R. Hiyya b. Abba said, R. Johanan enquired as to what is the law⁴⁴ in regard to a divorced woman whom her husband remarried after her second marriage. Said R. Ammi to him: Enquire rather regarding her rival! — Concerning her rival I have no question, for an inference a *minori ad majus*⁵¹ is not strong enough to exclude a rival;⁵⁰ the question, however, remains regarding herself. Is the inference a minori ad majus strong enough [to be acted upon] where a precept⁵² is involved or not?

(1) If the sotah herself must go through the ceremony of halizah, much more so her rival; how then could Rab state that the rival of a sotah (and much more so the sotah herself, v. supra p. 53, n. 1) is exempt from halizah?

(2) Num. V, 13.

(3) With a second husband who subsequently died or divorced her.

(4) Where no marriage with the second man took place, and he died.

(5) Deut. XXIV, 4, referring, in the opinion of R. Eleazar, to a divorced woman who had married a second husband.

(6) Married or betrothed.

(7) This is deduced by the Sages from And goeth and becometh another man's wife (Deut. XXIV, 2) which, they maintain, implies betrothal as well as marriage.

(8) Lit., 'but what do I establish'.

(9) That the husband must not take her back. This clearly shews that the expression of 'uncleanness' was also used concerning a doubtful sotah.

(10) Lit., 'he took a nice (or superior) expression'.

(11) Num. V, 13; what need, then, was there for the implication of the text of Deut. XXIV, 4?

(12) Of remarrying a sotah.

- (13) Lit., 'to cause to stand concerning it in a negative (prohibition)'; the negative can only be derived from Deut. XXIV, 4: May not take her again to be his wife.
- (14) Who applies the entire text to the remarriage of a divorced wife, whence does he derive the law concerning the sotah?
- (15) Lit., 'it is written concerning it'.
- (16) Deut. XXIV, 2, And she departeth out of his house, and goeth and becometh (ותיתה) another man's wife.
- (17) Ibid., Or if the latter husband (האיש) die, implying that the divorced woman's connection with the second man must be that of 'husband and wife', i.e., lawful matrimony. In the case of the sotah the intercourse was unlawful and cannot come, therefore, under the prohibition of Deut. XXIV, 4.
- (18) Is the rival subject to the levirate marriage and halizah?
- (19) Deut. XXIV, 4, dealing with a woman remarried after divorce. The text She is an abomination. תועבה היא might be taken to imply that the designation, and consequently the restrictions, refer to the woman only (היא= she) and not to her rival.
- (20) I.e., the exclusion of היא may refer not to her rival but to her children who, unlike their mother who is regarded as an 'abomination', may marry into priestly families.
- (21) Describing the woman (or the act of remarrying the first husband after divorce and second marriage) as 'uncleanness'.
- (22) I.e., its bearing on the woman remarried (v. previous note), with whose case the text in its ordinary meaning is concerned, and consequently on her rival also.
- (23) The expression of uncleanness.
- (24) Lit., 'that it was uprooted it was uprooted', i.e., since it was removed from its context and applied to the sotah, it can never be re-applied to its original case. Hence a rival would not come under the same restrictions as the sotah herself.
- (25) To whom, consequently, the restrictions would not apply.
- (26) And consequently subject to the same restrictions as the woman herself.
- (27) Two widows of a brother who died without issue.
- (28) The levir.
- (29) Infra 44a, and thereby liberates also the other widow, her rival.
- (30) I.e., even to priests.
- (31) In case she was once, e.g., a divorced woman and is thus forbidden to marry a priest.
- (32) He being an ordinary Israelite.
- (33) Lit., 'and what is it'.
- (34) The deceased brother.
- (35) In which case the woman who was remarried is forbidden to the levir as she was forbidden to his deceased brother who had married her unlawfully, while her rival, having been lawfully married, is permitted to the levir.
- (36) Which clearly shews that the rival of a woman remarried by her former husband is subject to the levirate marriage.
- (37) Lit., 'because of'.
- (38) In the Mishnah cited where it is stated that halizah is to be performed with the forbidden one.
- (39) A man should not destroy anything which may be of use to others though it is of no use to him. In the case under discussion, the levir submits to halizah from the forbidden one and thus liberates the permitted one to marry even a priest to whom she would have been forbidden had the halizah been performed by her.
- (40) To a second husband who divorced her or died.
- (41) Halizah surely is performed by one of the widows only!
- (42) Which supplies an answer to the enquiry addressed by Rab Judah to R. Shesheth.
- (43) 'He and her rival' was interpreted as 'Either etc.'
- (44) In respect of the levirate marriage.
- (45) The remarried woman.
- (46) Her first husband.
- (47) Before she married her second husband.
- (48) The levir.
- (49) As brother's wife.
- (50) From the levirate marriage.
- (51) V. previous paragraph.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 12a

— The other replied,¹ You have learned it: If one of them was a permitted wife and the other a forbidden one; if she submits to halizah he must submit to that of the forbidden one; and if he marries, he marries the permitted one. Now, what is meant by 'permitted' and 'forbidden'? If it be suggested that 'permitted' means permitted to all the world and 'forbidden' means forbidden to all the world, what practical difference, in view of the fact that she is in either case suitable for him, could this make to him? Consequently 'permitted' must mean permitted to him, and 'forbidden', forbidden to him; and this may happen where he remarries his divorced wife; and yet it was taught. 'If he marries he marries the permitted one'!² — No; 'permitted' may still mean permitted to all the world, and 'forbidden', forbidden to all the world; and as to your question. 'What practical difference, in view of the fact that she is in either case suitable for him, could this make'? One must take into account the moral lesson of R. Joseph. For R. Joseph said: Here, Rabbi taught that a man shall not pour the water out of his cistern so long as others may require it.³

Come and hear: 'Where a man remarried his divorced wife after she had been married, she and her rival are to perform halizah.' Is it possible to say 'she and her rival'? Consequently it must mean, 'either she or her rival.'⁴ Did you not, however, have recourse to an interpretation? [You might as well] interpret thus: She is to perform halizah, while her rival may either perform halizah or be married by the levir.

R. Levi b. Memel said in the name of Mar 'Ukba in the name of Samuel: The rival of a mema'eneth⁵ is forbidden. To whom [is she forbidden]? If it be suggested, to the brothers,⁶ [it may be retorted], now that she herself⁷ is permitted,⁸ for Samuel said, 'If she refused one brother she is permitted to marry the other',⁹ is there any question that her rival is permitted!⁸ Hence [it means] to himself.¹⁰ Wherein, however, does the mema'eneth¹¹ differ¹² that she is in consequence permitted to the other brothers? Obviously, in that she had taken no action in relation to them;¹³ but her rival also had taken no action in relation to them!¹⁴ — It is an enactment made to prevent marriage with the rival of one's daughter¹⁵ who was a mema'eneth.¹⁶

Is, however, the rival of one's daughter who is a mema'eneth forbidden? Surely we learned, IF, HOWEVER, ANY AMONG THESE DIED, OR MADE A DECLARATION OF REFUSAL, OR WERE DIVORCED¹⁷ [etc.] THEIR RIVALS ARE PERMITTED. Now, against whom was the declaration of refusal made? If it be suggested that she refused the husband, then this case is identical with that of a divorced woman.¹⁸ Consequently it must refer to refusal of the levir!¹⁹ — No; it may, in fact, refer to the refusal of a husband, but there are two kinds of divorce.²⁰

Wherein, however, does the refusal of a husband differ?²¹ Obviously in that she thereby annuls the original marriage; but when she refused the levir she has also annulled the original marriage! — [It differs] in respect of what Rami b. Ezekiel had learnt. For Rami b. Ezekiel learnt: If she²² declared her refusal against the husband she is permitted to marry his father;²³ if against the levir, she is forbidden to his father.²⁴ From this it clearly follows that from the moment she becomes subject to the levirate marriage²⁵ she is looked upon as his²⁶ daughter-in-law; similarly here also²⁷ she is looked upon as the rival of his daughter from the moment she²⁸ becomes subject to the levirate marriage.

Said R. Assi: The rival of a woman incapable of procreation is forbidden,²⁹ for it is said in the Scriptures, And it shall be that the firstborn that she beareth,³⁰ which excludes a woman incapable of procreation, since she does not bear.³¹ R. Shesheth raised an objection: In the case where three brothers were married to three women who were strangers to one another, and one of them having died, the second brother addressed to her³² a ma'amar³³ and died, behold these³⁴ must perform the halizah but may not marry the levir; for it is said, And one of them die [etc.] her husband's brother shall go in unto her,³⁵ only she³⁶ who is tied to one levir³⁷ but not she who is tied to two levirs;³⁸ and concerning this it was taught: R. Joseph said, 'This is the rival of a paternal brother's wife whose prohibition³⁹ is due to her double subjection to the levirate marriage,⁴⁰ a case the like of which we do not find through out the Torah'.⁴¹ Now, what does the expression 'This is' exclude? Does it not exclude the rival of a woman incapable of procreation, who is permitted!⁴² — No; it excludes the rival of a woman incapable of procreation who is forbidden. What, then, is meant by the expression, 'This is'?⁴³ — It is that in this case, where the subjection to the levirate marriage has caused the prohibition, her rival requires halizah; in the case, however, of a woman incapable of procreation even halizah is not required. What is the reason? — The prohibition of the one⁴⁴ is Pentateuchal;⁴⁵ that of the other only Rabbinical.⁴⁶

We learnt; IF, HOWEVER, ANY AMONG THESE DIED, OR MADE A DECLARATION OF REFUSAL, OR WERE DIVORCED, OR WERE FOUND INCAPABLE OF PROCREATION, THEIR RIVALS ARE PERMITTED!⁴⁷ — This is no difficulty; the one⁴⁸ is a case where he⁴⁹ knew her defect⁵⁰ while the other⁵¹ is a case where⁵² he did not know of it.⁵³ The inference from our Mishnah also proves this; for it was stated WERE FOUND⁵⁴ and not 'were'. This proves it.

- (51) Our Mishnah.
- (52) The husband now deceased.
- (53) At the time he married her. Since her defect was unknown to him the marriage which had taken place under a misapprehension is invalid. The woman, therefore, is not his lawful wife, and her rival cannot be regarded as a legal rival. Hence the statement in our Mishnah that such a rival is permitted.
- (54) Implying discovery after the event, i.e., after the marriage.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 12b

The law is that the rival of a woman incapable of procreation is permitted, even though he¹ knew her defect,² and even the rival of one's own daughter who was incapable of procreation [is permitted].³ But what about the expression WERE FOUND⁴ in our Mishnah? — Read, 'were'.

When Rabin came⁵ he stated in the name of R. Johanan: The rival of a mema'eneth,⁶ the rival of a woman incapable of procreation, as well as the rival of a divorced woman who had been remarried to her former husband,⁷ are all permitted.

R. Bebai recited before R. Nahman: Three [categories of] women may⁸ use an absorbent⁹ in their marital intercourse:¹⁰ A minor, a pregnant woman and a nursing woman. The minor,¹¹ because [otherwise] she might¹² become pregnant, and as a result¹³ might die. A pregnant woman,¹¹ because [otherwise] she might¹² cause her foetus to degenerate into a sandal.¹³ A nursing woman,¹¹ because [otherwise] she might¹² have to wean her child prematurely¹⁴ and this would result in his death. And what is the age of such a minor?¹⁵ From the age of eleven years and one day until the age of twelve years and one day. One who is under,¹⁶ or over this age¹⁷ must carry on her marital intercourse in the usual manner. This is the opinion of R. Meir. The Sages, however, say: The one as well as the other carries on her marital intercourse in the usual manner, and mercy will be vouchsafed from heaven,¹⁸ for it is said in the Scriptures. The Lord preserveth the simple.¹⁹

Since it has been stated, 'because she might become pregnant and as a result might die' it may be implied that it is possible for²⁰ a minor to be pregnant and not die. But, if so, one could imagine a case where²¹ a mother-in-law should be in a position to make a declaration of refusal,²² whereas we learned, ONE CANNOT SAY OF A MAN'S MOTHER-IN-LAW, THE MOTHER OF HIS MOTHER-IN-LAW AND THE MOTHER OF HIS FATHER-IN-LAW THAT THEY WERE FOUND INCAPABLE OF PROCREATION OR THAT THEY MADE A DECLARATION OF REFUSAL! — Read, 'because she might become pregnant and die';²³ for Rabbah b. Liwai said: She²⁴ is subject to an age limitation. Prior to that period²⁵ she does not conceive at all; during that period²⁵ she dies and her embryo dies; after that period²⁵ both she and her embryo survive. But is it really so? Surely, Rabbah b. Samuel recited: One cannot say of a man's mother-in-law, the mother of his mother-in-law and the mother of his father-in-law that they were found incapable of procreation or that they made a declaration of refusal, since they have already given birth to children!²⁶ — But [the reading], in fact, is, 'because she might become pregnant and as a result might die'. But, [then, the previously mentioned] difficulty remains!²⁷ — R. Safra replied: Children are like marks of puberty.²⁸ Others Say: Children are more conclusive proof than the marks of puberty. What practical difference is there between the two statements? — [It is this: That] even he who follows R. Judah who stated, '[a girl may exercise the right of refusal] until the black²⁹ predominates'³⁰ admits in the case of children.³¹

(1) The deceased brother, at the time when he married.

(2) And nevertheless consented to the marriage, which is consequently valid, and the woman is his lawful wife.

(3) The rival of a forbidden relative is forbidden only where the latter would have been subject to the precept of the levirate marriage if she had been no relative. In the case of a wife incapable of procreation, however, since she is not subject to the levirate marriage even where she is no relative at all, her rival even where she (the wife) is a forbidden relative, is regarded as the rival of one in relation to whom the precept of levirate marriage is not applicable at all. Cf. הלכות גדולות quoted by Rashi.

(4) V. p. 61, n. 14.

(5) From Palestine to Babylon.

(6) V. Glos. s.v. mi'un. In this case it refers to one who refused the levir (V. Rashi a.l.).

(7) After she had been married by a second husband who divorced her or died.

(8) [So Rashi. R. Tam: Should use, v. Tosaf s.v. שש.]

(9) מוך, hackled wool or flax.

(10) To prevent conception.

(11) May use the absorbent.

(12) Lit., 'perhaps'.

(13) סנדל lit., 'a flat fish', i.e., a flat, fish-shaped abortion due to superfetation.

(14) Owing to her second conception.

(15) Who is capable of conception but exposed thereby to the danger of death.

(16) When no conception is possible.

(17) When pregnancy involves no fatal consequences.

(18) To save her from danger.

(19) Ps. CXVI, 6; those who are unable to protect themselves.

(20) Lit., 'there is'.

(21) Lit., 'we found'.

(22) In the case, for instance, where the minor gave birth to a child in her twelfth year and that child was betrothed before the year was over. The minor who thus becomes a mother-in-law is entitled to make a declaration of refusal before, and until she enters her thirteenth year.

(23) I.e., while conception is a matter of doubt, death is a certainty whenever conception happened to take place.

(24) A minor.

(25) The age of eleven years and one day to the age of twelve and one day.

(26) Rabbah does not state, 'since they already grew up' but 'gave birth', which proves that even a minor (not yet grown up) is capable of bearing living children.

(27) From here it appears that a minor can bear children while from our Mishnah it follows that she cannot.

(28) As soon, therefore, as she gave birth to a child the minor is assumed to have passed out of the age of minority into that of puberty. Hence it is impossible for a mother, whatever her age, ever to make a declaration of refusal to which a minor only is entitled.

(29) I.e., the pubic hair.

(30) The growth of two hairs which the Rabbis regard as a definite mark of puberty not being considered by R. Judah as conclusive proof. Keth. 36a, B.B. 156a, Nid. 52a.

(31) That they provide definite proof of puberty irrespective of the state of the hair.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 13a

R. Zebid, however, stated: No children are possible prior to the appearance of the marks of puberty.¹ Then let an examination be held!² — There is the possibility that they might have fallen off.³ This reply is perfectly satisfactory according to him who holds that such a possibility is taken into consideration,⁴ what, however, can be said according to him who holds that no such contingency need be considered? — Even according to him who holds that no such contingency need be considered, the possibility must be taken into consideration in this case on account of the pains of birth.⁵

HOW IS THE EXEMPTION OF THEIR RIVALS [BY THE WOMEN MENTIONED] TO BE UNDERSTOOD? Etc. Whence is this law⁶ deduced? — Rab Judah replied: [From] Scripture which stated, li-zeror,⁷ [implying that] the Torah included many rivals.⁸ R. Ashi replied. 'It⁹ is arrived at by reasoning: Why is a rival forbidden? Surely because she takes the place of the forbidden relative; the rival's rival also takes the place of the forbidden relative'.

HOW [IS ONE TO UNDERSTAND THE STATEMENT THAT] IF THEY HAD DIED etc. Even if he¹⁰ married¹¹ first and then divorced?¹² This, then, would be contradictory [to the following Mishnah]: '[The case of] three brothers two of whom were married to two sisters and the third was married to a stranger, and one of the husbands of the sisters divorced his wife while the one who married the stranger died, and he who had divorced his wife then married the widow¹³ and died, is one concerning which it has been said, that if they died or were divorced, their rivals are permitted'.¹⁴ The reason, then,¹⁵ is because the divorce¹⁶ took place first and the marriage¹⁷ was subsequent to it, but had the marriage¹⁷ taken place first and the divorce¹⁶ after it, [the rival would] not [have been permitted]!¹⁸ — R. Jeremiah replied: Break it up!¹⁹ He who taught the one did not teach the other. The one Tanna²⁰ is of the opinion that it is the death²¹ which subjects the widow to the levirate marriage²² while the other²³ holds the opinion that it is the original marriage that subjects her to the levirate marriage.²⁴ Raba said: [Both statements] may, in fact, represent the views of [one Tanna,] it²⁵ being a case of 'this; and there is no need to state that'.²⁶

WHOSOEVER IS ENTITLED TO MAKE A DECLARATION OF REFUSAL [etc.]. Then let her²⁷ declare her refusal now²⁸ and thus enable [her rival] to be married to the levir!²⁹ May it then³⁰ be suggested that this supports R. Oshaiah? For R. Oshaiah said: She³¹ may annul [the levir's] *ma'amar*³² by her declaration of refusal,³³ but may not sever by such a declaration the levirate bond!³⁴ — No;³⁵ the case of the rival of a forbidden relative is different;³⁶ for Rami b. Ezekiel learnt: If a minor made a declaration of refusal against her husband she is permitted to marry his father.³⁷ If, however, she made her declaration of refusal against the levir³⁸ she is forbidden to marry his father.³⁹ From this it clearly follows that from the moment she becomes subject to the levirate marriage⁴⁰ she is looked upon as his⁴¹ daughter-in-law; similarly here also⁴² she is looked upon as the rival of his daughter from the moment she becomes subject to the levirate marriage.⁴³ MISHNAH. [IN THE CASE OF THE FOLLOWING] SIX RELATIVES, MARRIAGE WITH WHOM IS MORE RESTRICTED THAN WITH THESE,⁴⁴ IN THAT THEY MAY ONLY BE MARRIED TO STRANGERS,⁴⁵ MARRIAGE WITH THEIR RIVALS IS PERMITTED:⁴⁶ HIS MOTHER.⁴⁷ HIS FATHER'S WIFE,⁴⁸ HIS FATHER'S SISTER,⁴⁸ HIS PATERNAL SISTER.⁴⁸ HIS FATHER'S BROTHER'S WIFE⁴⁸ AND HIS PATERNAL BROTHER'S WIFE.⁴⁸

BETH SHAMMAI PERMIT THE RIVALS⁴⁹ TO THE SURVIVING BROTHERS, AND BETH HILLEL PROHIBIT THEM.

(1) Should an apparent minor, whatever her age, ever give birth to a child it must be taken for granted that the marks of puberty had already appeared, and the age of minority had passed.

(2) Why should the existence of the marks be left to conjecture when an examination would definitely determine the facts?

(3) And the examination would prove nothing.

(4) This is a question in dispute in Nid. 46a.

(5) Which may have caused the falling off of the hair.

(6) Lit., 'these words'. That a rival's rival is also exempt.

(7) Lev. XVIII, 18, to be a rival. V. supra 3b.

(8) For explanation, v. p. 12, n. 8.

(9) The exemption of a rival's rival.

(10) The brother now deceased.

(11) The rival.

(12) His first wife, the forbidden relative. In such a case, is the rival, though the two were rivals prior to the divorce, permitted to the levir wherever the forbidden relative was dead or divorced at the time their husband died and the question of the levirate marriage arose?

(13) Lit., 'her',

(14) Infra 30a.

(15) Why the rival in this case is permitted.

(16) Of one of the sisters.

(17) Of the widow.

(18) How, then, could this be reconciled with our Mishnah from which it has been inferred that 'even if he married first and then divorced' the rival is permitted?

(19) תרבא, rt. תבר, Heb. שבר 'break', 'divide'.

(20) Of our Mishnah.

(21) Of the husband.

(22) And if at that time the women were no longer rivals it matters little whether marriage or divorce (cf. supra nn. 5 and 4) took place first.

(23) The Tanna of the Mishnah cited from 30a infra.

(24) Consequently, if the marriage of the second took place after the divorce of the first, levirate marriage is permitted since the two have never been real rivals. If, however, the marriage preceded the divorce, even if only by a fraction of time, the two have become rivals, and the rival of a forbidden relative is forbidden for ever, even after the rivalry had ceased.

(25) The statements and arrangement of our Mishnah and that cited from 30a infra

(26) זו ואין צריך לומר זו, one of the systems adopted in arranging legal statements. Our Mishnah permits 'this', the case of the rival whose marriage preceded the divorce of the forbidden relative, and consequently 'there is no need to state that', the case (infra 30a) of a rival whose marriage followed the divorce of the forbidden relative. (Cf. supra n. 12).

(27) The forbidden relative who is still a minor.

- (28) And thus annul the original marriage.
- (29) Since as a result of the annulment of the marriage the other would no more be the rival of a forbidden relative.
- (30) As such a declaration is not allowed.
- (31) A minor.
- (32) V. Glos. Since the actual marriage had not yet taken place.
- (33) She has only to perform the halizah; but there is no need for a divorce which would have been required had she been of age (v. infra 50b).
- (34) I.e., she has no power to annul the original marriage in order to be exempt thereby from halizah also. Similarly here (v. note 4) the declaration of the minor has no force to annul the original marriage and thus (v. supra note 3) to enable her rival to marry the levir.
- (35) The inference from our Mishnah provides no support for R. Oshaia.
- (36) The prohibition of a minor's declaration in this case is not Biblical, but a Rabbinical enactment made in order to prevent laxity in the law of rivals of forbidden relatives (cf. infra n. 17).
- (37) The refusal having completely annulled the marriage, the minor and her former father-in-law are now mere strangers.
- (38) I.e., after the death of her husband, when she became subject to the levirate marriage of his brother.
- (39) Her former father-in-law who is also the father of the levir whom she refused.
- (40) Lit., 'falling'.
- (41) The levir's father's.
- (42) The case of a rival of one's daughter.
- (43) Had the original marriage been allowed to be annulled by the daughter's present declaration, and had her rival in consequence been permitted to marry the minor's father, any rival of one's daughter might similarly be allowed and thus an important restriction against incest would be broken down. (V. supra n. 10 and cf. text and notes, supra 12a).
- (44) The fifteen enumerated in the previous Mishnah, supra 2af.
- (45) But never to one's paternal brothers.
- (46) Though they themselves ate forbidden. Their husbands having been strangers, the law prohibiting the marriage of rivals, which is only applicable in connection with the levirate marriage, does not apply. Should one's brother unlawfully marry one of these six relatives his marriage would be regarded as null and void and the law relating to the rivals would still be inapplicable. (Cf. Maimonides, Commentary on the Mishnah a.l.).
- (47) Who is also forbidden to his paternal brother as 'his father's wife'.
- (48) Who obviously stands in the same relationship to his paternal brother.
- (49) In respect of the levirate marriage.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 13b

IF THEY¹ PERFORM THE HALIZAH,² BETH SHAMMAI DECLARE THEM INELIGIBLE TO MARRY A PRIEST,³ AND BETH HILLEL DECLARE THEM TO BE ELIGIBLE.⁴ IF THEY WERE MARRIED TO THE LEVIRS, BETH SHAMMAI DECLARE THEM ELIGIBLE [TO MARRY A PRIEST],⁵ AND BETH HILLEL DECLARE THEM INELIGIBLE.⁶ THOUGH THESE FORBODE WHAT THE OTHERS PERMITTED, AND THESE REGARDED AS INELIGIBLE WHAT THE OTHERS DECLARED ELIGIBLE, BETH SHAMMAI, NEVERTHELESS, DID NOT REFRAIN FROM MARRYING WOMEN FROM [THE FAMILIES OF] BETH HILLEL, NOR DID BETH HILLEL [REFRAIN FROM MARRYING WOMEN] FROM [THE FAMILIES OF] BETH SHAMMAI. [SIMILARLY, IN RESPECT OF] ALL [QUESTIONS OF RITUAL] CLEANNES AND UNCLEANNES, WHICH THESE DECLARED CLEAN WHERE THE OTHERS DECLARED UNCLEAN, NEITHER OF THEM ABSTAINED FROM USING THE UTENSILS OF THE OTHERS FOR THE PREPARATION OF FOOD THAT WAS RITUALLY CLEAN.⁷

GEMARA. R. Simeon b. Pazzi said: What is Beth Shammai's reason?⁸ — Because it is written, The outside⁹ wife of the dead shall not be married unto one not of his kin;¹⁰ 'outside'¹¹ implies that there is also an internal,¹² and the All Merciful said, She shall not marry [unto one not of his kin].¹³

And Beth Hillel?¹⁴ — They require the text for the exposition which Rab Judah reported in the name of Rab. For Rab Judah stated in the name of Rab: Whence is it deduced that betrothal [by a stranger] is of no validity in the case of a sister-in-law?¹⁵ For it is said in the Scriptures, The wife of the dead shall not be married¹⁶ outside¹⁷ unto one not of his kin;¹⁸ there shall be no validity in any marriage of a stranger with her.¹⁹ And Beth Shammai? — Is it written ‘la-huz’?²⁰ Surely ‘huzah’²¹ was written. And Beth Hillel? — Since the expression used was huzah²² it is just the same as if la-huz had been written; as it was taught: R. Nehemiah said, ‘In the case of every word which requires a ‘lamed’ at the beginning²³ Scripture has placed a ‘he’²⁴ at the end; and at the School of R. Ishmael the following examples were given:²⁵ Elim, Elimah;²⁶ Mahanayim, Mahanayimah;²⁷ Mizrayim, Mizraimah;²⁸ Dibelathaimah;²⁹ Yerushalaimah;³⁰ midbarah.³¹

Whence do Beth Shammai derive the deduction made by Rab Judah in the name of Rab? — It is derived from Unto one not of his kin.³² Then let Beth Hillel also derive it from ‘Unto one not of his kin’! — This is so indeed. What need, then, was there for ‘huzah’? — To include one who was only betrothed.³³ And the others? — They derive it from the use of ha-huzah where huzah could have been used.³⁴ And the others? — A deduction from huzah ha-huzah does not appeal to them.

Raba said: Beth Shammai's reason³⁵ is that one prohibition³⁶ cannot take effect on another prohibition.³⁷ This explanation is satisfactory in the case where the deceased had married first and the surviving brother married³⁸ afterwards, since the prohibition of marrying a wife's sister³⁹ could not come and take effect on the prohibition of marrying a brother's wife;⁴⁰ where, however, the surviving brother had married first⁴¹ and the deceased married later,⁴² the prohibition of ‘wife's sister’ was, surely, first!⁴³ — Since the prohibition of a ‘brother's wife’ cannot take effect on the prohibition of ‘wife's sister’, [any of the other widows] is the rival of a forbidden relative to whom⁴⁴ the precept of the levirate marriage is inapplicable, and is consequently permitted.⁴⁵

IF THEY HAD PERFORMED THE HALIZAH, BETH SHAMMAI DECLARE THEM INELIGIBLE etc. Is not this obvious?⁴⁶ — [It had to be stated] in order to exclude [the instruction] of R. Johanan b. Nuri who said: Come and let us issue an ordinance that the rivals⁴⁷ perform the halizah but do not marry the levir.⁴⁸ Hence it was taught that Beth Hillel declare them eligible.⁴⁹

IT THEY WERE MARRIED TO THE LEVIRS etc. BETH HILLEL DECLARE THEM INELIGIBLE. What need again was there for this? — Because it was taught, IF THEY PERFORM THE HALIZAH⁵⁰ it was also taught, IF THEY WERE MARRIED TO THE LEVIRS.⁵¹

We learned elsewhere: The Scroll of Esther⁵² is read on the eleventh, the twelfth, the thirteenth, the fourteenth or the fifteenth [of Adar].⁵³ but not earlier⁵⁴ or later.⁵⁵ Said Resh Lakish to R. Johanan: Apply here the text of Lo tithgodedu,⁵⁶ you shall not form separate sects!⁵⁷ (Is not Lo tithgodedu required for its own context, the All Merciful having said, ‘You shall not inflict upon yourselves any bruise for the dead’?⁵⁸ — If so, Scripture should have said, Lo tithgodedu,⁵⁹ why did it say ‘Lo tithgodedu’?⁶⁰ hence it must be inferred that its object was this.⁶¹ Might it not then be suggested that the entire text refers to this only?⁶² — If so, Scripture should have said, Lo thagodu,⁶³ why did it say ‘Lo tithgodedu’? Hence the two deductions.)⁶⁴ — The former answered: Have you not yet learned,⁶⁵ ‘Wherever it is customary to do manual labour on the Passover Eve until midday it may be done; wherever it is customary not to do any work it may not be done’?⁶⁶ The first said to him: I am speaking to you of a prohibition, for R. Shaman b. Abba said in the name of R. Johanan: ‘Scripture having said, To confirm these days of Purim in their appointed times,⁶⁷ the Sages have ordained for them different times,⁶⁸ and you speak to me of a custom!⁶⁹ But is there no prohibition there?⁷⁰ Surely we learned, ‘Beth Shammai prohibit work during the night⁷¹ and Beth Hillel permit it’!⁷² — The other said to him: In that case,⁷³ anyone seeing [a man abstaining from work] would suppose him to be out of work.⁷⁴ But do not BETH SHAMMAI PERMIT THE RIVALS TO THE OTHER BROTHERS AND BETH HILLEL FORBID THEM!⁷⁵

- (1) The rivals.
 - (2) With the brothers.
 - (3) In the opinion of Beth Shammai the halizah is legal and any woman who performed legal halizah is, like one divorced, forbidden to marry a priest.
 - (4) In their opinion the halizah was unnecessary and may, therefore, be treated as if it had never taken place.
 - (5) When their husbands die.
 - (6) Because having married persons to whom they are forbidden they are regarded as harlots who are ineligible ever to marry a priest.
 - (7) Lit., 'do clean things, these upon these'.
 - (8) For permitting the rivals to marry the other brothers.
 - (9) הַחוּצָה is rendered, 'the one who is the outside one', the word being regarded as an adjective fem. with the relative. E.V., 'abroad'.
 - (10) Deut. XXV, 5.
 - (11) I.e., the one who is not otherwise related to the levir.
 - (12) Related to the levir.
 - (13) But only unto her husband's brother (Deut. XXV, 5), which shews that a rival is permitted to the other brothers.
 - (14) Who prohibit the rival to the brothers, how do they explain this text?
 - (15) Before halizah had been performed.
 - (16) Lit., 'she shall not be', לֹא תִהְיֶה (rt. הִיָּה).
 - (17) Cf. E.V. for הַחוּצָה, supra note 3.
 - (18) Deut. XXV, 5.
 - (19) Lit., 'a stranger shall have no being (הַיִּיָּה of the root הִיָּה) in her'.
 - (20) לְחוּץ, lit., 'to the outside'.
 - (21) הַחוּצָה, v. supra note 3.
 - (22) חוּצָה.
 - (23) To indicate direction.
 - (24) The he being the he local.
 - (25) Lit., 'he recited' or 'taught'.
 - (26) 'To אֵילָם appears as אֵילָמָה (Ex. XV, 27) instead of לְאֵילָם.
 - (27) 'To מַחֲנִים appears as מַחֲמִימָה (II Sam. XVII, 24) instead of לְמַחֲמִים.
 - (28) 'To מִצְרִים, מִצְרִימָה, Gen. XII, 10.
 - (29) 'To דְּבַלְתִּים, דְּבַלְתִּימָה (Num. XXXIII, 47).
 - (30) 'To יְרוּשָׁלַיִם (Jerusalem) יְרוּשָׁלִימָה (Ezek. VIII, 3).
 - (31) 'To מִדְבָּר (wilderness or place-name) מִדְבָּרָב (I Chron. V, 9).
 - (32) Deut. XXV, 5.
 - (33) To the deceased brother. Such a widow also is subject to the levirate marriage as if she had been actually married. 'Huzah' implies (cf. supra p. 68, n. 3) 'outside', i.e., one who is not within the marriage bond.
 - (34) The addition of the 'he' in הַחוּצָה where חוּצָה would have conveyed the same meaning implies the inclusion of the betrothed. (V. n. 6.)
 - (35) V. p. 68, n. 2, supra.
 - (36) That, e.g., of marrying a brother's wife.
 - (37) That of marrying a forbidden relative (e.g., a daughter). Since the latter prohibition takes no effect in such a case, the forbidden relative whom the levirate bond does not consequently affect may be regarded as non-existent, so far as her levirate obligations are concerned. Her rivals, therefore, come under the category of complete strangers and are consequently permitted to the brothers.
 - (38) A sister of his brother's wife.
 - (39) Which arose later.
 - (40) As legally the widow is only 'his brother's wife' but not 'his wife's sister', her rivals may justly be regarded as strangers who are permitted.
 - (41) And his wife's sister has in consequence become forbidden to him.
 - (42) When the prohibition of a brother's wife arose.

- (43) And consequently had taken effect; why then are her rivals permitted? This objection is based on the assumption that Raba, in stating the prohibition of marrying a forbidden relative cannot take effect owing to the prohibition of 'brother's wife', was referring only to such prohibitions as are due to a marriage contract, e.g., a wife's sister.
- (44) Lit., 'in the place'.
- (45) V. supra p. 69, n. 10.
- (46) What need then was there for stating it.
- (47) Of forbidden relatives.
- (48) And being subject to halizah, even though on account of a Rabbinical ordinance only, it might have been assumed that they are ineligible for marriage with a priest. (Cf. supra p. 67, n. 9.)
- (49) Indicating that the rivals in such a case are not even Rabbinically subject to the halizah.
- (50) For the reason given supra. V. previous note.
- (51) Halizah and marriage usually being the only alternatives.
- (52) מגילה 'scroll', always signifies in Rabbinical literature the Scroll of Esther, unless the context explicitly or implicitly points to any other scroll.
- (53) According to whether the readers live in a village, a town, or a town that had been walled in the days of Joshua, and according to the day of the week on which the feast of Purim occurs.
- (54) Than the eleventh.
- (55) Than the fifteenth. Meg. 2a.
- (56) לֹא תתגודדו (Deut. XIV, 1), rendered by E.V. Ye shall not cut yourselves, is here taken as a form of the root אגד, 'to bind', implying the formation of separate groups, sects, factions.
- (57) Why, then, was the Scroll allowed to be read on different days by different classes of people?
- (58) Cf. supra n. 13 for the rendering of E.V.
- (59) Which would have implied the prohibition of cutting or bruising the body. (V. p. 70, n. 13.)
- (60) The longer form, the Hithpael.
- (61) Lit., 'for this it came', to imply both 'cutting the body for the dead', and 'the formation of sects'.
- (62) The formation of sects.
- (63) Which would have been understood to refer to the undesirable formation of sects.
- (64) It has thus been shewn that the formation of sects is undesirable; why then was it allowed to form separate groups to read the Scroll of Esther on different dates?
- (65) Or 'You should have replied' (Rashi).
- (66) Which shews that, despite the undesirability of forming separate groups, different customs are allowed.
- (67) Esth. IX, 31, emphasis on 'appointed times', בזמניהם.
- (68) I.e., a group who were ordained to read the Scroll on a particular date must not read it on any other date.
- (69) Manual labour on the Passover Eve is universally permitted, and its prohibition in certain places is not a matter of law but merely a question of custom.
- (70) In the case of work on the Passover Eve. (Both the day and the night preceding the Passover are designated ערב פסח Passover Eve).
- (71) Preceding the first Passover night.
- (72) Which shews, since some would be acting in accordance with the ruling of Beth Shammai while others would follow Beth Hillel, that even in the case of a prohibition the formation of sects is allowed.
- (73) Lit., 'there', where some people do no work though permitted.
- (74) The question of sects does not arise in such a case.
- (75) A dispute which creates faction, some following the ruling of the one authority and others that of the other.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 14a

— Do you imagine that Beth Shammai acted in accordance with their views? Beth Shammai did not act in accordance with their views.

R. Johanan, however, said: They certainly acted [in accordance with their views]. Herein they¹ differ on the same point as do Rab and Samuel. For Rab maintains that Beth Shammai did not act in accordance with their views, while Samuel maintains that they certainly did act [in accordance with their views]. When?² If it be suggested, prior to the decision of the heavenly voice,³ then what reason has he who maintains that they did not act [in accordance with their own view]? If, however, after the decision of the heavenly voice, what reason has he who maintains that they did act [in accordance with their views]? — If you wish I could say, prior to the decision of the heavenly voice; and if you prefer I could say, after the heavenly voice. ‘If you wish I could say, prior to the heavenly voice’, when, for instance, Beth Hillel were in the majority: One maintains⁴ that they⁵ did not act [according to their view] for the obvious reason that Beth Hillel were in the majority; while the other maintains⁶ that they did act [according to their view, because] a majority is to be followed only where both sides are equally matched;⁷ in this case, however, Beth Shammai were keener of intellect. ‘And if you prefer I could say, after the heavenly voice’; one maintains that they⁵ did not act [according to their view] for the obvious reason that the heavenly voice had already gone forth;⁸ while the other who maintains that they did act [according to their view] is [of the same opinion as] R. Joshua who declared that no regard need be paid to a heavenly voice.⁹

Now as to the other who ‘maintains that they did act [according to their views]’¹⁰ — should not the warning, ‘Lo tithgodedu, you shall not form separate sects’¹¹ be applied? — Abaye replied: The warning against opposing sects is only applicable to such a case as that of two courts of law in the same town, one of whom rules in accordance with the views of Beth Shammai while the other rules in accordance with the views of Beth Hillel. In the case, however, of two courts of law in two different towns [the difference in practice] does not matter. Said Raba to him: Surely the case of Beth Shammai and Beth Hillel is like that of two courts of law in the same town! The fact, however, is, said Raba, that the warning against opposing sects is only applicable to such a case as that of one court of law in the same town, half of which rule in accordance with the views of Beth Shammai while the other half rule in accordance with the views of Beth Hillel. In the case, however, of two courts of law in the same town [the difference in practice] does not matter.

Come and hear: In the place of R. Eliezer, wood was cut on the Sabbath wherewith to produce charcoal on which to forge the iron.¹² In the place of R. Jose the Galilean the flesh of fowl was eaten with milk.¹³ In the place of R. Eliezer only¹⁴ but not in the place of R. Akiba; for we learnt: R. Akiba laid it down as a general rule that any labour which may be performed on the Sabbath Eve¹⁵ does not supersede the Sabbath!¹⁶ — What an objection is this! The case, surely, is different [when the varied practices are respectively confined to] different localities. What then did he who raised this question imagine?¹⁷ — It might have been assumed that owing to the great restrictions of the Sabbath [different localities are regarded] as one place, hence it was necessary to teach us [that the law was not so].

Come and hear: R. Abbahu, whenever he happened to be in the place of R. Joshua b. Levi, carried¹⁸ a candle,¹⁹ but when he happened to be in the place of R. Johanan²⁰ he did not carry a candle!²¹ — What question is this! Has it not been said that the case is different [when the varied practices are respectively confined to] varied localities? — This is the question:²² How could R. Abbahu act in one place in one way and in another place in another way?²³ — R. Abbahu is of the same opinion as R. Joshua b. Levi,²⁴ but when he happened to be in R. Johanan's place he did not move a candle out of respect for R. Johanan. But his attendant,²⁵ surely was also there!²⁶ — He gave his attendant the necessary instructions.

Come and hear: THOUGH THESE FORBADE WHAT THE OTHERS PERMITTED . . . BETH SHAMMAI, NEVERTHELESS, DID NOT REFRAIN FROM MARRYING WOMEN FROM THE FAMILIES OF BETH HILLEL, NOR DID BETH HILLEL [REFRAIN FROM MARRYING WOMEN] FROM THE FAMILIES OF BETH SHAMMAI. Now, if it be said that they²⁷ did not act [in accordance with their own view] one can well understand why THEY DID NOT REFRAIN [from intermarrying with one another].²⁸ If, however, it be said that they²⁷ did act [in accordance with their own view], why did they not refrain? That Beth Shammai did not refrain from marrying women from the families of Beth Hillel may well be justified because such²⁹ are the children of persons guilty only of the infringement of a negative precept;³⁰ but why did not Beth Hillel refrain from [marrying women from the families of] Beth Shammai? Such,³¹ surely, being children of persons who are guilty of an offence involving kareth, are bastards!³² And if it be suggested that Beth Hillel are of the opinion that the descendant of those who are guilty of an offence involving kareth is not a bastard,³³ surely, [it may be retorted], R. Eleazar said: Although Beth Shammai and Beth Hillel are in disagreement on the questions of rivals, they concede that a bastard is only he who is descended from a marriage which is forbidden as incest and punishable with kareth! Does not this then conclusively prove that they²⁷ did not act [in accordance with their own view]? — No; they²⁷ acted, indeed, [in accordance with their own view], but they²⁷ informed them³⁴ [of the existence of any such cases] and they³⁴ kept away.

This³⁵ may also be proved by logical inference; for in the final clause it was stated. [SIMILARLY IN RESPECT OF] ALL [THE QUESTIONS OF RITUAL] CLEANNESS AND UNCLEANNES, WHICH THESE DECLARED CLEAN WHERE THE OTHERS DECLARED UNCLEAN, NEITHER OF THEM ABSTAINED FROM USING THE UTENSILS OF THE OTHERS FOR THE PREPARATION OF FOOD THAT WAS RITUALLY CLEAN.

(2) I.e., to what period does the dispute just mentioned refer?

(3) בַּת קוֹל (v. Glos. s.v. Bath Kol), which decided that the law in practice was always to be in accordance with the rulings of Beth Hillel (v. 'Er. 13a).

(4) Lit., 'according to him who said'.

(5) Beth Shammai.

(6) Lit., 'and he who said'.

(7) In qualifications and attainments.

(8) And decided the issue in favour of Beth Hillel.

(12) The knife required for the performance of circumcision. The circumcision of a child, his health permitting, must take place on the eighth day of his birth (v. Gen. XVII, 12) even though it happened to fall on a Sabbath when manual labour is prohibited. And since the precept itself supersedes the Sabbath, all its requisites such as the wood and coals (for the preparation of warm water) and the knife may also be performed on the Sabbath.

(13) Though it is forbidden to eat meat, or any dishes made of meat, together with milk or any preparation of milk. R. Jose exempts the flesh of fowl from the general prohibition of the consumption of meat and milk. Shab. 130a, Hul. 116a.

(14) Lit., 'yes'; only there was the preparation of the requisites of circumcision permitted on the Sabbath.

(15) Such as the cutting of wood, the production of coals and the forging of the knife.

(16) Now, in view of the undesirability of creating different sects, why were all these varied practices allowed?

(17) It should have been obvious to him that different localities may differ in their custom. (Cf. supra p. 53, n. 11.)

(18) Lit., 'moved'.

(19) On the Sabbath. A candle, though it was burning when Sabbath set in may, according to R. Joshua who follows R. Simeon in permitting mukzeh (v. next note), be moved on the Sabbath after the flame has gone out.

(20) R. Johanan, following R. Judah, forbids the carrying or moving of a candle that had been burning when the Sabbath set in though it had subsequently gone out. As it was burning at the commencement of the Sabbath it was at that time fit for no other use and is regarded, therefore, as mukzeh, i.e., 'something set aside', that is not to be used for any other purpose. Anything that was mukzeh when the Sabbath began remains so until it ends.

(21) Is not the practice of carrying a candle in one place and not carrying it in another as undesirable as the formation of opposing sects?

(22) Lit., 'we say thus'.

(23) Lit., 'how did he do here thus' (bis).

- (29) The descendants from the marriages with strangers contracted by the rivals who, in accordance with the ruling of Beth Hillel, performed no halizah.
- (30) Even Beth Shammai who require the rivals to perform the halizah regard such marriages as the infringement of a prohibition only ('The wife of the dead shall not be married abroad', Deut. XXV, 5), which does not involve kareth. The children of such marriages are consequently not deemed to be bastards.
- (31) Descendants from marriages between rivals and brothers-in-law. Such marriages, which are permitted by Beth Shammai, are regarded by Beth Hillel as forbidden under the prohibition of marrying one's brother's wife, which involves the penalty of kareth.
- (32) How, then, did they intermarry with families containing such members?
- (33) A bastard being the descendant only of such marriages as are subject to one of the capital punishments that are carried out under the jurisdiction of a court.
- (34) Beth Hillel.
- (35) That Beth Shammai duly informed Beth Hillel of any families contracting marriages which according to the ruling of the latter were forbidden.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 14b

Now, if it be agreed that the required information was supplied¹ one well understands why they² did not abstain.³ If, however, it be assumed that no such information was supplied, one can still understand why Beth Shammai did not abstain from using the utensils of Beth Hillel, since that which was regarded by Beth Hillel as ritually unclean was deemed by Beth Shammai to be ritually clean; but why did not Beth Hillel abstain from using the utensils of Beth Shammai when that which was deemed clean by Beth Shammai was regarded as unclean by Beth Hillel? Must it not, then, be concluded that they supplied them with the required information! Our point is thus proved.

In what respect is the one⁴ more conclusive proof⁵ than the other?⁶ — It might have been thought that the case of a rival⁷ receives due publicity,⁸ hence it was necessary [for the inference from the final clause] to be cited.

[Reverting to] the previous text, 'R. Eleazar said: Although Beth Shammai and Beth Hillel are in disagreement on the question of rivals they concede that a bastard is only he who is descended from a marriage forbidden as incest and punishable by kareth'. Who concedes? If it be said, Beth Shammai to Beth Hillel;⁹ this, surely, is obvious, since the children of those who are guilty of the infringement of a negative precept¹⁰ are deemed legitimate.¹¹ Must it not consequently be the case that Beth Hillel conceded to Beth Shammai;¹² but this very case is subject to the penalty of kareth! — The fact is that Beth Shammai conceded to Beth Hillel; and the purpose was to exclude the opinion of R. Akiba, who maintains that a descendant from persons guilty of the infringement of a negative precept is deemed a bastard.¹³ Hence it was taught¹⁴ that a descendant from persons guilty of the infringement of a negative precept is not deemed a bastard.

Come and hear: Although Beth Shammai and Beth Hillel are in disagreement on the questions of rivals, sisters,¹⁵ an old bill of divorce,¹⁶ a doubtfully married woman,¹⁷ a woman whom her husband had divorced¹⁸ and who stayed with him over the night in an inn,¹⁹ money, valuables, a perutah and the value of a perutah,²⁰ Beth Shammai did not, nevertheless, abstain from marrying women of the families of Beth Hillel, nor did Beth Hillel refrain from marrying those of Beth Shammai. This is to teach you that they shewed love and friendship towards one another, thus putting into practice the Scriptural text, Love ye truth and peace.²¹ R. Simeon said: They abstained [from marrying] in cases of certainty but did not abstain in doubtful cases.²² Now, if you agree that they²³ acted [in accordance with their own views] one can well understand why they abstained. If, however, you assume that they did not so act, why did they abstain? — And how do you understand this? Even if it be granted that they did act (in accordance with their own views), one can only understand why Beth Hillel abstained from intermarrying with Beth Shammai, because the latter, in the opinion of Beth Hillel, were guilty of offences involving kareth and their descendants were consequently bastards; as to Beth Shammai, however, why did they abstain from intermarrying with Beth Hillel, when they were [even in the opinion of Beth Shammai] only guilty of the infringement of a negative precept and [their descendants] were consequently legitimate? — As R. Nahman said elsewhere that the statement was required only for the case of the rival herself, so here also the Statement is required for the case of the rival herself.²⁴

Why is a doubtful case different from a case of a certainty? Obviously because it is forbidden. Is not a doubtful case also forbidden? — Do not read, ‘from a doubtful case’, but ‘from a case unknown’, since when they received the information they kept away.²⁵ And what does he teach us thereby? That they shewed love and friendship to one another? But this is exactly the same as the first clause!²⁶ — He teaches us this: That the entire Mishnah represents the views of R. Simeon.

Come and hear: R. Johanan b. Nuri said: ‘How is this law²⁷ to be promulgated in Israel? Were we to act in accordance with the ruling of Beth Shammai,²⁸ the child would, in accordance with the ruling of Beth Hillel, be a bastard.²⁹ And were we to act in accordance with the ruling of Beth Hillel,³⁰ the child, according to the ruling of Beth Shammai, would be tainted;³¹ come, then, and let us issue an ordinance that the rivals perform the halizah¹ but do not marry any of the brothers'.² They had hardly time to conclude the matter before confusion set in. Said R. Simeon b. Gamaliel to them, 'What now could we do with previous rivals'?³ Now, if you assume that they⁴ acted [in accordance with their own rulings] one can understand why he said, 'What shall we do'.⁵ If, however, you assume that they did not so act, what is the meaning of 'What shall we do'?⁶ — R. Nahman b. Isaac replied: This⁷ was required only in the case of the rival herself;⁸ and this is the meaning of the objection 'what shall we do': 'How shall we, according to Beth Shammai, proceed with those rivals [who married⁹ in accordance with the rulings] of Beth Hillel? Should they be asked to perform the halizah, they would become despised by their husbands; and should you say, "Let them be despised", [it could be retorted]. Her ways are ways of pleasantness and all her paths are peace'.¹⁰

Come and hear: R. Tarfon¹¹ said: Would that the rival of [my] daughter¹² were to fall to my lot¹³ so that I could marry her!¹⁴ — Read, 'that I could make her marry [another]'.¹⁵ But he said, 'Would'!¹⁶ — It¹⁷ implies objection to the ordinance¹⁸ of R. Johanan b. Nuri.¹⁹

Come and hear: It happened that R. Gamaliel's daughter was married to his brother Abba who died without issue, and that R. Gamaliel married her rival!²⁰ — But how do you understand this? Was R. Gamaliel²¹ one of the disciples of Beth Shammai!²² But [this is the explanation]: R. Gamaliel's daughter was different because she was incapable of procreation.²³ Since, however, it was stated in the final clause, 'Others say that R. Gamaliel's daughter was incapable of procreation' it may be inferred that the first Tanna is of the opinion that she was not incapable of procreation! — The difference between them²⁴ is the question whether he²⁵ knew her²⁶ defect²⁷ or not.²⁸ And if you wish I might say that the difference between them²⁴ is the case where he²⁵ married [the rival] first and subsequently divorced [his wife].²⁹ And if you wish I might say that the difference between them²⁴ is whether a stipulation³⁰ in the case of matrimonial intercourse is valid.³¹

R. Mesharsheya raised an objection: It once happened that R. Akiba gathered the fruit of an ethrog³² on the first of Shebat³³ and subjected it to two tithes,³⁴ one³⁵ in accordance with the ruling of Beth Shammai³⁶ and the other³⁷ in accordance with the ruling of Beth Hillel.³⁸ This proves that they³⁹ did act [in accordance with their rulings!] — R. Akiba was uncertain of his tradition, not knowing whether Beth Hillel said the first of Shebat⁴⁰ or the fifteenth of Shebat.⁴⁰

Mar Zutra raised an objection: It once happened that Shammai the Elder's daughter-in-law was confined with child⁴¹ and he⁴² broke an opening through the concrete of the ceiling and covered it above the bed with the proper festival roofing⁴³ for the sake of the child.⁴⁴ Does not this prove that they³⁹ did act [in accordance with their rulings]?⁴⁵ — In that case, any onlooker might assume that it was done in order to increase the ventilation.⁴⁶

Mar Zutra raised an objection: It once happened with Jehu's Trough in Jerusalem, which was connected by means of a hole with a ritual bathing pool,⁴⁷ and in which⁴⁸ all ritual cleansing in Jerusalem was performed, that Beth Shammai sent and had the hole widened; for Beth Shammai maintain that the greater part [of the intervening wall] must be broken through.⁴⁹ But we have also learned that the combination of bathing pools⁵⁰ may be effected by a connecting tube of the size of the mouth-piece of a leather bottle in diameter and circumference,⁵¹ viz., a tube in which two fingers may conveniently be turned round.⁵² Does not this prove that they⁵³ did act [in accordance with their

- (25) The husband, R. Gamaliel's brother.
- (26) R. Gamaliel's daughter's.
- (27) At the time of their marriage.
- (28) V. supra 12a. According to the first Tanna, the rival of R. Gamaliel's daughter was permitted only because her husband was unaware of her defect, and their marriage consequently took place under a misconception. Such a marriage being invalid, R. Gamaliel's daughter was not a legal wife, and her rival consequently was a mere stranger to her father. According to the 'Others', who use the expression 'was incapable' and not 'was discovered to be incapable', the rival was permitted to R. Gamaliel irrespective of whether his daughter's defect had or had not been known, to her husband.
- (29) V. supra 13a. Such as was the case with R. Gamaliel's daughter. The first Tanna is of the opinion that the rival was permitted to R. Gamaliel because at the time his brother died she was no more his daughter's rival. The 'Others', however, maintain that so long as the two were rivals for any length of time (in this case, between the time of the marriage with the rival and the divorce of R. Gamaliel's daughter) they remain legally as rivals for all time, and the only reason why R. Gamaliel was allowed to marry the rival of his daughter was because his daughter had the defect of being incapable of procreation, and the rival of such a woman is permitted to the brothers. V. supra 2b.
- (30) That the woman, e.g., suffers from no illness or that she is not afflicted with any infirmity.
- (31) Such a stipulation was made by the husband in the case of R. Gamaliel's daughter. The first Tanna is of the opinion that the stipulation is valid, and since an infirmity was subsequently discovered, the marriage is null and void and the rival as a mere stranger is consequently permitted. The 'Others', however, regard a stipulation in connection with marital intercourse as invalid. R. Gamaliel's marriage with the rival was consequently permitted only because his daughter was incapable of procreation.

Come and hear: R. Eleazar b. Zadok said: When I was learning Torah with R. Johanan the Horonite² I noticed that in the years of dearth he used to eat dry bread with salt. I went home and related it to my father, who said to me, 'Take some olives to him'. When I brought these to him and he observed that they were moist³ he said to me, 'I eat no olives'.⁴ I again went out and communicated the matter to my father, who said to me, 'Go tell him that the jar was broached,⁵ only the lees had blocked up the breach';⁶ and we learned: A jar containing pickled olives, Beth Shammai said, need not be broached;⁷ but Beth Hillel say: It must be broached.⁸ They admit, however, that where it had been broached and the lees had blocked up the holes, it is clean.⁹ And though he¹⁰ was a disciple of Shammai, he always conformed in practice¹¹ to the rulings of Beth Hillel. Now, if it be conceded that they¹² did act in accordance with their own rulings, one can well understand why his¹⁰ action was worthy of note;¹³ if, however, it were to be contended that they did not so act, in what respect was his conduct noteworthy!¹⁴

Come and hear: R. Joshua was asked, 'What is the law in relation to the rival of one's daughter'? He answered them, 'It is a question in dispute between Beth Shammai and Beth Hillel'. — 'But [he was asked] in accordance with whose ruling is the established law'? 'Why should you,' he said to them, 'put my head between two great mountains, between two great groups of disputants, aye, between Beth Shammai and Beth Hillel? I fear they might crush my head! I may testify to you, however, concerning two great families who flourished in Jerusalem, namely, the family of Beth Zebo'im of Ben 'Akmai and the family of Ben Kuppai of Ben Mekoshesh,¹⁵ that they were descendants of rivals¹⁶ and yet some of them were High Priests who ministered upon the altar'. Now, if it be conceded that they¹⁷ acted [in accordance with their own rulings] it is quite intelligible why he said, 'I fear'.¹⁸ If, however, it be suggested that they¹⁷ did not so act, why did he say, 'I fear'?¹⁹ But even if it be granted that they did act [according to their rulings], what [cause had he for saying,] 'I fear'? Surely R. Joshua said that a bastard was only he who was a descendant of one of those who are subject to capital punishments which are within the jurisdiction of the Beth din!²⁰ — Granted that he²¹ was not a bastard, he is nevertheless tainted;²² as may be deduced by inference a minori ad majus from the case of the widow: If the son of a widow²³ who is not forbidden to all²⁴ is nevertheless tainted,²⁵ [how much more so the son of a rival]²⁶ who is forbidden to all.²⁷

They asked him concerning rivals and he answered them about the sons of the rivals! — They really asked him two questions: 'What is the law concerning the rivals? And if some ground could be found in their case in favour of the ruling of Beth Hillel, what is the law according to Beth Shammai in regard to the sons of the rivals, [who married]²⁸ in accordance with the ruling of Beth Hillel'?²⁹ What practical difference is there?³⁰ — That a solution may be found, according to Beth Hillel, for the question of the child³¹ of a man who remarried his divorced wife.³² Do we³³ apply the inference a minori ad majus, arguing thus: 'If the son of a widow who was married to a High Priest, who is not forbidden to all,³⁴ is nevertheless tainted,³⁵ how much more so the son of her³⁶ who is forbidden to all';³⁷ or is it possible to refute the argument, thus: 'The case of the widow is different because she herself is profaned'?³⁸ And he said to them, 'With reference to the rivals I am afraid,'³⁹

(5) Keeping olives in a broached container is clear evidence that the owner had no desire to retain the sap that exudes from the olives; and only liquids which are desired by the owner render the fruit susceptible to Levitical uncleanness.

(6) And thus the undesired 'moisture remained on the olives. As such moisture does not render the fruit susceptible to uncleanness (v. previous note) the olives may safely be eaten even by the scrupulous.

(7) Because in their opinion the moisture that exudes from the olives is regarded as a fruit juice which does not render food susceptible to Levitical uncleanness.

(8) The moisture is regarded by them as actual oil which does render food susceptible to uncleanness. Broaching is consequently necessary in order to indicate thereby that the owner had no desire to preserve the liquid.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 16a

as to the sons of the rivals¹ I may testify to you'.²

Come and hear: In the days of R. Dosa b. Harkinas the rival of a daughter was permitted to marry the brothers.³ From this it may be inferred that [Beth Shammai] acted [in accordance with their own rulings].⁴ This proves the point.

[To turn to] the main text. In the days of R. Dosa b. Harkinas, the rival of a daughter was permitted to marry the brothers. This ruling was very disturbing to the Sages, because he⁵ was a great scholar⁶ and his eyes were dim so that he was unable to come to the house of study.⁷ When a discussion took place as to who should go and communicate with him, R. Joshua said to them, 'I will go'. 'And who after him?' — 'R. Eleazar b. Azariah.' 'And who after him?' — 'R. Akiba'. They went and stood at the entrance of his house. His maid entered and told him, 'Master, the Sages of Israel are come to you'. 'Let them enter', he said to her; and they entered. Taking hold of R. Joshua

he made him sit upon a golden couch. The latter said to him, 'Master, will you ask your other disciple to sit down'? 'Who is he?' [the Master] enquired. — 'R. Eleazar b. Azariah'. 'Has our friend Azariah a son?' [the Master] exclaimed, and applied to him this Scriptural text, I have been young and now I am old; yet have I not seen the righteous forsaken, nor his seed begging bread;⁸ and so took hold of him also and made him sit upon a golden couch. 'Master', said he,⁹ 'will you ask your next disciple also to sit down'? 'And who is he?' [the Master] asked. — 'Akiba the son of Joseph'. 'You are,' [the Master] exclaimed, 'Akiba son of Joseph whose name is known from one end of the world to the other! Sit down, my son, sit down. May men like you multiply in Israel'. Thereupon they began to address to him all sorts of questions on legal practice¹⁰ until they reached that of the daughter's rival. 'What is the halachah', they asked him, 'in the case of a daughter's rival?' 'This,' he answered them, 'is a question in dispute between Beth Shammai and Beth Hillel.' 'In accordance with whose ruling is the halachah?' — 'The halachah,' he replied, is in accordance with the ruling of Beth Hillel'. 'But, indeed,' they said to him, 'it was stated in your name that the halachah is in accordance with the ruling of Beth Shammai!' He said to them: 'Did you hear, "Dosa"¹¹ or "the son of Harkinas?"'¹² — 'By the life of our Master,' they replied. 'We heard no son's name mentioned.'¹³ 'I have,' he said to them, 'a younger brother who is a dare-devil¹⁴ and his name is Jonathan and he is one of the disciples of Shammai.¹⁵ Take care that he does not overwhelm you on questions of established practice, because he has three hundred answers to prove that the daughter's rival is permitted. But I call heaven and earth to witness that upon this mortar¹⁶ sat the prophet Haggai¹⁷ and delivered the following three rulings: That a daughter's rival is forbidden, that in the lands of Ammon and Moab the tithe of the poor is to be given in the Seventh Year,¹⁸ and that proselytes may be accepted from the Cordyenians and the Tarmodites.'¹⁹

A Tanna taught: When they came²⁰ they entered through one door; when they went out they issued through three different doors.²¹ He came upon R. Akiba, submitted his objections to him and silenced him.²² 'Are you', he called out, 'Akiba whose name rings from one end of the world to the other? You are blessed indeed to have won fame while you have not yet attained the rank of oxherds.' 'Not even,' replied R. Akiba, 'that of shepherds.'

'In the lands of Ammon and Moab the tithe of the poor is given in the Seventh Year,' because a Master said: Those who came up from Egypt²³ had conquered many cities which those who came up from Babylon²⁴ did not conquer, and the first sanctification²³ was intended for that time only but not for the future.²⁵ Hence they were allowed [cultivation]²⁶ in order that the poor²⁷ might find their support there in the Seventh Year.²⁸

'And that proselytes may be accepted from the Cordyenians and the Tarmodites'. But [the law, surely,] is not so! For Rami b. Ezekiel learnt: No proselyte may be accepted from the Cordyenians. — R. Ashi replied: The statement was Kartuenians,²⁹ as people, in fact, speak of 'disqualified Kartuenians'.

Others say: Rami b. Ezekiel learnt, 'No proselytes are to be accepted from the Kartuenians'. Are not Kartuenians the same as Cordyenians? — R. Ashi replied: No; Kartuenians are a class by themselves, and Cordyenians are a class by themselves, as people, in fact, speak of 'disqualified Kartuenians'.³⁰

Both R. Johanan and Sabya maintain that no proselytes may be accepted from the Tarmodites. Did R. Johanan, however, say such a thing? Surely we learned: All blood stains [on women's garments] that come from Rekem³¹ are levitically clean,³² and R. Judah declares them unclean because [the people there] were proselytes though misguided;³³ [those that come] from the heathens³⁴ are levitically clean.³⁵ And the difficult point was raised

(1) Whether they are tainted or not.

- (2) V. supra 15b, which shews that they were not tainted, since they were permitted to occupy the highest office in the priesthood.
- (3) Of the father of that daughter.
- (4) Since the permission to marry was issued by a brother of R. Dosa (v. infra) who was a member of Beth Shammai.
- (5) R. Dosa, who was thought to be the author of the ruling.
- (6) And they did not venture to act against his decision without first consulting him.
- (7) And was thus unaware that the general opinion at the College was against the ruling.
- (8) Ps. XXXVII, 25.
- (9) R. Joshua.
- (10) Lit., 'surrounded him with halachoth'.
- (11) I.e., that Dosa permitted the rival.
- (12) Without the mention of the name of the son.
- (13) Lit., 'not specifically', 'undefined'.
- (14) בכור שטן lit., 'the first-born of Satan', first in obstinate dispute (Jast.); Satansjunge similar to Teufelskerl (Golds.); keen and obstinate (Rashi). Some suggest בחר שונן 'keen — witted youth'. R. Dosa appears to have been playing upon the rhyme of ah katan, bekor satan, and Jonathan.
- (15) And it must have been Jonathan who dared to issue a ruling in accordance with the views of his school against those of Beth Hillel.
- (16) מדוכה or mortar-shaped seat.
- (17) [That does not mean that he was a contemporary of Haggai the prophet, but that he had an incontrovertible tradition on the matter, Me'iri.]
- (18) Of the septennial cycle. The countries of Ammon and Moab, though conquered by Moses and included in the boundary of the Land of Israel, were in the days of the Second Temple excluded. The laws of the Seventh or Sabbatical year, which apply to the Land of Israel, were consequently inapplicable to the lands of Ammon and Moab. Any Jews living in those countries, it was ordained by the Rabbis, were to be allowed to cultivate their fields in this year, but besides the 'first tithe' which is due in all other years, they were to give the tithe of the poor also.
- (19) Despite the opinion of some Rabbis that they were to be regarded as bastards. Cordyene or Kardu was in Babylon; Tarmod or Tadmor, (Palmyra) lay in an oasis of the desert of Syria. [According to Obermeyer (p. 133) the question as to the legitimacy of the offering of the Kardu was on account of the possible intermarriage of the non-Jewish inhabitants with the Jewish converts, won over to Christianity by the Christian missions from Edessa in the first century.]
- (20) To interview R. Dosa.
- (21) Either in order not to attract Jonathan's attention, or, on the contrary, in the hope that one of them at least might meet him.
- (22) Lit., 'and made him stand'.
- (23) In the days of Joshua.
- (24) In the days of Ezra.
- (25) Hag. 3b.
- (26) In the Sabbatical year.
- (27) Of the Land of Israel where no cultivation was permitted and where consequently no poor-tithe was given in that year.
- (28) By obtaining employment in the fields or by receiving the tithes and the other gifts of the poor.
- (29) Mountaineers of Media. The Gr.  natives of Karta are mentioned by Polybius and Strabo.
- (30) The Cordyenians, however, are not tainted.
- (31) Place on the borders of Palestine. Perhaps Petra or the Biblical Sela in Edom, v. Git., Sonc. ed. p. 1, n. 2.
- (32) Only the menstrual blood of the daughters of Israel is levitically unclean; and no pure Israelites lived at Rekem.
- (33) Though they no longer observed the religious laws of Judaism they were once proselytes and as such their menstrual blood is levitically unclean as is the case with that of Israelites.
- (34) I.e., from localities where no Israelites live.
- (35) Nid. 56b, Bek. 38b.

that having stated categorically,¹ '[those that came] from the heathens' [he must also imply,] 'even those from Tarmod'!² And R. Johanan replied: This proves that proselytes may be accepted from Tarmod.³ And if it be replied [that R. Johanan only said], 'This',⁴ but he himself does not hold this view,⁵ surely R. Johanan said, 'The halachah is in accordance with an anonymous Mishnah'!⁶ — It is a question in dispute between Amoraim as to what was actually the view of R. Johanan.

Why are no [proselytes to be accepted] from Tarmod? — R. Johanan and Sabya give different reasons. One says, 'On account of the slaves of Solomon,'⁷ and the other says, 'On account of the daughters of Jerusalem.'⁸

According to him who Says. 'On account of the slaves of Solomon,' the reason is quite intelligible, because he may hold the opinion that the child of a heathen or a slave who had intercourse with a daughter in Israel is a bastard. According to him, however, who said, 'On account of the daughters of Jerusalem', what is the reason? — R. Joseph and the Rabbis dispute the point, and both of them in the name of Rabbah b. Bar Hana. One maintains that [the number was] twelve thousand [foot]men and six thousand archers, and the other maintains that there were twelve thousand men and, of these, six hundred archers. At the time when the heathens entered the Temple, everyone made for the gold and the silver, but they made for the daughters of Jerusalem; as it is said in the Scriptures. They have ravished the women in Zion, the maidens in the cities of Judah.⁹

R. Samuel b. Nahmani said in the name of R. Jonathan: The following verse was uttered by the Genius of the Universe:¹⁰ I have been young and now I am old!¹¹ For who else could have said it! If the Holy One, blessed be He, be suggested, is there any old age in his case? Then David must have said it? But was he so old? Consequently it must be concluded that the Genius of the Universe had said it.

R. Samuel b. Nahmani further said in the name of R. Jonathan: What is [the meaning of] the Scriptural text,¹² The adversary hath spread out his hand upon all her treasures?¹³ — This [refers to] Ammon and Moab. At the time when the heathens entered the Temple all made for gold and silver, but they turned to the Scroll of the Law, saying, 'That in which it is written, An Ammonite or a Moabite shall not enter into the assembly of the Lord,¹⁴ shall be burned with fire.'

The Lord hath commanded concerning Jacob that they that are round about him should be his adversaries.¹⁵ Rab said: As, for instance, Humania towards Pum Nahara.¹⁶

Rab Judah said in the name of R. Assi: If at the present time a heathen betroths [a daughter in Israel], note must be taken of such betrothal since it may be that he is of the ten tribes.¹⁷ But, surely, anything separated [from a heterogeneous group] is regarded as having been separated from the majority!¹⁸ — [R. Assi's statement refers] to places where they have settled;¹⁹ for R. Abba b. Kahana said: And he put them in Halah and in Habor, on the river of Gozan, and the cities of the Medes;²⁰ Halah is Halwan,²¹ and Habor

(1) Lit., 'he decides and teaches'.

(2) But can that be so in view of the doubtful character of the admixture of Jewish stock of its inhabitants?

(3) Nid. 56b. I.e., they are not regarded as an admixture of Jewish stock and tainted from birth and disqualified. How then could it be said supra that R. Johanan maintains that proselytes may not be accepted from the Tarmodites?

(4) 'This proves etc.' supra.

(5) I.e., he disagrees with the Mishnah.

(6) Which, as has been shewn, implies that proselytes may be accepted from Tarmod.

(7) Who married Jewish women.

(8) This is explained immediately.

- (18) I.e., if it is not known to which group or class a person or object that comes from a mixed multitude belongs, it is always assumed that the unit came from the majority. Now, since the ten tribes represent only a minority of the heathens, it should be assumed that the betrothal was not made by one of the ten tribes but by a heathen.

is Hadyab,¹ the river Gozan is Ginzak,² and the cities of the Medes are Hamdan³ and its neighbouring towns; others say, Nihar⁴ and its neighbouring towns. Which are its neighbouring towns? — Samuel replied: Karak,⁵ Moshki,⁶ Hidki⁷ and Dumkia.⁸ R. Johanan said: All these⁹ [were enumerated] in order to declare them as being unfit.¹⁰ When, however, I¹¹ mentioned the matter¹² in the presence of Samuel he said to me: Thy son,¹³ implies that he who is descended from an Israelitish woman may be called thy son, but thy son who is descended from a heathen woman is not called thy son but her son.¹⁴ But, surely, there were also daughters,¹⁵ and Rabina had said, 'From this it may be inferred that thy daughter's son born from [a union with] a heathen is called thy son'!¹⁶ — There is a tradition that the women of that generation were sterilized.¹⁷

Others read: When I mentioned the matter¹⁸ in the presence of Samuel he said to me, 'They did not move from there until they had declared them¹⁹ to be perfect heathens; as it is said in the Scriptures, They have dealt treacherously against the Lord, for they have begotten strange children.'²⁰

R. Joseph sat behind R. Kahana while R. Kahana sat before Rab Judah, and while sitting he made the following statement: 'Israel will make a festival when Tarmod will have been destroyed'.²¹ But, surely, it was destroyed! — That²² was Tammod.²³

R. Ashi said: Tarmod and Tammod are identical, but the city was rebuilt;²⁴ when it was destroyed on one side it was settled on the other side, and when the other side was destroyed it was settled on the first side.²⁵

R. Hamnuna sat before 'Ulla and was engaged in discussing a traditional law when the latter remarked,²⁶ 'What a man! And how much more important would he have been²⁷ had not Harpania²⁸ been his [native] town'! As the other was embarrassed, he said to him, 'Where do you pay poll tax'? — 'To Pum Nahara', the other replied. 'If so', 'Ulla said, 'You belong to Pum Nahara'. What [is the meaning of] Harpania? — R. Zera replied: A mountain whither everybody²⁹ turns.³⁰ In a Baraitha it was taught: Whosoever did not know his family and his tribe³¹ made his way thither. Raba said: And it was deeper than the nether-world,³² for in the Scripture it is said, I shall ransom them from the power of the nether-world; I shall redeem them from death,³³ but for the unfitness of these there is no remedy at all; the unfit of Harpania on account of the unfit of Meshan,³⁴ and the unfit of Meshan on account of the unfit of Tarmod,³⁵ and the unfit of Tarmod on account of the slaves of Solomon.³⁶ Thus it is that people say, 'The small kab and the big kab³⁷ roll down to the nether-world, from the netherworld to Tarmod,³⁸ from Tarmod to Meshan, and from Meshan to Harpania.'³⁹

FIRST commits no error', since 'first' may signify¹ 'first to be subject [to the levirate marriage]'; and 'he who uses the expression SECOND also commits no error', since 'second' may signify 'second to marry',² Does not our Mishnah, however, include also³ the case of one who contracted the levirate marriage first and subsequently married his other wife?⁴ What, then, is meant by 'second'? Second in respect of her marriages.⁵

Where [in the Scriptures] is [the prohibition of marrying] 'the wife of his brother who was not his contemporary' written? — Rab Judah replied in the name of Rab: Scripture states, If brethren dwell together,⁶ i.e., dwell in the world at the same time; the wife of one's brother who was not his contemporary is consequently excluded; 'together' implies who are together in respect of inheritance,⁷ a maternal brother is, therefore, excluded.

Rabbah said: [That legal] brothers [are only those who are descended] from the same father is deduced by a comparison of this 'brotherhood'⁸ with the 'brotherhood' of the sons of Jacob;⁹ as there [the brotherhood was derived] from the father¹⁰ and not from the mother,¹¹ so here also [the brotherhood spoken of is that] from the father and not from the mother.¹²

Let him rather deduce this 'brotherhood'⁸ from the 'brotherhood' of forbidden relatives!¹³ — Brethren⁸ may be deduced from brethren,⁹ but not brethren⁸ from thy brother.¹⁴ What practical difference is there [between the two expression]? Surely the School of R. Ishmael taught: And the priest shall return,¹⁵ and the priest shall come,¹⁶ 'returning' and 'coming' are the same thing!¹⁷ — Such an analogy is drawn only¹⁸ where there is no other identical word; when, however, there occurs another word which is identical, the analogy is made only with that which is identical.

Let him, then, deduce this 'brotherhood'¹⁹ from the 'brotherhood' in the case of Lot, since it is written in the Scriptures. For we are brethren!²⁰ -It stands to reason that the deduction should be made from the sons of Jacob. because the [analogous expression] is available for the purpose;²¹ for it could have been written, Thy servants are twelve sons of one man²² and yet 'brethren' also was written. Hence it must be inferred that the word was made available for the deduction.²³

It was necessary for Scripture to write brethren,²⁴ and it was also necessary to write together.²⁴ For had the All Merciful written 'brethren' only, it might have been suggested that this 'brotherhood' should be deduced from the 'brotherhood' in the case of Lot. And were you to reply that [the analogous word]²⁵, is not available for deduction,²¹ your statement would be negated,²⁶ [the analogous word] being indeed available; for whereas he could have written 'friends' and yet wrote 'brethren', the inference must be that the object was to render it available for analogous deduction; hence the All Merciful has written 'together', implying only those who are together in respect of inheritance.²⁷ If, [on the other hand,] the All Merciful had only written 'together', it might have been said to refer to such as have the same father and mother; [hence both expressions were] required.

But how could you have arrived at such an opinion?²⁸ The All Merciful has, surely, made²⁹ the levirate marriage dependent on inheritance,³⁰ and inheritance³¹ is derived from the father and not from the mother!³² -It³³ was necessary. For it might have been assumed that whereas this³⁴ is an anomaly,³⁵ a forbidden relative³⁶ having been permitted, the brotherhood must, therefore, be both paternal and maternal; [hence it was] necessary [to teach us that the law was not so].

R. Huna said in the name of Rab: If a woman awaiting the decision of the levir!³⁷ died, [the levir] is permitted to marry her mother. This obviously shews that he!³⁸ is of the opinion that no levirate bond³⁹ exists⁴⁰ let him then say, the halachah is in accordance with the view of him who said no levirate bond exists!⁴¹ — If he had said so, it might have been suggested that this applied only to the case of two⁴² but that in the case of one⁴³ a levirate bond does exist. Then let him say, 'The halachah is in accordance with him who said no levirate bond exists even in the case of one levir'!⁴⁴ — If he had said so it might have been assumed even where she⁴⁵ is alive;⁴⁶ hence he taught us that only after death and not when she is still alive, because it is forbidden to abolish the commandment of levirate marriages.

We learned, 'If his deceased brother's wife died he may marry her sister',⁴⁷ which implies that her sister only may be married but not her mother! — The same law applies even to her mother; only because he taught in the earlier clause 'if his wife died he is permitted to marry her sister' in which case only her sister is meant and not her mother, since the latter is Biblically prohibited, he also taught in the latter clause 'he is permitted to marry her sister'.⁴⁸

Rab Judah, however, said: If a woman awaiting the decision of the levir⁴⁹ died, the levir is still forbidden to marry her mother. This⁵⁰ obviously implies that he⁵¹ is of the opinion that a levirate bond exists,⁵² let him then say, the halachah is in accordance with the view of him who said a levirate bond exists!⁵³ -If he had said so it might have been suggested that this applied only to the case of one,⁵⁴ but in the case of two⁵⁵ no levirate bond exists. But the dispute,⁵⁶ surely, centered round the question of two!⁵⁷ — But [this is really the reply]: If he⁵¹ had said so⁵⁸

(13) The nakedness of thy brother's wife (Lev. XVIII, 26) which includes (v. infra 55a) the wife of a maternal brother.

(14) In the case of the levirate marriage (Deut. xxv, 5) as well as that of Jacob's sons (Gen. XLII, 13) the expression is אֶחָיו 'brethren'; In that of Lev. XVIII, 16 it is אֶחָיְךָ 'thy brother'.

(15) Lev. XIV, 39.

(16) Ibid. v. 44.

(17) And an analogy between them may be drawn. Though in that case the expressions ושב and ובא, are derived from different roots they are nevertheless, owing to their similarity in meaning. employed for the purposes of an analogy ('Er. 51a, Yoma 2b, Naz. 5a, Mak. 13b, Hor. 8b et a.l.), how much more so should an analogy be justified between the same nouns which differ only (v. supra p. 95' n. 14) in their suffixes!

(18) Lit., 'these words'.

(19) The expression 'brethren' in Deut. xxv, 5 in relation to the levirate marriage.

(20) Gen. Xlii, 8. Lot having been Abraham's nephew the deduction would establish a novel law of marriage with a deceased uncle's or nephew's widow.

(21) Lit., 'vacant'.

(22) Gen. XLII, 23. Cur. edd., read, in. stead of 'one man', 'our father', which occurs in v. 32. If the reference were to the latter verse 'thy servants' which does not occur there would have to be deleted here. Several MSS. support the reading here adopted.

(23) Lit., 'to make it vacant.

(24) Deut. xxv, 5.

(25) In the case of Lot.

(26) לאִי (cf. Jast.) or לאִי (cf. Levy). Contract. of לאִי הִי 'not it'. Aruk: derivation is from לאִי + Gr.  'not so my son'.

(27) V. supra p. 95, n. 7.

(28) Lit., 'and this, whence does it come', i.e., how could any one have assumed that the levirate marriage should only apply to brothers from the same father and mother?

(29) Lit 'hung'.

(30) [Infra 24a.

(31) Of one's brother.

(32) What need then was there for the expression 'brethren'?

(33) The expression 'brethren,.

(34) Levirate marriage.

(35) Lit., 'something novel'.

(36) A brother's wife.

(37) שומרת יבם a woman during the period between the death of her husband and the levirate marriage or halizah.

(38) Rab.

(39) זיקה v. Glos.

(40) Between the widow of the deceased brother and the levir, prior to the levirate marriage. Had such a bond existed, her mother would have been forbidden to the levir as his mother-in. law.

(41) V. infra 41a.

(42) Brothers. Since it is not known which of them will actually marry her, the levirate bond is necessarily weak.

(43) Who alone is entitled to marry her,

(44) Infra 29b.

(45) The widow.

(46) Her mother is permitted to the levir. Consequently she would be exempted from halizah as 'his wife's daughter'.

(47) Infra 49a.

(48) Her mother, however, is equally permitted.

(49) V. supra, p. 97' n. 11.

(50) The prohibition to marry her mother prior to the levirate marriage as if she had already been his actual mother-in-law.

(51) Rab Judah.

(57) Brothers. How then could it possibly have been assumed that the halachah referred to the case of one brother only?

(58) That the halachah was in accordance with the view of him who said that a levirate bond exists between the widow and the levir prior to the levirate marriage.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 18a

it might have been assumed [that this holds good only] while she is alive but that after death the bond is broken,¹ hence it was taught that the levirate bond is not automatically² dissolved.

May it be suggested that the following supports his view: 'If his deceased brother's wife died, the levir is permitted to marry her sister', which implies her sister Only but not her mother?³ — The same law may apply even to her mother; but because he taught in the earlier clause, 'if his wife died he is permitted to marry her sister', in which case her sister only is permitted and not her mother, the latter being forbidden Biblically, he also taught in the latter clause, 'he is permitted to marry her sister'.

R. Huna b. Hiyya raised an objection: IF HE ADDRESSED THE MA'AMAR TO HER AND DIED, THE SECOND MUST PERFORM HALIZAH BUT MAY NOT ENTER INTO THE LEVIRATE MARRIAGE.⁴ The reason then⁵ is because he addressed to her⁶ the ma' amar, but had he not addressed a ma'amar to her,⁵ the second also would have been permitted to enter into the levirate marriage with him. Now, if it be maintained that the levirate bond does exist,⁷ the second, owing to this bond, would be the rival of the 'wife of his brother who was not his contemporary'!⁸ — Rabbah replied: The same law, that the second must perform the halizah with, but may not be married to the levir, applies even to the case where no ma'amar was addressed to her;⁶ and the ma'amar was mentioned only in order to exclude the view of Beth Shammai. Since they maintain that the ma'amar effects a perfect contract,⁹ he teaches us [that it was not so].

Abaye pointed out the following objection to him:¹⁰ In the case of two [contemporary] brothers one of whom died without Issue, and the second determined¹¹ to address a ma'amar to his deceased brother's wife¹² but before he managed to address a ma amar to her a third¹³ brother was born and he himself died, the first¹⁴ is exempt¹⁵ as 'the wife of his brother who was not his contemporary' while the second¹⁶ either performs the halizah or enters into the levirate marriage.¹⁷ Now, if it be maintained that a levirate bond does exist,¹⁸ the second, owing to this bond, would be the rival of 'the wife¹⁹ of his brother who was not his contemporary'!²⁰ Whose view is this? It is that of R. Meir, who holds that no levirate bond exists.

Does R. Meir, however, maintain that no levirate bond exists?¹⁸ Surely we have learned: In the case of four brothers two of whom were married to two sisters, if those who were married to the sisters died, behold their widows perform the halizah but may not be taken in levirate marriage [by either of the levirs].²¹ Now, if R. Meir is of the opinion that no levirate bond exists,²² these would come from two different houses,²³ and one brother could marry the one while the other could marry the other! — The fact is that [R. Meir maintains that] no levirate bond exists; [but the levirate marriage is nevertheless forbidden] because he is of the opinion that it is forbidden to annul the precept of levirate marriages, it being possible that while one of the brothers married [one of the widowed sisters] the other brother would die,²⁴ and thus the precept of levirate marriages would be annulled.²⁵

If, however, no levirate bond exists, let [also the precept of the levirate marriage] be annulled! For R. Gamaliel who holds that no levirate bond exists²⁶ also [maintains that] the precept of the levirate marriage may be annulled; as we learned; R. Gamaliel said, 'If she²⁷ made a declaration of refusal²⁸ well and good;²⁹ if she did not make a declaration of refusal let [the elder sister] wait until [the minor] grows up³⁰ and this one³¹ is then exempt as his wife's sister'!³² -The other³³ said to him: Are you pointing out a contradiction between the opinion of R. Meir and that of R. Gamaliel?³⁴ No

[replied Abaye]; we mean to say this: Does R. Meir provide even against a doubtful annulment³⁵ and R. Gamaliel does not provide even against a certainty!³⁶ — It is quite possible that he who does not provide³⁷ makes no provision even against a certain annulment, while he who does provide³⁷ makes provision even against a doubtful annulment.³⁸

Said Abaye to R. Joseph: Rab Judah's statement³⁹ is Samuel's;⁴⁰ for we learnt:

(1) Lit., 'burst', 'split'.

(2) Lit., 'by nothing', 'without formality', i.e., without the due performance of the halizah.

(3) Because she is presumably regarded as his mother-in-law.

(4) Supra 17a, q.v. for notes.

(5) Why the levirate marriage is forbidden to the second

(6) The first, the widow of the first deceased brother.

(7) Between the widow and the levir, from the moment her husband, the first brother, died.

(8) With whom levirate marriage is forbidden.

(9) Lit., 'acquires perfect possession', i.e., the widow is regarded as the legal wife of the second brother, and his own wife thus becomes her rival and is consequently exempt even from the halizah.

(10) To Rabbah.

(11) Lit., 'stood'.

(12) The widow of the first deceased brother.

(13) Lit., 'to him'.

(14) The widow of the first deceased brother.

(15) From the halizah and levirate marriage of the third brother.

(16) Her rival, the widow of the second deceased brother.

(17) With the third brother. Infra 19a.

(18) v. supra p. 99' n. 5.

(19) The bond being regarded to be just as binding as actual marriage.

(20) And she should be exempt.

(21) 'Ed. V, 5' infra 23b, 26a, 7b; because, obviously, both are bound by a levirate bond to both surviving brothers and each is the sister of a woman who is connected with either of the brothers by such a levirate bond.

(22) V. supra p. 99' n. 5.

(23) None of them standing in any marital relationship with either of the surviving brothers.

(24) And be prevented from marrying the other widow.

(25) Since the surviving brother would not be able to marry (or to participate in the halizah of) the second widow who is now his wife's sister.

(26) Infra 51a.

(27) A minor who was married to one brother while her sister had been married to another brother who died without issue.

(28) A minor may refuse to live with her husband and no divorce is needed in her case. V. Glos. s.v. m1 un.

(29) Lit., 'she refused'. By her declaration of refusal her marriage becomes null and void retrospectively. As she has thus never been the legal wife of the levir, her sister (being no more his 'wife's sister') may contract the levirate marriage with him.

(30) And becomes the legal wife of the surviving brother.

(31) I.e., the elder sister.

(32) Infra 79b, 109a; which shews that R. Gamaliel permits the annulment of the law of the levirate marriage. Similarly, if R. Meir maintains, like R. Gamaliel, that no levirate bond exists, he should also permit the annulment of the precept of the levirate marriage.

(33) Rabbah.

(34) Though they may agree on the question of the levirate bond, it does not necessarily follow that they agree also on the question of permission to annul the precept of the levirate marriage.

(35) Supra; the possibility that one of the brothers might die.

(36) It is a certainty that when the minor becomes of age the elder sister will be precluded from both marriage and halizah. This wide divergence of opinion is unlikely. Hence the fear of annulling the levirate marriage cannot be the reason for R. Meir's ruling in the above cited Mishnah; and consequently R. Meir cannot be of the opinion that no levirate bond exists.

(37) Against the annulment of the precept of the levirate marriage.

(38) So that R. Meir need not necessarily agree with R. Gamaliel on this point though he will agree with him on the question of the levirate bond.

(39) That if a woman awaiting the decision of the levir died, the levir is still forbidden to marry her mother (supra 17b end).

(40) Not Rab's who also was his teacher.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 18b

If the brother of the levir had betrothed the sister of the widow who was awaiting the levir's decision,¹ he is told, so it has been stated in the name of R. Judah b. Bathyra, 'Wait² until your brother has taken action';³ and Samuel said, 'The halachah is in accordance with the ruling of R. Judah b. Bathyra'.⁴ The other⁵ asked him: 'What [objection could there be] if the statement⁶ be attributed to Rab?⁷ Is it the contradiction between the two statements of Rab?⁸ Surely it is possible that these Amoraim⁹ are in dispute as to what was the opinion of Rab!' — Since this ruling was stated with certainty in the name of Samuel, while as to Rab's view [on the matter] Amoraim differ, we do not ignore¹⁰ the statement attributing it with certainty to Samuel in favour of the one¹¹ which involves Amoraim In a dispute as to the opinion of Rab.

Said R. Kahana: I reported the statement¹² in the presence of R. Zebid of Nehardea, when he said: You teach it thus;¹³ our version is explicit:¹⁴ 'Rab Judah stated in the name of Samuel, "If a woman awaiting the decision of the levir died, [the levir] is forbidden to marry her mother", from which it naturally follows that he is of the opinion that a levirate bond exists'.¹⁵ Samuel is here consistent; for Samuel said, 'The halachah is in accordance with the view of R. Judah b. Bathyra'.

Said [both statements¹⁶ are] necessary. For had he only stated, 'A levirate bond exists', it might have been assumed to refer to the case of one levir only¹⁷ but not to that of two,¹⁸ hence we are taught¹⁹ [that the Same law applies also to two]. And if it had only been stated, 'The halachah is in accordance with the opinion of R. Judah b. Bathyra', it might have been assumed [that the levirate bond is in force] while the widow²⁰ is alive but that after her death the bond is dissolved, hence we are taught²¹ that the levirate bond Is not dissolved automatically.²²

MISHNAH. IF THERE WERE TWO BROTHERS AND ONE OF THEM DIED,²³ AND THE SECOND PERFORMED THE LEVIRATE MARRIAGE WITH HIS [DECEASED] BROTHER'S WIFE, AND AFTER A [THIRD] BROTHER WAS BORN THE SECOND DIED,²³ THE FIRST²⁴ IS EXEMPT²⁵ ON ACCOUNT OF HER BEING THE WIFE OF HIS BROTHER WHO WAS NOT HIS CONTEMPORARY', WHILE THE SECOND IS EXEMPT AS HER RIVAL.²⁶ IF HE²⁷ ADDRESSED TO HER²⁸ A MA'AMAR AND DIED,²⁹ THE SECOND MUST PERFORM THE HALIZAH³⁰ BUT SHE MAY NOT BE TAKEN IN LEVIRATE MARRIAGE. R. SIMEON SAID:³¹ HE³² MAY EITHER TAKE IN LEVIRATE MARRIAGE WHICHEVER OF THEM HE DESIRES³³ OR HE MAY PARTICIPATE IN THE HALIZAH WITH WHICHEVER OF THEM HE DESIRES.³³

GEMARA. R. Oshaia said: R. Simeon disputed the first case also'²⁴ Whence is this inferred? From the existence Cf a Super. fluous Mishnah. For in accordance with whose view was it necessary to teach the clause of the first [Mishnah]? If it be suggested, [according to that] of the Rabbis, [it may be retorted]: If when the levirate marriage had taken place first and the birth³⁴ occurred afterwards, in which case he,³⁵ found her³⁶ permitted,³⁷ the Rabbis nevertheless forbade her,³⁸ is there any need [for them to specify prohibition in the case where] the birth³⁴ occurred first and the marriage took place afterwards!³⁹ Consequently⁴⁰ it must have been required [in connection with the view] of R. Simeon; and the first [Mishnah] was taught in order to point out to you how far R. Simeon⁴¹ is prepared to go⁴² while the last Mishnah was taught in order to show you how far the Rabbis⁴³ are prepared to go. It would, indeed, have been logical for R. Simeon to express his dissent in the first case, but he waited for the Rabbis to conclude their statement and then he expressed his dissent with their entire statement.⁴⁴

How, in view of what has been said,⁴⁵ is it possible according to R. Simeon to find a case of ‘a wife of his brother who was not his contemporary’?⁴⁶ — In the case of one brother who died and a second brother was subsequently⁴⁷ born;⁴⁸ or also in the case of two brothers⁴⁹ where the second has neither taken the widow in the levirate marriage nor died.⁵⁰

One can well understand [R. Simeon's reason]⁵¹ where the levirate marriage⁵² took place first and the birth⁵³ afterwards, for in this case he found her permitted;⁵⁴ where, however, the birth occurred first and the levirate marriage took place afterwards,⁵⁵ what [reason [could be advanced]]?⁵⁶ -He holds the opinion that a levirate bond exists⁵⁷ and that such a bond is like actual marriage.⁵⁸

R. Joseph demurred: If R. Simeon is in doubt as to whether in the case of a ‘levirate bond’ and a ‘ma amar’ combined the widow should or should not be regarded as married, need there be any [doubt in the case of] a ‘levirate bond’ alone?⁵⁹ Whence is this known?⁶⁰ — We have learned: In the case where three brothers were married to three women who were strangers [to one another] and, one of the brothers having died, the second brother addressed to her⁶¹, a ma'amar and died, behold these⁶² must perform halizah with, but may not marry the [surviving] levir; for it is said in the Scriptures, And one of them die [etc.], her husband's brother shall go in unto her,⁶³ only she⁶⁴ who is tied to one levir,⁶⁵ but not she who is tied to two levirs.⁶⁶ R. Simeon said: He⁶⁷ may take in levirate marriage whichever of them he pleases⁶⁸ and submits to the halizah of the other.⁶⁹ He must not take both widows in levirate marriage since it is possible that a levirate bond exists⁷⁰ and thus the two sisters-in-law⁷¹ would be coming from one house.¹ Nor must he take one In levirate marriage and thereby exempt the other, for it is possible that the levirate bond is not as binding as actual marriage, and the two sisters-in-law would thus be coming from two houses.² From this it clearly follows that he³ is in doubt.⁴ And should you reply that Biblically one of the widows may indeed be taken in levirate marriage and the other is thereby exempt, but that this procedure had Rabbinically been forbidden as a preventive measure against the possibility of the assumption that where two sisters-in-law came from two houses⁵ one may be taken in levirate marriage and the other is thereby exempt without any further ceremonial;⁶ surely [it may be pointed out] R. Simeon's reason is because of his doubt as to the validity of the levir's ma'amar!⁷ For it was taught: R. Simeon said to the Sages, 'If the ma'amar of the second brother is valid he⁸ is marrying the wife of the second; and if the ma'amar of the second is invalid he is marrying the wife of the first'! — Said Abaye to him:⁹ Do you not make any distinction between the levirate bond with one levir and the levirate bond with two levirs? It is quite possible that R. Simeon said the levirate bond is like actual marriage in the case of one levir only¹⁰ but not in that of two levirs.¹¹

Does R. Simeon, however, recognize such a distinction?¹² Surely it was taught: R. Simeon has laid down a general rule that wherever the birth¹³ preceded the marriage¹⁴ the widow is neither to perform halizah nor to be taken in levirate marriage. If the marriage¹⁴ preceded the birth¹³ she may either perform the halizah or be taken In levirate marriage. Does not this apply to one levir?¹⁵ And yet It is stated 'she is neither to perform halizah nor to be taken in levirate marriage'!¹⁶ — No; it applies to two levirs.¹⁷ But in the case of one levir,¹⁷ may she in such circumstances also¹⁸ either perform halizah or contract levirate marriage? If so, instead of stating, 'If the marriage preceded the birth she may either perform halizah or be taken in levirate marriage' the distinction should have been drawn in this very case itself,¹⁹ thus: 'This applies only to the case of two brothers-in-law but with one brother-in-law she may either perform halizah or be taken in levirate marriage'! — The entire passage dealt with two brothers-in-law.²⁰

What, then, is meant by the general rule?²¹ And a further objection²² was raised by R. Oshaia: If there were three brothers and two of them were married to two sisters, or to a woman and her daughter, or to a woman and her daughter's daughters or to a woman and her son's daughter, behold these²³ must²⁴ perform the halizah²⁵ but may not be taken in levirate marriage.²⁶ R. Simeon, however, exempts them.²⁷ Now, if it be assumed that R. Simeon is of the opinion that the 'levirate bond' has the same force as actual marriage, let [the third brother] take the first widow²⁸ In levirate marriage and let the other²⁹ be thereby exempt.³⁰ R. Amram replied: The meaning of 'exempt'³¹ is that he exempts the second widow,³² But has it not been taught: R. Simeon exempts them both?³³ -Raba replied: The second of the one pair and the second of the other pair.³⁴ Raba, however, was mistaken [in the interpretation] of the four pairs.³⁵ For, in the first instance, we have twice the word 'or',³⁶ and, furthermore, [if Raba's interpretation were the correct one]³⁷ it should [have read], 'R. Simeon exempts the four'.³⁸ Furthermore, it was taught: R. Simeon exempts both³⁹ from the halizah and from the levirate marriage, for it is said in the Scriptures, And thou shalt not take a woman to her sister, to be a rival to her,⁴⁰ when they become rivals to one another⁴¹ you may not marry even one of them!⁴² But, said R. Ashi: If they⁴³ had become subject [to the levir] one after the other, the law would indeed have been so.⁴⁴ Here,⁴⁵ however, we are dealing with the case where both become subject to him at the same time; and R. Simeon shares the view of R. Jose the Galilean who stated, 'It is possible to ascertain simultaneous occurrence'.⁴⁶

R. Papa⁴⁷ said: R. Simeon differs⁴⁸ only where the levirate marriage⁴⁹ took place first, and the birth⁵⁰ afterwards; he does not differ, however, when the birth⁵⁰ occurred first, and the marriage⁴⁹ took place afterwards; and both these cases⁵¹ are required on account of the Rabbis,⁵² and⁵³ [a stronger case is given after a weaker] 'not only this⁵⁴ but also that'.⁵⁵

It was taught in agreement with R. Papa⁵⁶ and in contradiction to R. Oshaia: If one of two contemporary brothers died without issue, and the second intended to address a ma'amar to his deceased brother's wife but before he was able to do so a third brother was born and he himself died, the first widow is exempt⁵⁷ as 'the wife of the brother who was not his contemporary', and the second⁵⁸ may either perform the halizah or be taken in levirate marriage. If, however, he⁵⁹ addressed a ma'amar to the widow and subsequently a third brother was born, or if a third brother was born first and he⁵⁹ addressed the ma'amar to the widow subsequently, and died, the first widow is exempt⁵⁷ as 'the wife of his brother who was not his contemporary' while the second⁵⁸ must perform the halizah,⁶⁰ though she may not be taken in levirate marriage.

(1) One as actual, the other as virtual wife of the same husband, the second brother. The Torah required the levir 'to build up his brother's house' (Deut. XXV, 9) from which it is inferred that it is his duty to build up only a house but not houses, i.e., to marry his brother's one wife but not his two wives.

(2) Both of whom are subject to the levirate marriage. and one of whom cannot exempt the other.

(4) As to whether a levirate bond exists. Cf. supra p. 105, n. 9.

(5) Where two brothers died simultaneously; when the one widow is as much tied to him as the other.

(6) Lit., 'with nothing'.

(7) Lit., 'saying and not saying' or 'ma'amar and not ma'amar'.

(8) The third brother.

(9) R. Joseph.

(10) As in our Mishnah where the first brother was survived by one brother only. The subsequent birth of a third brother does not affect the levirate any more than it can affect an actual marriage.

(11) Of which the cited Baraita speaks. There, when the first brother died he was survived by two brothers.

(12) Between one levir and two.

(13) Of a third brother.

(14) Of the second brother with the widow of the first.

(15) Who survived the first deceased brother after whose death the third brother was born.

(16) Which proves that even in the case of one levir R. Simeon does not recognize the existence of a levirate bond.

(17) Cf. supra note 4.

(18) Where the birth of the third preceded the marriage of the second.

(19) Where birth preceded marriage.

(20) The Tanna preferred to draw a distinction between two sets of circumstances both of which relate to the brothers-in-law rather than to draw a distinction between one brother-in-law and two brothers-in-law in the same set of circumstances.

(21) According to which neither halizah nor levirate marriage is allowed whenever the birth preceded the marriage. Both, according to what has just been said, are permissible in the case of one levir.

- (22) Against the statement that R. Simeon regards the levirate bond as actual marriage.
- (23) The women enumerated.
- (24) If their husbands, the two brothers, died without issue.
- (25) With the third surviving brother.
- (26) By that brother; since both are equally related to him by the same 'levirate bond' and each is forbidden to him as the consanguineous relative of the woman connected with him by such bond.
- (27) Infra 28b; even from the halizah.
- (28) I.e., the widow whose husband had died first, and who, through the 'levirate bond', is regarded as the levir's virtual wife even before he married her.
- (29) Her consanguineous relative, the widow of the second deceased brother.
- (30) As a forbidden relative; being consanguineous with his virtual wife.
- (31) In R. Simeon's statement.
- (32) Whose husband died last. The first, however, is to be taken in levirate marriage.
- (33) Infra 28b, Rid. 50b.
- (34) 'Both' used by R. Simeon refers to the second of each pair. Raba assumed that the two brothers had married two sisters and also a mother and her daughter. One of the first is taken in levirate marriage and the others are thereby exempt either as 'forbidden relatives' or 'rivals'.
- (35) Enumerated in the cited Mishnah, assuming as he did that it meant marriage by the two brothers of more than one pair (v. previous note).
- (36) 'Or' occurs after the enumeration of each pair.
- (37) Viz., that R. Simeon's exemption refers to the second of each pair.
- (38) Since four pairs were enumerated.
- (39) Widows of the first brother.
- (40) Lev. XVIII, 18.
- (41) As in the case cited, where each of the two brothers was married to one of each pair, and when the first brother died all his widows became subject to levirate marriage with the second brother and thus become rivals.
- (42) Even the first widow. Consequently R. Simeon's exemption applies to all, which shews that he recognizes no distinction on the question of the levirate bond between one levir and two levirs!
- (43) The widows.
- (44) That the 'levirate bond' in the case of one levir being recognized even by R. Simeon as being as forcible as actual marriage. the levir (the third brother) marries the first while the other is exempt, though her husband (the second brother) died before he actually married the first.
- (45) In the Mishnah cited by R. Oshaia in objection against the view attributing to R. Simeon a distinction between one levir and two levirs.
- (46) I.e., to ascertain that two things occur exactly at one and the same moment, Bek. 17a. Hence it may happen that both brothers die simultaneously and both widows simultaneously become subject to the third brother and consequently, on the view of R. Simeon, both exempt from halizah and levirate marriage.
- (47) Disagreeing with R. Oshaia, supra 18b.
- (48) From the Rabbis of our Mishnah.
- (49) With the second brother.
- (50) Of the third brother.
- (51) 'Marriage before birth' in our Mishnah and 'birth before marriage' in the previous one.
- (52) To shew that they exempt not only in the one case but also in the other. Cf. infra notes 11-12
- (53) As to the objection raised (supra 18b): Since they exempt in the second case, what need was there to mention the first which could have been inferred from it a minori ad majus?
- (54) The case in the first Mishnah, the birth of the third brother before the marriage of the second, where the birth occurred while the widow was still under a prohibition to marry him.
- (55) The case in the second Mishnah, where the birth of the third brother occurred when the widow was already permitted to him.
- (56) That when the birth of the third brother occurred prior to the marriage of the second with the widow of the first, R. Simeon agrees with the Rabbis.
- (57) From marriage and halizah with the third brother.

(58) The widow of the second brother.

(59) The second brother.

(60) The ma'amar addressed to the first widow not having 'the same force as actual marriage to render the second brother's wife her rival to be exempt from halizah as well as from the levirate marriage with the third brother.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 19b

R. Simeon said: Intercourse or halizah with the one of them¹ exempts her rival.² If, however, he³ participated in halizah with her to whom [the second brother had] addressed the ma'amar, her rival is not exempt.⁴ If he¹ married her⁵ and died, and a [third] brother was subsequently born, or if a [third] brother was born, and subsequently he married her⁵ and died, both [widows] are exempt from the halizah and the levirate marriage. If he married her⁵ and [after that a third] brother was born and then he himself died, both widows are exempt from the halizah and the levirate marriage; this is the opinion of R. Meir. R. Simeon, however, said: Since, when he⁶ came [into the world] he found her⁷ permitted to him,⁸ and she was never forbidden to him even for one moment, he⁶ may take in levirate marriage whichever of them he desires or he may participate in the halizah with whichever of them he desires. Now, in accordance with whose view was the case in the latter clause⁹ taught?¹⁰ If it be suggested that it was taught in accordance with the view of R. Meir,¹¹ it might be observed that, as R. Meir draws no distinction between marriage that was followed by birth and birth that was followed by marriage, all these cases should have been combined in one statement!¹² Consequently it must have been in accordance with the view of R. Simeon who thus differs¹³ only in the case where the levirate marriage was followed by birth¹⁴ but does not differ¹³ where birth was followed by levirate marriage.¹⁵ Our point is thus proved.

The Master said, '[If] the second intended to address a ma'amar to his deceased brother's wife but before he was able to do so, a third brother was born while he himself died, the first widow is exempt as "the wife of the brother who was not his contemporary and the second may either perform halizah or be taken in levirate marriage'. What is meant by 'he intended' and what by 'he was not able'? If he did it, it is an accomplished fact;¹⁶ and if he did not do it, it is not an accomplished fact!¹⁶ -In fact [this is the meaning:] 'He intended' with her consent and 'he was not able' with her consent but against her wish.¹⁷

This,¹⁸ however, is not in agreement with the view of Rabbi. For it was taught: If a man addressed a ma'amar to his deceased brother's wife against her consent, Rabbi regards this as legal [betrothal].¹⁹ But the Sages say, This is not a legal [betrothal]. What is Rabbi's reason?-He deduces [this form of betrothal] from the intercourse with the wife of a deceased brother; as the Intercourse with the wife of a deceased brother may be effected against her will²⁰ so may the betrothal of the wife of a deceased brother be effected against her will. And the Rabbis?-They deduce it from the usual form of betrothal;²¹ as the usual betrothal can be effected with the woman's consent only so may the betrothal of a yebamah²² be effected with her consent only. On what principle do they differ? — One Master²³ is of the opinion that matters relating to a yebamah should be inferred from matters relating to a yebamah and the Masters²⁴ are of the opinion that matters of betrothal should be inferred from matters of betrothal.²⁵

'If, however, he addressed a ma'amar to the widow, and subsequently a third brother was born, or if a third brother was born first and he²⁶ addressed the ma'amar to the widow subsequently and died, the first widow is exempt as "the wife of his brother who was not his contemporary" while the second must perform the halizah, though she may not be taken in levirate marriage. R. Simeon said: Intercourse or halizah with the one of them exempts her rival'.²⁷ What is R. Simeon referring to?²⁸ If it should be suggested, 'To the case where the third brother was born first and he²⁶ addressed the ma'amar subsequently's surely it has been stated, that where birth preceded marriage R. Simeon does not differ from the Rabbis!²⁹ — But [the reference is] to the case where the ma'amar was addressed first and the third brother was born subsequently. Hence, 'if he participated in halizah with her to whom [the second brother had] addressed the ma'amar, her rival is not exempt', because³⁰ the [subjection of the] rival³¹ is a certainty³² while [the subjection of her] to whom the ma'amar had been addressed is doubtful,³³ and no doubt may over-ride³⁴ a certainty.

R. Manasseh b. Zebid sat in the presence of R. Huna, and in the course of the session he said: What is R. Simeon's reason?³⁵ — 'What is R. Simeon's reason'! [Surely it is] as it has been stated: The reason is 'because when he was born he found her permitted to him, and she was never forbidden him even for one moment'!³⁶ But [the question rather is] what is the reason of the Rabbis?³⁷ -Scripture said, A/Id take her to him to wife, and perform the duty of a husband's brother unto her,³⁸ the former levirate attachment still remains with her.³⁹ But then what of the following⁴⁰ where we learned, 'If he⁴¹ married her⁴² she is regarded as his wife in every respect'⁴³ and [in connection with this] R. Jose b. Hanina said, 'This teaches

(1) I.e., the second widow.

(2) As will be explained infra this applies to the case where the ma'amar was addressed to the first widow and the third brother was born subsequently, R. Simeon being of the opinion that it is uncertain whether the ma'amar has the same force as actual marriage or not. The rival is in either case exempt: If the ma'amar was binding, then even the first widow is according to R. Simeon permitted to the third brother, since it is a case of 'marriage prior to birth', and the halizah with the second consequently exempts the first as her rival, both having been married to the same husband; and if the ma'amar was not binding, the first widow is forbidden to the third brother as the widow of 'the brother who was not his contemporary' while the second is not her rival and may be taken in levirate marriage or perform the halizah.

(3) The third brother.

(4) Since it is possible that the ma'amar is not binding and she is in consequence forbidden to him as 'the wife of his brother who was not his contemporary' and her halizah has no validity.

(5) The first widow.

(6) The third brother.

(7) The first widow.

(8) Having been born after her marriage with the second brother had entirely severed her connection with the first brother.

(9) Marriage between the second brother and the first widow, followed by the birth of the third brother, which again was followed by the death of the second.

(10) I.e., in accordance with whose view was it necessary to have the case of marriage prior to birth separated from that of marriage after birth?

(11) To indicate that even in such a case he forbids marriage.

(12) Lit., 'let him mix them and teach them'; the third case, 'if he married her and (after that a third) brother was born and then he himself died' should not have been separated from the previous two cases, since according to R. Meir it matters little whether marriage of the second brother with the first widow preceded or followed the birth of the third brother.

(13) From the Rabbis.

(14) As R. Papa stated. V. supra note 7.

(15) Contrary to the opinion of R. Oshaia.

(16) And the intention is of no consequence.

(17) The object of the statement being that the ma'amar has not even partially the force of marriage if it was made against the woman's will. The second widow may, therefore, be taken in levirate marriage.

(18) That the ma'amar addressed to the wife of a deceased brother (Yebamah. v. Glos.) is invalid unless she consented to the betrothal.

(19) Lit., 'he acquired'.

(20) V supra 8b.

(21) The betrothal of a stranger.

(22) The wife of a deceased brother.

- (28) In differing from the Rabbis. Lit., 'on what does he stand'.
- (29) But agrees that the first widow in relation to the third brother is to be regarded as 'the wife of his brother who was not his contemporary'. Now, since it is possible that the ma'amar is as valid as actual marriage, how could R. Simeon have permitted the rival of a forbidden relative? Furthermore, the expression 'she exempts her rival' would be unsuitable, since her rival has all the time been exempt as the 'wife of the brother who was not his contemporary'.
- (30) Lit., 'what is the reason'.
- (31) To the third brother.
- (32) If the ma'amar was valid both widows are subject to the third brother, since it is a case of marriage before birth; if the ma'amar is invalid, the second is still subjected to the levir since, no marriage having taken place, she is not the rival of a forbidden relative.
- (33) It being possible that the ma'amar is not valid, and the first widow thus remains forbidden to the third brother as 'the wife of his brother who was not his contemporary'. Halizah with her is, therefore, of no validity and cannot exempt the second widow.
- (34) Lit., 'puts out'.
- (35) For permitting levirate marriage with the third brother in the case where the second brother had married the first widow prior to the birth of the third brother.
- (36) Supra, q.v. for notes.
- (37) Why do they forbid the levirate marriage between the first widow and the third brother, where the only relationship between them is through the second brother, the relationship through the first brother having ceased with the levirate marriage of the widow by the second brother prior to the birth of the third?

that he may divorce her with a letter of divorce and that he may remarry her',¹ let it there also be said, 'And perform the duty of a husband's brother unto her',² the former levirate attachment still remains with her' and, consequently, she should require halizah [also]! — There the case is different; since Scripture stated, 'And take her to him to wife',² as soon as he married her she becomes his wife in every respect. If so, [the same deduction should be applied] here also! — Surely the All Merciful has written, 'And perform the duty of a husband's brother unto her'.² And why the differentiation?³ - It stands to reason that permission⁴ should be applied to that which is [also otherwise] permitted,⁵ and that prohibition⁶ should be applied to that which is [also otherwise] prohibited.⁷

According to R. Simeon, however, who stated, 'Because when he was born he found her permitted, and she was never forbidden to him even for one moment',⁸ a brother, if this reason is tenable,⁹ should be allowed to take in levirate marriage his maternal sister whom his paternal brother had married prior to his birth, dying subsequently, since, when he was born, he found her permitted.¹⁰ — Whither did the 'prohibition of sister' vanish?¹¹ — Here, also, whither did the prohibition of 'the wife of the brother who was not his contemporary' vanish! — The one¹² is a prohibition which can never be lifted; the other¹³ is a prohibition which may be lifted.¹⁴

MISHNAH. A GENERAL RULE HAS BEEN LAID DOWN¹⁵ IN RESPECT OF THE DECEASED BROTHER'S WIFE:¹⁶ WHEREVER SHE IS PROHIBITED¹⁷ AS A FORBIDDEN RELATIVE, SHE¹⁸ MAY NEITHER PERFORM THE HALIZAH NOR BE TAKEN IN LEVIRATE MARRIAGE. IF SHE IS PROHIBITED BY VIRTUE OF A COMMANDMENT¹⁹ OR BY VIRTUE OF HOLINESS,²⁰ SHE MUST PERFORM THE HALIZAH AND MAY NOT BE TAKEN IN LEVIRATE MARRIAGE. IF HER SISTER IS ALSO HER SISTER-IN-LAW,²¹ SHE²² MAY PERFORM THE HALIZAH OR MAY BE TAKEN IN LEVIRATE MARRIAGE.²³

PROHIBITED BY VIRTUE OF A COMMANDMENT' [REFERS TO] THE SECONDARY DEGREES IN RELATIONSHIP FORBIDDEN BY THE RULING OF THE SCRIBES. 'PROHIBITED BY VIRTUE OF HOLINESS' [REFERS TO THE FOLLOWING FORBIDDEN CATEGORIES]: A WIDOW TO A HIGH PRIEST;²⁴ A DIVORCED WOMAN, OR ONE THAT HAD PERFORMED HALIZAH TO A COMMON PRIEST;²⁵ A FEMALE BASTARD OR A NETHINAH²⁶ TO AN ISRAELITE;²⁷ AND A DAUGHTER OF AN ISRAELITE,²⁷ TO A NATHIN²⁸ OR A BASTARD.

GEMARA. What was the GENERAL RULE meant to include?²⁹ — R. R. b. papa replied: TO include the rival of a woman who was incapable of procreation, In agreement with the view of R. Assi.³⁰

Some there are who say:³¹ 'Whenever her prohibition is that of a forbidden relative then only is her rival forbidden; when, however, her prohibition is not that of a forbidden relative, her rival is not forbidden'. What was this meant to exclude? — R. R. b. papa replied: To exclude the rival of one incapable of procreation, contrary to the view of R. Assi.³⁰

IF HER SISTER IS ALSO HER SISTER-IN-LAW [etc.]. Whose sister? If the sister of her who is forbidden by Virtue of an ordinance of the Scribes be suggested, fit may be objected,] since, pentateuchally, she³² is subject to the levir, he would³³ come in marital contact with the sister of her who is connected with him by the levirate bond! — It means the sister of her who is prohibited to him as a forbidden relative.

PROHIBITED BY VIRTUE OF A COMMANDMENT', [REFERS TO] THE SECONDARY DEGREES. Why are these designated, PROHIBITED BY VIRTUE OF A COMMANDMENT'?-Abaye replied: Because it is a commandment to obey the rulings of the Sages.

PROHIBITED BY VIRTUE OF HOLINESS'... A WIDOW TO A HIGH PRIEST; A DIVORCED WOMAN, OR ONE WHO HAD PERFORMED THE HALIZAH, TO A COMMON PRIEST. Why are these designated 'PROHIBITED BY VIRTUE OF HOLINESS'?-Because It is written in the Scriptures, They shall be holy unto their God.³⁴

It was taught: R. Judah reverses the order: prohibited by virtue of a commandment [refers to the following prohibited categories:] a widow to a high priest; a divorced woman or one that had performed halizah, to a common priest. And why are these designated, prohibited by virtue of a commandment? — Because it is written in the Scriptures, These are the commandments.³⁵ prohibited by virtue of holiness [refers to] the secondary degrees of relationship forbidden by the rulings of the scribes. And why are these designated, prohibited by virtue of holiness?-Abaye replied: Because whosoever acts in accordance with the rulings of the Rabbis is called a holy man. Said Raba to him: Then he who does not act in accordance with the rulings of the Rabbis is not called a holy man; nor is he called a wicked man either?³⁶ — No, said Raba: 'Sanctify yourself by that which is permitted to you'.³⁷ between a nissu'in³⁸ widow and an erusin³⁸ widow. Now, one can well understand the reason the case of a nissu'in widow [since marriage with her is forbidden by] a positive³⁹ and a negative precept⁴⁰,⁴⁰ and no positive precept⁴¹ may override both a negative and a positive precept. In the case, however, of an erusin widow [marriage with whom is forbidden by] a negative precept only,⁴² let the positive precept⁴¹ override the negative⁴⁰ one? — R. Giddal replied in the name of Rab: Scripture stated, Then his brother's wife shall go up to the 'gate,⁴³ where there was no need to state his brother's wife;⁴⁴ why then was 'his brother's wife' specified? [To indicate that] there is a case of another⁴⁵ brother's wife who goes up for halizah but does not go up for levirate marriage.⁴⁶ And who is she? One of those prohibited⁴⁷ by a negative precept.⁴⁸

Might it⁴⁹ not be said [to include also] such as are subject to the penalty of kareth?⁵⁰ — Scripture said, If the man like not to take,⁵¹ if he likes, however, he may take her in levirate marriage, [hence it is to be inferred that] whosoever may go up to enter into levirate marriage may also go up to perform halizah and whosoever may not go up to enter into levirate marriage⁵² may not go up to perform halizah either. If so, the same should apply also to those forbidden by a negative Precept! — But, surely, the All Merciful has included them [by the expression] 'His brother's wife'. What ground is there for such differentiation?⁵³

— This¹ stands to reason, since betrothal of those forbidden by a negative precept is valid while the betrothal of those subject to kareth is not valid.

Raba raised an objection: In the case of one forbidden by virtue of a commandment or by virtue of holiness, with whom the levir had intercourse or participated in halizah, her rival is thereby exempt. Now, if one is to assume that those forbidden by a negative precept are Pentateuchally subject to halizah but not to the levirate marriage, why should her rival be exempt when he had intercourse with her? He raised the objection and he also supplied the answer: This is to be understood respectively;² 'he had intercourse with her' refers to one prohibited by virtue of a commandment,³ 'participated in halizah with her' refers to the one forbidden by virtue of holiness.⁴

Raba raised an objection: He who is wounded in the stones or has his privy member cut off, a man-made saris,⁵ and an old man, may either participate in halizah, or contract levirate marriage. How?⁶ If these died and were survived by brothers and by wives, and those brothers arose and addressed a ma'amar to the widows, or gave them letters of divorce, or participated with them in halizah, their actions are legally valid;⁷ if they had intercourse with them, the widows become their lawful wives.⁸ If the brothers died and they⁹ arose and addressed a ma'amar to their wives, or gave them divorce, or participated with them in halizah, their actions are valid,⁷ and if they had intercourse with them, the widows become their lawful wives but they¹⁰ may not retain them, because it is said in the Scriptures — He that is wounded in the stones or hath his privy member cut off shall not enter [into the assembly of the Lord] .¹¹ Now, if it could be assumed that those forbidden by a negative precept are Pentateuchally subject to halizah and not to levirate marriage, why should the widows become their lawful wives if they¹² had intercourse with them?¹³

But, said Raba, [say rather that] an erusin widow is forbidden¹⁴ by both a positive and a negative precept, for it is written in the Scriptures, They shall be holy unto their God.¹⁵ What, however, can be said in respect of a bastard or a nethinah?¹⁶ — It is written, And sanctify yourselves.¹⁷ If so,¹⁸ all the [negative precepts of the] Torah should be regarded as positive and negative since it is written in the Scriptures, And sanctify yourselves!¹⁷ But, said Raba, [the fact is that]¹⁹ an erusin widow is forbidden²⁰ as a preventive measure against the marriage of a nissu'in widow.²¹ What, however, can be replied in respect of a bastard and a nethinah?²² — [The prohibition in] the case where a precept is applicable²³ is a preventive measure against [a marriage] where no precept is applicable. If so, let one's paternal brother's wife not be allowed levirate marriage as a preventive measure against marriage with the wife of his maternal brother! — 'We All Merciful made levirate marriage dependent on inheritance²⁴ [and the relationship] is, therefore, well known.²⁵ A woman, then, who has no children should not be taken in levirate marriage as a preventive measure against the marriage of a woman who has children! — The All Merciful made levirate marriage dependent on [the absence of] children, [and the fact²⁶ would be] well known. The wife of one's contemporary brother should not be taken in levirate marriage as a preventive measure against marriage with the wife of one's brother who was not one's contemporary! — The All Merciful has made it²⁷ dependent on dwelling together²⁸ [and the fact]²⁹ is well known. All women should not be taken in levirate marriage as a preventive measure against the marriage of a woman incapable of procreation! — This³⁰ is unusual.³¹ A bastard and a nethinah also are unusual!³² — But, said Raba, [this is the reason]: The first act of Intercourse³³ is forbidden³⁴ as a preventive measure against a second act of intercourse.³⁵

It has been taught likewise: If they³⁶ had intercourse [with any of the forbidden women] they acquire [her as wife] by the first act of intercourse, but may not keep her for a second act of intercourse.³⁷

Subsequently Raba, others say R. Ashi, said: The statement I made³⁸ is valueless,³⁹ for Resh Lakish said, 'Wherever you come upon a combination of a positive and a negative precept and⁴⁰ you are able to act in conformity with both, well and good; but if not, the positive precept must override the negative'.⁴¹ Similarly here⁴² it is possible to perform halizah, whereby one is enabled to keep the positive as well as the negative precept.

An objection was raised: If they³⁶ had intercourse [with any of the forbidden women] they acquire [her as wife]!⁴³ — This is indeed a refutation.

It was stated: Concerning an act of intercourse between a High Priest and a widow⁴⁴ [there is a difference of opinion between] R. Johanan and R. Eleazar. One maintains that it does not exempt her rival,⁴⁵ and the other maintains that it does exempt her rival.⁴⁶)

(1) The inclusion of the one who is prohibited by a negative precept and the exclusion of those who are subject to kareth.

(2) Lit., 'he taught to sides'.

(3) As defined in our Mishnah. I.e., a woman forbidden by Rabbinic ordinance but who is Pentateuchally permitted and subject to levirate marriage. Intercourse with her consequently exempts her rival.

(4) With whom marriage is forbidden, and her halizah only exempts her rival.

(5) Lit., 'eunuch of man', opp. to natural castration due to a disease etc. V. notes on the Mishnah, infra 79b.

(6) I.e., in what circumstances is the law mentioned applicable.

(7) Lit., 'what they have done is done'; a divorce is required in respect of the ma'amar; no marriage may take place after the divorce, though no ma'amar preceded it, and the halizah is valid.

(8) Lit., 'they acquired'.

(9) I.e., the maimed persons mentioned, or the old man.

(10) I.e., those that are maimed. The old man is excluded. V. infra.

(11) Deut. XXIII, 2. V. Tosef. Yeb. XI, infra 79b.

(12) Who are crushed or maimed in their privy parts and who are, therefore, forbidden by a negative precept to marry an Israelite's daughter.

(13) This proves that those forbidden by negative precept are subject to levirate marriage no less than to halizah, and thus the question remains, why should an erusin widow be forbidden in levirate marriage to a High Priest?

(14) To a High Priest.

(15) Lev. XXI, 6. This text adds a positive precept to the negative one of ibid. 14, and for this reason an erusin widow is forbidden in levirate marriage to a High Priest.

(16) Marriage with whom is forbidden by a negative precept only and yet may not be superseded by the positive precept of the levirate.

(17) Lev. XI, 44cf. p. 119, n. II.

(18) That Lev. XI, 44 provides a text from which a positive precept may be deduced and added to the negative one.

(19) Raba's answer thus being rebutted, there remains the question, why should an erusin widow be forbidden in levirate marriage to a High Priest.

(20) To a High Priest.

(21) Not because those forbidden by a negative precept may not contract levirate marriage. Pentateuchally, in fact, they may; and this is the reason why marital intercourse with such consummates marriage, as stated supra.

(22) Why are these forbidden levirate marriage?

(23) Such as the precept of the levirate marriage.

(24) Supra 17b, infra 240.

(25) Everybody knows whether the brother is paternal or only maternal.

(26) That there are children, or that there are not. as the case may be.

(27) Levirate marriage.

(28) I.e., that the brothers must be contemporaries. v. supra.

(29) That the levir was, or was not 'dwelling together with the deceased'.

(30) That a woman should be incapable of procreation.

(31) And there is no need to provide against rare cases.

(32) And yet they were forbidden as a preventive measure.

(33) In the levirate marriage, Pentateuchally permissible even in the case of one forbidden by a negative precept, the positive precept overriding the negative.

(34) In the case of an erusin widow.

(35) When only the prohibition under the negative precept remains, the positive precept of the levirate marriage having been fulfilled with the first act of intercourse.

(36) Those who are forbidden marriage by a negative precept.

(37) Sanh. 19a.

(38) That the first act of intercourse is Pentateuchally permitted.

(39) Lit., 'it is nothing'.

(40) Lit., 'if'.

(41) Shab. 133a, Naz. 41a, Men. 56a.

(42) The case of the erusin widow of a brother of a High Priest who died after betrothal and before marriage.

(43) Which shews that Pentateuchally the positive precept of levirate marriage does supersede the prohibition of marrying a widow. Had that not been the case, the levir's Pentateuchal illegitimate intercourse could not have constituted a legal bond of marriage.

(44) Whose deceased husband, the High Priest's brother, died without issue.

(45) From the levirate marriage or halizah.

(46) As well as herself, who would, as a result, require a divorce but no halizah.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 21a

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 21a

In the case of a nissu'in widow they both agree¹ that it does not exempt, since no positive precept may override a combination of a positive and a negative precept.² They differ, however, in the case of an erusin widow. He who maintains that it³ exempts [does so because] a positive precept supersedes a negative one; and he who maintains that it³ does not exempt holds that the positive precept here does not supersede the negative one since [in this case] halizah is possible.⁴

An objection was raised: If they⁵ had intercourse [with any of the forbidden women] they acquire [her as wife]!⁶ -This is indeed a refutation. May this⁷ be assumed to provide a refutation of the view of Resh Lakish also?⁸ -Resh Lakish can answer you: I said it only in the case where the precept is fulfilled; here, however, halizah as a substitute for the levirate marriage is not a fulfilment of the precept.⁹

Raba said: Where in the Torah may an allusion be found to [the prohibition of] relations in the second degree?¹⁰ It is said, For all these abominations have the men of the land done;¹¹ the expression, these¹² implies grave abominations, from which it may be inferred that there are milder ones. And what are these? The cases of incest of the second degree. What proof is there that 'these'¹² is an expression of gravity? — Because it is written in the Scriptures, And the mighty¹³ of the land he took away.¹⁴ May it be assumed that this view¹⁵ differs from that of R. Levi? For R. Levi said: The punishments for [false] measures are more rigorous than those for [marrying] forbidden relatives; for in the latter case the word used is El,¹² but in the former Eleh.¹⁶ — El implies rigour, but Eleh implies greater rigour than El.¹⁷ Is not Eleh written also In connection with forbidden relatives?¹⁸ -That [Eleh has been written] to exclude [the sin of false] measures from the penalty of kareth.¹⁹ In what respect, then,²⁰ are they²¹ more rigorous? — In the case of the former,²² repentance is possible; in that of the latter²³ repentance is impossible.²⁴

Rab Judah said: It²⁵ may be derived from the following: Yea he pondered, and sought out, and set in order many proverbs,²⁶ in relation to which 'Ulla said in the name of R. Eleazar, 'Before Solomon appeared, the Torah was like a basket without handles; when²⁷ Solomon came he affixed handles²⁸ to it.

R. Oshaia said: It²⁵ may be derived from the following: Avoid it, pass not by it; turn from it, and pass on.²⁹

Said R. Ashi: R. Oshaia's interpretation may be represented by the simile³⁰ of a man who guards an orchard. If he guards it from without, all of it is protected. If, however, he guards it from within, only that section in front of him is protected but that which is behind him is not protected. This statement of R. Ashi, however, is mere fiction.³¹ There,³² the section in front of him, at least, is protected; while here were it not for the prohibition of incest of the second degree, one would have encroached upon the very domain of incest.

R. Kahana said, it may be derived from here: Therefore shall ye keep My charge,³³ provide a charge to my charge.³⁴

Said Abaye to R. Joseph: This,³⁵ surely, is Pentateuchal!³⁶ — It is Pentateuchal' but the Rabbis have expounded it.³⁷ All the Torah, surely- was expounded by the Rabbis!³⁸ But [the fact is that the prohibition³⁹ is] Rabbinical, while the Scriptural text is [adduced as] a mere prop.⁴⁰

Our Rabbis taught: Who are the forbidden relatives in the second degree?⁴¹ — His mother's mother, his father's mother, his father's father's wife, his mother's father's wife, the wife of his father's maternal brother, the wife of his mother's paternal brother, the daughter-in-law of his son daughter-in-law his daughter. A man is permitted to marry the wife of his father-in-law and the wife of his step-son but is forbidden to marry the daughter of his step-son. His step-son is permitted to marry his⁴² wife and his⁴² daughter. The wife of his step-son may say to him, 'I am permitted to you though daughter is forbidden to you'.

Is not the daughter of, his step-son forbidden, it being written in the Scriptures, Her son's daughter or her daughters daughter?'³³ — As he wished to state in the latter clause, 'The wife of his step-son may say to him, "I am permitted to you though my daughter is forbidden to you", and though my daughter is forbidden to you Pentateuchally the Rabbis did not forbid me as a preventive measure', he stated in the previous clause also 'the daughter of his step-son'. If so,⁴³ could not the wife of his father-in-law also say, 'I am permitted to you and my daughter is forbidden to you', since she is his wife's sister?⁴⁴ -The prohibition of the one⁴⁵ is permanent;⁴⁶ that of the other is not.⁴⁷

Rab said: Four [categories of] women [forbidden in the second degree] are subject to a limitation.⁴⁸ Of these Rab knew⁴⁹ three: The wife of a mother's⁵⁰ paternal brother, the wife of a father's⁵¹ maternal brother, and one's daughter-in-law.⁵² Ze'iri, however, adds also the wife of his mother's father. Said R. Nahman b. Isaac: Your mnemonic sign is, 'Above that of Rab'.⁵³ Why does not Rab include it?⁵⁴ — Because she⁵⁴ might be mistaken for the wife of one's father's father.⁵⁵ And Ze'iri?-Thither⁵⁶ one usually goes,⁵⁷ but hither⁵⁸ one does not usually go.⁵⁹

Is not the prohibition of one's daughter-in-law

(1) Lit., 'all the world do not differ'.

(2) The levirate marriage is consequently illegal.

(3) The act of intercourse.

(4) Which would not conflict with the negative precept, while the requirements of the positive one would also be complied with.

(5) V. supra p. 121, n. 5.

(6) V. supra p. 121, n. 12.

(7) The Baraitha cited.

(8) Who stated (supra 20b) that whenever it is possible to observe the positive, as well as the negative precept, the rule of the abrogation of the one by the other is not to be applied.

(9) It is only a ritual to be observed where levirate marriage cannot take place. The precept of levirate marriage, however, is not thereby fulfilled.

(10) Lit., 'whence an allusion to seconds from the Torah'.

(11) Lev. XVIII, 27, dealing with incest.

(12) האף

(13) אילי which is analogous to האף

(14) Ezek. XVII, 13. describing the serious and grave position of Judah

(15) Of Raba.

(16) אלה Deut. XXV, 16. This implies that the sin of incest is of a milder nature.

(17) El and Eleh have the same meaning, but the additional eh (הי) at the end of the latter is taken to imply additional punishment.

(18) Lev. XVIII, 26. האף

(19) Since the expression of 'abomination' has been applied in the Pentateuchal text to both false measures and forbidden relations, it might have been assumed that the sin of the former is, like the latter, subject to kareth. Hence the need for the excluding word.

(20) If the penalty of kareth is inflicted for the sin of incest only and not for that of false measures.

(21) The punishments for false measures.

(22) Incest, so long as there was no Issue.

(23) False measures.

(24) V. B.B. 88b. One cannot by mere repentance make amends for robbing. The return of the things robbed must precede penitence. In the case of false measures it is practically impossible to trace all the individual members of the public that were defrauded.

(25) An allusion to the prohibition of relations in the second degree.

(26) Eccl. XII, 9.

(27) Lit., 'until'.

(28) מַנְיָא, sing. מַנְיָא, 'ear' or 'handle'. The Heb. מַנְיָא (E.V. he pondered) is regarded as denominative of מַנְיָא, 'he made handles', i.e., he added restrictions to the commandments of the Torah, such as the prohibitions of incest of the second degree, which helped to preserve the original precepts of the Torah as handles are an aid to the preservation of the basket.

(29) Prov. IV, 15; an allusion to the Torah. One must add restrictions to its precepts, such as those of incest of the second degree, in order to keep away from any possible infringement of its original precepts.

(30) Lit., 'the parable of R. Oshaia, to what may the thing be compared?'

(31) מַנְיָא v.B.M., Sonc. ed. p.47, n.1.

(32) The orchard.

(33) Lev. XVIII, 30, dealing with incest.

(34) Or 'make a keeping to my keeping', a protection to my protection', i.e., 'add restrictive measures to safeguard my original precept'.

(35) R. Kahana's text.

(36) Why then is this class of incest described as of the 'second' degree?

(37) Hence it must come under the second degree.

(38) And yet no one would describe those laws as of the second degree!

(39) Of incest of the second degree.

(40) Heb., Asmakta, v. Glos.

(41) Of incest.

(42) The step-father's. (13) Lev. XVIII, 17. Why include it among incest of the second degree?

(43) [If this is the reason for including Pentateuchal prohibition in this list].

(44) [And thus let him also include the daughter of his mother-in-law.]

(45) Lit., that', the daughter of his step-son.

(46) Lit., 'it is definite to him'.

(47) The daughter of his mother-in-law is permitted to him after the death of her sister, his wife.

(48) Lit., 'break' i.e., only they themselves are forbidden but not their descendants or ancestors in the descending or ascending line. In the case of the other relatives in the second degree of incest the prohibition extends throughout all generations in the ascending. and descending lines.

(49) Lit., 'held in his hand'.

(50) But not, e.g., of a mother's mother's.

(51) Not of a father's father's.

(52) This case is discussed infra.

(53) Ze'ri's addition to the limitations is one generation above that of Rab. While the latter stops at the second generation (that of father and mother) the former goes as far as the third (mother's father).

(54) Ze'ri's addition, a mother's father's wife.

(55) Who is Pentateuchally forbidden. Were a limit to be set in the case of the former, a similar limit would erroneously be set to the latter.

(56) To the family of one's father.

(57) I.e., there is frequent social intercourse between the members of the family on the paternal side.

(58) One's mother's family.

(59) No mistake, therefore, could occur between a mother's father and a father's father. Hence no preventive measure is necessary.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 21b

Pentateuchal, it being written in the Scriptures, Thou shalt not uncover the nakedness of thy daughter-in-law?¹ — Read, 'the daughter-in-law of his son'. But is there any limitation² for the daughter-in-law of one's son? Surely it was taught: His daughter-in-law is a forbidden relative, and the daughter-in-law of his son is a forbidden relative of the second degree; and the same principle is to be applied to one's son and son's son to the end of all generations!³ — But read, 'the daughter-in-law of his daughter' for R. Hisda said: I heard from a great man—And who is he? R. Ammi— [the following statement]: 'The daughter-in-law was forbidden only on account of the daughter-in-law'; and when the soothsayers⁴ told me, 'You will be a teacher', I thought, 'If I would be a great man⁵ I would explain it⁶ on my own; and should I be a Scripture teacher of little children I would ask the Rabbis who come to the school house.'⁷ Now I am in a position to explain it on my own: The daughter-in-law of one's daughter was forbidden only on account of the daughter-in-law of one's son.

Said Abaye to Raba: I can explain it to you: Take as an example a daughter-in-law of the house of Bar Zithai.⁸ R. Papa said: As for example a daughter-in-law in the house of R. Papa b. Abba.⁹ R. Ashi said: As for example a daughter-in-law of the house of Mari b. Isak.⁹

An inquiry was made: What [is the law in respect of] the wife of a mother's maternal brother? Did the Rabbis forbid as a preventive measure only the wife of a father's maternal brother and the wife of a mother's paternal brother because in these cases there is a paternal strain,¹⁰ but where there is no paternal strain¹¹ the Rabbis did not pass any preventive measure, or is there no difference? R. Safra replied: She herself¹² is forbidden as a preventive measure; shall we come and superimpose a preventive measure upon a preventive measure! Said Raba: Are not others¹³ forbidden as a preventive measure to a preventive measure? His mother, e.g., is a forbidden relative, his mother's mother is a forbidden relative of the second degree, and yet was his father's mother forbidden as a preventive measure against his mother's mother¹³ And what is the reason? Because they are both called 'grandmother'.¹⁴ His father's wife is a forbidden relative, his father's father's wife is a forbidden relative of the second degree, and yet was his mother's father's wife forbidden as a preventive measure against his father's father's wife! And what is the reason? Because they are both called 'grandfather'.¹⁵ The wife of his father's paternal brother is a forbidden relative, the wife of his father's maternal brother is a forbidden relative of the second degree, and yet was the wife of his mother's paternal brother forbidden as a preventive against the wife of his father's maternal brother! And what is the reason? Because they are both called uncle!¹⁵ What, then, is the law?¹⁶ Come and hear: When R. Judah b. Shila came¹⁷ he stated that In the West¹⁸ the rule was laid down¹⁹ that whenever a female²⁰ is a forbidden relative the wife of the male²¹ is forbidden in the second degree as a preventive measure; and Raba remarked: 'Is this a general rule? Surely one's mother-in-law is a forbidden relative and yet is one's father-in-law's wife permitted, the daughter of his mother-in-law is a forbidden relative and yet is the wife of the son of his mother-in-law permitted, his step-daughter is a forbidden relative and yet is the wife of his step-son permitted, the daughter of his step-daughter is a forbidden relative and yet is the wife of the son of his step-son permitted'; what, then, does R. Judah b. Shila's [reported rule] include? Does it not then include the case of the wife of a mother's maternal brother, since 'wherever a female²² as a forbidden relative²³ the wife of the male²⁴ is forbidden in the second degree as a preventive measure'!²⁵

What is the difference between those²⁶ and this?²⁷ — In this case²⁷ she becomes related to him by one act of betrothal;²⁸ in those cases²⁹ they do not become related to him until two acts of betrothal have taken place.³⁰

R. Mesharsheya of Tusaneya³¹ sent to R. Papi: Will our Master instruct us as to what is the law concerning the wife of the father's father's [paternal]³² brother, and a father's father's sister?³³ Seeing that the degree below is incest,³⁴ has a preventive measure been issued in respect also of the degree above,³⁵ or perhaps [not]. since the relationship has branched off?³⁶ Come and hear: Who are the forbidden relatives of the second degree [etc.];³⁷ and these³⁵ were not enumerated among them!³⁸ — Some might have been mentioned and others omitted.³⁹ What other omissions were made such as to justify this omission also? — The forbidden relatives of the second degree, of the School of R.

Hiyya,⁴⁰ were also omitted.

Amemar permitted the wife of one's father's father's brother and one's father's father's sister. Said R. Hillel to R. Ashi:⁴¹ 'I saw the [list of] forbidden relatives of the second degree of Mar the son of Rabana⁴² and sixteen were written down as forbidden cases. Would they not be the eight of the Baraitha,⁴³ the six of the School of R. Hiyya,⁴⁴ and these two,⁴⁵ in all sixteen?—But according to your view there should be seventeen, since there is also the case of the wife of a mother's maternal brother, who in accordance with our decision is forbidden!' — 'This is no difficulty.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 22a

Those two which resemble one another¹ are reckoned as one, and thus [the total is] sixteen.² 'But, after all, I saw that these were written down as forbidden!' The other said to him: 'Granted that this is so, would you have relied upon that list, if the cases had been written down as permitted? "Has Mar the son of Rabana signed them?" [you would have argued]. Now then that they have been written down as forbidden, [you might also argue]. "Mar the son of Rabana has not signed them".

It was taught at the School of R. Hiyya: The third generation of his son,³ of his daughter.⁴ of the son of his wife⁵ or of the daughter of his wife⁶ [is forbidden as incest of the] second degree; the fourth generation⁷ through his father-in-law⁸ or his mother-in-law⁹ [is forbidden as incest of the] second degree.

Said Rabina to R. Ashi: Why is the wife included in the ascending line¹⁰ and not included in the descending line?¹¹ -In the case of the ascending line, where the prohibition is due to his wife, she is included; in the descending line, where the prohibition is not due to his wife,¹² she is not included. But, surely, there is the case of the son of his wife and the daughter of his wife whose prohibition is due to his wife who is, nevertheless, not included! — As he enumerated three generations in the descending line on his side¹³ and did not include her, he also enumerated three generations in the descending line on her side¹⁴ and did not include her.

Said R. Ashi to R. Kahana: Are the second degrees of incest of the School of R. Hiyya subject to the limitation¹⁵ or not? Come and hear what Rab said: 'Four [categories of forbidden] women are subject to a limitation',¹⁶ but no more. But is it not possible that Rab was only referring to that Baraitha!¹⁷

Come and hear: 'The third' and 'the fourth',¹⁸ which implies the third and fourth generations only but no further. But is it not possible [that this meant] from the third generation onwards¹⁹ and from the fourth generation onwards!¹⁹

Raba said to R. Nahman, 'Has the Master seen the young scholar who came from the West²⁰ and stated: The question was raised in the West whether the second degrees of incest were forbidden as a preventive measure among proselytes or not?' — The other replied: Seeing that even in respect of actual incest 'but for the fear that they might be said to have exchanged a [religion of] stricter for [one of] more easy-going sanctity, the Rabbis would not have imposed upon them any preventive measures,²¹ is there any question [that they should have done so in respect of] the second degrees?

Said R. Nahman: As the subject of proselytes has come up,²² let us say something about them: Maternal brothers may not tender evidence;²³ if, however, they did, their evidence is valid.²⁴ Paternal brothers may tender evidence without challenge.²⁵

Amemar said: Even maternal brothers may tender evidence without challenge. And why is this case different from incest?²⁶ — Matters of incest lie in everybody's hands;²⁷ evidence is entrusted to Beth din, and [they know that] one who has become a proselyte is like a child newly born.²⁸

MISHNAH. IF ONE HAS ANY KIND OF BROTHER,²⁹ [THAT BROTHER] IMPOSES UPON HIS BROTHER'S WIFE THE OBLIGATION OF THE LEVIRATE MARRIAGE AND IS DEEMED TO BE HIS BROTHER IN EVERY RESPECT. FROM THIS IS EXCLUDED A BROTHER BORN FROM A SLAVE OR A HEATHEN.³⁰

IF ONE HAS ANY KIND OF SON, [THAT SON] EXEMPTS HIS FATHER'S WIFE FROM THE LEVIRATE MARRIAGE, IS LIABLE TO PUNISHMENT FOR STRIKING OR CURSING [HIS FATHER]. AND IS DEEMED TO BE HIS SON IN EVERY RESPECT. FROM THIS IS EXCLUDED THE SON OF A SLAVE OR A HEATHEN.³¹ GEMARA. What does the expression ANY KIND include? Rab Judah said: It includes a bastard. Is not this obvious? Surely, he is his brother! — It might have been assumed that 'brotherhood'³² here should be deduced from 'brotherhood' in the case of the sons of Jacob;³³ as there they were all legitimate and untainted, so here also [the brothers must be] legitimate and untainted; hence we were taught [that it is not so]. [Might we still suggest that it is so?] — Since he³⁴ has at any rate the power to confer exemption from the levirate marriage³⁵

- (9) His mother-in-law's mother's mother. Cf. previous note.
- (10) V. previous three notes.
- (11) Regarding, for instance, his son's son's daughter as of the third generation and not of the fourth, as would have been the case had his wife (his son's mother) been included.
- (12) Since, as has been explained supra 40, Lev. XVIII, 10 refers to a son born from a woman whom he had outraged.
- (13) The third generation of his son or daughter born from a woman he had outraged.
- (14) The third generation of the son or daughter of his wife.
- (15) V. supra P. 125, n. 6.
- (16) Supra 21a.
- (17) Which enumerated (supra 1.c.) eight cases only of the second degrees of incest, but none of those of the School of R. Hiyya.
- (18) I.e., the School of R. Hiyya supra included in the second degree only the third generation in the descending, and the fourth generation in the ascending line.
- (19) Are forbidden in the second degree of incest; but those of the nearer generations are forbidden as actual incest.
- (20) Palestine.
- (21) Biblically, the proselyte is regarded as a newborn child and all his previous family ties are severed. It is only Rabbinically that he was subjected to the laws of incest.
- (22) Lit., 'to our hand'.
- (23) Since the family relationship in their case is a certainty, and a relative is ineligible as a witness.
- (24) As, Biblically, the proselyte is deemed to be a newborn child without any relatives. V. supra p. 130, n. 10.
- (25) Lit., 'as from the start', since in their case no brotherly relationship is recognized, the heathens having been known to indulge in promiscuous intercourse.
- (26) Which is applicable to a proselyte also. If he married, for instance, his maternal sister he must divorce her (infra 98a).
- (27) Marriages are not, as a rule, arranged with the aid of the Beth din, and, should a proselyte be permitted to live with his sister, some people might infer that such a marriage was permitted to an Israelite also. Hence the prohibition.

(28) The Beth din who know this law would not allow a brother of an Israelite to give evidence though this would be allowed to a brother of a proselyte.

(29) This is explained in the Gemara. Lit., 'from any place'.

(30) Such children assume their mother's status of inferiority, and are not regarded as one's paternal brothers.

(33) Gen. XLII, 13, twelve brethren.

(34) A bastard.

(35) A woman whose husband died without leaving any issue from their union may, nevertheless, be exempt from the requirements of the levirate marriage if that husband had a bastard son.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 22b

he also has the power to impose the obligation of the levirate marriage.¹

AND IS DEEMED TO BE HIS BROTHER IN EVERY RESPECT. In respect of what, in actual practice?—That he is to be his heir and that he² may defile himself for him. Is not this obvious, he being his brother! — Whereas it is written, Except for his kin, that is near unto him,³ and a Master had said that 'his kin' refers to his wife, while [on the other hand] it is written, A husband among his people shall not defile himself, to profane himself,⁴ [which verses taken together mean],⁵ some kind of husband may defile himself and some kind of husband may not, and how [is this to be understood]? He may defile himself for his lawful wife but may not defile himself for his unlawful wife; and so here it might have been assumed that he may defile himself for a legitimate brother but may not defile himself for an illegitimate brother; hence it was taught [that it is hot so]. Might we still suggest that it is so? In that case she is liable at any moment to be sent away,⁶ but here he is his brother.

FROM THIS IS EXCLUDED A BROTHER BORN FROM A SLAVE OR A HEATHEN. What is the reason? Scripture stated, The wife and her children shall be the master's.⁷

IF ONE HAS ANY KIND OF SON, [THAT SON] EXEMPTS etc. What does ANY KIND include?—Rab Judah said: It includes a bastard. What is the reason? — Because Scripture stated, And have no [en lo] child⁸ which implies 'hold an inquiry⁹ concerning him.'¹⁰

AND IS LIABLE TO PUNISHMENT FOR STRIKING [HIM]. But why? One should apply here the Scriptural text, Nor curse a ruler of thy people.¹¹ only when he practises the deeds of thy people!¹² — As R. Phinehas in the name of R. Papa said [elsewhere] 'When he repented', so here also it is a case where he repented. Is such a persona however, capable of penitence? Surely we learnt: Simeon b. Menasya said, That which is crooked cannot be made straight.¹³ refers to him who had intercourse with a forbidden relative and begot from her a bastard! — Now, at any rate, he is practising 'the deeds of thy people'.¹⁴

Our Rabbis taught: He who has intercourse with his sister who is also the daughter of his father's wife¹⁵ is guilty¹⁶ on account of both his sister and his father's wife's daughter. R. Jose son of R. Judah said: He is only guilty on account of his sister but not of the daughter of his father's wife.

What is the Rabbis' reason? Observe, they would say, it is written, The nakedness of thy sister, the daughter of thy father, or the daughter of thy mother,¹⁷ what need was there for The nakedness of thy father's wife's daughter, begotten of thy father, she is thy sister?¹⁸ In order to intimate that he is guilty on account of both his sister and his father's wife's daughter. And R. Jose son of R. Judah? — Scripture stated, She is thy sister,¹⁹ you can hold him guilty on account of his sister, but you cannot hold him guilty for his father's wife's daughter. And to what do the Rabbis apply the expression, 'She is thy sister'?-They require it [for the deduction] that a man is guilty on account of his sister who is the daughter of his father and the daughter of his mother,²⁰ thus indicating that no prohibition²¹ may be deduced by logical argument.²² And R. Jose son of R. Judah?²³ -If so, the All Merciful should have written 'thy sister', what need was there for 'she is'? To indicate that you may hold him guilty on account of 'thy sister' but you cannot hold him guilty on account of 'his father's wife's daughter'. And the Rabbis? Although 'thy sister' was written, It was also necessary to write 'she is'; in order that no one should suggest that elsewhere a prohibition may be deduced by logical argument and that the All Merciful has written here, 'thy sister'²⁴ because Scripture takes the trouble to write down any law that may be deduced a minori ad majus; hence did the All Merciful write 'she is'.²⁵

And R. Jose son of R. Judah?-If so, the All Merciful should have written [the expression], 'She is thy sister' in the other verse.²⁶

And to what does R. Jose son of R. Judah apply the phrase Thy father's wife's daughter?²⁷ — He requires it for [the deduction]: Only she with whom your father can enter Into marital relationship, but a sister born from a slave or a heathen²⁸ is excluded, since your father cannot enter with her into marital relationship.²⁹

Might it not be said to exclude a sister born from one whom his father had outraged? — You cannot say this owing to Raba's statement. For Raba pointed out a contradiction: It is written In Scripture, The nakedness of thy son's daughter, or of thy daughter's daughter, even their nakedness thou shalt not uncover,³⁰ thus it follows that her³¹ son's daughter and her daughter's daughter are permitted; but [below] it is written, Thou shalt not uncover the nakedness of a woman and her daughter; [thou shalt not take] her son's daughter or her daughter's daughter.³² How then [are these to be reconciled]? The one³³ refers to a case of outrage,³⁴ the other³² to that of lawful marriage.

(1) Upon the wife of any son of his father. However, since he is debarred from marrying her, he frees her by halizah, v. supra 20a.

(2) Even if he is a priest. Cf. Lev. XXI, 1ff.

(3) Ibid. v. 2.

(4) Ibid. v. 4. The Talmudic rendering of the verse differs slightly from E.V. which render husband בעל as 'chief',

(5) In order to remove the apparent contradiction.

(6) The husband is not allowed to live with her. Hence she cannot be regarded as his wife.

(7) Ex. XXI, 4, referring to a slave. The case of the heathen is explained infra.

(8) Deut. XXV, 5. וְבִן אֵין לוֹ.

(10) I.e., inquire whether he has been survived by ANY KIND OF SON. Cf. B.B. 115a, Sonc. ed.. p. 474 nn. 6ff.

(11) Ex. XXII, 27.

(12) This father, however, who is guilty of incest did not practise the deeds of his people! Why then should his son be punished for his action against such a man?

(17) Lev. XVIII, 9, referring to the offspring of an intercourse, whether as a result of marriage or outrage.

(18) Ibid. v. II. This, surely, is only a petition of one of the cases dealt with in v.9.

(19) Lev. XVIII, 11.

(20) Who was not his father's lawful wife; in the case, for instance, when he and his sister were born from one whom their father had outraged. This case could not be deduced from Lev. XVIII, 9, since the sister born as a result of outrage, spoken of there, is one who is the daughter of the father or of the mother, while the expression Thy father's wife's daughter refers to one born from a lawful marriage.

- (21) Such, e.g., as intercourse with a sister born from the same woman whom their father had outraged.
- (22) If a sister who is the daughter of only one of his parents is forbidden, how much more so a sister who is the daughter of both his parents. V. Mak., Sonc. ed. pp. 18 and 26.
- (23) How does he meet the argument of the Rabbis?
- (24) Lit., 'and if you would say what need was there for "thy sister" what the All Merciful has written'.
- (25) Only she is, i.e., only in this case, where Scripture had explicitly stated it, is the prohibition in force; but elsewhere, where Scripture has not explicitly stated the prohibition, the inference a minori ad majus cannot bring a prohibition into force.
- (26) In Lev. XVIII, 9' which speaks of a sister born from a woman his father had outraged. Since, however, it was inserted in v.11 which speaks of a sister born from a marriage it must have been meant to imply. as R. Jose said supra, that one 'is only guilty of incest with his sister but not with that of the daughter of his father's wife'.
- (27) Lev. XVIII, II.
- (28) The betrothal of either of whom is not considered valid.

- (30) Lev. XVIII, 10.
- (31) One's wife's.
- (32) Lev. XVIII, 17.
- (33) Lit., 'here'; Lev. XVIII. 10.
- (34) In which case a man may not marry the daughter of his own son or the daughter of his own daughter, and may marry the daughter of the son or the daughter of the daughter whom the outraged woman had from another husband; since he himself is not her lawful husband. As in the case of one's own son and one's own daughter, though the offspring of a woman he outraged, they are legally regarded as son and daughter. so is the sisterhood and brotherhood of such children regarded as legal.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 23a

Might it not be suggested that it excludes those who are subject to the penalties of negative precepts?¹ -R. Papa² replied: The betrothal of those forbidden under negative precept is valid,³ for it is written in the Scriptures, If a man have two wives, the one beloved and the other hated;⁴ can it be said that the Omnipresent loves the one⁵ or hates the other?⁶ But 'beloved' means beloved in her marriage;⁷ 'hated' means hated in her marriage;⁸ and yet the All Merciful has said if ... have.⁹ Might it be taken to exclude those who are liable to kareth?¹⁰ — Raba replied: Scripture said, The nakedness of thy sister, the daughter of thy father, or the daughter of thy mother, whether born at home, or born abroad,¹¹ whether your father is told, 'You may keep her' or whether your father is told, 'Let her go',¹² the All Merciful said, 'She is thy sister'.

Will you suggest [that what is meant is]: Whether your father is told, 'You may keep her' or whether your father is told, 'Let her go'. the All Merciful said, 'She is thy sister', to include his sister from a slave and a heathen! — Scripture stated, The father's wife's daughter,¹³ only she with whom your father can enter into marital relationship, but a sister from a slave or a heathen is excluded.¹⁴ And what ground is there for this?¹⁵ — It is logical to include those subject to kareth since generally¹⁶ their betrothal is valid.¹⁷ On the contrary! A slave and a heathen should have been included since on embracing the Jewish faith, betrothal with himself is also valid! — When any of these adopts the Jewish faith she becomes a different person.¹⁸

Whence do the Rabbis deduce the exclusion of a slave and a heathen?-They deduce it from The wife and her children shall be her master's.¹⁹ And R. Jose son of R. Judah?- One text refers to a slave and the other to a heathen. And both are required; for had we been informed [concerning the exclusion of the] slave, it might have been thought [that this was so in her case] because she has no recognized ancestry, but not in that of a heathen who has recognized ancestry. And had we been informed [of the exclusion of the] heathen, it might have been assumed [that this was so in her case] because she stands under no obligation in relationship to the observance of commandments,²⁰ but not In that of a slave who is [in some respects] attached to the observance of the commandments.²¹ Hence both were required.

With reference to the Rabbis, we have discovered [the reason for the exclusion of a] slave; whence do they derive [the exclusion of the] heathen? And should you suggest that we might derive it by inference from the slave, those²² were surely needed!²³ R. Johanan replied in the name of R. Simeon b. Yohai: Scripture stated, For he will turn away thy son from following Me;²⁴ 'thy son born from an Israelitish woman is called thy son'²⁵ but 'thy son who was born from a heathen is not called thy son'²⁵ but her son.²⁶ Said Rabina: From this it follows²⁷ that the 'son of your daughter' who derives from a heathen is called 'thy son'.²⁸ Does this imply that Rabina is of the opinion that if a heathen or a slave had intercourse with a daughter of Israel the child is considered fit!²⁹ -Though he is admittedly no bastard neither is he considered fit; he is rather regarded³⁰ as a tainted Israelite.³¹

But does not that text³² occur in connection with the seven nations?³³ — For he will turn away³² includes all who turn away. This is satisfactory if we follow R. Simeon who expounds³⁴ his own reasons for Scriptural precepts;³⁵ whence, however, do the Rabbis³⁶ derive it according to their view?³⁷ — Who is the Tanna³⁸ who disputes the opinion of R. Jose son of R. Judah? It is R. Simeon.

(1) If his father, e.g., had married a bastard, who is forbidden by a negative Precept. the daughter from such a union should not be regarded as his legitimate sister.

(2) Aruch reads, 'Raba'.

(3) Hence the sisterhood must also be deemed legal.

(4) Deut. XXI, 15.

(5) Lit., 'is there a loved one before the Omnipresent'.

(6) I.e., the husband's love or hatred could not obviously influence a divine law; why then should his love or hatred be mentioned at all?

(7) I.e., permitted to marry him.

(8) I.e., forbidden to marry.

(9) תהיין (rt. היה 'to be'). i.e., the betrothal is Sc. remains valid.

(10) I.e., a daughter from such a marriage which is legally invalid should not be deemed one's legal sister.

(11) Lev. XVIII, 9.

(12) Whether he is permitted to live with her (בית at home) or not (חוץ abroad).

(13) Lev. XVIII, 11.

(14) Since betrothal or marriage with either is invalid.

(15) Lit., 'and what do you see', to apply the excluding text to a slave and a heathen. and the including one to those subject to kareth. Why not reverse the application?

(16) Lit., 'to the world', to those who are not forbidden relatives.

(17) The betrothal of a slave or a heathen, however, is always invalid.

(18) And is no longer regarded as a heathen or slave.

(20) A heathen is under no obligation to observe the precepts of the Torah.

(21) A slave must observe certain commandments. V. Hag. 40.

(22) The texts speaking of the slave and the heathen, supra.

(23) In connection with their own context. They are not available for any deduction.

(24) Deut. VII, 4. The pronoun he in this clause must, according to Talmudic exposition, refer to the antecedent son in v. 3 'thy daughter thou shalt not give unto his son, and not to son in the clause, nor his daughter shalt thou take unto thy son. Had the reference been to the latter the reading in v. 4 would have been, for SHE (i.e., the heathen woman) will turn away thy son. 'He' must consequently refer to the heathen husband of the Israelitish woman who would turn away the son of his Israelitish wife, the (grand)son of her father. The son of his son born from the heathen. however, is obviously not called his (grand)son since, 'For he will turn etc.' does not apply to him.

(25) במך thy son or grandson.

(26) I.e., he is a heathen like his mother.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 23b

MISHNAH. IF A MAN BETROTHED ONE OF TWO SISTERS AND DOES NOT KNOW WHICH OF THEM HE HAS

BETROTHED, HE MUST GIVE A LETTER OF DIVORCE TO THE ONE AS WELL AS TO THE OTHER.¹ IF HE DIED,² LEAVING A BROTHER,³ THE LATTER MUST PARTICIPATE IN THE HALIZAH WITH BOTH OF THEM.⁴ IF HE HAD TWO BROTHERS,³ ONE IS TO PARTICIPATE IN THE HALIZAH⁵ AND THE OTHER MAY CONTRACT THE LEVIRATE MARRIAGE.⁶ IF THEY ANTICIPATED [THE BETH DIN] AND MARRIED THEM⁷ THEY ARE NOT TO BE [PARTED FROM] THEM.⁸

IF TWO MEN BETROTHED TWO SISTERS AND THE ONE DOES NOT KNOW WHOM HE BETROTHED AND THE OTHER DOES NOT KNOW WHOM HE BETROTHED, THE ONE MUST GIVE TWO LETTERS OF DIVORCE AND THE OTHER MUST ALSO GIVE TWO LETTERS OF DIVORCE. IF THEY DIED AND THE ONE LEFT A BROTHER AND THE OTHER ALSO LEFT A BROTHER, THE ONE BROTHER MUST PARTICIPATE IN THE HALIZAH WITH THE TWO WIDOWS AND THE OTHER ALSO MUST PARTICIPATE IN THE HALIZAH WITH THE TWO WIDOWS.⁹ IF ONE¹⁰ LEFT ONE BROTHER AND THE OTHER LEFT TWO, THE ONE BROTHER MUST PARTICIPATE IN THE HALIZAH WITH THE TWO WIDOWS¹¹ AND [AS REGARDS] THE TWO, ONE PARTICIPATES IN THE

HALIZAH¹² AND THE OTHER MAY CONTRACT THE LEVIRATE MARRIAGE.¹³ IF THEY ANTICIPATED [THE BETH DIN] AND MARRIED THEM,¹⁴ THEY ARE NOT TO BE DEPRIVED OF THEM.¹⁵ IF ONE¹⁰ LEFT TWO BROTHERS AND THE OTHER¹³ ALSO LEFT TWO, ONE BROTHER OF THE ONE PARTICIPATES IN THE HALIZAH WITH ONE WIDOW AND ONE BROTHER OF THE SECOND PARTICIPATES IN THE HALIZAH WITH THE OTHER WIDOW, [AND THEN THE OTHER] BROTHER OF THE FIRST MAY CONTRACT LEVIRATE MARRIAGE WITH THE HALUZH OF THE SECOND¹⁶ AND [THE OTHER] BROTHER OF THE SECOND MAY CONTRACT THE LEVIRATE MARRIAGE WITH THE HALUZH OF THE FIRST. IF BOTH¹⁷ ANTICIPATED [THE BETH DIN] AND PARTICIPATED IN THE HALIZAH,¹⁸ THE [OTHER] TWO MUST NOT BOTH CONTRACT THE LEVIRATE MARRIAGE,¹⁹ BUT ONE MUST PARTICIPATE IN THE HALIZAH²⁰ AND THE OTHER MAY THEN CONTRACT THE LEVIRATE MARRIAGE.²¹ IF BOTH²² ANTICIPATED [THE BETH DIN]²³ AND MARRIED²⁴ THEY ARE NOT TO BE DEPRIVED OF THEM.²⁵

GEMARA. Is it to be inferred from here that even betrothal which cannot culminate in connubial intercourse²⁶ is also valid?²⁷ — Here we are dealing with the case where they were known²⁸ but were later confused. This may also be proved by deduction, since it was stated, AND HE DOES NOT KNOW²⁹ and it was not stated ‘and it was not known’³⁰ This proves it.

What, then, does our Mishnah teach us?³¹ — The second clause was necessary:³² IF HE DIED AND LEFT A BROTHER, THE LATTER MUST PARTICIPATE IN THE HALIZAH WITH BOTH OF THEM. IF HE HAD TWO BROTHERS, ONE IS TO PARTICIPATE IN THE HALIZAH AND THE OTHER MAY CONTRACT THE LEVIRATE MARRIAGE, only halizah must be first and the levirate marriage afterwards, but not the levirate marriage first, since, thereby, he might infringe [the interdict against] the sister of her who is connected with him by the levirate bond.³³

IF TWO MEN BETROTHED TWO SISTERS etc. Does this imply that a betrothal which cannot culminate in connubial intercourse is also valid?³⁴ — Here also it is a case where they were known.³⁵ but were subsequently confused. This may also be proved by deduction, since it was stated, AND THE ONE DOES NOT KNOW,³⁶ and it is not stated ‘and it is not known’.³⁷ This proves it.

What, then, does our Mishnah teach us?³⁸ — It was necessary to have the latter clause,³⁹ IF THEY DIED ... AND ONE LEFT ONE BROTHER AND THE OTHER LEFT TWO, THE ONE BROTHER MUST PARTICIPATE IN THE HALIZAH WITH THE TWO WIDOWS AND, [AS REGARDS] THE TWO, ONE PARTICIPATES IN THE HALIZAH AND THE OTHER MAY CONTRACT THE LEVIRATE MARRIAGE.⁴⁰ Is not this obvious, being in the same case as the first clause?⁴¹ -It might have been assumed that [levirate marriage should be forbidden in the case of] two brothers as a preventive measure against the case Of one, hence we were taught [that it was not so], and also that halizah must be first and the levirate marriage afterwards, but the levirate marriage must not take place first, for thereby, one might infringe [the interdict against] a yebamah's marriage to a stranger.

IF ONE LEFT TWO BROTHERS AND THE OTHER ALSO LEFT TWO etc. What need was there again for this statement? It is, surely, the same!⁴² — It might have been assumed that [the marriage should be forbidden] as a preventive measure against marrying without previous (halizah,⁴³ hence we were taught [that no such measure Was enacted].⁴⁴ Wherein does this case differ from the following in which we learned: In the case of four brothers two of whom were married to two sisters, and those who were married to the sisters died, behold their widows may only perform the halizah but may not be taken in levirate marriage [by either of the levirs]?⁴⁵ -What a comparison!⁴⁶

(1) He is forbidden to live with either since each might be ‘his wife's sister’.

(2) Without issue.

(3) Who survived him.

(4) Since it is not known which is his sister-in-law. He may not marry the one and submit to halizah from the other, because the sister of a haluzah (v. Glos.) is Rabbinically forbidden. Even prior to the halizah with the one he may not marry the other; for if she is not his sister-in-law she is still forbidden to him as the sister of his zekukah (v. Glos.)

(5) With one of the widows.

(6) With the other, subsequent to the halizah of the first. This procedure is safe in either case; if the second widow is really his sister-in-law he is legally entitled to marry her. But even if she is not, she is no longer forbidden as the sister of the first who was his zekukah since the halizah has severed the bond.

(7) Each brother married one of the sisters.

(8) Since each of them is entitled to marry one of the widows either as his yebamah (v. Glos.) or as a stranger. The question of the forbidden marriage of the sister of a zekukah does not arise, since both are now married, and the marriage of the zekukah to the one brother has severed her levirate bond with the other.

(9) Neither may marry any of the widows since either might happen to be the sister of his zekukah.

- (10) Of the deceased.
- (11) For the reasons explained supra p. 138, n. 9.
- (12) And thus, in case she is the actual yebamah, severs the levirate bond between her and the brothers. Her sister may then be married by the other brother in any case: If she is the sister-in-law he may rightly marry her; and if not, she is no longer forbidden as the sister of a zekukah in view of the fact that the halizah of the other had severed that bond.
- (13) V. previous note.
- (14) Each brother married one of the sisters.
- (15) V. p. 138. n. 13.
- (16) This Procedure enables both widows to marry. because in the case of each it may be said: If she is his yebamah, he may marry her since his brother did not participate in the halizah with her but with her sister who was a Perfect stranger to him, and the halizah with her is of no legal value. If, on the other hand, she is not his yebamah, he may certainly marry her as a stranger. The question of the 'sister of a zekukah' does not arise, since that bond has in any case been severed by the halizah in which his brother had participated with her sister.
- (17) Brothers of one of the deceased.
- (18) With both widows.
- (19) One brother with the one widow and the other with the other widow; because whichever widow any one of them would desire to marry might be the sister of his .zekukah.
- (20) With one 'of the widows.
- (21) With the other sister. For the reason cf. supra p. 139, n. 4.
- (22) The second two brothers.
- (23) After halizah was performed with the first.
- (24) Each one of them one of the sisters.
- (25) Cf. supra p. 138. n. 13.
- (26) It is now assumed that even at the time of the betrothal it was not known which of the sisters was betrothed; when, for instance, the man said 'I betroth one of you' and both appointed an agent to receive on their behalf the token of betrothal. In such a case the man may have no connubial intercourse with either of the women since each might be his wife's sister.
- (27) Since our Mishnah requires him to give a letter of divorce to each. Why then did this question remain a matter in dispute between Abaye and Raba in Kid. 51a?
- (28) At the time of the betrothal, as to which was, and which was not the betrothed one. Hence it was a betrothal which could culminate in connubial intercourse.
- (29) I.e., now.
- (30) Which would have implied that the identity of the betrothed was never known.
- (31) If the betrothal was valid and the man does not know now whom he betrothed it is self-evident that both women must be divorced!
- (32) And because of the second the first also had to be stated.
- (33) His zekukah. V. supra . 138, n. 11,
- (34) Cf. supra p. 140, n. 11.
- (35) V. p. 140. n. 12.
- (36) I.e., now,
- (37) V. p. 140, n. 14.
- (38) V. p. 140, n. 15.
- (39) And because of the second the first also had to be stated.
- (40) This indicates that halizah must take place first.
- (41) Where it was stated that if there were two brothers one submits to halizah first while the other may subsequently contract the levirate marriage. (10) Lit., 'a yebamah for the street'. A yebamah who is subject to the levirate marriage may not be married by a stranger before the levir has submitted to halizah. For further notes on the whole passage v. Kid., Sonc. ed. pp. 26off.
- (42) As the one already made earlier in our Mishnah: ONE PARTICIPATES IN THE HALIZAH AND THE OTHER MAY CONTRACT THE LEVIRATE MARRIAGE. There it is a case of two brothers and here also of two groups of two, one of each participating in halizah and the other contracting levirate marriage.
- (43) And each of the two brothers so marrying would infringe the prohibition against marriage of a doubtful yebamah and the sister of a zekukah.

(44) This could not have been inferred from the previous clause where only one marriage takes place. The fact that at least one of the sisters may not be married and must perform halizah only, would sufficiently indicate that in the case of the other also halizah by one brother must precede the marriage by the other. Where, however, as here, both sisters are married it might well have been considered likely that the law requiring previous halizah might be overlooked.

(45) 'Ed. V, 5, infra 26a. [According to Rashi (he question is from the concluding part of that Mishnah which reads, 'If they had forestalled (the Beth din) and married them, they must put them away', whereas in our Mishnah it is ruled that they are not to be parted. Aliter: In our Mishnah levirate marriage may take place after halizah had been performed, whereas in the other Mishnah no levirate marriage is allowed at all for fear it is contracted before halizah. v. Tosaf. ha-Rosh.]

(46) Lit., 'thus now'.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 24a

There,¹ if one is to follow the view of him who said that a levirate bond does exist,² a levirate bond exists;³ and if one is to follow him who said⁴ that it is forbidden to annul the precept of levirate marriage,⁵ well, it is forbidden to annul the precept of levirate marriage. Here, however, it is possible to assume that every one will happen to get his own.⁶

IF BOTH ANTICIPATED [THE BETH DIN] AND MARRIED THEY ARE NOT TO BE PARTED FROM THEM etc. Shila recited:

Even if both were priests.⁷ What is the reason?⁸ — Because a haluzah is only Rabbinically forbidden,⁹ and in the case of a doubtful haluzah¹⁰ the Rabbis enacted no preventive measures.¹¹ But is a haluzah only Rabbinically forbidden? Surely it was taught: From Put away¹² one might only infer the prohibition concerning a divorced woman; whence that of a haluzah? Hence it was explicitly stated, And a woman!¹³ The prohibition is really Rabbinical, and the Scriptural text is a mere prop.¹⁴ allowed to marry one of the widows he would not be able either to contract levirate marriage or to participate in halizah with the other widow (she being forbidden to him as 'his wife's sister'), should the other brother happen to die before he married that widow; and thus the entire precept of levirate marriage would in such a case be annulled. GEMARA. Our Rabbis learned: And it shall be, that the firstborn¹⁵ implies¹⁶ that the commandment of the levirate marriage devolves upon the [surviving elder brother];¹⁷ that she beareth¹⁵ excludes a woman who is incapable of procreation, since she cannot bear children: shall succeed in the name of his brother,¹⁵ in respect of inheritance.¹⁸ You say, 'in respect of inheritance';¹⁹ perhaps it does not [mean that]. but, 'in respect of the name':²⁰ [If the deceased, for Instance, was called] Joseph [the child] shall be called Joseph; If Johanan he shall be called Johanan! — Here it is stated, shall succeed in the name of his brother¹⁵ and elsewhere it is stated, They shall be called after the name of their brethren in their inheritance,²¹ as the 'name' that was mentioned there [has reference to] inheritance, so the 'name' which was mentioned here [has also reference] to inheritance. That his name be not blotted out¹⁵ excludes a eunuch²² whose name is blotted out.

MISHNAH. THE COMMANDMENT OF THE LEVIRATE MARRIAGE DEVOLVES UPON THE [SURVIVING ELDER BROTHER]. IF A YOUNGER BROTHER, HOWEVER, FORESTALLED HIM, HE IS ENTITLED TO ENJOY THE PRIVILEGE.

Said Raba: Although throughout the Torah no text²³ loses its ordinary meaning, here the :gezerah shawah²⁴ has come and entirely deprived the text of its ordinary meaning.²⁵

But apart from the gezerah shawah, would it have been thought that 'name' actually signifies 'a name'? To whom, then, does the All Merciful address the instruction!²⁶ If to the levir, the wording should have been, 'shall succeed in the name of thy brother'; if to the Beth din, the wording should have been, 'shall succeed in the name of his father's brother'!²⁷ — It is possible that the All Merciful thus addressed the Beth din: Tell the levir, 'He²⁸ shall succeed to the name of his²⁹ brother'; but the gezerah shawah has come and deprived the text entirely [of its ordinary meaning].

Now that it has been stated that Scripture speaks of the elder brother only, why not assume that the firstborn must perform the duty of the levirate marriage and that any ordinary brother may not contract a levirate marriage at all!³⁰ — If so, what need³¹ was there for the All Merciful to have excluded the 'wife of his brother who was not his contemporary'?³²

R. Aha objected: Might it not be suggested that the exclusion³³ had reference to a mother's firstborn son!³⁴ -You could not possibly have assumed that,³⁵ since the All Merciful has made levirate marriage dependent on inheritance, and the right of inheritance derives from the father and not from the mother.³⁶ But might It not be suggested that where there is a firstborn the commandment of the levirate marriage shall be observed;³⁷ where, however, there is no firstborn the commandment of the levirate marriage shall not be observed?³⁸ Scripture stated, And one of them died;³⁹ does not this include also the case where the firstborn died,⁴⁰ and so the All Merciful has said that the younger shall perform the duty of the levirate marriage?

But perhaps⁴¹ [the text speaks of a case] where the younger died, and the All Merciful says that the firstborn shall perform the duty of the levirate marriage?-Surely, the All Merciful has excluded the wife of his brother who was not his contemporary!⁴²

May it be suggested that where there is no firstborn the younger brother, if he forestalled [the Beth din],⁴³ is entitled to the privilege,⁴⁴ but that where there is a firstborn the younger brother, even if he forestalled him, is not entitled to the privilege? — Scrip. stated, If brethren dwell together,⁴⁵ the dwelling of one brother was compared to that of the other.⁴⁶ May it be suggested that where there is a firstborn one turns to the eldest⁴⁷ but where there is no firstborn one does not turn to the eldest?⁴⁸ Why, then, did Abaye the Elder teach that the commandment to perform the duty of the levirate marriage is incumbent Upon the elder brother; if he refuses, the younger brother is approached,⁴⁹ if he also refuses,⁵⁰ the elder is approached again!⁵¹ — [Scripture has designated him] as the firstborn;⁵² as with the firstborn the cause is his birthright, so with the elder brother the cause is his Seniority. Might it be said that when the firstborn performs the duty of the levirate marriage he also takes the inheritance⁵³ but when an ordinary brother performs the duty of the levirate marriage, he⁵⁴ does not take the inheritance?⁵⁵ Scripture stated, Shall succeed in the name of his brother⁵⁵ and behold he has succeeded!⁵⁶

But since the All Merciful called him the firstborn;⁵⁷

(1) Where both sisters are bound by the levirate tie.

(2) Between the levir and his deceased brother's widow from the moment death took place.

(3) Consequently both widows are forbidden in levirate marriage, each being in relation to the other a sister of one's zekukah. But such prohibition is never removed even when one of them subsequently performed the halizah with one of the brothers and has thus severed her levirate bond, for once a yebamah is prohibited to her deceased husband's brother for a single moment, she is in the same category as a widow of a brother who died with issue.

(4) The reason why none of the surviving brothers may marry one of the two widows.

(5) Were one brother to be

(6) Now, if the widow whom one of them had married was really his yebamah. the other must be a total stranger to him and to the other brother; and since this might be said in the case of each pair of brothers where the marriage had already taken place. They are not, in the face of such a possibility. to be parted (Rashi). [According to the alternative interpretation (supra p. 142, n. 4.) in face of such a possibility the Rabbis saw no reason for enacting the preventive measure forbidding levirate marriage after halizah had been performed.]

(7) Who are forbidden to marry a haluzah.

(8) One of them, surely, must inevitably have married a haluzah since, In case she is not his yebamah, she is the betrothed of the stranger with whose brother (v. our Mishnah) she had performed halizah'

(9) To marry a Priest.

(10) As here where each brother can claim that the one he married was his yebamah.

(11) The prohibition consequently does not apply. Hence they may continue to live with the widows they had married.

(12) Lev. XXI, 7, speaking of priests.

(13) Ibid.. which proves that the prohibition is Pentateuchal.

(14) Asmakta, v. Glos.

(15) Deut. XXV, 6.

(16) Lit., 'from here (it is deduced)'.

(17) The text of Deut. XXV, 6. being connected with v. 5 preceding it, thus: Her husband's brother shall ... take her to him to wife (v. 5) and he shall be the firstborn (ibid. v. 6). והיה הבכור והיה may be rendered either, and it shall be (as E.V.) or and he (i.e., the levir) shall be as the Talmud here renders it.

(18) Only the brother who marries the widow, and no other brother, is entitled to the inheritance of the deceased.

(19) Taking the 'brother' who marries the widow as the subject of 'shall succeed'. (Cf. supra n. 3)'

(20) The subject of 'shall succeed' being 'the child' that will be born from the levirate union.

(21) Gen. XLVIII, 6.

(22) Since he is Incapable of procreation. his wife is exempt alike from yibbum and halizah.

(23) Though it had been given a Midrashic interpretation.

(24) V. Glos. גזרה שוה the word analogy between the expression 'name' in the two cited texts.

(25) So that despite the ordinary meaning of the text, the child born from the levirate union need not be named after the deceased.

(26) About the name.

(27) Consequently. name in this text could not possibly have borne its ordinary meaning, but must have that given to it in the exposition supra. viz., that Beth din are instructed to hand over the inheritance Of the deceased to the levir who married his widow. An objection against Raba!

(28) The child that will be born.

(29) The levir's.

(30) Neither when there is, nor when there is not, a firstborn.

(31) Lit., 'why to me'.

(32) He would in any case have been excluded since he was not the firstborn.

(33) Of the 'wife of a brother who was not his contemporary'.

(34) Who was the paternal brother of the deceased.

(35) That a mother's firstborn should be regarded as the legal firstborn in respect of the levirate marriage.

(36) Hence there was no need to exclude him. The exclusion consequently indicates that by firstborn, in this context, any elder brother was meant.

(37) Either by the firstborn or by any other of the brothers, and that for this reason the exclusion of 'a brother who was not his contemporary' was necessary.

(38) At all; by any brother.

(39) Deut. XXV, 5, which refers to all cases, even to that where there were Only two brothers.

(40) Since the text does not specify any particular case.

(41) Lit., 'and say'.

(42) Were it as suggested this exclusion would be unnecessary. Cf. supra p. 145, nn. 6 and 13.

(43) Married before the Beth din could prevent him.

(44) Of the levirate marriage.

(45) Deut. XXV. 5.

(46) All brothers must be equal in respect of the levirate marriage.

(47) If the other brothers refused to marry the widow it should be his duty to marry her.

(48) Not being the firstborn it is no more his duty to marry the widow than it is that of his brothers.

(49) I.e., all the brothers are approached in the order of seniority. V. Tosaf. s.v. אֶחָד אֶחָד, a.l., and cf. Rashi a.l.

(50) I.e., when the youngest of all has also refused to marry the widow.

(51) Now, since the brothers are approached. in the order of seniority. it is obvious that it is always the eldest, not necessarily the firstborn, upon whom the duty of the levirate marriage devolves!

(52) V. supra p. 144, n. 3.

(53) Of his deceased brother.

(54) The ordinary brother.

(55) Deut. XXV, 6.

(56) Hence any brother who marries the widow is entitled to the inheritance of the deceased.

(57) And not merely 'the elder' or 'the eldest'.

Talmud - Mas. Yevamoth 24b

what practical ruling was thereby intended?¹ — To impair his rights; As a firstborn does not take a double portion in his father's prospective property² in the same way as he does in that which is already in his possession,³ so does this one⁴ take no [double]⁵ portion in [his father's] prospective property⁶ as he does in that which is already in his possession.⁷

MISHNAH. IF A MAN IS SUSPECTED OF [INTERCOURSE]⁸ WITH A SLAVE WHO WAS LATER EMANCIPATED, OR WITH A HEATHEN WHO SUBSEQUENTLY BECAME A PROSELYTE, LO, HE MUST NOT MARRY HER.⁹ IF, HOWEVER, HE DID MARRY HER THEY NEED NOT BE PARTED.¹⁰ IF A MAN IS SUSPECTED OF INTERCOURSE⁸ WITH A MARRIED WOMAN¹¹ WHO, [IN CONSEQUENCE,] WAS TAKEN AWAY FROM HER HUSBAND,¹² HE MUST LET HER GO EVEN THOUGH HE HAD MARRIED HER.¹³

GEMARA. This implies that she may become a proper proselyte!¹⁴ But against this a contradiction is raised. Both a man who became a proselyte for the sake of a woman and a woman who became a proselyte for the sake of a man, and, similarly, a man who became a proselyte for the sake of a royal board, or for the sake of joining Solomon's servants,¹⁵ are no proper proselytes. These are the words of R. Nehemiah, for R. Nehemiah used to say: Neither lion-proselytes,¹⁶ nor dream-proselytes¹⁷ nor the proselytes of Mordecai and Esther¹⁸ are proper proselytes unless they become converted at the present time. How can it be said, 'at the present time'?—Say 'as at the present time'!¹⁹—Surely concerning this it was stated that R. Isaac b. Samuel b. Martha said in the name of Rab: The halachah is in accordance with the opinion of him who maintained that they were all proper proselytes. If so, this²⁰ should have been permitted altogether!²¹—On account of [the reason given by] R. Assi. For R. Assi said,²² Put away from thee a froward mouth, and perverse lip's etc.²³

Our Rabbis learnt: No proselytes will be accepted in the days of the Messiah.²⁴ In the same manner no proselytes were accepted in the days of David nor in the days of Solomon.²⁵ Said R. Eleazar: What Scriptural [support is there for this view]?—Behold he shall be a proselyte who is converted for my own sake,²⁶ he who lives with you shall be settled among you,²⁷ he only who 'lives with you' in your poverty shall be settled among you; but no other.

IF A MAN IS SUSPECTED OF INTERCOURSE WITH A MARRIED WOMAN etc. Rab said: [This²⁸ must be confirmed] by witnesses.²⁹ Said R. Shesheth: It seems³⁰ that Rab made this statement while he was sleepy and about to doze off;³¹ for it was taught: 'If a man is suspected of intercourse with a married woman who, in consequence was taken away from her husband³² and was subsequently divorced by another man,³³ he³⁴ need not part with her once he has married her'. Now, how is this to be understood? If it is a case where witnesses³⁵ are available, of what avail is it that another man stepped in and checked the rumour?³⁶ [Must we] not then [conclude that this is a case] where there were no witnesses;³⁵ and the reason³⁷ is because another man stepped in and checked the rumour, but had that not happened she would have been taken away from him?³⁸ — Rab can answer you: The same law, that where witnesses³⁵ are available she is taken away from him and that where no witnesses are available she is not taken away, applies also to the case where no other man stepped in and checked the rumour, but this it is that was meant: 'Even if another man stepped in and checked the rumour it is not proper for him³⁹ to marry her'.⁴⁰

An objection was raised: This⁴¹ has been said in the case only where she had no children,⁴² but if she has children⁴² she must not be divorced.⁴³ If, however, witnesses to the seduction⁴⁴ presented themselves, she must go away from him⁴⁵ even if she had ever so many children!⁴⁶ -Rab explains our Mishnah as dealing with the case where she has children and witnesses against her are available.

What, however, impels Rab to explain our Mishnah as dealing with a case where she has children and where witnesses against her are available, and to give as the reason why she is to be taken away, because witnesses are available, and [to imply that] if witnesses are not available she is not taken away; let him rather explain [our Mishnah as dealing with the case] where she has no children [and has to be taken away] even though no witnesses are available! Raba replied: Our Mishnah presented a difficulty to him. What point was there [he argued] for using the expression 'WAS TAKEN AWAY'?⁴⁷ It should have been stated 'he parted from her';⁴⁸ but any such expression as 'was taken away' implies 'by the Beth din' and the Beth din take away Only where witnesses are available.⁴⁹

If you prefer I may say that that Baraitha⁵⁰ represents the view of Rabbi;⁵¹ for It was taught: When a pedlar⁵² leaves a house and the woman within is fastening her sinner,⁵³ since the thing is ugly she must, said Rabbi, go.⁵⁴ If spittle is found⁵⁵ on the upper part of the curtained bed, since the thing is ugly,⁵⁶ she must, said Rabbi, go.⁵⁴

(1) For all practical purposes. as it has been shewn, the elder or eldest brother has the same privileges as the firstborn; why, then, was the expression בכור, (firstborn) used instead of גדול (elder or eldest) which would have included the firstborn?

(2) Property which was not in his father's possession at the time of his death.

(3) At the time he died.

(4) The levir who marries the widow and is given a double share (his and that of the deceased) in the inheritance of their father.

(5) Rashi. [Aliter: the levir inherits only such property of the deceased brother as had been in the latter's possession at the time of his death. Any property that fell into his possession subsequent thereto he shares equally with the other brothers. On this view the levir has no claim to the share which the deceased brother would have been entitled to in the property of their father had he survived the father, v. Nimmuke Joseph and Me'iri.]
